"There are seven great railroad systems in Alabama" says the petition, "so combined that there is practically no competition on local rates, each one promulgating and collecting its own tariffs. Suppose the convention should divide Alabama into seven taxing districts perpetuating the tax assessorship and collectorship in one family, all foreigners, with only some little advisory espionage as to rate and disposition and expect satisfactory results—absurd—yet Colonel Falkner claims this as a right of the franchise corporations of Alabama."

The questions are asked: Will any one state that our law constituting the railroad commission board, has not made the board itself a failure? Is not such a commission with the power of pardoning recommendation looked on to it a farce and a reflection, both on official and state?

No one doubts this and every member of the convention should study the recent history of Kentucky, in which the L. & N. was charged with organizing a fight against the democratic party, which resulted in anarchy and carpetbagger times, and recognize that their highest work is not the suffrage, but the liberty of the people. The power that can and will attack the weakness of a voter is more dangerous than the negro of the black belt or the unlearned voter of North Alabama. Last year Colonel Melvin, president of the Mississippi commission, called a meeting of the southern commissioners at Lookout Mountain to devise means to stop railroads from increasing freight rates by transformation of classes, and our commission excused itself from attendance on the plea of a previous engagement—touring the Pacific slope in a private car in care of Colonel Falkner's assistants.

The increase was not effected in Georgia and Mississippi but was in Alabama. The petitioners estimate that Alabama railroads collect between one and a half and two million dollars a year more than on same tonnage in Georgia because of high, uncontrolled rates.

Some comparisons of rates are made. The rate on the necessaries of life between Decatur and Montgomery is 60 per cent more than between Atlanta and Augusta. At Anniston and Oxford the freight toward Atlanta and home, to the Georgia line, is 80 to 90 per cent higher than from Atlanta and Rome to the Alabama line.

The petition declares:

"The Southern and L. & N. have combined to make impossible the navigation of the Tennessee river, and the whole Tennessee valley which would have rates based on this God-given carrier, have only such advantage as would come from a pike. The rate on corn from Louisville, 450 miles, to Birmingham, is seventeen cents; from Nashville, 225 miles, is thirteen cents; from Decatur, eighty miles, thirteen cents. This differential against the Tennessee makes it no use as a basing point, prevents inter-state traffic, gives our towns on its banks the negro's curse of chance, and furnishes the only American example of a navigable river enjoying no freight competition.

The petition is not intended as any reflection on Colonel Falkner. "He is the trusted employe of the railroad companies, with unlimited discretion," says the petition. "If the roads could have the benefit of his matured wisdom, he would be a worthy master, but from the nature of the case it cannot be—'No man can serve two masters.'"

The Georgia state commission has successfully proven the efficacy of

NOTES AND COMMENTS

THE BIRMINGHAM SHIPPERS

WANT RAILROAD COMMISSION ELECTED BY PEOPLE.

THEY QUOTE SOME STARTLING FIGURES

The Constitutional Convention Has Been Besieged With Similar Petitions—The Georgia Law Compared and Citations Made.

The Birmingham Freight Bureau in seeking to have the state railroad commission directly elected and paid by the people, has prepared a petition for presentation to the constitutional convention.

The petition which arises one which was presented to the convention by the Birmingham Board of Trade, the Wholesale Grocers' Association and the Freight Bureau. With the former petition was submitted also a letter of Colonel Trammell, late president of the Georgia railroad commission and president of the Texas commission, showing the beneficial results of their commission after thirteen years trial.

The new petition says that without attempting to reply to either, "Col. J. M. Falkner, District Attorney and general attorney of the L. & N. Railroad, through the Montgomery Journal, makes a general denial" to both papers defending his client, the L. & N., and says that the Georgia rate is not a proper criterion and states of the Trammell letter as being not a spurious manuscript.

The petition answers Col. Falkner, recognizing his ability to his client, the L. & N., and appreciating his legal abilities and great value to the state as a citizen and loyal citizen, but it gives credence to the colonel's arguments and presents figures which must have escaped the colonel's notice.

"There are seven great railroad systems in Alabama" says the petition, "so combined that there is practically no competition on local rates, each one promulgating and collecting its own tariffs. Suppose the convention should divide Alabama into seven taxing districts perpetuating the tax assessorship and collectorship in one family, all foreigners, with only some little advisory espionage as to rate and disposition and expect satisfactory results—absurd—yet Colonel Falkner claims this as a right of the franchise corporations of Alabama."

The questions are asked: Will any one state that our law constituting the railroad commission board, has not made the board itself a failure? Is not such a commission with the power not pardoning recommendation tacked on to it a farce and a reflection, both on official and state?

No one doubts this and every member of the convention should study the recent history of Kentucky, in which the L. & N. was charged with organizing a fight against the democratic party, which resulted in anarchy and carpetbagger times, and recognize that their highest work is not the suffrage, but the liberty of the people. The power that can and will check the weakness of a voter is more dangerous than the negro of the black belt or the unlearned voter of North Alabama. Last year Colonel McIvis, president of the Mississippi commission called a meeting of the southern commissioners at Lookout Mountain to devise means to stop railroads from increasing freight rates by transformation of classes, and our commission excused itself from attendance on the plea of a previous engagement—touring the Pacific slope in a private car in care of Colonel Falkner's assistants.

The increase was not effected in Georgia and Mississippi but was in Alabama. The petitioners estimate that Alabama railroads collect between one and a half and two million dollars a year more than on same tonnage in Georgia because of high, uncontrolled rates.

Some comparisons of rates are made. The rate on the necessaries of life between Decatur and Montgomery is 60 per cent more than between Atlanta and Augusta. At Anniston and Oxford the freight toward Atlanta and Rome, to the Georgia line, is 80 to 100 per cent higher than from Atlanta and Rome to the Alabama line.

The petition declares:

"The Southern and L. & N. have combined to make impossible the navigation of the Tennessee river, and the whole Tennessee valley which should have rates based on this God-given carrier, have only such advantage as would come from a pike. The rate on ore from Louisville, 450 miles, to Birmingham, is seventeen cents; from Nashville, 226 miles, is thirteen cents; from Decatur, eighty miles, thirteen cents. This differential against the Tennessee makes it no use as a basing point, prevents inter-state traffic, gives the towns on its banks the negro's cur day chance, and furnishes the only American example of a navigable river furnishing no freight competition.

The petition is not intended as any reflection on Colonel Falkner. "He is the trusted employe of the railroad companies, with unlimited discretion," says the petition. "If the state could have the benefit of his unbiased wisdom, he would be a worthy leader, but from the nature of the case this cannot be—'No man can serve two masters.'"

The Georgia state commission has successfully proven the efficacy of the Georgia law and has maintained it for twenty-three years during which time Alabama has paid in excesses $30,000 or $40,000. If the railroads are recouping in Alabama their losses in Georgia, and we are sustaining the Georgia system, we are either the most liberal people or the biggest fools on earth.

The shippers of the district have asked all citizens to write to their representatives in the convention, hoping by concerted action of individuals to obtain the legislation sought.

SHAKEN UP.

A section twenty miles wide through the Nevada desert from Death, as far west as Carlin, experienced a series of heavy earthquake shocks about 2:20 o'clock Friday afternoon. The vibrations generally were from north to south, and at one or two points lasted for fully five seconds. At Elko, Nevada, this shock was unusually severe. The high school building, a big new brick edifice, was badly cracked by the violence of the vibrations and other buildings were slighty damaged. The earthquake was followed by heavy rain.

PRESIDENT Diaz has issued distinct orders, which have been framed to the advantage of the railroads, in which he prohibits strikes and offers government aid, if necessary, to break any future strikes.

HOLLAND, in behalf of the Netherlands railway, has demanded damages of Portugal for engines and cars at Lorenzo Marques taken by officials and handed over to the British authorities.

THIEVES stole $20,000 from the army safe at Santa Cruz, Friday. The safe was in the guard house, and it may be that soldiers took the money. The money was to have been used in paying off the troops.

A terrific electric storm passed over Miami, Fla., Saturday morning. Considerable damage was done. The wires are down in every direction.

IT is currently reported that Mayor Wm. Landa, of Mexico, will be Mexico's next minister to England.

THE Hawaiian Legislature has appropriated $15,000 for an exhibit at the St. Louis World's Fair.

The government has determined to make vast improvements in the fortifications around the harbor of San Francisco. The hills on both sides of the Golden Gate are to be mounted with more of the heaviest and most improved ordinance. The number to gether with those already mounted will approximate 100. Many rapid firing guns are to be placed. Much work is ahead but our growing trade with the Orient and outside world has made it imperative that San Francisco should be protected with the latest improved defenses.

The disappearance from New York of General Uribe, promoter of the Colombian revolution, is receiving the attention of the officials of the Colombian legation who have reason to believe General Uribe has gone to Nicaranga, where there is to be a revolutionary junta with representatives from Ecuador, Venezuela, Colombia and other South American countries.

Major William T. Rossell makes the following estimates for river and harbor improvements in western Alabama and eastern Mississippi: Mobile harbor, $810,000; Warrior river, Alabama, $30,000; Tombigbee river, Alabama, from its mouth to Demopolis, $280,000; Tombigbee river, from Demopolis to Columbus, $30,000.

The report of the auditor of the war department, soon to be issued, shows the claims of the various states on account of the war with Spain and the amount allowed, as follows:

The Florida Everglades, long unknown merely because of the imaginary terrors surrounding the district, although it was never deadly or dangerous to the Indian and the hunter, is to be exploited. A company has been chartered to drain it by cutting a ship canal, and another company has been incorporated to cross it with a railroad and telegraph line from the Gulf to the Atlantic. It is expected, therefore, that the visitor of a few years hence will find a new scenic route for his exploration, and that not so very long thereafter the Everglades will become one of the richest sections of a rapidly developing State. The Jacksonville Times-Union hopes to see the fulfilment of its prediction that the finest sugar district in the world will line the road from Miami to Tampa.

COSTLY DOLL HOUSES.

THEY LEAVE LITTLE TO THE IMAGINATION OF CHILDREN.

Some of Them Cost a Small Fortune—How They Are Built and Furnished—Description of a Miniature Colonial House of a Gotham Little Girl.

Some of the doll houses that are built these days leave little to the imagination of the children fortunate enough to possess them. Very often they cost a small fortune and the workmanship expended on the furniture and other accessories is of the highest order.

Doll houses of this kind are not to be bought ready made in a toy shop but are built to order and often on specifications, in which the smallest detail is considered. One which was presented recently to a little girl of the upper West Side was built and furnished on such a scale of magnificence as fairly to stun the recipient.

This house is of the colonial style of architecture and is four feet high, five feet wide and three feet deep. There are four ample windows in the rear and five in the front. Two tall chimneys, painted in imitation of red brick, surmount the roof.

The main entrance is through double doors, approachable by a short flight of steps. There is a door bell that rings and the number of the house, which is 37, is painted in gold on the glass of the doors. All of the front except the central portion containing the main entrance and the window above it, may be swung back on hinges, thus revealing the interior. On the first floor are the kitchen and dining room. In the kitchen is a range in perfect order in which real fires may be built. The frying pan and griddle are of iron and the coal scuttle and dustpan of copper. Then there are the clothes boiler, a box full of clothes pins, wooden water pails, and a closet with shelves, in the drawers of which is a complete set of pewter dishes for the use of the servant. There is also a closet in which may be stored kitchen utensils. The chairs are of solid wood.

An arch leads from the kitchen into the dining room, which is furnished in sumptuous style. The carpet is Turkey red and the paper on the wall is blue and gold. The table, which is round, is of inlaid wood. The chairs are of oak, solidly built with cane bottoms and turned legs. There are also a side table, a buffet, a couch of inlaid wood and an easy chair, with red velvet seat in the corner. The dishes are china.

The second floor is occupied by the parlor and the bedroom, both very beautiful in the eyes of the child owner. The parlor carpet is old rose and the wall paper white and gold. There are five high-backed, padded chairs, an armchair and a sofa with a carved back, all exquisitely made and all covered with white flowered silk. There are also two wooden high-back chairs of fancy design.

In the bedroom are four high-back white and gold chairs, with blue satin cushions and a white and gold bed with a blue satin canopy. The dressing table matches the rest of the furniture and in the centre of it is painted a bunch of roses. The room also contains a handsome white wood desk with green baize top and closets underneath, a marble top stand and an ebony armchair and foot rest, both covered with red satin. There is a lace spread for the bed.

In each room save the kitchen there is an elaborate brass chandelier suspended from the ceiling. Each room also contains a fireplace and mantel. In the parlor, dining room and bed room are hung little pictures, resembling oil paintings, and framed artistically in gilt. All the front windows have lace curtains tied back with blue satin ribbons.

Just inside the door there is a metal card receiver and a brass umbrella rack has three bright colored sun umbrellas in it. The baby carriage is of most modern French build, with high body, movable top and easy moving springs. A brass bird cage containing a miniature parrot hangs from one of the second story windows. There is a brass clock with glass face in each room, the one in the parlor being flanked on either side by a tall candelabrum.

The family that occupies this wonderful mansion is French, if one is to judge by the dress of its members. Besides the father and mother, there are four children, a nurse, a chef and two maids. —New York Sun.

Queer Tongue Tripping in Court.

Lawyers often make queer slips of the tongue. The other day one in the Supreme Court said to a witness:

"Now, consecrate your mind on that." Of course he meant concentrate, and the witness understood him and tried to do as he was requested.

Another lawyer in asking a witness as to a certain dance said:

"Did you pi-rute?"

After some explanation the witness learned that he meant "pirouette."

Still another lawyer in all earnestness told the Court that he would have to ask an adjournment of his case "because my client is suffering from bivalvular fracture of the heart."

The Court thought this disease sufficient cause for granting the application. —New York Times.

Physician, Not Horse Doctor.

A physician and surgeon has not the right to practice as a veterinarian. Such is the decision given by Judge W. G. Cochran in a case in the Douglas County Circuit Court, in which Dr. Barbour had sued Mell Crews for medical attention given to Crew's racer, A. J. Glick, which was injured while racing at Dubuque, Iowa. Barbour presented a bill for $258 and Crews contended that this amount was excessive, but paid $100. Barbour sued for the remaining $158 but lost the suit, as the Judge decided he had no right to practice as a horse doctor.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Deep Fastenings.

Buttons are being used much more than the invisible hook-and-eye that was always striving to creep into notice—of the past few years. No one especial kind of button is in vogue. They are used with due reference to the material of the dress. With figured silk, brocade or velvet a small fancy button of enamel, metal or jeweled is good. With plain silk or satin a small crochet button is preferred. Smooth cloths have tailor buttons of the same material, and cheviot, tweed, homespun, etc., are fastened with horn, bone or smoked pearl buttons.

Best For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Actions speak louder than words, and actors louder than either.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa

The man who shaves himself is always getting in a scrape.

In the Rock of Gibraltar there are seventy miles of tunnels.

See advt. of SMITHDEAL'S BUSINESS COLLEGE

The man who loses his temper loses his friends.

It requires no experience to dye with PUTNAM FADELESS DYES. Simply boiling your goods in the dye is all that is necessary. Sold by all druggists.

The new Metropolitan Railway of Paris now carries a daily average of 115,000 passengers.

The American quail has been successfully acclimatized in Sweden.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. At all druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

The first porcelain factory in America was established in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle

Sugar-coated compliments are sometimes hard to swallow.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of throat and lungs.—WM. O. ENDSLEY, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

The first world's fair was in London in 1851.

Rev. H. P. Carson, Scotland, Dak., says: "Two bottles of Hall's Catarrh Cure completely cured my little girl." Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Many a man gets a pointer from the finger of scorn.

Animals Have Reasoning Power.

That animals have reasoning power, and can recognize the approach of danger, is the verdict of the supreme court of Iowa. The case in which a decision was given was against a railway company for killing stock. In the lower court the rule of evidence was that the statutory whistle required sixty rods before crossing a public highway, and was intended for the protection of dumb animals as well as human beings, and this has been approved by the supreme court. The railway company contends that the requirement of the whistle at crossings could only be intended for rational beings, not animals. It is conceded that short blasts of the whistle may frighten animals off the track, but when not in danger, to frighten them may cause them to run on the track. The railroad company's attorneys say that the court confounds fright on the part of animals with reason; nevertheless, if this request for a rehearing be refused, and the present opinion stands, then the toots on the whistle are for the benefit of stock as well as human beings.

A new law requires that there be kept constantly on hand at the bureau of engraving and printing at Washington 100,000,000 two and 20,000,000 one-cent stamps.

Hair Splits

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for thirty years. It is elegant for a hair dressing and for keeping the hair from splitting at the ends."—J. A. Gruenenfelder, Grantfork, Ill.

Hair-splitting splits friendships. If the hair-splitting is done on your own head, it loses friends for you, for every hair of your head is a friend.

Ayer's Hair Vigor in advance will prevent the splitting. If the splitting has begun, it will stop it.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Sick Headache?

Food doesn't digest well? Appetite poor? Bowels constipated? Tongue coated? It's your liver! Ayer's Pills are liver pills; they cure dyspepsia, biliousness.

25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers

Smithdeal's

Is the oldest and only business college in Va. owning its building—a grand new one. No vacations. Ladies & gentlemen. Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Typewriting, Penmanship, Telegraphy, &c. "Leading business college south of the Potomac river."—Phila. Stenographer. Address, G. M. Smithdeal, President, Richmond, Va.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER

CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE. SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE. ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E. 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

SOZODONT for the TEETH 25c

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

Mitchell's Eye Salve

You may use with perfect safety Mitchell's Eye Salve. That's not true of pungent drugs. "Mitchell's" is a standard and popular article. It actually does what it claims to do. Price, 25 cents.

By mail, 25c; Hall & Ruckel, New York City.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

EVERY MAN HIS OWN DOCTOR.

By J. Hamilton Ayers, A. M., M. D.

This is a most Valuable Book for the Household, combining as it does the ripe and distinguished Symptoms of all great Diseases, the Causes and Means of Preventing such Diseases, and the simplest Remedies which will alleviate or cure.

192 Pages, Profusely Illustrated.

The Book is written in plain every-day English, and is free from the technical terms which render most Doctor Books so valuable to the generality of readers. This Book is intended to be of Service in the Family, and is so worded as to be readily understood by all.

ONLY 60 cts. POSTPAID.

Postage Stamps Taken.

Not only does this Book contain so much Information Relative to Disease, but very properly gives a Complete Analysis of everything pertaining to Courtship, Marriage and the Production and Rearing of Healthy Families, together with Valuable Recipes and Prescriptions, Explanations of Botanical Practice, Correct use of Ordinary Herbs, &c.

COMPLETE INDEX.

BOOK PUB. HOUSE, 134 Leonard St., N. Y. City

Ladies Are Quick to Learn

And they are finding out that there is nothing better for biliousness, constipation and all derangements of the liver and bowels than

LIVERINA.

It is easy to take, does not gripe nor purge, making it a splendid medicine for children.

50 Cents a Bottle at All Retailers.

Made and Guaranteed By GAY, HARDIE & DURR, Montgomery, Ala.

HAVE YOU CHOSEN A PROFESSION?

The HOMŒOPATHIC MEDICAL COLLEGE of the UNIVERSITY of MICHIGAN offers unrivaled privileges for thorough education.

Men and women admitted on equal terms. Write for special announcement.

R. S. COPELAND, M. D., Ann Arbor, Mich.

HORNER MILITARY SCHOOL, OXFORD, N. C.

The best disciplined School and the most thoroughly taught Scholars Guaranteed.

Actual Results are the Best Arguments.

For Catalogue address

Founded 1851. J. C. HORNER.

Atlanta College of Pharmacy.

Well equipped Laboratories, excellent Teachers, a free Dispensary, where hundreds of prescriptions by the best physicians are compounded daily by the students. Students obtain first-class practical instruction as well as that of a theoretical nature. There is a greater demand for our graduates than we can supply. Address DR. GEO. F. PAYNE, Payne's Chemical Laboratory, Room 11, Atlanta, Ga.

AGENTS WANTED for the Brohard Sash Lock and Brohard Door Holder

Active workers everywhere can earn big money; always a steady demand for our goods. Sample sash lock, with prices, terms, etc., free for 3c stamp for postage. THE BROHARD CO., Station "O," Philadelphia, Pa.

USE CERTAIN COUGH CHILL CORN CURE.

"The Sauce that made West Point famous."

McILHENNY'S TABASCO.

Am. N. U., No. 31. 1901.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

LION COFFEE

A LUXURY WITHIN THE REACH OF ALL!

"The Handwriting on the Wall."

The hand that traces on the wall
Those words of import great,
Confers a boon on one and all
By mentioning the date,
September first will surely be
Red-letter day indeed,
When the new Premium List we see
By the Lion guaranteed.

'Tis best to bear the date in mind,
So that it won't be missed,
The day on which we first shall find
The latest Premium List
Of useful presents rich and rare,
For adult and for young,
For LION COFFEE drinkers share
Who have his praises sung.

September first your grocer ask,
For Lion's latest List;
If he's without, 'tis briefest task
To write us and [illegible]
Inclose a two-cent stamp, and [illegible]
The List will send to you,
You reap a big reward, you see,
And little have to do.

Watch our next advertisement.

Just try a package of LION COFFEE and you will understand the reason of its popularity.

WOOLSON SPICE CO., TOLEDO, OHIO.

For Bargains

—GO TO—

W. M. WILSON & BRO,

Closing out all Millinery and Ladies' Shirt Waists for less than cost.

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON.

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : ALA.

THIS COMPLETE SHAVING OUTFIT FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

- English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to shave 75c
- 3¾ in Hair Brush 55c
- Shaving Brush 10c
- Barber Comb 10c
- Rubber Fine " 10c
- Fine Pocket comb in case 10c
- Big good Shaving soap 10c
- Mirror 10c
- Razor Strop 50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

R·I·P·A·N·S

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

OF COURSE WE WILL.

One of the greatest journalistic treats ever afforded readers of an Alabama newspaper is in store for the many readers of the Montgomery Advertiser before and during the Constitutional Convention. Arrangements will be made for handling news during this event on a larger scale than ever before attempted by any newspaper in the South. The Advertiser will present the most complete report of each day's proceedings possible to obtain, giving, in fact, almost every detail in the way of speeches verbatim, committee reports in full, roll call of votes on all questions, and the many general topics of interest throughout the fifty days the session is expected to last, beginning May 21st. This will undoubtedly be an achievement in journalism unequal to none in the country and certainly an enterprise worthy of patronage by the citizens throughout the State everywhere. We would advise interested readers to get your names on the list in time to begin at the opening. Leave your orders at the Banner office, where they will be forwarded promptly and proper attention given. The Advertiser by mail, Daily and Sunday, at the rate of 65 cents per month.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

The Banner office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us trial

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES.

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	1.50
Nashville American	1.50
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	$1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald
Home and Farm	$1.10
Southern Farmer	$1.00

WOMAN'S RELIEF

A really healthy woman has little pain or discomfort at the menstrual period. No woman needs to have any. Wine of Cardui will quickly relieve those smarting menstrual pains and the dragging head, back and side aches caused by falling of the womb and irregular menses.

WINE OF CARDUI

has brought permanent relief to 1,000,000 women who suffered every month. It makes the menstrual organs strong and healthy. It is the provision made by Nature to give women relief from the terrible aches and pains which blight so many homes.

Gazzerwoon, La., Oct. 14, 1903.
I have been very sick for some time. I was taken with a severe pain in my side and could not get any relief until I tried a bottle of Wine of Cardui. Before I had taken all of it I was relieved. I feel it my duty to say that you have a wonderful medicine.
MRS. M. A. YOUNG.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP
W. H. TAYLOR, Proprietor.
HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING
In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.
HOT AND COLD BATHS.
CLANTON

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the Banner.

THE
VITAE ORE
PREPARATIONS
are on sale by
Campbelle Drug co., Clanton.
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A. Ayers, Clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kincheon
J. B. Downs, Clanton.
N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

Why try to stick things with something that doesn't stick? Buy MAJOR'S CEMENT; you know it sticks. Nothing breaks away from it. Stick to MAJOR'S CEMENT. Buy once, you will buy forever. There is nothing so good; don't believe the substitutes.

MAJOR'S RUBBER and MAJOR'S LEATHER. Two separate compds. the best. Insist on having them. ESTAB'D 1876. 15 and 25 cents per bottle at all druggists.
MAJOR CEMENT CO., NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST WAY TO THE
SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST,
NORTH AND NORTH-WEST,
—IS VIA THE—

L. & N.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.

The Through Cars

of this line pass Calera daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans.

Connecting with all points in

TEXAS AND THE WEST.

Also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Connecting for all points in the

NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or L. P. Ammon, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

E. W. Grove

His signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

THE NULITE.

750 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS

Produce the finest artificial light in the world. Superior to electricity or gas. Cheaper than kerosene oil. A 20th Century Revolution in the Art of Lighting.

They darkness into daylight turn,
And our method of money burn.

No Smoke. No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely Safe. They are Portable. Hang or stand them anywhere. We also manufacture Table Lamps, Wall Lamps, Pendants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, Gasoline Vapor Gas Lamps made. They sell at sight, each burner 100 candle power. Nothing like them. Good Agts Wanted. Write for catalogue and prices.

Chicago Solar Light Co. 81 Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER office

AT REDUCED PRICES

Subscribe for The Banner. $1.00 a year.

Agoraphobia.

Builders, with their stone and mortar, brick and lime, water and sand, have left little puddles on a stretch of upper Broadway. An irregular string of pedestrians flung itself past the place, ignoring for the most part the slight inconvenience of stepping over the miniature lakes. But one man, when he was confronted with the situation, started back with an exclamation of vexation and passed around the pools.

"That chap has agoraphobia," said one of two men who had noted the movement.

"Has what?" asked the other.

"Agoraphobia. It means simply an abherrence of open spaces, and it has a great many victims. Specialists in this sort of nervousness say it takes various forms, some of its subjects having an insurmountable dread of crossing from one side of the street to the other, while others have a disinclination to go more than a few blocks from their home.

"Some dread to step across a puddle of water, like the man we just saw. Others dread descending into a well beyond a certain depth, and still others have a fear of getting too high in a building or an elevator. As a rule, these persons are acutely intellectual, so it is no mental disgrace to be a victim of agoraphobia, simply a misfortune that is common than most persons suppose."—New York Telegram.

A Celebrated Roman Eater.

Touching the matter of eating, the stories told by the old chroniclers and historians of the abnormal appetites of certain Roman and oriental men of note fairly stagger belief. Gibbon tells of Soliman, a caliph in the eighth century, who died of indigestion in his camp near Chalcis, in Syria. Just as he was about to lead an army of Arabs against Constantinople. He had emptied two baskets of eggs and figs, which he swallowed alternately, and the repast was finished with marrow and sugar. In a pilgrimage to Mecca the same caliph had eaten with impunity at a single meal 70 pomegranates, a kid, 6 fowls and a huge quantity of the grapes of Tayef.

Such a statement would defy belief were not others of a similar character well avouched. Louis XIV could hardly boast of an appetite as ravenous as Soliman's, but he would eat at a sitting four plateffuls of different soups, a whole pheasant, a partridge, a plateful of salad, mutton hashed with garlic, two good sized slices of ham, a dish of pastry and finish with fruit and sweetmeats.

Fulfilling the Wishes of the Dead.

Old Lord Forglen, the Scotch judge, died in 1727. Dr. Clerk, who attended his lordship to the last, calling on his patient the day he died, was admitted by the judge's old servant and clerk, David Reed. "How does my lord do?" inquired the doctor. "I houp he's weel," responded the old man, whose voice and manner at once explained his meaning. With tears streaming down his face he conducted Dr. Clerk into a room where there were two dozen bottles of wine underneath the table.

Other gentlemen presently arrived, and, having partaken of a glass or two of wine while they listened to David's account of his master's last hours, they all rose to depart. "No, no, gentlemen; not so," said the old factotum. "It was the expressed wish of the deceased that I should fill ye a' fou, and I maun fulfill the wish o' the dead." Dr. Clerk used to add when relating the story, "And indeed he did fulfill the will o' the dead, for before the end o't there was na one of us able to bite his ain thoomb!"

Jupiter and Ten.

A very ignorant and wealthy woman who was fond of talking about her "art gallery" one day met at the house of an acquaintance a lady who had not called on her, although they lived in the same town.

"Come and see me, do," said Mrs. B., the patron of art, as the other lady was taking her leave.

"Thank you very much," was the noncommittal reply.

"We've got a new picture too. That ought to tempt you to come, if I can't."

"I should be very glad indeed to see it."

"Such a lovely picture! Sometimes it seems to me I could look at it all day long."

"What is the subject of your picture, Mrs. B.?" inquired the hostess.

"Jupiter and Ten," was the reply.

It was "Jupiter and Io."

Guarding Her Teeth.

It is easy to misunderstand and easy to be misunderstood, and sometimes, happily, it is easy to give and to accept an explanation.

"I did think I would never come to see you again," said a cousin of the prominent society woman who had come to the country to visit her and was about to start homeward. "It's kind of you to ask me, of course, but I remember that when I was at your house in the city, two years ago, you did not seem glad to see me. You were kind and hospitable, of course, but I remember you did not smile once during the entire two weeks of my stay."

To her astonishment, her city cousin burst into a fit of laughter.

"Maria," she said, "just before you came I had the misfortune to break the porcelain 'crown' from one of my new front teeth, and as my dentist was out of town on his vacation I had to wait for his return. I didn't dare to smile when any one was looking at me, for fear of showing the ghastly metallic 'back' to which the porcelain had been attached. It was a strain, Maria, but I was equal to it, and I did not want to have to explain."

And her smile, now without a mechanical flaw, re-enforced the renewed invitation.—Youth's Companion.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S SCHOLARSHIP OFFER.

Scholarships and Expenses for Girls in the Great Rally.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION has offered to every boy or girl in Georgia, who will secure the new subscribers to the Daily and Sunday Constitution a scholarship at any educational institution in Georgia and $100 to cover the student's expenses for the year.

This offer covers every school and every boy or girl who will take advantage of the proposition. The terms are not beyond the reach of one determined to secure an education. This work will be over for. One hundred or more scholarships are up. The cash value represented in 100 such scholarships and expenses for one year is approximately $25,000. No one can say when such an opportunity will be offered again.

The enterprise and liberality of THE CONSTITUTION is commended and vast good will result from the offer. The conditions will be furnished upon application.

Some Nice Royal Jobs.

"One of the most desirable posts at Windsor castle," says a correspondent of the Chicago Record, "is that of the king's limner, who in ancient times decorated books and manuscripts with initial letters and who now paints the parchment commissions which his majesty is pleased to confer upon some of his subjects. The man who now fills the post has extraordinary skill with the pen and brush, and his diplomas and certificates were greatly admired for their exquisite taste and artistic execution. He receives a salary of $2,500 a year. The clockmaker at Windsor castle receives the same compensation, and it is his business to keep all the timepieces in repair. The historiographer, who is supposed to keep a record of events, holds a hereditary office, with a salary of $2,500 a year. The master of music receives $2,500 and arranges concerts for his majesty's diversion. The surveyor of pictures is paid $1,500, the librarian receives $1,500, the examiner of plays $1,000, the keeper of the swans is paid $500, and the bargemaster, who looks after the boats used by the royal family at Windsor, has a similar compensation."

The Lieutenant's Brother.

It may not be generally known that it is considered a serious offense for a German soldier, no matter what may be his rank, to appear in public even in uniform, even though he be on furlough. The army regulations strictly enjoin that he must always wear his uniform.

A certain Lieutenant Schmidt, who was engaged in some lively adventure or other, dressed up as a civilian and was having altogether an enjoyable time until, on turning a corner, he unexpectedly met his colonel.

The lieutenant did not, however, lose his presence of mind. He pretended that he had never seen his colonel before and in a changed voice asked:

"Can you tell me, sir, where Lieutenant Schmidt lives? I am his brother from the country, and am paying him a little visit, but I happen just now to have lost my way."

The colonel quietly gave the desired information, and Lieutenant Schmidt congratulating himself on his lucky escape, hurried home and put on his uniform with all possible speed.

He thought, of course, that he had taken in his superior officer, but when an idea was rudely dispelled when the next day he met his colonel, who the latter said:

"Lieutenant Schmidt, if your brother from the country says you another visit I'll have him placed in close confinement for 30 days."

Which of Your Eyes Cried?

It seems a positively absurd question to ask, "Which of your eyes cried?"

In an everyday, common or garden variety it is well known that tears make their appearance and roll down the face seemingly as fast from one as from the other, whichever "other" may be, but if careful attention is made, more especially with certain people, it will be found that one of the eyes has a special emotional weakness and often opens the tear valve before its companion has decided upon the happy event.

Probably the best method of discovering the emotional eye is to attend a pathetic stage play and when the weeping period comes along look at the tear No. 1.

The writer attended such a performance recently, and was somewhat astonished to find that all his grief came from the right eye.

Whether the solution to the problem is to be found in the fact that he was leaning on his right arm must ever only be decided by an expert.

Information Desired.

The rural postoffice is the fountain head of general information on less so in Georgia than in Vermont, and the Atlanta Constitution reports a conversation recently participated by an old darky who approached the village postmaster and said:

"Any letters for me?"

"No."

"Any postal cards?"

"No."

"Is my paper come?"

"No."

"Got any almanacs?"

"No."

"Well, does you know anybody wants to buy a live alligator?"

...for the banking house for ...ville's Savings Bank are being ...ed by Mr. Lockwood, ...ontgomery architect, who ...ve bids from contractors, ...intend the erection of the ...

As soon as the contract ... work will be at once ...ed, and it is expected the ... be ready for business by ...

The iron doors for the ... already at the depot.

...night there was a territ-

DEFECTIVE ORIGINAL

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. IX — CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY AUGUST 8, 1901

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S SCHOLARSHIP OFFER.

Scholarships and Expenses for Clubs to the Great Daily.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION has offered to every boy or girl in Georgia, who will secure the new subscribers to the Daily and Sunday Constitution a year's tuition at any educational institution in Georgia and $100.00 toward the student's expenses for the year.

This opens every school and classroom door in the State to every ambitious boy or girl who will take advantage of the proposition. The terms are not beyond the reach of one determined to secure an education. This work will be well paid for. One hundred or more scholarships are up. The cash value represented in 100 such scholarships and expenses for one year is approximately $25,000. No one need lack when such ample provision is made.

The enterprise and liberality of THE CONSTITUTION will be commended and vast good will result from the offer. The Constitution will furnish full particulars on application.

Some Nice Royal Jobs.

"One of the most desirable posts at Windsor castle," says a correspondent of the Chicago Record, "is that of the king's limner," who in ancient times decorated books and manuscripts with initial letters and who now prepares the parchment commissions when his majesty is pleased to confer knighthood or some other honor upon one of his subjects. The man who now fills the post has extraordinary skill with the pen and brush, and his diplomas and certificates were greatly admired for their exquisite taste and skillful execution. He receives a salary of $2,500 a year. The clockmaker at Windsor castle receives the same compensation, and it is his business to keep all the timepieces in repair. The historiographer, who is supposed to keep a record of events, holds a hereditary office, with a salary of $2,500 a year. The master of music receives $1,500 and arranges concerts for his majesty's diversion. The surveyor of pictures is paid $1,500, the librarian receives $2,500, the examiner of plays $1,000, the keeper of the swans is paid $300, and the bargemaster, who looks after the boats used by the royal family at Windsor, has a similar compensation."

The Lieutenant's Brother.

It may not be generally known that it is considered a serious offense for a German soldier, no matter what may be his rank, to appear in public except in uniform, even though he be on furlough. The army regulations strictly enjoin that he must always wear his uniform.

A certain Lieutenant Schmidt, who was engaged in some lively adventure of other, dressed up as a civilian and was having altogether an enjoyable time until, on turning a corner, he unexpectedly met his colonel.

The lieutenant did not, however, lose his presence of mind. He pretended that he had never seen his colonel before and in a changed voice asked:

"Can you tell me, sir, where Lieutenant Schmidt lives? I am his brother from the country and am paying him a little visit, but I happen just now to have lost my way."

The colonel quietly gave the desired information and Lieutenant Schmidt, relieved at having heard of his lucky escape, hurried home and put on his uniform with all possible speed.

He thought, of course, that he had taken in his superior officer, but such an idea was rudely dispelled when on the next day he met his colonel, and the latter said:

"Lieutenant Schmidt, if your brother from the country stays you another visit it will have him placed in close confinement for 30 days."

Which of Your Eyes Cries?

It seems a positively absurd question to ask: "Which of your eyes cries?"

In an everyday, common or garden way it is well known that salt tears make their appearance and rush away down the face seemingly as fast from one as from the other, whichever the "other" may be, but if careful note is made, more especially with emotional people, it will be found that one of the eyes has a special emotional tendency and often opens the tear valve before the companion has decided upon the unhappy event.

Probably the best method of discovering the emotional eye is to attend a pathetic stage play and when the weeping period comes along look out for tear No. 1.

The writer attended such a place recently and was somewhat astonished to find that all his grief came from the right eye.

Whether the solution to the problem is to be found in the fact that he was leaning on his right arm must and can only be decided by an expert.

Information Desired.

The rural postoffice is the bureau of general information no less so in Georgia than in Vermont, and the Atlanta Constitution reports a conversation participated in by an old darky who approached the village postmaster and said:

"Any letters for me?"

"No."

"Any postal cards?"

"No."

"Is my paper come?"

"No."

"Got any almanacs?"

"No."

"Well, does you know anybody who wants to buy a live alligator?"

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

What He Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

They are painting the town red. Ickard's store is a deep red, and Mashes has replaced the shingles of his store with tin and painted it a vivid red. Sometimes boys turn themselves loose and paint the town red, but they have been very good lately, so Pinckard and Mashes have taken the job out of their hands.

Some lively young men, a few minutes after ten on Monday night, amused themselves by ringing the bell at the Methodist church, which created a little commotion, as all those who heard the bell ringing, naturally thought it was a fire. Better find some other amusement, boys, false alarms of fire are bad.

Mack Edwards has commenced work on his new brick store house, and it is said the new depot is to be built right away, as soon as the material can be got here. Will Hall's new brick store is nearly finished and will soon be ready for him to move into. It is a neat looking building and greatly improves the look of Main street. Bass Jones has rented the store now occupied by Will Sartor and will open up with a new stock as soon as he can get possession of the building. C. L. Stewart has opened up in his new premises.

It looked like court time last Monday, there were so many people in town. Come to think of it, it was court time, for Judge Adams had some fourteen or fifteen cases in the county court, and Justice Deason also had five trials in his court. Some of the courtiers were caught making uncourteous remarks, but then you can't please everyone, you know.

Last Saturday there was a big crowd attended the annual meeting of the Farmers Mutual Insurance Association. They seem to be getting into some sort of a muddle. They deposed Wallace C. Edler, the general agent, who threatens to seriously interfere with the business. There is no doubt but that Mr. Edler has been faithful to the present prosperity of the Association, and it is hoped the differences will be adjusted amicably. Any trouble which may turn out adversely to the Mutual continue to grow, it is well for those interested to consider the changes in the management of the Association. A full report will be found in another column on this page.

The Southern Normal Institute, which has proven a pronounced success, will celebrate the conclusion of the session with a grand concert at the Baptist church next Friday night. There will doubtless be a large attendance and the lovers of music will enjoy a treat. As Dr. Johnson says:

"Small souls are selfish objects, and great souls are generous; the last often to a fault, the first never but in a sovereign state than to the state."

Plans for the banking house for the people's Savings Bank are being prepared by Mr. Lockwood, of Montgomery, architect, who will receive bids from contractors, and permit the erection of the building. As soon as the contract is let the work will be at once begun, and it is expected the house will be ready for business by Jan. 1. The iron doors for the vault are already at the depot.

Friday night there was a terrific explosion of dynamite or gunpowder which shook the town, and disturbed the slumbers of the just and also the unjust. It is supposed to have been the work of some of the boys, who by the way had better cease these pranks, as the Council are determined to make a strong example of the first offender caught.

MARRIED

At the residence of Mr. J. L. Palmer, father of the bride, on Wednesday night, July 31, Mr. B. E. Jones and Miss Mattie L. Palmer, Rev. F. M. Woods officiating. Only a few friends were present at the ceremony. The happy couple have a host of friends who wish their future life together may be one of endless bliss. They are passing the honeymoon with friends at Lily.

CONCERT

A Musical Concert will be given at the Baptist church, under the direction of Prof. A. J. Showalter, on Tuesday night, August 13, 1901. Admission 15 and 25 cts. One-third of the proceeds will be given to the Baptist church, the balance to the school.

Jacobi Found Guilty.

On Tuesday at Montgomery, Sanford Jacobi, charged with intent to ravish Miss Lizzie Parker, of Clanton, about a year ago was found guilty—the jury being out only eight minutes. He was taken to the county jail. It is said that a motion for a new trial will be made and probably heard on Saturday.

Stanton.

Dr. A. J. MASSEY, the Birmingham Dentist, will be at Stanton on the 12th inst., and balance of the week. Call promptly at the Parnell House. He will be glad to do your dental work.

Kincheon.

A sad accident occurred at the home of Mr Robert Popwell, near Kincheon, on Tuesday afternoon. His three children were playing in a room, when the eldest, a boy about six years old, by some means obtained possession of a shot gun, and playing with it, it was discharged, the shot entering the right arm, side and neck of the baby, fourteen months, old, who was lying on a pallet on the floor. A little girl was holding up a quilt and the shot passed through the quilt before reaching the baby. Dr. V. O. Crumbell was sent for and is doing all that can be done for the little sufferer.

Lomax.

Fine rains have visited our section and farmers are looking happy.

Miss Eva Hill visited friends here Sunday evening.

Mrs. Frank Roebuck of Billingsley has returned home after a pleasant visit to her brother's family here.

Mr. Ed Sims has gone to Jacksonville, Ala., for a stay of several months.

The sweet spirit of the five month's old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Gip Henley passed away on last Sunday morning. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved parents in the loss of their little darling, and may our heavenly Father's special love and blessing fall upon the suffering invalid mother.

Mr. Wm. Lodge, of Mountain Creek, visited his parents here last week.

The Sunday-school at this place is in a flourishing condition.

Mr. Joe Knight and little daughter, Rossie, of Shelby county, visited relatives here last week.

Miss Sallie Knight is visiting friends in Shelby. M.

To Save Her Child

From frightful disfigurement Mrs. Nannie Galleger, of LaGrange, Ga., applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve to great sores on her head and face, and writes its quick cure exceeded all her hopes. It works wonders in Sores, Bruises, Skin Eruptions, Cuts, Burns, Scalds and Piles. 25c. Cure guaranteed by Clanton Drug Co.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our correspondents views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25

Macedonia.

We had another nice shower last Saturday night; so late corn will doubtless be good. Cotton is shedding some; hogs are dieing at a rapid rate in this section. So it seems that the farmer will have to continue paying a high price for meat.

The writer had the pleasure of visiting the Southern Normal Musical Institute at Clanton, last week. It was a pleasure indeed, to hear Prof. Showalter sing once more.

J. C. Veazey will begin a singing school at Stanton next week, and from there to Adams. TRICK.

East Chilton.

Here I am again. Crops are needing rain again, especially corn.

Mr. Job Mims of Prattville was in our vicinity last week.

Messrs. J. N. and W. A. Goss visited Clanton Saturday.

Messrs David Hendrick and E. T. and W. F. Connell returned from a visit to relatives in Elmore and Autauga counties.

J. G. Jones and family of Prattville are visiting relatives here this week.

Mr. B. J. Goss visited his parents here Sunday.

Mr. M. C. Williams has begun work on his new residence.

The writer went on a hogs fishing in a mill hole Saturday. I guess we still have some patient fishermen.

It is reported that L. B. Gullahorn will put up a lumber mill at Burwell this fall.

We are having a great deal of sickness now. There is a number of our people speaking of going to the level country this fall, the writer among them. VIDON.

Bicyclists, base ball and foot ball teams will find Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic the very thing they "need in their business" when the race is ended and the game is finished. For Sore muscles, Bruises, Sprains, etc., it is O. K., and "don't you forget it." Clean and pleasant as perfume and costs only 50c.

New Salem.

We have quite a nice Sunday-school at this place.

Sunday, Aug. 4, at the residence of Mr. George Maddox, Mr. Richard Collins and Miss Dora Maddox were happily united, Rev. L. B. Pounds performing the ceremony. Long and happy may their united lives be.

Mr. William Martin and wife spent last Sunday with Mr. John Parker.

The crops are fine in this section.

Our boys in this section of the country have a game they call catchup. One of the boys started out the other night to catch up with one, and he sided over the corn rows until he wore his shirt bosom. He got there just the same.

Mr. Fletcher Parker and wife visited Mr. Will Aldridge last Sunday.

Is Old Patch dead or sleeping? X. Y. Z.

They Stretch It Rich.

It was a grand thing for his community that such an enterprising firm as the Clanton drug Co. secured the Agency for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the wonderful remedy that has startled the world by its marvellous cures. The furor of enthusiasm over it has boomed their business, as the demand for it is immense. They give free trial bottles to sufferers, and positively guarantee it to cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, and all Throat and Lung Troubles. A trial proves its merit. Price 50c and $1.00.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION, THORSBY, ALA.

Maplesville.

We regret to be compelled to state the facts of our hot, dry weather, gardens and crops are suffering. A few scant showers give us hope by the sign of the rainbow that we will have seed time to harvest. Our colored weather-seers tell us very wisely and truthfully "dat when de mune gits right on her back fer the water to spill out we will have rain fer sho." Many have "laid by," while some have put in "laying by time" by planting peas.

Our blessed South is catching up with some of the Western plagues in way of a most destructive Irish potato bug. Dr. Claughton, our town's best gardener, says lime only proves a good medicine, and we have as yet found no remedy but hand picking.

Mrs. Jane Bowline and Snead of Centreville have been guests of Mr. Buck Bowline.

Mr. William Claughton of Montgomery has returned home after a very pleasant visit to his brother here, Dr. Claughton.

T. U. Crumpton has had his nephew Harvey Crumpton, of Pleasant Hill to visit him lately.

Mr. Marion Baisemore of Selma has been on a visit to the "old folks at home."

Miss Rasell from near Demopolis has visited her aunt here, Mrs. Eccridge.

Mrs. Fuller, of Summerfield is now visiting her brother here.

Mr. Ingram of Ensley has had a most pleasant visit to Master Joe Savage.

We are sorry to state that our quiet citizens have been lately disturbed by shooting after night which is extremely annoying to all within hearing and particularly to those nearby.

Mr. Richard Blalack of Vick has been home lately.

Miss Mary Rasberry is visiting her sister, Mrs. Blalack.

We regret that Mr. Nengent has retured to his old home, as he was very helpful in our church and Sabbath school.

Mr. Joe Adams and family have lately visited his brother at Oakmulger.

We will venture to tell your readers, sincerely hoping they will not tattle it over the whole country, that we have cause to get our big saw mill yet. SUBSCRIBER.

The Best Prescription for Malaria

Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price 50c.

Farmers' Mutual Insurance Ass'n.

The annual meeting of the above Association was held at Clanton last Saturday, and the following officers were elected: President, N. J. Calloway; Secretary-Treasurer, P. D. Wilson; County Agent, B. T. Calloway; and nine directors, one from each beat. The by-laws were amended in some particulars, and the meeting adjourned.

Any druggist, will sell you a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for 50c. and tell you what it is good for free of charge. Try it.

Commissioner's Sale.

In pursuance and in accordance with the terms and directions of a Commission issued and directed to the undersigned by the Hon. S. M. Adams, Judge of Probate of Chilton county, bearing date of July 22nd, 1901. I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder for cash, at public auction, in front of the Court House door of said county, at Clanton, on the following described land, to-wit: The northwest quarter of the southwest quarter, section 29, township 21, range 13, in Chilton county, Alabama, which said land is to be sold under the decree of the Probate Court of said county for the purpose of a division among the several owners thereof, who are the heirs at law of Edward Mims, deceased.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER the 10, 1901,

A. C. SMITH, Commissioner.

WANTED.

LAND FOR SALE. Any man wishing to buy good farms will do well to apply to C. J. STEWART, Clanton, Ala.

PAINT. There's nothing like paint. An up-to-date House and Sign painter wants your work. Prices low; estimates free. J. M. MOORE, the Painter, Clanton.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1899. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 19, 1900

We have handled Dr. Moffett's TEETHINA (Teething Powders) ever since its first introduction to the public and trade as a proprietary medicine, and our trade in it has steadily increased from year to year until our orders now amount to two or three hundred gross per year, which is a very strong evidence of its merit and the satisfaction it is giving to the mothers of the country, for they say that nothing so effectually counteracts the effects of the summer's hot sun or overcomes so quickly the troubles incident to teething.

THE LAMAR & RANKIN DRUG CO., Wholesale Druggists.

STOPS THE COUGH and Works off the Cold.

Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

DOWNS' FIRE SALE —ON— SNUFF AND TOBACCO FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS

$3.50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnaps Early Bird, Long Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

and on Thursday, July 25,

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Bruton.

$1.00 gets you 10 boxes 3⅓ oz. Bruton.

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 3⅓ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO and 600 pounds of SNUFF

Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $

But they must go just the same.

Positions GUARANTEED UNDER A $5,000 DEPOSIT

R. R. FARE PAID 200 FREE

Scholarships offered. Write quick to

GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

The O. K. Lunch Counter

MEALS AND LUNCHES SERVED AT ALL HOURS AT POPULAR PRICES

Fish and Oysters during the Season

I pay highest market price for Chickens and Eggs.

LUNCHES PUT UP FOR TRAVELERS

THE O.K. LUNCH COUNTER

NEXT THE RAILROAD, CLANTON

W. H. STACY, Proprietor.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS ATTORNEY-AT-LAW CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM M. ADAMS ATTORNEY-AT-LAW Practice in all Courts. Office at the Adams' place CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN C. DENNIS ATTORNEY-AT-LAW Practice in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts. CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. KNOX, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW, CLANTON, ALA. Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama.

Dr. OTTO M. WISEHART, DENTIST. OFFICE HOURS. 8 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m. Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS, SPECIALIST Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat OFFICE 28 S. PERRY ST. Office Hours: 9 to 12 and 3 to 4. Telephone 494—2 Calls. MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. N. S. JOHNSON PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Office at Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, JACKSONVILLE, ALA. A school to prepare teachers. Demand for graduates greater than the supply. Board $8 per month up. Tuition free. Nineteenth year. Session begins Oct. 1, 1901. For catalogue address CLARENCE W. DAUGETTE, President.

Alabama Girls' Industrial School, MONTEVALLO, ALA. The next session opens September 18, 1901. An enlarged Dormitory and new class rooms make it possible to provide for more girls, and to offer better accommodations. For catalogue address FRANCIS M. PETERSON, President.

GOING TO SCHOOL? The Fifth District Agricultural School at Wetumpka, Ala., offers you good opportunities and low prices. $5.00 (Five dollars) covers all charges for nine months, session beginning Sep. 3d, 1901. Board $8.00 per month. Send for catalogue. H. J. WILLINGHAM, President.

To All Whom it May Concern:

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 3, 1901

No person, or persons, can lawfully solicit or write insurance for the Chilton county Branch of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama, unless he, or they, bear a commission (empowering him or them to perform such work) signed by Wallace C. Edler, General Agent of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama.

All persons concerned will govern themselves accordingly.

WALLACE C. EDLER, General Agent Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

The new battleship Illinois has shown a speed of 400 land miles a day. She will prove a knotty problem for an enemy.

New York leads all the other States in the predominance of its city over its country population. Of every 100 inhabitants of the Empire States seventy-seven live in cities and towns. The percentage of the population living in cities and town for the whole country is forty-seven only.

Prom'n't women in various cities are organizing themselves into societies for the inspection of streets and alleys. Affairs have not yet come to such a pass that neglected husbands feel called upon to organize societies for the inspection of homes.

Civilization advances in some directions at a compound-interest rate, so to speak. For instance, the population of the United States increased a little over 50 percent in the 20 years from 1880 to 1900, but in the same period the business and revenues of the postoffice increased 300 percent.

The views of Massachusetts and Texas on the subject of railroad taxation are at variance. In the former state taxes are collected on both the tangible property and the franchises of the railroad companies, in the latter, the supreme court has held that this is double taxation forbidden by the state constitution.

A woman minister who married a couple in Pennsylvania recently (and it is said to be the first marriage ceremony ever colemnized by a woman in that state) at once turned the marriage fee over to her husband. Ministers' wives have so long been accustomed to receive the wedding fees that the act seems to be quite just to the sterner sex.

The house in which Victor Hugo lived and wrote many of his books—No. 6 Place des Vosges—is to be converted into a Hugo museum. It will contain things which the great French novelist owned and used, a collection of the first editions of his books, his sketches, pictures and portraits. It is to be established by the municipal council of Paris and the ministry of fine arts, aided by the executor of Hugo's will.

The woodpeckers are friends of the farm and should be protected, observes a writer in the American Cultivator. They have remarkable tongues—probes they are. The bird has a keen ear and locates his prey by this sense. When he hears the chipping of a wood-boring beetle in an apple or other tree, and dislodges it with his sharp chisel bill and probe, it is likely that on his next rounds he will find a colony of ants enlarging the burrow of the dead grub. The bird now brings into use the same tools used in catching the beetle, and the ants are drawn out and devoured. Both insects are injurious to the tree.

A recent report from the census bureau shows that Rhode Island is still the most densely populated state in the Union. "Little Rhody" has 407 inhabitants to the square mile. Massachusetts comes next, with not quite 349 inhabitants to the square mile. New Jersey is third, with a little more than 250 inhabitants to the square miles, and Connecticut is fourth, with a little more than 187 inhabitants to the square mile. The other states which have more than 100 inhabitants to the square mile are New York, with 152.6; Pennsylvania, with 140.1; Maryland, with 120.5; and Ohio, with 102. Nevada has only four-tenths of one person to the square mile; Alaska, one-tenth.

"Graduated, but not present," was the suggestive announcement made concerning the class of 1901 at a well-known institution of higher learning. A majority of the class did not appear at commencement, though their names were called and their degrees were conferred. The case was extraordinary, but the explanation was simple and satisfactory. The services of the young men had been sought and engaged by business men so urgently that the president of the institution had given the students permission to leave school and go to work in advance of actual graduation. Their courses of study were satisfactorily completed and their examinations passed, and it was thought to be not worth while to keep them away from the industries which needed them for so long as even the few days yet remaining before the formal close of the academic year.

CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS

Further Report of Alabama's Constitutional Convention.

Fifty-eighth Day.

Grandfather Clause Adopted—Minority Suffrage Report Tabled—Lowe Claims Unfairness.

At the sessions of today the attendance was 98 and 116. The sessions have been lengthened; hereafter they will be from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 3 to 7 p. m. Several speeches were made and then the minority report was tabled to the tune of 109 to 23. Those who voted in favor of the minority report were Beddow, Dent, Eley, Ferguson, Harrison, Jones of Montgomery, Kirkland, Kyle, Lowe, Murphree, Oates, O'Neil, Smith of Mobile, Waddell and White, democrats; Bartlett, Mulcay, Porter and Spears, republicans, and Cofer, Foshee, Sloan and Reynolds of Chilton, populists.

In the afternoon session Mr. Lowe made an impassioned speech in which he charged the chair with unfairness to him. He said he would have supported the majority report if its purpose had been to provide for fair elections, but its purpose was to perpetuate fraud forever and intimated that the most of the delegates and the white people would need the minority report. By a vote of 104 to 14 section 4 of the article on suffrage was adopted.

Section 4. The following male residents of this state, who are citizens of the United States, and every male person of foreign birth who, before the ratification of this constitution, may have legally declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States; provided, that all such foreigners who have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States shall cease to have the right to vote if they fail to become citizens of the United States after they are entitled to become such citizens, 21 years old or upwards, who, if their place of residence shall remain unchanged, will have, at the date of the next general election, the qualifications as to residence prescribed in section 2 of this article, and who are not disqualified under section 6 of this article, shall, upon application, be entitled to register as electors prior to the 1st day of January, 1903, namely:

1. All who have honorably served in the land or naval forces of the United States in the war of 1812, or in the war with Mexico, or in any war with the Indians, or in the war between the States, or in the war with Spain, or who honorably served in the land or naval forces of the Confederate States, or of the State of Alabama in the war between the states; or

2. The lawful descendants of persons who honorably served in the land or naval forces of the United States in the war of the American revolution, or in the war of 1812, or in the war with Mexico, or in any war with the Indians, or in the war between the States, or in the land or naval forces of the Confederate States, or of the State of Alabama in the war between the States; or

3. All persons of good character and who understand the duties and obligations of citizenship under a republican form of government.

Section 5 of the article was read defining education and property qualifications and was under discussion when the convention adjourned.

Fifty-ninth Day.

Uninteresting Session—Property Qualification Clause Adopted—Restrictions on Registration.

One hundred and seven was the tally of delegates present at both sessions of the convention today. By a vote of 113 to 11 the convention adopted the section of the article on legislation calling quadriennial sessions of the legislature.

Section 5 of the suffrage article was taken up and paragraph 1 was adopted, as follows:

Section 5. After the first day of January, 1903, the following persons, and no others, who, if their place of residence shall remain unchanged, will have, at the date of the next general election, the qualifications as to residence prescribed in section 2 of this article, shall be qualified to register as electors, provided, they shall not be disqualified under section 6 of this article.

So many amendments were made to the first subdivision that it was recommitted, but the second subdivision was adopted, as follows:

Second—The owner, in good faith, in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner in good faith, in her own right, of forty acres of land situate in this state, upon which they reside; or the owner in good faith, in his own right, or the husband of any woman who is the owner in good faith, in her own right, of real estate, situate in this state assessed for taxation at the value of $300 or more, or the owner in good faith, in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner in good faith, in her own right, of personal property in this state assessed for taxation at $300 or more; provided, that the taxes due upon such real or personal property for the year next preceeding the year in which he offers to register shall have been paid, unless the assessment shall have been legally contested and is undetermined.

Section 6 was adopted:

Section 6. The following persons shall be disqualified both from registering and from voting, namely:

All idiots and insane persons; those who shall by reason of conviction of a felony, be disqualified from voting at the time of the ratification of this constitution; and those who shall be convicted of treason, murder, arson, embezzlement, malfeasance in office, larceny, receiving stolen property, obtaining property or money under false pretenses, perjury, subornation of perjury, assault with intent to rob, burglary, forgery, bribery, assault and battery on the wife, bigamy, living in adultery, sodomy, incest, rape, miscegenation, crime against nature, or any crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, or of any infamous crime, or crime involving moral turpitude; also any person who shall be convicted as a vagrant or tramp, or of selling or offering to sell his vote or the vote of another, or buying or offering to buy the vote of another in any election by the people or in any primary election or to procure the nomination or election of any person to any office, or of suborning any witness or registrar to secure the registration of any person upon the ele[illegible]

The section was made applicable to one who makes or offers to make a false return of any election.

Section 7 was then adopted, as follows:

Section 7. No person shall be qualified to vote or participate in any primary election, party convention, mass meeting or other method of party action of any political party or faction who shall not possess the qualifications described in this article for an elector, or who shall be disqualified under the provisions of this article from voting.

Section 8 was adopted providing that no person not qualified as an elector shall vote at any election subsequent to the general election in 1902. Section 9 was adopted, which requires an elector where a vote is challenged to swear that the matter of the challenge is untrue before his vote shall be received.

Most of the afternoon was spent in discussing a motion to reconsider an amendment to section 1, adopted several days ago, providing that foreigners who had declared intention of becoming citizens should vote. The convention finally decided not to reconsider its action.

Section 10, which provides for the board of registration, had just been read by the clerk when the convention adjourned.

Sixtieth Day.

Registration Plan Occupying the Convention's Time—What It Is—Progress Made.

The attendance today was 112 and considerable work was accomplished by the convention. First, the eighth section of the suffrage article was reconsidered and the following substitute adopted:

Section 8. No person not registered and qualified as an elector under the provisions of this article, shall vote at the general election in 1902 or at any state, county or municipal election, general, local or special; but the provisions of this article shall not apply to any election held prior to the general election in 1902.

That part of section 5 which was recommitted yesterday was reported in substitute. It provides that those who, not being physically unable, can read and write any article of the constitution of the United States, and who, being able to work, have worked or been regularly engaged in some lawful calling for the quarter part of the twelve months next preceding the time they offer to register, can vote, provided further that persons who can neither read nor write on account of physical disability shall be allowed to vote if otherwise qualified under this section.

The pending question was then taken up and the following sections were adopted:

Section 10. The General Assembly shall provide by law for the registration, after the first day of January, 1903, of all qualified electors. Until the first day of January, 1903, all electors shall be registered under and in accordance with the requirements of this section, as follows:

1. Registration shall be conducted, in each county, by a board of three reputable and suitable persons residents in the county, who shall not hold any elective office during their term, to be appointed within sixty days after the ratification of this constitution by the Governor, Auditor and Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, or a majority of them, acting as a board of appointment. If one or more of the persons appointed on such board of registration shall refuse, neglect or be unable to qualify or serve, or a vacancy or vacancies occur in the membership of the board of registrars from any cause, the Governor, Auditor and Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, or a majority of them acting as a board of appointment, shall make other appointments to fill such board. Each registrar shall receive $2 per day, to be paid by the State and disbursed by the probate judges, for each entire day's attendance upon the sessions of the board.

Before entering upon the performance of the duties of his office, each registrar shall take the same oath required of the judicial officers of the State, which oath may be administered by any person authorized by law to administer oaths. The oath shall be in writing and subscribed by the registrar, and filed in the office of the probate judge of the county.

2. Prior to the first day of August, 1902, the board of registrars in each county shall visit each precinct at least once, and oftener, if necessary, to make a complete registration of all persons entitled to register, and remain there at least one day from 8 o'clock in the morning until sunset. They shall give at least twenty days' notice of the time when they will attend to register applicants for registration, by bills posted at five or more public places in each election precinct, and by advertisement in a newspaper, if there be one, published in the county, once a week for three successive weeks. Upon failure to give such notice or to attend to any appointment made by them in any precinct, they shall, after like notice, fill any appointments therein; but the time consumed by the board in completing such registration shall not exceed sixty working days in any county except that in counties in which there is any city of 8,000 inhabitants or over, the board may remain in session, in addition to the session hereinabove prescribed, for not more than three successive weeks in each of said cities; and thereafter the board may sit from time to time in each of such other cities not more than one week in each month, and except that in the county of Jefferson the board may hold additional sessions, of not exceeding five consecutive days' duration for each session, in any town or city of 900 or more and less than 8,000 inhabitants. No person shall be registered except at the county site or in the precinct at which he resides. The registrars shall issue to each person registered a certificate of registration.

3. The board of registrars shall register no person between the first day of August, 1902, and the Friday next preceding the day of election in November, 1902. On Friday and Saturday next preceding the day of election in 1902, they shall sit in the court house of each county during such days, and shall register all applicants having the qualifications prescribed by sections two and four of this article and not disqualified under section six, who shall have reached the age of 21 years after the first day of August, 1902, or who shall prove to the reasonable satisfaction of the board that, by reason of physical disability or unavoidable absence from the county but had no opportunity to register prior to the first day of August, 1902; and shall on such days register no other persons. When there are two or more court houses in one county, the registrars may sit during such two days at either of such court houses they may select, but shall give ten days' notice, by bills posted at each of the other court houses, designating the court house at which they will so sit.

4. The board of registrars shall hold sessions at the court house of their respective counties during the entire third week in November, 1902, and for six working days next prior to the twentieth day of December, 1902, during which session they shall register all persons applying who possess the qualifications prescribed in sections 2 and 4, and who shall not be disqualified under section 6 of this article. In counties where there are two or more court houses, the board of registrars shall sit at each of them. The board of registrars shall give notice of the time and place of such sessions by posting notices at each court house in their respective counties, and at each voting place and at three other public places in the county, and by publication once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper, if one be published in the county; such notices to be published and such publications to be commenced as early as practicable in the first week of November, 1902; provided, that a failure on the part of the registrars to conform to the provisions of this section as to notices to be given, shall not invalidate any registration made by them.

5. The board of registrars shall have power to examine, under oath or affirmation, all applicants for registration, and to take testimony touching the qualifications of such applicants; each member of such board is authorized to administer the oath to be taken by the applicants and witnesses, which shall be in the following form, and subscribed by the person making it, and preserved by the board, namely:

"I solemnly swear (or affirm) that in the matter of the application of —— for registration as an elector I will speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help me God."

Any person, who, upon such examination makes any wilfully false statement in reference to any material matter touching the qualification of any applicant for registration shall be guilty of perjury.

6. The action of the majority of the board of registrars shall be the action of the board. Any person denied registration shall have the right to appeal, without security for costs, within thirty days after such denial, by filing a petition in the Circuit Court or court of like jurisdiction held for the county in which he seeks to vote to have his qualifications as an elector determined. Upon filing the petition the clerk of the court shall give notice thereof to any solicitor authorized to represent the State in said county whose duty it shall be to appear and defend against the petition on behalf of the State. Upon such trial the court shall charge the jury only as to what constitutes the qualifications that entitled the applicant to become an elector at the time he applied for registration, and the jury shall determine the weight and effect of the evidence and return a verdict. From the judgment rendered an appeal will lie to the Supreme Court in favor of the petitioner, to be taken within thirty days. Final judgment in favor of the petitioner shall entitle him to registration as of the date of his application to the registrars.

7. The Secretary of State, at the expense of the State, shall have prepared and furnished to the registrars and probate judges in the several counties a sufficient number of registration books, and of blank forms of certificates of registration and of oaths and of the notices required to be given by the registrars. The cost of the publication in newspapers of the notices required to be given by the registrars shall be paid by the State, the bill therefor to be rendered to the Secretary of State and approved by him.

8. Any elector who registers for another, or who registers more than once, and any registrar who enters the name of any elector on the list of registered voters, without such elector having made application in person, under oath on a form provided for that purpose, or who knowingly registers any person, more than once, or who knowingly enters a name upon the registration list as the name of a voter without anyone of that name applying to register, shall be guilty of a felony.

Section 11. The board of registrars in each county shall, on or before the first day of February, 1903, file in the probate court of their county a complete list, sworn to by them, of all persons registered in their county, with the precinct or ward in which each of such persons reside set opposite the names of such person, and shall also file a like list in the office of the Secretary of State. The judge of probate shall on or as soon as practicable after the first day of March, 1903, cause to be made from such list in duplicate, in the books furnished by the Secretary of State, an alphabetical list by precincts of the persons shown by the list of registrars to have been registered in the county, and shall file one of such alphabetical lists in the office of Secretary of State; for which services by the probate judges compensation shall be provided by the General Assembly. The judges of probate shall keep both the original list filed by the registrars and the alphabetical list made therefrom as records in the probate court of the county.

Unless he shall become disqualified under the provisions of this article, anyone who shall register prior to the first day of January, 1903, shall remain an elector during life, and shall be required to register only in case a change of residence, on production of his certificate. The certificate of the registrars or of the probate judge or the Secretary of State shall be sufficient evidence to establish the fact of such life registration. Such certificate shall be issued free of charge to the elector, and the General Assembly shall provide by law for the renewal of such certificate when lost, mutilated or destroyed.

Section 12 was recommitted.

Section 13. In the trial of any contested election, and in proceedings to investigate any election, no person other than a defendant shall be allowed to withhold his testimony on the ground that he may criminate himself or subject himself to public infamy; but such person shall not be prosecuted for any offense arising out of the transaction concerning which he testified, but may be prosecuted for perjury committed on such examination.

Section 14 was temporarily passed.

Section 15. It shall be the duty of the general assembly to pass adequate laws giving protection against the evils arising from the use of intoxicating liquors at all elections.

Section 16. Electors shall in all cases, except treason, felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at elections, or while going to or returning therefrom.

Section 17. Returns of elections for all civil officers who are to be commissioned by the Governor, except Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, Attorney General and Superintendent of Education and for members of the General Assembly, shall be made to the Secretary of State.

Section 18 was recommitted and section 19 was under discussion when the time for adjournment arrived.

Sixty-first Day.

Suffrage Discussion Continued—Poll Tax to be Voluntary but Necessary to Qualify.

One hundred and eight and 129 was the attendance at today's sessions. The discussion of the suffrage scheme occupied the day, and several sections were adopted. It was suggested to engross the constitution on parchment after its adoption. Sections 12, 14 and 18 of the suffrage article, which had been recommitted were reported back and adopted as follows:

Section 12. From and after the 1st day of January, 1903, any applicant for registration may be required to state under oath, to be administered by the registrar or by any person authorized by law to administer oaths, where he lived during the five years next preceding the time at which he applies to register, and the name or names that he was known by during that period, and the name of his employer or employers, if any, during such period. Any applicant for registration who refuses to state such facts, or any of them, shall not be entitled to register, and any person so offering, who wilfully makes a false statement in regard to such matters, or any of them, shall be guilty of perjury.

Section 14. The General Assembly shall pass laws not inconsistent with this constitution to regulate and govern elections, and all such laws shall be uniform throughout the State; and shall provide by law for the manner of holding elections and of ascertaining the result of the same, and shall provide general registration laws, not inconsistent with the provisions of this article, for the registration of all qualified electors from and after the 1st day of January, 1903. The General Assembly shall also make provisions by law, not inconsistent with this article, for the regulation of primary elections and for punishing frauds at the same, but shall not make primary elections compulsory.

The Legislature shall by law provide for purging the registration list of the names of those who die or become insane or such names as have been fraudulently placed there with provision for the right of trial by jury.

Section 18. The poll tax mentioned in this article shall be one dollar and fifty cents upon every male inhabitant of the state over the age of 21 years, and under the age of 45 years, who would not now be exempt by law. Such poll tax shall become due and payable on the first day of October in each year, and become delinquent on the first day of the next succeeding February, but no legal process nor any fee or commission shall be allowed for the collection thereof. The tax collector shall make returns of poll tax collections separate from all other collections.

Discussion of section 19 was interrupted by adjournment.

Sixty-second Day.

Suffrage Clause Completed—Lowe's Plan Tabled—Judiciary Report Discussed.

The Convention held but one session today and 85 delegates were present. The article on suffrage was completed and ordered to a third reading. Mr. Lowe's substitute for the entire article was laid on the table, as well as new sections offered to the article by various delegates. Two were adopted, one by Mr. Browne leaves to the legislature the right to extend the poll tax age beyond 45 years, and the other makes it a crime to pay any one's poll tax for the purpose of influencing his vote.

The convention then took up the report of the committee on judiciary and adopted nine sections before adjournment. There are five minority reports to this article, but the nine sections were adopted as reported by the committee. There was some discussion over the proposition to give the legislature power to confer law and equity jurisdiction in both the circuit and chancery courts, but it was adopted. The legislature is also authorized to establish an intermediate appellate court if it sees fit.

Sixty-third Day.

Poor Day for Amendments—Judiciary System About Settled—Resolution for Governor T. G. Jones.

Seventy-eight delegates spent today in considering the article on judiciary, and seventeen sections (from 10 to 26 inclusive) were adopted.

The convention unanimously adopted a resolution of sympathy to Ex-Governor Jones on account of the loss of his daughter.

A SEVERE wind and rain storm visited Adger Thursday night, and was quite destructive. The Masonic hall at Sumter was ruined and the Masons lost most of their paraphernalia and effects. No person was hurt in the storm, but there were grave fears that terrible damage was going to be wrought for awhile.

JOHN Yarbrough, the young man who has been in jail at Sulligent, charged with the murder of J. H. Cole at Vernon last Sunday, has been released on a $2,000 bond. It will be remembered that Cole was stabbed in a dispute with Yarbrough, and died shortly after.

NANSEN MAY NOT GET IT ALL.

Mrs. Martha C. Cunningham, of Chattanooga, Tenn., claims to be the daughter of the brother of Mathias Slessing, a wealthy Scandinavian, who died in Chicago two years ago. His estate was in a fair way to go to Dr. Nansen, the Arctic explorer, but Mrs. Cunningham's petition may result in a division.

FATAL R. R. WRECK.

A Pan-American special, heavily loaded, and a regular passenger train collided near Lockport, N., Y. early Sunday morning on the N. Y. Central. Thomas Hyland, an engineer, and Geo. Webb, trainman, were killed and a fireman was severely injured. The passengers of both trains were thrown into a panic by the shock, but none were seriously injured. A mistake in carrying out meeting orders caused the collision.

OF INTEREST IN AL

HAPPENNINGS THAT THE TO KNOW ABOUT

RECENT STATE MATTERS

Shipbuilding Plans for [illegible]
New Railroad—Smooth [illegible]
Destructive Storm—[illegible]
Find—Short Items [illegible]

TO BUILD SHIPS.

Announcement is made of the intended building of an immense shipbuilding plant at Alabama [illegible] thirty-six miles south of Mobile on the Gulf of Mexico. The plant will cost in the neighborhood of $4,000,000, and will be complete in every particular. Work will begin November and will be rapidly pushed to completion. The plant will be capable of building six vessels at the same time.

The company that is to build the big plant is known as the [illegible] Shipbuilding Dry Dock Company. It was granted a charter by the Legislature at the last session of the body. The capital of the company is $4,000,000, and the officers are G. Morris, President; [illegible] Vice-President; S. R. McLean, second Vice-President and [illegible] W. D. Munson, Treasurer. All the gentlemen reside in New York.

Members of the company state that they will build, in addition to the ship-building plant at Alabama, a marine railway, which will have a lifting capacity of 5,000 tons. An immense dry dock will be built at New Orleans and on account of the heavy tonnage vessels now seeking docking facilities at that port it is believed that it will pay handsomely on the entire investment. It is [illegible] capitalists who are interested, represented by Messrs. Waters and [illegible]ner, of New Orleans.

THE B. & V. R. R.

A party of Mississippi [illegible] visited Birmingham last week to inspect the city in the proposed Birmingham & Vicksburg Railroad. The proposed route has been partly surveyed. The entire line is through a country with here and there cultivated patches. Timber will be one of the important features of the road through which the road will pass. This timber alone would furnish road tonnage the year round, as stated. Cypress, white oak, pine, hickory, ash, beech and [illegible] are all found in large quantities. As to soil, the engineer states that the entire country consists of hardwood lands, while in some the land is good for cultivating fruits, vegetables, etc., and for stock. It is mostly grade on the entire line with not over one per cent.

SLICK TRICK.

The boldest burglary ever perpetrated in Athens occurred Friday morning at the livery stable of [illegible] Bros. & Phillips, when the safe was secured $40 in cash and some valuable papers, making the haul in the light, while the stable force were building feeding. He will have a chance and when the people came for supper he entered the building, the office that fronts on the public road and going to the safe that had been left open until the days business had produced a key that fit the lock, opened the safe, took therefrom the cash and papers that were valuable and left the drawer, left the building without being discovered.

GOVERNOR JELKS will be present at the laying of the corner stone of Bessley's new city hall.

A NEW postoffice has been established in Tuskaloosa county, and named it Snider, about thirteen miles from Tuskaloosa.

Mr. ERSKINE RAMSEY, Chief Engineer of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, has tendered his resignation.

IT IS probable that Theodore Roosevelt will be the guest of Montgomery during his southern tour in the fall.

FORMER Attorney-General C. C. Pitts will soon be permanently in the profession in Mobile.

UNIVERSITY OF A[illegible]
W. S. WYMAN, LL. D., [illegible]
THIRTY YEARS SUCCESSFUL WORK.
Professional, Graduate, and Courses in Law, Medicine, Civil and Mining Engineering, Arts, and Pedagogy.
For Catalogue containing full information, address
REGISTRAR, T. [illegible]

[illegible] ARP'S LETTER

Illustration Bartow Man [illegible] From the Scriptures.

[illegible] WORDS OF PETER THE PROPHET

[illegible], Incidentally, Tells All He [illegible] of the Mysterious Stuff Called Dreams—Does Not Believe in Them.

[illegible] in that day the young men [illegible] visions and the old men shall [illegible] dreams, and the handmaidens [illegible] prophecy." That is what Peter [illegible] the people on the day of Pentecost. And Peter believed that the [illegible] foretold by the Prophet Joel had [illegible] come, for the devout men from [illegible] nation under heaven were there [illegible] and speaking in every [illegible]. The people said they were [illegible], but Peter said "No, for it is [illegible] o'clock in the morning." I reckon [illegible] tipsers drank more in the even[illegible] as they do now, and went to [illegible]. But it has always perplexed [illegible] find out when the age of period [illegible] miracles and seeing visions [illegible] and why the power was taken [illegible] from the men of God. Paul could [illegible] miracles to save or to heal oth[illegible] but had to die by the executioner [illegible] blood of the martyrs was the [illegible] of the church, but has the time [illegible] when dreams and visions are [illegible] force or meaning." I was rumi[illegible] about dreams, because last [illegible] I dreamed not less than three [illegible] in about half a minute. The [illegible] was striking twelve and I dream[illegible] was the fire bell and saw the [illegible] smoke and then the flame of [illegible] where the hotel was burning. [illegible] firemen climbing ladders and de[illegible] with women and children in [illegible] arms. I saw streams of water [illegible] the roof and pouring in at [illegible] windows. I heard the excited [illegible] of firemen and people and wit[illegible] the frantic efforts to keep the [illegible] crossing to the next block. [illegible] enough and heard enough to [illegible] hours to recite, and yet I awak[illegible] with the last stroke of the ham[illegible] the little bell and knew that [illegible] the clock and not the fire bell [illegible] had caused that long, exciting [illegible]. This same experience I had [illegible] years ago—when the report of [illegible] provoked a dream that begun in [illegible] between two of my friends [illegible] continued in a correspondence in [illegible] an apology was demanded and I [illegible] called upon to assist in the writ[illegible] and several letters were passed, [illegible] no purpose and it ended in a [illegible]. Seconds were chosen—the [illegible] was carefully consulted—[illegible] chosen—the time fixed and [illegible] took place; and when the first [illegible] fired I awoke. The report of [illegible] had precipitated and concen[illegible] all of that long and anxious [illegible] into a second of time. Doubtless [illegible] many people have had a similar [illegible]. The medical books record [illegible] such instances and Lord Brough[illegible] declared that all dreams were in[illegible]. Drowning men have the [illegible] experience. Those who are re[illegible] declare that every event of [illegible] lives came before them in the in[illegible] of losing consciousness. Time is [illegible]. It seems to be annihilated. [illegible] no emotion of surprise. If [illegible] father or brother or friend ap[illegible] to you in a dream you are not [illegible], though he has been dead [illegible] years. But Lord Brougham is [illegible]. The smile of an infant sleep[illegible] in its mother's arms comes from [illegible] and is not instantaneous. [illegible] it continues quite awhile [illegible] and goes. The mother be[illegible] the child sees angels and heav[illegible]. Maybe it does, for of such [illegible] kingdom of heaven. Lord [illegible] is wrong, for men and wo[illegible] have had part of the skull re[illegible] and left the brain exposed [illegible], while the doctors look[illegible] and saw the brain dilate and pul[illegible] become excited and disturb[illegible] the patient would tell of a bad [illegible]. When the sleep was sweet the [illegible] was in perfect repose.

[illegible] a wonderful piece of mechan[illegible] this body of ours. It can all [illegible] save the heart and lungs and [illegible]. They never sleep nor get a [illegible] for rest. Just think of it. For [illegible] years this heart of mine [illegible] failed to beat time for every [illegible] of my existence and send its [illegible] to every part of my body. [illegible] I am awake or asleep, it is [illegible] its post of duty. Poor thing—[illegible] it is tired. And so with my [illegible] that never not day or night to [illegible] the heart its food, its strength [illegible]. The will, the brain, the [illegible] ears—the sense of smell and [illegible] feeling all get sleep and rest [illegible] renewed, but the heart and [illegible] never rest. Their rest is [illegible]. But the mystery is, how is [illegible] connected with the will? [illegible] the will is asleep the brain [illegible] to run riot and to revel in cu[illegible] and fantastic fancies. It is a [illegible] of school. It is very like the [illegible] of opium on the senses as de[illegible] by DeQuincey in his confes[illegible]. The will seems to be the strong[illegible] most responsible faculty of [illegible]. The heart is commonly called [illegible] of the affections and emotions [illegible], the very soul of man, and [illegible] says the heart is sinful above all [illegible] and desperately wicked, but [illegible] is figurative. The heart [illegible] a lump of flesh—a machine, an

OF INTEREST IN ALABA

HAPPENNINGS THAT YOU W TO KNOW ABOUT.

RECENT STATE MATTERS TERSELY

Shipbuilding Plant for M New Railroad—Smooth R Destructive Storm — Ho Find — Short State Ne

TO BUILD SHIPS.

Announcement is made of the tended building of an immense building plant at Alabama P thirty-six miles south of Mobile, on the Gulf of Mexico. The will cost in the neighborhood $4,000,000, and will be complete every particular. Work will be November and will be rapidly pu to completion. The plant wi capable of building six steamsh the same time.

The company that is to build big plant is known as the Gulf Shipbuilding Dry Dock Company, was granted a charter by the Legislature at the last session of body. The capital of the compa $4,000,000, and the officers are: R G. Morris, President; S. D. Sco Vice-President; S. B. McConnico, ond Vice-President and Secre W. D. Munson Treasurer. All gentlemen reside in New York.

Members of the company state they will build, in addition to ship-building plant at Alabama P a marine railway, which will a lifting capacity of 5,000 tons immense dry dock will be constr at New Orleans and on account heavy tonnage vessels com seeking docking facilities at the it is believed that it will pay ju on the entire investment. No capitalists who are interested are resented by Messrs. Waters and ner, of New Orleans.

THE B. & V. R. R.

A party of Mississippi "gu visited Birmingham last week to est the city in the proposed Bi ham & Vicksburg Railroad. Th posed route has been partly sur The entire line is through with here and there cultivated p Timber will be one of the im portant features of the tr through which the road will This timber alone would furn road tonnage the year round stated. Cypress, white oak, p pine, hickory, ash, beach and are all found in large quantiti to soil, the engineer states th entire country consists of fair lands, while in some the land good for cultivation, suitable fo ing fruits, vegetables, cotton, etc., and for stock. It is said grade on the entire line will one per cent.

SLICK TRICK.

The boldest burglary every trated in Athens occurred Frid ning at the livery stable of Bros. & Phillips, when the th cured $40 in cash and some papers, making the haul in bo light, while the stable force w building feeding. He watc chance and when the proprie for supper he entered boldly fice that fronts on the public and going to the safe that in open until the days business produced a key that fit the box and opening the same st therefrom the cash and some that were valuable and lock drawer, left the building with ing discovered.

GOVERNOR JELKS will the laying of the corner stone sley's new city hall.

A NEW postoffice has been in Tuskaloosa county, and in at Snider, about thirteen mi Tuskaloosa.

Mr. ERSKINE RAMSA Engineer of the Tennessee C & Railroad Company, has be resignation.

IT IS probable that Vice- Roosevelt will be the guest o gomery during his southern fall.

FORMER Attorney-Gene C. Fitts will soon be pra profession in Mobile.

UNIVERSITY OF AL

W. S. WYMAN, LL. D., Pr

71ST YEAR BEGINS WEDNESDAY, SE

Professional, Graduate, and U ate Courses in Law, Medicine, Civil and Mining Engineering, Arts, and Pedagogy. For Catalogue containing ful ation, address ROBERT T. NABERS, S University.

L. ARP'S LETTER

Illustration Bartow Man Quotes From the Scriptures.

WORDS OF PETER THE PROPHET

Him, Incidentally Tells All He Knows of the Mysterious Stuff Called Dreams—Does Not Believe in Them.

"And in that day the young men shall see visions and the old men shall dream dreams, and the handmaidens shall prophesy." That is what Peter told the people on the day of Pentecost. And Peter believed that the prophecy foretold by the Prophet Joel had come for the devout men from every nation under heaven were there prophesying and speaking in every tongue. The people said they were drunk, but Peter said: "No, for it is but the cock in the morning." I reckon the tipplers drank more in the evening than they do now, and went to drunk. But I have always perplexed to find out when the age or period for working miracles and seeing visions and dreams and why the power was taken from the men of God. Paul could not work miracles to save or to heal others, but had to leave the executioner behind. Of the martyrs was the blood of the church. But has the time come when dreams and visions are to have or mean nothing? I was ruminating about dreams because last night I dreamed not less than three times in about half a minute. The first time it was striking twelve and I dreamed it was the fire bell and saw the dense smoke and then the flame of fire where the house was burning. The firemen climbing ladders and dashing with women and children in their arms. I saw streams of water falling the roof and pouring in at the windows. I heard the excited cries of firemen and people and witnessed the frantic efforts to keep the fire from crossing to the next block. I saw enough and heard enough to keep me hours to recite, and yet I awaked with the last stroke of the hammer on the little bell and knew that it was the clock and not the fire bell that had caused that long, exciting dream. This same experience I had many years ago, when the report of a gun provoked a dream that begun in a quarrel between two of my friends and continued in a correspondence in which an apology was demanded and I was called upon to assist in the writing. Several letters were passed, but to no purpose and it ended in a challenge. Seconds were chosen—the rule of duello was carefully consulted—the ground chosen—the time fixed and the duel took place, and when the first gun was fired I awoke. The report of the gun had precipitated and concentrated all of that long and anxious dream into a second of time. Doubtless many people have had a similar experience. The medical books record such instances and Lord Brougham declared that all dreams were instantaneous. Drowning men have the same experience. Those who are resuscitated declare that every event of their lives came before them in the instant of losing consciousness. Time is nothing. It seems to be annihilated. There is no emotion of surprise. If father or brother or friend appears to you in a dream you are not surprised, though he has been dead for years. But Lord Brougham is wrong. The smile of an infant sleeping in its mother's arms comes from heaven and is not instantaneous. Sometimes it continues quite awhile and comes and goes. The mother believes the child sees angels and heavenly things. Maybe it does, for of such is the kingdom of heaven. Lord Brougham is wrong, for men and women who have had part of the skull removed and left the brain exposed have dreamed, while the doctors looked and saw the brain dilate and pulsate and become excited and disturbed when the patient would tell of a bad dream. When the sleep was sweet the brain was in perfect repose.

What a wonderful piece of mechanism is this body of ours. It can all of it rest save the heart. Lungs and limbs. They must rest or get a little rest for rest. Some part of it. For years and years not a part of mine has failed to work for every part of my body send its blood to my body. When I am asleep, it is its part. It is the only thing—the only thing—that ceases to work with my power. The night to rest. The heart is strength and power. The brain, the seat of smell and taste feeling and rest and sleep and rest. The heart and brain never rest. But the heart. Their rest is unconscious. How is it? How is the will? When I am asleep the brain is in run riot and to revel in curious and fantastic fancies. It is a part of school. It is very like the effect of opium on the senses as described by Dequincey in his confessions. The will seems to be the strongest and most responsible faculty of the heart is commonly called the seat of the affections and emotions but the very soul of man, and when the heart is sinful above all and desperately wicked, but of course, is figurative. The heart is a lump of flesh—a machine, an engine, as it were, for a mechanical purpose. It has nothing to do with affections or emotions or sins or crime. It may be badly diseased and the man not know it. If his stomach is out of order he knows it quickly and feels sick all over. The will, and the brain, which is the seat of thought and reason, make up the spiritual part of man, but how they are connected is known only to the Creator. Generally they work in harmony. Sometimes they do not, for, as Paul says, "that I would do I do not—and that I would not do that I do."

A friend asked me the other day if I believed in dreams; that is to say, in dreams as a warning, or sign, or prophecy.

No, I do not. The dream book is a humbug. But I do believe that sometimes there are spiritual visions that come in sleep, but these are very rare. Some are too well authenticated to leave any doubt. Swedenborg had many of them. Tartinian, a great composer, says that the devil appeared to him one night and challenged him to play some music, and he composed the "Devil's Sonata" in a dream, and the devil sang it and danced it, and Tartinian put it on paper when he awaked. Coleridge says he composed his poem of "Kubla Khan" in a dream, but could only recall 300 lines of it next morning.

Abstruse problems in mathematics have been solved in dreams, but the most reasonable explanation of all these is that the tired mind had rest from sleep and became more sensitive and acute. Whether we have good dreams or bad dreams depends almost altogether upon what we had for supper and how much we ate of it. The stomach is the great regulator of our repose, whether it be peaceful and refreshing, or disturbed by unwelcome dreams. Children dream a good deal and have nightmares, but old men dream seldom, for they are more careful about what they eat for supper. Blackberry pie washed down with buttermilk don't harmonize. But when the brain gets old it is tired and takes more rest. It can't jump around and frolic in dreams like it did when we were young.

This is enough of dreams. In fact, it is about all I know.

I have been greatly comforted of late with some more good reading. Colonel A. K. McClure, the notable editor and writer, has written a letter to The Times-Democrat, of New Orleans, his recollections and opinions of Lincoln and Davis. It is a long letter, carefully and admirably written. It is fair and just to both the presidents. It places Mr. Davis on a higher plane than any northern writer has ever done, and I wish that every leading paper north and south would copy it. It settles that whole controversy about the Hampton Roads conference and leaves no room for doubt. Colonel McClure is a just man and deserves the thanks of the south for his beautiful tribute to our president.—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

A new law of vision is said to have been determined by experiments conducted under the supervision of Professor Dodge, of the Psychological Department of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn. It is this—that the eye, while in motion, distinguishes nothing in a complex field of vision. It seems to be proven that the eye must rest, looking at some definite part of a still object, for about one-twentieth of a second before it sees anything. Several years ago Professor Dodge showed that the operation of reading consists not in a sweeping of the eye across a page, but in a series of pauses.

The world has at present an actual shortage of sailors suitable for naval service. Two of the crack new ships in the British navy—the Cressy and the Eclipse—lately commissioned at Portsmouth, have been manned with what is officially termed "ullage," a contemptuous nautical term derived from the merchant marine, which means "cullings" or inferior. All other naval powers are said to be suffering from the scarcity of qualified sailors, and some of them are doing a lot of training of raw material in the endeavor to make up the deficiency. There seems to be a growing distaste among the rising generation for "a life on the ocean wave."

A stern judge in Indiana has held "borrowing" an umbrella without the consent of the owner, in the emergency of sudden thunderstorm, to be no less than a crime, and judging by the severe penalty imposed upon the "well-known young man" who admitted "conveying" that of Dr. Rogers, he regards it as little less than a "high crime and misdemeanor." The doctor must have suffered no little inconvenience to press his suit so hard, and doubtless the judge himself had been a victim and "knew how it was." The ethics of umbrella "borrowing" is in a sad state, but it is almost "too sudden" to have it adjudged a penal offence, subject to the "unusual punishment" of fine, imprisonment and disfranchisement for five years.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

The reward of a thing well done is to have done it.

Idleness is both a great sin and the cause of many more.

Our deeds determine us, as much as we determine our deeds.

Some men take a lifetime to prove how much wisdom they lack.

A moral wrapped up in sugar goes down certainly, but it may be feared that it only goes down because of the sugar.

It is only the critic and the philosopher who can penetrate into all states of being, and realize their life from within.

There are seasons when to be still demands immeasurably higher strength than to act. Composure is often the highest result of power.

The art of putting men in the right places is the highest in the science of government, but that of finding places for the discontented the most difficult.

It is the compensation of the humble that the fountain of their blood is made sweet by denial, swift by plain fare, and strong by living close to nature's heart.

The habit of blaming others when things go wrong is an insidious and dangerous one. Far more is it to the purpose to inquire within whether the fault, or much of it, may not lie at home.

He who is everybody's friend is generally nobody's. The character which can shape itself to fit in every niche is like an India rubber ball, too malleable to stay long anywhere or have much inside except air.

BIG MAP FOR THE WHITE HOUSE.

Coast-Survey Work, Giving Complete Geographical Information.

The coast and geodetic survey has for some time been preparing a map of the world for the war-room at the White House. It will cover one whole side of the room, which means dimensions of perhaps 30 feet by 15. It contains all the geographical information of a general nature that a president of the United States and his corps of telegraphers would seemingly need to know. It shows the location of all the ocean cables in the world, of all the coaling stations, of all the docks where ships may be repaired; and every foot of soil, including the smallest islands, is marked so as to indicate the sovereignty to which it is subject. This is done by the adoption of a color for each of the great colonizing powers.

It is surprising to note the number of small islands that already belong to the United States, through their acquisition for one purpose or another by American citizens. A notable fact about the ocean cables is their abundance in the Atlantic ocean, between North and South America and Europe, and all the seas about the eastern hemisphere, but their conspicuous absence from the Pacific. While cables skirt the continents bordering on the Pacific, they do not strike out boldly across that ocean. The contrast, as revealed in this way, between the eastern and western routes to the Orient is most marked. All our messages from Manila come necessarily by the old-world route. It is quite probable that whatever is done in Pacific cables by the United States, the Suez will remain the great route of communication because of its opportunities for local business. This also suggests that our own Isthmian canal, as a commercial route, will be across the direction of the world's great commercial movements.

Officers of the coast survey say that they have had a great deal of trouble to bring this new map up to date in all particulars. Atlases and geographical text books are notoriously behind the times, so rapidly have changes been made in recent years upon the map of the world. The survey has accordingly gone to first-class sources in each instance, through consular inquiries and otherwise, and has made this map, as nearly as human handiwork will do it, absolutely accurate. How long it will remain so is, of course, another matter. Upon it the Philippine islands and the country adjacent appear twice, so as to show completely the sunset and sunrise routes.—New York Post.

Mucous Lining and Music.

It's mean to tell this joke, but it is too good to keep. A popular society matron has a daughter who has a beautiful voice and is a very pretty girl. She has never taken singing lessons, and some of the singers have been consulted by her as regards their terms. One of these instructors has talked a lot to the mother about giving her girl lessons, and assured her that he was the fellow to develop that voice until it would be a "peach." He argued the matter over and over again every time he saw the lady and finally she said: "I wish my daughter to learn to sing, Professor High Notes, but she is not well. She is suffering constantly from a sort of indigestion, and I don't think she feels well enough to take the lessons."

"Pooh, pooh, my dear madam," replied the professor. "Nonsense! With my teaching and ten cents' worth of cream of tartar she will be cured at once."

And yet that obstinate mamma has not struck the trade. Maybe the daughter has objected to the ten cents' worth of cream of tartar.—Louisville Times.

The Word "Gazette."

It is doubtful whether the word gazette is from "gazza," meaning magpie, or from "gazetta," a small coin.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Secret Societies—Why Silence is Sometimes Best — Organizations That Work For Humanity's Service — The True Tests For Secret Societies.

[Copyright 1901.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A practical question which is asked in most houses and for many years is here asked by Dr. Talmage and answered; text, Proverbs xxv, 9, "Discover not a secret to another."

It appears that in Solomon's time, as in all subsequent periods of the world, there were people too much disposed to tell all they knew. It was blab, blab, blab; physicians revealing the case of their patients, lawyers exposing the private affairs of their clients, neighbors advertising the faults of the next door resident, pretending friends betraying confidences.

One-half of the trouble of every community comes from the fact that so many people have not capacity to keep their mouths shut. When I hear something disparaging of you, my first duty is not to tell you, but if I tell you what somebody has said against you and then go out and tell everybody else what I told you, and they go out and tell others what I told them that I told you, and we all go out, some to hunt up the originator of the story and others to hunt it down, we shall get the whole community talking about what you do and what you did not do, and there will be as many scalps taken as though a band of Modocs had swept upon a helpless village. We have two ears, but only one tongue, a physiological suggestion that we ought to hear a good deal more than we tell. Let us join a conspiracy that we will tell each other all the good and nothing of the ill, and then there will not be such awful need of sermons on Solomon's words, "Discover not a secret to another."

Solomon had a very large domestic circle. In his earlier days he had very confused notions about monogamy and polygamy, and his multitudinous associates in the matrimonial state kept him too well informed as to what was going on in Jerusalem. They gathered up all the privacies and poured them into his ear, and his family became a sorosis or female debating society of 700, discussing day after day all the difficulties between husbands and wives, between employers and employes, between rulers and subjects, until Solomon, in my text, deplores volubility about affairs that do not belong to us and extols the virtue of secretiveness.

By the power of a secret divulged families, churches, neighborhoods, nations, fly apart. By the power of a secret kept charities, socialities, reformatory movements and Christian enterprises may be advanced. Men are gregarious—cattle in herds, fish in schools, birds in flocks, men in social circles. You may by the discharge of a gun scatter a flock of quails or by the plunge of an anchor send apart the denizens of the sea, but they will gather themselves together again. If you by some new power could break the associations in which men now stand, they would again adhere. God meant it so. He has gathered all the flowers and shrubs into associations. You may plant one forget-me-not or heartsease alone away off upon the hillside, but it will soon hunt up some other forget-me-not or heartsease. Plants love company. You will find them talking to each other in the dew.

You sometimes see a man with no outbranchings of sympathy. His nature is cold and hard, like a ship's mast ice glazed, which the most agile sailor could never climb. Others have a thousand roots and a thousand branches. Innumerable tendrils climb their hearts and blossom all the way up, and the fowls of heaven sing in the branches. In consequence of this tendency we find men coming together in tribes, in communities, in churches, in societies. Some gather together to cultivate the arts, some to plan for the welfare of the state, some to discuss religious themes, some to kindle their mirth, some to advance their craft. So every active community is divided into associations of artists, of merchants, of bookbinders, of carpenters, of masons, of plasterers, of shipwrights, of plumbers. Do you cry out against it? Then you cry out against a tendency divinely implanted. Your tirades would accomplish no more than if you should preach to a busy ant hill a long sermon against secret societies.

Here we find the oft-discussed question whether associations that do their work with closed doors and admit their members by passwords and greet each other with a secret grip are right or wrong. I answer that it depends entirely on the nature of the object for which they meet. Is it to pass the hours in revelry, wassail, blasphemy and obscene talk or to plot trouble to the state or to debauch the innocent, then I say with an emphasis that no man can mistake, "No!" But is the object the defense of the rights of any class against oppression, the improvement of the mind, the enlargement of the heart, the advancement of art, the defense of the Government, the extirpation of crime or the kindling of a pure hearted sociality, then I say with just as much emphasis, "Yes."

There is no need that we who plan for the conquest of right over wrong should publish to all the world our intentions. The general of an army never sends to the opposing troops information of the coming attack. Shall we who have enlisted in the cause of God and humanity expose our plans to the enemy? No; we will in secret plot the ruin of all the enterprises of Satan and his cohorts! When they expect us by day, we will fall upon them by night. While they are strengthening their left wing we will fall on their right.

By a plan of battle formed in secret conclave we will come suddenly upon them, crying, "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon!" Secrecy of plot and execution is wrong only when the object and ends are nefarious. Every family is a secret society, every business firm and every banking and insurance institution.

Those men who have no capacity to keep a secret are unfit for positions of trust anywhere. There are thousands of men whose vital need is culturing a capacity to keep a secret. Men talk too much, and women, too. There is a time to keep silence as well as a time to speak.

Although not belonging to any of the great secret societies about which there has been so much violent discussion, I have only words of praise for those associations which have for their object the maintenance of right against wrong or the reclamation of inebriates or, like the score of mutual benefit societies called by different names, that provide temporary relief for widows and orphans and for men incapacitated by sickness or accident from earning a livelihood. Had it not been for the secret labor organizations in this country monopoly would long ago have under its ponderous wheels ground the laboring classes into an intolerable servitude. The men who want the whole earth to themselves would have got it before this had it not been for the banding together of great secret organizations. And, while we deplore many things that have been done by them, their existence is a necessity and their legitimate sphere distinctly pointed out by the providence of God. Such organizations are trying to dismiss from their associations all members who are in favor of anarchy and social chaos. They will gradually cease anything like tyranny over their members, and will forbid violent interference with any man's work, whether he belongs to their union or is outside of it, and will declare their disgust with any such rule as that passed in England by the Manchester Bricklayers' Association, which says any man found running or working beyond a regular speed shall be fined two shillings and sixpence for the first offense, five shillings for the second, ten shillings for the third, and if still persisting shall be dealt with as the committee thinks proper.

Let any Christian wife rejoice when her husband consecrates evenings to the service of humanity and of God or anything elevating, but let no man sacrifice home life to secret society life, as many do. I can point out to you a great many names of men who are guilty of this sacrilege. They are as genial as angels at the society rooms and as ugly as sin at home. They are generous on all subjects of wine suppers, yachts and fine horses, but they are stingy about their wives' dresses and the children's shoes. That man has made that which might be a healthful influence a usurper of his affections, and he has married it, and he is guilty of moral bigamy. Under this process the wife, whatever her features, becomes uninteresting and homely. He becomes critical of her, does not like the dress, does not like the way she arranges her hair, is amazed that he ever was so unromantic as to offer her hand and heart.

There are secret societies where membership always involves domestic shipwreck. Tell me that a man has joined a certain kind and tell me nothing more about him for ten years, and I will write his history if he be still alive. The man is a wine guzzler, his wife broken hearted or prematurely old, his fortune gone and his home a mere name in the directory.

Here are six secular nights in the week. "What shall I do with them?" says the father and the husband. "I will give four of these nights to the improvement and entertainment of my family, either at home or in good neighborhood. I will devote one to charitable institutions. I will devote one to my lodge." I congratulate you. Here is a man who says, "Out of the six secular nights of the week I will devote five to lodges and clubs and associations and one to the home, which night I will spend in scowling like a March squall, wishing I was out spending it as I have spent the other five." That man's obituary is written. Not one out of 10,000 that ever get so far on the wrong road ever stops. Gradually his health will fail through late hours, and through too much stimulants he will be first-rate prey for ervsipelas and rheumatism of the heart.

The doctor coming in will at a glance see it is not only present disease he must fight, but years of fast living. The clergyman for the sake of the feelings of the family on the funeral day will only talk in religious generalities. The men who got his yacht in the eternal rapids will not be at the obsequies. They have pressing engagements that day. They will send flowers to the coffin, will send their wives to utter words of sympathy, but they will have engagements elsewhere. They never come.

Another test by which you can find whether your secret society is right or wrong is the effect it has on your secular occupation. I can understand how through such an institution a man can reach commercial success. I know some men have formed their best business relations through such a channel. If the secret society has advantaged you in an honorable calling it is a good one. But has your credit failed? Are bargain makers now more anxious how they trust you with a bale of goods? Have the men whose names were down in the commercial agency Al before they entered the society been going down since in commercial standing? Then look out.

You and I every day know of commercial establishments going to ruin through the social excesses of one or two members, their fortune beaten to death with ball player's bat or cut amidships with the front prow of the regatta or going down under the swift hoofs of the fast horses or drowned in the large potations of cognac Monongahela. The secret society was the Loch Earn. Their business was the Ville de Havre. They struck, and the Ville de Havre went under!

The third test by which you may know whether the society to which you belong is good or bad is this: What is its effect on your sense of moral and religious obligation? Now, if I should take the names of all the people in this audience and put them on a roll, and then I should lay that roll back of this organ, and a hundred years from now some one should take that roll and call it from A to Z, there would not one of you answer. I say that any society that makes me forget that fact is a bad society.

Which would you rather have in your hand when you come to die—a pack of cards or a Bible? Which would you rather have pressed to your lips in the closing moment—the cup of Belshazzarean wassail or the chalice of Christian communion? Whom would you rather have for your pallbearers—the elders of a Christian church or the companions whose conversation was full of slang and insuendo? Whom would you rather have for your eternal companions—those men who spend their evenings betting, gambling, swearing, carousing and telling vile stories or your little child, that bright girl whom the Lord took? Oh, you would not have been away so much nights, would you, if you had known she was going away so soon? Dear me, your house has never been the same place since. Your wife has never brightened up; she has never got over it; she never will get over it. How long the evenings are with no one to put to bed and no one to whom to tell the beautiful Bible stories! What a pity it is that you cannot spend more evenings at home in trying to help her bear that sorrow! You can never drown that grief in the wine cup. You can never break away from the little arms that used to be flung around your neck when she used to say, "Papa, do stay with me to-night—do stay with me to-night!" You will never be able to wipe away from your lips the dying kiss of your little girl. The fascination of a bad secret society is so great that sometimes a man has turned his back on his home when his child was dying of scarlet fever. He went away. Before he got back at midnight the eyes had been closed, the undertaker had done his work, and the wife, worn out with three weeks' watching, lay unconscious in the next room. Then the returned father comes up stairs, and he sees the cradle gone, and he says, "What is the matter?" On the judgment day he will find out what was the matter.

Oh, man astray, God help you! I am going to make a very stout rope. You know that sometimes a ropemaker will take very small threads and wind them together until after awhile they become a ship cable. And I am going to take some very small, delicate threads and wind them together until they make a very stout rope. I will take all the memories of the marriage day—a thread of laughter, a thread of light, a thread of music, a thread of banqueting, a thread of congratulation—and I twist them together, and I have one strand. Then I take a thread of the hour of the first advent in your home, a thread of the darkness that preceded, and a thread of the light that followed, and a thread of the beautiful scarf that little child used to wear when she bounded out at eventide to greet you, and then a thread of the beautiful dress in which you laid her away for the resurrection, and then I twist all these threads together and I have another strand. Then I take a thread of the scarlet robe of a suffering Christ, and a thread of the white raiment of your loved ones before the throne, and a string of the harp seraphic, and I twist them all together, and I have a third strand. "Oh," you say, "either strand is enough to hold fast a world." No; I will take these strands, and I will twist them together, and one end of that rope I will fasten not to the communion table, for it shall be removed; not to a pillar of the organ, for that will crumble in the ages, but I wind it round and round the cross of a sympathizing Christ, and having fastened one end of the rope to the cross I throw the other end to you. Lay hold of it! Pull for your life! Pull for heaven!

THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUGUST 11.

Subject: God's Promise to Abraham. Gen. xv., 1-18.—Golden Text, Gen. xv., 1.—Memory Verses, 5-7.—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

1. "After these things." The fact that immediately after the battle with the kings there came another vision from God to Abram leads us to think that he may have been passing through a testing time, and perhaps he was tempted to discouragement. He was also disappointed in not receiving the fulfilment of the promise God had made him regarding his descendants, for as yet he had no child. "In a vision." Which supposes Abram awake, and some visible appearance or sensible token of the presence of the divine glory. "Fear not." Fear not thy enemies, neither fear lest My promises shall fail thee. "I am thy shield." God was Abram's portion, and He is the portion of every righteous soul. "Great reward." There is surely a reference here to the battle and the victory. When God is ours we have all that is sufficient for defense and reward; this promise involves eternal life.

2. "I go childless." Seeing I am going childless, that is, I am going out of the world in this condition. Abram desired a son, for he knew upon divine authority that his seed should inherit the land. Sonship and heirship are inseparably connected in the thoughts of God. "Steward of my house." The heir into whose hands Abram's possessions must descend in consequence of his childless condition. "Is this Eliezer?" How could the promise be fulfiled when a "stranger" is likely to be his heir?

3. "Given no seed." Though we should never complain of God yet we may complain to Him, and tell Him all our grievances. "One born in my house." That is, "one attached to or a dependant of his house." This is a reference to the servant who, from all appearances, would become his heir.

4. "Shall not be thine heir." There is no limit to the power of God, for He who can quicken the dead can do anything.

5. "Look—tell the stars." The stars in that climate are brighter than in ours. Professor Hall says he has known Venus to shine so bright as to cast a shadow. Brighter than the stars, steadier than their flames shall be the fulfilment of God's promises. God points to the stars as a sign to Abram. "So shall thy seed be." The descendants of Abram included not only Israelites, but the Arabians, the Midianites, the Ammonites and Moabites were a numerous people, and were for more than a thousand years among the most important in Asia. At least two branches of his strong stock yet remain—the Jews, who are found in every part of the earth, and the Arabs, who still roam, unconquered over the desert. But the highest fulfilment was in Christ. God's people are, by faith, "children of Abraham," and "heirs according to the promise." Gal. 3: 7, 9, 29.

6. "Believed in the Lord." God speaks—Abram believes, and all is settled and all is sure. Abram believed the truth of the promise that was now made him, resting upon the power and faithfulness of God who had made it. See Rom. 4: 19-21. "Counted it." There was no act but that of the mind and heart, no work of any kind; hence the doctrine of justification by faith, without any merit of works; for in this case there could be no works of Abram which would merit the salvation of the whole human race. "For righteousness." Or justification.

7. "I am the Lord." The promises of God are very broad, very high and very long. They look far down the future, but we may remember that there is omniscience in their utterance and omnipotence in their fulfilment.

8. "Whereby shall I know?" That is, "by what sign shall I be assured that I shall inherit this land?"

9. "Take me an heifer," etc. The animals prescribed are of the three kinds afterward allowed by the law for sacrifice, and the birds are those repeatedly mentioned in the law as those to be brought for offerings.

10. "He took—all these." Abram followed to the very letter the directions God had given him; so we must obey God fully before we can have reason to expect Him to fulfil His promises to us. "Divided them," etc. The manner of ratifying a covenant was to divide the animals lengthwise, as near as possible in two equal parts, which were placed opposite to each other a short distance apart; the covenanting parties would then meet in the centre and take the customary oath.

11. "Came down." Having made ready the sacrifices he waited for the fire of God to consume them, which was the usual token of acceptance. While he waited ravenous birds of prey which feed upon dead bodies "came down" to consume the sacrifice. How often do intruding cares, like unclean birds, seize upon that time and those affections which have been given to God!

12. "Was going down." About the time of the evening sacrifice. "A deep sleep." Not a common sleep through weariness or carelessness, but such a sleep as God caused to fall upon Adam. "Great darkness." Which God designed to be expressive of the affliction and misery into which his posterity should be brought during their bondage in Egypt, as the next verse particularly states.

13. "Shall afflict them." From the time God called Abram at Haran it was 430 years before Abram's descendants came into possession of their own land, but the children of Israel were actually in Egypt only half that time, or 215 years.

14. "That nation." The Egyptian nation. "Will I judge." God brought plagues and destruction upon the Egyptians. "Come out." Israel was redeemed from bondage and came out of Egypt with great wealth. This promise was literally fulfilled, but there was a long time of waiting.

15. "In peace." This verse strongly implies the immortality of the soul.

16. "Amorites." This was the general name for the Canaanitish tribes. "Iniquity—not yet full." From these words we learn that there is a certain pitch of iniquity to which nations may arrive before they are destroyed, and beyond which God will not permit them to pass.

17. "A smoking furnace." This signified the affliction of the children of Israel in Egypt. There were there in the furnace of affliction. "Burning lamp." The symbol of the divine presence. Faith may be strong, but light comes while we stand before the Lord, by the holy altar of but at offering.

18. "Made a covenant." A covenant is a mutual agreement between two contracting parties, each of which is bound to fulfil certain engagements to the other. In Holy Scripture it is used mostly to denote certain defined relations between God and man. "River of Egypt." Probably the River Nile.

The number of deaths from murderous violence is much smaller in proportion to population in England than in the United States. But in the older country the taking of human life without warrant of law is adequately punished in most instances. In the newer country the list of homicides every year is appalling, while the legal penalty for murder is enacted in so few cases that it does not appear to have an effect sufficiently deterrent to those who are inclined to kill.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain,
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly . . . $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

OUR NEW CENTURY OFFER

THE BANNER finished the last century in excellent condition, but we wish to commence the new with a large number of new subscribers, and for that purpose have much pleasure in making the following offer:

The Banner one year (52 papers) for 75 cents.

The Banner one year and the N. Y. World Almanac and Encyclopedia for 1901, over 600 pages, $1.00

The Banner and Home & Farm, both papers one year for $1.00

The Banner and Birmingham Age Herald, both papers one year for $1.50

The Banner and Thrice-a-Week World—four papers every week for one year for $1.50

The Banner and Montgomery Advertiser, both papers one year for $1.50

The Banner and Atlanta Constitution and Home & Farm—all three for one year for $1.50

The Banner and Atlanta Constitution and your choice of a number of other periodicals—all three for 1 year for $1.50

The Banner and American Monthly Review of Reviews—both one year for $2.75

FROM all sides we are glad to hear of the flourishing appearance of the crops in Chilton county—corn and cotton especially being reported in splendid condition. A gentleman just in from the western part of the county says he has never seen crops look anything near as good as they are this season. If our people can only get a good fair price for their produce this season Chilton will flourish like a rose.

IT now appears probable that the Constitutional Convention will complete its labors by the end of next week, after which the Committee on Harmony of the whole will prepare the new constitution, which will then be submitted to the convention for its approval—the convention in the meantime adjourning to await the report of the committee. The governor will then issue a proclamation and call an election for the people to pass upon the new constitution, and upon their verdict the instrument stands or falls.

ANOTHER great battle between labor and capital is on, and the deplorable results which accompany a big strike must inevitably follow. The Steel Trust refuses to recognize the Amalgamated Society of Steel and Iron Workers, and the fight is really one on behalf of unionism. What the outcome will be none can tell; if the laborer must suffer, the capitalist must also be a loser. The steel workers may lose this fight, but unionism has too strong a hold to allow the Association to be annihilated, which is what the Trusts wish.

The Cosmopolitan for August reveals the late Grant Allen in a new light—that of a keen and clever satirist of modern society, not only in England, but in the world at large. The Cosmopolitan, immediately on his death, secured from his royal all his papers, and the clever allegory—"The Temple of Fate"—in the August number, is one of those selected. Like "The British Aristocracy" in the April Cosmopolitan, the present article impresses itself on the reader with a direct fearlessness which is a new quality in the author's work. If it is true that all the world loves a lover, then Edgar Saltus's clever, epigrammatic story of the princes who have relinquished thrones, position, wealth—everything—to marry the women they loved, should indeed be popular.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

UPON the question of the appointment of Boards of Registration in each county, Mr. L. H. Reynolds made the following speech:

In speaking against the majority report of the Committee, I feel like the blind candidate seeking admission to the temple of the Holy St. John. However, I conceive it my duty, both to my constituents and myself, to make known my objections. On account of serious illness in my family my attendance here of late has been irregular, much to my regret, as I desired to hear every argument pro and con. Even now I ought to be with the loved sufferers at home, but I think the majority report is greatly wrong in principle and calculated to work great injustice, and I am here to oppose it.

Mr. President, it is no doubt well known that I opposed the calling of this Convention and that I urged my friends to vote for "No Convention." We are here, though, and it behooves us, one and all, to study carefully the questions presented and do "what is right in God's sight." Now, we are confronted with the great problem of the Convention—reformation and restriction of the suffrage. I dare assert that no one will be heard to say that there is no intention to restrict the suffrage. The suffrage then, is to be restricted—limited, under the temporary plan, to those of good character, soldiers and descendants of soldiers—under the permanent plan, to persons of intelligence, or to owners of property over a certain amount. A mere cursory glance at the plans suggested would show that some persons, who are now entitle to vote, will be deprived of that privilege. We are told however, that the discrimination is to be confined to the negro—that no white man is to be disfranchised. Then, why, pray, have we a partisan board to pass on the qualifications of applicants? Right here I would ask and I pause for a reply from the distinguished Chairman of the Committee, would you yourself vote for the plan suggested, if the Board of Registrars should by the law itself, be composed wholly of men opposed to the Democratic party?

I want to ask my friend from Jefferson that question, and I pause for a reply. Would you vote for the adoption of the plan submitted under those conditions?

Mr. White—Just what I would do individually possible would not be entertaining to the Convention, Mr. President.

Mr. Reynolds (Chilton)—I never saw a lawyer in my life that did not know how to get out of answering a question. We common folks have to answer them. I impute to no one dishonorable motives, but it does seem that the organic law should not itself create a partisan political board. But, it is said, that those who hold the offices named merely happen to be Democrats and that they are good men. This would be no reply, however, for we all know their political affiliations. Now, I want to say that I would oppose any plan that would create a Board of Registrars consisting exclusively of members of one party, be that party Republican, Democratic or Populist. Judging from the election returns from Dallas, Lowndes, Hale, Greene and other black belt counties, the Democratic party has nothing whatever to gain from a disfranchisement of the negro. Such disfranchisement would be beneficial alone to the parties in opposition to the dominant party in this State. We are all familiar with the fact that it was the large majorities from the black belt that have kept the Democratic party in power in this State. We hear it said that the negroes of the black belt actually vote the Democratic ticket. About this I do not know, nor do I doubt the honor and integrity of the officers named as registrars, but, in all candor, would it not be a little too much to expect them to disfranchise their party and political friends—those party friends, upon whose votes their re-election depends? Solely to disfranchise the negro? Why, I have been told by a gentleman of great political influence in his county—a gentleman, by the way, from a black belt county—that, in this county, the negroes would not be disfranchised, that the white people of his county had and have no idea of giving up this great political power and would not do so. That gentleman approves, so I understand, of the majority report.

During the course of this debate, it has been said that the officers are presumed to do their duty. That we should not indulge the presumption that they would act dishonestly. Yes in the past, we were told that we must presume that the election officers would do their duty in accordance with law and justice. Has such been the cause? As was well stated by the distinguished gentleman from Jefferson, we were called here to purify the ballot, to

(continued on 6th column page 8)

How The Philippines are Governed.

Taking one consideration with another, and assuming to speak with some degree of authority, it may be said that the government devised for the Philippine Islands, so far as it relates to the civilized natives, is entirely analogous to the system now in successful operation in the District of Columbia, with the single exception, which is entirely noteworthy, that the people of Manila will exercise the right of suffrage, while those in Washington are getting along very well without it. The city of Washington to-day is governed by three commissioners, all of them appointed by the President, and removable at his discretion. They control the fire department, the police, the schools, the system of taxation, the cleaning of the streets, the regulation of the public health, and, in fact, everything which is conducted with much more friction by the cumbersome machinery of the average city. People who have lived for years in Washington, after having been residents of other cities, assert with great positiveness that the capital is beyond all question the best governed large municipality in the United States. For the Philippines, the President has thought to devise a central government consisting of a few officials directly responsible to him. They, in their turn, will create subordinate governments with the same degree of direct responsibility. This system secures the flexibility which is absolutely necessary to the creation of a new government out of such decidedly raw material. It secures to Governor Taft the necessary independence of initiative, but amply provides for the protection of the people against arbitrary action. Military government, however wisely conducted, is generally abrupt in its operation, and inevitably disliked, because it is an attempt by military force to secure action on lines which are essentially civil. A military order is frequently both legislative and judicial, as well as executive. It prescribes a rule of action, executes its own law, and then constitutes itself a court of last resort as to whether the law has been properly executed. It was to avoid giving offense through this inherent abruptness of military power that President McKinney was so anxious to establish a civil government suited to the needs of the people.—From "Governor Taft and Our philippine Policy," by Raymond Patterson, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August.

Your druggist, knows a good thing when he sees it. He always keeps Dr Tichenor's Antiseptic for sale because it is a good thing. He likes to sell it because it always gives perfect satisfaction.

A newspaper whose columns overflow with ads, of business men has more influence in attracting attention to, and building up a city or town than any other agency that can be employed. People go where there is business. Capital and labor will locate where there is an enterprising community. No power on earth is so strong to build up a town as a newspaper well patronized, and its power should be appreciated.—Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

Another Proof That It Pays.

What pays? Why, advertising in this paper. We are just in receipt of a letter to-day from the makers of Cascarets, calling attention to the fact that within five years the sales have grown from nothing to six million boxes last year. We are pleased, more than pleased to learn this, because we have carried the advertising during that time and it goes to show if you have an article of real merit like Cascarets, advertise it properly and liberally and let all the people know about it, it is sure to bring big results. To our readers who have never tried this famous remedy, we most respectfully urge a trial, because in this busy, every day life of ours, we all need something now and then to help nature and there is no better medicine in the world than Cascarets to stimulate the liver and bowels gently and naturally into healthy action.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50c a. Clanton Drug Co.

W. H. SARTOR

sells them cheaper

try him!

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have claimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. The wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C 935 EDWIN B GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

CHURCH DIRECTORY

BAPTIST—Preaching on the first and third Sundays at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Sunday-school every Sunday at 10 a.m.

Prayer-meeting every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

F. M. WOODS, Pastor.

METHODIST—Preaching every second Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and every fourth Sunday at 7 p.m.

Sunday-school at 10 a.m. every Sunday.

Prayer-meeting at seven o'clock every Wednesday night.

D. F. ELLISON, Pastor.

C. R. MULLINS

AGENT FOR THE LIVERPOOL & LONDON & GLOBE FIRE INSURANCE OF ENGLAND. THE LONDON & LANCASHIRE FIRE INSURANCE CO. OF NEW YORK, formerly represented by W. L. Sampey.
THE ETNA ACCIDENT INSURANCE CO OF HARTFORD CT.
THE OLD MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE CO OF NEWARK.
AND THE SINGER MANUFACTURING CO., the largest Sewing Machine Company in the world.

We know you are interested in the problem of getting full value for the money you spend no matter what the outlay is for. We presume to advise you along all lines, but when it comes to a Sewing Machine for yourself and family I am in a position to give some valuable suggestions. For over sixty years the Company have done nothing but study the needs and requirements of the people in the matter of Sewing Machines, and our large business is evidence that we are making and furnishing what they want. The styles we are making are very latest, unsurpassed in lasting qualities and, best of all, the prices are reasonable, and the terms within the reason of all. By placing our machines in the leading families all over the land we know if you want the best looking, the lightest running and the best of all attachments ever bought, call for the High Arm Singer. You will find a complete stock of these machines at the Singer Office, Clanton.

Machines from $5.00 to $65.00 for cash or on time. Needles, Oils, Shuttles and Attachments, and the best and only genuine Machine Oil manufactured, every bottle bearing the trade mark. 10, 15 and 20 cent bottles.

My regular office days are Saturdays and Mondays. For other particulars call on or address

C. R. MULLINS,
SINGER OFFICE CLANTON.

We will move October 1st to 2612 First Ave.

EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES

J Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75; Per

CLIFTON DRUG CO.,

THE CUT RATE DRUG STORE

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

SUMMER CLOTHING

LATEST FASHIONS

LOWEST PRICES

A BEAUTIFUL LINE FROM WHICH TO MAKE YOUR CHOICE

AND A COMPLETE LINE OF

Dry Goods, Hats, Shoes, Notions

CHOICE GROCERIES

W. A. KEMP, Clanton, Ala.

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' Court meets second Monday in February first Monday in April, first Monday in June second Monday in July, second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

Mr. Nels Peterson of Thorsby very kindly sent a fine basket of grapes to the Banner, for which he will please accept our thanks.

Miss Hessie Hayes of Lily was a visitor to Clanton Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Murphree of Saginaw are visiting friends near Clanton.

Mr. G. W. Willis, we are glad to say, is recovering from the wounds inflicted by the shotgun of the negro Joe Christian. He is able to be up and about a little.

Mr. Rush Vines has secured a position with Mr. C. J. Stewart and will be pleased to see his friends at the new store on the corner opposite the court house.

Miss Ethel McMath, of Montevallo, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. P. VanDerveer.

Mr. G. W. Harrison of Lanier was in town Wednesday.

Dr. A. J. Massey has done a whaling good business this week in Clanton. Always does when he comes here.

The exercises of the University School will be resumed September 11. $101 will cover all expenses of board, tuition, washing, fuel, lights, etc. Session of nine months. Send for catalogue.

E. Y. McMOURIES, Principal.

Mr. J. M. Moore, of Jackson, Ga., has rented the Wright house and will remove his family here shortly.

Mr. R. L. Marcus has purchased Rev. F. M. Wood's place; and will take possession Oct. 1.

Messrs. Eugene Barkley of Talladega, and Sam Parker, of Winnsville, are visiting Mr. Patrick Smith.

Rev. F. M. Woods returned from Birmingham Monday, after a few days visit there.

Better have a good medicine and not need it than to need it and not have it. See? Then just before you get hurt, buy a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. It is a record breaker for Wounds, Burns, Bruises, Scalds, etc., for man and beast. 50c a bottle at all drug stores.

Miss Emma Burhalter of Coosa was a visitor here Wednesday.

Miss Bessie Askins, of Billingsley was one of Clanton's charming visitors Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cooley of Shelby were visitors here Monday.

Mr. N. Duffee of Verbena was one of our welcome visitors Saturday.

Mr. Wm. H. Johnson of Centreville gave us a pleasant call Saturday.

Mr. C. W. Wilson went to Montgomery county Tuesday.

If you, your baby, or your horse has colic, Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure it and "don't you forget it." Only 50c. a bottle.

Mrs. V. O. Campbelle has returned home from a visit to her mother in Birmingham.

Mrs. Bishop has returned from Texas and is staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Mullins.

Miss Bessie McCrary of Montevallo is visiting Mrs. J. P. VanDerveer.

Miss Dovie Smitherman of Sagainaw visited friends here last week.

Mr. J. C. Dennis went to Montgomery county Saturday.

Mr. Ed. Giles is building a new dwelling house in West Clanton.

Mr. H. B. Northington of Verbena, was in town Wednesday.

Mr. B. Y. McMorries returned to Gadsden Saturday after a pleasant vacation here.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. R. C. Collins and Miss Dora D. Maddox; Mr. John Horton and Miss Delpha Holdridge.

Pleasant Grove.

On Saturday night last, Rev. Treadwell, of Notasulga, who had come here to assist his son-in-law, Rev. Cassidy, pastor of the church, to conduct a protracted meeting, suddenly fell back and expired at the close of the meeting. The body was carried to Clanton Sunday morning and sent to its last earthly resting place at Notasulga. Great sympathy is manifested for the bereaved ones; may the Heavenly Father be with them, and may they in due time rejoin their earthly parent in the land beyond.

TOR

cheaper

m!

MULLINS

OL & LONDON & GLOBE FIRE INS
OR LONDON & LANCASHIRE FIRE
NEW YORK, formerly represented by
W. L. Sampey
SURANCE CO. OF HARTFORD, CONN
LIFE INSURANCE CO. OF NEWARK,
AND CASUALTY CO., the largest Steam
Company in the world.

ested in the problem of getting full v matter what the outlay is for. I will all times, but when it comes to buyin and family I am in a position to
For one-fifty years the Company needs and requirements of the peopl times, and our large business is proof ng what they want. The styles are lasting qualities and, best of all, the same within the reach of all. We leading localities all over the land se the lightest running and the best s all for the High Arm Singer. You see machines at the Singer Office, Clan to $65.00 for cash or on time. Ne
Attachments, and the best and only cured, every bottle bearing the S cent bottles.
are Saturdays and Mondays. For fu ss
R MULLINS,
SINGER OFFICE CLANTON

October 1st

12 First Ave.

HING AT CUT PRICES

r-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Q

R DRUG CO.,

E CUT RATE DRUG STOR
HAM, AL

UMMER CLOTHING

TEST FASHIONS

LOWEST PR

UTIFUL LINE FROM WHICH TO
YOUR CHOICE

A COMPLETE LINE OF

Hats, Shoes, Noti
E GROCERIE
A. KEMP, Clanton, A

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners Court meets second Monday in February first Monday in April, first Monday in June second Monday in September and third Monday in August and first Monday in November.

Mr. Nels Peterson of Thorsby very kindly sent a fine basket of grapes to the Banner, for which he will please accept our thanks.

Miss Bessie Hayes of Lily was a visitor in Clanton Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Murphree of Sagaw are visiting friends near Castle.

Mr. G. W. Wells, we are glad to say, is recovering from the wounds inflicted by the shotgun of the night for Christian. He is able to be up and about a little.

Mr. Rufus Agee has secured a position with Mr. C. J. Stewart, and will be pleased to see his friends at the new store on the corner opposite the court house.

Miss Ellen McMath, of Montevallo, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. P. Vandiver.

Mr. G. W. Harrison of Elmore was in town Wednesday.

Dr. A. J. Massey has done a striking good business this week in Clanton. A ways does when he comes here.

The exercises of the University School will be resumed September 11. $101 will cover all expenses of board, tuition, washing, fuel, lights, etc. Session of nine months. Send for catalogue.
E. Y. McMorries, Principal.

Mr. J. M. Moore, of Jackson, Ga., has rented the Wright house and will remove his family here shortly.

Mr. R. L. Marcus has purchased Rev. F. M. Woods place, and will take possession Oct. 1.

Messrs. Eugene Barkley of Talladega, and Sam Parker, of Wilsonville, are visiting Mr. Patrick Smith.

Rev. F. M. Woods returned from Birmingham Monday, after a few days visit there.

Better have a good medicine and not need it than to need it and not have it. See? Then just before you get hurt, buy a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. It is a record breaker for Wounds, Burns, Bruises, Scalds, etc., for man and beast. 50c a bottle at all drug stores.

Miss Emma Burhalter of Coopersville was visitor here Wednesday.

Miss B. Hawkins, of Billingsley was the Clanton's charming guest Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Cooley of Sagaw were visitors here Monday.

Mr. N. D. Lee of Verbena was one of our welcome visitors Saturday.

Mr. Wm. G. Johnson of Centreville gave us a pleasant call Saturday.

Mr. C. W. Wilson went to Montgomery county Tuesday.

If you, your baby, or your horse is sore, Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure it, and "don't you forget it." Only 50c. a bottle.

Mrs. V. C. Campbelle has returned home from a visit to her mother in Birmingham.

Mrs. Bishop has returned from Texas and is staying with her parents Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Mullins.

Miss Rosa M. Crary of Montevallo is visiting Mrs. J. P. Vandiver.

Mr. Dave Smitherman of Sagaw was visiting friends here last week.

Mr. T. C. Martin went to the capital Monday.

Mr. [illegible] is building a new [illegible] at West Clanton.

Mr. H. B. Northington of Verbena was in town Wednesday.

Mr. R. N. McMorries returned to Birmingham Monday after a pleasant visit here.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. R. C. Collins and Miss Dora D. Woodward; John Horton and Miss [illegible] Hodge.

Pleasant Grove.

On Saturday night last, Rev. Teadwell of Notasulga, who had come here to assist his son-in-law, Rev. Cassidy, pastor of the church, to conduct a protracted meeting, suddenly fell dead and expired at the close of the meeting. The body was carried to Clanton Sunday morning and sent to its last earthly resting place at Notasulga. Great sympathy is manifested for the bereaved ones; may the Heavenly Father be with them, and may they in due time rejoin their earthly parent in the land beyond.

SPRING

Has come, and with it, a matchless showing of all pretty designs in Muslins, Organdies, Percales, Laces and Embroidery.

If you are afraid of having inferior goods imposed upon you, there is but one thing for you to do, come and give us a trial.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

FIRE! FIRE!

GREAT SACRIFICE SALE!

Goods damaged by removal must be sold at any price.

This is Your Great Opportunity.

All these goods are good as new, they were only slightly damaged by removal; the fire did not reach my store, but all the stock was removed.

Calicoes from 3 and 4 cents. Lawns from 4 cts.
Ladies' Hats 50 cents on the $1.
Men's and Children's Straw Hats 50 c on $1.
Clothing at half price.
Shoes at half price.
Big line of Umbrellas.
Embroidery 4 cents.

I have a big stock and it must positively be sold. Come in and see for yourselves and pick out your own bargains. You have never seen such values before. Respectfully,

H. TOURO, Clanton

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS is the one important magazine in the world giving in its pictures, its text, in its contributed articles, editorials and departments, a comprehensive, timely record of the world's current history. Not the enumeration of mere bare facts, but a comprehensive picture of the month, its activities, its notable personalities, and notable utterances. The best informed men and women in the world find it indispensable.

There are many readers in your locality who have yet to learn of its usefulness. We wish to establish active agents in every city and township in the country. We will pay liberally for energetic effort in the subscription field. Leisure moments can be utilized with substantial increase of income. Make a list of the persons in your locality who should have the "Review of Reviews," and send to us for agent's terms, sample copies, and working outfit. Then solicit their subscriptions. It is a compliment to approach a person with a subscription proposition for the "Review of Reviews," and consequently orders are easily secured. This is the active subscription season. Make application at once, naming your references.

Price, 25 cents a number. $2.50 a year.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS COMPANY,

13 Astor Place. New York City.

NEW ROYAL

HIGH ARM. LIGHT RUNNING

WARRANTED TEN YEARS.

FIVE DRAWER $32.

The New Royal is not a cheap machine, but a high-class machine made out of good material, all parts adjustable and ball-bearing; has a good set of steel attachments and all of them work well.

I will exchange the New Royal for old machines and allow the full value of the old machine. Come and see me. I can sell you a machine as cheap as you can buy in Clanton.

Some secondhand machines from $4 up. Send me 25 cents in silver or stamps and an old needle for sample and I will send you 1 doz. needles to fit your machine.

REPAIR WORK GUARANTEED.

L. D. POPWELL,
CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses, No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

Headache and Neuralgia cured by Dr. MILES' PAIN PILLS. "One cent a dose."

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Parry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bachelor mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T. U CRUMPTON, Prop'r.
MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERYTHING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L, Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS--SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE

FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1 00	12 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water white 150 fire test oil	18
½ bbl " " "	2 25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	13
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14 lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware and the very best Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please,

A. M. JOHNSON, Manager

The Best of Everything and Everything of the Best

THE BEST

GROCERIES
CANNED GOODS
DRY GOODS
NOTIONS
JEWELRY
GLASS AND CHINA WARE

B. E. JONES,
Clanton.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

AFFAIRS OF NATIONAL IMPORT AND CRITICISM

EMANATING FROM THE CAPITOL CITY

Killed by the Cars—Natural Curiosity Wrecked—Drowned at St. Augustine—The Largest Steamer—Couldn't Gag the Paper.

Third Assistant Postmaster General Madden has issued a circular to postmasters correcting misconception of the recent order relating to second-class mail. This circular announces that a publication once properly admitted to second-class and regularly passed in the mails under that classification will not have its privilege revoked except upon formal notice to the postmaster. The circular says: "An entirely new publication or a suspended one resuming issue, having second-class privilege is subject to the regular conditions and restrictions. Where publications use premiums, guessing contests, etc., to induce subscriptions the department will not hold such subscriptions to be illegitimate for the time being or until the publications have had opportunity to change their practice with as little financial loss as possible to conform to the new regulations. Such alleged subscriptions must not be in contravention of section 281 previous to amendment and in no case will the non-enforcement of the amended regulations extend beyond October 1st, next.

An answer to a brief filed at the Interior Department by former Senator Thurston, representing the Cherokee Oil & Gas Co., seeking a renewal of oil leases in Indian Territory, has been filed by the Deleware Indians. About 11,520 acres are at stake. Hearing has been postponed until September 11th, and the Deleware Indians will seek further postponement until after congress meets. The brief of the Delewares asks the rejection of the application of the company and claims that the company does not pesent a fair reason "why the territory should have eighteen sections of land covering the homes and improvement of persons who have prior and permanent rights and who have never consented that it should enter their premises, in whose premises it has never been permitted to enter for mining or prospecting for oil or other mineral substance."

The Agricultural Department is preparing to publish an exhaustive truck farming report and the transportation of fruits and vegetables in the United States. The report covers the following points: 1. A description of the transportation of fruits and vegetables from southern truck farms to northern markets. 2. A description of the California fruit industry and the movement of California fruits to interior points and Atlantic seabaord sities. 3. Freight and refrigerator sharges on perishable products in all important sections of the country. Truck farming in the United States has been recognized as a distinct agrisultural industry for a period of about forty years.

Gen. Carlos Garcia, eldest son of the late Gen. Calixto Garcia, an inspector-general of Cuban penal institutions, interviewed on the Cuban situation, said: "It is necessary that Cuba have a reduction in tariff on sugar and tobacco. Between 800,000 and 900,000 tons of sugar were raised this year, and the next crop will be larger than any Cuba has ever gathered. We cannot do business, however, without a reduction on sugar."

A late dispatch from Venezuela said that a force of invaders under Gen. Rangel Gardiras, including two of two battallions of the Colombian army was repulsed by the government troops and compelled to fall back across the frontier after twenty-eight hours' fighting July 28 and July 29. 1200 men were killed. Government reinforcements have been sent.

Private Louis Haggerty, Tenth United States Artillery, killed his wife and then blew out his own brains in his quarters at the government barracks on Sullivan's Island Saturday morning. Jealousy was the cause of the tragedy. Haggerty enlisted from West Virginia.

The rumor that court is to sit in inquiry on the conduct of Rear Admiral Evans is unfounded.

The third member of the Schley court of inquiry has not yet been selected. But few are eligible to the position.

LI HUNG CHANG is reported recovered from his recent indisposition. An American physician effected the cure.

TO STOP THE BUSINESS.

Suit is to be filed by the attorney general of Texas to cancel the permit of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. of Missouri, to do business in Texas. About three years ago suit was brought against the same company to cancel its permit and they found that they had violated the Texas anti-trust law of 1895. Early in last year the United States Supreme Court sustained the judgment of the lower courts cancelling the permit. The company was dissolved and a new company with the same name organized which was admitted to Texas and a political sensation resulted. Under the anti-trust law 31,899 corporations are required to file an affidavit each year, stating in effect that they have not been guilty of restraint of trade. The last day for filing these affidavits is July 31st. On August 1st, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was awarded the contract to supply all state institutions with oil. Subsequently it was discovered that it had not filed its anti-trust affidavit. Thereupon the governor ordered the contract cancelled and furthermore ordered that suit be brought to cancel the permit of the company. One hundred and three other corporations may be treated likewise for the same reason.

BLEW UP.

A passenger engine boiler exploded near Bolton, Ga., Friday. Fireman J. L. Aenchbacher was killed. Engineer N. V. Bell was blown forty feet in the air but alighted on his feet unharmed. He states that he had just slowed down for the bridge over the Chattahoochee and was running about ten miles an hour when the boiler burst. The engine was demolished and the mail car damaged. J. W. Brown, the mail clerk, was slightly injured. None of the passengers were hurt.

HER NECK WAS BROKEN.

Near Brundige, Ga., Friday afternoon, a young girl, of 16 years, lost her life by accident. Miss Belle Floyd was returning home in a buggy. When in about 300 yards of her destination, the mule became frightened and whirled, almost overturning the buggy. The animal ran and Miss Floyd attempted to jump from the vehicle, but it was to her death. She struck the ground on her head and her neck was broken, and she was dead before assistance could reach her.

BRITISH "VIPER" LOST.

Sunday the British torpedo-boat destroyer, Viper, struck a rock off the Island of Alderny in the English channel and is a total wreck. There was no loss of life. The Viper was the only vessel in the British navy fitted with turbine engines. During her speed trials in May and June she attained 30¼ knots and was pronounced capable of doing 31 knots. At the time she was handled by an experienced crew and her builders believed she would yet attain 34 knots.

HOBSON SPOKE.

Richmond P. Hobson delivered an address at the Monona Lake Assembly at Madison, Wis., Aug., 2nd, before 5000 persons taking for his topic, "The American Navy." The address was a rigorous and eloquent appeal for a stronger navy. Every congress, he declared, should appropriate at least $25,000,000 for new warships. The United States was destined to become a great world power and it was fitting that it should have a navy strong enough to maintain it in every portion of earth.

ATHENS is on a building boom. There are three brick buildings going up, besides a large number of frame buildings. A knitting mill and two handsome churches are being erected of brick and the frame buildings are employing all the carpenters that can be secured. There is a steady demand for residences there and no vacant one at all.

MONTGOMERY has a sub-postoffice established in West End.

Vice-President Roosevelt will leave Washington about the first of October for a brief trip south. It is expected that he will stop at only a few cities.

EX-CONGRESSMAN Blount, of Georgia, is suffering from a stroke of paralysis.

A STRONG effort is being made to induce Emperor William of Germany to visit the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1903.

Spain is making an effort to enlarge her commerce in South America. This industry will probably pay her better than the building of battleships.

LATEST STATE NEWS.

BEFORE HER FATHER'S EYES.

Miss Caroline Jones, the 23-year-old daughter of ex-Governor Thomas G. Jones, was ground to death in a street car accident Monday morning. Miss Caroline had left her father on the veranda of their home, saying: "Wait, I am going to get you a flower," and started to a neighbor's house. In crossing the track she was struck by a car and dragged under the wheels. The motorman lost his head and forgot to turn off the current. The body was dragged a hundred yards and was fearfully mangled. Her father was a helpless witness of his daughter's awful death.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Near Owenton College last Friday was found a pack concealed among the weeds and covered with an old coat. It contained a lot of pants, shirts, shoes, neckties, overalls, etc., which were all inside of a big bag, the bag being covered with a heavy oil cloth. The outward indications were that the pack had lain concealed for months. The sheriff thinks some peddler has met with foul play, and the very fact that small articles, such as jewelry, etc., are missing from the pack strengthens the theory. The authorities will investigate thoroughly.

TRIED TO KILL HIS WIFE.

Moses Jackson, white, of Brookside, is in jail charged with assault with intent to murder, it being alleged that he attempted the life of his wife Saturday evening, endeavoring to kill her with a pocket knife. She managed to elude him, however, and escaped without injury. It is stated that the mind of the accused man has become affected by the use of morphine and that an effort will be made to have him sent to Tuskaloosa.

ALABAMA'S BLACK DIAMONDS.

State Mine Inspector J. deB. Hooper says that according to his best judgment this year's coal output in Alabama will not fall below 9,000,000 tons. These figures are three-quarters of a million tons in excess of last year's production. All the coal mines are doing a good business.

HIS WIFE FOUGHT, TOO.

Anderson Gorman, insane, who has been at large several months, having escaped while en route with an officer to the asylum, has been captured near Maysville by a deputy sheriff and posse. Gorman's house was surrounded, and he and his wife fought deaperately, but no one was hurt.

STREET FIGHT.

A fight occurred Saturday afternoon on Cotton street, Tuscaloosa, which came near ending seriously. The combatants were well known farmers, Bob and Lee Thomas and Jack Hoolihan. Lee Thomas and Hoolihan became engaged in a quarrel over some farming matter and when the dispute became more active Bob Thomas, the father, rushed in to help his son. He knocked Hoolihan down and cut his face with some weapon.

FELL TO HIS DEATH.

Mr. Stephens, of Demopolis, who had the contract to bore an artesian well for the Sumpter Lumber Company near Livingston, fell off the derrick forty-eight feet high Monday and was crushed to death. He leaves a wife and five children, all girls.

JEFFERSON is the latest Alabama county to catch the oil fever. A company has been organized to bore for the fluid.

THE Alabama Shooting Tourament meets in Birmingham this week. Some of the best shots in the state will participate, and it promises to be one of the most interesting shoots ever held in the South.

BIRMINGHAM'S new school census gives a total of 11,009 children of school age, and an increase of 1,466 in the last year.

J. T. WATKINS, a confederate veteran of Lauderdale county, has found a copy of the last issue of the Vicksburg, Mississippi, Daily Citizen, which was published during the historic siege of that place. That issue was printed on wall paper, and is a very interesting relic of war times.

In fifty years the words and phrases of the English language lexiconized under the letter "A" have increased from 7000 in number to nearly 60,000. Science and invention requiring new terms are largely responsible.

THE GREAT STRIKE IS ON.

The effort last Saturday to effect permanent peace between the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and the United States Steel Corporation came to naught. An agreement may yet be reached although the association, representing some 400,000 operatives, says it will fight until victorious.

FATAL DOG BITE.

On August 4, Mrs. Dick Chatham, of Gainesboro, Ga., died at her home of hydrophobia. She was bitten by a mad dog several days ago. She suffered intensely until death relieved her. Her daughter was bitten by the same pet dog at the same time and today it is feared that she, too, will have hydrophobia.

SMUGGLER KILLED.

John Dillon, a former convict, attempted to smuggle a large quantity of morphine into the Colorado state prison, but was detected and the warden turned him over to City Marshal Morrison. As he was being taken to the city jail Sunday Dillon suddenly attacked the marshal who shot and killed him.

COMMANDANT Haermanus Steyn, a cousin of President Steyn, of the Transvaal, was killed August 1 while fighting at Ficksburg.

AN attempt was made last Wednesday to assassinate Maria Pia, Queen Dowager of Portugal and mother of the present King Carlos.

VIRGINIA'S Convention has adjourned until Aug. 22nd, on half pay, the suffrage committee being authorized to sit during vacation.

EX-GOVERNOR W. J. Stone of Missouri is to have a big presidential boom. The fact that he is a Southerner and is supposed to be Bryan's choice if he himself can't be nominated, has given Stone's boom a big start.

DR. A. B. C. NICHOLS and Mr. H. H. Cribbs, county pension commissioners, have finished their work of examining applicants for Cofederate pensions. They have recommended 111 names for pensions in this county—seventy-six men and thirty-five women. Three of these were what is known as "first class," they being blind and entirely disabled. The balance are fourth class

A Brazilian paper, La Antozia, publishes an official communication saying that Brazil will not appoint delegates to the Pan-American Congress in Mexico, while the exact form of the programme is not settled. Nevertheless the government has sent a message to Congress requesting an appropriation for expenditures for participation in the congress. Deputies Esmeraldo and Irino attacked the bill asserting that Brazil had no intention of assisting in the congress, the only result of which would be to awaken the distrust of European relations against America.

DEATH IN THE CREAM.

Ten persons were poisoned with ice cream last Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. R. Bunkley, of Leesburg, Ga. W. R. Bunkley died today from the effects and Mrs. Bunkley and daughter are critically ill. The rest of the family and guests are recovering.

THE Cunard Line is planning to build a steamship to beat the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

The alarming reports that lobsters may ere long become almost as scarce and costly as diamond back terrapin of the finest quality are now followed by terrifying rumors that in a few years a famine in clams may cause widespread suffering. Epicures who have enjoyed the exquisite flavors of a genuine Rhode Island clambake will feel a sinking at heart and also in the stomach when they reflect upon the danger of such a calamity.

Every sincere patriot earnestly hopes that this entire century and all succeeding centuries may pass without the necessity for Americans to engage in strife on sea or land. But if this nation should be compelled to take up arms at any time, such superb battleships as the Illinois, whose official trial has been so successful and impressive, will surely be a tough nut for any foe to crack. Such vessels are marvels of destructive potency, states the New York Tribune.

Another French duel has been fought in Paris, and this time with results. The duel lasted for two and a half hours, and the results were that both the combatants were tired. French duels used to make other people tired.

GARDEN AND FARM

WHEN SHEEP SHOULD HAVE WATER.

The idea that sheep in pasture need no water except what they get from feeding on grass wet with dew, is a most erroneous one. In June, when the grass is itself succulent, sheep at pasture may sometimes get along very well without any water. But during midsummer there are many nights when no dew falls and when the grass is itself parched so that there is little succulence in it. At such periods the excrement of sheep will be in round, hard lumps, just as it is in winter, and when this condition shows itself, it means that the animals want more water.

CHICKENS AND OTHER FOWLS.

Ducks, geese and turkeys should never be kept in the same yards and houses with chickens. Many poultry breeders, who should have known better, have tried the experiment only to find that the inevitable result was failure.

Ducks and geese are extremely filthy, and chickens that are compelled to occupy the same yards invariably become sickly.

Turkeys are quarrelsome and worry the chickens so that it is impossible to get good results from the two in the same yards.

If a combination of all is desired separate them, and do not let the one trespass on the grounds of the other.

Of course, ducks and geese may be kept together, as their natures are identical, but chickens will not be healthy when housed or yarded with either.—Home and Farm.

TRIMMED SHRUBS.

The present "faddy" way of trimming in shrubs closely is destructive to the beauty and grace of certain varieties. Forsythia, for example, when allowed to develop naturally is a veritable "burst" of color when abloom, while the sheared shrub is a sorry, stumpy looking thing, without character or beauty. The same is true of some of the quinces and, spiraes of drooping habit, which when well placed, with ample room in which to develop, form a magnificent sight.

A good many people seem obsessed by the mania to change the nature of things, even to the shape of their own bodies, but when they raise their hands against nature without discrimination her true lover must protest. Nobody with taste can enjoy well groomed grounds where every shrub is alike as to outline. Such gardening is ugly, stiff and monotonous. Some minds run to color, and group vegetation with a view to colored effects, but there is more beauty in outline, in variety of forms, because beauty of outline is more continuous and enduring.—New York Tribune.

CABBAGES AS STOCK FOOD.

The value of the cabbage as food for stock may be summed up as stong in two points, the large amount that can be grown upon an acre of soil and its succulency, which makes it a milk-producing food easily digested. But it requires strong soil and good cultivation, does not keep well for winter use unless pitted where it will be frozen until spring, and even then having but a short season, while if stumps and any decayed leaves are fed it is almost impossible to prevent it imparting a rank, unpleasant flavor to the milk and butter, or even to the meat, unless its use is discontinued two or three weeks before the slaughtering. As regards the nutritive value Professor Johnson in Agricultural Chemistry estimated seventy pounds of cabbage to have about the same value as four pounds of oil cake, twelve pounds of pea straw or 120 pounds of turnips. The last we thing he bases upon the flat or English turnip, which are not as nutritious os the rufabaga. The value of the cabbages, as of the roots, is best found when a small amount is given along with coarse, dry fodder and a limited amount of grain.—The Cultivator.

REASONABLE WAY TO INTRODUCE QUEENS.

There is no sure way which will at all times and under all conditions prove successful. Last year I tried a method which I never saw advocated and it proved quite a success. Go to a hive to which you wish to introduce a new queen, take out about four frames of capped brood with all the adhering bees and put them into an empty hive. Be sure to leave the old queen in the old hive. Place on top of the frames of the new hive your queen cage containing the new queen, close up the hive and contract the entrance to about one inch.

The older bees will leave the hive and join the ones on the old stand, while the young bees will liberate the queen in two or three days and accept her all right. After she commences to lay nicely, go to the old hive and kill the old queen. After two days of queenlessness the bees can be taken out, frames and all, and placed into the new hive. They will most always unite peaceably.

The advantages of this method are that you can introduce a queen the same day you receive her, and the old one keeps on laying while the young one is being introduced. Should the bees prove hostile to the young queen and kill her, you still have the old one left. I introduced thirty queens in this way last year and was successful with twenty-eight of them.—F. G. Herman in New England Homestead.

PREVENTING ANNOYANCE FROM FLIES.

During the hot months of July, August and September, flies cause great loss by annoying dairy cows, fattening cattle and work horses. If the entire neighborhood would co-operate in keeping swamps drained and premises clean the fly pests would not be so bad. Of course, in new countries, flies breed in prairie grass, particularly marshy lands. Here they cannot be controlled so readily. The covering of work animals is of considerable advantage, but this does not help much when the flies are very numerous. With dairy cattle and stock not at work, possibly one of the best methods of preventing loss is to keep them in dark stables during the heat of the day. Flies will not go into dark places.

In order to note the effect of flies on milch cows, Professor W. L. Carlisle, of Wisconsin experiment station, divided fourteen cows into two lots about equal in every respect. During the daytime one lot was kept in a small paddock, having an abundance of shade. The other lot was placed in a comfortable stable provided with screen doors and windows. The lot in the paddock were on the wing constantly fighting flies, while the cows in the stable were suffering no annoyance. Comparing the results from the standpoint of milk and butter, the cows showed that the cows protected from flies produced twenty per cent more milk than those in the open lot.

In several tests made on an Illinois farm it was found practicable to keep cows in a dark stable and behind screens. The cows thus kept were practically free from flies and gave more milk than those left out in the pasture. The cows were allowed to run in the pasture during the night and feed during and required but little supplemental feed.

If it is impracticable to darken a stable, the next thing to do is to apply some repellent to the skin. A number of these are on the market and many of them will last for three days after applying. Two or three applications a week are sufficient. The compound, whatever it may be, should be rubbed on the flanks, neck and about the base of the ears, or any spots where flies are annoying. This should not be neglected. Of course, with large herds of dairy cattle the application of a compound of this character is rather difficult. Some of them can be put on with a spray pump. If the cattle are driven through a narrow passage the entire herd can be sprayed in a short time. Dairy cows, work horses and stock kept in the stable can be easily treated.—American Agriculturalist.

PREVENTING ANIMAL DISEASES.

Summer and winter diseases of animals as well as of human beings can be prevented in many cases by a judicious and intelligent application of sanitary and hygienic knowledge. Swine cholera is a disease of filth and improper feeding. Give the hogs all the blood they can get they can devour in hot weather and sooner or later they may be taken with the cholera. Likewise feed cows with a heavy grain diet and deny them the sweet, succulent grass and soft of summer, and they will have a feverish blood which may show itself in milk fever or any other trouble. Keep the sheep in hot, stifling, ill-ventilated, foul-smelling sheds these hot summer nights and we cannot expect them to escape skin disease, which may spread from one to another, and ruin half the value of the flock. If the poultry be kept in similar unsanitary quarters summer or winter they will be infested by lice, ticks and other diseases, which will keep down their weight and prevent good egg laying.

A large proportion of animal diseases come just from such simple causes. A little neglect and carelessness in bad weather may start the whole trouble. The diseases can be prevented largely by keeping the animals in clean and healthy places day and night throughout the summer, feeding them with cooling and nourishing foods, watering them with clean, fresh water regularly, cleaning their skin and hair if necessary very often if filth and dirt accumulate thereon, and, above all, by catering to their comfort so far as possible every day. If in spite of all these precautions diseases do appear in the flock, it is better to make a change immediately. Single out the two or three that show the first signs of any distemper, and put them off by themselves. Change the quarters of the rest of the flock, and watch carefully for any signs of disease among them. The animals that show the first symptoms can then be treated separately according to some home method, or by one who has made a specialty of such matters. Very often a dose of some simple medicine to clean the blood and stimulate the digestive organs will put the animal back into their normal condition. The symptoms and course of such complaints should be watched closely. Contagion in this way may be checked at the outset. It is not safe to leave with the flock any animal that shows signs of weakness, dumpishness or sickness. Separate the animal immediately, even though it prove nothing but common stomach trouble or a slight fever. It is always best to keep on the safe side.—E. P. Smith, in American Cultivator.

SHORT AND USEFUL POINTERS.

A hard-milking cow cannot be called first-class.

Use judgment in driving your horses these hot days.

The fat and sleek cow is not always a good dairy animal.

Test your cows and find out which ones "pay their board."

Sudden changes in feed will cause the milk supply to shrink.

The work of cleaning the dairy utensils should never be done slovenly.

Always have a sufficient variety of food to keep the hens in good appetite.

When milk is churned at too high a temperature the butter will be greasy.

If your cow has a swollen teat rub parts of lobelia and glycerine will help it.

There will be little complaint of the odor of the milk if it is kept perfectly clean.

You are always careful how you handle the eggs; well, handle the fruit the same way.

In a great many sections cow peas are being known under a new name—as renovators.

Get the milk from the barn to a cool well-ventilated place as soon as possible after milking.

Every farmer should have an ideal farm in his mind's eye and then try to bring his farm up to it.

The wholesomeness of strawberries is not generally understood. Farmers should grow more of them.

"Cob" horses are getting to be quite the rage. Dealers claim that four out of every five buyers are after this class of horse.

Don't try to milk and tell your troubles at the same time. You are apt to pay more attention to the story than you do to the milking.

ANARCHIST APPREHENDED

VENEZUELA HAS INSURRECTION WITHIN HER BORDERS.

CHICAGO ELECTION RETURNS FALSIFIED

The Delaware Indians Object—Post-office Regulations—The Schley Inquiry—Pan-American Congress—Cuban Sugar Tariff.

NIPPED IN THE BUD.

An anarchist named Gallioti was under arrest in Switzerland by order of the prosecutor general, on information received from Patterson, N. J. Many documents were found at his lodgings. He was formerly connected with the anarchists in Patterson, and is well known among them. He was employed as a weaver in the Paterson silk mill in that city. It was stated by a member of the group that Gallioti sailed with Bresci, Lanti and Quartirolo when they departed on their mission of assassination. Gallioti had been selected by the anarchists to slay Nicholas, Czar of Russia, and had accepted the mission. He was known as a determined man and one who would be likely to take desperate chances to accomplish the purpose.

UNDER THE WHEELS.

A. W. Hill, a well known railroad man, of Columbus, Ga., was fatally injured Saturday at that place. He was sitting on top of a box car, which was being pushed by an engine, when the engineer brought the train to a sudden stop to save the life of a negro coupler, who had slipped and was in a perilous position between the engine and the car. He saved the negro's life but the sudden slowing threw Hill to the middle of the track. His skull was fractured and the car passed over him, almost severing his legs. When the engine was stopped his mangled body was under the pilot of the locomotive. He died after several hours of intense agony. He leaves a wife and several children.

CIVIL WAR.

Venezuela is on the eve of a revolution. Not only is the republic approaching a state of war, but serious complications will, in all probability arise between the governments of Venezuela and Colombia. President Castro, while facing the uprising against his own authority, is accused of furthering secretly the revolution against the Colombian government. Arms, ammunition, etc., have been smuggled into Venezuela, the minister of war has resigned after refusing to accept the orders of the president to recognize the revolutionists in Colombia as belligerants, and to deliver a passport to Senor Rico, the Colombian minister, and the soldiers of the republic have been defeated by the rebels.

INDICTED FOR FRAUD.

Indictments against twenty-five judges and clerks of elections in Chicago for making false canvass and returns of the votes cast last fall by commissioner have been returned by the grand jury. Gross fraud is suspected in certain sections of the city.

SPORT SUICIDES.

Warren Lewis, a well-known sporting man of New York, jumped from the steamer Rhode Island on her trip from New York to Providence Saturday night and was drowned. Lewis was one of the most widely known sporting men in America.

INSANE MURDERER.

Late Saturday evening Oland W. King and Roger Davenport, two well known young Texans, were shot and killed by William Rothwell. Rothwell, it is said, has been suffering from mental derangements for several weeks but his condition has never been regarded as serious. Late today he walked into a furniture store where King worked armed with a Winchester, and without a word of warning shot the young man dead. Rothwell then encountered Davenport and killed him in the street. Rothwell was arrested.

SEVEN THOUSAND CHICKENS

Were received Friday by the Italian strikers in Tampa. The manufacturers of the city declare that they will move their factories if they are not protected in their business.

CARLISLE D. Graham who recently went through the Niagara whirlpool in his barrel, and who claims to have gone over the falls in it in 18[illegible] is making arrangements to repeat the other feat.

an abundance of shade. The other ha was placed in a comfortable stable pro vided with screen doors and windows.
The lot in the paddock were in the open constantly fighting flies while the others in the stable were suffering no annoyance. Comparing the result from the standpoint of milk and butter, it was shown that the cows protected from flies produced twenty per cent more butter than those in the open lot.

In several tests made on an Iowa dairy farm it was found practicable to keep the cows in a dark stable and discard screens. The cows thus stabled were quite as free from flies and gave more milk than those left out of doors. The cows were allowed to run in the pasture during the night and early morning and required but little supplementary feed.

It is not impracticable to use screens in a stable, the most bothersome flies can be kept out by the use of a good repellent on the skin. A number of these are on the market and many of them will last two or three days after applying. As a rule one application a week are sufficient.
The compound, whatever it may be,
should be rubbed on the flanks, legs,
neck and about the base of the horns or any part where flies are most annoying. This should not be neglected. Of course, with large herds of fattening cattle the application of a comp and of character is rather difficult but most of them can be put on with a small spray pump. If the cattle are driven slowly through a narrow passage the entire herd can be sprayed in a very short time.
Horses, work horses and any stock in the stable can be easily treated.
Farm and Agriculturist.

PREVENTING ANIMAL DISEASES.

Spring and winter diseases of animals as well as of human beings can be prevented in many cases by a judicious application of sanitary and hygienic knowledge. Some children in a family sickly and unprosper feeding on food containing all the blood heating foods cooped out in hot weather and confined in close, dirty sheds down in the cellars. Likewise feed the cows a heavy grain diet and deny them the water, pitchfork gives and room, the summer ailments will have but level chance. Allow them to show itself in the form of its other trouble. Keep your poultry in a building well ventilated, free from cooling shed, the hot summer days and we cannot expect them to escape from disease, which may spread from one to another and ruin half the value of the flock. If the poultry is kept in unsanitary quarters, summer or winter they will be infested by lice, ticks and other parasites, which will keep down their weight and prevent good egg laying.

A large proportion of animal diseases come from trivial and simple causes. A little neglect and carelessness in hot weather may cost the whole trouble.
The diseases can be prevented largely by keeping the animals in clean, cool places day and night throughout the summer feeding them with cooling and nourishing foods, watering them with clean, fresh water regularly, cleaning their skin and hair if necessary very often if filth and dirt accumulate there, and above all, by catering to their comfort so far as possible every day. If in spite of all these precautions diseases do appear in the flock it is better to make a change immediately. Single out the two or three that show the first signs of any disorder and put them off by themselves. Change the quarters of the rest of the flock and watch carefully for any signs of disease among them. The animals that show the first symptoms can then be treated separately according to some home method, or by one who has made a specialty of such matters.
Very often a dose of some simple medicine to clean the blood and stimulate the digestive organs will put the animals back into their normal condition. The symptoms and course of such complaints should be watched closely. Contagion in this way may be checked at the outset.
It is not safe to leave with the flock any animal that shows signs of weakness, dumpishness or sickness. Separate the animal immediately, even though it prove nothing but common stomach trouble or a slight fever. It is always best to keep on the safe side.—*E. P.
Smith in American Cultivator.*

SHORT AND USEFUL POINTERS.

A hard milking cow cannot be called first class.

Use judgment in driving your horse
these hot days.

The fat and sleek cow is not always a good dairy animal.

Test your cows and find out which ones "pay their board."

Sudden changes in feed will cause the milk supply to shrink.

The work of cleaning the dairy utensils should never be done slovenly.

Always have a sufficient variety of food to keep the hens in good appetite.

When milk is churned at too high a temperature the butter will be greasy.

If your cow has a swollen teat, equal parts of lard and glycerine will help it.

There will be little complaint of the odor of the milk if it is kept perfectly clean.

You are always careful how you handle the eggs, well, handle the fruit the same way.

In a great many sections cow peas are being known under a new name—soil renovators.

Get the milk from the barn to a cool,
well ventilated place as soon as possible
after milking.

Every farmer should have an ideal farm in his mind's eye and then try to bring his farm up to it.

The wholesomeness of strawberries is not generally understood. Farmers should grow more of them.

"Cob" horses are getting to be quite the rage. Dealers claim that four of every five buyers are after this class of horse.

Don't try to milk and tell yarns at the same time. You are apt to pay more attention to the story than you are to the milking.

ANARCH'ST APPREHENDED

VENEZUELA HAS INSURRECTION WITHIN HER BORDERS.

CHICAGO ELECTION RETURNS FALSIFIED

The Delaware Indians Object—Post-office Regulations—The Schley Inquiry—Pan-American Congress—Cuban Sugar Tariff.

SHOT IN THE BUD.

An scare at Ramed Galliotti is under arrest at Newark and by order of the acting attorney general, on information received from Patterson, N. J. Many documents were found at his lodgings. He was formerly connected with the anarchists in Patterson, and is well known among them. He was employed as a weaver in the Paragon silk mills in that city. It was stated by a member of the group that Galliotti had been selected by the anarchists to kill Nicholas, Czar of Russia, and had accepted the mission. He was described as a determined man, and one will be likely to take desperate chances to accomplish this purpose.

UNDER THE WHEELS.

A. A. Hill, a well known railroad man of Columbus, Ga., was fearfully injured Saturday at Montgomery. He was sitting on top of a box car which was being pushed by an engine, when the engineer brought the train to a sudden stop to save the life of a negro coupler, who had slipped and was in a perilous position between the engine and the car. He saved the negro's life but the sudden slowing throw Hill to the middle of the track. His skull was fractured and the car passed over him, almost severing his legs. When the engine was stopped his mangled body was under the pilot of the locomotive. He died after several hours of intense agony. He leaves a wife and several children.

CIVIL WAR.

Venezuela is on the eve of a revolution. Not only is the republic approaching a state of war, but serious complications will, in all probability, arise between the governments of Venezuela and Colombia. President Castro, while facing the uprising against his own authority, is accused of fattening secretly the revolution against the Colombian government. Arms ammunition, etc., have been smuggled into Venezuela, the minister of war has resigned after refusing to accept the orders of the president to recognize the revolutionists in Colombia as belligerants, and to deliver a passport to Senor Rico, the Colombian minister, and the soldiers of the republic have been defeated by the rebels.

INDICTED FOR FRAUD.

Indictments against twenty-five judges and clerks of elections in Chicago for making false canvass and returns of the votes cast last fall for commissioner have been returned by the grand jury. Gross fraud is suspected in certain sections of the city.

SPORT SUICIDES.

Warren Lewis, a well-known sporting man of New York, jumped from the steamer Rhode Island on her trip from New York to Providence Saturday night and was drowned. Lewis was one of the most widely known sporting men in America.

INSANE MURDERER.

Late Saturday evening Oland W. King and Roger Davenport, two well known young Texans, were shot and killed by William Rothwell. Rothwell, it is said, has been suffering from mental derangements for several weeks but his condition has never been regarded as serious. Late today he walked into a furniture store where King worked armed with a Winchester, and without a word of warning shot the young man dead. Rothwell then entered Davenport and killed him in the street. Rothwell was arrested.

SEVEN THOUSAND CHICKENS

Were received Friday by the Reliance strikers in Tampa. The manufacturers of the city declare they will move their factories if they are not protected in their business.

ARLISLE D. Graham who recently went through the Niagara whirlpool in his barrel, and who claims to have gone over the falls in it in 1889, is making arrangements to repeat the perilous feat.

DIFFICULT TO GAG THE PRESS.

The fight between the British war office and the London Daily Mail has has terminated in a victory for the paper. The war office had cut off the Mail's South African casualty lists and other official news, and also ordered news agencies not to supply it with any official information. Thereupon the Daily Mail sued the news agencies under its contracts to compel them to deliver the news. The war office then held back bulletins until near the hour for morning papers to go to press. This raised a storm of protest from the provincial papers and the war office capitulated and called off the boycott.

THE TERRIBLE UNDERTOW.

A party of prominent people from St. Augustine, Fla., was in bathing at South Beach Saturday afternoon. Five of them were caught in the undertow beyond the breakers. By the assistance of a number of people in the surf and on the beach four were rescued, some of them exhausted and unconscious. J. W. Adams was drowned. The party of five were in a group when the undertow took them off their feet. A life line was taken out by an expert swimmer who managed to get it to all. When the strain was put on it the line broke and the party was again taken farther out to sea.

CAVED IN.

A large portion of the natural tunnel in Scott county, Tenn., through which passes the Virginia and Southwestern road has fallen in. A rock broke loose from overhead covering the railroad tracks. The big stone was 150 feet in length, twenty feet in width and eight feet through. A temporary track has been laid around the great stone and trains are again passing through the tunnel. The rock is being blasted. Thousands of people annually visit this tunnel as a curiosity.

HER MAIDEN TRIP.

The biggest ship in the world, the Celtic, of the White Star Line, reached her dock at New York Sunday on her maiden voyage. Her time from Liverpool was 8 days and 46 minutes. Her steerage deck is higher than the entrance to the pier and after she was warped in, the iron doors aft the cabin had to be opened to land the passengers. Three hundred and forty-five cabin and 268 steerage passengers came over on the Celtic. She is capable of covering 16 1-2 knots per hour.

ACTRESS MAY DIE.

Mrs. Millie Lighthawk, an actress known as Millie Allen, was shot and fatally wounded Sunday, in Omaha, Neb., at a Capitol avenue boarding house by Thad Brookie, who then shot himself dead. Brookie had been much in love with Mrs. Lighthawk, who had refused to accept his attentions. He is said to have threatened the woman with death, and today when he was ejected from the house he returned and tried to make good his threat.

HAD ON SKIRTS.

A W. Miller, Sandusky's absconding city clerk, was seen last Saturday disguised as a woman. He was recognized near his former residence by Henry Bamming, and an attempt was made to arrest him, but he escaped. His wife is in New York, and when lights were seen about the residence neighbors became interested. Miller was last heard from in Tennessee. He is alleged to have embezzled $100,000 and has been missing for months.

KILLED THE CHIEF.

Chief of Police Jones of Charlotte, N. C., was shot and instantly killed by Jim Lowry, a negro, Sunday morning. Jones, with a warrant charging Lowry with selling whiskey without a license, went to serve it. Lowry ran, firing at Jones, the bullet taking effect in the left lung. Jones followed and caught him as he struck a lamppost. In the scuffle Lowry fired again, the bullet going through Jones' heart. Four blood hounds were put on his trail. The negro has killed one of them but is still being pursued.

CLAIMS SELF-DEFENSE.

Charles Price and James Radney brothers-in-law, who lived near Wrightsville, Ga., became engaged in a difficulty Saturday in which Price was killed. Radney claims he acted in self-defense.

CAPTAIN Hobson balked when the girls tried to kiss him at Madison, Wis. Then the girls pouted and wanted to know what he came there for anyhow.

All the Country A-Golfing.

Golf promises to hold its sway. A game that is centuries old—the ancient national game of Scotland, but now played in every quarter of the globe—it first attracted wide attention in the United States some four years ago, but now the golf ball is driven over links in every state of the Union. Golfers estimate that some half-million Americans will play golf this year, for there are hundreds of clubs, of large membership, connected with the United States Golf association, besides other clubs inhumerable.

Clothed in Brief Authority.

There is a law in Austria which makes it a very serious offense to insult a public official. Public officials include all railway employes, from traffic director to porters, policemen, tramway drivers, and conductors and municipal street cleaners.

Ginseng has been an important article of export from the United States since 1718.

Free Blood Cure.

Botanic Blood Balm (B. B. B.) cures blood and skin humors like ulcers, eating sores, eczema, itching skin, aching bones and joints, boils, scrofula, blood poison, cancer, etc. B. B. B. cures all malignant blood troubles, old deep-seated cases, heals every sore, makes the blood pure and rich. Druggists, $1.00. Treatment free and prepaid by describing your trouble and writing Dr. Gullam, 12 Mitchell St., Atlanta, Ga.

Kaffirs own nine-tenths of the 12,000,000 acres of Natal, South Africa.

The refining of sugar was invented in Antwerp in the sixteenth century.

See advt. of SMITHDEAL'S BUSINESS COLLEGE

New York City has 60,000 telephone stations.

The world's consumption of sugar has doubled within the last fifteen years.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa

The population of Ireland now is about half of what it was in 1841.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle

The author's train of thought is a construction train.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'BRIEN, 322 Third Avenue, N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

Western Australia has never attempted to number its aborigines.

A Royal Entomologist.

Among illustrious personages with queer fads must be numbered Prince Luitpold of Bavaria. His collection of beetles is the most extensive and complete in the world, and the prince is a skilled entomologist, deeply versed in the habits of ants, bees, moths, flies, earwigs and the insect world generally.

Japanese Students Shortsighted.

Shortsightedness among Japanese students is alarmingly on the increase. The latest investigations show that out of 1,786 university students in Tokio more than half are myopic.

Best For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

On all the Chinese stamps is a dragon, the national emblem of royalty.

All goods are alike to PUTNAM FADELESS DYES, as they color all fibers at one boiling. Sold by all druggists.

Of the 3000 bicycles used in Bangkok, Siam, about four-fifths were made in the United States.

A horse eats nine times its weight in food in a year, a sheep six times.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Recent observations seem to indicate that the incubation period of malaria is about eighteen days.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder for the feet. It makes tight or new shoes easy. Cures swollen, hot, sweating, aching feet, ingrowing nails, corns and bunions. At all druggists and shoe stores, 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

The best ginseng comes from Pennsylvania, New York, Minnesota and Canada.

WINCHESTER
"LEADER" and "REPEATER"
SMOKELESS POWDER SHOTGUN SHELLS
are used by the best shots in the country because they are so accurate, uniform and reliable. All the world's championships and records have been won and made by Winchester shells. Shoot them and you'll shoot well.
USED BY THE BEST SHOTS, SOLD EVERYWHERE

"The Largest Store South of the Ohio."

LOVEMAN, JOSEPH & LOEB

"The Largest Store South of the Ohio"

BIRMINGHAM ALABAMA

Mr. Loveman has purchased about $50,000 worth of Furniture at about 25 per cent. less than usual wholesale price. By taking a smaller profit than usual it will be sold to you at about a third less than the regular retail price. Everything that concerns furnishing the home is here, from parlor furniture to kitchen furniture; all the better and best qualities in bedroom, diningroom and library furniture.

It is probable, in this August sale, that we will ship goods to no less than 200 Southern cities, judging by the present interest indicated by out-of-town shoppers who have seen the small prices advertised in the Birmingham papers which circulate outside of Birmingham and Alabama.

We are prepared to make special prices to out-of-town shoppers regarding shipments, &c., and in a great many instances are prepared to ship goods FREE. There are 500 different things here marked at revised prices. It is therefore, quite impossible to enumerate but a small part of the things in this August sale. We, however, print two or three items which indicate how much we can save you. The other things in the store are as proportionately cheap as these:

We have bed room suits from $13.95 up to $500.75.

Dining room tables from $1.19 up to $175.00.

Chairs from 75 cents up to $60.00 and so on all through the stock.

The assortment is very great and you save on the higher price furniture just as much in proportion as you do on the cheaper furniture.

This suit delivered free to any city in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and Florida.

Here is a solid oak bed room suit with beveled plate mirror 20x24 inches. It has three pieces. The dresser has three deep drawers with brass handles and is well finished. The wash stand is extra large and besides the drawers has a cupboard below. The bed is full 4 feet 6 inches wide and 6 feet high, it is prettily ornamented by carved work which gives it the resemblance of much higher priced suits. This suit is sold in large cities for $16.00, and in small Southern towns $20.00 is usually asked for it—We will ship it FREE. Price $13.95.

Here is a golden maple finished rocker—well braced throughout, extra large size and handsomely embossed, back has five spindles and the seat is new styleshaped effect. This chair sells in large cities at $1.75; in most of the small Southern towns the price is $2.00. In August Furniture Sale the price is $1.19.

Here is a three piece imitation Mahogany parlor suit with ornamented back. This suit is handsomely carved and upholstered in a good quality of silk damask. This suit sells usually in large cities for $25.00; in the smaller towns $27.00, $28.00 and $30.00 will be asked you. In the August Furniture Sale it will be sent free to you for $17.95.

Here are some iron beds in green and white looking quite pretty: they are 54 inches high and 3 feet 6 inches wide, they have a high brass rod on the head and foot board after the style of the higher priced iron beds, a heavy angle iron to both head and foot board. In the larger cities $7.00 is the price of these beds, in the smaller cities in the South you will be asked to pay $8 and $9. In the August sale only $4.45.

A 14c Catalog of Style Sent Free.

We are now having printed a handsome illustrated catalog showing all Fall styles. This catalog costs us 14c to mail to you, but if you will write and say in which paper you saw this advertisement we will send it to you for nothing. This catalog tells all about the new Fall styles, what will be worn and what they will cost.

Other Free Offers.

Mr. Loeb has gone to New York to purchase some beautiful Silks and Dress Goods. Send us your name and we will send you FREE, samples. State whether you want sample of medium grades or the finest ones.

FREE—A new magazine, the only first-class magazine published in the South, will be mailed you free on request—regular price 10c. Address Loveman, Joseph & Loeb, Birmingham, Ala.

Coughing

"I was given up to die with quick consumption. I then began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I improved at once, and am now in perfect health."—Chas. E. Hartman, Gibbstown, N. Y.

It's too risky, playing with your cough.

The first thing you know it will be down deep in your lungs and the play will be over. Begin early with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and stop the cough.

Three sizes: 25c., 50c., $1. All druggists.

Consult your doctor. If he says take it, then do as he says. If he tells you not to take it, then don't take it. He knows. Leave it with him. We are willing.
J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

A Bad Breath

A bad breath means a bad stomach, a bad digestion, a bad liver. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache.

25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers
50 CTS. OF DRUGGISTS OR R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H.

Smithdeals

Is the oldest and only business college in Va. owning its building—a grand new one. No vacations. Ladies & gentlemen. Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Typewriting, Penmanship, Telegraphy, &c. "Leading business college south of the Potomac river."—Phila. Stenographer. Address,
G. M. Smithdeal, President, Richmond, Va.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

HORNER MILITARY SCHOOL,
OXFORD, N. C.
The best disciplined School and the most thoroughly taught School in Guaranteed.
Actual Results are the best Arguments.
For Catalogue address
Founded 1851.) J. C. HORNER.

HAVE YOU CHOSEN A PROFESSION?

The HOMOEOPATHIC MEDICAL COLLEGE of the UNIVERSITY of MICHIGAN offers unrivaled privileges for thorough education.
Men and women admitted on equal terms.
Write for special announcement.
R. R. COPELAND, M. D., Ann Arbor, Mich.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER
CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE
SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE.
ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E. 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

Now is the Time
You Need a Good Liver Medicine.
LIVERINA
Acts directly on the Liver. Relieving Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache and that Languid Feeling Peculiar to this Season of the Year.
Try it. 50c a Bottle at All Retailers.
GAY, HARDIE & DURR,
Proprietors, Montgomery, Ala.

"The Sauce that made West Point famous."
McILHENNY'S TABASCO.
Am. N. U., No. 32. 1901.

USE CERTAIN COUGH CHILL CORN CURE.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 CTS. CONSUMPTION

SKIN TORTURES

And every Distressing Irritation of the Skin and Scalp Instantly Relieved by a Bath with

Cuticura SOAP

And a single anointing with CUTICURA, the great skin cure and purest of emollients. This treatment, when followed in severe cases by mild doses of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, to cool and cleanse the blood, is the most speedy, permanent, and economical cure for torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, bleeding, scaly, crusted, and pimply skin and scalp humours with loss of hair ever compounded.

Millions of Women

USE CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women and mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. It unites in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humour, Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT, to instantly allay Itching, Inflammation, and Irritation, and soothe and heal; and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly skin, scalp, and blood humours, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. British Depot: F. NEWBERY & SONS, 27 and 28, Charterhouse Sq., London, E. C. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

Cuticura THE SET

For Bargains

—GO TO—

W. M. WILSON & BRO,

Closing out all Millinery and Ladies' Shirt Waists for less than cost.

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON.

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : ALA.

THIS COMPLETE
SHAVING OUTFIT
FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

1 English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to shave.....75c
1 9/8 in Hair Brush.....55c
1 Shaving Brush.....10c
1 7 in Barber Comb.....10c
1 Rubber Fine " 10c
1 4 in Pocket comb in case.....10c
1 Bar good Shaving soap.....10c
1 2 1/4 x 3 Mirror.....10c
1 2 7/8 in Razor Strop.....50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

OF COURSE WE WILL.

One of the greatest journalistic treats ever afforded readers of an Alabama newspaper is in store for the many readers of the Montgomery Advertiser before and during the Constitutional Convention. Arrangements will be made for handling news during this event on a larger scale than ever before attempted by any newspaper in the South. The Advertiser will present the most complete report of each day's proceedings possible to obtain, giving, in fact, almost every detail in the way of speeches verbatim, committee reports in full, roll call of votes on all questions, and the many general topics of interest throughout the fifty days the session is expected to last, beginning May 21st. This will undoubtedly be an achievement in journalism second to none in the country and certainly an enterprise worthy of patronage by the citizens throughout the State everywhere. We would advise interested readers to get your names on the list in time to begin at the opening. Leave your orders at the Banner office, where they will be forwarded promptly and proper attention given. The Advertiser by mail, Daily and Sunday, at the rate of 65 cents per month.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

The BANNER office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us trial

They banish pain and prolong life. ONE GIVES RELIEF.

R·I·P·A·N·S

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES.

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	$1.50
Nashville American	1.50
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald	$1.50
Home and Farm	$1.10
Southern Farmer	$1.50

WOMAN'S RELIEF

A really healthy woman has little pain or discomfort at the menstrual period. No woman needs to have any. Wine of Cardui will quickly relieve those smarting menstrual pains and the dragging head, back and side aches caused by falling of the womb and irregular menses.

WINE OF CARDUI

has brought permanent relief to 1,000,000 women who suffered every month. It makes the menstrual organs strong and healthy. It is the provision made by Nature to give women relief from the terrible aches and pains which blight so many homes.

GREENWOOD, LA., Oct. 14, 1900.
I have been very sick for some time. I was taken with a severe pain in my side and could not get any relief until I tried a bottle of Wine of Cardui. Before I had taken all of it I was relieved. I feel it my duty to say that you have a wonderful medicine.
MRS. M. A. YOUNT.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP
W. H. TAYLOR, Proprietor.
HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING
In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.
HOT AND COLD BATHS.
CLANTON

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the BANNER.

THE
VITAE ORE
PREPARATIONS
are on sale by
Campbelle Drug co., clanton.
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A. Ayers, clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kinchenor
J. B. Downs, clanton.
N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

Why try to stick things with something that doesn't stick? Buy MAJOR'S CEMENT; you know it sticks. Nothing breaks away from it. Stick to MAJOR'S CEMENT. Buy once, you will buy forever. There is nothing as good; don't believe the substitutes.

MAJOR'S RUBBER and MAJOR'S LEATHER. Two separate cements—the best. Insist on having them. ESTABLISHED 1876. 15 and 25 cents per bottle at all dealers.
MAJOR CEMENT CO., NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST WAY TO THE SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST, NORTH AND NORTH-WEST,
—IS VIA THE—

L. & N.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.

The Through Cars
of this line pass Cairo daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans.
Connecting with all points in TEXAS AND THE WEST.
Also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.
Connecting for all points in the NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.
Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or P. Aymore, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

E. W. Grove

This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

THE NULITE.

750 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS

Produce the finest artificial light in the world. Superior to electricity or gas. Cheaper than kerosene oil. A 20th Century Revolution in the Art of Lighting.

They darkness into daylight turn,
And aw instead of money burn.

No Smoke. No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely Safe. They are Portable. Hang or stand them anywhere. We also manufacture Table Lamps, Wall Lamps, Pendants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, Etc. The best and only really successful Incandescent Vapor Gas Lamps made. They sell at sight. Each burner 100 candle power. Nothing like them. Good Agts Wanted. Write for catalogue and prices.

Chicago Solar Light Co. 81 Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER office

AT REDUCED PRICES.

Subscribe for The Banner. $1.00 a year.

A Study in Poker.

One journalist who is an expert in practical psychology walked a couple of squares with a member of the cabinet trying to elicit an expression of opinion on a certain matter of moment. The secretary's lips were as firmly closed as the shells of a Hingham quohaug at low water so far as the desired "last word" was concerned or even a hint of the situation. He was not so completely self-contained, however, that his actions and manner were inscrutable. The reporter hazarded a guess founded on his impressions and wired the result to his paper. The next day the secretary met him and said:

"How did you get that information, Mr. ——?"

"From you, sir," said the reporter, smiling.

"From me, sir?" said the secretary. "I never said a word."

"That is so," replied the correspondent, "but you acted it."

"Well, you were wrong in some things, anyhow. Still, I think I'll have to take a course of congressional poker playing until I can disguise my thoughts."

"Such people are the easiest of all to read."

"And how do you do it?"

"Why, you read their hands by reversing their expression. The man who seems to bet on an ace full, probably holds a bobtail flush, and the disconsolate surveyor of a probable bobtail flush is likely laying for you with the ace full, and there you are. There is always some way to figure it out."—National Magazine.

Dollars in Odd Shapes.

Either the law a silver dollar may be a grain and a half over weight or a grain and a half under weight, and this "limit of tolerance" applies to all of our silver coins. In other words, they are not allowed to vary more than that much from standard. In the case of goldpieces, the limit is half a grain either way up to the eagle, a variation of as much as one grain being permissible in the $10 and $20 pieces.

Whenever a fresh batch of dollars is turned out at the mint, samples are forwarded to the treasury at Washington, where they are put through a very curious process. Each dollar is first weighed on exquisitely delicate scales to make sure that it is heavy enough and yet not too heavy. Then it is passed between two steel rollers again and again until it is flattened out and transformed into a thin strip of silver—a sort of ribbon—a foot and a half in length. Then it is put beneath a little machine provided with several small punches, by which hundreds of tiny disks are punched out of the metal strip.

Now, the object of this performance is to obtain samples of metal from all parts of the dollar, inasmuch as it is conceivable that one portion might be richer in silver than another. The little disks are shuffled together, and a few of them, taken at random from the lot, are subjected to an assay. Thus the fineness of the material of the dollar is ascertained with absolute accuracy and, the weight having been already determined, the value and correctness of that coin are perfectly known.

The sample pieces having been found correct, it is inferred that the entire batch of dollars is all right.—Saturday Evening Post.

Natural Waters.

All natural waters contain a greater or less amount of mineral matter in solution. Rain water has the smallest percentage of solid impurities of any, and therefore it is taken as the standard variety of soft water.

The terms soft and hard, however, as applied to water are scientifically considered purely relative.

Water is usually reckoned to be "soft" when it contains less than one five-thousandth part of its weight of mineral ingredients and "hard" when it contains more than one four-thousandth.

Soft water has the property of easily forming a lather with soap and is therefore suitable for washing purposes, while hard water will only form a lather, and that imperfectly, with considerable difficulty.

A mineral water has more than one two-thousandth of its weight of natural dissolved solids, and a medicinal water is a variety of mineral water containing a varying percentage of dissolved natural solid or gaseous drugs.

Buttered Side Up.

One of the stories which Levi Hutchins, the old time clockmaker of Concord, N. H., delighted to tell related to the youth of Daniel Webster.

"One day," said the old man, "while I was taking breakfast at the tavern kept by Daniel's father, Daniel and his brother Ezekiel, who were little boys with dirty faces and snarly hair, came to the table and asked me for bread and butter.

"I complied with their request, little thinking that they would become very distinguished men. Daniel dropped his piece of bread on the sandy floor, and the buttered side of course was down. He looked at it a moment, then picked it up and showed it to me, saying:

"'What a pity! Please give me a piece of bread buttered on both sides; then if I let it fall one of the buttered sides will be up.'"

Evolution of the Apple.

Apples are new in the economy of the world's use and taste. At the beginning of the last century few varieties were known, and we can go back in history to a time when all apples were little, sour and puckery—crab apples and nothing else. The crab apple was and is in its wildness nothing but a rosebush. Away back in time the wild rose, with its pretty blossoms that turn to little red balls, apple favored, and the thorny crab had the same grandmother.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

(continued from 3d col. page 1)

put an end to the frauds so often perpetrated.

Mr. President, I have seen the State of Alabama itself, in a moment of excitement, refuse to go into the justice of a case, but on a mere technical—a doubtful one at that—deny to a citizen the right to choose its representative. I have seen in this high and honorable body to-day a man who was not guilty, and this before the face of proof so glaring, and yet not to the honor of his constituents, he was excluded from the hallowed halls of the people's representatives. He was no gentleman, but he was the victim of the party and political preferment made him do that which they knew to be wrong. And I would respectfully add that a member of that party is now the honored Governor of this State.

Oh, we must not expect perfection this side the grave. The pity, 'tis, 'tis true. We, in opposition, are not demanding perfection. We do demand that the power of the kings be curtailed. We prefer a limited to an absolute monarchy.

As to the grandfather clause, I am not a lawyer and must depend upon the opinion of those versed in the law. Upon one occasion a case was being argued before the distinguished jurist, who has been so highly lauded in this Convention, and it was contended that a certain brief filed in the case did not correctly assert the law. Upon inquiry, the judge was told that the brief was written by Governor Jones, and he immediately replied: "Pretty apt to be right." I have heard, and I do not doubt it, that the Honorable Chief Justice of this State has said that the brief of the distinguished gentleman from Montgomery ever asserted the true principles of the law and the proper application thereof. Knowing his honesty and integrity, I am constrained to take his view of the clause and believe that it is at least of doubtful constitutionality. And in this I am confirmed by the report itself. So believing, under my oath, I will vote against that provision.

What A Tale It Tells

If that mirror of yours shows a wretched, sallow complexion, a jaundiced look, moth patches and blotches on the skin, it's liver trouble; but Dr. King's New Life Pills regulate the liver, purify the blood, give clear skin, rosy cheeks, rich complexion. Only 25c at Clanton drug Co.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S SCHOLARSHIP OFFER

Scholarships and Expenses for Clubs in the Great Daily

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION has offered to every boy or girl in Georgia, who will secure 50 new subscribers to the Daily and Sunday Constitution a scholarship at any educational institution in Georgia and $100.00 toward the student's expenses for the year.

This opens every school and college room door in the State to every ambitious boy or girl who will take advantage of the proposition. The terms are not beyond the reach of one determined to secure an education. This work will be well paid for. One hundred or more scholarships are up. The cash value represented in 100 such scholarships and expenses for one year is approximately $25,000. No one need ask when such ample provision is made.

The enterprise and liberality of THE CONSTITUTION will be commended and vast good will result from the offer. The Constitution will furnish full particulars on application.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. Wheeler's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People everywhere it has been introduced are wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. We send a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. Send 2 stamps for one. Ladies' size 25c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. (See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clear skin, beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic the clean your blood and keep it clean, stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin today to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads and that sickly bilious complexion by using Cascarets.—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take noNo-To-Bac, the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

To Save Her Child

From frightful disfigurement Nannie Galleger, of LaGrange, applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve to great sores on her head and neck, and writes its quick cure saved all her hopes. It works like magic in Sores, Bruises, Skin Eruptions, Cuts, Burns, Scalds, Piles. 25c. Cure guaranteed at John Drug Co.

Oysters cost only 75 cents.

THE BANNER.

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. IX — CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY AUGUST 15, 1901 — NO. 48

Judge of Probate

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION
(continued from 2d col. page 4)

put an end to the frauds in our elections.

Mr. President, I have seen the Senate of Alabama itself, in a contested election, refuse to go into the justice of a case, but on a mere technicality—a doubtful one at that—deny to a people the right to choose its representative, and give a seat in that high and honorable body to one who was not elected, and this too, in the face of proof so glaring and evident that no one has ever had the hardihood to deny the fraud. His or his gentlemen, all, but one for one of the party lash, political preferment, made them do that which they knew to be a wrong. And I would respectfully add that a member of that Senate is now the honored Governor of this State.

Oh, we must not expect perfection this side the grave. "True, pity 'tis, 'tis, true." We in the opposition, are not demanding perfection. We do demand that the power of the kings be curtailed. We prefer a limited to an absolute monarchy.

As to the grandfather clause, I am not a lawyer and must depend upon the opinion of those learned in the law. Upon one occasion, a case was being argued before that distinguished jurist, who has been so highly lauded in this Convention, and it was contended that a certain brief filed in the case did not correctly assert the law. Upon inquiry, the judge was told that the brief was written by Governor Jones, and he immediately replied: "Pretty apt to be right." I have heard, and I do not doubt it, that the Honorable Chief Justice of this State has said that the briefs of the distinguished gentleman from Montgomery ever asserted the true principles of the law and the proper application thereof. Knowing his honesty and integrity, I am constrained to take his view of that clause and believe that it is at least of doubtful constitutionality. And in this I am confirmed by the report itself. So believing, under my oath, I will vote against that provision.

What A Tale It Tells

If that mirror of yours shows a wretched, sallow complexion, a jaundiced look, moth patches and blotches on the skin, it's liver trouble, but Dr. King's New Life Pills regulate the liver, purify the blood, give clear skin, rosy cheeks, rich complexion. Only 25c at Clanton drug Co.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S SCHOLARSHIP OFFER.

Scholarships and Expenses for Clubs to the Great Daily.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION has offered to every boy or girl in Georgia, who will secure 100 new subscribers to the Daily and Sunday Constitution a year's tuition at any educational institution in Georgia and $100.00 toward the student's expenses for the year.

This offer is open to every school and class-room boy or girl in the State. Every ambitious boy or girl who will take advantage of the proposition. The terms are well within the reach of one determined to secure an education. This work will be well paid for. One hundred or more scholarships are up. The cash value represented in 100 such scholarships and expenses for one year is approximately $25,000. No one need lack when such ample provision is made.

The enterprise and liberality of THE CONSTITUTION will be commended and vast good will result from the offer. The Constitution will furnish full particulars on application.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People, everywhere it has been introduced, are wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. Send stamps for one. Ladies' size 50c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. (See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

...EMAN ON THE CORNER

...of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

...late at night, and good people all ... in their beds,
...night), have a delightful time ...
...together they put their heads,
...and say to themselves we'll have some fun.
...make the town shake,
...scared will get and gunpowder,
...you bet
...a mild earthquake.
...start first to off with a bang and a ...
...thought the end of the world had come ...
...those naughty boys, who had planned for more
...a windy afternoon
...and some folks laughed and some folks ...
...when this war did speak:
...these boys we get, we'll spank ...
...shut down for a week."

On the corner recently we have been taking life easy. It is too early to whittle, we are tired of discussing the constitutional convention, we are getting used to seeing new buildings springing up, and besides it is more interesting to stand by and see the brickmasons at work on Dick Edwards' new store than to sit around and whittle and talk. That will come later.

Chilton county has lost two good citizens lately—Rev. Hardy Jones, of Verbena, one of the most amiable Christian gentlemen to be found anywhere, passed to the great beyond, leaving many friends to mourn his departure hence. And Mr. John R. Vinson, of Kincheon, a pioneer in this section, was called home after a long and useful life. Both were useful men, each in his different capacity, exerting a useful influence in their respective communities.

Up in the northern end of the county, at Wessington, there is a boom town. I should think there must be at least fifty or sixty tents. I don't know how many hundred men, grading a new track for the L. & N. Now would be a good time to take the census.

If you have not been to Thorsby you should go now and see it grow. In sight of the depot one can be seen in course of erection the large building of the Thorsby Normal School, three handsome residences and the new hotel, while the music of the hammer resounds again. Thorsby is going ahead and no mistake.

The time of the year when the hammock is in demand, the sweets of forgetfulness are not exactly the best time for boys to score the life out of one fearful explosions. It makes a lot of noise, and it may be a good joke, but when it comes to making the horse rear and turning over the buggy at the imminent risk of breaking your neck, then it is going beyond a joke. And that what happened to Dr. V. O. Chapple last Sunday night when he was returning from a visit to a sick. Quit it, boys before some one are hoisted with your own petard. I would hate to go around to borrow and pick up pieces after you had blown your selves to smithereens.

To Save Her Child

...frightful disfigurement ... Annie Gallegher, of LaGrange, applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve to great sores on her head ... and writes its quick cure saved all her hopes. It works ... in Sores, Bruises, Skin ... Cuts, Burns, Scalds ... 25c. Cure guaranteed ... Clanton Drug Co.

...nners cost only 75 cents.

JUDGE PURIFOY'S REPORT ON TREASURER DAKE'S BOOKS.

To Hon. S. M. Adams, Judge of Probate of Chilton County.

Dear Sir: Under instructions from you, authorized by Section 1433 of the Code, I have made a careful examination of the books and accounts of Hon. Alex G. Dake, County Treasurer of Chilton county, covering the period from August 16th, 1900, the date to which the last previous examination had covered, to and including July 10th, 1901. I checked each stub, showing receipts given by him for money, with the corresponding entry on his books, and compared such entries with receipts of other officers showing payment of money to him, except the tax collector's settlement, which was checked with the assessment book and allowances by the Commissioners' court. I respectfully report that he has charged himself with all money received, as shown by these records.

His vouchers for money paid out were checked with the respective sums credited on his books, and these showed that he had proper vouchers for all sums so credited.

This plan of checking, as to receipts and disbursements, was persued with both the General Fund and the Fine and Forfeiture Fund.

I found all his additions and balances correct. His books show that in following the practice of his predecessors for years past, while his compensation, provided by Section 1435, has been correctly calculated, he has charged the whole of such compensation to the General Fund when it is the evident purpose of the statute that each fund, the Fine and Forfeiture, as well as the General Fund, shall bear its proportionate share.

I find that it has also been the custom of his predecessors, and he has followed their example, to collect commissions from the General Fund of the county, for disbursing money on account of the redemption fund, which by Sections 4095 and 4096 is received and disbursed by the County Treasurer. While the retaining of commissions on account of disbursing this fund is a simple act of justice it is doubtful if such compensation should be charged to the General Fund of the county in the absence of legislation, authorizing it. The error, if such it is, in your county will amount to an insignificant sum, as such annual disbursment is exceedingly small.

With the exceptions noted, Treasurer Dake's books are correct and monuments of neatness.

The following statements show the condition of the several funds on the 10th of July.

GENERAL FUND.

Aug. 16, 1900, Balance on hand	$1720.99
July 10, 1901 Receipts from all sources for period covered	10333.84
Disbursements for period	$10573.32
July 10th, 1901, Balance on hand	1481.51
	$12054.83	$12054.83

FINE AND FORFEITURE FUND.

Aug. 16, 1900. To cash on hand	$267.13
To cash received to July 10, 1901	510.78
By total disbursements from Aug. 16, 1900 to July 10, 1901	$616.35
By cash to balance	161.56
	$777.91	$777.91

RECAPITULATION.

To bal. on hand General Fund	$1481.51
To balance on hand Fine and Forfeiture Fund	161.56
To bal. on hand Redemption Fund	37.09
Total cash on hand	$1680.16

Treasurer Dake showed a statement from the First National Bank at Birmingham, received from said bank while the examination was in progress, showing that he had on deposit a balance, which added to the cash on hand equalled the above balance.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN PURIFOY,
Special Examiner.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this the 8th day of August, 1901. W. B. DAVIDSON, N. P.

The Best Prescription for Malaria

Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price 50c.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25

East Chilton.

Yes, another good rain yesterday; crops are good. We are yet having a great deal of sickness, E. L. Manning was expected to die Sunday, but is now improving.

D. Kendrick visited relatives at Bethel Friday.

J. J. Mims and family of Swift Creek visited his brother here Saturday.

Misses Josie and Mary Jane Driver of Betnal spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives here.

Messrs J. N. and W. A. Coss visited friends at Bethel Sunday.

Our gin and mill problem seems to be dead.

Ha! It's a fine boy at E. A. Norris' this time.

Some of our people seem to be uneasy about the new constitution. It is not bothering me, but I wish the "Pops" could exalt Mr. Reynolds. The "Pops" would't indorse it if it read word for word like the present one just for the fact that it is a Democratic move.

SUBOS.

Bicyclists, base ball and foot ball teams will find Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic the very thing they "need in their business" when the race is ended and the game is finished. For Sore muscles, Bruises, Sprains, etc., it is O. K., and "don't you forget it." Clean and pleasant as perfume and costs only 50c.

MARRIED

At the residence of Mr. G. W. Maddox, on August 4, Mr. R. C. Collins and Miss Dora Maddox, Rev. L. B. Pounds performing the ceremony. We join the many friends of the happy young couple in best wishes for their future welfare.

August 8, at the residence of Rev. W. A. Crim, Mr. John Horton and Miss Delpha Holdridge were happily united, Rev. W. A. Crim officiating. May their united lives be full of happiness.

DIED

JOHN R. VINSON.

Mr. John R. Vinson died at his home at Kincheon, after a few days sickness, on Thursday, August 8, and was buried at Chestnut Creek on Friday. Mr. Vinson was highly thought of by all who were personally acquainted with him. He served all through the war between the States, making a good record. For over thirty years he was a good and consistent member of the Baptist church. He was about sixty-two years of age, and a widow and three grown children mourn his loss.

J. C. MIMS.

On Thursday, August 8, Mr. J. C. Mims died at his home near Kincheon, of blood poisoning. He had been skinning a goat and cut his fingers; blood poison set in and he passed away, leaving a widow and three children to grieve at the loss of a fond husband and father. He was about thirty-two years old, and was a son-in-law of Tax Assessor Mims. The funeral took place at Pleasant Grove on Friday.

The little two-year girl of Mr. W. P. Headley died on Monday night at his home, four miles west of Clanton, and was laid to rest at Pleasant Grove on Tuesday.

At Mulberry on Tuesday, Mr. John W. Mims lost his seven-year old daughter, and the mortal remains of the sweet child were interred at New Salem the same day.

Any druggist, will sell you a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for 50c. and tell you what it is good for free of charge. Try it.

Good examples are the best sermons.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.
THORSBY, ALA.

CONFEDERATE REUNION.

Camp Jno. W. A. Sanford, Confederate Veterans, will hold their regular meeting on Saturday afternoon next, August 17, at the University School. There will be an address made. The public are cordially invited.

Verbena.

Miss Lenora Gilmer gave her young friends a delightful entertainment here recently. It was greatly enjoyed by all those that attended. Misses Mary and Mattie Moody assisted her in entertaining her young friends with splendid vocal and instrumental music. Verbena has some fine musical talent.

F. B. Baldwin Esq., has returned from a business trip to the capital city.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People, everywhere it has been introduced, are wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. Send stamps for one. Ladies' size 50c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. (See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

Probate Notice.

The State of Alabama, }
Chilton County }
In the Probate Court of said County.

In the matter of the petition to probate the last will and testament of James Franklin Welch, deceased, late of said County:

To Darius S. Welch at Bloomingrove, Texas, Vanoy B. Welch, at Meridian, Mississippi, John Welch, who is an infant under the age of 14 years, residing with his mother, Annie Welch, at Meridian, Mississippi; and to all other the heirs at law of the said James Franklin Welch, deceased, who reside out of the State of Alabama,

Take notice that on this day Oscar S. Welch, executor, filed in said Court an instrument purporting to be the Last Will and Testament of said James Franklin Welch, deceased, which is dated October 14, 1899, and is attested by W. H. Burns and J. L. Cox; and also filed this day in said Court their petition in writing praying the said Court to admit said instrument to probate and record thereto, and for the last Will and Testament of the said James Franklin Welch, deceased and that the said Probate Court has appointed Sept. 10th, 1901, as the day for the hearing of said petition, at which time you may appear and contest the same if you so desire.

Given under my hand, on this the 26th day of July, A. D., 1901.

SAMUEL M. ADAMS,
Judge of Probate.

Commissioner's Sale.

In pursuance and in accordance with the terms and directions of a Commission issued and directed to the undersigned by the Hon. S. M. Adams, Judge of Probate of Chilton county, bearing date of July 22nd, 1901, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder for cash, at public auction, in front of the Court House door of said county, at Clanton, on the following described land to-wit: The northwest quarter of the southwest quarter, section 29, township 21, range 5, in Chilton county, Alabama, which said land is to be sold under the decree of the Probate Court of said county for the purpose of a division among the several owners thereof, who are the heirs at law of Edward Mims, deceased.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER the 10, 1901

A. C. SMITH, Commissioner.

What A Tale It Tells.

If that mirror of yours shows a wretched, sallow complexion, a jaundiced look, moth patches and blotches on the skin, it's liver trouble, but Dr. King's New Life Pills regulate the liver, purify the blood, give clear skin, rosy cheeks, rich complexion. Only 25c at Clanton drug Co.

WANTED.

LAND FOR SALE. Any man wishing to buy good farms will do well to apply to
C. J. STEWART, Clanton, Ala.

PAINT properly prepared and applied beautifies the home. For good, reliable work apply to J. M. MOORE, the Painter, Clanton.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1899. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 19, 1900
We have handled Dr. Moffett's TEETHINA (Teething Powders) ever since its first introduction to the public and trade as a proprietary medicine, and our trade in it has steadily increased from year to year until our orders now amount to two or three hundred gross per year, which is a very strong evidence of its merit and the satisfaction it is giving to the mothers of the country, for they say that nothing so effectually counteracts the effects of the summer's hot sun or overcomes so quickly the troubles incident to teething.
THE LAMAR & RANKIN DRUG CO.,
Wholesale Druggists.

STOPS THE COUGH and Works off the Cold.

Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price .5 cents.

DOWNS' FIRE SALE
—ON—
SNUFF AND TOBACCO
FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS

$3.50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnaps Early Bird, Long Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

and on Thursday, July 25,

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Bruton.
$1.00 gets you 10 boxes 3½ oz. Bruton.
$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 3½ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO
and 600 pounds of SNUFF
Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $
But they must go just the same.

Positions GUARANTEED UNDER A $5,000 DEPOSIT
R. R. FARE PAID
200 FREE
Scholarships offered. Write quick to
GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

The O. K. Lunch Counter

MEALS AND LUNCHES SERVED AT ALL HOURS AT POPULAR PRICES

Fish and Oysters during the Season
I pay highest market price for Chickens and Eggs.
LUNCHES PUT UP FOR TRAVELERS
THE O.K. LUNCH COUNTER
NEXT TO THE RAILROAD, CLANTON.
W. H. STACY, Proprietor.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts.
Office at the Adams' place
CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN C. DENNIS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts.
CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. KNOX,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CLANTON, ALA.
Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama.

Dr. OTTO M. WISEHART,
DENTIST.
OFFICE HOURS. 8 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m.
Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS,
SPECIALIST
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
OFFICE 22 S. PERRY ST.
Office Hours: 9 to 12 and 2 to 4.
Telephone 494—2 Calls.
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. N. S. JOHNSON
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL,
JACKSONVILLE, ALA.
A school to prepare teachers. Demand for graduates greater than the supply. Board $8 per month up. Tuition free. Nineteenth year. Session begins Oct. 1, 1901. For catalogue address
CLARENCE W. DAUGETTE,
President.

Alabama Girls' Industrial School,
MONTEVALLO, ALA.
The next session opens September 18, 1901. An enlarged Dormitory and new class rooms make it possible to provide for more girls, and to offer better accommodations. For catalogue address
FRANCIS M. PETERSON,
President.

GOING TO SCHOOL!
The Fifth District Agricultural School at Wetumpka, Ala., offers you good opportunities and low prices. $5.00 (Five dollars) covers all charges for nine months, session beginning Sep. 3d, 1901.
Board $8.00 per month.
Send for catalogue.
H. J. WILLINGHAM,
President.

To All Whom it May Concern:

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 3, 1901

No person, or persons, can lawfully solicit or write insurance for the Chilton county Branch of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama, unless he, or they, bear a commission (empowering him or them to perform such work) signed by Wallace C. Edler, General Agent of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama.

All persons concerned will govern themselves accordingly.

WALLACE C. EDLER,
General Agent Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

ELANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

The Russian Government gives a gold medal to every couple that celebrate their golden or diamond wedding. Last year 614 couples received medals.

No wonder the New York man who wrote "Never Trust a Women" committed suicide. A good many men who do trust women are alive and happy.

The coal output for 1900 in the United States was 267,545,444 tons. This is the largest output the country has ever known, and puts her practically in the lead of all other coal-producing nations.

Jamestown, Virginia, where the English gained their first foothold in the New World in 1607, was burned in 1676. To-day nobody lives there. Little remains to mark the site except a crumbling church tower, dilapidated gravestones, and remnants of the foundations of a few houses, is a statement in the Ladies' Home Journal.

John D. Rockefeller has given $200,000 to found "The Rockefeller Institution for Medical Research." The gift is not for an endowment fund, but for immediate expenditure. Mr. Rockefeller has for some time been consulting with eminent medical men as to the need of such an institution, and he has had the best of advice. Facilities for original investigation are to be provided, especially in such problems in medicine and hygiene as have a practical bearing on the prevention and treatment of disease. Work will be begun in the fall under the guidance of experienced investigators.

The telephone has a larger use for the farmer than establishing a means of communication between his buildings. The establishment of farmers' co-operative exchanges in various parts of the country furnishes a hint of the extent to which the telephone is to be utilized to promote the interests of husbandry. In Montgomery County, Ind., forty townships are connected and over 6000 telephones are in use. The ultimate effect of the establishment of these exchanges in farming communities is to put the rural family in contact with the city and the world at large, and thus enlarge its industrial and social horizon, inducing greater contentment with farm life. The ability to "ring up" the city may be the solution of the problem of how to keep boys on the farm.

Mr. Rockefeller gave a hard prescription to the graduating class of Chicago university in saying to them: "If you are to succeed in life it will be because you are masters of yourselves." A wiser than Rockefeller said that "he that ruleth his spirit is greater than he that taketh a city." Self-mastery of a strong nature is the greatest of victories. A man who is ruled by his temper or by any other of his passions is not master of himself. One who is the slave of any appetite has a cruel master. Mastery of self means more than self-control—it includes self-possession; the absolute power over and direction of all the faculties of mind and body. Very few men have complete mastery of self. And this is perhaps why there are relatively so few complete and conspicuous successes in the higher and the more strenuous walks of life, reflects the New York World.

Commenting on diplomatic life abroad, Addison C. Harrison, who was lately United States Minister to Austria, said that he believed the United States Government ought to provide houses for its diplomatic representatives. "When an American minister," said he, "arrives in a strange city, he should not have to begin his new career by house hunting. Ours is the only Government of importance in the world which does not own its legation property at the chief capitals. In an old city like Vienna suitable houses are not very plentiful, and rent is so high that it takes all one's salary to pay it. If the Government would supply a house the salary would do fairly well to live on, though it is much less than what other nations pay their ministers. Moreover, one has to take a foreign house with foreign furnishings and servants. I think it would be much better for the country to have a house furnished in American style. It is a large part of the business of a minister to receive the Americans who come to the city, and it would be more hospitable to take them into a house which reminded them of home."

OF INTEREST IN ALABAMA

HAPPENINGS THAT YOU WANT TO KNOW ABOUT

RECENT STATE MATTERS TERSELY TOLD

Wiley Will Contest Two of the Votes in the Army Election—Train Kills Thief—M. & O. Smash Up —Other Short Items.

NOBLE WILEY SHOT.

Capt. Noble J. Wiley was shot through the right lung last Wednesday night in Montgomery by Dr. J. H. Crossland. Eye witnesses say that Crossland came up and struck Wiley on the back without giving a word of warning. As soon as possible Wiley met his assailant on foot and a hand to hand fight followed. Crossland secured a whip from a street carriage and trailed Wiley over the head with the butt end. Wiley took the whip from Crossland and struck him with it and Crossland pulled a pistol and fired one shot which took effect in Wiley's right breast, passing out back of the shoulder. Bystanders interferred before more shots were fired. Crossland was arrested.

IT IS NEEDED.

For some months past capitalists have been purchasing large tracts of mineral lands east of Gadsden. It has been discovered that it contains deposits of coal and iron ore of the finest quality and are directly on the proposed extension of the Louisville & Nashville branch from Oneonta to Gadsden. The Gadsden Commercial Club has appointed a committee of prominent business men to promote the extension of the railroad. It has been estimated that the road can be built for about $80,000. Should the line be built Gadsden would be vastly benefitted. Gadsden coal has to be handled through Calera, Birmingham or Anniston.

ELECTION IN THE ARMY.

The election of Colonel of the Second Infantry, Alabama National Guard has not been decided, though the ballots have been received by Adjutant General Brandon. The returns show that the candidates, Major E. H. Graves, of Eufaula, and Colonel A. A. Wiley, of Montgomery, have received twenty and sixteen votes respectively. It is said that Colonel Wiley will contest two of the votes, those of the Prattville Company. If the contest is decided in favor of Colonel Wiley, a tie will result, and the deciding vote cast by Adjutant General Brandon.

HOW THEY DO IT.

Mr. Loveman, of Loveman, Joseph & Loeb, has just returned from a trip to the principal cities of the North and East where he purchased in carload lots and in some instances the entire output of furniture factories. He bought beyond the needs of Birmingham alone, but the idea is to put two-thirds on sale in Birmingham and use the retail trade outside of the city and state to handle the rest of the stock. It is not within the province of this news item to tell of prices in their sale. For that, readers are referred to their advertisement which appears in another column.

BESSEMER has granted a franchise to a new trolley company, giving right of way through her streets. The line will connect Bessemer with Ensley.

WARD & Brown, the crack tennis players of Birmingham, won the highest points in the Tennis Tournament, at Atlanta last week.

DOUBLES ITS CAPACITY.

The large Woodstock cotton mill of Anniston will at once double its capacity. When built the plant was arranged to accommodate 12,000 spindles, and when operations began 6,000 spindles had been placed, and they have all been in operation ever since the mill started up. And after several months of operation the management has decided to double the present capacity. About 110 people are employed at the plant, and the doubling up in spindles will mean the employment of over 100 more operatives. The new machinery is ordered, and more orders will be placed at once.

D. D. & S. W. R. R.

It is said that work on the proposed Decatur, Danville and Southwestern railroad, which will connect several towns in North Alabama, will be begun in a few weeks, both at Decatur and at Jasper. The road when completed will traverse a portion of the state that is rich in timber lands and minerals, and will result in great good to that section.

TIMBER SUIT.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company has filed a suit for $10,000 against John Hawkins and the Hawkins Lumber Company. It is alleged in the bill that the defendants to the suit cut and removed certain valuable timber from property which the plaintiffs owned in Jefferson County and that this was done without the knowledge or permission of the plaintiff. A further suit is filed against the same defendants by the same plaintiffs in which it is alleged that the defendants appropriated to its use timber, alleged to have been removed from the property of the plaintiffs.

M. & O. SMASH UP.

The north-bound local train on the Mobile and Ohio broke in two sections a few miles below Waynesboro, Saturday morning and before the accident was discovered, the tail end of the detached train crashed into the northbound passenger, which was following and expecting to pass at the next station. Four or five cars of the freight train were smashed to pieces, blocking the road for several hours. The engineer and fireman of the passenger saved themselves by jumping. The passenger engine was considerably damaged.

TRAIN KILLS THIEF.

George Fennell, a well known chicken thief of Huntsville, was killed under the wheels of a freight train at Leighton Friday night. Fennell made a practice of stealing a stock of chickens in one town and boarding a train for another town, where he usually sold out. Last night he threw a bag of chickens on a moving freight at Leighton and in attempting to jump aboard he fell under the wheels and was killed.

SUPERSTITIOUS.

It is learned that before leaving London last Friday for Cowes, King Edward gave instructions that all opals should be removed from the crown and from all coronation jewelry. The king and Queen Alexandra are extremely superstitious concerning opals. In this they are unlike Queen Victoria, who loved the jewel. She always wore an opal ring presented to her by Prince Albert. Her last instructions were that this ring should be buried with her.

KILLED THE DRIVER.

A carriage, in which were several ladies, in addition to a driver, turned over at Adger Tuesday and Miss Mayone Deacy was injured, and the driver, William Robison, instantly killed. The team was on Blue Creek Hill when the horses became frightened and ran down the hill, turning the carriage over into Blue creek.

OLD WARRIOR DEAD.

Gen. Richard L. Page is dead, aged 94. He commanded the outer defenses of Mobile Bay at Fort Morgan, and with 400 men held Farragut's fleet at bay for two weeks. General Page was a brother-in-law of Charles Lee, attorney-General in Washington's administration, and of "Light Horse" Harry Lee, the father of Robert E. Lee.

HUNTSVILLE'S street railway has changed hands and vast improvements will be made in the system. The new company contemplates supplying electricity for lighting.

THE main business portion of Lime Springs, Iowa, was wiped out by fire early Saturday. Loss, $150,000. No fatalities are reported.

BETTER EQUIPPED.

A larger percentage of teachers examined at the recent summer normal sessions will be granted state certificates this year than ever before. Prof. J. G. Deupree, chairman of the state board of examiners, states that between 65 and 80 per cent of the teachers whose papers have been examined have been successful, against only about 50 per cent last year. This remarkable increase is attributed to the thoroughness of the summer normal work, and the more than usual care displayed by the board of education in selecting members of the normal faculties.

KILLED IN A MINE.

C. E. Toney, a farmer living on Sand Mountain, while on a visit to his brother at Crudup, Etowah county, last Thursday, was instantly killed in a mine. Toney had gone into the mine to see his brother, and hearing a car coming stepped aside to let it pass. The passage was to narrow, however, and he was caught between the car and the wall and crushed to death.

DEATH OF SIGNIO CRISPI

FORMER ITALIN STATESMAN DOES NOT RALLY

GENERAL DOFUS P. HEELY DIED SATURDAY

The Green Eyed Monster—An Old Warrior Dead—Family Troubles—Bryan Buys a Paper—Other Items of Interest.

YOUNG CRIMINALS.

Three young men, whom the South Chicago police charge with the robbery and destruction by fire of many freight cars in the past few months are under arrest. The arrest and raid on an old shack on a small island at the mouth of Calumet river was accomplished only after detectives had swam from the mainland and cast adrift the boat of the fugitives. The oldest is not quite 19 years of age. They have been robbing freight cars, not of their contents alone, but of brass journals and brake valves. The matter has been a mystery to the police for a long time, but they finally located the thieves. It is estimated their robberies in the past few months will aggregate fully $12,000.

AUSTRALIAN DISASTER.

Details have been received of the destruction by fire of the departmental stores of Anthony Hardern and Sons, in Sydney, Australia. These monster department stores which are among the largest in the world, employing over 1,500 hands and serving an average of 30,000 customers daily, were wiped out by fire on July 12th and in the conflagration four of the employes were burned to death and one lost his life by jumping. The loss was over $3,000,000 in all.

DIED IN FAR OFF CHINA.

Prince Henry, of Orleans, the oldest son of the Duke of Chartres, died Friday evening in Cochin China. He was coming to the United States and was to have passed some time in Newport this fall. His name had been mentioned as a suitor for the hand of an American heiress and at one time he figured as a suitor for the hand of the eldest sister of the young King of Spain, the Infanta Marie De Las Mercedes, who was married in February last to Prince Charles, of Bourbon, son of the Count of Caserta.

THE CAUSE A MYSTERY.

Willis White was killed and Sallie Walker was dangerously wounded Friday night, at Dallas, Tex., by a man whose identity has not yet been positively discovered. The killing occurred at a house six blocks from the center of the city. The woman, who was shot in the head, was standing in the doorway. The man received a bullet in the abdomen. The cause of the shooting is not known, as there are no eye witnesses.

BIG LAND DEAL.

On August 9, the J. C. Brown Lumber Co., sold to the Weyerhauser Syndicate 70,000 acres of pine land in Louisiana for $650,000. The pine is located in the parishes of Vernon, Sabine, Calcascu and Natchatoches. There are over 500,000,000 feet of pine on the tract.

A WARM RECEPTION.

Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee arrived at Hamburg Saturday. He was met at the railroad station by Emperor William, who kissed Von Waldersee on both cheeks. The emperor and the field marshal drove together to the castle amid the plaudits of the crowd.

FAMILY TROUBLES.

Clements Buchter, a chair maker, of Louisville, Thursday morning shot and killed his daughter, Irene, aged 19, and wounded his wife. The daughter was shot through the heart and instantly killed and the mother slightly wounded. Buchter was arrested and refuses to talk.

DAVID NATION

Has brought suit for divorce from his wife, Carrie Nation, the temperance crusader. Mr. Nation alleges that his wife held him up to public ridicule, neglected her family duties and abandoned his home.

BIGGEST ONE YET.

A telegram from Beaumont, Tex., states that the greatest oil gusher yet struck was brought in a day or two ago by the Temple and San Antonio Oil Company. The oil is said to be spouting 200 feet in the air. Its owners are not a chartered company, but a partnership concern. The new well adds 150 feet to the proved field on Spindle Top heights.

SIGNOR CRISPI DEAD.

Signor Crispi died at 7:45 o'clock Sunday evening. He was surrounded by the members of his family and several intimate friends. The news was immediately telegraphed to King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helen. The evening papers assert that the body will be conveyed by steamer to Palermo, where the municipality will arrange for a great public funeral. It is rumored that Signor Crispi's will authorize a prominent Italian politician to examine his papers and to publish his memoirs.

In consequence of the low condition of Signor Crispi Sunday morning the injections of stimulants and the administration of oxygen were stopped, the physicians recognizing that both were quite useless. Through the day he lay inert and insensible and he was dead hours before the physician's certificate declared life extinct.

It was rumored that the affairs of the deceased are in the greatest confusion and that Signor Crispi will have to depend solely upon the proceeds of the sale of the memoirs.

Senor Joratro, the sculptor, has taken a cast of the face.

Veteran soldiers, firemen and police will act as body guard of honor during the lying in state.

A great state funeral will be held before the body is removed to Palermo. King Victor Emmanuel will be represented at the obsequies. His wife and daughter did not leave the bed for fifty hours, and their friends were compelled to use loving violence to induce them to quit the chamber. When all was over Princess Lingnaglossa fainted and had to be carried out by her husband.

The friends declined to allow strangers to touch the body, and they personally performed the last sad offices, placing the body in evening dress, with the collar of the Order of Annunciata.

It is rumored that the documents left by Signor Crispi contain compromising revelations regarding several politicians and unpublished details concerning the struggle for Italian unity and independence.

It is asserted that all the property left by deceased is heavily mortgaged.

BRYAN BUYS A PAPER.

William Jennings Bryan has purchased the National Watchman, of Alexandria, Va., a free silver paper founded by Senator Stewart, of Nevada. The senator gradually lost interest in its publication and there has been no issue of it since July 1st. It was talked that Bryan would settle down in Washington and run the Watchman. That was before he had determined to make Lincoln the home of of the "Commoner." Now that he has obtained possession of the Watchman some of this talk has been renewed but those who seem to know declare that Bryan only wants the Watchman to get hold of the "good will" and what remains of its subscription list.

THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER.

Mrs. Phillip Hitchcock, wife of a prominent railroad man, of Denver, shot and seriously wounded James W. Roberts and his wife in their candy store last Thursday. The woman was shot in the face and the man received two bullets, one in the middle of the forehead. It was at first thought the man was killed, but at the hospital he revived and the physicians hope for the recovery of both. Jealousy was the cause of the shooting.

SANTOS DUMONT,

Whose air ship met with disaster last week, announces his intention of constructing another of greater capacity.

SETTLED IT WITH BULLETS.

As a result of a pitched battle with Joe Allen on one side and William Wireman and Deise Sturgill on the other, at Greenup, Ky., Allen lies at the point of death with thirty holes shot into him. Allen had Wireman indicted, charging assault. Bad blood existed. A daughter of Allen and a sister of Wiremen met the day before and got into a fight. In a short time the men were also engaged. Twenty shots apiece were exchanged. Wireman received a pistol shot through the neck. Wireman and Sturgill are in jail.

KENTUCKY SHOOTING.

Shinbo Bailey cut and fatally wounded Lee Arnett at Salyersville, Ky., Friday during a quarrel. Arnett is a son of ex-Representative Arnett and Bailey is a cousin of J. C. Bailey, secretary of the American legation at Guatemala. Bailey escaped guarded by an armed posse, followed by one hundred of Arnett's friends. Both persons belong to the oldest and best families.

CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS

Further Report of Alabama's Constitutional Convention.

Sixty-fourth Day.

Judiciary System Completed—Solicitors Replace Circuit Solicitors—Corporations Tax.

Seventy-eight delegates answered to roll call this morning. The committee completed the article on judiciary. The most important change proposed is the doing away with circuit solicitors and the election of county solicitors to hold office for four years.

The committee on municipal corporations will report tomorrow.

Sixty-fifth Day.

Solicitor Section Stands—Corporation Article Under Discussion—Tag Tax Defeated.

Not many more than a quorum attended today, the roll call showing 81 and 92 delegates present at the afternoon sessions.

Much discussion was indulged in on a motion to reconsider the solicitation of county for circuit solicitor, but the convention refused by a vote of 36 to 59 to rescind its action.

The Morrisette ordinance, directing the legislature to reduce the license tag tax to ten cents a ton, and providing that the agricultural schools be maintained out of the general fund, was defeated by a vote of 7 to 6.

The article on municipal corporations then came up. It is a new article and some lively discussion is anticipated. One of the amendments adopted provides that the stream of a city cannot be used for private purposes or public utilities without the consent of the municipal authorities. Another prohibits the legislature from enacting laws which will permit any corporation to pay a license tax to the state and relieve it from the payment of all other license taxes in the state.

Sixty-sixth Day.

Women are Given Right of Suffrage in Certain Instances—City Corporations.

There were 82 delegates in their seats today. The convention adopted a section providing that women who are property holders and taxpayers under other sections shall have the right of suffrage.

The discussion of the municipal article was resumed. A section adopted limits the tax rate of cities to ½ of 1 per cent, with a provision that Birmingham and Huntsville may levy an additional ½ of 1 per cent toward paying debt. Troy, Attalla, Selma, Gadsden, Bessemer, Woodlawn, Ensley, Pratt City, Ensley, Wylam and Avondale can also levy an additional ½ of 1 per cent if authorized at a special election. Mobile is authorized to levy a tax rate of 1½ per cent, Montgomery a tax of 1½ per cent, other cities are given special rates.

Sixty-Seventh Day.

Wont Allow Women to Vote Alone—Action Rescinded—Miscellaneous Provisions.

Eighty and 91 was the attendance today. Judge Coleman and O'Neal led a fight against the section adopted yesterday to allow women the right of suffrage. Dr Crum championed their cause, but after consideration, by a vote of 52 to 41 the action was rescinded. The reading of the suffrage article was completed today and it was adopted by a vote of 92 to 19. The article on taxation was completed by the addition of several sections. The article on miscellaneous provisions was adopted and several sections of the article on education of the constitution.

Sixty-eighth Day.

The Record Broken—Two Sections Adopted at One Session—Legislature Increased.

Only 69 delegates responded to roll call this morning and the sergeant at arms was sent out after some members to collect a quorum. Only the opening session was held, and then the convention adopted two sections on representation and both without amendment or much discussion. The number of representatives was increased from 100 to 105 and there will be two more senators.

It is now alleged that the petitions for London's new church ground have thrown 23 inches out of the perpendicular the spire of the famous Bow bells.

UNIVERSITY OF ALA

W. S. WYMAN, LL. D., President.

SIXTY YEAR BEGINS WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 18, 1901.

Professional, Graduate, and Undergraduate Courses in Law, Medicine, Civil and Mining Engineering, Science, Arts, and Pedagogy.

For Catalogue containing full information, address

ROBERT T. NARDIN, Registrar, University, Ala.

AGRICULTURAL.

Scours in Young Pigs.

When young pigs have scours it is an indication that they are being allowed some kind of food that is injurious. The remedy is to change the food, allowing only warm milk thickened with equal parts of bran and cornmeal.

Influencing the Color of Butter.

The color of butter is largely influenced by the food. Butter is sometimes white and at certain seasons it may be a golden yellow. The coloring of butter by artificial means, such as the use of annatto, will never be necessary where carrots are grown and fed regularly. Cows that receive a variety of food at all seasons of the year will usually produce yellow butter.

A Feeding Pen Gate.

When there are any great number of pigs fed in the same pen it is invariably the rule that the larger pigs get the greater share of the feed and consequence they grow better and the smaller, less active pigs get less feed and are jostled about and fall farther and farther behind. By using a gate made as portrayed, in the feeding pen, the large, strong pigs will be hindered in no way from getting their share, and the smaller ones will be given an equal chance, or better. The gate (c) is fastened to the lifting lever (b), which is held at the desired height admitting the desired sized pig by a pin (a), through the posts and through the lever. The lower hole admits the smaller pigs, but the larger sized can not squeeze under. When the little pigs have satisfied themselves, lift the gate another hole and admit the next grade, and so on. In this way the smaller pigs will not become stunted by being crowded away from the feeding trough or floor.—J. L. Irwin, in Farm and Home.

A GATE FOR FEEDING PEN

The Art of Plowing.

Owing to creeks and other causes there are many irregular shaped fields which are oftentimes plowed by going around until finished in the centre. This centre is often a triangle. I never saw a plowman but who went around this triangle until it was at last plowed out. To finish this way leaves a large, open furrow, and necessitates turning square around at the point. Often the horses get their feet out of the furrow and make trouble.

PLOWING TRIANGULAR FIELDS.

But the worst feature of it is the tramping given the plowed ground, especially if in the spring.

Few, unless they have tried it, realize the injury done by tramping plowed ground that is a little wet, which it often is in spring. The sketch shows how to plow out the land with but little tramping, and by making half turns instead of whole ones at what would be the point if plowed out until done. By plowing as per shape of diagram, five extra rounds will bring sides to a point. It is ten feet or ten furrows wider at one end than at the other. You are, say, at the north with a left hand plow. Drive south to dotted line. Throw out, turn gee and follow the dotted line. Then turn gee and plow back, then east, then south, and so on. By throwing out and turning and driving across the dotted lines you are turning on the unplowed ground. When you have plowed off the five furrows on each side, your land is the same width at each end and in good shape to finish.—Lucious Stockwell, in Farm and Home.

Cheese Making on the Farm.

The articles needed for making dairy cheese are from six to twelve cows and tub or vat that will hold two milkings. If of wood the night milk would be warmed in the morning to the proper temperature of eighty four degrees. Or one may have a jacketed or double tin tub. Then the milk can be warmed by pouring hot water in the jacket and drawing it off, when the milk is sufficiently warm. A whey tub and a pair of cheese tongs to lay across the tub are also needed. Next comes the cheese knife (which may be a wooden one) to cut the curd at the proper time and to start the whey, then the cheese hoop, which any tinman can make and cut inch holes all over the bottom and sides of the basket. A thin strainer cloth must be placed inside the hoop to receive the curd, which is carefully dipped into it at intervals after standing a proper time for the whey to begin to separate from the curd.

CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS

Further Report of Alabama's Constitutional Convention.

Sixty-fourth Day.

Judiciary System Completed—County Solicitors Replace Circuit Solicitors—Corporations Next.

Seventy-eight delegates, a base quorum, this morning. The convention completed the article on judiciary. The most important change proposed is the doing away with circuit solicitors and the election of county solicitors to hold office for four years.

The committee on municipal corporations will report tomorrow.

Sixty-fifth Day.

Solicitor Section Stands—Corporation Article Under Discussion. Tag Tax Defeated.

Not many more than a quorum attended today, the roll call showing 81 and 92 delegates present at the two sessions.

Much discussion was indulged over a motion to reconsider the substitution of county for circuit solicitors, but the convention refused by a vote of 56 to 59 to rescind its action.

The Morrisette ordinance, directing the legislature to reduce the fertilizer tag tax to ten cents a ton, and providing that the agricultural schools be maintained out of the general fund, was defeated by a vote of 7 to 42.

The article on municipal corporations then came up. It is a new article and some lively discussion is anticipated. One of the sections adopted provides that the streets of a city cannot be used for private enterprises or public utilities without the consent of the municipal authorities. Another prohibits the legislature from enacting laws which will permit a corporation to pay a license tax to the state and relieve it from the payment of all other license taxes in the county.

Sixty-sixth Day.

Women are Given Right of Suffrage in Certain Instances—City Corporations.

There were 82 delegates in their seats today. The convention adopted a section providing that women who are property holders and can qualify under other sections shall have the right of suffrage.

The discussion of the municipal article was resumed. A section adopted limits the tax rate of cities to ½ of 1 per cent, with a proviso that Birmingham and Huntsville can levy an additional ½ of 1 per cent to be used in paying debt. Troy, Attalla, Gadsden, Bessemer, Woodlawn, Brewton, Pratt City, Ensley, Wylam and Avondale can also levy an additional tax of ½ of 1 per cent if authorized at a special election. Mobile is authorized to levy a tax rate of 1½ per cent, Montgomery a tax of 1¼ per cent, and other cities are given special rates.

Sixty-Seventh Day.

Wont Allow Women to Vote After All—Action Rescinded—Miscellaneous Provisions.

Eighty and 91 was the attendance today. Judge Coleman and Mr. O'Neal led a fight against the section adopted yesterday to allow women the right of suffrage. Dr Cunningham championed their cause, but after consideration, by a vote of 22 to 19 the action was rescinded. The entire reading of the suffrage article occupied today and it was adopted by a vote of 92 to 19. The article on taxation was completed by the addition of two sections. The article on miscellaneous provisions was adopted and several sections of the article on changing the constitution.

Sixty-eighth Day.

The Record Broken—Two Articles Adopted at One Session—The Legislature Increased.

Only 69 delegates responded to the call this morning and the sergeant-at-arms was sent out after some members to collect a quorum. Only the morning session was held, and during the convention adopted two articles on representation and homestead without amendment or much debate. The number of representatives was increased from 100 to 105 and there will be two more senators.

It is now alleged that the excavations for London's newest church ground have thrown 23 inches out the perpendicular the spire hangs the famous Bow bells.

UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA

W. S. WYMAN, LL. D., President.

71ST YEAR BEGINS WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 9, 1896.

Professional, Graduate, and Undergraduate Courses in Law, Medicine, Pharmacy, Civil and Mining Engineering, Science, Arts, and Pedagogy.

For Catalogue containing full information, address

ROBERT T. NABERS, Secretary, University P. O.

AGRICULTURAL.

Sound to Young Pigs.

When young pigs have scours it is an indication that they are being allowed some kind of food that is injurious. The remedy is to change the food, allowing only warm milk thickened with equal parts of bran and carbonate.

Influencing the Color of Butter.

The color of butter is largely influenced by the food. Butter is sometimes white and at certain seasons it may be a golden yellow. The coloring of butter by artificial means, such as the use of annatto, will never be necessary where cows are grown and fed regularly. Cows that receive a variety of food at all seasons of the year will usually produce yellow butter.

A Feeding Pen Gate.

When there are any great number of pigs fed in the same pen it is invariably the rule that the larger pigs get the greater share of the feed, and in consequence they grow better and the smaller less active pigs get less feed and are crowded about and fall farther and farther behind. By using a gate, made as portrayed, in the feeding pen, the large, strong pigs will be hindered in no way from getting their share, and the smaller ones will be given an equal chance, or better. The gate is fastened to the lifting lever (b), which is held at the desired height, admitting the desired sized pig by a pin at through the posts and through the lever. The lower hole admits the smaller pigs, but the larger sized cannot squeeze under. When the little pigs have satisfied themselves, lift the gate another hole and admit the next grade, and so on. In this way the smaller pigs will not become stunted by being crowded away from the feeding trough or floor.—J. L. Irwin, in Farm and Home.

A GATE FOR FEEDING PEN.

The Art of Plowing.

Owing to creeks and other causes there are many irregular shaped fields which are oftentimes plowed by going around until finished in the centre. This centre is often a triangle. I never saw a plowman but what went around this triangle until it was at last plowed out. To finish this way leaves a large, open furrow, and necessitates turning square around at the point. Often the horses get their feet out of the furrow and make trouble.

PLOWING TRIANGULAR FIELDS.

But the worst feature of it is the tramping given the plowed ground, especially if in the spring.

Few, unless they have tried it, realize the injury done by tramping plowed ground that is a little wet, which it often is in spring. The sketch shows how to plow out the land with but little tramping, and by making half turns instead of whole ones at what would be the point if plowed out until done. By plowing as per shape of diagram, five extra rounds will bring sides to a point. It is ten feet or ten furrows wider at one end than at the other. You are, say, at the north with a left hand plow. Drive south on dotted line. Throw out, turn gee and follow the dotted line. Then turn gee and plow back, then east, then south, and so on. By throwing out and turning and driving across on dotted lines you are turning on the unplowed ground. When you have plowed off the five furrows on each side you land in the same width at each end and in good shape to finish.—Lewis Stilwell, in Farm and Home.

Cheese Making on the Farm.

The articles needed for making dairy cheese are from six to twelve cows and tub or vat that will hold two milkings. If of wood the night's milk would be warmed in the morning to the proper temperature of eighty-four degrees. Or one may have a jacketed or double tin tub. Then all the milk can be warmed by pouring hot water in the jacket and drawing it off when the milk is sufficiently warm. A wooden tub and a pair of cheese hoops to lay across the tub are also needed. Next comes the cheese knife (which may be a wooden one) to cut the curd at the proper time so as to start the whey, then the cheese basket, which any tinman can make and cut lots holes all over the bottom and sides of the basket. A thin strainer cloth must be placed inside the basket to receive the curd, which is carefully dipped into it at intervals after standing a proper time for the whey to begin to separate from the curd.

For a dipper a piece tin like a milk skimmer is used. It must be there so as not to break the curd. A cheese hoop, some cheese boards and a cheese press complete this primitive equipment. The sizes of dairy cheese that sell best are those that weigh from fifteen to twenty-five pounds each. If there are no hoops or press at hand doubtless any dairy supply house could furnish them.

Only half the battle is won when the cheese is made and out of the press. The curing is a most important matter, and but few farmhouses have suitable rooms for this purpose where a low, dry temperature can be kept in hot weather. If any one intends to make a business of making dairy cheese a small room should be fitted up with an ice rack in the centre and water drainage from the same. In making dairy cheese from a large number of cows a cheese room or cheese house would be fitted up with factory apparatus and run as a factory, only on a smaller scale. And the cheese made by any factory process would be much like the factory make, but with the advantage of only one herd of cows furnishing the milk and that of uniform quality.—Alpha Messer, in Orange Judd Farmer.

six or eight weeks after blossoming. Many other fruits are better for thinning; this is particularly true of apricots.

The average grower of apples may keep the bearing surface within proper limits by judicious pruning. Thinning apples by hand is not a paying business with present market conditions. The time is coming when fruit growers will better understand their work a more uniform grade, better in quality, grown and marketed by business methods. This is what our horticultural societies are working for, to place a better product upon the market, and it is reasonable to suppose that higher prices will follow.—F. L. Reeves, in American Agriculturist.

Hill Culture of Strawberries.

Many years ago I owned a small fruit farm near the city of Cleveland, Ohio, in the midst of an extensive fruit-growing district, and had remarkable success one year with hill culture of strawberries. After enriching the land with a coat of stable manure drawn from the city, I planted a small plot, little more than one-eighth of an acre, with Jucundas, which were then famous because of the unique success of James Knox in raising them on the hill-tops above Birmingham at Pittsburg. I had visited his extensive plantation, and purchased at a high price this famous variety from one of my neighbors, believing from Mr. Knox's success that they would be profitable. The soil was a dark, gravelly loam in an old orchard. The planting was in the spring. All runners were cut off during the summer, and the plat was well cultivated with the hoe, the plants being eighteen inches apart each way. The growth was very strong. During the following winter they were protected by a light covering of straw.

The next summer I had them carefully gathered by pickers from the city, in baskets holding four quarts with handles. These baskets were rounded up, and all the stems were turned down on the top of the basket, so that no green leaf or stem was visible. I had the first picking taken to a fruit dealer on the "Square," near the wealthy residence portion of the city, whose first offer was $1 a basket.

When the second picking was taken the dealer said they were all sold in advance at $1.25 a basket, and if I could have had three or four times as many, the firm would have been glad to obtain them at $1 a basket. They were declared to be the finest lot of strawberries ever seen in Cleveland market. I sold from that small plot $325 worth of strawberries during that first year's marketing.

The second year they produced well, but not as fine berries as I might have raised from Wilson plants, cared for as my Jucundas were the preceding year. The person from whom I purchased the plants had a large plat of Jucundas — probably two or more acres—planted on clay soil, well underdrained; but they were very unsatisfactory, as the berries did not ripen, but matured in size while green in color, and they were usually wedge-shaped. My berries were finely formed, the color dark, rich and uniform, and as glossy as though they had been varnished. The flavor was remarkably rich, almost spicy and vinous, while those raised on clay soil were comparatively tasteless. I believe that any one having a gravelly or sandy loam might have equally as fine success as myself if they would plant Jucundas on very rich soil, eighteen inches apart each way, and keep all runners cut off.

This variety has proved so uncertain that I rarely see it advertised, but in appearance and in quality I believe they are not equalled by any other variety when they are produced in their best form. My crop would average one and a quarter inches in circumference. Parties who purchased them sent them to friends in Boston, Washington and New York City.

I sold the fruit farm before I had an opportunity to try another experiment with them.

If I shall again have a chance with a comparatively loose soil I intend to repeat the experiment, but I have not had that opportunity. After one year's heavy crop I should plow the plants under, as they are exhausted in ripening an enormous crop.—Donald Fernley, in the Country Gentleman.

It is said that the net annual profit derived from the cultivation of tropical fruits in Mexico ranges from 100 to over 200 per cent.

COMFORT FROM ELECTRICITY.

How Greatly It Aids Men to Endure the Heated Term's Agonies.

The hot weather, to equal which in intensity the meteorological authorities have had to go back thirty years, had many mitigations that were not available to the last generation; and they were largely of an electrical nature. For example, great use was made of the telephone, enabling men to sit in their offices or country homes and transact business at a distance without any necessity to trudge the Saharan streets. They say the ordeal is a trying one at such seasons to the little telephone girl, but she does her work bravely and well. Then there is the fan motor, bringing "sea breezes" into the hottest building. Their popularity was immense as a relief to weary people, and the market was soon swept bare of them. We have heard of one society woman who, with a member of her family under the weather, went to an electrical store and, being told all the fans in sight were sold, laid violent hands on one and refused to be comforted until she was allowed to carry it away in perspiring triumph in her carriage.

As for the electric light, that has long been a familiar boon, but one needs to get out in the country or by the seaside, where only oil lamps and candles are available, to realize once more how grateful and cool the little incandescent lamp is. Moreover, in town the ice cream freezer or the electric stove can be run from the same circuit as the lamp, but in the holiday wilds brute force and fire again are disagreeably necessary. The wonder is that electricity is still so little known and used outside the towns and cities. It is most needed by the sad sea waves and amid the cornfields and potato patches.

Perhaps the biggest electric boon of all in such calcining weather as that which has been the subject of so much flattering comment recently is the trolley car. All the street railway companies report a busy time, and their employees were worked to the point of exhaustion. Any cursory glance at the cars will show that the travel is quite largely of a recreative character, especially in the hot nights, when entire families with the latest ailing little baby board the cars to go for a fifteen-mile swift cruise for five cents a head—for the adults. The sick man does not now take up his bed and walk. He gets relief these summer nights by jumping on the first trolley car and leaving his bed behind him. The trolley car thus does en masse for the suffering population that which electricity does more individually for members of the community who can each pay for a telephone, a lamp, a fan motor, and a freezer for themselves. Great indeed is electricity in the dog days!

Took Cork Floats For Channel Buoys.

While the big Cunarder Umbria was slowly feeling her way into port through the thick fog, a dapper little Englishman sought to point out to his son the windings of our ship channel. The seine fishermen had just finished setting their net, and the big cork floats made a complete circle on the little patch of sea visible. The Umbria steamed in a greater circle about them, searching for a pilot. The authority on channels pointed to the cork floats and said:

"My boy, those are the buoys we are following to get to port. Just see how crooked the channel is. America has no coast defenses, her channels are a puzzle which no nation can solve offhand."

At this moment the Umbria had completed a circle and so had the cork floats. The English gentleman withdrew to the cabin, when his little boy, after eyeing his father's buoys for a moment, queried: "And now where do we go, pa?"—New York Mail and Express.

Poison From Plants.

While on the matter of summer poisoning it is not amiss to remind mothers that a strict rule should be enforced among children in regard to nibbling any plants or berries while abroad in the fields and woods. The department of agriculture finds on investigation that many poisonous plants and growths are indigenous to the United States. Many of them are familiar, and their malignant properties have been heretofore suspected. The safest rule is one that is entirely prohibitory, so far as chewing leaves or blooms of any plants, wild or cultivated. That common plant, the lily of the valley, carries a strong poison in leaf and flower, if either is eaten. A safe general rule is to put no leaf or bloom in the mouth, and even too generous inhalation is unwise. The charm of blossom and foliage can be enjoyed to the full without contact with the face and lips.—New York Post.

The Brazilian "Fogaro."

In Brazil every house has a small charcoal-burning firepot called "fogaro." They are made of cast iron, and are cylindrical for about two-thirds of their height, "at which point," says Consul Furniss, at Bahia, "they flare out and become basin-shaped, forming a reservoir, the bottom of which has a small grate, upon which is built the fire." Pots and pans are placed directly on this fire. The cylindrical portion of the stove serves as a flue for draught and to catch the ashes. "As the greater part of the Brazilian's diet," says Mr. Furniss, "is either fried or boiled, with a decided preference for the latter method, these stoves serve their purpose admirably, and are much cheaper than a stove as we know it, with the added advantage that they take up less room and can readily be moved from room to room, which makes them of great convenience to those having small quarters."

Twenty-eight differest kinds of food are needed to feed the animals in the Berlin zoo.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: A Joy Inspiring Religion—Solomon's Wisdom—Sweet Spices of Christianity — It Counteracts All Trouble — No Dolorous Music Needed.

(Copyright 1896.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage corrects some of the false notions about religion, and represents it as being joy inspiring instead of dolorous; text, II. Chronicles ix. 9, "Of spices great abundance; neither was there any such spice as the Queen of Sheba gave King Solomon."

What is that building out yonder, glittering in the sun? Have you not heard? It is in the house of the forest of Lebanon. King Solomon has just taken to it his bride, the Princess of Egypt. You see the pillars of the portico and a great tower, adorned with 1000 shields of gold, hung on the outside of the tower, 300 of the shields of gold manufactured at Solomon's order; 500 were captured by David, his father, in battle. See how they blaze in the noonday sun!

Solomon goes up the ivory stairs of his throne, between twelve lions in statuary, and sits down on the back of the golden bull, the head of the huge beast turned toward the people. The family and the attendants of the king are so many that the caterers of the palace have to provide every day 100 sheep and thirteen oxen, besides the birds and the venison. I hear the stamping and pawing of 4000 fine horses in the royal stables. There were important officials who had charge of the work of gathering the straw and the barley for these horses. King Solomon was an early riser, tradition says, and used to take a ride out at daybreak, and when in his white apparel, behind the swiftest horses of all the realm and followed by mounted archers in purple, as the cavalcade dashed through the streets of Jerusalem I suppose it was something worth getting up at 5 o'clock in the morning to look at.

Solomon was not like some of the kings of the present day—crowned imbecility. All the splendors of his palace and retinue were eclipsed by his intellectual power. Why, he seemed to know everything. He was the first great naturalist the world ever saw. Peacocks from India strutted the basaltic walk, and apes chattered in the trees, and deer stalked the parks, and there were aquariums with foreign fish and aviaries with foreign birds, and tradition says these birds were so well tamed that Solomon might walk clear across the city under the shadow of their wings as they hovered and flitted about him.

More than this, he had a great reputation for the conundrums and riddles that he made and guessed. He and King Hiram, his neighbor, used to sit by the hour and ask riddles, each one paying in money if he could not answer or guess the riddle. The Solomonic navy visited all the world, and the sailors, of course, talked about the riddles and enigmas that he made and soived, and the news spread until Queen Balkis, away off south, heard of it, and sent messengers with a few riddles that she would like to have Solomon solve and a few puzzles that she would like to have him find out. She sent, among other things, to King Solomon a diamond with a hole so small that a needle could not penetrate it, asking him to thread that diamond. And Solomon took a worm and put it at the opening in the diamond, and the worm crawled through, leaving the thread in the diamond. The queen also sent a goblet to Solomon, asking him to fill it with water that did not pour from the sky and that did not rush out from the earth, and immediately Solomon put a slave on the back of a swift horse and galloped him around and around the park until the horse was nigh exhausted, and from the perspiration of the horse the goblet was filled. She also sent to King Solomon 500 boys in girls' dress and 500 girls in boys' dress, wondering if he would be acute enough to find out the deception. Immediately Solomon, when he saw them wash their faces, knew from the way they applied the water that it was all a cheat.

Queen Balkis was so pleased with the acuteness of Solomon that she said, "I'll just go and see him for myself." Yonder it comes—the cavalcade—horses and dromedaries, chariots and charioteers, jingling harness and clattering hoofs and blazing shields and flying ensigns and clapping cymbals. The place is saturated with the perfume. She brings cinnamon and saffron and calamus and frankincense and all manner of sweet spices. As the retinue sweeps through the gate the armed guard inhales the aroma. "Halt!" cries the charioteers as the wheels grind the gravel in front of the pillared portico of the king. Queen Balkis alights in an atmosphere bewitched with perfume. As the dromedaries are driven up to the king's storehouses and the bundles of camphor are unloaded, and the sacks of cinnamon and the boxes of spices are opened the purveyors of the palace discover what my text announces: "Of spices, great abundance. Neither was there any such spice as the Queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon."

Well, my friends, you know that all theologians agree in making Solomon a type of Christ, and in making the Queen of Sheba a type of every truth seeker, and I will take the responsibility of saying that all the spikenard and cassia and frankincense which the Queen of Sheba brought to King Solomon is mightily suggestive of the sweet spices of our holy religion. Christianity is not a collection of sharp technicalities and angular facts and chronological tables and dry statistics.

Our religion is compared to frankincense and to cassia, but never to nightshade. It is a bundle of myrrh. It is a dash of holy light. It is a sparkle of cool fountains. It is an opening of opaline gates. It is a collection of spices. Would God that we were as wise in taking spices to our divine King as Queen Balkis was wise in taking the spices to the earthly Solomon.

The fact is that the duties and cares of this life, coming to us from time to time, are stupid often and inane and intolerable. Here are men who have been battering, climbing, pounding, hammering for twenty years, forty years, fifty years. One great, long drudgery has their life been, their faces anxious, their feelings benumbed, their days monotonous. What is necessary to brighten up that man's life and to sweeten that acid disposition and to put sparkle into the man's spirits? The spicery of our holy religion. Why, if between the losses of life there dashed the gleam of an eternal gain, if between the betrayals of life there came the gleam of the undying friendship of Christ, if in dull times in business we found ministering spirits flying to and fro in our office and store and shop, everyday life, instead of being a stupid monotone, would be a glorious inspiration, penduluming between calm satisfaction and high rapture.

How any woman keeps house without the religion of Christ to help her is a mystery to me. To have to spend the greater part of one's life, as many women do, in planning for the meals, and stitching garments that will soon be rent again, and deploring breakages, and supervising tardy subordinates, and driving off dust that soon again will settle, and doing the same thing day in and day out and year in and year out until the hair silvers, and the back stoops, and the spectacles crawl to the eyes, and the grave breaks open under the thin sole of the shoe—oh, it is a long monotony! But when Christ comes to the drawing room, and comes to the kitchen, and comes to the nursery, and comes to the dwelling, then how cheery becomes all womanly duties! She is never alone now. Martha gets through fretting and joins Mary at the feet of Jesus. All day long Deborah is happy because she can help Lapidoth; Hannah, because she can make a coat for young Samuel; Miriam, because she can watch her infant brother; Rachel, because she can help her father water the stock; the widow of Sarepta, because the cruse of oil is being replenished.

I must confess that a great deal of the religion of this day is utterly insipid. There is nothing pungent or elevating about it. Men and women go about humming psalms in a minor key and cultivating melancholy, and their worship has in it more sighs than raptures. We do not doubt their piety. Oh, no! But they are sitting at a feast where the cook has forgotten to season the food. Everything is flat in their experience and in their conversation. Emancipated from sin and death and hell and on their way to a magnificent heaven, they act as though they were trudging on toward an everlasting Botany Bay. Religion does not seem to agree with them. It seems to catch in the windpipe and become a tight strangulation instead of an exhilaration. All the infidel books that have been written, from Voltaire down to Herbert Spencer, have not done so much damage to our Christianity as lugubrious Christians.

Who wants a religion woven out of the shadows of the night? Why go growling on your way to celestial enthronement? Come out of that cave and sit down in the warm light of the Sun of Righteousness. Away with your odes to melancholy and Hervey's "Meditations Among the Tombs!"

I have to say also that we need to put more spice and enlivenment in our religious teaching, whether it be in the prayer meeting or in the Sunday-school or in the church. We ministers need more fresh air and sunshine in our lungs and our heart and our head. Do you wonder that the world is so far from being converted when you find so little vivacity in the pulpit and in the pew? We want, like the Lord, to plant in our sermons and exhortations more lilies of the field. We want fewer rhetorical elaborations and fewer sesquipedalian words, and when we talk about shadows we do not want to say adumbration, and when we mean queerness we do not want to talk about idiosyncrasies, or if a stitch in the back we do not want to talk about lumbago, but, in the plain vernacular of the great masses, preach that gospel which proposes to make all men happy, honest, victorious and free. In other words, we want more cinnamon and less gristle. Let this be so in all the different departments of work to which the Lord calls us.

I promise a high spiritual blessing to any one who will sing in church and who will sing so heartily that the people all around cannot help but sing. Wake up, all the churches from Bangor to San Francisco and across Christendom! It is not a matter of preference; it is a matter of religious duty. Oh, for fifty times more volume of sound than has yet rolled up from our churches! German chorals in German cathedrals surpass us, and yet Germany has received nothing at the hands of God compared with America. And ought the acclaim in Germany be louder than that of America? Soft, long drawn out music is appropriate for the drawing room and appropriate for the concert, but St. John gives an idea of the sonorous and resonant congregational singing appropriate for churches when in listening to the temple service of heaven he says: "I heard a great voice, as the voice of a great multitude and as the voice of many waters and as the voice of mighty thunderings. Hallelujah, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth!"

Join with me in a crusade, giving me not only your hearts, but the mighty uplifting of your voices, and I believe we can, through Christ's grace, sing 5000 souls into the kingdom of Christ. An argument they can laugh at, a sermon they may talk down, but a 5000 voiced utterance of praise to God is resistible. Would that Queen Balkis would drive all her spice laden dromedaries into our church music. "Neither was any such spice as the Queen of Sheba gave King Solomon."

Now, I want to impress you with the fact that religion is sweetness and perfume and spikenard and saffron and cinnamon and cassia and frankincense and all sweet spices together. "Oh," you say, "I have not looked at it as such. I thought it was a nuisance. It had for me a repulsion. I held my breath as though it were a malodor. I have been appalled at its advance. I have said, if I have any religion at all, I want to have just as little of it as is possible to get through with." Oh, what a mistake you have made, my brother! The religion of Christ is a present and everlasting redolence. It counteracts all trouble. Just put it on the stand beside the pillow of sickness. It catches in the curtains and perfumes the stifling air. It sweetens the cup of bitter medicine and throws a glow on the gloom of the turned lattice. It is a balm for the aching side and a soft bandage for the temple stung with pain. It lifted Samuel Rutherford into a revelry of spiritual delight while he was in physical agonies. It helped Richard Baxter until, in the midst of such a complication of diseases as perhaps no other man ever suffered, he wrote "The Saint's Everlasting Rest." And it poured light upon John Bunyan's dungeon, the light of the shining gate of the shining city. And it is good for rheumatism and for neuralgia and for low spirits and for consumption. It is the catholicon for all disorders. Yes, it will heal all your sorrows.

Why did you look so sad this morning when you came in? Alas, for the loneliness and the heartbreak and the load that is never lifted from your soul! Some of you go about feeling like Macaulay when he wrote, "If I had another month of such days as I have been spending, I would be impatient to get down into my little narrow crib in the ground, like a weary factory child." And there have been times in your life when you wished you could get out of this life. You have said, "Oh, how sweet to my lips would be the dust of the valley!" and wished you could pull over you in your last slumber the coverlet of green grass and daisies. You have said: "Oh, how beautifully quiet it must be in the tomb! I wish I was there!"

I see all around about me widowhood and orphanage and childlessness, sadness, disappointment, perplexity. If I could ask all those in any audience who have felt no sorrow and been buffeted by no disappointment—if I could ask all such to rise, how many would rise? Not one.

A widowed mother, with her little child, went West, hoping to get better wages there, and she was taken sick and died. The overseer of the poor got her body and put it in a box and put it in a wagon and started down the street toward the cemetery at full trot. The little child, the only child, ran after it through the streets, bareheaded, crying: "Bring me back my mother! Bring me back my mother!" And it was said that as the people looked on and saw her crying after that which lay in the box in the wagon, all she loved on earth—it is said the whole village was in tears. And that is what a great many of you are doing—chasing the dead. Dear Lord, is there no appeasement for all this sorrow that I see about me? Yes, the thought of resurrection and reunion far beyond this scene of struggle and tears. "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, neither shall the sun light on them nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them to living fountains of water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." Across the couches of your sick and across the graves of your dead I fling this shower of sweet spices. Queen Balkis, driving up to the pillared portico of the house of cedar, carried no such pungency of perfume as exhales to-day from the Lord's garden. It is peace. It is sweetness. It is comfort. It is infinite satisfaction, this gospel I commend to you.

May God grant that through your own practical experience you may find that religion's ways are ways of pleasantness and that all her paths are paths of peace; that it is perfume now and perfume forever. And there was an abundance of spice; "neither was there any such spice as the Queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon."

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUGUST 18.

Subject: Abraham's Intercession. Gen. xviii., 16-32—Golden Text, James v. 15—Memory Verses, 23-32—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

Introduction.—Our lesson contains the preliminary events of one of the most awful tragedies in the world's history. The cup of Sodom's iniquity was full, making that city ripe for destruction. Although God is merciful yet He will not always strive with man, and there is a line which individuals or nations cannot cross with impunity. The only safe place is in the mountain, far away from the smoking plain. In Abraham's prayer we see his great faith, his humility, his charity and his boldness.

16. "The men." The three angels. "Toward Sodom." "As with the Lord there is mercy, so He is the God to whom vengeance belongs." They looked toward Sodom for the purpose of destroying it. "Went with them." Public roads did not exist and guides were necessary.

17. "Shall I hide?" "That is, I will not hide." Abraham was the "friend" of God, and "communication of secrets is one of the special privileges of friendship." The way to know the divine purposes about this present evil world is not to be mixed up with it in its schemes and speculations, but to be entirely separated from it. The more closely we walk with God, the more we shall know His mind about every thing. "Thing which I do." Which I purpose doing, or am about to do. God gave Abraham the look of kindness and love, but to Sodom it was a look of indignation and wrath. The right hand of the judge implies his left.

18. "Mighty nation." The Jewish nation. "Shall be blessed in him." "The world" would be blessed in the Messiah that was to spring from Abraham.

19. "I know him." His character and destiny. "Will command his children." He not only prayed with his family, but he taught and commanded them, and was "prophet and king, as well as priest." Abraham made it his business to promote practical religion in his family, and this is given as the reason why God would make known to him His purpose concerning Sodom.

20. "Cry—is great." That is, these cities have sinned very grievously.

21. "I will go down." I will inquire into the facts. God could not have been in doubt, but He desires to show to Abraham that He was not judging hastily, or without full knowledge of all the facts.

22. "The men turned," etc. The two angels who accompanied Jehovah were now sent toward Sodom, while the third, which is called the Lord or Jehovah, remained with Abraham. As God is never seen in any bodily shape, consequently the great angel of the covenant, Jesus Christ, must be meant.

23. "Abraham drew near." (1) In bodily presence, (2) in spiritual nearness, (3) in holy fervency, (4) with boldness, (5) in humility, (6) with confidence. "Wilt Thou also destroy." It is a principle of justice that the righteous shall not be punished for the crimes of the wicked, and this Abraham lays down as the foundation of his supplications.

24. "Fifty righteous." These were more righteous than existed in the city. We would not even know that Lot was righteous had not the apostle Peter told us. But true charity and goodness always hope the best and not the worst.

25. "Shall not the Judge—do right?" "Abraham must have had divine teaching concerning the fact that Jehovah was the world's Judge." This implies that God would certainly do right, although Abraham might not see how.

26. "If I find—I will spare." So faithfully would God protect His chosen ones when appealed to by Abraham in their behalf. Nor does this go to show that He will not protect them unless urged to do so by others. It does show, however, the power and value of prayer.

27. "Dust and ashes." Dust is my origin and ashes is my end. By these expressions he shows how deeply his soul was humbled in the presence of God. They who stand nearest to God are the most humble. The boldness of prayer must be ever tempered with humility.

28. "There shall lack." The safety of the city being granted on the condition that fifty righteous could be found, Abraham takes courage and asks still larger things. He drops to forty-five, then to forty, then to thirty, then to twenty, and finally to ten. He was climbing the ladder of hope and faith; with each promise he took courage to ask for more; he grew into larger visions of God's goodness.

32. "But this once." Abraham's intercession was limited because the intercessor was but a man; it did not reach the need. He said, I will speak yet but this once, and there he stopped short, as if afraid of having presented too large a draft at the treasury of infinite grace, or forgetting that faith's check was never yet dishonored at God's bank. It was not that God was not able to give, for there was an abundance of grace and patience in Him to have harkened to His servant had he proceeded to three or one; but the servant was limited, and afraid of overdrawing his account. He ceased to ask and God ceased to give. Not so our blessed Intercessor; of Him it can be said, "He is able to save to the uttermost—seeing He ever liveth to make intercession." May our hearts cling to Him in all our need, our weakness and our conflict.

33. "The Lord went His way." The angel—Jehovah—with whom Abraham had been communing, went His way. Abraham's prayer was answered, though not in the way he expected. 1. The righteous were delivered from the city. 2. By the destruction of the city righteousness was promoted. Sin was bringing forth death; such vile cities would contaminate and corrupt the race; the cancer must be cut out, lest the whole being be destroyed.

In chapter 19 we have an account of the destruction of Sodom and the cities of the plain. The two angels that left Abraham went to Sodom (19: 1), where they were received kindly by Lot, but shamefully used by the people of Sodom. The angels told Lot to warn his friends to flee, for they had been sent to destroy the city. In the morning the angels hastened Lot, his wife and his two daughters, telling them to leave the city and not to look back lest they be consumed. Lot's wife looked back and became a pillar of salt. It was not enough for Lot to go outside the walls of the city, but they were commanded to leave the plain. Spiritually, those who stay in the plain are those who do not forsake all their sins, and who rest in conviction and good resolutions without having been truly converted.

It is probably true that almost every man has in him certain qualities which would draw some woman to him, but it is difficult to frame a statement in general terms of "What Women Like in Men." This is the task which a very well-known author, under the nom-de-plume of Rafford Pyke, has undertaken in the Cosmopolitan in a clever essay, which proves him to have made women the subject of thorough observation and comprehensive study. "The foreign girl," says the author, "marries the man with whom she will be happy, the American marries the man with whom she will be unhappy.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain,
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly . . . $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

OUR NEW CENTURY OFFER

THE BANNER finished the last century in excellent condition, but we wish to commence the new with a large number of new subscribers, and for that purpose have much pleasure in making the following offer:

The Banner one year (52 papers) for 75 cents.

The Banner one year and the N. Y. World Almanac and Encyclopedia for 1901, over 600 pages, $1.00

The Banner and Home & Farm, both papers one year for $1.00

The Banner and Birmingham Age Herald, both papers one year for $1.50

The Banner and Thrice-a-Week World—four papers every week for one year for $1.50

The Banner and Montgomery Advertiser, both papers one year for $1.50

The Banner and Atlanta Constitution and Home & Farm—all three for one year for $1.50

The Banner and Atlanta Constitution and your choice of a number of other periodicals—all three for 1 year for $1.50

The Banner and American Monthly Review of Reviews—both one year for $2.75

WE call your attention to the change of advts of Mr. C. R. Mullins and the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association.

THE Convention is jogging along and will get through some day.

TAMPA, Fla., knows how to settle a strike. They kidnap the leaders and send them out of the the way—where, nobody knows.

THE report of ex-State Examiner of Accounts, Judge Purifoy, on the books and accounts of County Treasurer Alex G. Dake, is a very flattering testimonial to that gentleman. Mr. Dake is a man of methodical habits and takes delight in keeping his accounts straight and his books in perfect order.

By request, we publish the speech of Mr. L. H. Reynolds on the suffrage question. On account of its length we published the first part in last week's issue and conclude it in this paper. In the main we are in accord with Mr. Reynolds on this question, and especially so in his opposition to the boards of registration.

THE Atlanta Constitution says "From the little island of New Zealand, in the Pacific ocean. Let's see: "the little island of New Zealand" has an area of 104,475 square miles, and the "great" State of Georgia has an area of 59,475 square miles; that is, the "great" State of Georgia is a little more than one half the size of the "little" island of New Zealand, which by the way, comprises three distinct islands. With its globe-trotting correspondents the Constitution should be better posted.

If the present crop goes to 10,500,000 bales, it is possible that the growing crop will be 11,000,000 bales. Dry, hot seasons generally result in a good product, and this season has been of that nature. The mistake should not be made of judging the entire crop by that of Alabama. This is one of the best, if not the best, of the States this year, and the conditions that have prevailed here have not been the conditions in Tennessee, or the Carolinas or in Texas, and the last named State grows nearly a third of the entire crop.—Age-Herald.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

The question of electing Solicitors by the people will not down. It was demonstrated in the Constitutional Convention Tuesday that notwithstanding the Convention has voted on the question five times it is still very much alive. After having adopted the entire Article on Judiciary the Convention yesterday reconsidered its action and laid the Article on the table. It is said that a substitute will be presented to-day embodying all of the Article except the section relating to Solicitors. This section will be amended so as to provide for the election of Solicitors by the legislature.

Another effort was made Tuesday to reconsider the action of the Convention in providing for suspension of sheriffs pending impeachment. This matter also brought out several good speeches. It will be the pending question when the body assembles this morning.

In fact Tuesday was a day without results. No definite action was taken on any proposition. The votes were so close as to take one's breath away and the minority fought hard over the solicitor question. The vote on tabling the Judiciary Article was 55 to 54.—Advertiser.

GREAT REDUCTION IN COAL RATES BY THE L. & N.

The "Old Reliable" Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company has recently revised its freight rates on coal to all points on its system, in Alabama, making material reduction in nearly every instance.

The action of the L. & N. in this matter was entirely voluntary, its object being to encourage the use of coal, especially at local stations, and thus furnish a market for the product of the mines along its lines, which has largely increased during the present year.

It is believed that the increased shipment of coal resulting from this liberal action of the L. & N. will justify the Company in making the reduction.

Below will be found a table showing some of the old rates and the new rates from Birmingham to the points named. The rates given are for coal in carload lots, per ton of 2000 pounds.

	OLD RATES	PRESENT RATES
South Calera	105	100
Clear Creek	105	100
Jemison	120	100
Chanton	130	100
Swift Creek	135	100
Verbena	140	100
Bozeman	140	100
Deatsville	150	100
Elmore	155	100
Coosada	155	100
Fitzpatricks crossing	175	125
Wetumpka	175	125
Prattville	175	100

GENERAL CONVENTION EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SAN FRANCISCO, California, October. 1901.

The Southern Pacific Co's "Sun Set Route" takes pleasure in announcing very low round trip rates from all Coupon Tickets Offices in this territory to San Francisco, Cal., account of the above occasion.

Tickets on sale September 18-26 inclusive.

Stop Overs are allowed on the going trip in Texas and West thereof provided, passengers reach San Francisco not later than October 2nd, and on the return trip at points West of Colorado Common Points, San Antonia and Fort Worth, Texas, provided, passengers reach starting point within the extreme limit of the ticket, November 15, 1901.

The privilege of going one route and returning another will be allowed.

Particular attention is called to the "Convention Special," one of the finest trains in the world, from New Orleans through to California without change. This train carrying the equipment o the "Famous Sun Set Limited" Vestibuled Sleeping and Dining Cars, especially arranged to carry the delegates and visitors to California, will leave New Orleans Wednesday September 25th. Stops will be made at various interesting points enroute.

The following rates have been authorized from various points to San Francisco and return.

Anniston	$ 55.55
Attalla	$ 55.15
Birmingham, Selma, Decatur, Mobile, Montgomery and Tuskaloosa	$ 51.75
Eufaula	$ 56 55
Florence	$ 50 95
Huntsville	$ 53.20
Opelika	$ 55.70

Rates are open to all.

For further information call on or address GEO. W ELY,
T. A. A. "Sun Set Route,"
Montgomery, Ala

(continued from 3d col. page 4)

qualify. But in case this grandfather clause is declared unconstitutional, and the life electorate falls to the ground, as admitted, then will the Legislature be permitted disfranchise any or all white men if it pleases, and not have to refer their work back? It seems to me that here we will be doing indirectly that which our consciences will not permit us to do directly.

We come to the registration plan. I am as much opposed to it as the other.

Mr. Smith—I will ask the gentleman if he is not opposed to this Convention and to everything the Convention has done?

Mr. Reynolds—No, you have done some good things, and I have voted for them. I will state, in answer to the question, that I said in the outset that I was opposed to the calling of the Convention, but Mr. President, that does not carry with it that I am opposed to reformation, and I say now, if this new Constitution would hold up, to my mind, better than the old one; if it puts Alabama upon a high plane, moral plane, such as you wanted before the Convention, I will say I am ready to help him ratify it, and will do all in my part of the State to ratify it, but if, on the other hand, I do not believe this Convention will do what we claim it will do, and if it is not better than the old one, I will say I will go back and advocate the adoption of the old Convention and stand by the old ruts.

In case the registrars unjustly deny a citizen the privilege and right to registrar, we are told that he will have the opportunity of appealing to the courts. I dare say that there are some worthy citizens who could ill afford the expense. If the registrars should be bad and dishonorable men and register those not qualified nor worthy of the high privilege of suffrage, what remedy is provided? The lists are not subject to expurgation. An appeal might be made to the Supreme Court of the United States, but you declare that that August tribunal will not intertere. There is not the slightest doubt that thousands of white men will be disfranchised by the plan of registration here suggested. We all remember the registration plan under the Sayre election law as first passed. By it each voter was given a month in which to register, but that time was in the month of May, when no election was being held, when the farmers were the busiest with their work, and the necessary result was the disfranchisement of many white men, though no qualifications, other than that of age, were required. I had the honor of being a member of the Legislature when that law, as regard registration, was repealed, and the argument there advanced for its repeal was that it worked a great hardship upon the voters. But here we have a board possessed with almost unlimited power, with the right to inquire of every applicant where he has been for the last five years what he has been doing and yet these registrars are not required to be in any one beat more than one day. This law tells the registrars that they shall do so and so, but if you violate it that is with you, your conscience and your God. It is in the common experience of all that those laws, to which no penalty is attached, are not only openly violated, but actually disregarded. Take, for example, the antipass provision of our present Constitution.

Gentlemen of the Constitution, I beg of you to go slow and be sure that no worthy man be disfranchised, and that you leave not his privileges and rights under the control of a partisan political board. History teaches us that rights once taken away are seldom, if ever, restored.

And I take this opportunity to warn you that there must be some provision adopted whereby the people will understand and know that the electorate will be fairly and impartially made up, and that there must be a further provision that will insure the people that their will shall be fairly and freely expressed at the ballot box and their votes counted as cast; and by the eternal gods, the white men of this country will vote, though it be at the point of the bayonet or the muzzle of a shot gun

They Struck It Rich.

It was a grand thing for this community that such an enterprising firm as the Clanton drug Co secured the Agency for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the wonderful remedy that has startled the world by its marvelous cures. The furor of enthusiasm over it has boomed their business, as the demand for it is immense. They give free trial bottles to sufferers, and positively guarantee it to cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma Croup, and all Throat and Lung Troubles. A trial proves its merit. Price 50c and $1.00.

W. H. SARTOR

sells them cheaper

try him!

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C 935 EDWIN B GILES & COMPANY, 2530 and 2532 Market Street, Philadelphia.

CHURCH DIRECTORY

BAPTIST—Preaching on the first and third Sundays at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Sunday-school every Sunday at 10 a.m.

Prayer-meeting every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

F. M. WOODS, Pastor.

METHODIST—Preaching every second Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m and every fourth Sunday at 7 p.m

Sunday-school at 10 a.m. every Sunday.

Prayer-meeting at seven o'clock every Wednesday night.

D. F. ELLISON, Pastor.

The Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Ala

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
"BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE."

CHILTON COUNTY BRANCH

PRESIDENT.
N. J. CALLOWAY, Clanton.

SEC'Y & TREAS
P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

COUNTY AGENT:
B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

1. H. C. Young
2. Thomas Harrison
3. Alex Glasscock
4. A. J. Wilson
5. [illegible] S. Robinson
6. A. T. Hathcock
7. C. J. Colem[illegible]
8. John R. P[illegible]
9. W. A. [illegible]

Insures farmer's dwellings, outbuildings and contents, and stock against loss by fire, wind and lightning.

During the year just closed, Aug. 3, 1901, there has not been a single loss to the Association.

The honest, safest and most sensible method of insurance known to man. For full particulars call on or address the County Agent.

B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers, Ala.

We will move October 1st to 2012 First Ave.

EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES

J. Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Q[illegible]

COLLIER DRUG CO.,

THE CUT RATE DRUG STO[illegible]

BIRMINGHAM, AL[illegible]

SUMMER CLOTHING

LATEST FASHIONS

LOWEST PR[illegible]

A BEAUTIFUL LINE FROM WHICH YO[illegible]

YOUR CHOICE

AND A COMPLETE LINE OF

Dry Goods, Hats, Shoes, Not[illegible]

CHOICE GROCERIE[illegible]

W. A. KEMP, Clanton, [illegible]

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in June, first Monday in September, second Monday in July, second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

Mrs. G. S. Robinson of Birmingham, is visiting relatives here.

Mr. Wallace C. Edler spent several days in Columbiana recently.

Col. R. H. Knox went to Thorsby Monday.

Mr. F. A. Aldridge left Tuesday for Walker county where he has secured a position.

Mr. John Martin of Atlanta is visiting relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Potts of Missouri, are visiting the father of the former, here.

Mr. J. Bice of Thorsby was in town Wednesday.

Mr. D. N. Riggins of Thorsby was a visitor here Wednesday.

Judge Adams and Rev. F. M. Woods left on Wednesday morning for a two weeks trip to the Indian Territory.

Later—They haven't gone yet, for as far as Birmingham and the Judge turned back. No report from Rev. Woods.

Prof. A. J. Showalter and daughter left on Wednesday morning for Roanoke, Ala.

Mr. John Stanfield has removed his family from Montgomery to Clanton.

Your druggist, knows a good thing when he sees it. He always keeps Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for sale because it is a good thing. He likes to sell it because it always gives perfect satisfaction.

Mr. W. M. Childress of Chapman, Ala., is visiting friends in this section.

The concert on Tuesday night was a complete success. There was a crowded house and an appreciative audience.

Commissioners' court met in regular session Monday, transacted all its business and adjourned same day.

Mr. A. L. Wambem of Thorsby was in town Monday.

We were glad to see Mr. G. W. Willis in town last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Culver were called to Fayetville on Tuesday on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Culver's mother.

Dr. O. M. Wisehart returned home last Friday from his trip to the Pan American Exposition. He gives a glowing account of his trip.

Better have a good medicine and not need it than to need it and not have it. See? Then just before you get hurt, buy a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. It is a record breaker for Wounds, Burns, Bruises, Scalds, etc., for man and beast. 50c. a bottle at all drug stores.

Prof. J. M. Collier of Jemison, was a visitor here Saturday.

Misses Jennie and Leona Dowling of Birmingham are visiting the family of Mr. R. A. Aldridge.

Mr. John Vanderveer is spending several days in Montgomery.

Sheriff Killgore went to the capital city Wednesday.

If you, your baby, or your horse has colic, Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure it and "don't you forget it." Only 50c. a bottle.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's adv in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every 60 to 90 days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in the future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1181½ 22st st., between 1st and 2d aves, Birmingham

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. S. D. Robinson and Miss Katie Walker.

Colored. Murphy Nix and Mat[illegible] Alcherson.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its generative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50c at Clanton Drug Co.

TOR

cheaper

n!

ns Insurance Association of Alabama

IAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE.
P. A D FOR THE PEOPLE."
COUNTY BRANCH

SEC'Y & TREAS
ton. P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

OUNTY AGENT:
LLOWAY, Coopers.

RD OF DIRECTORS

A. J Wilson — 7. C. J. Colers.
S. Robinson — 8 John. R. Parn
A. T. Hathcock — 9. W. A. Mims gs, outbuildings and contents, and l

d and lightning.

ed, Aug. 3, 1901, there has not been a s

most sensible method of insurance k
call on or address the County Agent
R T CALLOWAY, Coopers, Ala.

October 1st

12 First Ave.

NG AT CUT PRICES

r-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Qu

ER DRUG CO.,

CUT RATE DRUG STORE
HAM, AL

MMER CLOTHING

EST FASHIONS
LOWEST PRIC

T.FUL LINE FROM WHICH TO
YOUR CHOICE

A COMPLETE LINE OF

Hats, Shoes, Notio
E GROCERIES
A. KEMP, Clanton, Al

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' Court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July, second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

Mrs. G. S. Robinson of Birmingham, is visiting relatives here.

Mr Wallace C. Edler spent several days in Columbiana recently.

Col R. H. Knox went to Thorsby Monday.

Mr F. A. Aldridge left Tuesday for Walker county where he has secured a position.

Mr John Martin of Atlanta is visiting relatives here.

Mr and Mrs Forrest Potts of Missouri are visiting the father of the former, here.

Mr. J Bice of Thorsby was in town Wednesday

Mr S. Riggins of Thorsby was a visitor here Wednesday.

Judge Adams and Rev. F. M. Wise left on Wednesday morning for a two weeks trip to the Indian Territory.

Later They haven't gone yet; got as far as Birmingham and the Judge turned back No report from Bro. Woods

Prof. A J Showalter and daughter left on Wednesday morning for Roanoke, Ala

Mr John Stanfield has removed his family from Montgomery to Clanton

Your druggist knows a good thing when he sees it. He always keeps Dr Tichenor's Antiseptic for sale because it is a good thing. He likes to sell it because it always gives perfect satisfaction.

Mr. W. M Childress of Chapman, Ala., is visiting friends in this section

The concert on Tuesday night was a complete success. There was a crowded house and an appreciative audience.

Commissioners' court met in regular session Monday, transacted all its business and adjourned same day

Mr A. L. Wambem of Thorsby was in town Monday.

We were glad to see Mr. G. W. Wilks in town last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Culver were called to Fayetteville on Tuesday on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Culver's mother.

Dr. O. M Wisehart returned home last Friday from his trip to the Pan American Exposition. He gives a glowing account of his trip.

Better have a good medicine and not need it than to need it and not have it. See? Then just before you get hurt, buy a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. It is a record breaker for Wounds, Burns, Bruises, Scalds, etc., for man and beast. 50c a bottle at all drug stores.

Prof. J. M. Collier of Jemison, was a visitor here Saturday.

Misses Jennie and Leona Downing of Birmingham are visiting the family of Mr. R. A. Aldridge.

Mr. John Vanderveer is spending several days in Montgomery.

Sheriff Kilgore went to the capital city Wednesday.

If you, your baby, or your horse has colic, Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure it and you don't you forget it." Only 50c. a bottle.

Watch for Dr. A. J Massey' ad in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every 6 to 90 days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in the future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1318 22st st., between 1st and 2d aves. Birmingham

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. S. D Robinson and Miss Katie Walker.

Colored. Murphy Nix and Mattie Atcherson.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50c at Clanton Drug Co.

SPRING

Has come, and with it, a matchless showing of all pretty designs in Muslins, Organdies, Percales, Laces and Embroidery.

If you are afraid of having inferior goods imposed upon you, there is but one thing for you to do, come and give us a trial.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

FIRE! FIRE!

GREAT SACRIFICE SALE!

Goods damaged by removal must be sold at any price.

This is Your Great Opportunity.

All these goods are good as new, they were only slightly damaged by removal; the fire did not reach my store, but all the stock was removed.

Calicoes from 3 and 4 cents. Lawns from 4 cts.
Ladies' Hats 50 cents on the $1.
Men's and Children's Straw Hats 50 c on $1.
Clothing at half price.
Shoes at half price.
Big line of Umbrellas.
Embroidery 4 cents.

I have a big stock and it must positively be sold. Come in and see for yourselves and pick out your own bargains. You have never seen such values before. Respectfully,

H. TOURO, Clanton

C. R. MULLINS

REPRESENTS THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEWARK, N. J., AND SEVERAL LEADING FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

and will insure your lives and property at lowest current rates.

I also wish to state that I am getting in my Fall stock of the Latest Improved High arm SINGER MACHINES, and I have my office full of second hand machines of different kinds, all in good running order, that I will sell cheap for cash or trade for produce, most any old way and at any old price. I must have the room for my new stock which will arrive about September 1st.

Also have on sale at my office the latest improved SMOOTHING IRON with Fluter comb ned

NEEDLES, OIL, BANDS, CANS, ETC.

Regular office days Saturday and Monday.

C. R. MULLINS, Agent, Singer Office, Clanton.

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

NEW ROYAL

HIGH ARM. LIGHT RUNNING

WARRANTED TEN YEARS.

FIVE DRAWER $21.

The New Royal is not a cheap machine, but a high-class machine made out of good material, all parts adjustable and ball-bearing; has a good set of steel attachments and all of them work well.

I will exchange the New Royal for old machines and allow the full value of the old machine. Come and see me. I can sell you a machine as cheap as you can buy in Clanton.

Some secondhand machines from $4 up. Send me 25 cents in silver or stamps and an old needle for sample and I will send you 1 doz. needles to fit your machine.

REPAIR WORK GUARANTEED.

L. D. POPWELL, CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Nauseous Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most opatinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

Headache and Neuralgia cured by Dr. MILES' PAIN PILLS. "One cent a dose."

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Parry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bachelor mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T. U CRUMPTON, Prop'r.
MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERYTHING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L, Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS—SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE

FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1.00	1/2 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water, white 150 fire test, oil	18
½ bbl " " "	2.25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	13
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14-lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware and the very best Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please,

A. M. JOHNSON, Manager

The Best of Everything and Everything of the Best

THE BEST

GROCERIES
CANNED GOODS
DRY GOODS
NOTIONS
JEWELRY
GLASS AND CHINA WARE

B. E. JONES, Clanton.

PURINA FEED

KEEPS MULES UP FEED BILLS DOWN

CAPACITY: 25 CARS PER DAY.

PURINA MILLS ST. LOUIS, MO.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

AFFAIRS OF NATIONAL IMPORT AND CITIZENS

EMANATING FROM THE CAPITAL CITY

Battleship Wisconsin Ordered from Puget Sound to Pacific Ocean to Protect American Interests—A New National Labor Order.

Miss Ethel Reel, National Chairman of the Indian schools, has completed a uniform course of study for the Indian schools. The course treats of thirty-one subjects, designed to train the Indian to become supporting. Aside from the literary branches, it embraces a course in trades among which that of basketry, so natural to the redskin, has a place. This course has been in preparation for three years, and embodies Miss Reel's ideas of the Indian and of the Indian school service gleaned from personal observation in the field, together with the views of the various superintendents and Indian workers of the United States, many of whom have spent a score of years in the work. This is the first course of study in book form and the most comprehensive ever introduced into the Indian schools.

Admiral Kempff has forwarded to the Navy department a thrilling official report of the biting off of the leg of Quartermaster S. Mackie, of the gunboat Annapolis by a mammoth sea monster. Mackie was in swimming at Iloilo and tried to touch bottom. One of the seamen says he heard a gurgling sound beneath the water. A minute later Mackie appeared on the surface and shouted "shark." Mackie started to swim and although crippled reached the boat which took him aboard. The leg was bitten off below the knee, but the ship surgeon found it necessary to amputate the member between the knee and hip.

The Navy Department has reprimanded Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, acting upon the complaint made by former Secretery of the Navy Chandler for criticisms of the latter in Admiral Evans' book, "A Sailor's Log." The letter of reprimand was sent to the Rear Admiral yesterdry. It refers to his act as reprehensible and censures Admiral Evans for this "breach of the obligation imposed upon you as an officer of the navy of the United States." Ex-Senator Chandler has been furnished a copy of the reprimand.

The Divison of the Insular Affairs of the War Department has prepared a statement of receipts at the several custom houses in Cuba. The statement shows that the total receipts from custom sources during the six months ended June 30, 1901, were $7,947,805. The collections at the port of Havana cover the greater portion of the receipts and for the period named were $5,601,601. Cienfuegos comes next with $685,248, followed by Santiago with $550,289.

United States Consul General Hezekiah A. Gudger has publicly notified the Chinese that they are entitled to the protection of the United States consulate. He draws attention to the acts of violence committed against them in the recent insurgent raid along the railroad line and expresses the hope that their rights as foreigners will be in future recognized and respected.

A new national labor order, intended to bring together all classes of mechanics, helpers and laborers in the navy yards and arsenals throughout the country has been organized. The "Navy Yard Employes Protective Association" is the name chosen, but the word "Arsenal" will be added when the arsenal employes are taken in. W. A. Craig is president.

If Noah had lived in these days he would have unloaded all the stock in his ark company on the public and then there wouldn't have been any flood.

AT the race meeting at Paisley, Scotland, August 8, the grand stand crowded with people, collapsed. Many persons are reported to have been injured.

GEN. KITCHENER was not wounded as early reports last week affirmed.

THE Russian government has limited the number of Jewish students in her universities to three per cent of the total number of students, except in the University of Moscow, where they are entirely prohibited.

One satisfaction a fat woman has is that if she is going down stairs too fast and sits down suddenly she won't break anything if she can keep from bumping her head.—New York Press.

A musical fish has been discovered in lower California. It must be fine to hear it run its scales.

LATEST STATE NEWS.

NO INDICTMENT.

The inquest in the case of Patrick Taff, found murdered in his watermelon patch has been concluded and no indictment could be found on the evidence brought out. The Davis brothers held on suspicion have been released.

D. M. JONES, a livery man of Montgomery, was fatally injured last Wednesday by one of his horses dashing him against a tree.

SAD FATALITY.

Seven-year-old Wilmer Oglesby, of McCalla, died Thursday from the results of the accidental discharge of a shotgun whose load tore through the little fellow's left leg.

PROF. T. J. LLOYD was found dead in bed at his home in Dadeville Saturday morning.

THE HORSES WERE WILD.

At Shelby last Saturday a team of horses ran away severely injuring Mrs. W. H. Brymer and her baby. On the rampage the runaway team knocked down the horse upon which Jasper Carden was riding, ran over both horse and rider and breaking two of Mr. Carden's ribs.

THE Gadsden Commercial Club has appointed a committee to promote the extension of the Louisville & Nashville branch road from Oneonta to Gadsden, it being believed that the extension would be of great benefit to that town. The proposed extension will be seventeen miles in length, can be constructed for about $80,000, and will lie through a tract of land on which coal and iron have been found in large quantities.

MAYOR ARRESTED.

Hon. Joe R. Tate, mayor of Brookside, was arrested one day last week on a charge of aiding a prisoner in the jail to escape. The prisoner was a client of Mr. Tate's. The attorney denies the charge and says he can prove his innocence when tried.

BIRMINGHAM Commercial Club is at the head of a movement to obtain from Andrew Carnegie a library for the city.

THE Bebeers Dismond Co., will present to the Duchess of Cornwall and York on her arrival in South Africa 172 diamonds weighing 261 carats. The stones are held at 1,400 pounds, and are unique in shape, color and quality.

When they were writing the Ten Commandments they knew better than to tell us to love our neighbors' children as ourselves.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Mrs. Hagan and three children, of Hammond, La., sought refuge from a rainstorm in a school house, Friday, and were struck by lightoing and killed. Other parties who also entered the building were seriously insured by the shock.

MISSOURI was 80 years old Saturday.

The Navy Department has ordered the battleship Wisconsin from Puget Sound to the Pacific ocean coast of Panama to protect American interests there.

The transport Rosans has been ordered to sail from Seattle on Aug. 13. She will take recruits to South Alaska and bring back those there.

THE remains of Baron von Kettler, the German minister at Pekin who was murdered during the early days of the Chinese troubles, have reached his native land.

HEAVY gales off the Australian coast during July destroyed five vessels and several lives were lost.

Our British kinsfolk at various times have had ample reason to bemoan scanty harvests, but America has always been eager to supply deficiencies. Now it is reported that the crop of English curates is falling short. If our Old World cousins really need any help from this productive country in filling their pulpits, the United States is ready to ship large cargoes of curates at short notice.

An odorless onion has been evolved by some sensible gardener. His name should have a full page in the history of the world as a genuine benefactor of the human race.

A large number of Arctic expeditions are planned for this summer. As usual, no one knows exactly what the explorers expect to discover or of what use it will be when found.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN

Little Things.

A little burn will hurt;
A little sting will smart;
And little unkind words
Will grieve a little heart.
—Youth's Companion.

A Swap Party.

This is a game which will be found amusing for a children's summer entertainment. Each guest brings with him one or more bundles, neatly wrapped and tied. They may contain almost any small article, such as soap, a book, a handkerchief or candy, and should be wrapped in such a way as to deceive one regarding the contents, says the New York Tribune. Absurd toys will add to the fun. Each person recommends his own parcel, giving an imaginative description in his wittiest style, hoping in this way to make the others think his the best, and thus persuade them into an exchange. Often the packages are "swapped" several times, and much shrewdness is displayed in the trading. At a given time all the bundles are opened and the one who has succeeded in securing the best bargain receives the first prize. The unfortunate who has fared the worst is compelled to entertain the company with a story, game, recitation or in any way that his talent lies.

A Great Poet's Life.

Thomas Hood, the great English poet-humorist, was the son of a London publisher. He was born May 23, 1799, and died May 3, 1845. His father placed him in the counting house, but the boy's health failed and he was withdrawn. Later he tried to learn the art of engraving, his uncle undertaking to receive him as an apprentice. During this time young Hood, as was not unnatural for a publisher's son, began to contribute articles to the magazines. These compositions were distinguished by a delicate humor that attracted attention. In 1821 he was invited to become one of the subeditors of the London Magazine, and while he held this position he became acquainted with many of the great writers of the day. An intimacy sprang up between Hood and Charles Lamb, another humorist, and the author of the celebrated essay on the origin of roast pig. Encouraged and inspired by friends and congenial surroundings, he put forth a number of books of his own. He was the editor of various magazines now almost forgotten. He died in poverty, the English government, on them atter being brought to its attention, granting a pension to his widow. Hood is now best known by his poem, "The Song of the Shirt," setting forth the sad life of under-paid seamstresses, and "The Bridge of Sighs," another pathetic poem. "Up the Rhine" and "Whims and Oddities" are among his most amusing writings. His son, Tom Hood, also became a celebrated humorist.

Lightning is Not Zigzag.

It has been definitely determined that lightning is not zigzag, although it gives our unaided eyes that impression. The question has been settled by the camera, that great revealer of the secrets of nature. The term zigzag means turning at short angles, but instantaneous photographs of a lightning flash have shown that the turns are curves, and not angles. They look like angles to us because the flash occupies too little time for us to perceive it as it really is; the camera, however, gets the true impression.

Do you know why the lightning makes those turns? Why does it not move in a striaght line? Because it always seeks the path of least resistance, and as it condenses the air immediately in front of it, it turns aside to avoid that condensation. It is the resistance of the air that sometimes makes a flash divide into what is called forked lightning.

There are straight flashes, however, but they are seen when the cloud is close to the earth, and not enough resistance is met to divert them.

It might be well to correct an erroneous impression that exists about so-called "heat lightning." That is the term commonly applied to the lightning that we see in broad sheets near the western horizon, and that is not accompanied by thunder. But it is ordinary lightning, nevertheless, and the only reason why we do not hear the thunder is because the storm is too far away. It is properly called sheet lightning, but "heat lightning" is a misnomer.—Philadelphia Record.

A Rainy Day.

Such a stormy day. The rain came down in torrents, and the wind blew it against the window and rattled the shutters against the side of the house. Behind the window stood Mildred and pressed her nose against the glass, while two big tears rolled down her cheeks. "'Cause I did so want to go out an' play; Mary an' me was goin' to have a tea party in my front yard, too."

Then somebody came and stood beside Mildred. "Mamma is sorry, dear," she said, "and we'll see what we can find to do in the house, while it's raining."

Just then there came a ring at the door bell and an eager little voice said: "Auntie told me I could come and play with Mildred for a while," and a plump little body scrambled upstairs and ran into Mildred's arms.

"I'm not one tiny speck wet," went on the chatterbox, "'cause I had my rubbers on and a numberella and such a big coat, and I made b'lieve I was a duck, and that ran just ran off my back—I mean off the numberella."

"What shall we play?" Mary went on as mamma left the little girls together. "Oh, here's your blocks. Let's each build a castle and our dollies shall live in them and go call on each other." So they set to work and two fine houses soon arose, for their hands could go almost as fast as their tongues.

"Now," said Mildred, "my Arabella Marink is comin' to visit, Jennie Belladonna. 'How did you do, ma'am an' I hope your fam'ly's all well. My oldest child has the squeazles, poor thing, an' I was goin' for the doctor.'"

"Dear me," cried Mrs. Belladonna, "I'm real sorry for you; my two boys have just got over the chicken coop and you know what that is!"

"Well, I can't stay," went on Mme. Arabella; "come an' see me an' stay to tea. Don't bring your chil'ren, 'cause they might get the infatuation. Good-bye, 'or rewore.'"

"What does that mean—'or rewore'?" asked Mary.

"I don' know," said Mildred, "but ladies say it when they go away."

"All right—I mean 'or rewore,'" cried Mrs. Belladonna. "Now I'll come to see you."

But just then in came mamma smiling and behind her was Leila, the cook, carrying a tray. "I thought we'd have afternoon tea in the house today, instead of in the yard," she said. And Mary and Mildred jumped up and clapped their hands, while por Mrs. Belladonna and Mme. Arabella fainted away for joy.

They were soon brought back to life, though, and sat at the table with their little mothers, and the poor children with the "squeazles" and the "infatuation" were forgotten.—Brooklyn Eagle.

How We Saved the Cherries.

HOW WE SAVED THE CHERRIES.

Fold map of the United States in the middle, fold again crosswise, open it, and in the centre is the place where I am listening to a catbird scold because our Maltese cat, Ginger, has left the barn and is coming slowly across the yard toward the house for her dinner.

Ginger is a very busy house-mother just now. She has to care for and train her three kittens, black Aguinaldo, black-and-white Hobson, and the perfect Maltese, Fred Funston. Ginger is coming to tell her mistress it is dinner time.

The catbird dislikes Ginger. Ginger dislikes the catbird today. She was punished yesterday for killing and eating one. She walks straight ahead to the sill of the window where I am sitting.

The catbird mocks the kittens: "Mew! mew! mew!"

Ginger takes no notice.

All catbirds dislike cats as much as they do snakes. Last year we thought we would make us of this knowledge and save our cherries, which the birds were stealing, so we put a stuffed cat in the cherry-tree.

Did we save our cherries? Yes, but not in the way we expected.

When the stuffed cat was discovered in the tree, a bird flew around and told all its relatives. You see, they do not have any bird telephone line.

One of their number could not leave. She was sitting on a round nest made of weeds and grass and leaves, in which were six spotless, grenish blue eggs; but all the others came to see the cat. They perched on the yellow rose-tree, on the "bridal-wreath," on the lilac shrubs, up on the plum-tree, and, still higher, on a swaying branch of the young walnut.

They looked at, they ridiculed, and they laughed at that cat, but it did not move. They cried, "Mew!" in every tone of voice the wonderful mimics could invent, but that stuffed cat did not wink an eye. They started a concert, mocking the notes of other birds, until it sounded as if the forest across the river had been transplanted, with all its blue jays, redbirds, orioles, sparrows and even meadowlarks, right into our back dooryard. But it was no use; that stuffed cat could not be charmed or frightened.

Then they held a council. The family, from the kitchen windows, watched the result.

Those catbirds belong to the thrush family, and oh, how they do sing morning and evening! The children have little books and write down their songs, so we know they can sing. But what horrible discords they did make when their council ended;

They did not like the idea of having that cat up in their cherry-tree, we know by the tones of their voices, and by the way they jerked their tails from side to side; and they made up their minds that, cat or no cat, they would have the cherries.

The bird from the walnut flew to the top of the cherry tree, and went back with a mouthful of cherry. The bird from the rose bush went to the tree lower down and took a bite. Then several birds went taking a snip from a luscious cherry above, below and all around the cat. At last—what do you think?—a beautiful large catbird flew right at the stuffed thing in the tree and cried in most derisive tones, "Mew! mew!"

How did we save our cherries? Oh, we had to pick them before they were ripe.—Youth's Companion.

Was It a Compliment?

It was at the end of her first week in the new school, she having been transferred from down town, that the teacher asked little Wilhelmina how she liked the new school. The little one's face brightened up as she answered.

"Oh, I like it first rate, and I like you, too."

"That's very nice; but why do you like me?" queried the teacher.

"Oh, you see," said the little pupil, "I always did like a bossy teacher."—New York Times.

SOMETHING ABOUT BOILS.

Slight Injuries, High Living, and Close Shaving Alike May Cause Them.

Contrary to the common belief boils are not indicative of blood disease. They are really indications of local poisoning by puss-bearing germs, and the boil is an abscess. Every pin prick, every scratch, every abrasion, every cut with a razor or pocketknife, every splinter that enters the skin may cause a boil. Nor need the wound be a serious one; it may be so minute as to be invisible to the unaided eye. Nor is the result always produced, for if it should be, every slight wound, every thorn prick, every scratch of a cat, every bite of a dog, every abrasion of the skin, would be followed by disastrous, if not fatal, consequences. The reason for this immunity is that there is a certain inherent power of the body to resist these noxious agents, and it is only when the powers of the body are weakened by disease that the morbific agents can thrive in the body and accomplish their evil work.

In this sense, then, boils are diseases due of the blood, but it is not a disease in itself. High living also favors boils. Dr. Reid, speaking of pus, and incidentally of boils, says: "Job was probably run down by a long period of debauchery. We read that the devil had him in tow some time before his boils broke out. If, now, he could have had the counsel of three good physicians, instead of as many tiresome theologians, he would have had his system toned up; his broken potsherd, with which 'he scraped himself withal,' thus spreading sympathy and infection, would have been taken from him, and he would have been taught a few lessons in sanitary science instead of theology."

The reason why a boil is always in the worst place is because that is the most exposed place. The back of the neck, where the collar rubs the microbes into the skin; the wrist, where the cuffs irritate, and make the entrance of germs more easy; the top of the foot, where the shoe pinches; the razor-swept chin — are all favorite "worst places."—From the American Druggist and Pharmaceutical Record.

On the Shores of the Yukon Delta.

During the past year an officer of the Coast Survey traversed the front of the Yukon delta, the first white man who had ever followed this shore. He was accompanied by three men, and the party, with all their provisions and camp outfit, was carried in an open canoe and a small rowboat. At the river mouths there is comparatively deep water immediately off the coast, but between these the distinction between land and sea is very indefinite, and the mud banks laid bare at low tide may be a mile or more in width. Even with a canoe drawing but a few inches of water it was often impossible to get closer to the shore, so that to make camp it was necessary to pack outfit and provisions on the men's backs, sinking at every step knee deep in the thick, blue mud. Even ashore, however, the difficulties were not past. For long stretches this coast is but a few inches above ordinary high tide. On account of its shallowness this part of Bering Sea is subject to extraordinary tides. When the wind blows strong from the northeast the water goes with it, leaving extensive bare flats and shoals along the shore, while with an opposite wind the water piles up in Norton Sound, flooding the lower portions of the delta coast, as is evidenced by the line of drift-wood nearly always to be seen some distance inland. One night the party were rudely awakened by the water running through their tents, and went out to find the tide over the bank on which they were camped. After that they took the precaution to elevate their beds.—G. R. Putnam, in Scribner's.

An Emergency Case.

The doctor in charge of the school had always laughed at the idea of our ever making practical use of our "First Aid to the Injured" lessons. He had muttered something about "shoemakers sticking to their lasts," and then had said: "You teach the children—that's your line, and wait for me to come if anything happens."

Therefore when our delicate little Nannie fell down stairs we had not merely the desire to give her immediate relief, but also a deep-seated but unspoken wish to show that man that we could do something. Nannie had murumred, "My ankle—I twisted my ankle," before she fainted. To bind it then might help, and certainly could not harm her. The emergency bandages were produced, and, delighted to see that there was as yet no appreciable swelling, we bound the leg in most approved style from toes to knee. We had just finished when the doctor came in. He snorted at sight of the materials around; then, after an examination of a few minutes he said: "Very good—very good, indeed! But you've bandaged the wrong foot."—New York Times.

Programme Clocks.

Clocks that are so made as to sound signals of various kinds are coming into use among the schools. A large school building will have one master clock, and this is connected with other clocks, one in each room, and also with a bell in each room. The connection is by electric wires, so that all the rooms have exactly the same time, and all the signals are rung on the second.

Would Change of Place Bring Happiness?

Half the people in the world think they could do better and be happier elsewhere than where they happen to be placed. They see only the thorns, the drudgery and the disagreeable things in their own vocation, and only the flowers and the pleasant experiences in the vocations of others.—Success.

JOKER'S BUDGET

MARY'S BIRD.

Mary had a little bird
That once was full of song
And everywhere that Mary went
The birdie went along

She did not keep it in a cage;
There was no need of that;
The birdie couldn't fly away
'Twas fastened on her hat.
—Philadelphia Press.

A FORCED ALLIANCE.

Muggins—He married his cook, I believe.

Buggins—Yes, you see she won't leave.—Philadelphia Record.

WELL RECOMMENDED.

"Andrew Carnegie wants me for president yet."

"Oh, no; he could get a Scotchman in lots of towns in the United States."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A MISLEADING TRUTH.

"Chills, eh?" said the doctor. "How many times were you swimming to-day?"

"Once," said the boy who had met at one o'clock in the afternoon and got out at five.—Indianapolis Journal.

WHICH WAS IT?

"Are we slaves or are we free?" thundered the orator.

"Some of us are married," was the answer from the last row.—New York Sun.

OVERSTOCKED.

"I argued and argued with Nibbs to have more confidence."

"Was he influenced by your argument?"

"He's got so much confidence he can't stay around where he is."—Denver Press.

A TRUTHFUL MAN.

She—Dearest, am I the first you ever loved?

He—Little sweetheart, the moment I could look into those trusting eyes and tell a falsehood is the time I should prepare yourself to hear the truth.—Tit-Bits.

THE PANG OF IT.

"Why, dear, what's the matter with you? Bad news from your lawyer?"

"Oh, worse than that. He writes that he is longing for me and his picture every day."

"That's no reason for crying."

"Yes, but I find I put another photograph in his trunk in mistake."—Brooklyn Life.

HOW CUSTOMS VARY.

She—In some parts of America a man marries each of the relatives strikes him with a club by way of welcome into the family.

He—Yes, and in many parts of America when a man marries the bride's relatives strike him for a loan by way of welcoming him into the family.—New York Times.

BLUBBER.

We were startled to find the little girl in tears.

"Why do you weep?" we asked kindly.

"If one blubbers, one will look nice enough to eat" she added, looking shyly up at us.

Of course it were vain to tell her this was a crass no sequitur; she was, after all, a woman.—Journal.

TOO LIBERAL.

Wife—Here's an advertisement in the paper that you'd better look at. It says a man is wanted, and he'll be worked to death, and he'll not get enough to live on.

Husband—Says he won't be worked to death, eh?

Wife—Yes; and they won't give him enough to live on.

Husband—Some catch about him.—Pick-Me-Up.

REAL MEAN.

"Them women make me tired," said the First Telegraph Operator as he opened his switch.

"What's the matter now?" asked the Second Telegraph Operator.

"One of 'em was real sick and wanted to know why we didn't let her put a postscript to a message without charging her for it. As if it wasn't part of the message."—Baltimore American.

HIS ONE ACT OF WISDOM.

"That young Jollings spends about the biggest fool I ever saw. He does is go gallivanting around spending money like water and letting girls who want to have a good time make a monkey of him. How does such a fellow do the trick?"

"You've got me guessing, too, yet, in spite of his general folly he did one thing once that was wiser than anything you or I ever did."

"What was that?"

"Picked out a millionaire for his father."

PROVEN.

"Action and reaction are claimed the manly graces," in the course of the oration that was to shake the world.

The experienced backer of himself. "That's true," he said, "the harder a fellow has to work to make a good impression on a girl the easier it is for him to shake her during the picnic season."

The only question that remains in the reader's mind is how the accident was the experience investigated into the consequence?—Buffalo Express.

PREFERENCES.

Poetry sing about the silver moon
Its dulcet phraseology,
Which just reminds the same old tune,
Poor excuses for apology,
Poetry! for sentiment's display,
There is no longer room in us!
We've got electric lights and say
They're very much more luminous.

Poetry sing about each woodland breeze,
That greets us so caressingly—
As if we had none else than these
We'd suffer most distressingly.
But since this summer heat began
To make our collars pliable
We view that an electric fan
Is vastly more reliable.
—Washington Star.

HUMOROUS.

Teacher—Name a very inflammable material. Willie Wiseboy—Money.

Jones—At what age do you think a man should get married? Joax—At the parsonage.

"Miss Mabel," he murmured, "will you share my humble lot?" "Yes," she answered, "if there's a nice little home on it."

Scribbler—"I hear you are writing a novel. Have you done much work on it?" Scrawler—"Yes, I've engaged a press agent."

Baneson—Did your father-in-law say anything on you when you married his daughter? Baneson—Yes, the rest of the family.

Slobbs—Do you think a college education pays? Slobbs—Well, there's Bjones. He's had a college education and he never pays.

Briggs—What has become of that stuck-up fellow, Powers? Waggs—He has gone abroad to visit relatives.

Briggs—The Powers of Europe, I suppose.

He—Will you be my wife? She—I would say not. He—Whew! That's rather—She—However, as no girl ever says exactly what she should I'll say—Yes!

Slobbs—Bjones has failed in everything else, and now he is going into business. Slobbs—If he can make the right sort of failure in that he ought to get rich.

Merchant—But I advertised for a married man, and you say you're single. Applicant—O! I'm willing to change all that in short order. Got any marriageable daughters?

"Mrs. Gray is aging quite rapidly, isn't she?" "Yes, indeed. I suppose she has some great trouble and worry." "No; I believe it's the trouble and worry she has in trying to make her look young."

"Hello!" exclaimed the thunderbolt; "how have you been getting along lately?" "Well," replied the lightning, "I've been traveling through the west, and I've managed to pick up a few things of value."

"After all," mused the bookish man, "I am somewhat like Andrew Carnegie. He gives libraries away. And my friends borrow my books, and I get to return them. There isn't a great deal of difference."

Mrs. Muggins—I used to be so fond of fiction before I was married. Mrs. Buggins—And don't you read much now? Mrs. Muggins—No; after the things my husband tells me about why I stay so late getting home, mere printed fiction seems so tame and unimaginative.

An Embarrassed Man.

Three jolly maidens, apparently not in the least forlorn, were comfortably seated in a car when a slender young man entered and attached himself to a strap. He might have been consumptive. He looked thin almost to emaciation. He had no more chest than William M. Evarts and was as flat chested as a razor back. His immaculate dress indicated a satisfactory condition of finances, but his hollow cheek and sunken eye were pitiful. After a brief consultation with her friends the girl in the middle, beaming with sympathy arose and offered him her seat. What she said was, "Be good enough, sir, to accept this seat; you seem tired." This hardly took away what little breath the invalid had, but he managed to stutter out: "Why, bless your sweet soul, I wouldn't deprive you of your seat for a thousand dollars. Thank you all the same. You are an angel." She did not force him, but sat down and blushed. Six healthy specimens of the feminine persuasion hopped up and insisted him to take their seats, but he declined all offers and hobbled quickly out at the next station. It was not his station, however, for he took the next train and continued his journey without further embarrassment.—New York Press.

The Resemblance.

"Excuse me," said the new neighbor, who leaned over the fence, "you have a daughter who plays the piano, I believe."

"I have," answered the man on the other.

"Well," said the other, "I have been a great student of nature in my time—I have spent many years on a farm—and I want to say that your daughter's music reminds me of the music of a brook."

"Ah," said the pleased father, "I could see that there is an undefinable, murmuring sweetness running through her music that resembles a brook, now that you have called my attention to it."

"Yes," agreed the new neighbor, "there is all that. And besides, there is another way in which the resemblance is very marked. Probably you will read that line that calls attention to the fact that the brook goes on forever."

And with a cold stare he walked slowly back to his porch and picked up a newspaper.—Indianapolis Sun.

JOKERS BUDGET

MARY'S BIRD.

Mary had a little bird
That once was full of song,
And everywhere that Mary went
The birdie went along.

She did not keep it in a cage,
There was no need of that;
The birdie couldn't fly away,
'Twas fastened on her hat.
—Washington Star.

A FORCED ALLIANCE.

Muggins—He married his cook. He love.
Buggins—Yes, you see she wanted leave.—Philadelphia Record.

WELL RECOMMENDED.

"Andrew Carnegie will come to yet."
"Oh no, he could get a job as in lots of towns in the States."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A MISLEADING TRUTH.

"Boh! eh?" said the keen-eyed
tor. "How many times were you swimming today?"
"Once," said the boy, who had at one o'clock in the afternoon and out at five.—Indianapolis News.

WHICH WAS IT?

"Are we slaves or are we free thundered the orator. He paused for reply.
"Neither of us are married," came answer from the last row of seats.—
Yonkers Star.

OVERSTOCKED.

I argued and argued with
"I have more ideas
Was he influenced by your
He got so much of my tea
I'm around where he is.—*Detroit
Free Press.*

A TRUTHFUL MAN.

She—Dearest, am I the first girl
you loved?
He—Little sweetheart, the man could look into those trusting "blue and tell a falsehood is not to live prepared our edit to live the truth.—
Pick-Me-Up.

THE PANG OF IT.

"Why, dear, what's the matter you?" Bad news from your husband
Oh, worse than that. He wrote that he is longing for me and picture every day."
"That's no reason for crying."
"Yes, but I find I put mother's graph in his trunk in mistake for —Brooklyn Life.

HOW CUSTOMS VARY.

She—In some parts of Australia
a man marries each of the bride's gives strikes him with a stick by wedding me into the family.
He—Yes, and in many parts
America when a man marries the bride's relatives strikes him loan by way of welcoming him family.—New York Times.

BLUBBER.

We were startled to find the girl in tears.
"Why do you weep?" we asked
ly.
"If one blubbers, one will look nice enough to eat!" faltered looking shyly up at us.
Of course it were vain to tell
this was a crass non sequitur;
was, after all, a woman.—*Detroit
nal.*

TOO LIBERAL.

Wife—Here's an advertisement paper that you'd better look says a man is wanted, and he worked to death, and he'll enough to live on.
Husband—Says he won't be to death, eh?
Wife—Yes; and they promise
enough to live on.
Husband—Some catch about
Pick-Me-Up.

REAL MEAN.

"Them women make me tired,"
the First Telegraph Operator, opened his switch.
"What's the matter now?"
Second Telegraph Operator.
"One of 'em was just in wanted to know why we her put a postscript to a ten-word sage without charging her extra it wasn't part of the message.—
Baltimore American.

HIS ONE ACT OF WISDOM.

"That young Jollikings seems about the biggest fool I ever he does is go gallivanting around ing money like water and girls who want to have a make a monkey of him. Why does such a fellow do the world
"You've got me guessing there yet, in spite of his general he did one thing once that wiser than anything you or I
"What was that?"
"Picked out a millionaire father."

PROVEN.

"Action and reaction are equal," claimed the manly graduate,
course of the oration that was the world.
The experienced bachelor himself. "That's true," he harder a fellow has to work good impression on a girl she is for him to shake her picnic season."
The only question that the reader's mind is how accident was the experience inveigled into the commencement
ence?—Buffalo Express.

PREFERENCES.

They sing about the silver moon
In dulcet phraseology,
Each poet sounds the same old tune,
Nor reason for apology
Also for sentiment a display,
There is no longer room in us!
We get electric lights and say
They're very much more luminous.

They sing about each woodland breeze,
That creeps so softly caressingly—
But if we had a breeze like these
We'd suffer it not distressingly.
For since this summer heat began
To make our collars pliable
We've found an electric fan
Is vastly more reliable.
—Washington Star.

HUMOROUS.

Teacher—Name a very inflammable material. Willie Wiseboy—Mother.

Hoax—At what age do you think a man should get married? Joax—At the parsonage.

"Miss Maloney," he murmured, "will you share my humble lot?" "Yes," she answered, "if there's a nice little house in it."

Scribbler—I hear you are writing a book. How much work is it? Yes, I've engaged a press agent.

Jones—Is your father-in-law with you when you married Jackson—Yes, the minister.

Jones—I think a college education is a great thing. Well, there's my son. He had a college education.

Wagg—Have you been some of that time abroad? Wagg—He went there to visit relatives.

Jones—Been to Europe, I suppose.

Brown—Is your wife? She—I don't know. Brown—Why! That's funny. Why? Brown—Because I thought as no girl could resist you, what she should I ill with you.

Bigelow—Bigelow has failed in everything he has gone into. He is going into business now. If he can make a success of failure in that he ought to get rich.

Merchant—Did I advertised for a married man, and you say you're single. Applicant—Yes. I'm willing to change that in short order. Got any marriageable daughters?

"Mr. Gray is aging quite rapidly, don't she?" "Yes, indeed. I suppose it's some great trouble and worry." "No. I believe it's the trouble and worry she has in trying to make her look youthful."

"Hello!" exclaimed the thunderhead, "how have you been getting along lately?" "Well," replied the cyclone, "I've been traveling through the west, and I've managed to pick up a few things of value."

"After all," mused the bookish man, "I am somewhat like Andrew Carnegie. He gives libraries away, and my friends borrow my books, and forget to return them. There isn't a great deal of difference."

Mrs. Muggins—I used to be so fond of fiction before I was married. Mrs. Buggins—And don't you read much now? Mrs. Muggins—No; after the day's my husband tells me about why he is so late getting home, mere printed fiction seems so tame and unimaginative.

An Embarrassed Man.

Three jolly maidens, apparently not in the least forlorn, were comfortably seated in a car when a slender young man entered and attached himself to a strap. He might have been prosperous. He looked thin almost to emaciation. He had no more flesh than William M. Evarts and was as full crested as a razor back. His immaculate dress indicated a satisfactory condition of finances, but the hollow cheek and sunken eye told a story. After a brief consultation with her friends the girl in the middle, beaming with sympathy, arose and offered him her seat. What she said was: "Be good enough, sir, to accept this seat. You seem tired." This early took away what little breath he retained, but he managed to gasp out: "Why, bless your sweet soul, I wouldn't deprive you of your seat for a thousand dollars. Thank you all the same. You are an angel." She did not force him, but sat down with red, hot, healthy specimens of the masculine persuasion hopped up and urged him to take their seats, but he declined all offers and hobbled painfully out at the next station. It was not his station, however, for he took the next train and continued his journey without further embarrassment.—New York Press.

The Resemblance.

"Excuse me," said the new neighbor, who leaned over the fence, "you have a daughter who plays the piano, I believe."

"I have," answered the man on the porch.

"Well," said the other, "I have been a great student of nature in my time—have spent many years on a farm—and I want to say that your daughter's music reminds me of the music of a brook."

"Ah," said the pleased father, "I could see that there is an undefinable, murmuring sweetness running through her music that resembles a brook, now that you have called my attention to it."

"Yes," agreed the new neighbor, "there is all that. And besides, there is another way in which the resemblance is very marked. Probably you have read that line that calls attention to the fact that the brook goes on forever."

And with a cold stare he walked slowly back to his porch and picked up a newspaper.—Indianapolis Sun.

PURE FOOD LAW VIOLATED.

Interesting Facts Concerning the Roasting of Coffee Brought Out by Scientific Experts—Presence of Bacteria.

TOLEDO, August 10th—The jury in Judge Meck's court in this city has found James White, a local grocer, guilty of selling adulterated coffee. The prosecution was based on a package of Ariosa coffee.

The State of Ohio, through the Pure Food Commission, prosecuted White. The case was on trial for nearly a month, and attracted national attention.

The manufacturers of Ariosa coffee conducted the defense for Grocer White. Attorneys of eminence were retained to defend him, but after a short consultation a verdict of guilty was returned by the jury. The State of Ohio considers this a big victory. Pure Food Commissioner Blackburn has been waging a warfare on spurious food articles and the department has been successful.

The complaint of the State of Ohio was that Ariosa coffee was coated with a substance which concealed defects in the coffee and made it appear better than it is. The State charged this coating or glazing was a favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria.

Prof. G. A. Kirchmaier, of this city, a well known chemist, was the principal witness for the State. He testified that he had made scientific examinations of samples of Ariosa purchased from Grocer White in the open market, and found that each berry contained an average of 300 bacteria. Mr. Kirchmaier further testified that other coffees he examined contained few bacteria or none at all. He declared that the glazed coffee was not a wholesome food product.

Chemist Schmidt, of Cincinnati, corroborated the testimony of Prof. Kirchmaier. The State did not present further testimony.

The defense secured some of the most eminent chemists and scientists in the United States to give testimony in their behalf. Prof. H. W. Wiley, of the United States Agricultural Department; Prof. Vaughn, of Ann Arbor University; Profs. Bielle and Webber, of the Ohio State University, were called to defend Ariosa. Dr. Wiley made a careful examination of the method of manufacturing. He told of the 19,000,000 eggs used yearly in the preparation of this glazing. On this point, in cross-examination, the State's attorney deftly drew from him the information that these eggs might be kept in cold storage for a year or two at a time.

The experts who heard Dr. Wiley's testimony were pleased to listen to so famous a chemist. The doctor at one point in his testimony explained very clearly how it is that the egg put into the coffee pot by the housewife settles the coffee. He said that the heat coagulates the egg, and as it sinks to the bottom of the pot it carries the fine particles of coffee with it, and thus clarifies the drink. It is the act of coagulation in the coffee pot that does the work. Later on in his cross examination, he admitted that when the egg was put on Ariosa coffee at the factory it became coagulated, and as egg cannot be coagulated but once, that the coating on coffee was practically no value, as a "settler" when it reached the coffee pot.

Professor Wiley acknowledged that the glazing might be a favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria, although he would not testify positively either way because he was not a bacteriologist.

Professor Vaughn, of Ann Arbor, also a witness for the defense, said he found bacteria on Ariosa coffee.

Professor Bielle, another witness for the defense, testified he found any number of lively bacteria on Ariosa coffee he examined, and agreed that glazed coffee surely was a more favorable medium for the propagation of bacteria than unglazed coffee.

Pure Food Commissioner Blackburn says: "The State is very much elated over its victory. We are now considering the advisability of informing every grocer in the State of Ohio that it is an infraction of the laws to sell Ariosa, and at the same time give warning to consumers that the coffee is an adulterated food article."

The verdict of the jury in this case is of national importance because a great many other States have pure food laws like that of Ohio, and it is natural to suppose that similar action will be taken by other Pure Food Commissioners to prevent the sale of glazed coffees.

Snakes Sold by the Pound.

Snakes can now be bought by the pound in Klamath, Ore., where there is quite an extensive industry.

Children gather their aprons full of snakes as they would of wild flowers, and little boys gather them in their pockets for pets. The price paid is 25 cents per pound and a ready market is found for them in Minnesota. The species is of a dark color and when full grown is about three feet long. So great is the supply that tons of the reptiles could be shipped annually if there were orders for them. The snakes are used for medicinal purposes, as a superior quality of oil can be manufactured from the variety found at Klamath Falls.

Consul-General Mason reports from Berlin that Germany's imports of American machinery and tools last year aggregated 4757 tons, against 588 tons from Great Britain and 388 tons from France. The German people also bought 20,249 tons of agricultural machinery and implements "made in the United States."

"The manufacture of pens in the United States is confined to only four companies, although one might suppose there were many more," said a Connecticut man who is engaged in that line of work, the other day. "That does not include the making of gold pens, which is a separate industry, but pens of steel, brass and German silver. The steel for these pens is brought chiefly from Sheffield, Eng., as is the best blade steel. Many experiments have been made with steel manufactured over here, but it never has sufficiently stood the test. The imported product comes in sheets about three or four inches wide and from sixteen to twenty feet long. The impression would be that such little articles so universally used as pens would be entirely machine made. Not so. From the moment the sheet steel is started on its way into pens till the finished goods are boxed and labeled it is handled by employes seventeen different times. The points, even, have to be ground twice—ground and cross-ground, as we style it in the factories."

An Expensive Joke.

Twelve New Yorkers recently learned that it is not always well to spring a joke on a Supreme Court justice. They formed a jury to try a damage suit and returned a sealed verdict which was found to be a disagreement. The jurors took this as an excellent joke and smiled broadly when the judge opened the envelope. The smiles ceased, however, when the judge imposed a fine of $35 apiece and told them to produce the money or go to jail. The money was forthcoming and the gloom was so thick in the Supreme Court during the day that it could be cut with a knife.

Illiteracy Causes Odd Statement.

A Topeka medicine company has put out a lot of testimonials. The first is from a woman, who says: "Having suffered fifteen years from a fatal disease, I am happy to say that I am now entirely cured."

Thomas Ball, the sculptor, painter and author, has just celebrated his 82d birthday at his home on South Mountain avenue, Monclair, N. J.

Of the 196,500,000 Mohammedans in the world, only 18,000,000 live in Turkey.

$100 Reward. $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Japan has two imperial universities, one at Tokio, the other at Kioto. The latter is only three years old.

My Hair

"I had a very severe sickness that took off all my hair. I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor and it brought all my hair back again."
W. D. Quinn, Marseilles, Ill.

One thing is certain,—Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow. This is because it is a hair food. It feeds the hair and the hair grows, that's all there is to it. It stops falling of the hair, too, and always restores color to gray hair.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Constipation

Does your head ache? Pain back of your eyes? Bad taste in your mouth? It's your liver! Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation, headache, dyspepsia. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers
50 CTS. OF DRUGGISTS, OR R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H.

PRICE, 25c.

"The Sauce that made West Point famous."
McILHENNY'S TABASCO.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use | Thompson's Eye Water

Best For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Skating was a sport of the Northmen in prehistoric times.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa.

The value of Italy's exports of eggs nearly equals that of her olive oil.

See advt. of SMITHDEAL'S BUSINESS COLLEGE

The invention of the organ is attributed to Archimedes, about 220 B. C.

FRAGRANT

SOZODONT

for the TEETH and BREATH

New Size SOZODONT LIQUID . . . 25c
New Patent Box SOZODONT POWDER . . 25c
Large LIQUID and POWDER . . . 75c

25c

At the Stores or by Mail, postpaid, for the Price.

A Dentist's Opinion: "As an antiseptic and hygienic mouthwash, and for the care and preservation of the teeth and gums, I cordially recommend Sozodont. I consider it the ideal dentifrice for children's use." [Name of writer upon application.]
HALL & RUCKEL, NEW YORK.

LOVEMAN, JOSEPH & LOEB,

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

The Annual August Sale; Freight Prepaid.

Everything in the Furniture Department reduced, is marked with a red tag.

Here are regular Goods bearing new price tags that are a quarter or a third less than they were a week ago.

Have you been here in the past few months and admired some particular piece of furniture that you did not purchase because you felt the price was a bit beyond the means of your purse?—if so, come now and get the identical piece at practically your own figure—nearly everything in the regular stock is at revised prices, and so it is quite probable that the thing which you have seen and admired has been revised in price.

Still everything has not been cut. Bear that in mind. But the things that are revised bear the red tag with former price and present price plainly marked.

Leather Chairs.

LEATHER LIBRARY CHAIRS, Mahoganized birch; tufted back; plain seat; full sized colonial design; regular price $22.50—August Furniture Sale Price 16.00

LEATHER LIBRARY CHAIRS, heavy golden oak, upholstered in the very best buffed leather; hair and moss filling; fluted posts and columns; handsomely carved rim; very comfortable and large; regular price $20.00—August Furniture Sale Price 15.00

ROCKER to match 15.00

COLONIAL LEATHER CHAIRS, made from the very best leather; filling of hair; the same rocker that you see advertized in the magazines for $27.50; our regular price $27.00—August Furniture Sale Price 22.50

SOLID MAHOGANY LIBRARY CHAIRS, very light and durable; upholstered in the very best leather; regular price $25.00—August Furniture Sale Price 20.00

PANTASOTE INVALID CHAIR, golden oak; the very thing for those who are in any way disabled; very comfortable; easy to get up from and to lie down in; regular price $26.00—August Furniture Sale Price 20.00

MORRIS CHAIR, golden oak; made of the very best quarter sawed oak; spring seat; cushions are reversible and made from velour, with hair and moss filling; this is an unusual bargain; regular price $13.50—August Furniture Sale Price 10.00

Couches.

LEATHER COUCH, Mahoganised; heavily carved frame, with claw feet, 80 inches long and 30 inches wide, has ten rows of biscuit tufts; leather used is of the very best; filling is of moss and hair; construction is also a very great talking point; regular price $37.50—August Furniture Sale Price 29.75

GOLDEN OAK COUCH, upholstered in the very finest French tapestry; 80 inches long and 34 inches wide; has ten rows of biscuit tufts; regular price $23.50—August Furniture Sale Price 17.00

GOLDEN OAK VELOUR BOX COUCH, upholstered in very fine quality imported French velour empire green; has the very best spring construction and a deep box; regular price $37.50—August Furniture Sale Price 29.75

Diners.

QUARTER SAWED OAK DINERS, hand polished; full box seat; made from the very best selected oak; extra large in size; it's an exceptionally good design; regular price $3.75—August Furniture Sale Price $3.00, or a set of these for 17.50

GENUINE VIENNA BENT WOOD CHAIR, made by the celebrated firm of J. & J. Kohn, Vienna, Austria; regular price $2.75; during August Furniture Sale 2.10

A few odds and ends leather seat diners ranging in price from $3.75 to $6.50, to be sold during the August Furniture Sale at half price.

FREE, a new literary magazine, THE BOOKWORM, samples of new Fall Goods, and our new 1901 (Oct. 1) Catalogue will be sent FREE on request. State where you saw advertisement.

McLean's STRENGTHENING CORDIAL

Promotes Appetite. Aids Digestion. Tones up the System. Relieves Cramps and Pains. Clears the Mind. Regulates the Stomach. Is an Immediate Bracer, as well as a Permanent Effectual Tonic.

It Has No Equal

as a hot weather remedy for lassitude and heat exhaustion. It benefits all the functions of the body, making them healthy and strong. Your druggist has it, or will get it. It means health and comfort for $1.00.

Made by
The Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Smithdeals

is the oldest and only business college in Va. owning its building—a grand new one. 50 centrally. Ladies & gentlemen. Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Typewriting, Penmanship, Telegraphy, &c. "Leading business college south of the Potomac river."—Phila. Stenographer. Address C. M. Smithdeal, President, Richmond, Va.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

I will sell on reasonable terms or exchange for good farming lands one of the most desirable hotel or private boarding properties in the state.

This property is situated on Main street of Montevallo and in the center of the town. The house is comparatively new and consists of 16 well finished rooms. The lot is an entire town square and has good servant house, stables, barns, etc. Have 12 good paying boarders now and a good transient patronage.

Can fill house up entirely with local boarders at good prices if desired.

Will sell or exchange property, furniture, etc. Come and see me for particulars. Montevallo is the well known home of the Girls' Industrial School.

H. S. LATHAM.
Montevallo, Ala.

HAVE YOU CHOSEN A PROFESSION?

The HOMŒOPATHIC MEDICAL COLLEGE of the UNIVERSITY of MICHIGAN offers unrivaled privileges for thorough education.
Men and women admitted on equal terms.
Write for special announcement.
R. S. COPELAND, M. D., Ann Arbor, Mich.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER

CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE
SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE.
ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E. 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

HORNER MILITARY SCHOOL,

OXFORD, N. C.
The best disciplined School and the most thoroughly taught Scholars Guaranteed.
Actual Results are the Best Arguments.
For Catalogue address
Founded 1851. J. C. HORNER.

Atlanta College of Pharmacy.

Well equipped Laboratories, excellent Teachers, a free Dispensary, where hundreds of prescriptions by the best physicians are compounded daily by the students. Students obtain first-class practical instruction as well as that of a theoretical nature. There is a greater demand for our graduates than we can supply. Address DR. GEO. F. PAYNE, Payne's Chemical Laboratory, Room H, Atlanta, Ga.

$900 TO $1500 A YEAR

We want intelligent Men and Women as Traveling Representatives or Local Managers; salary $900 to $1500 a year and all expenses, according to experience and ability. We also want local representatives; salary $3 to $15 a week and commission, depending upon the time devoted. Send stamp for full particulars and state position preferred. Address, Dept. B.
THE BELL COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

Now is the Time

You Need a Good Liver Medicine.

LIVERINA

Acts directly on the Liver, Relieving Billousness, Constipation, Sick Headache and that Languid Feeling Peculiar to this Season of the Year.

Try it. 50c a Bottle at All Retailers.

GAY, HARDIE & DURR,
Proprietors, Montgomery, Ala.

AGENTS WANTED for the Brohard Sash Lock and Brohard Door Holder

Active workers everywhere can earn big money; always a steady demand for our goods. Sample sash lock, with prices, terms, etc., free for 2c stamp for postage.
THE BROHARD CO., Station "O," Philadelphia, Pa.

USE CERTAIN COUGH CHILL CURE.

Am. N. U., No. 33, 1901.

DROPSY

NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

For Bargains

—GO TO—

W. M. WILSON & BRO,

Closing out all Millinery and Ladies' Shirt Waists for less than cost.

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON.

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : : ALA.

THIS COMPLETE SHAVING OUTFIT FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

- English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to Shave.....75c
- 2¼ in Hair Brush.....55c
- Shaving Brush.....10c
- Fine Barber Comb.....10c
- Rubber Fine " 10c
- Man Pocket comb in case.....10c
- Big good Shaving soap.....10c
- Shaving Mirror.....10c
- Strop for Razor Strop.....50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

OF COURSE WE WILL.

One of the greatest journalistic treats ever afforded readers of an Alabama newspaper is in store for the many readers of the Montgomery Advertiser before and during the Constitutional Convention. Arrangements will be made for handling news during this event on a larger scale than ever before attempted by any newspaper in the South. The Advertiser will present the most complete report of each day's proceedings possible to obtain, giving, in fact, almost every detail in the way of speeches verbatim, committee reports in full, roll call of votes on all questions, and the many general topics of interest throughout the fifty days the session is expected to last, beginning May 21st. This will undoubtedly be an achievement in journalism second to none in the country and certainly an enterprise worthy of patronage by the citizens throughout the State everywhere. We would advise interested readers to get your names on the list in time to begin at the opening. Leave your orders at the Banner office, where they will be forwarded promptly and proper attention given. The Advertiser by mail, Daily and Sunday, at the rate of 65 cents per month.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

The Banner office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us trial

They banish pain and prolong life. ONE GIVES RELIEF.

R·I·P·A·N·S

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES.

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	$1.50
Nashville American	1.50
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald	$1.50
Home and Farm	$1.10
Southern Farmer	$1.00

WOMAN'S RELIEF

A really healthy woman has little pain or discomfort at the menstrual period. No woman needs to have any. Wine of Cardui will quickly relieve those smarting menstrual pains and the dragging head, back and side aches caused by falling of the womb and irregular menses.

WINE OF CARDUI

has brought permanent relief to 1,000,000 women who suffered every month. It makes the menstrual organs strong and healthy. It is the provision made by Nature to give women relief from the terrible aches and pains which blight so many homes.

Gassaway, La., Oct. 14, 1898.
I have been very sick for some time. I was taken with a severe pain in my side and could not get any relief until I tried a bottle of Wine of Cardui. Before I had taken all of it I was relieved. I feel is my duty to say that you have a wonderful medicine.
MRS. M. A. YOUNT.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THE VITAE ORE PREPARATIONS

are on sale by
Campbelle Drug co., clanton;
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A. Ayers, clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kinsheno
J. B. Downs, clanton.

N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

Why try to stick things with something that doesn't stick? Buy MAJOR'S CEMENT; you know it sticks. Nothing breaks away from it. Stick to MAJOR'S CEMENT. Buy once, you will buy forever. There is nothing as good; don't believe the substitutes.

MAJOR'S RUBBER and MAJOR'S LEATHER. 2 two separable ammunition blackjacks, loaded on having them. MAJOR'S RUBBER SOLES. 15 and 25 cents per bottle at all druggists.

MAJOR CEMENT CO., NEW YORK CITY.

THE BEST WAY TO THE SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST, NORTH AND NORTH-WEST,

—IS VIA THE—

L. & N.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.

The Through Cars

of this line pass Calera daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans,

Connecting with all points in TEXAS AND THE WEST,

also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Connecting for all points in the NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or T. P. Ramsey, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP

W. H. TAYLOR, Proprietor.

HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING

In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.

HOT AND COLD BATHS.

CLANTON

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the Banner.

E. W. Grove

This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day.

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

THE NULITE.

750 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS

Produce the finest artificial light in the world. Superior to electricity or gas. Cheaper than kerosene oil. A 20th Century Revolution in the Art of Lighting.

They darkness into daylight turn,
And cost instead of money burn.

No Smoke. No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely Safe. They are Portable, Hang or stand them anywhere. We also manufacture Table Lamps, Wall Lamps, Pendants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, etc. The best and only really successful Incandescent Vapor Gas Lamps made. They sell at sight. Each burner 100 candle power. Nothing like them. Good Agts Wanted. Write for catalogue and prices.

Chicago Solar Light Co. 81 Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER office

AT REDUCED PRICES

Subscribe for The Banner. $1.00 a year.

MR. REYNOLDS' SPEECH on the Suffrage Question.

(continued from last week)

Mr. President, I am opposed to disfranchising white men, but, Mr. President, I favor disfranchising those not of good character. The vicious should not be permitted to vote, and if one cannot qualify under a good character clause, I am here to assert that he should be qualified. We all know that the newspapers generally reflect the views of their readers. With the newspapers, the grandfather clause does not seem to be in high favor, and I may add that I have yet to hear of a single person, outside of this Convention, that wants that clause.

The character clause, however, might well be the instrument of great injustice and oppression, and in the hands of a partisan politician hard, no doubt exists that it would be so used. For myself, I would prefer the word reputation, as I take it that only those of known bad character are to be disfranchised, but I believe this provision is more for the purpose of turning voters in than turning them out. However, I would suggest to the members of the Convention that, in my part of the State, we send such men to the penitentiary. The great objection to the character clause is as I have said, that it makes the registrars the judges of men's characters and in the hands of a politically partisan board of registrars, is widely open to fraud. Under this clause the registrars could undeniably build up an electorate to their own liking. Is this to be desired? Then, why invite such fraud, especially in the face of the fact that we came here to purify the elections and the electorate, to close the gates of fraud and bar and double lock them? It has been argued that the men of the Black Belt are honest and intend to carry out the provisions and spirit of this plan and disfranchise the negro and him alone. Suppose it should be found necessary to have the negro vote of the Black Belt to perpetuate the Democratic Party in power, think you not the men is will be found by which, and the men by whom, this negro vote will be secured?

The Age-Herald says: Congressman Bowie is mistaken when he says only one provision of the majority report of the Committee on Suffrage has been assailed. This is a mistake. The grandfather clause is assailed because of its un-American nature, in that it makes heredity the basis of an electorate. But there are others, several others, that have been assailed. These are as follows:

First—A Board of Registration that can create a life electorate at will, there being no remedy that a poor man can resort to against oppression or injustice.

Second—The good character clause, which in the hands of politically appointed registrars is utterly indefinite, and very open to fraud. It makes the registrars the judges of men's motives and characters. This is also very un-American.

Third—The understanding clause, which requires a voter to understand the obligations and duties of citizenship.

Fourth—A life electorate.

Fifth—The lawful occupation clause, and the naming of employers in five years preceding.

All of these in this sing darly composed plan have been assailed, and are daily assailed. Mr. Bowie has no doubt named the cause that is most assailed, but the grandfather clause is by no means the only one. The other five have plenty of opponents in perhaps every county in the State, and one of them should be adopted under the impression that it stands approved "unanimously" among the people."

Under the permanent plan, only those who can read and write any Section of the Constitution and who have been regularly engaged in some lawful business or occupation, trade or calling, for twelve months next preceding the time they offer to register, or those who have $300 of personal or $300 wort of realty in their own or their wife's name are permitted to register. Right here a pertinent inquiry would be, should we permit that man, who places his property in his wife's name for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, to qualify because his wife owns $300 of personal property? I, for one, do not believe that it is necessary for a man to be able to read and write to constitute him a good citizen—a citizen worthy to enjoy the privilege of voting.

True, under the grandfather clause many of those who cannot read and write are enabled to register. But this clause is only temporary and no provision is made for descendants of soldiers who come of age after 1903. If the grandfather clause is good to 1903, why not always good? If the understanding and character clause is good until 1903, why not equally good thereafter? By the adoption of the permanent plan we will certainly disfranchise many white men after 1903. We have heard many delegates get up here and affirm that they would have kept their pledge to the letter—the pledge not to disfranchise any white man except for infamous crime. It seems to be, though, that that pledge had regard only to the first generation after the adoption of the Constitution, and not to any subsequent registration. Yes, you will pardon me when I say that you do not disfranchise any white man but suppose they ask what crime their sons have committed that they cannot vote? Will your answer not be that they cannot read and write, and I have not been regardless of the two long months preceding the time he offers to register, or that they own a certain amount of property? I think you that your comments care only as regards themselves alone and no thought of a token for their posterity?

On the other hand, Mr. President, I do not believe that every man who can read and write is a good citizen. Some of our most intelligent people are the most corrupting the ballot. As we all know, more money is expended in purchasing legislators and delegates to nominating conventions, this money distributed among the ignorant class themselves. I might refer to the Legislature of Pennsylvania, or to recent congressional and State nominations in our own state.

Not only must a man be able to read and write, he must have been regularly engaged in some lawful business for the next twelve months preceding the time he offers to register. True, the honored and esteemed Chairman of this Convention explained to the Convention what was meant by that clause, but he and the Committee did not go far enough—they neither gus anteed nor did they prescribe that the registrars should interpret that clause in a like manner. Suppose that, in the many districts of this State, the employes should go on a strike for a month or more, and suppose the county registrars in those districts were hostile to the employers—the corporations—can it be doubted but they would interpret this clause so that they would deny to one employe the right to register? Again, suppose the employes of a railroad on a strike, can it be doubted but the registrars, who would very likely ride on a free pass, would deny the employes the right to register, or withhold that right until they returned to work?

Virtue and manhood do not depend on the amount of property a man owns, nor should the qualification of a voter be wealth alone. If we are to abandon manhood suffrage and make the sole qualification one of property, we ought to be in our treatment of wealth. If it would qualify a person to vote, that a person who owns $600 should be given two votes, and so on in proportion. Under the plan here set out a person might possibly be the owner of $299 and yet not be able to qualify under the property clause. For one must own $300 of personal property, or $300 of real property. Mr. President, I am opposed to special privileges. I believe in each man should be equal before the law. But, if any one is to be given special privileges, it should be the poor man and not the rich one. I allow the plea of permitting a man to vote because he owns a certain amount of property, to be a false and illegitimate conclusion, and it would have a Rockefeller for President and a Mark Hanna for Vice-President.

We hear it argued here that we have put in the grandfather clause because we have to submit our work back to the people and so we must be careful to leave room for all.

(continued on 5th column page 4)

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S GREAT OFFER.

Scholarships and Expenses for Girls in Great Daily

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION has offered to every young girl in Georgia, who will secure new subscribers to the Daily and Sunday Constitution a year's education at any educational institution in Georgia and $100.00 toward the student's expenses for the year.

This opens every school and college room door in the State to every ambitious boy or girl who will take advantage of the proposition. The terms are not beyond the reach of one determined to secure an education. This work will be well paid for. One hundred or more scholarships are up. The cash value represented in 100 such scholarships and expenses for one year is approximately $25,000. No one need be idle when such ample provision is made.

The enterprise and liberality of THE CONSTITUTION will be commended and vast good will result from the offer. The Constitution will furnish full particulars on application.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

VOL. IX

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw and Some He Saw Not

Some few days ago I was in your town. While there I met a friend. I don't know exactly what about things they took out of it, but they did take out a watch, silver watch, so I was told. If I remember rightly it was the last fall term of court. Mr. J. L. Cox, of Rogersville, was there, and I think somewhere about the watch. I don't remember the watch just recovered, but the one he lost I, of course, do not know. I should imagine the works must be mighty rusty any way.

Last Thursday Judge Adams and Mr. F. M. Woods started off in the morning in good time for the Indian Territory. He said he would be gone some evening. Judge Adams was again perambulating the streets of Clanton, and we thought he had taken the record and made the longest round trip to the Territory that mortal being ever had made. He stayed here the next day and then disappeared again. Whether he is now in the Indian Territory or where he may be. Your deponent saith not. I reckon he'll show up again alright in about another week.

The new depot of the L. & N. will be erected right away. All little difficulties have been removed and the work is to be put in place at once. An appropriation of $500 has been made by the company and they propose to give us an elegant depot—the best on the line between Montgomery and Birmingham. "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," and while we regret the loss the company put to by the fire, the old depot was out of date, and a new one was needed.

Clanton is to have a high school, Prof. J. M. Collier has been elected as principal. The school will open September 5 at the old academy which is to be enlarged. Mr. McMorries will commence the ninth session of his academy September 5. These two institutions should be liberally patronized by our people.

Painters now seem to have possession of the town. The painter, has the contract of painting six houses for W. M. Wilson. The perfume of paint is in the air while the beautifying of the houses goes on apace.

Judge of Probate

THE BANNER.

LET THE PEOPLE RULE

VOL. IX CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY AUGUST 22, 1901 NO. 44

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Of the Sights He Saw and Some He Saw Not

Some few days ago they cleared the court house well—it was cleaned. I don't know all the good things they took out of it, but they took out a watch, a silver watch, the last fall term of court, Mr. J. Lee, of Ridgeville, lost a watch somewhere near the well. Whether the watch just recovered is the one he lost I of course, do not know. I could imagine the watch must be mighty rusty anyway.

Last Thursday Judge Adams and Col. F. M. Wood started off in the morning in good spirits, for the Indian Territory. But behold, the same evening Judge Adams came again perambulating the streets of Clanton, as I was thought he had taken the record and made the fastest round to the Indian Territory that mortal being ever had made. He stayed here the next day and then disappeared again. Whether he is now in the Indian Territory or where he may be. Your deponent saith not. Truckon he'll show up again alright in about another week.

The new depot of the L. & N. will be erected right away. All little difficulties have been removed and the work is to be put in hand at once. An appropriation of $500 has been made by the company and they propose to give us a decent depot—the best on the line between Montgomery and Birmingham. "Out of every ill wind that blows nobody good," and while we regret the loss the company put to by the fire, the old depot was out of date, and a new one needed.

Clanton is to have a high school, Prof. J. M. Collier has been elected as principal. The school will open September 1st at the old academy which is to be enlarged. Mr. McMorries will commence teaching at session of the academy on the first Monday in September. The school will be established on a strictly high school basis and will require a good course.

Some pretty weather these few days.

Last Friday night of court, Justice of the Peace W. H. Shaw officiated. The youthful couple have a long life before them which we hope will be replete with happiness and prosperity.

At the home of Mr. Jim Chambers, on August 10, Mr. S. D. Robinson and Miss Katie Walker were happily married. G. W. Edwards, J. P., officiating. Long and happy may their married life be.

DIED

Soon after midnight of Tuesday the angel spirit of little Evelyn Pinckard winged its flight to the heavenly home. She was a sweet little girl, about four years old, the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Pinckard, and their pride and joy. She had been sick with Scarlet fever for about a week, and while all human means were tried to keep her with us, the Heavenly Father saw fit to take her to him. The interment will take place at Clanton on Thursday. Our deepest sympathies are with the bereaved parents.

Mr. Aaron Dennis died last week and was buried on Sunday at Swift Creek. We have lost a good man.

Better have a good medicine and not need it than to need it and not have it. See? Then just before you get hurt, buy a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. It is a record breaker for Wounds, Burns, Bruises, Scalds, etc., for man and beast. 50c a bottle at all drug stores.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25

Degrees Conferred.

Grand Secretary of the Masons, G. A. Beauchamp, has been in Clanton several days this week, for the purpose of conferring the Royal Arch degree on J. A. Skaggs, I. N. Langston and J. M. Langston, all of Jemison; Mart Gore, J. W. McKinney, both of Clanton; J. G. Probst, T. J. Marcus and Tom Smith, all of Jasmine; and Dr. Bledsoe, of Marbury. The concluding ceremony was a banquet Tuesday night at the residence of Bro. J. G. VanDerveer.

The Franchise Difficulty.

There is little doubt that in time the election laws enacted by southern states which have adopted new constitutions will be reviewed by the highest court in the land. The main point of attack will be the provisions which create a hereditary voting class. Louisiana, North Carolina and now Alabama have had recourse to "grandfather clauses" to protect voters who would not be qualified under the educational test. An educational qualification applied to all voters alike would be unassailable, but, unfortunately, it does not appear to have been regarded as practicable in the south, where the idea of disqualifying any white man for illiteracy is bitterly resented by the people. The Virginia convention may suggest a plan which will give the illiterate white a vote and at the same time disqualify the most undesirable class of negro voters. There are some able lawyers in this convention, but their ingenuity will be severely taxed to devise a measure which will accomplish an end that is frankly avowed and at the same time keep within the bounds set by the federal constitution.—Baltimore Sun.

Your druggist, knows a good thing when he sees it. He always keeps Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for sale because it is a good thing. He likes to sell it because it always gives perfect satisfaction.

MARRIED

At the home of the bride's parents on August 15, Mr. Early Bradford and Miss Mattie Askew were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Justice of the Peace W. H. Shaw officiated. The youthful couple have a long life before them which we hope will be replete with happiness and prosperity.

At the home of Mr. Jim Chambers, on August 10, Mr. S. D. Robinson and Miss Katie Walker were happily married, G. W. Edwards, J. P., officiating. Long and happy may their married life be.

DIED

Soon after midnight of Tuesday the angel spirit of little Evelyn Pinckard winged its flight to the heavenly home. She was a sweet little girl, about four years old, the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Pinckard, and their pride and joy. She had been sick with Scarlet fever for about a week, and while all human means were tried to keep her with us, the Heavenly Father saw fit to take her to him. The interment will take place at Clanton on Thursday. Our deepest sympathies are with the bereaved parents.

Mr. Aaron Dennis died last week and was buried on Sunday at Swift Creek. We have lost a good man.

Better have a good medicine and not need it than to need it and not have it. See? Then just before you get hurt, buy a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. It is a record breaker for Wounds, Burns, Bruises, Scalds, etc., for man and beast. 50c a bottle at all drug stores.

PROGRAM TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

The next Institute for white teachers will be held at Maxwell, eight miles west of Jemison and five miles east of Randolph, on the 13th and 14th of September, 1901.

FRIDAY

10 a. m. Devotional Exercises.

10:30 Welcome Address, John T. Martin. Response, L. E. Byrum.

11. Why educate? How? E. B. Deason, Mrs. A. G. Dunlap.

1:30 p.m. How should schools be graded? Ex-Supt. Judson Strock. Strock, G. L. Speer.

2:30. Would it be better to divide county into School Districts? R. E. R. Hicks, Robt. E. Sessions.

3:30 My first experience as a teacher, J. H. Anderson, Miss Jennie Wilson.

SATURDAY.

9 a.m. Chilton county Schools. R. A. Rasco, Supt. J. W. Moore.

10. The importance of Physiology, F. D. Carmichael, Miss Tracy Garrett.

11. Educational Address, J. M. Collier.

A concert will be given by Prof. Martin's school, Friday evening, beginning at 7 o'clock.

Teachers coming on train will write Prof. Jno. T. Martin, Randolph, and have arrangements made for conveyance.

Before U. S. Commissioner Elmore at Montgomery, George alias Dutch-Mims of Chilton County, was arraigned Tuesday morning, charged with retailing liquor without a license. Continued until Thursday because of absence of witnesses.

If you, your baby, or your horse has cuts, Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure it and "don't you forget it." Only 50c. a bottle.

New Disease in Cotton.

Said Captain V. P. Atkins to a representative of The Advertiser this morning: "I drove through the country from Selma to Benton yesterday and saw a great deal of cotton affected with a new disease that has made its appearance during the past two or three years. The Agricultural Department has given it a name, but I do not remember by what new name it was designated. A stalk of cotton will, to all appearances, have the rust, but the new disease can be told from the rust very easily. Rust commences at the bottom of the cotton and works its way toward the top. This new disease commences at the top and works downward. The leaves dry up as if withered by a frost and the stalks die. When you pull up the stalk and examine it, the bark slips off and the woody stalk has a black appearance, the space between the bark and the stalk being filled with a dark, watery substance that causes the stalk to wither and decay. The Agricultural Department says that the disease is caused by a deterioration of the seed that produced the stalks, and advises that every stalk thus affected be pulled up and burned. If this is not done the bolls on the stalk will pop open and the cotton will be picked and the consequence will be that the seed from the diseased stalk will be planted next year along with the good seed and the disease will spread. The new disease may thus affect the cotton crop very materially. If the newspapers would call the attention of the farmers to the new disease, so that they could pull up the affected stalks and burn them as directed, a growing evil might be eradicated before it got too firm a hold on the cotton of the South."

They Struck It Rich

It was a grand thing for his community that such an enterprising firm as the Clanton drug Co. secured the Agency for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the wonderful remedy that has startled the world by its marvellous cures. The furor of enthusiasm over it has boomed their business, as the demand for it is immense. They give free trial bottles to sufferers, and positively guarantee it to cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, and all Throat and Lung Troubles. A trial proves its merit. Price 50c and $1.00.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.
THORSBY, ALA.

Thorsby.

Mr. S. A. Thorson accompanied by Messrs. William Foss, P. K. Tilladsen and J. P. Sorenson of Chicago, went to Montgomery last Friday. These Chicago gentlemen have invested in homes at Thorsby and express themselves as highly pleased with the South. They will visit a number of other cities before returning North, and will at an early day permanently locate at Thorsby.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

COWNS' FIRE SALE
—ON—
SNUFF AND TOBACCO
FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS

$3.50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnaps Early Bird, Long Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

and on Thursday, July 25,

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Beuton.

$1.00 gets you 10 boxes 3½ oz. Beuton.

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 3½ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO and 600 pounds of SNUFF Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $

But they must go just the same.

Probate Notice.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

In the Probate Court of said County.

In the matter of the petition to probate the last will and testament of James Franklin Welch, deceased, late of said County:

To Darius S. Welch, at Bloomingrove, Texas, Nancey B. Welch, at Meridian, Mississippi, John Welch, who is an infant under the age of 14 years, residing with his mother, Annie Welch, at Meridian, Mississippi; and to all other the heirs at law of the said James Franklin Welch, deceased, who reside out of the State of Alabama,

Take notice that on this day Oscar S. Welch, et als, filed in said Court an instrument purporting to be the Last Will and Testament of said James Franklin Welch, deceased, which is dated October 14, 1898, and is attested by W. H. Burns and J. L. Cox; and also filed this day in said Court their petition in writing praying the said Court to admit said instrument to probate and record therein as and for the last Will and Testament of the said James Franklin Welch, deceased, and that the said Probate Court has appointed Sept. 10th, 1901, as the day for the hearing of said petition, at which time you may appear and contest the same if you so desire.

Given under my hand, on this the 26th day of July, A. D., 1901.

SAMUEL M. ADAMS,
Judge of Probate.

Commissioner's Sale.

In pursuance and in accordance with the terms and directions of a commission issued and directed to the undersigned by the Hon. S. M. Adams, Judge of Probate of Chilton county, bearing date of July 22nd, 1901, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder for cash, at public auction, in front of the Court house door of said county, at Clanton, on

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER the 10, 1901,

the following described land to-wit: The northwest quarter of the southwest quarter, section 29, township 21, range 13, in Chilton county, Alabama, which said land is to be sold under the decree of the Probate Court of said county for the purpose of a division among the several owners thereof, who are the heirs at law of Edward Mims, deceased.

A. C. SMITH, Commissioner.

What A Tale It Tells

If that mirror of yours shows a wretched, sallow complexion, a jaundiced look, moth patches and blotches on the skin, it's liver trouble; but Dr. King's New Life Pills regulate the liver, purify the blood, give clear skin, rosy cheeks, rich complexion. Only 25c at Clanton drug Co.

WANTED.

LAND FOR SALE. Any man wishing to buy good farms will do well to apply to C. J. STEWART, Clanton, Ala.

HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTING in first-class style. Best material and workmanship. J. M. MOORE, the Painter, Clanton, Ala.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1898. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov, 19, 1900

We have handled Dr. Moffett's TEETHINA (Teething Powders) ever since its first introduction to the public and trade as a proprietary medicine, and our trade in it has steadily increased from year to year until our orders now amount to two or three hundred gross per year, which is a very strong evidence of its merit and the satisfaction it is giving to the mothers of the country, for they say that nothing so effectually counteracts the effects of the summer's hot sun or overcomes so quickly the troubles incident to teething.

THE LAMAR & RANKIN DRUG CO.,
Wholesale Druggists.

Alabama Girls' Industrial School.
MONTEVALLO, ALA.

The next session opens September 18, 1901. An enlarged Dormitory and new class rooms make it possible to provide for more girls, and to offer better accommodations. For catalogue address

FRANCIS M. PETERSON,
President.

GOING TO SCHOOL!

The Fifth District Agricultural School at Wetumpka, Ala., offers you good opportunities and low prices. $5.00 (Five dollars) covers all charges for nine months, session beginning Sep. 3d, 1901.

Board $8.00 per month.

Send for catalogue.

H. J. WILLINGHAM,
President.

Positions GUARANTEED UNDER A $5,000 DEPOSIT
R. R. FARE PAID
200 FREE
Scholarships offered. Write quick to
GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts.
Office at the Adams' place
CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN C. DENNIS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts.
CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. KNOX,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CLANTON, ALA.
Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama.

Dr. OTTO M. WISEHART,
DENTIST.
OFFICE HOURS. 8 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m.
Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS,
SPECIALIST
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
OFFICE 20 S. PERRY ST.
Office Hours: 9 to 12 and 2 to 4.
Telephone 504—2 Cutts
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. H. S. JOHNSON
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at Clan on Drug Store CLANTON

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL,
JACKSONVILLE, ALA.
A school to prepare teachers. Demand for graduates greater than the supply. Board $8 per month up. Tuition free. Nineteenth year. Session begins Oct. 1, 1901. For catalogue address
CLARENCE W. DAUGETTE,
President.

E W Grove
This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL
CLANTON, ALA.

Is a training and strictly private school for boys and girls.

Correllated to the University of Alabama and to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Has fitted more pupils for college, more pupils for teaching, more pupils for advanced business positions than all other schools in Chilton county combined. It is the only school in Chilton county whose pupils have a First Grade Certificate under the present school laws.

Its course of instruction is the best arranged, its methods the soundest, most thorough and up-to-date; its scholarship the most advanced; its location, buildings, grounds, furniture, equipments, the most attractive and best adapted of any school in Chilton county.

Its pupils enter any college in the South on certificate of the Principal. It deals honestly with the public adheres to professional courtesy, and performs its promises. Its mission is to build up, not to pull down. It is not, as some are, a mere common school called "College," "Normal," etc., by which misnomers the uninformed are misled.

$101 pays all expenses of board, tuition, fuel, lights, etc., for session of nine months. School opens September 11, 1901. Write for catalogue.

E. Y. McMORRIES, Principal.

To All Whom it May Concern:

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 3, 1901

No person, or persons, can lawfully solicit or write insurance for the Chilton county Branch of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama, unless he, or they, bear a commission (empowering him or them to perform such work) signed by Wallace C. Edler, General Agent of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama.

All persons concerned will govern themselves accordingly.

WALLACE C. EDLER,
General Agent Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

Oom Paul apparently wants humanity to stagger some more before he is satisfied with the price of the Boer war.

The school children of the country did noble work rehabilitating the schools of Galveston. Their contributions amounted to $54,270.58.

The deaf-mutes who are doing their utmost to learn to speak evidently take no stock in the saying that silence is golden.

The Indian Witness says that it is safe to assume that 100,000,000 of the population of India have an average annual income of not more than $5 a head.

Australia has accepted another American idea. The commonwealth has taken the first step toward adopting a decimal currency.

The Indians who sold Manhattan Island for the price of a beef stew were the first in these parts to put into practice the theory that to die rich is to die disgraced.

The firing of a shot from an eight-inch rifled gun costs $125; from a 16-inch gun, $827; or more than enough to pay the wages of a private soldier in the regular army, for five years.

The number of Mormon colonies in northern Mexico has increased in three years from three to eight, and the Mormon population has increased from 2200 to more than 6000. It is reported that the Mormon Church gains from 20,000 to 30,000 converts every year.

The most familiar heading in the newspapers of the United States, at least, is "Killed at a Crossing." The amount paid out by steam and trolley lines for deaths at the crossings would more than pay the expense of a cordon of guards around every crossing. Why not exercise this precaution and thus save life and money?

In the new mint in Philadelphia the United States will have the finest, costliest and most complete money-making establishment of its kind in the world. The granite structure was commenced two years ago, and will cost about $2,000,000, including the mechanical equipment, costing $200,000. There will be 24 coining presses in the new mint.

An Italian has invented a method of checking the force of waves by the use of hempen nets. But is he not wasting time and taking too much trouble upon himself? Oil wells all over the world are spouting incalculable floods. Why try to catch tempests in nets when it is so easy nowadays to pour cheap oil in vast quantities upon troubled waters?

Under the title, "The Corrupting Power of Public Patronage," Congressman Oscar W. Underwood calls attention in the Forum to the dangerous influence exerted by the spoils system on the legislation of the country. He advocates the prohibition of representatives from having any voice in appointments to governmental offices, either directly or indirectly.

Parsee Maharajah, mill-owner, millionaire and philanthropist—Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit—has just died in western India and his name and memory deserve to be perpetuated. He spent a large part of his fortune in the establishment of hospitals and in the erection of drinking fountains in the cities of his native country. The sick and women, without respect to sect or race, and dumb brutes were his special beneficiaries.

The New York Times gives a compilation showing that the United States have produced 6500 authors of definite books in the last three centuries. Naturally in the earlier part of this period our authors were mostly foreign-born, and foreign countries have supplied 700 out of the total of 6500. New York state has furnished the largest number of writers—1600—though in proportion to population Massachusetts holds the palm, 1250 having been born within her borders. All New England has supplied 2350, or more than one-third of the total, while the Middle States have supplied 2000. Pennsylvania is the third state in literary production, her crop of authors having been 600. Virginia leads the Southern States, with 235, and Ohio the Western, with 175.

ALABAMA AND ALABAMIANS

ABOUT PERSONS AND EVENTS IN OUR COMMONWEALTH.

RAVAGES OF THE RECENT GULF STORM

His Last Hunting Trip—The Army Election—Acquitted of Murder—Jealousy Caused It—Gadsden Malicious Shooting.

KILLED WHILE HUNTING.

Early last week Will, the 9-year-old son of Wiley Frazier, of Dodd Ford, ten miles from Birmingham, accidently shot and killed himself. His left side was filled with a load of shot. Coroner Paris was called to the scene of the accident and a thorough investigation was made. He stated that the boy had been hunting and had stopped near a log. In placing his gun on the log the hammer was hit in some manner and as a result the explosion occurred. A number of workmen in a field near where the body was found, among them an older brother of the boy, heard a loud cry, followed by the report of a gun. They ran towards the place from which the report had sounded and found young Frazier lying in a pool of blood with his gun near by. At the time he was unconscious and shortly afterwards died.

GREAT GULF STORM.

The gulf coast from Pensacola to New Orleans suffered last week from the worst storm in several years. All communication was cut off for a couple of days from Mobile, bridges, railroad track, etc., were washed away and shipping suffered considerably. The full facts are not yet known but so far no deaths are reported. A tug has been sent into Mississippi Sound to report on conditions among the small islands there. The coast resorts suffered badly. Wharfs in Pensacola and Mobile bays were damaged and washed away, the Point Clear Hotel lost its bath houses, the famous shell-road from Mobile seven miles down the bay shore is ruined, and pleasure crafts were washed away in numbers. It will take several months' hard work to restore things to their former conditions.

WILEY RESIGNS.

Lieut. Col. A. A. Wiley of the Second Regiment, Saturday sent his resignation to the governor and an election to fill the vacancy will be ordered. This makes two vacant positions in the regiment, Major Graves having been promoted to the colonelcy at an election held last week. Major Herbert B. May, of Montgomgomery, is without opposition for lieutenant colonel and it is understood that Captains Collier of Tuscaloosa, Marchant of Phenix City and Anderson of Montgomery will offer for the majority vacated by Graves. The election will be held at the same time and in case of the promotion of Major May there will be still another vacancy.

GADSDEN SHOOTING.

J. H. J. Crim was shot and dangerously wounded by E. P. Pearson at Glencoe Friday. The difficulty was said to be the result of an old family quarrel. Pearson escaped and has not been captured.

JEALOUSY THE CAUSE.

Clarence Barr and Charlie Sanders had a row over a woman in Tuscaloosa last Wedesday, which resulted in the shooting of Barr by Sanders, who escaped. Barr's wound is not serious.

THERE was a reunion of Confederate Veterans at Sylacauga last Wednesday.

THE crops in the path of the recent storm have suffered considerably from flood, wind and hail.

WILLIAM MOORE, an aged farmer of New Market, near Huntsville, suicided by morphine last week.

THE first bales of cotton of the present season to reach Montgomery arrived in that city Wednesday, being sent in by Moses McLemore, of Montgomery and J. A. Wilkerson, of Autauga counties.

NOT GUILTY.

W. F. Brown was acquitted at Huntsville last week of the charge of murder. Brown killed Will Mason, a painter, last October. The trial was in progress some days and the court room was crowded at every session. The defendnat proved that Mason was advancing upon him with a spade when shot. The jury was out less than half an hour, and when the verdict was read the crowd cheered.

LATEST STATE NEWS.

IRON MARKET.

For the past week the iron and steel markets have been stable and satisfactory and the calls and sales for the week have been better than since the settlement of the wage schedule in July. Some export business has been done, but trade is just beginning to pick up and is yet a very uncertain quantity. The prices of pig iron remain firm with some bidding for immediate shipment. The calls for steel continue as they have for the past several months, the demand exceeding the supply and good prices ruling the market. Inquiries still keep up and sales continue at well maintained prices. It is evident that the buyer is purchasing for moderate requirements over a short period ahead.

CAUGHT REDHANDED.

An illicit distillery was raided seventeen miles north of Tuskaloosa last Friday night. The officers succeeded in capturing a sixty gallon still, and stands filled with 350 gallons of beer, and Jesse Barger, with his two sons, Dave and William Barger, a white family. The officers received information which led them to believe there was a distillery in that neighborhood. Suspicion was directed against the Bargers and the still was found in a cave in the rear of the house—a run had just been made. In the house were found several barrels of molasses, a lot of pumice and other stock.

GETS TWENTY YEARS.

Sanford Jacobi, convicted of criminal assault, and the trial of whose case has attracted so much attention, was sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary. Jacobi belongs to a prominent Montgomery family. Jacobi escaped to New Orleans and a legal battle was fought to evade returning to Alabama. This was the third trial of the case. An appeal will be taken to the state supreme court.

DEAD FROM HIS INJURIES.

Ben Parton, of Tuscumbia, the young brakeman who had his leg crushed in a rear-end collison on the Southern railroad last Wednesday, at Crane Creek bridge, has since died. The unfortunate young man was about 30 years old, and leaves a wife and several children.

LUMBER BURNED.

Monday night the mill, dry kiln and half a million feet of lumber of the Blacksher-Miller Lumber Company, at Brewton, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $25,000; insurance, $15,000.

FRANK SHUGRUE, 50 years of age, a business man of Mobile has disappeared and the police have been unable to find any trace of him. Mr. Shugrue telegraphed from Buffalo for money and Mrs. Shugrue fears foul play.

WILLIAM ALEXANDER, aged 60, an employe of the Louisville & Nashville shops, was drowned in Swan lake near Decatur, during a storm last week.

THE report of the treasurer of Madison county shows that there is now in the treasury $19,656.10. The grand jury reported that the books of all county officers are correctly and neatly kept.

THE rain fall in Birmingham Monday morning was 2.13 inches. Some stores were slightly flooded and the railroad tracks suffered slightly.

SHOOTING AT BESSEMER.

At Bessemer Saturday night Louis Baggett, aged 17, shot Harry Shrump, inflicting two wounds, from the effects of which he died later. Shrump refused to drink with Baggett. This angered the boy, who took a pistol from his pocket. Angry words ensued and Shrump, it is said, slapped Baggett, whereupon the latter fired, shooting the man through the side and also shooting off one of his thumbs. Young Baggett is the son of Doc Baggett, who has a saloon on Carolina avenue. He was arrested. Shrump was about thirty-five years of age and unmarried.

REV. A. J. LAMAR, pastor of the Court Street Methodist Church in Montgomery, has left for London, England, to attend the Ecumenical Conference, he being a representative of the Alabama Conference of the M. E. church to that body.

GEN. PLAZA has just been elected president Ecuador by a plurality of 65,000 votes, and will assume office August 31.

FATAL MARINE DISASTER

A BOLD ROBBERY OF SPANISH FORTIFICATIONS.

A BOY RESCUED FROM SAVAGE INDIANS

Trolley Accident—L. & N. Vice-President Dead—War in South America—Dead in his Garden—Lawyer Kills Himself.

SEVERAL DROWNED.

The steamer Islander, the crack passenger steamer of the Alaska route, struck an iceberg off Douglas Island at 2 o'clock on the morning of Thursday last and went to pieces, carrying down from sixty-five to eighty souls, including passengers and members of the crew. Some of the survivors were rescued by the steamer Queen. They report that as the vessel went down her boiler exploded, causing the death of many who might otherwise have escaped. Captain Foote was on the bridge when the vessel struck and stayed there and went down with his steamer. There was $275,000 in gold on the steamer, $100,000 of which was carried by passengers. H. H. Hart, who has spent sixteen years in the Klondike, lost $35,000 in dust. Some say that Captain Foote reached a raft, but when he saw the extent of the disaster jumped overboard. It is impossible to give an exact list of those lost, but 113 were saved.

STOLE THE CANNON.

Several days ago it was discovered that the two modern six inch Spanish guns comprising the Punta Gorda battery, which commands the entrance to the harbor of Santiago, were missing. This battery and the guns of the Sacopia battery were the only modern cannon employed by the Spanish against the United States warships, with the exception of those landed from the Spanish cruisers. The harbor police discovered the guns had been carried to a forest on the other side of the bay and been broken by explosives, ready for shipment as old metal. Several Spanish ships have been searched by the police, who had expected to discover that the guns had been shipped by the Spaniards to Spain. The sentries guarding them were removed six months ago. It was considered impossible to carry off the guns, and there was no fear of malicious destruction. The thieves are in jail.

FURNACE FATALITY.

An explosion of ten tons of molten metal in the blast furnace department at the Ohio plant of the National Steel Company at Youngstown, Ohio, resulted in the death of three workmen and in the injury of eleven others. Two are in a dying condition and at least six others of the injured are not expected to survive. The accident was the result of the machinery which controlled the ladel containing the molten mass breaking and letting the metal drop into a vat containing water.

ESCAPED TORTURE.

Juan Robles, a Mexican boy, 16 years old, was saved from a horrible fate Sunday by a posse which went to a settlement of Yaqui Indians, where the boy was about to be put to death by torture for having killed an Indian and beaten a squaw. The boy was found unconscious from pain, with his hands and feet bound tightly with cords. The Indians were preparing to force Robles to dance barefooted over beds of cactus, a mode of torture common among them.

R. R. MAN DEAD.

A. W. Graham, first vice president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, died at his summer home in Rosedale, Mich., Sunday. He went there suffering from exposure to extreme heat, and his weakness took the form of hemorrhages, which quickly wore his life away.

ATTORNEY SUICIDES.

Halsteads Smith, Jr., a prominent young attorney of Rome, Ga., committed suicide Friday night at Cleburne, Texas. The direct cause of his suicide is attributed to a mental laboration.

FRUIT BURNED.

Fire Saturday night destroyed the warehouse of the Hagman Basket Company, of Traverse City, Mich., filled with fruit packages. The loss will be between $75,000 and $100,000 partly insured.

GENERAL Maximo Gomez has refused the distinction of becoming Cuba's Vice-President.

SWINDLING SCHEME.

The details of an alleged attempt to swindle banks on a large scale by means of fraudulent corporations and fictitious notes is told in a petition filed in the circuit court at Towson for a receiver for the Manor Lumber Company of that town. The amount involved, according to the petition, is over $1,000,000, and it is asserted that the scheme has been at least partially successful. Benjamin W. Cross, of Cincinnati, is the plaintiff, and, according to the story told by him, he was induced to accept certificates of stock in the Manor company by Charles E. Corkran, originator and promoter of the scheme, which stock he subsequently transferred back to Corkran. Cross has learned since, he says, that the company was not incorporated for the purpose of doing a legitimate business, but formed by Mr. Corkran as part of a scheme for swindling, covering territory from Boston on the north to Chicago on the west and Nashville on the south.

VENEZUELA-COLUMBIA.

A dispatch is received from the consul at Maracaibo reporting that Dr. Rangel Garbias, of Columbia, has invaded Venezuela with 4,000 men from the frontier of Cucutia.

A fight took place at Encontrados and the invaders were obliged to retire. The invaders took two steamers to come to Maracaibo, but the boats were recaptured by the Venezuelan troops.

The Venezuelan government has issued two decrees. One suspends the constitutional rights of the state of Zulia; the second extends the decree to the states of Tachria, Merida, Trujillo and Maracaiba.

MURDER AND CAPTURE.

In a fight in a country store near Sparta, Ga., Thursday night one man was skilled and two severely wounded. It appears that a crowd became involved in a dispute about a former trouble between two men named Stanley and Brooking. Boyer, a bystander, interfered as peacemaker and was shot twice in the head by Brooking and instantly killed. The crowd pursued Brooking, who fired into the number, wounding one man. The posse returned the fire, wounding Brooking, who was afterward captured.

FOUND DEAD.

The remains of a man supposed to be one of two brothers, Lee and Kirk Sheppard, who suddenly disappeared some time ago, was found today near Pluma, Col., covered by about two feet of earth, in a potato patch near the cabin of W. H. Ward. Since the search for the missing brothers began some days ago Ward has disappeared completely. A heavy reward will be offered immediately for his capture. The body of the other brother has not been found.

W. C. T. U.

Details of the National W. C. T. U. convention at Fort Worth, November 15, are out. Three thousand delegates will be in attendance and as many visitors from every part of the United States. All the national officers and state presidents are expected. Arrangements are making to secure the services of Charles Galloway, the celebrated organist of Paris. The meeting will be the largest gathering of women ever assembled in the South.

C. M. HAYS has resigned the presidency of the Southern Pacific Railway.

THE RAILROAD CROSSING.

Saturday night by the collision of a trolley car at Forty-seventh street and Stewart avenue, Chicago, with a rapidly moving passenger train on the Pennsylvania line, five persons were killed outright and ten injured.

A trolley car of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company late Saturday night collided with a Long Island Railroad Company locomotive at Kensington crossing in the lower part of Brooklyn. Motorman Lee was killed outright and twenty to twenty-five passengers who were on their way to Coney Island were injured. Three of these, it is said, will die.

CROWN Prince Frederick William, of Germany, is visiting in London.

ONE of the bills in the famous Molineux case was $7,829 for printing a volume of testimony.

An alliance of the three great steamship lines, the Leyland, Atlantic, Transport and American, is in contemplation.

NEWS FROM WASH

THE ACTS AND WORDS OF PUBLIC SERVANTS

ADMIRAL SCHLEY MAKING

Philippine Affairs—The Korean—Sampson Will Be Compelled to Testify—Flags May Not

Admiral Schley has [illegible] Washington and will remain [illegible] court of inquiry meets on [illegible] 12th, preparing his case. [illegible] to talk about the case, [illegible] that the order of Secretary [illegible] hibiting officers of the navy [illegible] any phase of it appeals to [illegible] others, and he is obeying it. He has had his first consultation [illegible] his counsel, Judge Jere [illegible] this city; former Representative [illegible] nor, of Baltimore, and [illegible] Parker, of New Jersey. [illegible] Schley will go over everything [illegible] ting to the matter with [illegible] and place them in possession [illegible] fact pertinent to a thorough [illegible] standing of the events of the [illegible] paign which are in controversy.

Both civil and military [illegible] gratified at the progress [illegible] made by the Philippine [illegible] Everywhere throughout the [illegible] the island the commanders [illegible] things ready for civil government. [illegible] General Chaffee has received [illegible] satisfactory news from [illegible] telling uniformly of [illegible] renders. Many rifles [illegible] been obtained and large [illegible] supplies secured. Representative Kahn, of California, who [illegible] says the great needs of the [illegible] are a fast line of steamers [illegible] mails and to keep the people [illegible] with current events, [illegible] the removal of Nipa [illegible] Manila, these to be replaced [illegible]

Pension Commissioner [illegible] prepared a statement showing [illegible] erations in principal [illegible] pension bureau during the [illegible] year as compared with [illegible] It shows that the number [illegible] ers on the rolls, June 30, [illegible] 735, a net gain of 4,296 over [illegible] The total net loss to the [illegible] the year was 43,566. There [illegible] 860 claimants for pensions [illegible] year. The pension roll [illegible] the names of one surviving [illegible] widows on the account of [illegible] 1812; 1086 survivors and [illegible] on account of Indian wars [illegible] survivors and 819 widows [illegible] of the Mexican war.

It is authoritatively [illegible] navy department that [illegible] Admiral Sampson would be [illegible] to testify before the Schley [illegible] inquiry. This announcement [illegible] made to set at rest rumors [illegible] trary. Sampson's friends [illegible] to save him from the ordeal [illegible] examination at the hands [illegible] counsel and their efforts [illegible] of success. It seems [illegible] the department is determined [illegible] Admiral Schley every [illegible] the most thorough investigation [illegible] conduct during the West [illegible] paign, which would not be [illegible] without Admiral Sampson's [illegible] testimony.

The cruiser, Ranger [illegible] dered from San Diego, [illegible] isthmus of Panama. [illegible] phia, just from Samoa, [illegible] San Francisco preparing [illegible] service there also.

A new ruling by the [illegible] states that in cities of [illegible] habitants weather signals [illegible] displayed except warning [illegible]

The first triple [illegible] vessels in the United [illegible] place at Sparrow's Point [illegible] day when the thirty-two [illegible] boat destroyers Truxtun [illegible] and Worden glided [illegible] quick succession into [illegible] Instead of the old [illegible] chucks to release the [illegible] launched by a newly [illegible] ratus, in which the [illegible] electric button caused [illegible] magnet to draw the [illegible] under the boats' bows, [illegible] ways they glided.

Vice-President [illegible] south is delayed slightly [illegible] ter's illness.

The trial of E. P. Thomas [illegible] merly Postmaster-General [illegible] has been concluded and [illegible] victed. He was sentenced [illegible] of $400 or serve six [illegible] Thompson was accused [illegible] be issued in his own [illegible] master, money orders [illegible] putting a due bill in the [illegible] of cash.

The U. S. Consul at [illegible] canada will probably [illegible]

ARP'S LETTER

Man Discusses Old Times Shows a Jealous Streak.

A FEATHER FLOCK TOGETHER

Auld Lang Syne Customs Are Only Tolerated and Upheld By Those Advanced in Years.

Naturally mankind adapt themselves to those of their kind, their age, their mental condition. Birds of the feather will flock together, and the little grandchildren will run from me to frolic with other little folks, and it makes me jealous. Just about set from 10 to 12 years old. Then comes the blushing girls from 12 to 15, who have gathered out their dresses and begin to pull up their garters every few steps as they walk about. It is with the boys, and when they get to be baseball experts with a [illegible] attachment they talk of their [illegible] in a language that is heathen [illegible] to everybody except themselves and claim to be the elect. And so on and on until we have [illegible] maturity, and then we venture our comfort in communion [illegible] and pay our tribute to the old times that will never return. We are the elect.

[illegible] it is true that nobody but men and women give praise to [illegible] times and the customs of their [illegible] and so if every generation of people believes that the age of [illegible] was the best, then the [illegible] have degenerated awfully [illegible] days of the prophets. Have they not gotten better [illegible] worse? The answer is, [illegible] better in some respects and [illegible] others. Public morals were [illegible] a hundred years ago. An [illegible] was a gambler, horse [illegible] and duellist seventy-five years [illegible] a man could not be elected [illegible] now. Foreign missions and [illegible] schools were almost unknown. [illegible] trade with Africa was in [illegible] in New England. [illegible] New England rum was [illegible] money. Imprisonment [illegible] was the law generally, and so [illegible] in the navy. Whisky [illegible] known, but brandy and rum [illegible] in almost every respectable [illegible]. Illiteracy prevailed almost [illegible] over the south except among [illegible] There were but few [illegible] read and fewer newspapers. [illegible] no railroads or telegraphs [illegible] machines. But the people [illegible] honest and religious. [illegible] no trusts, no strikes, no [illegible] no suicides, or robberies, [illegible] murder was a rare event and [illegible] the heat of passion. No doubt [illegible] there are a hundred of these [illegible] committed now to one then according to population. Well, then, why [illegible] the old people for lamenting [illegible] good old times have gone? [illegible] ago I heard a gifted and cultured [illegible] minister of the olden time [illegible] a most charming and impressive [illegible] from the text in Jeremiah [illegible] reads, "Stand in the way and [illegible] the old paths, which is the [illegible], and walk therein, and ye [illegible] rest for your souls." One [illegible] tests of the strength of a [illegible] is your remembrance of the [illegible] When a gifted and scholarly [illegible] is done with it and with holy [illegible], "Let us pray," what a soliloquy [illegible] the place, and the text [illegible] with you for years to come. [illegible] not seem like the same scripture. "The old paths," "Walk ye in [illegible] paths" has been ringing in my [illegible] since.

[illegible] that Lord Bacon was growing [illegible] when he wrote, "Old wood to [illegible] wine to drink, old friends to [illegible] old authors to read." And [illegible] said, "I love everything that [illegible] King James used to call for [illegible] when he was tired."

[illegible] is something almost sacred [illegible] old songs, such as "Auld [illegible]," "The Old Oaken Bucket," [illegible] Arm Chair," and even "Old [illegible] Dead, that Good Old Man." [illegible] Tom Sawyer, of Florida, [illegible] that he still clings to his old [illegible] that he has worn his pants for [illegible] years and had them half-soled [illegible] the seat and reinforced at the [illegible] and rehemmed at the bottom; [illegible] bought a home made pair of [illegible] twenty-seven years ago and is [illegible] she's still, though he has had [illegible] built to them three times and [illegible] twice. He says that Governor [illegible] dearly loves the old [illegible] heir-looms, etc., and boasts [illegible] an old barrel that has been [illegible] over since Columbus discovered America—for he brought it [illegible] him full of brandy, and it [illegible] need liquor of some sort in [illegible] since; that his great great [illegible] put new staves in it, and [illegible] grandfather put new heads [illegible] put new hoops on it, but [illegible] old bung-hole still remains [illegible] the fluid is drawn the same [illegible] goes goodle-goodle-goodle. [illegible] he is going to take the bung-[illegible] the goodle to the Atlanta exposition and exhibit them as the only [illegible] Christopher Columbus [illegible] old friends. Every veteran [illegible] and it gives pleasure to [illegible] honored. The very prospect [illegible] Henry G. Turner in the gov-

NEWS FROM WASHI

THE ACTS AND WORDS OF PUBLIC SERVANTS.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY MAKING PREP

Philippine Affairs—The Pe rean—Sampson Will Be pelled to Testify—W Flags May Not Fly

Admiral Schley has a Washington and will remain court of inquiry meets on 12th, preparing his case. He to talk about the case, that the order of Secretary L hibiting officers of the navy any phase of it applies to him others, and he is obeying it He has had his first consult his counsel, Judge Jere W this city; former Representati nor of Baltimore, and Capt Parker, of New Jersey. Schley will go over everythi ting to the matter with his and place them in possession fact pertinent to a thorough standing of the events of the paign which are in controve

Both civil and military off gratified at the progress ma made by the Philippine com Everywhere throughout the the island the commission things ready for civil governm General Chaffee has received satisfactory news from other telling uniformly of capture renders. Many rifles have been obtained and large qua supplies secured. Represent Kahn, of California, who is says the great needs of the Ph are a fast line of steamers to mails and to keep the people with current events, electric the removal of Nipa hou Manila, these to be replaced

Pension Commissioner E prepared a statement showi erations in principal featu pension bureau during the year as compared with form It shows that the number of ers on the rolls June 30 last 735, a net gain of 4,206 over The total net loss to the r the year was 43,586. There 860 claimants for pensions d year. The pension rolls st the names of one survivor widows on the account of t 1812, 1086 survivors and 24 on account of Indian wars survivors and 8109 widows of the Mexican war.

It is authoritatively stat navy department this after Admiral Sampson would be to testify before the Schley inquiry. This announce made to set at rest rumors trary. Sampson's friends to save him from the ordea examination at the hands o counsel and their efforts ga of success. It seems, how the department is determin Admiral Schley every opp the most thorough investig conduct during the West In paign, which would not b without Admiral Sampson' testimony.

The cruiser, Ranger, has dered from San Diego, Ca isthmus of Panama. The phia, just from Samoa, is in San Francisco preparing f service there also.

A new ruling by the wa states that in cities of over habitants weather signals displayed except warning

The first triple launchi vessels in the United S place at Sparrow's Point to day when the thirty-two k boat destroyers Truxtun and Worden glided from th quick succession into the Instead of the old time chucks to release the boat launched by a newly dev ratus, in which the pres electric button caused magnet to draw the steel under the boats' bows, an ways they glided.

Vice-President Roo south is delayed slightly b ter's illness.

The trial of E. P. Th merly Postmaster-General has been concluded and The victed. He was sentenced of $400 or serve six mon Thompson was accused of be issued in his own behal master, money orders for putting a due bill in the of cash.

The U. S. Consul at C ezuela will probably not

ARP'S LETTER

Man Discusses Old Times Shows a Jealous Streak.

OF A FEATHER FLOCK TOGETHER

Long Sync Customs Are Only Followed and Upheld By Those Advanced In Years.

[illegible] make and adapt them- [illegible] to show of their [illegible] age, [illegible] Birds of the [illegible] together, and [illegible] will run [illegible] with other lit- [illegible] makes me jealous. Just [illegible] 12 years [illegible] 15, who [illegible] tresses and [illegible] garters every [illegible] about. It is [illegible] and when [illegible] experts with a [illegible] of their [illegible] heathen [illegible] them- [illegible] And [illegible] we have [illegible] communion [illegible] tribute to [illegible] never re- [illegible] nobody but [illegible] praise to [illegible] of their [illegible] generation of [illegible] the age of [illegible] then the [illegible] awfully [illegible] Have [illegible] cotton better [illegible] answer is, [illegible] respects and [illegible] morals were [illegible] years ago. An- [illegible] gambler, horse [illegible] five years [illegible] not be elected [illegible] missions and [illegible] unknown. [illegible] Africa was in [illegible] New England, [illegible] New England rum was [illegible] Imprisonment [illegible] generally, and so [illegible] navy. Whisky [illegible] brandy and rum [illegible] almost every respectable [illegible] prevailed al- [illegible] except among [illegible] There were but few [illegible] and fewer newspapers, [illegible] railroads or telegraphs [illegible] But the people [illegible] honest and religious. [illegible] trusts, no strikes, no [illegible] or robberies, [illegible] was a rare event and [illegible] passion. No doubt [illegible] hundred of these [illegible] then ac- [illegible] Well, then, why [illegible] for lamenting [illegible] times have gone? [illegible] heard a gifted and cul- [illegible] of the olden time [illegible] and impres- [illegible] in Jeremiah [illegible] Stand in the way and [illegible] which is the [illegible] and walk therein, and ye [illegible] for your souls." One [illegible] of the strength of a [illegible] remembrance of the [illegible] gifted and scholarly [illegible] with it and with holy [illegible] Let us pray," what a sol- [illegible] the place and the text [illegible] you for years to come. [illegible] the same scrip- [illegible] "Walk ye in [illegible] has been ringing in my [illegible] that Lord Bacon was grow- [illegible] when he wrote "old wood to [illegible] wine to drink, old friends to [illegible] old authors to read." And [illegible] said "I love everything that [illegible] King James used to call for [illegible] when he was tired." [illegible] something almost sacred [illegible] old songs such as "Auld [illegible] "The Old Oaken Bucket," [illegible] Arm Chair" and even "Old [illegible] Dead that Good Old Man." [illegible] Tom Sawyer of Florida. [illegible] he still clings to his old [illegible] that he has worn his pants for [illegible] years and had them half- [illegible] the seat and reinforced at the [illegible] remembered at the bottom; [illegible] made pair of [illegible] seven years ago and is [illegible] though he has had [illegible] to them three times and [illegible] twice. He says that Gov- [illegible] dearly loves the old [illegible] and boasts [illegible] that has been [illegible] ever since Columbus dis- [illegible] America—for he brought it [illegible] full of brandy, and it [illegible] good liquor of some sort in [illegible] that has great great [illegible] put new staves in it, and [illegible] grandfather put new heads [illegible] put new hoops on it, but [illegible] old bung-hole still remains [illegible] the fluid is drawn the same [illegible] goes goodle-goodle-goodle. [illegible] he is going to take the bung- [illegible] goodle to the Atlanta ex- [illegible] and exhibit them as the only [illegible] of Christopher Columbus. [illegible] old friends. Every veter- [illegible] them and it gives pleasure to [illegible] honored. The very prospect [illegible] Henry G. Turner in the governor's chair gives me pleasure, for I know him well and love him. Maybe I would love Colonel Estill or Pope Brown just as well if I knew them as well. I have great respect for them and am proud of their records. I believe that either would dignify the gubernatorial chair, but as Judge Underwood said to me in the long ago, "Major, let me tell you why I would like to be governor of Georgia. You will admit that knowledge is a little better than faith. There are many good men whom I believe would make a good governor, but I don't know it. Now I do know that I would; and there is a difference between faith and knowledge. Don't you perceive?" Just so I believe that Colonel Estill or Pope Brown would make a good governor, but I know that Henry G. Turner would, and knowledge is better than faith. "Don't you perceive?" If he is not an incorruptible, unselfish, brainy statesman, we have none. Let his name be presented and I believe the verdict will be as the king said of Mordecai: "Thus shall it be done unto the man whom the people delight to honor."—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

ETHICS OF ADVERTISING.

Ridiculousness of the Code Which Governs Doctors and Lawyers.

A writer in Publicity, presumably a lawyer, writes entertainingly on the ethics of his profession in so far as it relates to advertising, and taboos the professional man, be he lawyer, doctor or clergyman, who advertises.

It would appear that he argues from a premise contradictory in its statement, only to reach, as he necessarily must, an illogical conclusion, not warranted by the intermediate syllogisms. It is false logic, and needs must fall.

The fact that he admits advertising has practically become a science and "that the advertiser—the one who has, perhaps, made a life study of the benefits of his own system or those of other equally broad-minded men—is justified in assuming that every man has his own interests at heart, and that with every business man of ambition the advancement of his own business occupies the same position. If, then, the advertiser believes advertising to be one of the most important stages on the high road to business success, why is he not justified in his endeavor to persuade the physician or the purist that unless he advertises he pursues a phantom in the form of legitimate personal and professional fame and marked financial benefit?"

Of course he is justified, and it is only the hide-bound rule of the years when newspapers and other vehicles of advertising were non-existent that trammels him to-day to enter into competition with his mercantile brother.

The writer assumes that there are many members of the legal profession who would advertise, to the detriment of their more conservative brethren. Possibly that is true. This is not the age of the tallow dip or stage coach, and he who falls in the race need not start on crutches.

The etiquette and morals of the bar are high-sounding and sonorous phrases, but the average newspaper reporter with any court experience at all knows what a sham the ethics of that profession are, and that free advertising is eagerly sought for by the highest counselor or by the police court solicitor.

The suggestion has been made, and an admirable one, too, that the papers refuse to print the names of lawyers or physicians in prominent cases unless they advertised.

Lawyers furnish their briefs to newspapers; often prepare interviews; physicians write their own account of difficult operations, and clergymen synopsis of their sermons, and the newspaper publishes it in choice position without reaping a penny of profit.

The enterprising lawyer or physician who casts aside the so-called ethics of the profession and advertises may incur the ill-will of his laggard competitor, but he will have demonstrated that this is the twentieth century, not the sixteenth.—Fourth Estate.

Power of a Child's Gift.

A little crippled girl who died in Plainfield, N. J., ten years ago left her savings of $2.30 to the church she loved, and the pennies were put in the bank. She had intended to use them to purchase a doll carriage, but when told she would not live to enjoy it made the disposition of her mite in the manner stated. When a $2000 mortgage pressed upon the church recently the pastor of the church remembered the baby's legacy and asked his parishioners to do as well as the little cripple. The magic of example worked to a charm. The money was raised at a single collection under the inspiration furnished by this example of devotion, and the church is free from debt. "And a little child shall lead them."—Philadelphia Times.

What It Indicates.

Any woman who will flatter a man to his face is either in love with him or else is perfectly willing to be.—New York Press.

Celluloid is made with almost the same materials as guncotton.

A Chicago inventor claims to have developed an airship that will fly. If so he has surely produced a novelty.

A queer form of disorder is reported from Denver, where, it is said, the mobs make the cemeteries pleasure resorts, and flock to funerals to gratify a morbid curiosity.

CANINE ENDURANCE.

Remarkable Speed at Which Many Dogs Can Run.

Comparatively few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable, says the London Mail. Some remarkable statistics in regard to this have been gathered by M. Dusolier, a French scientist.

After pointing out the marvelous endurance shown by little fox terriers who follow their masters patiently for hours while the latter are riding on bicycles or in carriages, he says that even greater endurance is shown by certain wild animals that are akin to dogs.

Thus a wolf can run between 50 and 60 miles in one night, and an Arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better.

Nansen met one of these foxes on the ice at a point more than 70 miles northwest of the Sannibow Territory, which is 480 miles from the Asiatic coast. Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel 45 miles on the ice in five hours, and there is one case on record in which a team of Eskimo dogs traveled six and a half miles in 28 minutes.

According to M. Dusolier the speed of the shepherd dogs and those used for hunting ranges from 10 to 5 yards a second. English setters and pointers hunt at the rate of 18 to 19 miles an hour and they can maintain this speed for at least two hours.

Foxhounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in six minutes and a half, which was at the rate of nearly 18 yards a second.

Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four-footed creatures, and their speed may be regarded as equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds, which are carefully selected, and which are used for the coursing, are able to cover, at full gallop, a space between 18 and 23 yards every second.

How great an achievement this is may be judged from the fact that a thoroughbred horse rarely, if ever, exceeds nineteen yards. Moreover, it is said, that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of 18 yards.

These interesting statistics are exciting much comment among sportsmen and other lovers of dogs, and the opinion is unanimous that M. Dusolier has fully proved the right of the greyhounds to rank as the swiftest of quadrupeds. Express engines only surpass them.

Sing Sing's Death Chamber.

Within a few feet of the main prison at Sing Sing is a small brick building as primitively plain in appearance as possible. This structure contains the death chamber, an apartment which no prisoner ever enters more than once. He goes into it with life thrilling every pulse. He leaves it a corpse. Twenty-six persons—all men except one—have been put to death in this room.

The apartment is as plain as the exterior. The walls are bare. At one end are a dozen stools, which officials occupy when the capital penalty of the law is being executed. At the other end is the death chair. A few wires are visible. Every other accessory of homocidal justice is concealed. The prisoner sits in the chair. The electrical head-piece is adjusted. A sponge is fastened to one of the legs. Silently a signal is given, and in less time than the thought can be conceived a life has been ended.—Leslie's Weekly.

The Modest of Childhood

Little Philip wanted to go visiting the other day. He longed to go to see Mazie, who lived nearly two blocks away. After a good deal of teasing his mother said he might go.

"And may I stay to lunch?" the boy asked.

"You may if Mazie's mother asks you to," was the reply. "If she doesn't be sure to come home before noon."

Philip reached Mazie's house a few minutes later and galloped up on the porch where the little girl's mother was sitting.

"Mrs. Parker," he said, half out of breath, "I've come to play with Mazie all day, and my mother says I must not stay here to lunch unless you ask me to, but I ain't hungry yet."

He was invited to stay.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Lotion For Tan.

A generous supply of witch-hazel should go into the outing outfit, particularly if one's destination is the seashore. Its use for the sunburn that comes from sea bathing is especially valuable. Bathe the face and arms freely with it, its properties being not only to relieve the first burn, but to harden the skin, making it less sensitive to future similar inflictions. A lotion recommended for ordinary use is made from a pint of rose-water, half an ounce of pulverized borax and an ounce of strained lemon juice. With this mixture the skin may be freely bathed after exposure to the sun.

It Was Beyond Her Ken.

"All that I am," he said, looking proudly at her, "I owe to my wife."

She loved him more at that moment than she ever had before. It was so noble of him to give her this high praise. She wanted to go right over to him and throw her arms around his neck. Then he raised his hat and rubbed the palm of one of his hands over his bald head.

An hour later she was still wondering what "those silly fools" had suddenly commenced to laugh at, and why they looked at her as if she were the cause of the joke.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Butterflies are said to be very sleepy-headed. Twilight sends them to bed, and they are still drowsy at sunrise.

Even a train of thought may be behind time.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Religion a Great Refreshment — Water For the Thirsty — God a Fountain of Joy That is Unappreciated — An Everlasting Well of Gladness.

[Copyright 1898.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage represents religion as a great refreshment and invites all the world to come and receive it; text, Genesis xxix. 8, "We cannot until all the flocks be gathered together and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep."

A scene in Mesopotamia, beautifully pastoral. A well of water of great value in that region. The fields around about it white with three flocks of sheep lying down waiting for the watering. I hear their bleating coming on the bright air and the laughter of young men and maidens indulging in rustic repartee. I look off, and I see other flocks of sheep coming. Meanwhile Jacob, a stranger, on an interesting errand of looking for a wife, comes to the well. A beautiful shepherdess comes to the same well. I see her approaching followed by her father's flock of sheep. It was a memorable meeting. Jacob married that shepherdess. The Bible account of it is, "Jacob kissed Rachel and lifted up his voice and wept." It has always been a mystery to me what he found to cry about. But before that scene occurred Jacob accosts the shepherds and asks them why they postpone the slaking of the thirst of these sheep and why they did not immediately proceed to water them. The shepherds reply to the effect: "We are all good neighbors, and as a matter of courtesy we wait until all the sheep of the neighborhood come up. Besides that, this stone on the well's mouth is somewhat heavy, and several of us take hold of it and push it aside, and then the buckets and the troughs are filled, and the sheep are satisfied. We cannot until all the flocks are gathered together and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep."

Oh, this is a thirsty world! Hot for the head and blistering for the feet and parching for the tongue. The world's great want is a cool, refreshing, satisfying draft. We wander around, and we find the cistern empty. Long and tedious drought has dried up the world's fountain, but centuries ago a shepherd, with crook in the shape of a cross and feet cut to the bleeding, explored the desert passages of this world, and one day came across a well a thousand feet deep, bubbling and bright and opalescent, and looked to the north and the south and the east and the west and cried out with a voice strong and musical that rang through the ages, "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters!"

Now, a great flock of sheep to-day gather around this gospel well. There are a great many thirsty souls. I wonder why the flocks of all nations do not gather—why so many stay thirsty—and while I am wondering about it my text breaks forth in the explanation, saying, "We cannot until all the flocks be gathered together and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep."

If a herd of swine come to a well they angrily jostle each other for the precedence; if a drove of cattle come to a well they hook each other back from the water, but when a flock of sheep come, though a hundred of them shall be disappointed, they only express it by sad bleating, they come together peaceably. We want a great multitude to come around the gospel well. I know there are those who do not like a crowd; they think a crowd is vulgar. If they are oppressed for room in church, it makes them positively impatient and belligerent. We have had people permanently leave church because so many people come to it. Not so did these Oriental shepherds. They waited until all the flocks were gathered, and the more flocks that came the better they liked it. And so we ought to be anxious that all the people should come. Go out into the highways and the hedges and compel them to come in; go to the rich and tell them they are indigent without the gospel of Jesus; go to the poor and tell them the affluence there is in Christ; go to the blind and tell them of the touch that gives eternal illumination; go to the lame and tell them of the joy that will make the lame man leap like a hart. Gather all the sheep off all the mountains; none so torn of the dogs, none so sick, none so worried, so dying, as to be omitted. Why not gather a great flock? All this city in a flock; all New York in a flock; all London in a flock; all the world in a flock.

This well of the gospel is deep enough to put out the burning thirst of the 1,600,000,000 of the race. Do not let the church by a spirit of exclusiveness keep the world out. Let down all the bars, swing open all the gates, scatter all the invitations, "Whosoever will let him come." Come, white and black. Come, red men of the forest. Come, Laplander out of the snow. Come, Patagonian, out of the south. Come in furs. Come panting under palm leaves. Come one. Come all. Come now. As at this well of Mesopotamia Jacob and Rachel were betrothed, so this morning at this well of salvation Christ, our Shepherd, will meet you coming up with your long flocks of cares and anxieties, and He will stretch out His hand in pledge of His affection while all the heaven will cry out: "Behold the bridegroom cometh! Go ye out to meet Him."

You notice that this well of Mesopotamia had a stone on it, which must be removed before the sheep could be watered, and I find on the well of salvation to-day impediments and obstacles which must be removed in order that you may obtain the refreshment and life of this gospel. In your case the impediment is pride of heart. You cannot bear to come to so democratic a fountain. You do not want to come with so many others. It is as though you were thirsty and you were invited to slake your thirst at the town pump instead of sitting in a parlor sipping out of a chased chalice which has just been lifted from a silver salver. Not so many publicans and sinners. You want to get to heaven, but you must be in a special car, with your feet on a Turkish ottoman and a band of music on board the train. You do not want to be in company with rustic Jacob and Rachel and to be drinking out of the fountain where 10,000 sheep have been drinking before you. You will have to remove the obstacle of pride, or never find your way to the well.

You will have to come as we came, willing to take the water of eternal life in any way and at any hand and in any kind of pitcher, crying out: "O Lord Jesus, I am dying of thirst! Give me the water of eternal life, whether in trough or goblet. Give me the water of life. I care not in what it comes to me." Away with all your hindrances of pride from the well's mouth!

Here is another man who is kept back from this water of life by the stone of an obdurate heart, which lies over the mouth of the well. You have no more feeling upon this subject than if God had yet to do you the first kindness or you had to do God the first wrong. Seated on His lap all these years, His everlasting arms sheltering you, where is your gratitude? Where is your morning and evening prayer? Where are your consecrated lives? I say to you, as Daniel said to Belshazzar, "The God in whose hand thy breath is and all thy way thou hast not glorified." If you treated anybody as badly as you have treated God, you would have made 500 apologies—yes, your whole life would have been an apology. Three times a day you have been seated at God's table. Spring, summer, autumn and winter He has appropriately apparelled you. Your health from Him, your companion from Him, your children from Him, your home from Him, all the bright surroundings of your life from Him.

Oh, man, what dost thou with that hard heart? Canst thou not feel one throb of gratitude toward the God that made you and the Christ who came to redeem you and the Holy Ghost who has all these years been importuning you?

If I could gather all the griefs of all sorts from these crowded streets and could put them in one scroll, neither man nor angel could endure the recitation. Well, what do you want? Would you like to have your property back again? "No," you say as a Christian many. "I was becoming arrogant, and I think that is why the Lord took it away. I don't want to have my property back." Well, would you have your departed friends back again? "No," you say. "I couldn't take the responsibility of bringing them from a tearless realm to a realm of tears. I couldn't do it." Well, then, what do you want? A thousand voices in the audience cry out: "Comfort! Give us comfort!" For that reason I have rolled away the stone from the well's mouth. Come, all ye wounded of the flock, pursued of the wolves, come to the fountain where the Lord's sick and bereft ones have come. "Ah," says some one, "you are not old enough to understand my sorrows. You have not been in the world as long as I have, and you can't talk to me about my misfortunes in the time of old age." Well, I may not have lived as long as you, but I have been a great deal among old people, and I know how they feel about their failing health and about their departed friends and about the loneliness that sometimes strikes through their souls. After two persons have lived together for forty or fifty years, and one of them is taken away, what desolation!

I shall not forget the cry of Dr. De Witt, of New York, when he stood by the open grave of his beloved wife, and after the obsequies had ended he looked down into the open place and said: "Farewell, my honored, faithful and beloved wife. The bond that bound us is severed. Thou art in glory, and I am here on earth. We shall meet again. Farewell! Farewell!"

To lean on a prop for fifty years and then have it break under you! There were only two years' difference between the death of my father and mother. After my mother's decease my father used to go around as though looking for something. He would often get up from one room without any seeming reason and go to another room, and then he would take his cane and start out, and some one would say, "Father, where are you going?" And he would answer, "I don't know exactly where I am going." Always looking for something. Though he was a tender-hearted man I never saw him cry but once, and that was at the burial of my mother. After sixty years' living together it was hard to part. And there are aged people to-day who are feeling just such a pang as that. I want to tell them there is perfect enchantment in the promises of this gospel, and I come to them and offer them my arm, or I take their arm and I bring them to this gospel well. Sit down, father or mother; sit down. See if there is anything at the well for you. Come, David, the psalmist, have you anything encouraging to offer them? "Yes," says the psalmist; "they shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be fat and flourishing to show that the Lord is upright. He is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in Him." Come, Isaiah, have you anything to say out of your prophecies for these aged people? "Yes," says Isaiah; "down to old age I am with thee, and to hoary hairs will I carry thee." Well, if the Lord is going to carry you, you ought not to worry much about your ailing eyesight and failing limbs.

You get a little worried for fear that some time you will come to want, do you? Your children and grandchildren sometimes speak a little sharp to you because of your ailments. The Lord will not speak sharp. Do you think you will come to want? What do you think the Lord is? Are His granaries empty? Will He feed the raven and the rabbit and the lion in the desert and forget you? Why, naturalists tell us that the porpoise will not forsake its wounded and sick mate. And do you suppose the Lord of heaven and earth has not as much sympathy as the fish of the sea? But you say, "I am so near worn out, and I am of no use to God any more." I think the Lord knows whether you are of any more use or not. If you were of no more use He would have taken you before this. Do you think God has forgotten you because He has taken care of you seventy or eighty years? He thinks more of you to-day than He ever did because you think more of Him. May the God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and Paul the aged be your God forever. But I gather all the promises to-day in a group, and I ask the shepherds to drive their flocks of lambs and sheep up to the sparkling supply. "Behold, happy is the man who God correcteth." "Though He cause grief, yet will He have compassion." "Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivereth him out of them all." "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." I am determined that no one shall go out of this house uncomforted.

So I come to your timid and shrinking soul to-day and compel you to come out in the presence of the Divine Physician. He will not hurt you. He has been healing wounds for many years, and He will give you gentle and omnipotent medicament.

But people, when they have trouble, go anywhere rather than to God. De Quincey took opium to get rid of his troubles, Charles Lamb took to punch, Theodore Hook took to something stronger, Edwin Forrest took to theatrical dissipation, and men have run all around the earth, hoping in the quick transit to get away from their misfortunes. It has been a dead failure. There is only one well that can slake the thirst of an afflicted spirit, and that is the deep and inexhaustible well of the gospel.

But some one in the audience says, "Notwithstanding all you have said this morning, I find no alleviation for my troubles." Well, I am not through yet. I have left the most potent consideration for the last. I am going to soothe you with the thought of heaven. However talkative we may be, there will come a time when the stoutest and most emphatic interrogation will evoke from us no answer. As soon as we have closed our lips for the final silence no power on earth can break that taciturnity. But where, O Christian, will be your spirit? In a scene of infinite gladness; the spring morning of heaven waving its blossoms in the bright air; victors fresh from battle showing their scars; the rain of earthly sorrow struck through with the rainbow of eternal joy; in one group God and angels and the redeemed—Paul and Silas, Latimer and Ridley, Isaiah and Jeremiah, Payson and John Milton, Gabriel and Michael, the archangel; long line of choristers reaching across the hills; seas of joy dashing to the white beach; conquerors marching from gate to gate, you among them. Oh, what a great flock God will gather around the celestial well! No stone on the well's mouth while the shepherd waters the sheep. There Jacob will recognize Rachel, the shepherdess. And, standing on one side of the well of eternal rapture your children and standing on the other side of eternal rapture your Christian ancestry, you will be bounded on all sides by a joy so keen and grand that no other world has ever been permitted to experience it. Out of that one deep well of heaven the Shepherd will dip reunion for the bereaved, wealth for the poor, health for the sick, rest for the weary. And then all the flock of the Lord's sheep will lie down in the green pastures, and world without end we will praise the Lord that on this summer Sabbath morning we were permitted to study the story of Jacob and Rachel at the well.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUGUST 25.

Subject: Abraham and Isaac, Gen. xxii., 1-14—Golden Text, Heb. xi., 17—Memory Verses, 6-8—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

1. "After these things." The things recorded in the previous chapter regarding Hagar and Ishmael and their banishment. "Did prove Abraham" (R. V.) "Not incite to sin (Jas. 1: 13), but try, prove, give occasion for the development of faith." 1 Cor. 10: 13; Heb. 11: 17; James 1: 12. It is well to see that God confers a signal honor upon us when He thus tests our hearts. Tempting is for the sake of leading men to evil; testing them is for the purpose of making them better. The trials of life are to prove what we are, to see if we are fitted for larger things. "Here I am." Ready at a moment's notice for God's service.

2. "Thine only son." His only son by Sarah, his legal wife. Had Abraham's whole soul not been stayed simply on the Lord he never could have yielded unhesitating obedience to such a searching command. Abraham desired earnestly to be let into the mystery of redemption, and God let him feel by experience what it was to lose a beloved son. "Land of Moriah." A general phrase for the mountainous district of Jerusalem. This Moriah was the same site upon which Solomon built the temple, and Calvary was near by. "For a burnt offering." Abraham was living amidst idolaters who sacrificed their first born to their idols, and "Abraham himself might not have been sure that he ought not to offer as costly sacrifices as the heathen did; but God at this time taught him and his descendants not to offer human sacrifices, and yet they were to retain the spirit of sacrifice out of which they grew."

3. "Rose up early." That there might be no appearance of delay or reluctance on his part he made every preparation for the sacrifice before setting out—the materials, the knife, the servants to convey them; and he had the painful secret pent up in his bosom during the three days he was journeying to Moriah. He murmured not, nor took counsel with flesh and blood. He waited not to consult with Sarah, nor listen to the misgivings of his own mind. The command was clear and the obedience prompt.

4. "The third day." Beer-sheba, Abraham's present home, was a town on the southern border of Palestine, forty-five miles south of Jerusalem, and three days was the usual time it would take them to make the journey. In the three days' journey there was time given for reflection; thus the struggle of faith is not short and momentary, but prolonged. As this sacrifice was typical of that of Christ, so here may be a reference to the third day of His resurrection. "Saw the place." The hill Moriah can be seen about three miles distant by one coming from Beer-sheba.

5. "And worship." Perform a solemn act of devotion which God requires. "Come again to you." This may have been an expression of faith that God would restore his son even if actually sacrificed. Heb. 11: 17-19. This reminds us of our Lord in Gethsemane; going into such an agony, He would not admit others to go with Him.

6. "Laid it upon Isaac." Isaac carried the wood for the burnt offering, so Christ carried the tree whereon He died (John 19: 17); the binding of Isaac was also typical, for so Christ was bound. Matt. 27: 2. "Took the fire." That is, carrying in his hand the vessel containing the coals of fire.

7. "Where is the lamb?" The tenderness of this scene is only to be surpassed by those of Gethsemane and Calvary. Nothing can be conceived more affectionate and affecting.

8. "Will provide." The patriarch spoke prophetically, and referred to that Lamb of God who in the fulness of time should take away the sin of the world, and of whom Isaac was a most expressive type. The giving up by the father of his only and well beloved son (v. 3; John 3: 16), the ready submission of the son (v. 9; John 10: 15), the bearing of the instrument of death by the victim (v. 6; John 19: 17), the violent death consented to (v. 10; John 19: 16), the deliverance from death on the third day (vs. 4, 12; Matt. 20: 19), can not be mere accidental coincidences.

9. "Bound Isaac, his son." Had not the patriarch been sustained by the full consciousness of acting in obedience to God's will, the effort must have been too great for human endurance; and had not Isaac, then probably twenty-five years of age, displayed equal faith in submitting, this great trial could not have been gone through.

10. "Stretched forth his hand." The deed is virtually done when the will shows firm determination. God who looketh upon the heart regardeth the sacrifice as already made. He will take the will for the deed, but never the deed for the will.

11. "The angel of the Lord." The very person who was represented by this offering; the Lord Jesus, who calls Himself Jehovah (v. 16), and on His own authority renews the promises of the covenant. He was ever the great Mediator between God and man. "Called unto him." When we cannot see on any side a way of escape, then God comes and often shows us a wonderful deliverance.

12. "Lay not thine hand." The sacrifice was virtually offered, the intention, the purpose to do it, was shown in all sincerity and fulness. "I know." The best evidence of our fearing God is our being willing to honor Him with that which is dearest to us, and to part with all for Him. "That thou fearest God." This was faith in action. Paul says that Abraham was accepted by faith, and James says he was accepted by works of obedience, but these are only two sides of the same thing, for not a single act of faith can be named but what has in it the nature of obedience.

13. "Behold—a ram." Though Christ was typified by Isaac, yet the offering of him was suspended, and in the meantime the sacrifice of beasts was accepted as a pledge of that expiation for sin which should be made in "the fulness of time;" the great principle of the Mosaic economy was the acceptance of animal sacrifices instead of human.

14. "Jehovah-jireh." That is, "The Lord will see, or provide." "It shall be seen." The meaning is that this was the spot of God's choice for the manifestation of His visible presence, where the sanctuary should be erected and sacrifices offered. After the ram had been offered the angel of the Lord again called to Abraham and renewed the covenant that God had made with him. Abraham then returned to Beer-sheba.

French scientists have been making experiments in regard to the effect of certain perfumes upon the voice. Many of the most successful teachers of singing have cautioned their pupils stringently against the use of strong perfumes or the proximity of odorous flowers. Some masters go so far as to forbid their pupils the use of any perfume at all, and if one of them is detected wearing a bunch of violets the lesson is postponed. The perfume of the violet has been found to be particularly injurious to the voice.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain,
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

FIRST bales are being reported all around us—who will bring in the first bale to Clanton?

SUBSCRIBERS who avail themselves of our clubbing rates and fail to receive the paper clubbed with regularly, should write direct to that paper.

THE Rockford Courier announced in its last issue its temporary suspension, at the same time intimating its readiness to resume whenever its delinquent subscribers paid up.

THE war business is looking up again. There's our little go with the Filipines: England and the Boers are still at it; and now the three South American republics—Ecuador, Venzuela and Colombia are flying at each other.

The total disbursements for pensions by the United States from July 1, 1790, to June 30, 1901, aggregate two and three-quarter billions of dollars. There were 45,860 claimants for pensions during the past year.

WE regret to note in some of our exchanges several references to the "toughs" and "bullies" of Maplesville. That pretty town has hitherto always held a good reputation for peace and quietness, and we can hardly credit that it has now fallen into the hands of "toughs" and "bullies." Is'nt there a little exaggeration somewhere?

THERE is much reason to fear that the recent high winds and stormy weather have considerably damaged the crops in this section, cotton, in particular, having suffered very badly. Up to the last week or ten days, crops were reported as being in better condition than ever known here before, but it is now generally conceded that they have deteriorated at least thirty-three per cent.

THE Constitutional Convention adjourned on Tuesday, after a session of seventy-six days, to give the Committee on Harmony time to prepare its report. The convention will meet again on August 28. There has been so much reconsideration that it is hardly worth while to discuss the merits of the proposed constitution until we have the finished document before us, there may be more reconsiderations when the convention meets again.

THE Louisville & Nashville Railroad company, in voluntarily reducing the freight rates on coal, is certainly offering an extra inducement to substitute that mineral for wood. In this part of the country wood is every year becoming more scarce, and while it will be many years before the supply is exhausted so far as the farmer is concerned, yet the small towns along the railroad can more economically use coal, and we have no doubt but that the action of the L. & N. will be highly appreciated.

Lily.

Meldia, daughter of Mr. Wm. Wright, aged seven years, died on 18th inst., after a week's illness. Bright, gentle, loving little Meldia, 'tis hard to give thee up, but we yield complacently to the will of the Father who doeth all things well. May memories of thy brief, sweet life remain fresh, and keep alive the hopes of relatives, friends and little companions, that some day—some sweet day—they may meet thee in the better land. G.L.S.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

The Convention Monday adopted the Railroad Commission section of the article on corporations just as it was reported by the committee. It confers authority on the Legislative to regulate railroad rates, locate depots and otherwise restrict railroad corporations. The section was copied from the Georgia Constitution.

The chief subject of debate Monday was the report of the minority of the committee which sought to provide the Building and Loan Associations cannot charge a greater rate of interest than the legal rate. The minority made a valiant fight but its report was finally tabled, and the matter will not go into the new Constitution.

The article on corporations is the last article on the calendar of the Constitution. There are but three sections of this article yet to be considered, and it is expected that they will be completed this morning. Several other minor matters may be taken up and the finishing touches will be given the new Constitutio.

It was thought Monday that under the new rule recently reported to the Convention but not yet adopted the Convention would begin at once with the report of the Committee on Harmony and adobt the report by Articles. This Committee met Monday night. After the meeting it was given out that when the Convention completes the work of considering all articles and ordinances, the Committee on Harmony will probably ask the body to adjourn for a week to give the Committee time to complete its work, so that a full report can be made.

The Convention completed the article on corporations Tuesday, and together with the articles on education, schedule and militia it was read the third time and adopted. Various odds and ends of business were attended to. Among other things an ordinance was passed regulating temporarily the succession of the governorship in the event of a vacancy before the new constitution is adopted. The convention adjourned until Wednesday, August 28.

GENERAL CONVENTION EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SAN FRANCISCO, California, October. 1901.

The Southern Pacific Co's "Sun Set Route" takes pleasure in announcing very low round trip rates from all Coupon Tickets Offices in this territory to San Francisco, Cal., account of the above occasion.

Tickets on sale September 18-26 inclusive.

Stop Overs are allowed on the going trip in Texas and West thereof provided, passengers reach San Francisco not later than October 2nd, and on the return trip at points West of Colorado Common Points, San Antonia and Fort Worth, Texas, provided, passengers reach starting point within the extreme limit of the ticket, November 15, 1901.

The privilege of going one route and returning another will be allowed.

Particular attention is called to the "Convention Special," one of the finest trains in the world, from New Orleans through to California without change. This train carrying the equipment of the "Famous Sun Set Limited" Vestibuled Sleeping and Dining Cars, especially arranged to carry the delegates and visitors to California, will leave New Orleans Wednesday, September 25th. Stops will be made at various interesting points enroute.

The following rates have been authorized from various points to San Francisco and return.

Anniston	$ 55.55
Attalla	$ 55.15
Birmingham, Selma, Decatur, Mobile, Montgomery and Tuskaloosa	$ 51.75
Eufaula	$ 56.55
Florence	$ 50.95
Huntsville	$ 53.20
Opelika	$ 55.70

Rates are open to all.

For further information call on or address GEO. W ELY,
T P. A. Sun Set Route,"
Montgomery, Ala.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50c a. Clanton Drug Co.

Jacobi Sentenced to 20 Years.

Saturday was sentence day in the criminal division of the City Court of Montgomery and the case of most interest was that of young Sanford Jacobi, who was convicted by a jury a few days ago on the charge of assault to ravish. The motion for a new trial was overruled by Judge Thomas and Jacobi was sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary, the extreme penalty of the law.

Notice of an appeal was given and the bill of exceptions is to be made out. The case will be carried at once to the Supreme Court. The final decision may be delayed for months. In the meantime Jacobi will remain in jail, bail not being allowable while the appeal to the Supreme Court is spending.

The young man was surrounded by relatives and friends when the sentence was pronounced and while he exhibited some surprise, there was no demonstration on his part. Not a word was said to give expression to his feeling when the words were uttered that consigned him to exile for an average life time. Many of his friends called at the jail to express sympathy for him in his misfortune.

It will probably be next spring before judgment is rendered by the Supreme Court and the attorneys for the defendant say they are confident they can obtain a reversal on some of the grounds of their exceptions. If they cannot do so the case will then be closed and Jacobi will have to serve the penalty of the law and spend some eighteen years in the penitentiary, unless sooner pardoned.

An English Trait of Character.

That was a decidedly English trait of character when the house of commons summoned before it an editor who had vilely referred to the Irish members.

The house is conservative by an immense majority, and even of the liberal minority a large section is inimical to the Irish cause. The Irish members themselves, for reasons of their own, have been obstructive, and hence could have no claim upon the sympathy of their colleagues. If it was safe for an editor to attack any section of the house, this was the opportunity.

The result brought out the English trait—love of fair play—to which we have alluded. The tory leader seconded the motion of Mr. Redmond to bring the offender before the house. It was no longer a question of politics, but of justice to men. By a unanimous vote the editor was made to understand that he could not rely upon English prejudice to shield him in an attack upon the Irish members.

It is a pity that our congress falls occasionally in this respect. The blind majority stands up for party, even where every claim of fair play should intervene. We should cultivate this English virtue.—Atlanta Constitution.

HELP THE ORPHANS!

To All Whom it May Concern:

Our Orphanage located at Summerfield, Ala, is eleven years old and has sheltered, in round numberes, 300 destitute orphan children, and is now doing the greatest good in its history.

We receive destitute orphans regardless of sectarian considerations from all parts of Alabama and West Florida. All good people should be interested in this good work that is being done in our own midst, and share their munificence with the poor little destitute orphan children. We hereby appeal to all the Methodist Sunday schools in Alabama and West Florida to observe Sunday, Sept. 1st, as orphans' home day—take up a collection and forward the amount raised to Rev. T. H. Jones, Union Springs, Ala.

We also appeal to all who will help us in this grand work to send a contribution for the support of this cause to the undersigned by Sept. 15, and we will acknowledge receipt of same.

We need more land to our home; we need more furniture for the Home—in short, we need Two Thousand Dollars to better equip us for our work.

Who will respond to our appeal? Remember the rich promises of God's word touching this work. May the Lord move the hearts of all our people to help us, and to help now, for we need it now to aid us in doing what we ought to do for these precious little orphans.

Thos. H. Jones, Financial Agent,
P.O. Box 496, Union Springs, Ala.

To Save Her Child

From frightful disfigurement Mrs. Nannie Galleger, of LaGrange, Ga., applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve to great sores on her head and face, and writes its quick cure exceeded all her hopes. It works wonders in Sores, Bruises, Skin Eruptions, Cuts, Burns, Scalds and Piles. 25c. Cure guaranteed by Clanton Drug Co.

TAX NOTICE.

ASSESSOR'S & COLLECTOR'S First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of assessing the State and County Taxes of Chilton County for the year 1902, and assessing the taxes for the year 1901.

		1901
Fletcher	Beat 8	Court
Stanton	" 8	"
Dixie	" 8	" 3
Shoults	" 7	" 4
Maplesville	" 7	" 5
Benson	" 3	" 7
Macedonia	" 3	" 8
Providence	" 2	" 9
Jemison	" 1	" 10
Mineral Springs	" 1	" 11
Strasburg	" 9	" 12
Clanton	" 4	" 14
Coopers	" 5	" 15
Verbena	" 5	" 16
Kincheon	" 6	" 17

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C 985 EDWIN B GILES & COMPANY, 2530 and 2532 Market Street, Philadelphia.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.
In Chancery, at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, Northern Chancery Division, Fall Term, 1901.

Eufaula Mahan, Complainant, vs. W. J. Mahan, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of William M. Adams, Solicitor for Complainant, that the Defendant, W. J. Mahan, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama; that said Mahan resides in the State of Mississippi; and that the residence of said Mahan in the State of Mississippi is to said William M. Adams unknown; and further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Chilton county once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring the said W. J. Mahan, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause, within thirty days after the 18th day of September, 1901, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office, in Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama this 19th day of August, 1901. W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

WM. M. ADAMS,
Solicitor for Complainant.

The Best Prescripton for Malaria

Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tastless form. No cure—no pay. Price 50c.

REMOVAL SALE

EVERYTHING GOES

PRICES AWAY DOWN

BARGAINS IN ALL LINES

We move into our new building September 1, we don't mind moving ourselves and our clerks, but we want you to come in and move our goods to your homes, then we won't have much moving to do.

REMOVAL SALE NOW ON

W. H. SARTOR

CLANTON

The Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
"BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE."

CHILTON COUNTY BRANCH

PRESIDENT, N. J. CALLOWAY, Clanton. SEC'Y & TREAS. P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

COUNTY AGENT: B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

1. H. C. Young
2. Thomas Harrison
3. Alex Glasscock
4. A. J. Wilson
5. D. S. Robinson
6. A. T. Hathcock
7. C. J. Coker
8. John R. Pe
9. W. A. Mims

Insures farmer's dwellings, outbuildings and contents, and stock against loss by fire, wind and lightning.

During the year just closed, Aug. 3, 1901, there has not been a single loss to the Association.

The cheapest, safest and most sensible method of insurance known to man. For full particulars call on or address the County Agent
B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers, Ala.

We will move October 1st to 2012 First Ave.

EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES

J. Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Qt.

COLLIER DRUG CO.,

THE CUT RATE DRUG STORE

BIRMINGHAM, - ALA.

West End Store

For the convenience of the people in this part I have opened a store at my place one mile west of town, and have a fine stock of

General Merchandise

AND A COMPLETE LINE OF

Dry Goods, Hats, Shoes, Notions

CHOICE GROCERIES

W. A. KEMP, Clanton, Ala.

THE NULITE.

760 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS

TABLE LAMP.

Produce the finest artificial light in the world. Superior to electricity or gas. Cheaper than kerosene oil. A 20th Century Revolution in the Art of Lighting.

They darkness into daylight turn,
And air instead of money burn.

No Smoke. No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely Safe. They are Portable. Hang or stand them anywhere. We also manufacture Table Lamps, Wall Lamps, Pendants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, Etc. The best and only really successful Incandescent Vapor Gas Lamps made. They sell at sight. Each burner 100 candle power. Nothing like them. Good Agents Wanted. Write for catalogue and prices.

Chicago Solar Light Co. 81 Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

OUTDOOR LAMP.

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' Court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in June, first Monday in September, second Monday in July, second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

Mr. W. T. Kemp of Wangh was in town Tuesday.

Dr. Geo. A. Dennis, of Montgomery, spent Sunday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]

Mrs. F. M. Woodward and [illegible] are visiting [illegible] Rich[illegible]

Editor H. [illegible] of Memphis, [illegible] Saturday.

Prof. [illegible] gave us a [illegible]

Rev. D. F. [illegible] Lowndes county, where he has been conducting a protracted meeting.

Any druggist will sell you a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for 50c. and tell you what it is good for free of charge. Try it.

We were glad to see Mr. E. T. Callahan at home again, after a few weeks in the infirmary at Birmingham.

Mr. J. P. Smith and son, Ed, of Mt. Doc Parker, of Sucapatoy, (Bibb county), were visitors here last week.

Mr. E. M. Pinckard returned home from a trip to the East and reports Sunday.

Mr. B. F. Higgins, Sr., of Enid, was in town Tuesday.

Sheriff Kilgore has purchased a [illegible] of track dogs. Anyone wishing their service can secure them on application to him at Clanton.

The Clanton High School will open Monday, September 9, 1901, under the superintendency of Prof. M. Collier, who has made quite a reputation at Jemison and other places where he has been teaching. Send to him for catalogue at Clanton, Ala.

Miss Minnie Hayes of Lily was visitor here Wednesday.

Mrs. G. [illegible] Pitchfork has returned home after a pleasant visit to Prattville.

Miss Lillie Graham of Meridian, Miss., is visiting the family of Mr. T. J. Mullins.

Misses Jessie and Mattie Greenwood of Birmingham are visiting the family of Mr. P. M. Moore.

Miss Maggie Bland of Verbena returned home after a pleasant visit to Miss Ruth Abernathy.

Cyclists, base ball and foot ball players will find Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic the very thing they need "in their business" when the race is run and the game is finished. Sore muscles, Bruises, Sprains, it is O. K., and "don't you forget it." Clean and pleasant as balm and costs only 50c.

Mrs. Eugene Cowan of Gadsden is visiting relatives in Clanton.

Mrs. M. A. E. Greene has returned home after a pleasant visit to Verbena and Gadsden.

Mr. E. W. Duke visited Prattville Monday.

Mrs. J. M. Potts visited Birmingham Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Caine of Chilton county spent Tuesday with the family of Mr. Tol Mullins.

Mrs. Laura Mims of Mulberry was Wednesday in Clanton.

Mrs. Saportas of Maplesville and Miss Alpha Smitherman last week.

Mr. F. B. Ticknor is spending his days' vacation here from Columbus, Ga.

Mr. John Marlar went to Stanton Tuesday.

Mr. J. M. Moore and son, and Mr. Dunlap, arrived from Jacksonville, Ga. last Friday. They will be with the Wright house Sept. 1.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's card in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every 30 days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in future. Will pay fare one way to those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1185½ 22st st., between 2d and 3d aves, Birmingham

Marriage licenses have been issued last week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Harvey Bradford and Miss Ashew; Mr. E. H. Culp and Miss A. V. Mims.

STOPS THE COUGH.
and Works off the Cold.
Use Bromo-Quinine Tablets. Cure a cold in one day. No Cure, No Pay. Price 25 cents.

AL SALE

ES

AY DOWN

AINS IN ALL LINES

to our new building
we don't mind mov
and our clerks, but o come in and move your homes, than we n moving to do.

SALE NOW ON

SARTOR

CLANTON

SURGEO Association of Alabama

AL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE.
E AND FOR THE PEOPLE."
OUNTY BRANCH

SEC'Y & TREAS.
P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

NTY AGENT
OWAY, Coopers

OF DIRECTORS.

A. J. Wilson — 7. C. J. Cobern
D. S. Robinson — 8. John. R. Parm
A. T. Hathcock — 9. W. A. Mims

s, outbuildings and contents, and liv and lightning.

d, Aug. 3, 1901, there has not been a most sensible method of insurance know all on or address the County Agent

B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers, Ala.

October 1st

2 First Ave.

NG AT CUT PRICES

Old Virginia Rys 75c Per Qu

R DRUG CO.,

CUT RATE DRUG STORE

HAM, · ALA

End Store

the people in this part I have opened west of town, and have a fine stock of

Merchandise

COMPLETE LINE OF

ats, Shoes, Notions

GROCERIES

KEMP, Clanton, Ala.

NULITE.

ER ARC ILLUMINATORS

best artificial light in the world.
electricity or gas. Cheaper than A 20th Century Revolution in the darkness into daylight turn,

air instead of money burn

o Odor, No Noise. Absolutely Portable. Hung or stand them any manufacture Table Lamps, Wall
nts, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, and only really successful Incandes-
e Lamps made. They sell at sight.
candle power. Nothing like them.
nted. Write for catalogue and prices.

r Light Co. at Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

OUT-DOOR ARC.

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners Court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in June, first Monday in September and third Monday in November.

Mr. W. T. Acton, of Waugh, was in town Tuesday.

Dr. Geo. A. Dennis, of Montevallo, spent Sunday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Dennis.

Mrs. C. M. Wood and daughters are visiting relatives at Bear Creek.

Editor H. [illegible] of the Birmingham [illegible] was in town Saturday.

Prof. T. A. [illegible] of Ridgeville gave us a call Tuesday.

Rev. D. F. [illegible] returned from Lowndes county, where he has been conducting a protracted meeting.

Any druggist will sell you a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for 50c. and tell you what it is used for free of charge. Try it.

We were glad to see Mr. E. T. Salahora at home again, after two weeks in the infirmary at Birmingham.

Mr. J. P. Smith and son, Ed, and Mr. Doc Parker, of Socapatoy, Bibb county, were visitors here last week.

Mr. E. M. Pinckard returned home from a trip to the East and Canada Saturday.

Mr. B. F. Higginbotham, of Enid, was in town Tuesday.

Sheriff Kilgore has purchased a new set of tracing tools. Anyone requiring their services can secure them on application to him at Clanton.

The Canebrake High School will open a Normal session Oct. 9, 1901, under the superintendence of Prof. M. Cobern, who has made quite a reputation at Jemison and other places where he has been teaching. Send to him for catalogue at Clanton, Ala.

Miss Minnie Hayes of Lily was a visitor here Wednesday.

Mrs. O. [illegible] has returned after a pleasant visit to Prattville.

Miss Lizzie Graham of Meridian, Miss., is visiting the family of Mr. T. J. Mullins.

Misses Jessie and Mattie Greenwood of Birmingham are visiting the family of Mr. T. M. Moore.

Miss Maggie Bland of Verbena returned home after a pleasant visit to Miss Ruth Abernathy.

Bicyclists, base ball and foot ball players who find Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic the very thing they need don't business when the race is run and the game is finished. Sore muscles, Bruises, Sprains, it is O. K., and you don't you get it." Clean and pleasant as a rose and costs only 50c.

Mrs. Eugene Cowan of Gadsden is visiting relatives in Clanton.

Mrs. M. A. E. Greene has returned home after a pleasant visit to Hodges and Gadsden.

Mr. E. W. Duke visited Prattville Monday.

Mrs. J. M. Potts visited Birmingham Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Caine of this county spent Tuesday with family of Mr. Tol Mullins.

Mrs. Laura Mims of Mulberry was in Wednesday in Clanton.

Mrs. Saporito of Maplesville and Miss Alpha Smitherman last week.

Mr. F. B. Tucknor is spending his days vacation here from his charge in Columbus, Ga.

Mr. John Marlar went to Stanton Thursday.

Mrs. J. M. Moore and son, and Mr. Dunlap, arrived from Jacksonville last Friday. They will occupy the Wright house Sept. 1.

Search for Dr. A. J. Massey's ad in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every 30 days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in future. Will pay fare one way to parties going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1318½ 22st st., between 2nd and 3rd aves, Birmingham.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Harvey Bradford and Miss Ashew; Mr. E. H. Culp and Miss A. V. Mims.

STOPS THE COUGH and Works off the Cold.

Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

NOW!

Our Mr. Pinckard has just returned from the East, where he purchased our Fall Stock, securing many fine grades of goods.

We must make room for these new goods so NOW is your chance. We will show you great bargains; call and see us.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO

FIRE! FIRE!

GREAT SACRIFICE SALE!

Goods damaged by removal must be sold at any price.

This is Your Great Opportunity.

All these goods are good as new, they were only slightly damaged by removal; the fire did not reach my store, but all the stock was removed.

Calicoes from 3 and 4 cents. Lawns from 4 cts.
Ladies' Hats 50 cents on the $1.
Men's and Children's Straw Hats 50 c on $1.
Clothing at half price.
Shoes at half price.
Big line of Umbrellas.
Embroidery 4 cents.

I have a big stock and it must positively be sold. Come in and see for yourselves and pick out your own bargains. You have never seen such values before. Respectfully,

H. TOURO, Clanton

C. R. MULLINS

REPRESENTS THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEWARK, N. J., AND SEVERAL LEADING FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

and will insure your lives and property at lowest current rates.

I also wish to state that I am getting in my Fall stock of the Latest Improved High arm SINGER MACHINES, and I have my office full of second hand machines of different kinds, all in good running order, that I will sell cheap for cash or trade for produce, most any old way and at any old price. I must have the room for my new stock which will arrive about September 1st.

Also have on sale at my office the latest improved SMOOTHING IRON with Fluter comb ned.

NEEDLES, OIL, BANDS, CANS, ETC.

Regular office days Saturday and Monday.

C. R. MULLINS, Agent, Singer Office, Clanton.

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES.

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	$1.50
Nashville American	1.50
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald	$1.50
Home and Farm	$1.10
Southern Farmer	$1.00

NEW ROYAL

HIGH ARM. LIGHT RUNNING

WARRANTED TEN YEARS.

FIVE DRAWER $32.

The New Royal is not a cheap machine, but a high-class machine made out of good material, all parts adjustable and ball-bearing; has a good set of steel attachments and all of them work well.

I will exchange the New Royal for old machines and allow the full value of the old machine. Come and see me. I can sell you a machine as cheap as you can buy in Clanton.

Some secondhand machines from $1 up. Send me 25 cents in silver or stamps and an old needle for sample and I will send you 1 doz. needles to fit your machine.

REPAIR WORK GUARANTEED.

L. D. POPWELL, CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses, No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

Headache and Neuralgia cured by Dr. MILES' PAIN PILLS. "One cent a dose."

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Parry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bachelor mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T. U CRUMPTON, Prop'r.
MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERYTHING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L. Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS—SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE

FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1 00	2 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water, white 150 fire test oil	18
½ bbl " " "	2.25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	13
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14-lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware and the very best Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please,

A. M. JOHNSON, Manager

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People, everywhere it has been introduced, are wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. Send stamps for one. Ladies' size 50c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. (See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

The BANNER office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us a trial.

If Grip threatens use Dr. Miles' Nervine.

THE

VITAE ORE

PREPARATIONS

are on sale by

Campbelle Drug co., clanton.
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A Ayers, clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kinchenor
J. B. Downs, clanton.

N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

CHURCH DIRECTORY

BAPTIST—Preaching on the first and third Sundays at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Sunday-school every Sunday at 10 a.m.

Prayer-meeting every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

F. M. WOODS, Pastor.

METHODIST—Preaching every second Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and every fourth Sunday at 7 p.m.

Sunday-school at 10 a.m. every Sunday.

Prayer-meeting at seven o'clock every Wednesday night.

D. F. KELLOGG, Pastor.

GARDEN AND FARM

STIMULATING ROOT GROWTH.

Experience shows that bottom heat stimulates root growth, and heat from above, top growth. Onions and radishes grown in a hotbed were all that could be desired, while lettuce made a weak and slender growth. Of the same vegetables grown in cold frame, the former two made only sufficient root growth to sustain life, and the latter was fine. The result was also good with lettuce grown on the floor of the greenhouse.

THE VALUE OF THE SILO.

The silo cheapens food for cattle because it induces farmers to grow corn for ensilage, which saves hay in winter. Where the winters are severe and the farmer leaves his fodder in the fields to go to waste the best thing for such a farmers is the silo, which is of itself an object lesson in economizing the foods for cattle. Ensilage corn can be planted late, and therefore enables the farmer to grow and store away an enormous amount of green fodder when the drought has injured the early crop.

FUTURE OF THE POULTRY BUSINESS.

When we stop to consider that the setting hen and the incubator turn out annually an aggregate of four billion chicks, which at different ages reach the markets of the great cities or are consumed by the farmers' families, besides an annual egg crop of thirteen billion dozen, which are mostly consumed on our own tables, who can deny that the American hen is the real money-maker of the farmer and the fancier?

In years past the hen was, to a certain extent, considered a necessary nuisance on the farm, their usefulness being lost sight of by their owners. Now, all that has changed and those who once claimed that the hens did not pay their way have found that with proper attention they are the practical money-makers of the farmer. Fowls and eggs are growing in demand and the profits yet to come will grow apace with the consumption.—Home and Farm.

DRIED BLOOD FOR CALVES.

The Kansas Experiment Station says that they have found in feeding calves adding about a teaspoonful of dried blood to the milk at each feeding will change an unthrifty calf to one that is making a good growth. One that weighed eighty-six pounds at birth grew so poorly because of the small quantity and poor quality of its mother's milk, it was necessary to take it away from her, and even then it failed to grow under their ordinary treatment. At seventy-nine days old it only weighed ninety pounds, a gain of but four pounds. He was given castor oil, laudanum, fresh eggs, calf meal, and as a last resort, dried blood. With the blood the calf commenced to improve, and in a short time was gaining at the rate of nearly fourteen pounds per week, and not infrequently as high as seventeen to eighten pounds per week. When a year old he weighed 578 pounds—a pretty good record for a calf that gained only four pounds for the first seventy-nine days of its existence. The dried blood consumed during parts of three months amounted to 7 1-2 pounds. At two cents per pound the cost was fifteen cents. Other later trials have shown similar results, and have also proved the blood a good remedy for scours. For weakly calves the allowance may be gradually increased to a tablespoonful at each meal. It should be well stirred in and kept stirred to prevent settling to the bottom of the pail.

DESTROYING WEEDS.

Weeds growing in the pasture or meadows should be cut very late in the season when they are in full bloom. Where the pasture consists of native grasses it may in some cases become absolutely necessary to destroy the weeds that grow in it or they will often grow so dense as to kill out the useful grass. It was for many years my opinion that the proper time to cut weeds to destroy them was early in the season, and to repeat the cutting several times when the weeds were only a few inches high. But after many years of unsuccessful attempts to destroy them, I have found that although they might be held in check they could seldom be destroyed.

Then it happened one fall several years ago while working on my father's farm, that he told me to cut down a patch of dense weeds, consisting of goldenrod, butter cups, wild asters, etc., when the greater part of them were in full bloom. At that time I thought it was a useless waste of time thinking they would appear as dense as ever the next spring. But I was surprised to see that none appeared and not for many years afterward did they appear in numbers. When weeds appear in meadows where wild hay is grown, it is more difficult to get rid of them, and the best method I know of is to occasionally cut the hay as late as possible when the weeds appear in large numbers. It will prevent them from sending up a second growth the same season and the roots will die out in most cases, especially if the season be a dry one—L. O. F., in The Epitomist.

HOW TO GROW TOMATOES.

The ground, which had been well plowed and harrowed, was marked out with a shovel plow in deep furrows five feet apart, and then cross-marked three and one-half to four feet wide. With hoes we pulled out the soil where the furrows crossed, making a hole eight inches deep and fourteen inches wide. A forkful of well-rotted horse manure was placed in each hill and covered with soil to the depth of six inches.

After thorough watering, the plants were carefully taken up from the cold frame and drawn to the hills prepared for them. One man took a hoe with an extra large blade, and while another man picked up the plant, the hoe was driven in the soil down to the manure and lifted up. The roots of the plant were placed well under the hoe, with the top facing the east. The hoe was removed and the soil pressed down with the feet. This left the plant flat on the ground. We always set tomatoes this way and never upright, as the wind is liable to break them off. The plant will turn and grow upright in a few days, but this gives it time to toughen. By covering the stalks of the plant, it will send out roots and make a stronger, better plant, and produce more fruit. We always make large hills, as they retain the moisture better.

The vines make such a rank growth that we are obliged to break them down in order to get them to ripen fruit early. When the first setting of fruit is about three-quarters grown is the time to do it. Stand up close to the plant, push the arms, with the hands close together, through the center, then spread out the arms and with a gentle side sweep press the vines as separated down flat on all sides of the hill. Press the arms down on top of the vines, so they will stay down. If done at midday you will not break one vine in 100.

We cut out the early tomato plants, but not the late ones, and if properly done they will produce four times the amount of early fruit of those not cut out. After breaking down, they are trimmed when the first fruits show color. With a pair of sheep shears commence at the root end of each bearing stalk and cut off close to the stalk all new growth that has grown from the stalk, and has formed or would produce fruit, leaving three settings of fruit to mature. After you reach the third setting of fruit, leave all that remain beyond. We leave six bearing stalks to each hill. For a finishing touch cut the tips of the vines to prevent them growing any longer.—L. C. Wright, in American Agriculturist.

PASTURING ORCHARDS.

Sheep and hogs are the only domestic animals that should be pastured in an orchard of young fruit trees of any kind, and they need to be carefully watched that no damage is done. The hogs are liable to rub the tree trunks, but this can be in a measure prevented by driving rubbing stakes into the ground at various points, but especially near the trough or the sleeping shelter. Sheep are liable to strip the bark from the trunks, especially in the early spring, as it appears to contain a bitter element which they crave. They may not discover this bark ration for some time, but when they do both large and small trees are stripped.

Both sheep and hogs most greedily devour the fallen fruit, whether it contains worms or is decayed. Hogs will eat all fallen fruits from cherries to apples, while sheep are fond of apples. There is some risk in allowing cattle the range of an apple orchard after the fruit is nearly developed, as they are often choked by attempting to swallow whole apples. If the trees are trained low they will pull the fruit from the lower branches and in a playful mood hook the limbs and trunks. Horses and colts will also pull the fruit from the trees, and if disposed can reach some distance from the ground.

Pasturing orchards, whether recently set or old and well developed, is attended with many risks, in most cases not commensurate with the supposed gain. If orchards were planted with hoed crops or kept fertilized and cultivated, this question of pasturing them would never have to be discussed, and the owner in a term of years be equally as well off financially. The trees certainly would be in a better condition, not only as fruit producers, but for resisting the effects of disease, which a heavy sod seems to favor.—L. D. Snook, in New England Homestead.

USEFUL ITEMS.

Have you a dust bath for your hens?

Save all the sunflowers you can. The seeds are fine for molting hens.

Do a good job of whitewashing the inside of your poultry house soon.

We are too apt to pet and baby pure-bred stock. They are often overfed and made useless.

Cleanliness is next to godliness even when it comes to your poultry house. Clean up at once.

All the old wells, pits and holes should be kept covered very tight or the young ducks will fall in.

Try tincture of iron in the drinking water for leg weakness. One teaspoonful to every quart of water.

Young chicks do not eat much at a time, but they eat often. Do not omit a meal. Feed at regular hours.

Plaster, muck, fine dirt and sifted coal ashes may be used as absorbent materials to throw on the poultry house floors.

During warm weather the fowls need plenty of shade and cool water. Feed very little grain. Green bone and meat will do.

Many poultry houses have had to be remodeled or moved to another location because of haste in building. Make your plans early.

Bran should always be cooked or scalded before being used as feed, when it makes one of the best bone forming foods to be found.

The handling of sick birds to force remedies down their throats is disagreeable and even dangerous. Some hens are not worth such work.

Keep the young duck growing. Although they eat lots of food, yet they are, or at least should be, growing rapidly. You can almost see them grow.

The poultry man should take on the habit of his fowls of going to bed early, so that he may rise before the sun and have all the chicks and hens eating early.

FOR WOMAN'S BENEFIT

Ribbon Velvet and Braids.

Wide, plain crinoline braids, edged with narrowest black ribbon, sewn on lisse of the same color, make up well into large toques. In a model of this sort the lisse used to drape the brim has two rows of braid running horizontally, and is mounted in a voluminous bouillonne caught on either side of the front and twice again at the back so as to form a sort of large, square bow. The crown is covered loosely with plain lisse, as well as the under side of the brim. Palest lavender gray is the color chosen for the lisse and braids, the latter being bordered with black velvet. For trimming, there are two large pale pink roses resting on the bouuillone; a third is fixed under the brim.

Hairdressing and Hats.

Now that "foreheads are in," to quote the famous phrase of the hairdresser, the forward tilt of the hat is imperative. Placed straight or on the back of the head, it gives a bare, bleak aspect to the brow which is by no means becoming. Of course, all fashionable women have discarded a fringe, except such slight tendrils of hair as serve to soften the outlines of the temples. The fringe, indeed, which has become common to all ranks and which was often to be seen tousled, ill-combed and worse brushed, an unbecoming mat indeed; had sunk very low and was doomed to extinction, but it must be remembered that a different style of hairdressing demands a different shape and poise of hat.

Ring for a Bride.

A ring of unique design has just been made to order by a leading jeweler, and will form one of many gifts to be received by a popular bride. It is very beautiful and the fortunate recipient will have the satisfaction of knowing that no one else possesses its counterpart. A single enameled heartsease forms the centre, and rimming the petals is a raised band of plain gold, designed to protect the enamel from being scratched. Outside the gold again is a border of diamonds composed of 20 stones of irregular shape, fitted into the angles of the petals so as to form a solid band, and making the centre design a perfect oval. The heartsease itself was first wrought into gold, the enamel being burnt upon this. The jewelers say they have never made or seen a design at all like this one.—Philadelphia Record.

A Colony of Pet Goats.

The fondness of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts for animal pets is well known, but it is seldom that a woman chooses, as the baroness has done, to make the goat the object of her special favor. West Hill farm, one of the country houses of the baroness, has been for 26 years the home of these pets, and a most interesting herd is now established there. Everything has been done to provide for the comfort and happiness of the favored creatures. There are well warmed sheds, with separate dwellings for unruly Billies, and luxurious quarters for the mothers with their kids. The row of buildings stands in a large yard, which opens into an extensive meadow. Here are large piles of logs, over which the goats delight to climb in play, and to add to the general liveliness of the place, a few fowls are allowed to run about freely, and a pretty dovecote, filled with pigeons, is built over the entrance to the yard. The meadow is bordered with flowers and banks of laurel and ivy.

The baroness has chosen for her pets such picturesque names as Clematis, Wild Thyme, Wistaria and Meadow Sweet. Much of the milk of the goats is given away by the baroness to delicate people and to those who have little ones.

Homely Mrs. Wagner.

Mrs. Richard Wagner is a remarkable woman for her years, still tall, straight and slender, kind, gentle and sympathetic. She instructs her singers in all Wagnerian roles, rising early in all kinds of weather, and exerting all day her wonderful executive ability. She plays the piano well, and is a splendid musician.

Mrs. Wagner, now 68, is a head taller than was her husband. Quaint and odd in dress, spare and gaunt in figure, the startling effect is heightened by a long and scrawny neck. She is as sallow as her venerable father, now dead. Deep, but phenomenally bright, piercing eyes gleam out from under heavy brows. Her nose is long and hawked. There never lived another so homely and fascinating a man as her father, and he was her prototype.

She is said to be what Wagner insisted on calling her—the most intellectual woman in Germany. Her intellectuality is only surpassed by her matchless devotion.

Her shining faith in her dead master's deification, and in her own final reunion with him, would transform the whole world to Wagnerian disciples, could it be brought within her influence. This one woman was as necessary as life itself to complete the development of Wagner's purpose to create for the world an absolutely new standard in lyric music.—Success.

Tulle Veil to the Hem.

Fashion authorities agree that a tulle veil must extend to the hem of the train of a wedding gown. If of tulle the veil is never hemmed. A lace wedding veil has its own woven border. The veil is arranged on the coiffure in deep plaits, leaving small ends upright on the crown of the head. To this piece is firmly pinned the coronet of orange blossoms, the single bride rose or the sunburst of brilliants, as the mode of dressing the bride's head is arranged. What is called the face covering is a small separate piece of tulle or lace. This covers the bride's face as she goes up the aisle, and is removed by the maid of honor after the ceremony, before the bride turns to come down the aisle on the arm of the new made benedict. To all outward view the veil is in one piece, draped over the bride's head, but as a matter of fact the separate piece is resorted to, so as not to damage the coiffure or pull the coronet over one ear when the bride, as is supposed, throws back the veil from off her face. The face covering is attached with a couple of hairpins. The maid of honor always whisks it out of sight; it matters not how or where it is disposed of if invisible to the eyes of the congregation. The face covering reaches to the waist. By using it the bride avoids resembling a fountain of tulle, as may happen when the filmsy cataract is disposed to entirely cover her face and person.—Montreal Star.

The Ubiquitous Shirtwaist.

Whether the poor, sweltering men will ever be allowed the luxury of shirtwaists or not, it is certain that women, having once experienced their many advantages, will never give them up. This summer they are more than ever to the fore, and are permissible at every function, so much so, that many fashionable women wear practically nothing else than a shirt and skirt in the way of a daytime costume all summer. Of course, these may vary in material and cost. Some silk and lace affairs from smart shirtmakers cost as much as $30 for a shirt, while $15 is not considered extravagant; but whatever may be the material and cut, the pattern is substantially the same, whether it is the simple home made cotton shirt or a satin and lace confection from one of the best places. This summer many of the shirts and skirts are made of the same material, and in plain tints of mauve, corn color, light blue and pale pink are exceedingly pretty, so that the white pique or duck skirt will not be so universally worn, although it will still be popular with colored shirts. But the smartest effect of all is pure white, and this year the name of pretty materials which will serve equally well for shirts and skirts is legion. A newly arrived American, who has been living abroad for several years, remarked the other day that she was greatly struck by the difference between the women's dress in the streets of New York and London, and that the comparison was greatly in favor of the former. Even in summer the New York women wear either dark or neutral tans and grays in the street, whereas in London white pique skirts, fussy muslin waists, and even sashes are seen worn by women who consider themselves smart. It is very noticeable," added our countrywoman, "that American women seem to possess the Gallic sense of fitness which is so apparent in French women, and which many English women seem totally to lack"—New York Tribune.

FASHION NOTES

Watermelon pink is a fashionable color.

Stockings of the finest white silk or lisle thread are worn with white gowns.

Hair receivers made of linen and fashioned in cornucopia shape, with the aid of buttons, are among the novelties.

Quills are seen on nearly all the hats especially designed to wear with tailor made suits, and the quills are utilized in novel ways.

Chantilly lace, very fine and gossamer like, veils the floral sprays and clusters on some of the daintiest creations of the milliner.

On some of the batiste, muslin and zephyr linen gowns for morning wear, tiny chaplets take the place of the popular ruffle over the shoulder.

Dimity is the prettiest of materials for underwear as well as gowns, but look out for the laundress. It will wear well if it is given tender treatment, but not otherwise.

Bands of red, white or dark blue add amazingly to the style of the gray linen skirts. These linen skirts, by the way, are far more serviceable than the pique, since they do not require such frequent washing.

It has not been possible to get away from the plain backs on gowns. They went out apparently for a time, but they sprang up again, without making a fuss about it, and most of the prettiest and most stylish gowns have the plain backs.

The elastic ground belt, quite wide and shaped to the figure with a bone or two is the most approved style for general wear. The belt is woven with the lower edge coming just below the waist line, and the elastic is decorated with many devices.

For the woman who likes her short under petticoats of some thin clinging material, made of something pretty as well, she can find them made of wash silks in all shades, shes and colors. They are fitted with darts, and many have lace ruffles set on above the edge, giving a pretty effect with the silk, to be in color, showing through.

THE CARE OF GEMS.

How Jewelers Test, Polish and Restore Jewels of Various Sorts.

The best of all jewel boxes are not the satin-lined, velvet covered ones in which the jewelers alluringly display their wares, says the London Express, but air-tight cases simply lined with wool. Even in such a receptacle diamonds should be wrapped in silversmith's tissue paper to keep them of exquisite brillancy.

Diamonds, in spite of their hardness, must be treated with great care. Though they can hardly be scratched, they nevertheless chip, and when roughly used, are easily loosened in their setting, and fall out at the most unexpected moment. When they are sent to be cleaned the experts first test the settings, and then dips the ring or pin repeatedly into a little eau de cologne. A powerful magnifying glass is used to detect any "foreign bodies" in the setting, and an ornament that has an accumulation of dust, grease or soap on its under side, a blemish that is often noticeable in rings, is dipped alternately in soap suds and eau de cologne, and a very fine soft camel-hair brush, pointed like a pencil is employed to reach delicately between the claws of the setting. When the jewel is thoroughly clean it is buried in a jar of fine sawdust to dry. This is all done after the gold or silver mounting has been carefully rubbed with jeweler's rouge, dried and polished with a tiny chamois covered pad.

When the diamonds and turquoises are together the most exquisite care is taken that alcohol only is utilized, with whiting, to clean both the setting and the diamonds, and as little moisture as possible is allowed to come near the blue stones. If a turquoise has been carlessly treated, and is turning green from the effects of water, the cleaner sets it to soak in stale beer, which treatment will frequently restore the pure azure color. But old turquoises that are nearly green have a value all their own.

Pearls require a great deal of human companionship, and that is why they are so constantly worn by their owners. When they are "sick" (to use a technical term), they are given sun baths, and sometimes are sunk in the sea in perforated caskets to be restored to health and lustre. Pearls held in a warm, dry hand and drawn slowly backward and forward through the half-closed member are benefited. Some women have their pearls restrung every season, and when the owner cannot arrange to wear a fine string of these gems at least once a fortnight the cleaner lays them in a cup of warm flower or lukewarm fresh milk to keep their skins in good order. Experts test real diamonds by touching them with the tip of their tongue. Diamonds are icy cold; paste is not. Real pearls they can differentiate from false, it is said by the touch of their finger tips, for the skin of a real pearl has a feeling peculiar to itself.

Highland Venison.

Most of the red deer venison which finds its way to London is Scotch—wild venison, shot in the forests. There is great difference in quality in this highland venison. To be good, venison needs to be fat, and unlike most game the "artificially fed" deer, or, rather, the deer that enjoys the feed of a good English park, is better for the table than when picking up a hard living on a Scotch mountain, but there are varieties of Scotch deer. Those on forests with plenty of low ground attached grow fat and heavy, and the meat is as good as that of an English park-fed stag. At the end of October and beginning of November the flesh deteriorates rapidly and is rank and poor evidence, if any were needed, that the shooting ought to have closed earlier, but a good deal of Russian venison, shipped ready and cut up into joints, is very poor stuff. The same rules as to season govern the supply of red deer venison from English parks, but the weight and quality of the latter are superior to the Scotch. Most large proprietors find a sale for their spare venison near home, and consequently it is less common in the market. Red deer hinds are again in season in winter, but the fallow venison is in every way better. Some is even stall fed, and the carcasses show almost as much fat as does small mutton.

Too Young For Fame.

In commenting on certain works of art, a writer said recently: "It seems to me a bad sign for an artist to put forth excellent work in his early youth. He has no future then; he has nothing more to hope for; and, besides, he is likely to age permanently and to die young. Take Stephen Crane, for instance, who wrote 'Maggie' at nineteen, 'The Red Badge of Courage' at twenty-two, and died during the summer without having strengthened his name appreciably in seven or eight years. The Marquis de Sade was a mature and vigorous man at the age of twelve. But the most wonderful case of premature development and premature decay is told of in the record of the French Academy for 1729. A boy of six years was five feet seven inches in height, had a strong beard, a deep bass voice and great physical strength. At the age of eight he was partly bald. At ten his beard and his scanty hair were gray, and his teeth were decayed. Palsy seized him at eleven, and he died of old age before his twelfth birthday. Whenever I hear of a premature genius, an Aubrey Beardsley or a Crane, I think of that boy."—Philadelphia Record.

Reason For Economy.

Newlywed—Since I have been married my tailor bills are scarcely a fourth what they used to be.

Quizzer—Do you put what you save in the bank?

Newlywed—No, I put it on my wife.—Ohio State Journal.

The milkman seldom gets into the cream of society.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

King Edward is so embarrassed by the multiplicity of his titles that he thinks of having his visiting cards printed on posters.

The finest and largest marble quarries in the world are to be found to-day in the Southern States. They are practically inexhaustible.

English and German papers teem with praise of our Consuls and evidence of reference to our Consular reports. While one sometimes hears complaints of the shirt-sleeves' habits of some new appointee, this criticism is nearly always coupled with the admission that the new man has a priceless habit of getting things done.

Twenty-eight ocean steamships are now in process of construction for the companies operating lines between New York City and foreign seaports, and these are, moreover, further additions to a great mercantile fleet which has nearly doubled in carrying capacity within five years past. More ocean freights means more routes and more frequent sailings, and the big ships will not be lacking for the emergency.

Modern office furniture, from the desk to the doormat, is nearly all American in every up-to-date London establishment. One sits on a Nebraska swivel chair before a Michigan roll-top desk, writing one's letters on a Syracuse typewriter, signing them with a New York fountain pen, and drying them with a blotting sheet from New England, remarks the London Daily Mail.

The yearly loss from preventable forest fires in the United States is estimated at $50,000,000. It would cost but a small percentage of this sum to provide insurance against the ravage of fire. The rapid destruction of our forests and the gravity of the resulting consequences are of sufficient importance to require radical preventive measures at the hands of the State and Federal Governments, states the Philadelphia Record.

The Butte (Mont.) Inter Mountain calls upon the millionaires of the State to build or help build a miners' home and "thus show their interest in the heroes of Montana's industrial army." The miners, it adds, "are the industrial backbone of the State's leading interest. Their calling is dangerous. At a certain age they can no longer do a full day's work. The majority of them have families and very few of them have money saved up."

The Atlanta Journal observes that the conditions of farm life are wonderfully different from what they were in the last generation. Labor saving machinery has wrought a revolution in farm operations. A change hardly less remarkable has been accomplished in the removal of the comparative isolation of the farmer and his family. The country has become more thickly settled and the means of intercommunication have been vastly improved.

Boer markmanship has convinced the British war authorities that swords, lances and bayonets are of little use as weapons of modern warfare, and that a soldier who can't shoot straight is entirely useless except as a target for the bullets of an enemy whose soldiers can shoot better. Hereafter the British soldiers will be drilled in long distance markmanship as the most essential part of their military training. Sword, lance and bayonet exercises have been abolished, and the soldier who can shoot will be the soldier of the future. It has taken a long while, and cost a heap of money, to get this sensible idea through the British cranium; but the idea is evidently there to stay at last.

The system of workmen's insurance in Germany is a huge piece of state machinery. The magnitude of the system may be estimated by the fact that it pays out, in one way or another, about [illegible] marks a day. The sick workman has no longer to trouble himself as to how he shall obtain money to pay for medical treatment, and what will become of his family should he himself be rendered unfit for work. The workman whose earning power is reduced by an accident connected with his employment now obtains just compensation, and the aged poor have the satisfaction of knowing that although they can no longer work they can still, owing to the insurance system, contribute their share towards the expenses of the household, and are not obliged to depend on the earnings of their children or on ordinary public charity, comments the Philadelphia Telegraph.

It is not generally known that debtors can still be sent to prison under the laws of England, but during the last year there has been a decided reduction among this class of prisoners because of rules recently adopted compelling debtors to work like other prisoners. The commissioner reports that the rule has "operated very beneficially, both morally and physically. The debtors do not like to work, they prefer loafing and idleness in prison, and consequently they dread imprisonment, and their numbers are getting less." Another rule prohibits them from receiving meals from the outside, which is also having a beneficial effect. Debtors are now compelled to accept the ordinary fare of the other prisoners, and since they have found out habitual debtors are taking means to avoiding imprisonment. The total number of debtors imprisoned last year was 12,362, of whom 11,897 were men and 465 were women.

CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS

Further Report of Alabama's Constitutional Convention.

Sixty-ninth Day.

A Short Session—Shelby Court House Matter Stands—Two Articles Adopted—The Sheriffs.

Eighty-seven was the attendance this morning and this afternoon the figures were reversed. The morning session lasted only an hour and most of this time was consumed in an effort to rescind the action of Saturday in reference to the new court house authorized in Shelby county. The convention refused to rescind.

At the afternoon session the tax and judiciary articles were reached this time and adopted.

The convention then took up the report of the committee on impeachments. The principal change made is an amendment allowing sheriffs to succeed themselves provided they serve only two terms.

Seventieth Day.

A Day of Reconsiderations—Sheriffs and Sheriff—Parliamentary Practice—Labors.

No quorum was present this morning at roll call but before arrests were effected a sufficient number arrived for business. 111 were in their seats in the afternoon.

The convention accomplished practically nothing in the way of constitution making, most of its time being taken up with reconsiderations.

The friends of the solicitors succeeded, by a vote of 54 to 50, in having the final vote adopting the article on judiciary reconsidered. This was the fifth attempt made to reconsider action of the convention in substituting county solicitors elected by the people for the circuit solicitors elected by the legislature. The entire article was laid on the table.

The friends of the sheriffs sought to have the sheriff impeachment proceedings question reconsidered, but the action was displaced by the school question, which had been made a special order of business.

Seventy-first Day.

School Tax Question—Sheriff Matter—Five Articles Adopted—Education Matter Up.

One hundred and ten and 92 were the attendance today. Most of the morning session was spent in reconsidering the sheriff legislation. It adopted an ordinance allowing sheriffs two terms and providing that the supreme court should try them when impeached and that pending impeachment proceedings the governor could remove them from office. It changed all this today and left the law as it stands except that the sheriffs when impeached shall be tried by the supreme court instead of the circuit court in their county.

The articles on amending the constitution, miscellaneous provisions, representations, exemptions and municipal corporations were adopted.

The committee report on education then came up. The principal change recommended is to substitute a three mill constitutional tax for common schools instead of relying on a legislative appropriation. The section was reported, with slight amendments, and adopted. It gives the schools a constitutional tax, which the legislature cannot reduce.

Seventy-second Day.

School Legislation—Selection of University Trustees—Curtailing Governor's Powers.

The attendance this morning was 109. The article on education occupied the convention's time. Local taxation was debated and the plan reported by the committee was adopted.

An important change adopted in the method of electing the university trustees. These will not be appointed by the governor, but the board will fill its own vacancies. The members elect are to be approved by the senate and can hold office only two years. The governor is ex officio chairman.

Seventy-third Day.

Quorum Hard to Gather—Solicitors Matter Settled—School and University Legislation.

Roll call this morning failed to show a quorum but the sergeant-at-arms secured one. Several measures were introduced, one by Mr. Cafer, requiring a half million dollars set apart yearly for paying the state's bonded indebtedness.

A special order for Tuesday was made the consideration of Mr. W's ordinance to prohibit the negro from holding office. The article on judiciary was taken from the table and a substitute by Judge Coleman to section 28 of the article was read. It provides that a solicitor for a judicial circuit, who resides in the circuit, shall be elected by the qualified electors of the circuit for a term of four years, and who shall not receive any salary beyond that fixed by law, and provided further that the legislature may provide by law

NOTES AND COMMENTS

King Edward is so embarrassed by the multiplicity of his titles that he has ordered having his visiting cards printed on posters.

The finest and largest marble quarries in the world are to be found to-day in the United States. They are practically inexhaustible.

English and German papers teem with [illegible] comments and envious references to [illegible] popular reports. While [illegible] sometimes hears complaints of the [illegible] habits of some new appointee, [illegible] it is nearly always coupled with the admission that the new man has a [illegible] habit of getting things [illegible].

Twenty-eight ocean steamships are now in process of construction for the [illegible] operating lines between New York and foreign seaports, and [illegible] are no rumors further additions to [illegible] the fleet which has nearly [illegible] carrying capacity within five [illegible] Meanwhile ocean freights means [illegible] and more frequent sailings, [illegible] ships will not be looking for [illegible].

Mahogany furniture from the desk [illegible] that is nearly all American [illegible] late London establishment [illegible] a Nebraska swivel [illegible] Michigan roll top desk, [illegible] in a Syracuse typewriter [illegible] a New York [illegible] and driving them with a [illegible] from New England, reflects the Philadelphia Family Man.

[illegible] from preventable fires in the United States is estimated [illegible]. It would cost but a small percentage of this sum to provide insurance against the ravage of fire. The [illegible] of our forests and the [illegible] resulting consequences are [illegible] of importance to require radical [illegible] measures at the hands of [illegible] Federal Governments, says the Philadelphia Record.

The Butte (Mont.) Inter-Mountain [illegible] the millionaires of the State [illegible] "to build a miners' home [illegible] show their interest in the heroes of Montana's industrial army." The more, it adds, "are the industrial [illegible] the State's leading interest. Their calling is dangerous. At a certain age they can no longer do a full day's work. The majority of them have no families and very few of them have money saved up."

The Atlanta Journal observes that the conditions of farm life are wonderfully different from what they were in the last generation. Labor saving machinery has wrought a revolution in farm operations. A change hardly less remarkable has been accomplished in the removal of the comparative isolation of the farmer and his family. The country has become more thickly settled and the means of intercommunication have been vastly improved.

Boer markmanship has convinced the British war authorities that swords, lances and bayonets are of little use as weapons of modern warfare, and that a soldier who can't shoot straight is entirely useless except as a target for the bullets of an enemy whose soldiers can shoot better. Hereafter the British soldiers will be drilled in long distance markmanship as the most essential item of their military training. Sword, lance and bayonet exercises have been abolished, and the soldier who can shoot will be the soldier of the future. It has taken a long while, and cost a heap of money, to get this sensible idea through the British cranium; but the idea is evidently there to stay at last.

The system of workmen's insurance in Germany is a huge piece of state machinery. The magnitude of the system may be estimated by the fact that it pays out, in one way or another, about 1,000,000 marks a day. The sick workman has no longer to trouble himself as to how he shall obtain money to pay for medical treatment, and what will become of his family should he himself be rendered unfit for work. The workman whose earning power is reduced by an accident connected with his employment now obtains just compensation, and the aged poor have the satisfaction of knowing that, although they can no longer work, they can still, owing to the insurance system, contribute their share towards the expenses of the household, and are not obliged to depend on the earnings of their children or on ordinary public charity, comments the Philadelphia Telegraph.

It is not generally known that debtors can still be sent to prison under the laws of England, but during the last year there has been a decided reduction among this class of prisoners because of rules recently adopted compelling debtors to work like other prisoners. The commissioner reports that the rule has "operated very beneficially, both morally and physically. The debtors do not like to work, they prefer loafing and idleness in prison, and consequently they dread imprisonment, and their numbers are getting less." Another rule prohibits them from receiving meals from the outside, which is also having a beneficial effect. Debtors are now compelled to accept the ordinary fare of the other prisoners, and since they have found that out habitual debtors are taking means of avoiding imprisonment. The total number of debtors imprisoned last year was 12,362, of whom 11,897 were men and 465 were women.

CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS

Further Report of Alabama's Constitutional Convention.

Sixty-ninth Day.

A Short Session—Shelby Court House Matter Stands—Two Articles Adopted—The Sheriffs.

Eighty seven was the attendance this morning and this afternoon the figures were reversed. The morning session lasted only an hour and most of that time was consumed in an effort to rescind the action of Saturday in reference to the new court house authorized in Shelby county. The convention refused to rescind.

At the afternoon session the taxation and judiciary articles were read a third time and adopted.

The convention then took up the report of the committee on impeachments. The principal change in this is an amendment allowing sheriffs to succeed themselves provided they can serve only two terms.

Seventieth Day.

A Day of Reconsiderations—Solicitors and Sheriffs—Parliamentary Practice Galore.

No quorum was present this morning at roll call but before arrests were effected a sufficient number arrived for business. 111 were in their seats in the afternoon.

The convention accomplished practically nothing in the way of constitution making, most of its time being taken up with reconsiderations.

The friends of the solicitors succeeded, by a vote of 54 to 50, in having the final vote adopting the article on judiciary reconsidered. This was the fifth attempt made to reconsider the action of the convention in substituting county solicitors elected by the people for the circuit solicitors elected by the legislature. The entire article was laid on the table.

The friends of the sheriffs sought to have the sheriff impeachment proceedings question reconsidered, but final action was displaced by the solicitor question, which had been made a special order of business.

Seventy-first Day.

School Tax Question—Sheriff Matter—Five Articles Adopted—Education Matter Up.

One hundred and ten and 92 was the attendance today. Most of the morning session was spent in reconsidering the sheriff legislation. It had adopted an ordinance allowing the sheriffs two terms and providing that the supreme court should try them when impeached and that pending the impeachment proceedings the governor could remove them from office. It changed all this today and left the law as it stands except that the sheriffs when impeached shall be tried by the supreme court instead of the circuit court in their county.

The articles on amending the constitution, miscellaneous provisions, representations, exemptions and municipal corporations were adopted.

The committee report on education then came up. The principal change recommended is to substitute a three-mill constitutional tax for common schools instead of relying on a legislature appropriation. The section, as reported, with slight amendments, was adopted. It gives the schools a constitutional tax, which the legislature cannot reduce.

Seventy-second Day.

School Legislation—Selection of University Trustees—Curtailing Governor's Powers.

The attendance this morning was 109. The article on education occupied the convention's time. Local taxation was debated and the plan reported by the committee was adopted.

An important change adopted was in the method of electing the university trustees. These will not be appointed by the governor, but the board will fill its own vacancies. The members elect are to be approved by the senate and can hold office only twelve years. The governor is ex-officio chairman.

Seventy-third Day.

Quorum Hard to Gather—Solicitor Matter Settled—School and University Legislation.

Roll call this morning failed to show a quorum but the sergeant-at-arms secured one. Several new measures were introduced, one by Mr. Cater requiring a half million dollars set apart yearly for paying the state's bonded indebtedness.

A special order for Tuesday was made the consideration of Mr. Watts' ordinance to prohibit the negro from holding office. The article on judiciary was taken from the table and a substitute by Judge Coleman to section 28 of the article was read. It provides that a solicitor for each judicial circuit, who resides in the circuit, shall be elected by the qualified electors of the circuit for a term of four years, and who shall not receive any salary beyond that fixed by law, and provided further that the legislature may provide by law for the appointment or election of any county solicitor. The substitute was adopted.

One hundred and three delegates were present in the afternoon. The article on impeachments was reported engrossed and was adopted. The Mobile school system was considered and the section of the article on education refering to it was adopted. It was decided to pay $36,000 per annum as interest on the university fund and authorize the legislature at any time to abolish the military feature.

Seventy-fourth Day.

A White Militia—Report Adopted With Only One Change—Last Article Under Discussion.

The attendance today was 106 and 86. The St. Clair county court house matter went to third reading and was adopted. Mr. Murphree, of Pike, by consent, introduced an ordinance to direct the legislature to appropriate for the Confederate soldiers such amounts as they may see fit, and that such appropriation shall take precedence of all others.

The convention adopted the report of the committee on militia. The only change recommended from the present law was to confine the militia to white citizens. After much debate this question was left to the legislature.

The report of the committee on corporations was then taken up and several sections adopted. This is the last article remaining to be adopted. It will be completed Monday, when the convention will have to adjourn a few days to await the report of the committee on harmony.

Seventy-fifth Day.

Corporation Article Adopted—Free Pass Section—Possible Recess Until August 28th.

There were present at the two sessions today 109 and 94 delegates. The greater portion of the day was spent in discussing the limitation of building and loan association interest to 8 per cent, but the proposition was defeated.

One of the sections reported conferred upon the legislature the regulating of railroad freights and passenger traffic. General Sanford offered an amendment to leave this authority with the railroad commission. The section was finally adopted as reported. Section 16, which prohibited legislators or judges using free passes was also adopted as reported by the committee. The sheriff matter has taken a new turn. It looks now as if he will be given two terms, but the governor have the right to suspend him pending impeachment proceedings.

The free pass section was adopted prohibiting transportation companies from granting passes or free tickets to officials, and the official "receiving such pass or ticket shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, and at the discretion of the court trying the case, in addition to such fine, may be imprisoned for a term not exceeding six months; and upon conviction shall be subject to impeachment and removal from office."

The committee on harmony decided not to make a report until able to make a complete report. It will be Wednesday week before they will be ready. The convention may adjourn tomorrow until August 28th, when they will reassemble and finally adopt the constitution.

Seventy-sixth Day.

Convention Adjourns for a Week—Negroes May Hold Office—Four Articles Were Adopted.

At the two sessions today there was a good attendance, 104 delegates answering at each roll call. The article on corporations was completed and with the ones on education, schedule and militia was adopted on third reading.

Mr. Watts' ordinance prohibiting negroes from holding office was tabled. Capt. White's ordinance to have the railroad commission elected by the people was defeated.

An ordinance temporarily regulating the succession to the governorship was passed. It provides that in event of the death of the present governor the succession shall be: Hon. D. J. Meadow, last president pro tem of the senate, Hon. A. M. Tunstall, speaker pro tem of the house, attorney general, auditor, secretary of state and treasurer.

A special committee appointed to determine whether the convention should recess reported favoring a recess until Aug. 28th, and the report was adopted.

TOOK MORPHINE.

A woman giving her name as Mrs. McDonough took an overdose of morphine in the office of the chief of police in Birmingham Friday afternoon. She resisted the efforts of the officers to prevent her escape and then offered one a diamond ring for his pardon. The doctors saved her.

SEVERAL Alabama Knights Templar will attend the conclave at Louisville, Ky., Aug. 27 30.

Jugh Find a New Island.

According to the Japan Times a new island has been discovered in the Sea of Japan. From a statement appearing in the Nichi Nichi it appears that the island is situated at a point between Ul-long-do Island, off Korea, and the Oki Archipelago, off the coasts of the San-in-do, the distance from either place being 30 miles. No maps ever published contain any refernce to the island, which is reported to be about two miles in length and about the same in breadth. It was about a year or two ago that the island was first discovered by a fisherman of Kyushu, who found the waters in its neighborhood full of sea horses.

Mr. Reginald de Koven has completed the score for "The Daughters Delightful," a piece for which Mr. George V. Hobart has written the libretto.

If all the cabs in London were placed in a line there would be a total length of forty-four miles.

Rest For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Sound passes through air at the velocity of 1142 feet per second; through water, 4900 feet; through iron, 17,500 feet.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of CATARRH that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D., 1886. A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public. (SEAL)

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Bananas with purple leaves and seedless fruit have been introduced into British conservatories.

Dyeing is as simple as washing when you use PUTNAM FADELESS DYES. Sold by all druggists.

The colonies and dependencies of Great Britain have upward of 1600 stamps without a single duplicate.

See advt. of SMITHDEAL'S BUSINESS COLLEGE

England has a yearly surplus of births over deaths of 369,000; Scotland, 51,000; Ireland, of 27,000.

In Japanese shipyards eight vessels are being built for San Francisco and Seattle lines.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa

The inhabitants of Ontario write more letters than those of all the rest of Canada.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle

During the last summer season the ascent of Mount Blanc was made by 141 tourists.

I am sure Piso's Cure for Consumption saved my life three years ago.—MRS. THOMAS ROBINS, Maple St., Norwich, N.Y., Feb. 17, 1900.

Algeria has four zones in which petroleum occurs. One of them is 125 miles long.

"Buffalo Bill's" Amiable Weakness.

"Buffalo Bill" once allowed himself to be put to shame by failing to shoot a couple of deer at an easy distance. "Every one has his little weakness," he exclaimed; "mine is a deer's eye. I don't want you to say anything about it to your friends, for they would laugh more than ever, but the fact is I have never yet been able to shoot a deer if it looked me in the eye. With a buffalo or a bear or an Indian it is different. But the deer has the eye of a trusting child—soft, gentle and confiding. No one but a brute could shoot a deer if he caught that look."

STRANGE IMPS IN THE SEA.

Capt. Moody Caught One Off Cape Charles Lightship.

Capt. William Moody of Baltimore believes there are strange imps in the sea, because he caught one recently while fishing off Cape Charles lightship. Capt. Moody is commander of the lightship, and it is his habit to keep a baited hook, attached to an extremely long line in the water at all times. Occasionally this persistency is rewarded with cod or other toothsome fish of deep water. The captain happened to be near the line when the "imp" fish was hooked. He started to pull it in, and then ensued as pretty a battle as ever warmed the heart of fisherman. Several times the creature was brought to the surface, and on one occasion it leaped ten feet in the air. After a battle lasting fully an hour the monster was harpooned and pulled on deck. The fish weighed about eighty pounds. The "imp" has wings, which are of the thickness of sailcloth, and are mottled with blue checks or squares. The mouth is filled with parallel rows of conical teeth, the rows varying from two, in the back part of the upper jaw, to eight in front, with twice these numbers in the lower jaw. The tail has three rows of spines, resembling the teeth running its whole length. The "imp" has no scales, creature has been shown to government experts, but as yet remains unclassified.

Dudes of the South and West.

It is not difficult to tell by their clothes from which section of the country senators hail. Perhaps not so much by their clothes as the way they wear them, one should say, to be accurate. All the string ties, for instance, come from the west and south. Eastern senators wear stylish scarfs almost without exception. Eastern senators button their frocks and cutaways; westerners and southerners leave them open. The western and southern members have low-cut vests, usually with one or two buttons unbuttoned. Two finely groomed senators are Platt and Depew, whose clothes are made by the best tailors in New York and London. Where will you find a more neatly dressed man than Aldrich of Rhode Island? And Wetmore—one of the 400? His clothes cost him the larger part of his salary.—New York Press.

New England Famous for Tobacco.

There are in the United States 700,000 acres of land devoted to tobacco, of which 1,000 acres are in New England. The annual yield of all kinds in the country is about 500,000,000 pounds, of which New England raises 19,000,000. The average yield per acre throughout the country is 700 pounds, but in New England it is 1,700 pounds. It is interesting that all the tobacco raised in the country belongs to two or three botanical species, yet there are more than sixty varieties grown commercially—all of them quite distinct in shape, color and quality of leaf.—Harper's Weekly.

Long Lightning Rod.

The largest lightning conductor in the world is in Bavaria. The top of it is some yards above the meteorological station on the Zugspitze, the highest point of land in the German empire. It runs down the side of the mountain to a body of running water. The length of the rod is three and a half miles.

Expedition to Study Fish.

The German Antarctic expedition, which will start for Kerguelen island in a few months, will give special attention to the study of sea life and its economic aspects. None of the useful varieties of fish is yet known to exist in Antarctic waters.

Has Many Christian Names.

The Duchess of Cornwall is blessed with a liberal assortment of Christian names, eight in all. Should she eventually share the British throne she can select from the following: Augustine, Louise, Olga, Pauline, Claudine and Agnes.

Lost Hair

"My hair came out by the handful, and the gray hairs began to creep in. I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, and it stopped the hair from coming out and restored the color."—Mrs. M. D. Gray, No. Salem, Mass.

There's a pleasure in offering such a preparation as Ayer's Hair Vigor. It gives to all who use it such satisfaction. The hair becomes thicker, longer, softer, and more glossy. And you feel so secure in using such an old and reliable preparation. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Your Tongue

If it's coated, your stomach is bad, your liver is out of order. Ayer's Pills will clean your tongue, cure your dyspepsia, make your liver right. Easy to take, easy to operate. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers. 50 CTS. OF DRUGGISTS, OR R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER

CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE. SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE. ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E. 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

$900 TO $1500 A YEAR

We want intelligent Men and Women as Traveling Representatives or Local Managers; salary $900 to $1500 a year and all expenses, according to experience and ability. We also want local representatives; salary $9 to $15 a week and commission, depending upon the time devoted. Send stamp for full particulars and state position prefered. Address, Dept. B. THE BELL COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

HOPEDALE COLLEGE, Hopedale, O. $160 a yr., a plan to earn it; R. R. fare free; see catalog.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

WINCHESTER

CARTRIDGES IN ALL CALIBERS

from .22 to .50 loaded with either Black or Smokeless Powder always give entire satisfaction. They are made and loaded in a modern manner, by exact machinery operated by skilled experts.

THEY SHOOT WHERE YOU HOLD ✦ ALWAYS ASK FOR THEM

Smithdeals

Is the oldest and only business college in Va. owning its building—a grand new one. No vacations. Ladies & gentlemen. Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Typewriting, Penmanship, Telegraphy, &c. Leading business college south of the Potomac river.—Phila. Stenographer. Address, G. M. Smithdeal, President, Richmond, Va.

Now is the Time

You Need a Good Liver Medicine.

LIVERINA

Acts directly on the Liver. Relieving Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache and that Languid Feeling Peculiar to this Season of the Year.

Try it. 50c a Bottle at All Retailers.

GAY, HARDIE & DURR, Proprietors, Montgomery, Ala.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

I will sell on reasonable terms or exchange for good farming lands one of the most desirable hotel or private boarding properties in the state.

This property is situated on Main street of Montevallo and in the center of the town. The house is comparatively new and consists of 16 well finished rooms. The lot is an entire town square and has good servant houses, stables, barrs, etc. Have 12 good paying boarders now and a good transient patronage.

Can fill house up entirely with local boarders at good prices if desired.

Will sell or exchange property, furniture, etc. Come and see me for particulars. Montevallo is the well known home of the Girls' Industrial School.

H. S. LATHAM.

Montevallo, Ala.

HAVE YOU CHOSEN A PROFESSION?

The HOMŒOPATHIC MEDICAL COLLEGE of the UNIVERSITY of MICHIGAN offers unrivaled privileges for thorough education.

Men and women admitted on equal terms. Write for special announcement.

R. S. COPELAND, M. D., Ann Arbor, Mich.

"The Sauce that made West Point famous."

McILHENNY'S TABASCO.

$3.00 W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES $3.50

"THE BEST."

For More Than a Quarter of a Century The reputation of W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes for style, comfort and wear has enrolled all other makes and at these prices. This excellent reputation has been won by merit alone. W. L. Douglas shoes have to give better satisfaction than other $3.00 and $3.50 shoes because his reputation for the best $3.00 and $3.50 shoes must be maintained. The standard has always been placed so high that the wearer receives more value for his money in the W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than he can get elsewhere.

W. L. Douglas sells more $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than any other two manufacturers.

W. L. Douglas $4.00 Gilt Edge Line cannot be equalled at any price.

W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes are made of the same high grade leathers used in $5 and $6 shoes and are just as good.

Sold by the best shoe dealers everywhere. Insist upon having W. L. Douglas shoes with name and price stamped on bottom.

How to Order by Mail.—If W. L. Douglas shoes are not sold in your town, send order direct to factory. Shoes sent anywhere on receipt of price and 25 cts. additional for carriage. My custom department will make you a pair that will equal $5 and $6 custom made shoes, in style, fit and wear. Take measurements of foot as shown in model; state style desired, size and width, usually worn; plain or cap toe; heavy, medium or light soles. A $3 guarantee. Try a pair.

Fast Color Eyelets used. Catalog free. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

USE CERTAIN COUGH CHILL CORN CURE.

Am. N. U., No. 34. 1901.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment free. Dr. H. H. GREEN SONS, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

Millions of Mothers

USE CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin of infants and children, for rashes, itchings, and chafings, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use Cuticura Soap in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, for too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. Cuticura Soap combines delicate emollient properties derived from Cuticura, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humour, Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT, to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and speedily heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, and humiliating skin, scalp, and blood humours, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. British Depot: F. NEWBERY & SONS, 27 and 28, Charterhouse Sq., London. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

Cuticura THE SET

For Bargains

—GO TO—

W. M. WILSON & BRO,

Closing out all Millinery and Ladies' Shirt Waists for less than cost.

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON.

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : ALA.

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER office

AT REDUCED PRICES

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

They banish pain and prolong life. ONE GIVES RELIEF.

R·I·P·A·N·S

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

THIS COMPLETE SHAVING OUTFIT FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

1 English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to shave	75c
1 9½ in Hair Brush	50c
1 Shaving Brush	10c
1 7 in Barber Comb	10c
1 Rubber Fine "	10c
1 4 in Pocket comb in case	10c
1 Bar good Shaving soap	10c
1 2½ x 4 Mirror	10c
1 23 in Razor Strop	50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

The O. K. Lunch Counter

MEALS AND LUNCHES SERVED AT ALL HOURS AT POPULAR PRICES

Fish and Oysters during the Season

I pay highest market price for Chickens and Eggs.

LUNCHES PUT UP FOR TRAVELERS

THE O K. LUNCH COUNTER

NEXT THE RAILROAD, CLANTON.

W. H. STACY, Proprietor.

WOMAN'S RELIEF

A really healthy woman has little pain or discomfort at the menstrual period. No woman needs to have any. Wine of Cardui will quickly relieve those smarting menstrual pains and the dragging head, back and side aches caused by falling of the womb and irregular menses.

WINE OF CARDUI

has brought permanent relief to 1,000,000 women who suffered every month. It makes the menstrual organs strong and healthy. It is the provision made by Nature to give women relief from the terrible aches and pains which blight so many homes.

GREENWOOD, LA., Oct. 14, 1899. I have been very sick for some time. I was taken with a severe pain in my side and could not get any relief until I tried a bottle of Wine of Cardui. Before I had taken all of it I was relieved. I feel it my duty to say that you have a wonderful medicine.

MRS. M. A. YOUNG.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP

W. H. TAYLOR, Proprietor.

HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING

In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.

HOT AND COLD BATHS.

CLANTON

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets.—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the BANNER.

Headache bad? Get Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

SPOOK'S FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION.

"I don't know, Marsden, how we can ever worm any sort of a confession out of her," said Lawyer Darke, with an accent on the pronoun. "If any comes, it will be because she is startled into telling it. A good scare, like a cyclone or an earthquake, might possibly do the business. No amount of persuasion or threats ever will, that's evident. Meanwhile I don't see what we can do for Miss Laura only to wait and try to conceive some new plan."

Speaking these words, Lawyer Darke descended the stairs of an old tenement, followed by Harry Marsden, and stepped out upon the hot pavement of the street.

It was the afternoon of July 3. On the stairs down which the two men had just descended crouched the small figure of a boy whose size indicated about the age of 7, but whose face said 12. The latter told the truth. The boy was emaciated to the last degree that one could hope to find him out of his bed, and his face was the color of chalk. His colorless lips were thin and delicate, and his eyes, large and burning and sunk in dark shadows, looked spectral in the gloom of the dirt strewn hallway.

"PLEASE GIVE ME SOME MONEY. I WANT SOME FIREWORKS."

The lawyer's words concerning the cyclone and earthquake had been meaningless to the author of them, but they were not meaningless to Spook. He knew the story of the pretty, pale factory girl in the attic room, penned up with an old woman who did not hesitate to abuse her every day and many times a day—that is, he knew that the girl called the old woman "grandma" and that "grandma" claimed that that relationship existed between them; knew also that there had been of late rumors afloat to the effect that Laura was not the old woman's granddaughter, that there was some money somewhere that ought to be Laura's and that the old woman could straighten things out if she would, but that this she refused to do. This much of a story had been roughly woven together in the neighborhood. How near to the truth it came none of the denizens actually knew, but Spook accepted it, gathered it carefully together and placed it in his mind as a sort of af environment about the words dropped by the lawyer.

Meantime Lawyer Darke went to his office to try and devise some new scheme for the benefit of his client, and the client, Harry Marsden, started for home. The real known facts from which these two hoped to develop a case of interest and good to all concerned were these:

About a year previous Harry Marsden had come into possession of a fortune from an uncle, one Joseph Marsden, who had died in England. The will had stated that Harry was made heir, as the nearest of kin known to be living, but that there was a possibility of the existence of a stepdaughter, the child of the uncle's wife by a former marriage; that if this girl could be found within the space of ten years half of the property was to be hers. The girl, the will continued, was born in 1874. At the age of 5 years, only a few months after the marriage of Joseph Marsden to the young widow, the child had suddenly disappeared, stolen from her bed in the night while the nurse slept soundly, and no clew had ever been obtained as to her fate.

The certificate of her birth had also been taken at the same time, for what reason was not known. The young mother had been frantic with grief, and her husband had employed the best detectives and spent money freely, all to no purpose. His wife died a year later. He continued the search as long as he lived at intervals and had his will drawn as described, with the additional testimony that one Harriet Carey had been a deadly and vindictive enemy of his wife and that he knew of no other person who would be likely to have stolen the child. What the reasons were for this enmity he did not state. As for a description of the girl, he could only mention one marked peculiarity which would be certain to remain as she grew up, and that was that while one of her eyes was a deep violet blue the other was more of a dark gray. This was hardly noticeable unless one observed closely, but remained a distinguishable feature by which she might eventually be identified.

It did not seem very likely that after 18 years of search this discovery would ever be made. But handsome Harry Marsden, in the honesty of his heart and his love of justice, fervently hoped that it might have been left for him to bring the discovery to pass. Harry was 26 and, strange as it may appear, had never been in love. He declared that the reason was that he had never met his ideal, not considering that the matter of an ideal has nothing to do with the divine passion as experienced on this mundane sphere.

However, after he had received the inheritance before mentioned, he had come to wonder if a girl with a blue eye and a gray one could be beautiful. He had heard of the great beauty of his uncle's English wife and wondered if the daughter resembled her, always providing that she was living. After long deliberation he had come to the conclusion that the phenomenon of two colored eyes would prove rather a charm in a fair face than otherwise and had contracted the habit of looking carefully at every strange girl he met who might be about 20 years of age.

How he did eventually meet the girl need not be related here. It was one of those accidents—as we count the workings of never erring fate—that happen every day. The world is full of them. So Harry looked into the delicate face, saw one blue eye and one gray one and saw his destiny.

Elated at the discovery (of the eyes, not knowing yet of the other), he at once saw his way clear to the end, or thought he did, but found obstacles in the path. Mrs. Carver declared that the fact of the peculiar eyes was only a coincidence, that the girl was the daughter of her son and that no one could prove that her name was other than Carver.

But fate was working in a manner of her own, and this brings us back to Spook, crouching on the stairs, pondering, perchance plotting and planning, as boy never planned before. There was something in the air, a force revolving about, which must be captured, put in the form of a thought, developed into a suggestion and thence to the execution or act that would bring about a desired result, a result beneficial to Laura Carver.

A boy from the street threw a firecracker into the stairway. It fell alone beside Spook. It hissed threateningly, then exploded triumphantly. A moment before he would not have heard it any more than he heard the noises of the street. But now his mind was at a point where the explosion came to him with terrible force, and he arose suddenly and made a motion across his eyes with his clawlike hand like the brushing away of cobwebs.

He looked down at the spot where the spent firecracker still glowed dully in the gloom; then he passed quickly down the stairs and into the street. He did not stop there, but hastened away out of the vicinity and up the street. He wanted some money. There was no money in that wretched place he called home, or if there was it was not for him. The drunken aunt who was supposed to care for him had no money to waste on Fourth of July fun for the boy. She had sold herself long ago for what she could get. She would sell the boy himself at the same price, only there was no buyer. That there was money in the world that would ere long buy him from her and place him in the niche designed for him she did not dream. Neither did Spook. He only knew that with the explosion of the firecracker in the dark stairway something had come to him like the sudden opening and shutting of a door through which he had seen clearly to the end.

But he must have some money. Spook had never begged upon the street. His spectral face would have been an effectual one for the purpose, but there was something within him which absolutely refused to do the degrading act, and no amount of threats had forced him to it. But tonight he must have money. Not very much, but money, and goaded on by his affection for the beautiful Laura he had aside all scruples so strangely imbedded in his child's strange nature of his environment and experience.

He paused where the light from an electric tower fell upon his thin, ragclad form and on his phantom face, with its burning eyes. He put out his hand to the first well dressed passerby and said a little waveringly:

"Please give me some money. I want some fireworks."

The man paused and looked curiously at the child.

"So it isn't bread you want? It's fireworks? Well, you are honest, anyway. Here's half a dollar."

Spook was stupefied at his instant and tremendous success. He tried to gasp his gratitude, but the man had walked briskly away. So he crossed to a store where fireworks were sold and invested the whole amount in firecrackers, a few matches and one great sized Roman candle. With his treasures clasped closely in his arms and his heart wildly beating he hastened toward home. It was after 10 o'clock, and he congratulated himself on making his purchase before the store closed for the night.

The night seemed to grow hotter, the atmosphere more dense and suffocating. The old woman slept a little fitfully and dreamed bad dreams. Sometimes she turned and tossed and fancied that she saw a pale, beautiful woman's face, sharp with anguish at the loss of her only child.

The bells tolled 12. At the signal there was an uprising of sounds from the great city. Voices rose up in wild cries, gunshots snapped and crackled, and cannon reverberated heavily through the night. But these were without. They interested the people generally. They made no impression on the old woman individually. She slept on, until crash! rush! bang! roar! crash! and she awoke to find that the end of the world had come and that she was already in pandemonium. The place was filled with the smoke of powder. The crackling and crashing were terrific. The fearful noises came from everywhere—below, above, all about her. The smoke grew dense and suffocated her. It suffocated and choked her.

A demoniac shriek, derisive, mocking, mingled with her own shrieks of terror! She sprang to the floor but her bare feet touched fire and were scorched. Evidently the gates of hell were opened and the devil claimed possession of her. Yes, there was the face of his captured souls here, ghastly, spectral, wrapped in a shroud, dancing madly back and forth, to and fro, across that narrow shaft of light. Sparks of fire seemed to emanate from it at every moment and curious sounds to come from its presence. Then and anon great blotches of fire upward from the writhing heads struck the low ceiling with a crash like the crack of doom. Horrors, the great creature came nearer.

"Confess—confess!" it hissed, glided to the door and sang in a wild, "Go forth and confess!" And it vanished again, waving its spectral wings and shrieking to and fro in awful glee. The old woman gave one high shrill scream and rushed and stumbled into the black hallway.

The explosion in her room had blown out nearly every tenant in the building. Lights flashed here and there, pale faces peered from their doorways and the place was rapidly filled with a swarm of witnesses. Into the presence of these the frightened old woman rushed, the phantom close at her heels.

"I do confess. I confess everything," she shrieked. "Yes, yes, Laura is the child of Mary Marsden! I stole her! I am Harriet Carey! It's all true. Oh, good ghost, save me, oh, save me!"

"The paper!" hissed the ghost, clutching at the old woman's arm with clawlike fingers. "The birth paper!"

She shrieked in newspaperese: "In the little tin box!" she gasped. "Laura knows—the one I keep locked!" Then she fell fainting to the floor. In the midst of the confusion that followed the ghost slipped quietly back into the room and vanished. Only the narrow shaft of light revealed the escape of the sheet wrapped form out through the window; only the walls heard its muttered words, "A cyclone or an earthquake might do the business!" As the phantom figure crept in at another window and was again swallowed up by the gloom.

When the gray light of the early July morning crept stealthily into the tenement house, it rested very softly on Spook, fast asleep in his wooden bed. The old sheet which covered him was burned in places and more ragged than ever, if that were possible. His fingers were blackened with powder and his thin face looked very white in the gray light. But there lingered on it no traces of a midnight revel. On the contrary, it was unusually peaceful and overspread with a shadow of content. Poor Spook! Faithful Spook! He smiles in his dreams. Happy Spook!

Already some bright forestalmen of the future is shedding its glow

"CONFESSING" [illegible] off his soul. Afraid he would [illegible] of rambling in green fields and [illegible] running waters. He saw Laura in her own happy home, with a tall and handsome husband waiting on every [illegible] and he, poor Spook, [illegible] a place and share in her. He smiles [illegible] ly. He is growing well and strong [illegible] the old life of misery is all [illegible] away and being forgotten. He [illegible] has traveled on ahead a little way and opened up to him in his dream the [illegible] and happy future dating from the Fourth of July morning when he celebrated.—Detroit News-Tribune.

THE BEST WAY TO THE

SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST.

NORTH AND NORTH-WEST

—IS VIA THE—

L. & N.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.

The Through Cars

On this line pass Calera daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans.

Connecting with all points in

TEXAS AND THE WEST.

Also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Connecting for all points in the

NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or C. P. Ammerd, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

Judge of Probate

THE BANNER.

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. IX — CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY AUGUST 29, 1901 — NO. 45

MAN ON THE CORNER

Of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

[illegible] with wind storms and rains [illegible] dry times anything that [illegible] light on weather prog[illegible] certainly acceptable. [illegible] we accept them they [illegible] to be correct. I was [illegible] started a few days ago [illegible] Hotel Lobby man in the [illegible] I stated that the Irish [illegible] peasantry looked upon [illegible] as indicative of [illegible] weather. You know what a [illegible] sky is—that flaky ap[illegible] in the heavens resembling [illegible], not the scaled variety [illegible] sometimes see in this part of [illegible] but the shiny beauty [illegible] from the ocean. The next [illegible] I was received when a gentle[illegible] who had traveled all the way [illegible] informed us he had met [illegible] men there and that they had [illegible] a mackerel sky was a sign [illegible]

[illegible] mackerel sky [illegible] and for long dry." [illegible] couplet is pretty well [illegible] throughout the United [illegible], and I have heard the [illegible] expression in different words [illegible] four quarters of the globe. [illegible] what is more observation leads [illegible] believe it is an almost infalli[illegible] sign of unsettled weather. [illegible], whom we are told, "at [illegible] their money like horses, [illegible] it, like asses, when idle [illegible] derive a good deal of en[illegible] in the dog watch (their [illegible]) from observation of [illegible], and the clouds are [illegible] as representing every [illegible] thing. One will find a [illegible] of clouds looks like a rail[illegible]; another can see his old [illegible] church with its steeple, and [illegible] will find them appearing [illegible] wood where he went birds[illegible] when a boy, while I re[illegible] one-footed old veteran who [illegible] always discovering a resem[illegible] to his "old woman" in [illegible] formation of clouds which [illegible] be twisted by a viv[illegible] imagination to represent the [illegible] of every woman. But one [illegible] on seeing a mack[illegible] we will have a change [illegible] and is sure as fate [illegible]

[illegible] Mr. Hotel Lobby man, another weather nut to [illegible] Take a trip with me across [illegible] we will pass the [illegible] and land [illegible] as soon as we [illegible] the country people and [illegible] the weather they will [illegible] Friday will bring [illegible] Sunday. But we won't stay [illegible] the southern part of Eng[illegible] the midlands [illegible] from the [illegible] Sunday means [illegible] week. Now between [illegible] however they manage to [illegible] weather at all has al[illegible] a mystery to me. Can [illegible]

[illegible] is the sailors' de[illegible] in the morning is the sailors' [illegible]

[illegible] "shepherd" for "sail[illegible] meet the requirements of a [illegible] of a marine popula[illegible] here is another almost uni[illegible] weather couplet which is [illegible] a correct sign. When [illegible] sun diffuses its rays [illegible] horizon amid a set[illegible] purple and gold, Dame Na[illegible] inclined, and a [illegible] peaceful night with a [illegible] to follow is betokened. [illegible] the morning the sun arises [illegible] looking fierce and red and angry, look out for squalls, for Mother Earth is to be scourged with wind and rain and storm.

"When the wind is in the east
It's neither fit for man nor beast."

And that again is very true, no matter in what part of the world you may happen to be. An east wind is bad and uncomfortable anywhere. Other winds are affected by different localities, but an east wind never, it's always disagreeable. In Texas a "norther" brings cold weather and a blizzard; in Australia the "norther" comes hot and scorching, burning everyone and everything, but in either place the East wind is the same, "neither fit for man nor beast."

None but can be sorry for the sad circumstances attending the advent of Mr. J. M. Moore's family to Clanton. No sooner are they in their new home than their darling boy, a bright little fellow about four years of age, their only child, is stricken with that dire disease, scarlet fever, and in a couple of days his little body is placed in its last earthly home. I delight in thinking that all little ones go direct to the loving arms of Him who said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me." The pretty prattle of the little innocent is heard no more on earth, but who can doubt the little voice can be heard amidst the angel throng. The grief of the parents is sacred, but the sympathy of all is with them in this their time of trouble.

In the course of the next few weeks three educational establishments will open their doors in Chilton county, of which any county might be proud. There may be others, but those I speak of are, the University School at Clanton, which commences its ninth annual session, under Prof. E. Y. McMorries, on September 11; the Clanton High School, with Prof. J. M. Collier as principal, Sept. 9; and the Normal Institute at Thorsby, superintended by Profs. Rasco and Carmichael, Sept. 16. These three school are fortunate in having at their head such principals as Profs. McMorries, Collier and Rasco and Carmichael, each and all of whom have made reputations for themselves right among us. Here's prosperity to all of them.

Why are Judge Adams and Bro. Woods like Chinamen? Give it up, do you? Well, I'll tell you. Chinamen never can walk abreast of each other, but always go one after another. And that's the way the Judge and Bro. Woods went to the Indian Territory and returned in the same fashion. At the start it was Bro. Woods went ahead and the Judge lagged behind. On the home run the Judge took the lead and arrived home two or three days ahead of Bro. Woods. I can imagine them out in the Territory. Bro. Woods, in front, says: "What d'ye think of that corn, Bro. Adams?" The Judge replies: "Fine corn, that. I wonder how things are going on at Clanton." A little further on and Bro. Woods turns and calls the attention of the Judge to some cotton. "Yes," says the Judge, "cotton's alright, but I wish I was at home. Let's go home." And away they came, one after the other.

Better have a good medicine and not need it than to need it and not have it. See? Then just before you get hurt, buy a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. It is a record breaker for Wounds, Burns, Bruises, Scalds, etc., for man and beast. 50c a bottle at all drug stores.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—Editor.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25 cents.

Verbena.

Mrs. F. A. Gulledge and son, Charlie, have gone to Columbus, Ga., to attend the funeral of her sister, who died there.

Miss Mary D. Meriwether, one of Snowdoun's brightest and fairest young ladies, who has been visiting friends here, returned to her home, to the regret of her many friends.

Hon Ned R. McDavid and family, of Montgomery, are stopping at the Clifton House.

Miss Sallie Rudolph, a charming young lady of Montgomery, is the guest of friends in Verbena

Messrs Bird Mitchell and C. G. Northington have been taking in the capital city this week.

We have a Klondyke of our own. We have gold mines near Verbena and if you wish to dig gold come up and we will let you dig some.

Miss Alabama Dudley, who has been visiting friends here, has returned to her home at Pleasant Hill.

Mrs. Godshall, who has been stopping with relatives in our city has returned to her home in Nashville.

Miss Jessie Herring of East Lake, is the charming guest of friends in Verbena.

Mrs D. M. Dickson of Montgomery, has been stopping at the Clifton House.

Messrs. A. N. Smith, of Birmingham, and John Barnes, of Georgia, have been staying at the Clifton House.

Verbena is full of lovely young ladies and the girls say all they need now is some good looking boys. Can you furnish them?

Chilton county has a fine corn crop and a very good cotton crop. The cotton is being damaged by the continual rains. The rust is running it in some places. I think the farmers here are in a better condition financially than they have been in years.

East Chilton.

We are still having a great deal of sickness. We had a storm last week, which was destructive to both corn and cotton.

Mr. H. Kendrick and family of Elmore were pleasant visitors here last week.

Mr. John Howard and family have been visiting relatives in Prattville.

Messrs. W. A. Goss and P. H. Connell visited friends near Jemison Friday

Mr. Job Mims was a visitor here again last week. It seems like Burwell is attractive.

Some of our good Methodists seem to be losing their mind because one of their members joined the Baptist church. I guess they will come around all O.K.

Oh yes! J. N. and W. A. Goss visited Poplar Springs Sunday.

I haven't seen the last issue of the Banner, or I might have had more to write.

I notice in the Reflector that the young men of Riderville are at public auction. If I were among them I would feel like remaining at home for a couple of years. I really think the young ladies of that section should be more lenient. Poor fellows.

SUDON.

They Struck It Rich.

It was a grand thing for his community that such an enterprising firm as the Clanton drug Co. secured the Agency for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the wonderful remedy that has startled the world by its marvellous cures. The furor of enthusiasm over it has boomed their business as the demand for it is immense. They give free trial bottles to sufferers, and positively guarantee it to cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, and all Throat and Lung Troubles. A trial proves its merit. Price 50c and $1.00.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.
THORSBY, ALA.

Thorsby.

Eleven new buildings at one time in course of erection is the record we are now making.

The Normal Institute is making good progress and will be ready for the opening September 16.

The new hotel near the depot is being pushed to completion The proprietor arrived from Chicago this week.

Our boys do a thriving business with every train, selling grapes and other fruits.

Prof. R. A. Rasco went to Birmingham on Monday on business.

Mr. I. E. Sarber returned from a trip to the North last week. He says crops are badly damaged by drouth, especially in Indiana.

Notice to Bridge Builders.

I will let to the lowest and best bidder, on Monday, September 9, 1901, a bridge to be built over Walnut Creek, near Clanton. Description of bridge will be given on that day.

RUFUS RIGGINS,
Commissioner.

DOWNS' FIRE SALE
—ON—
SNUFF AND TOBACCO
FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS

$3.50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnaps Early Bird, Long Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

and on Thursday, July 25,

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Bruton.
$1.00 gets you 10 boxes 3⅓ oz. Bruton.
$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 3⅓ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO and 600 pounds of SNUFF Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $

But they must go just the same.

Mortgage Sale.

Under and by virtue of the powers contained in a deed of mortgage, executed by the trustees of Clanton Congregational church of the town of Clanton, to the Congregational Church Building Society, on the 4th day of February, 1893, which said deed of mortgage is recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, in Volume 28 of Mortgages, page 475, and which said mortgage has been duly transferred and assigned to the undersigned, I will proceed to sell at auction to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court House door, in Clanton, in said County, on

MONDAY SEPTEMBER the 30, 1901, within the legal hours of sale, the following described real estate in said mortgage deed mentioned and described, to-wit:

Lots number 1, 2, 7 and 8 in Block 12, situated east of the Louisville & Nashville railroad in the town of Clanton, county of Chilton and State of Alabama.

ALEX G. DAKE, Transferee.
By ROB'T H KNOX, his Attorney.

Commissioner's Sale.

In pursuance and in accordance with the terms and directions of a Commission issued and directed to the undersigned by the Hon. S. M. Adams, Judge of Probate of Chilton county, bearing date of July 22nd, 1901, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder for cash, at public auction, in front of the Court House door of said county, at Clanton, on TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER the 10, 1901, the following described land to-wit: The northwest quarter of the southwest quarter, section 29, township 21, range 3, in Chilton county, Alabama, which said land is to be sold under the decree of the Probate Court of said county for the purpose of a division among the several owners thereof, who are the heirs at law of Edward Mims, deceased.

A. C. SMITH, Commissioner.

What A Tale It Tells.

If that mirror of yours shows a wretched, sallow complexion, a jaundiced look, moth patches and blotches on the skin, it's liver trouble; but Dr. King's New Life Pills regulate the liver, purify the blood, give clear skin, rosy cheeks, rich complexion. Only 25c at Clanton drug Co.

WANTED.

LAND FOR SALE. Any man wishing to buy good farms will do well to apply to
C. J. STEWART, Clanton, Ala.

PAINTING done now has the best chance to stand the weather. Estimates free. Prices moderate. MOORE, the Painter, Clanton

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1898. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov, 19, 1900
We have handled Dr. Moffett's TEETHINA (Teething Powders) ever since its first introduction to the public and trade as a proprietary medicine, and our trade in it has steadily increased from year to year until our orders now amount to two or three hundred gross per year, which is a very strong evidence of its merit and the satisfaction it is giving to the mothers of the country, for they say that nothing so effectually counteracts the effects of the summer's hot sun or overcomes so quickly the troubles incident to teething.
THE LAMAR & RANKIN DRUG CO.,
Wholesale Druggists.

Alabama Girls' Industrial School.

MONTEVALLO, ALA.

The next session opens September 18, 1901. An enlarged Dormitory and new class rooms make it possible to provide for more girls, and to offer better accommodations. For catalogue address
FRANCIS M. PETERSON,
President.

GOING TO SCHOOL?

The Fifth District Agricultural School at Wetumpka, Ala., offers you good opportunities and low prices. $5.00 (Five dollars) covers all charges for nine months, session beginning Sep. 3d, 1901.
Board $8.00 per month.
Send for catalogue.
H. J. WILLINGHAM,
President.

Positions GUARANTEED UNDER A $5,000 DEPOSIT
R. R. FARE PAID
200 FREE
Scholarships offered. Write quick to

GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

PIPPEN MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts.
Office at the Adams' place
CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN C. DENNIS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts.
CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. KNOX,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CLANTON, ALA.
Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama

Dr. OTTO M. WISEHART,
DENTIST.
OFFICE HOURS. 8 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m.
Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS,
SPECIALIST
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
OFFICE 22 S. PERRY ST.
Office Hours: 9 to 12 and 3 to 4.
Telephone 494—2 Calls
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. N. S. JOHNSON
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL,
JACKSONVILLE, ALA.
A school to prepare teachers Demand for graduates greater than the supply. Board $8 per month up. Tuition free. Nineteenth year. Session begins Oct. 1, 1901. For catalogue address
CLARENCE W. DAUGETTE,
President.

E W Grove
This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL
CLANTON, ALA.
Is a training and strictly private school for boys and girls.
Correllated to the University of Alabama and to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.
Has fitted more pupils for college, more pupils for teaching, more pupils for advanced business positions than all other schools in Chilton county combined. It is the only school in Chilton county whose pupils have a First Grade Certificate under the present school laws.
Its course of instruction is the best arranged, its methods the soundest, most thorough and up-to-date; its scholarship the most advanced; its location, buildings, grounds, furniture, equipments, the most attractive and best adapted of any school in Chilton county.
Its pupils enter any college in the South on certificate of the Principal. It deals honestly with the public adheres to professional courtesy, and performs its promises. Its mission is to build up, not to pull down. It is not, as some are, a mere common school called "College," "Normal," etc., by which misnomers the uninformed are misled.
$101 pays all expenses of board, tuition, fuel, lights, etc., for session of nine months. School opens September 11, 1901. Write for catalogue.
E. Y. McMORRIES, Principal.

To All Whom it May Concern:

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 3, 1901

No person, or persons, can lawfully solicit or write insurance for the Chilton county Branch of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama, unless he, or they, bear a commission (empowering him or them to perform such work) signed by Wallace C. Edler, General Agent of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama.

All persons concerned will govern themselves accordingly.

WALLACE C. EDLER,
General Agent Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

OLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

The only two six-masted schooners afloat came in collision off Cape Cod recently. This presents the suggestion that those who are fond of monkeying with problems of averages can figure out what the chances are for their doing this again.

Not until twenty years ago were circuses allowed to exhibit in Vermont, but the circuses used to skirt three sides of the State closely, and it was most gratifying to the proprietors to see the way in which the men, women and children of the Green Mountains used to troop across the border into New York, Massachusetts and New Hampshire to enjoy the feats forbidden to them at home.

Insurance interests in the United States are assuming vast proportions. During 1900 the life companies alone distributed $273,590,876. About one-seventh of this enormous total was paid policy holders in dividends and in the purchase of surrendered policies, the remainder representing losses. The distribution averaged $1,000,000 for every working day of the year.

There is prospect of a revival of the ancient sport of falconry in England. In a number of places this form of hunting is now often employed. Hares and rabbits seem to afford the best sport, and in order to provide plenty of game ferrets are run through the burrows the night before the hunt and the openings are then stopped up so that the hares and rabbits will be in the open when the falcons fly.

There can be no doubt that the responsibility of great wealth is more acutely felt in this country than ever before. Larger gifts are made in a larger way as fortunes increase in size and number. And we are glad to think that it is not pressure from without so much as humane impulses from within which stimulates to generosity, says the New York Post. Wealth sees poverty and need and stunted lives and unrelieved misery about it and yearns to be a rescuer, a creator of opportunity, and by voluntary distribution to undo excess.

The discontented worries of a morose person may very likely shorten his days, and the general justice of nature's arrangement provides that his early departure should entail no long regrets. On the other hand, the man who can laugh keeps his health. To the perfectly healthy laughter comes often. Too commonly, though, as childhood is left behind, the habit fails, and a half smile is the best that visits the thought-lined mouth of a modern man or woman. People become more and more burdened with the accumulations of knowledge and with the weighing responsibilities of life, but they should still spare time to laugh.

The Boston Herald takes occasion to analyze some of the statements concerning the amount of money paid by Americans to foreigners for the service of ocean transportation. It derides the assumption that the sum reaches $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 annually, but it does not attempt to make a close estimate of the actual expenditure. One percent of the cost of the goods shipped, it says, would about size up the business. If this is the case, $24,000,000 would pay for the transportation of our imports and exports. Perhaps the insignificance of the amount accounts for the fact that Americans have not in recent years made any great efforts to secure the oversea carrying trade.

"There is no question," says Dr. John H. Girdner, in Munsey's, "but that the confusing and discordant noises of large cities are detrimental to the health of those who are obliged to dwell in them for the greater part of the year. The injury to health from this source is not entirely of a local character. In fact, the irritation to the auditory apparatus—that is, the ear itself, its nerves, and its other appendages—is of less importance than the harm done to the brain and general nervous system by the roar and din of modern cities. Noise thus plays an important part in producing neurasthenia, or nervous prostration, a disease of cities and of modern civilization. Aside from the destructive effect on the general health, noise produces local changes in the ear itself which sometimes amount to chronic inflammation, and very often to partial deafness." Dr. Girdner advocates the prohibition of unnecessary noises by municipal c[illegible]

SOME ALABAMA HAPPENINGS

HER PRINCIPAL NEWS ITEMS BOILED DOWN.

CITY MARSHALS THE TARGET FOR BULLETS.

L. & N. Has a Blaze—Oil Matters Again—"Ten Years Ain't Long"—Mystery Near Anniston—Postal Service Extended.

L. & N. FIRE.

The freight depot of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. at Birmingham was badly damaged by a fire that raged within its walls for more than an hour Saturday night. The damage is estimated at $10,200. The fire originated in the record room near the front of the building. When first discovered it had made considerable headway, and by the time the fire department arrived the flames had passed into the freight warehouse. The warehouse was packed with incoming freight for Birmingham merchants and a large quantity of it was badly damaged. Four cars by the side of the building were scorched by the flames and slightly damaged before they could be moved. The damage to the cars was very slight, the contents being barely scorched by the heat. The cause of the fire is a mystery, but the theory is that a spark from a passing engine started the flames. When discovered they were eating the walls and roof of the record room.

MURDER OR SUICIDE?

John E. Patty, a farmer living near Edwardsville, was found dead in his house Thursday, having received a load of shot in the side of his head. A double barreled shotgun lay across the bed with the muzzle towards the dead man, while on the bed were found two rifles. Officers tried to find out whether there is any evidence of a murder or whether the old man committed suicide. Mr. Patty was quiet and peaceable and had few enemies. It seems a fatality follows the family. His father died in Bryce hospital, his brother suicided a few few years ago and his nephew killed himself with the same gun, and another brother was convicted for the murder of his wife and child about twenty-five years ago.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Calhoun County Sunday School Association it was decided to hold the next annual county Sunday school convention in Anniston on the second week in October. A speaker from a distance will be invited to conduct a Bible institute during the convention. The programme for the event is now being arranged. The convention will probably last four or five days and a large attendance is expected.

OIL IN DALLAS.

If reports prove true Selma will soon have the oil fever. Since the Texas oil discoveries much interest has been evinced over the appearance of an oily substance on the surface of streams in Dallas county, and a rumor is afloat that oil has really been struck.

IT IS reported in Montgomery that a new afternoon paper will soon be established there.

KILLED HIMSELF.

James George, a young white man, committed suicide at Pratt City Thursday by shooting himself. He shot himself in the shoulder, the ball striking an artery, and he bled to death before the doctor could get to him. A woman is said to have been the cause of the deed.

NEW RAILROAD.

The final legal steps have been taken to complete the organization of the Steel City's Railway Company, whose purpose is to operate a dummy or electric railroad between Ensley and Brookside. The captal stock of the company is fixed at $300,000.

GOVERNOR JELKS has gone to New York for a brief visit. The Governor made no announcement as to the purpose of his visit, but it is supposed that he has gone in connection with the finances.

RURAL POSTAL SERVICE.

Jefferson county will have twenty-eight routes on the rural delivery service which is soon to be inaugurated by the post office department. The carriers for these routes have been appointed, and public announcement will be made next week, giving the routes and names of all, together with the mileage they will cover and the persons who will have the benefit of their services.

THE TENNESSEE RAGING.

Fear of a disastrous overflow is apprehended by the farmers in the lowlands along the Tennessee river. The river has been greatly swollen by the rains of the past few days and in some places has swept out over its banks, inundating a number of cornfields and greatly damaging the crops, besides drowning live stock. Should the rain continue two days more, the crops in the bottom lands will be a total loss. A farmer says the cotton crop in his locality will be greatly damaged as the continued wet weather has caused the plant to take the rust. The present rise in the Tennessee river is unprecedented for August, as this is always a low water mark season of the year. This year has been rather remarkable from the fact that it has recorded four rises since early spring. It will be impossible for a week or more to compute the damage that has been done to the bottom land crops by the flood. In some places the crops are a total loss, being covered by twenty feet of water. This flood broke the summer flood record of seventy-six years. There is a legend of a big flood in 1825 that washed away all the bottom land crops and the present inundation is said to be the only one that can be compared with it in the extent of damage effected.

WARRIOR'S MARSHAL SHOT.

R. B. Blackburn, city marshal of Warrior, was shot and seriously, but not necessarily fatally, wounded by an unknown negro tramp Thursday. The marshal attempted to arrest the negro and he drew a 38-caliber revolver and began shooting at the officer, one shot taking effect just below the right breast. The tramp left the city immediately after the shooting and a crowd of determined citizens is after him.

Acting Marshal Yessick, of Warrior, has searched with a posse for the man who shot Marshal Blackburn last Friday, and Saturday a negro was shot who may be the guilty party.

SIMILAR ATTEMPT.

Thursday night Adamsville was aroused by three shots, one from the pistol of an unknown negro, the other two from that of Marshal Rolo. The negro being asked by the marshal to leave the depot, he started away. Pulling out a gun and a bundle from under the depot, he was asked to drop the gun and the reply was: "It is mine." And on the second request to drop it the reply was from the gun toward the policeman and the negro fled. The marshal fired two shots, which took no effect. The negro escaped.

THINKS HE GOT OFF EASY.

Hester Booth, 16 years old, at Tuscaloosa, Friday, was given ten years in the penitentiary for killing his father last October. In a dispute the boy shot his father, but claimed that his father had an ax in a threatening attitude when he shot. The testimony was not altogether favorable to the boy. The jury returned a verdict of guilty and fixed his punishment at ten years in the penitentiary. The boy throughout the trial was smiling and talking, with apparently no concern, and when the jury returned a verdict he smilingly remarked: "Oh, that ain't long."

A SPECIAL grand jury convened to investigate the recent lynching in Elmore county has found indictments against ten of thirty members of the mob. Several who refused to testify were placed in jail for contempt of court. These are the first indictments against lynchers in this state in many years.

WILL DOUBLE CAPACITY.

The Ashcraft Cotton Mill of Florence will double its capacity at once and work has already commenced on the foundations for the new building. The company will put in 3000 spindles and 100 additional looms. The mills have been in operation a little over a year and a half and have been very successful.

IMMENSE quantities of ammunition and arms are being manufactured in the arsenals of China, and immense quantities are also being imported.

DR. JAMES K. POWERS, of Florence, late president of the University of Alabama, and at one time president of the State Normal school at Florence, has accepted a position with the B. F. Johnson Publishing Company of Richmond, Va., being their representative for this state.

$65,000 worth of steel has been ordered for the bridge across the Bigbee river at Linden.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

AFFAIRS OF NATIONAL IMPORT PRESENTED TO THE PUBLIC.

SCHLEY CONTROVERSY STILL OF INTEREST

Stopped the Chinks—Indian Land Sales—Philippine Trade—Roosevelt's Children—What England Thinks About Us.

Probably the most important arrests ever made in connection with the smuggling of Chinese across the Mexican border into the United States were made in Arizona. William Hoey, collector of customs; B. F. Jossey, an immigrant inspector; Frank How, a Chinaman, and another Chinaman across the border were taken into custody by special agents of the treasury and secret service operators. Several Chinamen were furnished with money and sent on to buy their way through the official cordon. This was accomplished without difficulty, the price demanded being from $50 to $200. The secret service men also arranged with one or two employes whose honesty had been tested to go into the collector's office at a certain time and demand a share of the money received from Chinamen and to be admitted into the combination, so that they might get their share of the proceeds of future dealings. This was reluctantly agreed to and considerable sums of money were handed over in the presence and full hearing of a secret service man who had previously secreted himself in a nearby office closet. The officials soon found that Chinamen who presented a certificate marked with the letter "A" were allowed to proceed without question, while those having certificates that did not bear the letter "A" were turned back without ceremony.

It is quite freely intimated that General Shafter will be called to testify before the Schley court of inquiry, because of the publication of Malcom McDowell, over his signature, that he learned that the French consul sent word to Shafter's headquarters that the Spanish fleet, on the following day at 9 a. m., would make a dash out of Santiago harbor. Shafter, caused the information to be wigwagged at once to Sampson, on board the New York. Notwithstanding this information, Sampson withdrew with the New York ten minutes before the time set for the appearance of the Spanish fleet.

A continued increase in both the import and export trade of the Philippines is shown in a comparative statement compiled from the War Department giving the commerce of the islands for seven months ending January 31, 1901, and 1900. The total amount of merchandise imported during the seven months of 1901, was $17,999,167 as against $12,674,705 for the same period in 1900, and the merchandise exported was $12,637,359, as against $8,305,530, for the 1900 period. This shows an increase of forty-two per cent in the value of imports and fifty-two per cent in export values.

Vice-President Roosevelt's youngest child, Quintin, is now in Roosevelt Hospital, New York, and with his sister, Alice, has been operated upon. Miss Alice had an abscess of the jaw, and the operation she underwent was successful.

The progress of the complications of the Colombian and Venezuela continues to attract the attention of the authorities here who occupy the position of disinterested observers of an affair in which the United States has no direct concern, except in pursuing the usual course of looking after the property interests of the United States citizens in that quarter.

Attorney-general Knox has rendered an opinion on the question whether a certain western daily paper has violated the law prohibiting the use of the mails for advertising lotteries and similar enterprises. The paper some time ago inaugurated a guessing contest aggregating $15,000 in value, to persons making the nearest estimates of the number of paid admissions to the Pan-American Exposition from the day of the opening to the day of closing. The attorney-general says that unless plainly forbidden by law the remedy is with congress, and not with the department.

The London Daily Graphic in an editorial on the South and Central American troubles says: "The situation is almost intolerable, and occasions a very legitimate course by the United States. The earlier the government is established on a foundation, the intervention of the United States will become inevitable. The republics of the isthmus will experience the fate of Egypt unless they mend their manners before the interoceanic canal is completed."

At the Navy Department the matter of the service of Admiral Howison on the Schley court of inquiry is considered closed so far as the department is concerned and will be left to the consideration of the court. Mr. Hackett states that he has not received the reply which it is said Amiral Schley will submit in regard to the action of the department in declining to refer the Howison interview to that officer for a statement. Captain Lemley, the judge advocate general of the navy and the judge advocate of the Schley court has returned from Canada and will at once begin the work of compiling a list of the witnesses to be summoned before the court of inquiry.

Quartermaster Joseph Matthews, of the United States Cruiser Newark, who was married Friday to Miss Eva May Salm, of Camden, shortly before undergoing an operation, died early Saturday. Matthews had recently returned from the Philippines. While bathing last Sunday he dived from the board walk into two feet of water. His head struck the sand and his spine was badly injured. Matthews was engaged to Miss Salm and on being informed that he was likely to survive the operation, he sent for his fiancee and they were married.

Walter S. Logan, attorney for the Deleware Indians, has filed with the secretary of the interior, a brief opposing the applications of the Cherokee Oil and Gas Company for leases of oil land in the Cherokee nation. Their protest is made on the ground that they are citizens of the Cherokee nation, and have such rights as Delawares. They claim that even if the Cherokee authorities had authority to grant a license to the company, it had no right to authorize operations on lands owned by the Delawares.

It is expected that the sale of the Danish West Indies will be consummated this year. Denmark has concluded that it is absolutely necessary to dispose of the islands, and a majority of the Rigsdag favor the sale, as does also the public. The only dissatisfaction is in connection with the price, $3,750,000 being considered too small. However the final approval of the Rigsdag is believed to be assured, and it is expected that legislative ratification will be given in Washington in December.

MILLIONAIRE STRONG KILLED.

Sam Strong, the millionaire mine owner, was shot and killed Thursday by Grant Crumley. The shooting took place in a saloon, owned by Crumley. Strong, with three friends, had been out all night at various gambling saloons and at Crumley's had made a winning. John Neville, Strong's father-in-law, and Crumley got into an altercation. Believing that his father-in-law was in danger, Strong drew a revolver. Crumley jumped behind the bar, grabbed a shotgun and blew a hole through Sam Strong's head. He gave himself up to the police a few minutes later, and the following day was acquitted of murder.

PICNIC SHOOTING.

In a fight at a party near Nacogdoches, Texas, August 24, Sam Scott was shot and instantly killed. Hammond Scott, his brother will die as a result of knife wounds and B. W Beard was shot in the stomach and can hardly recover. His brother was wounded in the leg and foot and Jasper McDaniel was shot in the hip and may lose his leg. The three last named were attendants on the party which was given at Beard's home and had had nothing to do with the fight. The Scotts and a neighbor, Osceol Barker, were the principals, there being an old grudge between them.

TO swim from Boston to New York is the feat that Peter S. McNally will attempt, making the start next Sunday, the entire distance to be covered within thirty days. The actual distance is 282¾ nautical miles, but the swimming course will be very little less than 400 miles.

THE longest direct communication telephone line in the world will soon be in operation, with terminal at New York City and Los Angeles. This will constitute the missing telephonic link between the two oceans.

FOR PEACE.

A St. Petersburg dispatch asserts that the czar's visit to President Loubet will result in the opening of negotiations for the settlement of the war in South Africa. The settlement will be considered in an interview with King Edward. According to the czar's plan of settlement England will get mines and heavy indemnity in return for recognition of the independence of the South African republics.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Very few heating and cook[illegible] are used in Paraguay. A[illegible] have brick stoves built in them [illegible] iron stoves have little or no use.

On 300 streets in Berlin there are 44,000 trees, valued at $[illegible]. A beautiful does not come [illegible] it is such a satisfactory [illegible]

When it is considered that [illegible] suitable for lead pencils is [illegible] most every country on [illegible] ought to be a difficult matter [illegible] the graphite industry.

A pure water supply is [illegible] upon as one of the greatest [illegible] to the healthfulness of a [illegible] Manys foods—salads for [illegible] not be cooked or subject [illegible] fects of a high temperature [illegible] the other hand, washing [illegible] fected water may render the [illegible] of conveying disease.

A few years ago Phoenix [illegible] the centre of the Salt River [illegible] a sage brush desert. It [illegible] inhabitants, with an assess[illegible] valuation of $10,000,000. A [illegible] to the introduction of water [illegible] brought in canals from the [illegible] has turned the desert into a [illegible] ley, covered with ranches [illegible] with small towns.

A French investigator [illegible] of military and naval new [illegible] quickly. He states that [illegible] 100,000 men of the military [illegible] professions are lunatics [illegible] called liberal professions are [illegible] first to succumb to the [illegible] the lawyers followed at [illegible] by doctors, clergy, literary men [illegible] servants.

The fact that most scientific [illegible] tical about color photography [illegible] prove that it is a scientific [illegible] bility. Very few scientists [illegible] a machine could be devised [illegible] reproduce the exact sounds [illegible] man voice until Edison [illegible] world with his phonograph. [illegible] we are familiar with the phonograph [illegible] marvel at its simplicity.

A specialist has declared [illegible] per cent. of the curvature of the [illegible] not caused by actual bone [illegible] developed during school life. [illegible] ulists have shown that the most [illegible] ous cases of near-sightedness [illegible] in direct proportion to the advance [illegible] school grades. The school children [illegible] not be looked after too well [illegible] health is really the basis of [illegible] life.

Investments in oil, especially [illegible] Standard, are far less fluctuating [illegible] oil paintings. If carried long [illegible] "old masters" may be worth [illegible] tunes, though the old masters themselves sold them for a song. The [illegible] authentic records of paintings by Raphael, Rubens and Van Dyck sold [illegible] from $50 to $100 apiece in the eighteenth century. To-day some of them [illegible] bring anywhere from $20,000 to [illegible] In the British National Gallery [illegible] hangs one Raphael for which the [illegible] ernment paid the Duke of Marlborough $375,000. Raphael may have [illegible] $1,000 for it. In the same collection, however, there is one of Van [illegible] masterpieces, the portrait of Charles I., for which only $40,000 was [illegible]

One of the assured facts of [illegible] medicine is that defective digestion [illegible] overcome an inherited tendency to [illegible] ability and good morals. The [illegible] goes wrong under the demands of modern life, inducing neurasthenia [illegible] ous exhaustion and a long train [illegible] There is hardly a man who is able [illegible] resisting the cry of the stomach [illegible] foods which it cannot digest [illegible] ruinous expenditure of energy [illegible] the stomach has been removed [illegible] surgeon it has been necessary to [illegible] for sustenance on food that has been artificially digested. This has [illegible] person from the ills that follow [illegible] tive digestion and has led to a [illegible] regeneration, to a more vigorous [illegible] tual state and to perfect physical [illegible] Clearly, then, the way to human improvement lies through the [illegible] of the pestilential organs of [illegible] For the perverse and criminal [illegible] not laws, but a surgical operation [illegible] tiously observes the Philadelphia [illegible]

A well known doctrine of the trade-mark law is that no one [illegible] the name of a district or [illegible] well known article of commerce [illegible] by so doing obtain an exclusive [illegible] to such application as would [illegible] others inhabiting the same district [illegible] truthfully using the same [illegible] However, where a geographical [illegible] has acquired a secondary [illegible] its use in that sense may be [illegible] by restraining the use of [illegible] by others in such a way that [illegible] amount to a fraud on the [illegible] on those to whose custom [illegible] special meaning has become [illegible] It may be granted, therefore, [illegible] manufacturer of particular goods [illegible] titled to the reputation they [illegible] quired, and the public is [illegible] to the means of distinguishing between those and other goods [illegible] tion is accorded against [illegible] whether there be a technical [illegible] or not. The essence of the [illegible] sists of the sale of the goods [illegible] manufacturer or vendor for [illegible] another.

BILL ARP'S LETTER

Bartow Man Discusses the Pros and Cons of Marriage.

MARRYING OF COUSINS A GRAVE MISTAKE

Deaf and Dumb Institute Figures Presented as Proof—Love is a God-Given "Institution."

When a young man falls in love and resolves to get married I reckon it is a good thing that he is reckless of the consequences. I was, I know, for I never thought of anything except the pretty girl and how happy I would be to get her. I had no thought of trouble or poverty or grief or war or death. The time was far, far away when the silver cord would be loosed and the golden bowl be broken. As for the girl, she is more reckless than her lover, even though her peril is far greater for hers is to be the pain and suffering, the care and anxiety, the sight watching and sometimes the broken heart. It is a mystery to me how a mother endures it all and holds up her head and keeps her strength. But she does for her offspring maternal love, [illegible] her. It is the gift of God. There was a marriage in our town the other day and as the crowds gathered at the church our neighbor, Mrs. Fel[illegible], stopped in the veranda to rest and see the battle from afar. She was, as usual, merry and sad by turns—sometimes the tears were glistening in her eyes and soon she laughed merrily and showed her pearly teeth. When the bridal carriage arrived she gave a maternal sigh and whispered, "Poor things, they little know what is ahead of them." Suddenly she branched off into a story about her little pet mule [illegible] that is now her daily comfort. "It watches me at the window," she said, "and when I go out it runs to me and lays its head on my arm and almost nestles in my bosom. Mary's lamb was not more loving. It bites and kicks at everybody else, but runs to me and [illegible] upon me with perfect adoration." She laughed again, but all at once the corners of her mouth drooped at an angle of 45 degrees and her voice trembled as she said: "But, major, I have at last come down to hard pan and misery in my old age. No cook, no help of any sort, and though yesterday was my sixty-fourth birthday, I had to pull the buggy down to the branch and wash it. Oh, my country!" She cried a little and then laughed a good deal more. Pearly tears and pearly teeth are attractive features in a woman. Nevertheless, between petting mule colts and washing buggies she still finds time to plead for the elevation of the poor country girls of North Georgia.

But what kind of a girl should a young man marry? Of course, she must be born of respectable parents; she should be virtuous; she should have a good, loving disposition and a fair education. She should be healthy and have no taint of her lover's ancestral blood in her veins. All of these qualifications have been discussed and treated over and over again, except the last. I am inspired to say something about that because its importance has long been overlooked—neither poets nor philosophers nor scientists have written upon it nor given any warning. A letter recently received from a young man in Mississippi asks if there is anything wrong in a man marrying his cousin. Yes, very, very wrong. The answer is found in the records of the asylums for the deaf and dumb and blind. Their chief patronage comes from the intermarriage of cousins. These institutions cost our state about $75,000 a year, and half of the expense could be avoided if the intermarriage of cousins was prohibited. I have not the reports of the blind asylum before me, but I know of three blind children of one family who were sent there, and they were the offsprings of parents who were cousins. I know of five children of a family who were sent to our deaf and dumb institute at Cave Spring. Their parents were double cousins. They had but one child who could hear and speak. She was a good-looking country girl. She married a clever young man who hauled wood for me. Soon after his marriage he moved to Texas and hired to a cattle man, and was so faithful in his service that in a few years he bought an interest in the ranch and prospered. I met him in Waco sixteen years after he left Georgia, and he was said to be worth [illegible], and his two elder daughters were at a boarding school at Waco, 12 miles from his home. He had six children, and, alas, one of them was mute. The taint had cropped out in the second generation.

Professor Connor, the faithful and long tried principal of our deaf and dumb institution, has tabulated the percentage of his pupils for many years, and reports that in 26 families [illegible] 45 mutes the parents were first cousins. In 12 families producing 19 mutes the parents were second cousins. In 11 families producing 15 mutes the parents were third cousins. Altogether there were 97 mute children of parents closely related.

Of the 400 deaf mutes 103 had deaf parents, and many of these deaf people are no doubt the offspring of the intermarriage of cousins.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Very few heating and cooking stoves are used in Paraguay. All the houses have brick stoves built in them, so iron stoves have little or no sale.

On 300 streets in Berlin there are 44,000 trees, valued at $100,000. A city so beautiful does not come too high, as it is such a satisfactory city to live in.

When it is considered that graphite is suitable for lead pencils it is found in almost every country on the globe, it ought to be a difficult matter to corner the graphite industry.

A pure water supply is rightly looked upon as one of the greatest essentials to the healthfulness of a community. Moses finally made the unique claim that the water of life was free. In the tropics, where temperature is high, the water problem is far more than a matter of health. It is a matter of life and death. In our town the crowds gathered at the house of our neighbor, Mrs. Felix Grundy Ferguson, to rest on her veranda and to listen to her talk afar. She was, by turns—and all by turns—her eyes were glistening in tears, she laughed merrily showing her pearly teeth. When she arrived she gave a sigh and whispered: "Poor woman! what is ahead of her!" Then she branched off into her little pet mule story for daily comfort. "It seems that a mule has to be daily comfort. "It goes me a-to the window," she said, "and when I come it runs to me and put its head on my arm and almost climbs in my bosom. Mary's lamb follows her everywhere but runs to me and butts me with perfect adoration. She laughed again, but all at once the corners of her mouth drooped to an angle of 45 degrees and her voice trembled as she said: "But, major, I have at last come down to hard pan and touch a raw old age. No cook, no help of any sort, and though yesterday was my sixty fourth birthday, I had to pull the buggy down to the branch and wash it. Oh, my country!" She cried a little and then laughed a good deal, maybe. Pearly tears and pearly teeth are attractive features in a woman. Nevertheless, between petting mule colts and washing buggies she still finds time to plead for the amelioration of the poor country girls of north Georgia.

But what kind of a girl should a young man marry? Of course, she must be born of respectable parents; she should be virtuous; she should have a good loving disposition and a fair education. She should be healthy and have no taint of her lover's ancestral blood in her veins. All of these qualifications have been discussed and treated over and over again, except the last. I am inspired to say something about that because its importance has long been overlooked—neither poets nor philosophers nor scientists have written upon it nor given any warning. A letter recently received from a young man in Mississippi asks if there is anything wrong in a man marrying his cousin. Yes; very, very wrong. The answer is found in the reports of the asylums for the deaf and dumb and blind. Their chief patronage comes from the intermarriage of cousins. These institutions cost our state about $75,000 a year, and half of the expense could be avoided if the intermarriage of cousins was prohibited. I have not the reports of the blind asylum before me, but I know of three blind children of one family who were sent there, and they were the offsprings of parents who were cousins. I know of five children of the family who were sent to our deaf and dumb institution at Cave Spring. Their parents were double cousins. The father had but one child who could hear and speak. This was a good-looking country girl. She married a clever young man who hauled wood for me. Soon afterwards he moved to Texas and became a castle man, and was so far as I know a service that was a few years ago. I got an interest in the ranch and prospered. I met him in Waco a few years after he left Georgia, and he was said to be worth $50,000, and his two older daughters were at a boarding school at Waco. 12 miles from home. He had six children, and yet one of them was mute. The other had dropped out in the second generation. Professor Crouch, the faithful and tried principal of our deaf and dumb institution has tabulated the marriage of his pupils for many years, and reports that in 26 families where 45 marriages the parents were cousins. In 15 families producing 39 mutes the parents were second cousins. In 11 families producing 15 mutes the parents were third cousins. Altogether there were 97 mute children of parents closely related. Of the deaf mutes 193 had deaf parents, and many of these deaf parents are no doubt the offspring of the intermarriage of cousins.

BILL ARP'S LETTER

A Grandfather Man Discusses the Pros and Cons of Marriage.

THE MARRYING OF COUSINS A GRAVE MISTAKE

Blind and Dumb Institute Figures Presented as Proof—Love Is a God-Given "Institution."

When a young man falls in love and proposes to get married I reckon it is a good thing that he is as reckless of the consequences as I was I know, for I thought of anything except the happy I would be. I had no thought of trouble or sickness or war or death. The future was far away when the wedding was consummated and the honeymoon began. As for the sickness than her love for her peril is far less than the pain and care and anxiety—the sometimes the bronchitis. It is a mystery to me how love grows and holds up under the strength. But it does. It is a maternal love, the gift of God. Years ago in our town the crowds gathered at the neighbor, Mrs. Felix Grundy Ferguson's veranda to rest and talk afar. She was, by turns—and all by turns—her eyes were glistening in tears, she laughed merrily showing her pearly teeth. When she arrived she gave a sigh and whispered: "Poor woman! what is ahead of her!" Then she branched off into her little pet mule story for daily comfort. "It seems that a mule has to be daily comfort. "It goes me a-to the window," she said, "and when I come it runs to me and put its head on my arm and almost climbs in my bosom. Mary's lamb follows her everywhere but runs to me and butts me with perfect adoration. She laughed again, but all at once the corners of her mouth drooped to an angle of 45 degrees and her voice trembled as she said: "But, major, I have at last come down to hard pan and touch a raw old age. No cook, no help of any sort, and though yesterday was my sixty fourth birthday, I had to pull the buggy down to the branch and wash it. Oh, my country!" She cried a little and then laughed a good deal, maybe. Pearly tears and pearly teeth are attractive features in a woman. Nevertheless, between petting mule colts and washing buggies she still finds time to plead for the amelioration of the poor country girls of north Georgia.

But what kind of a girl should a young man marry? Of course, she must be born of respectable parents; she should be virtuous; she should have a good loving disposition and a fair education. She should be healthy and have no taint of her lover's ancestral blood in her veins. All of these qualifications have been discussed and treated over and over again, except the last. I am inspired to say something about that because its importance has long been overlooked—neither poets nor philosophers nor scientists have written upon it nor given any warning. A letter recently received from a young man in Mississippi asks if there is anything wrong in a man marrying his cousin. Yes; very, very wrong. The answer is found in the reports of the asylums for the deaf and dumb and blind. Their chief patronage comes from the intermarriage of cousins. These institutions cost our state about $75,000 a year, and half of the expense could be avoided if the intermarriage of cousins was prohibited. I have not the reports of the blind asylum before me, but I know of three blind children of one family who were sent there, and they were the offsprings of parents who were cousins. I know of five children of the family who were sent to our deaf and dumb institution at Cave Spring. Their parents were double cousins. The father had but one child who could hear and speak. This was a good-looking country girl. She married a clever young man who hauled wood for me. Soon afterwards he moved to Texas and became a castle man, and was so far as I know a service that was a few years ago. I got an interest in the ranch and prospered. I met him in Waco a few years after he left Georgia, and he was said to be worth $50,000, and his two older daughters were at a boarding school at Waco, 12 miles from home. He had six children, and yet one of them was mute. The other had dropped out in the second generation. Professor Crouch, the faithful and tried principal of our deaf and dumb institution has tabulated the marriage of his pupils for many years, and reports that in 26 families where 45 marriages the parents were cousins. In 15 families producing 39 mutes the parents were second cousins. In 11 families producing 15 mutes the parents were third cousins. Altogether there were 97 mute children of parents closely related. Of the deaf mutes 193 had deaf parents, and many of these deaf parents are no doubt the offspring of the intermarriage of cousins.

Among these 400 pupils 89 marriages have occurred and there have been born to them 110 children, 89 of whom can hear and 21 are mutes. In 19 of the marriages there were no children born. Now, after one, two or three mutes have been born in succession to parents, it would seem a sin, if not a crime, for them to have more. The law should prohibit it. But if this cannot be done after marriage, the remedy for the future is to prohibit the intermarriage of cousins—yes, and second cousins. To be born deaf or blind is a sin against the child, and to have it supported by the state is a drain upon the treasury that might be avoided.

But being deaf or blind is not all the evil that follows these incestuous marriages. If the children are not deaf or blind they are generally under some physical disability. They are consumptives or epileptics or idiotic, and pass through life and leave no sign. Fortunately most of such marriages result in no progeny.

"Oh, well," some say, "the Levitica. law did not prohibit it." No, it did not, and I reckon that Cain married his sister. We know that Abraham married his half sister, and no doubt that is why no children were born to them except one by grace in their old age.

But it is said that the Roman laws and the laws of England permit such marriages. Yes, the Roman law did until Pope Alexander II stopped it and prohibited first, second and third cousins from intermarrying. The laws of England permitted such marriages because the kings and the nobility wanted to keep the crown and the titles and their estates in their families. And so our American people, who have patterned after English law and precedent for more than a hundred years, have been reluctant to make any change in this regard.

But the question is now coming to the front, and the time is coming for a change. It seems now to be an established and universal rule that these marriages entail upon the offspring evil consequences, bodily or mentally, or both. The evil effect of what is called 'breeding in" among animals leads to the conclusion that it is an universal law. Good stock, blooded stock, is not perpetuated in that way. Heard a conceited man declare that he was descended from the Carrolls, of Carrollton, in old Maryland. Suppose he did. That was six generations back and would give him sixty-four ancestral fathers and mothers, and hence he had only one sixty-fourth part of old Charles Carroll's blood in his veins. I know a lady who boasts that her father could trace his lineage back to Cromwell. That was eighteen generations back, and would give him 512,000 ancestors—not much of Cromwell's blood in her. It is astonishing how rapidly the ancestral tree widens. Two generations back gives a man only four great-grandfathers and grandmothers, but twenty generations gives him over a million. Just think of it, young man, and quit bragging about your ancestors, for there are over a million different strains of blood in your veins, and no doubt some of it is bad—very bad. My wife's grandfather was a Holt and his grandfather was a Randolph, and his grandfather was a Peyton and his was Lord Rolfe, who married Pocahontas. That was ten generations back, and gives my wife 1,024 ancestors, and therefore she has 1,1,024th part of Poky's blood in her veins. Mighty slim strain, it seems to me—not much Injun about her. One day I ventured to ask her about the other 1,023 parts that did not come from Poky and she never said anything, but looked at me in a peculiar tone of voice that reminded me it was none of my business. But I honor a noble ancestry. I used to think that maybe I descended from Captain John Smith, but on investigation found that he was never married and had no children to speak of.—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

The whole island of New York was originally bought of the Indians for an equivalent of about $25. Today New York has a population of about 3,500,000, which is exceeded by only one other city—London. Its wealth is enormous; its annual expenditures are more than twice those of the Republic of Mexico, and almost one-third as much as those of the German Empire with its population of 52,000,000. And it has become the financial centre of the world, states the Ladies' Home Journal.

M. De Bloch, the peace apostle and friend of the czar of Russia, says that the Boer War has shown what undisciplined troops can do with modern weapons, against superior forces, and, he believes, the reduction of the terms of military service in Europe is imminent. Even at The Hague conference, M. De Bloch remarked in a recent speech at Vienna, the Italian military delegate stated that Italy would no longer be able o keep pace with the new armaments in prospect. That statement was stricken from the official minutes, and was never published. But it is well known that Italy can no longer bear the financial burdens imposed on her by the triple alliance, and public opinion is clamoring to bring about a dissolution of that oppressive arrangement.

MESSONNIER'S CUTE GARDENER.

How He Planted Fish Eggs and Grew Rer Herring.

A good story is being told about a gardener who was for many years in the service of Meissonier.

This gardener was not only wonderfully skilled in the art of cultivating flowers and vegetables, but he also was a true scientist, and as he was able to give offhand the botanical name of any plant that was shown to him, some of his employer's friends frequently tried to baffle him by handing him seeds or cuttings of exotic or other out-of-the-way plants, but they never succeeded.

Now Meissonier was proud of him, but he vowed that he would, once at least, bewilder him, and one day, while Emile Augier was dining with him, he summoned the gardener, and taking from his pocket a small paper package, in which he had previously placed some eggs of dried herring, he said to him: "Here are some curious seeds. Can you tell what they are?"

"Of course I can, sir," replied the gardener, and after examining them for a moment or two he gave them a most impressive Latin name.

"If you sow them now," asked the painter, "how long will it take for them to appear above ground?"

"A fortnight," was the reply.

"Well," said Meissonier, "I wish you would sow them at once, for I am curious to see what kind of plant it is."

A fortnight later Emile Augier, desiring to see the end of this joke, came to breakfast at the painter's villa, and as he and his host were at table the gardener presented himself and said: "If you gentlemen will oblige me by stepping into the garden I will show you the plants that those curious seeds have produced."

The two friends followed him to the conservatory, where he pointed out to them twelve odd-looking objects in a box filled with freshly watered brown earth. They stooped to examine them more closely, and the next moment they burst into shouts of laughter, for the strange objects were the heads of twelve red herrings.

Palatable Nutriment.

A strengthening liquid which an invalid soon learns to dread, but which is the oftenest prescribed by the physician, is a raw beaten egg mixed with milk or wine. Only those who have had this included in the daily diet for a time can realize how quickly it becomes distasteful, and numerous devices must be resorted to to make the raw egg palatable. For a change from the milk and wine prepare a cup of hot coffee, with cream and sugar, or as it is best liked by the invalid. Have an egg previously beaten very light, and gradually stir it into the prepared coffee, standing the cup holding the coffee in a pan of boiling water to keep it very hot. This makes a pleasant change, as it is very palatable as well as strengthening, and if beaten until thoroughly light and stirred quickly into the hot coffee the taste of the egg will not be noticeable; in fact, it will have much the effect of rich whipped cream added to the coffee.

A New Kind of Plant.

An entirely new kind of plant has been produced this summer by a man living in the suburbs of Chicago by means of a cross between the Scotch thistle and the ordinary greenhouse carnation. The flower is called the Centura, and is purple and white. The stalk is smooth, like that of the carnation, although stronger, and the leaf is similar to that of the thistle but softer to the touch. The blossom, too, resembles the thistle, but is larger and more delicate and ornate. The plant blooms profusely and can be grown out of doors in all but the most severe weather. The plants in this man's gardens have now attained a height of two feet, and the only point in which they are inferior to either the parent plants is in lack of perfume. The fragrance is faint, and slightly like that of the thistle.

New Smokeless Powder.

The United States Ordinance Board has been carrying on a series of experiments to determine the part which nitroglycerine plays in the corrosion produced in guns fired with smokeless powder, and to discover if possible a desirable smokeless powder with a small proportion of nitroglycerine as an ingredient. It is reported that the authorities have succeeded in producing a smokeless powder for the army that contains only twenty-five per cent. of nitroglycerine, and an explosive for the navy that does not contain any. Cordite, it is known, contains fifty-eight per cent. of this glycerine. A four-inch gun fired with the new powder 636 times and a four-inch gun fired 661 times, failed to show any appreciative corrosion when tested with a fine micrometer.

To Walk Gracefully.

In order to preserve a graceful figure, good walking and a correct balance are essential. Very few people know how to walk gracefully. The shoulders should be thrown back, the spine should be straightened and the back, just below the waist line, curved inward. The leg should swing freely from the hip-joint, and the weight of the body should be thrown upon the balls of the feet, not upon the heels. Correct walking means a light, elastic, springy step and a corresponding sense of freedom of action. If you walk correctly you will not get tired easily, and the exercise will be beneficial to the whole frame, bringing the muscles into vigorous action and aiding the proper circulation of the blood.

Germany has now 19,000,000 more inhabitants than France, 15,000,000 more than Austria-Hungary, 22,000,000 more than Italy.

The experiment of tobacco-growing in Ireland is now meeting with success.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Woman's Sphere—She Should Rule as a Queen in the Home—Its Value as a Field of Usefulness—The Mother's Influence on the Nation's Life

(Copyright 1901.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage extols home as a field of usefulness and especially encourages wives and mothers; text, Genesis i. 27, "Male and female created He them."

In other words, God, who can make no mistake, made man and woman for a specific work and to move in particular spheres, man to be regnant in his realm, woman to be dominant in hers. The boundary line between Italy and Switzerland, between England and Scotland, is not more thoroughly marked than this distinction between the empire masculine and the empire feminine. So entirely dissimilar are the fields to which God called them that you no more compare them than you can oxygen and hydrogen, water and grass, trees and stars. All this talk about the superiority of one sex to the other sex is an everlasting waste of ink and speech. A jeweler may have a scale so delicate that he can weigh the dust of diamonds, but where are the scales so delicate that you can weigh in them affection against affection, sentiment against sentiment, thought against thought, soul against soul, a man's word against a woman's word?

You come out with the stereotyped remark that man is superior to woman in intellect, and then I open on my desk the swarthy, iron typed, thunder-bolted writings of Harriet Martineau and Elizabeth Browning and George Eliot. You come on with your stereotyped remark about woman's superiority to man in the item of affection, but I ask you where was there more capacity to love than in John, the disciple, and Robert McCheyne, the Scotchman, and John Summerfield, the Methodist, and Henry Martyn, the missionary? The heart of those men was so large that after you had rolled into it the hemispheres there was room still left to marshal the hosts of heaven and set up the throne intellectual. I deny to woman the throne affectional. No human phraseology will ever define the spheres, while there is an intuition by which we know when a man is in his realm and when a woman is in her realm, and when either of them is out of it. No bungling legislation ought to attempt to make a definition or to say, "This is the line and that is the line."

My theory is that if woman wants to vote she ought to vote, and that if a man wants to embroider and keep house he ought to be allowed to embroider and keep house. There are masculine women and there are effeminate men. My theory is that you have no right to interfere with any one's doing anything that is righteous. Albany and Washington might as well decree by legislation how high a brown thrasher should fly or how deep a trout should plunge as to try to seek out the height or the depth of woman's duty. The question of capacity will settle finally the whole question, the whole subject. When a woman is prepared to preach she will preach, and neither conference nor presbytery can hinder her. When a woman is prepared to move in highest commercial spheres, she will have great influence on the exchange, and no boards of trade can hinder her. I want woman to understand that heart and brain can overflow any barrier that politicians may set up, and that nothing can keep her back or keep her down but the question of capacity.

I know there are women of most undesirable nature who wander up and down the country, having no homes of their own or forsaking their own homes, talking about their rights, and we know very well that they themselves are fit neither to vote nor fit to keep house. Their mission seems to be to humiliate the two sexes at the thought of what any one of us might become. No one would want to live under the laws that such women would enact or to have cast upon society the children that such women would raise. But I will show you that the best rights that woman can own she already has in her possession, that her position in this country at this time is not one of commiseration, but one of congratulation; that the grandeur and power of her realm have never yet been appreciated, that she sits to-day on a throne so high that all the thrones of earth piled on top of each other would not make her a footstool. Here is the platform on which she stands. Away down below it are the ballot box and the Congressional assemblage and the legislative hall.

Woman always has voted and always will vote. Our great-grandfathers thought they were by their votes putting Washington into the Presidential chair. No. His mother, by the principles she taught him and by the habits she inculcated, made him President. It was a Christian mother's hand dropping the ballot when Lord Bacon wrote, and Newton philosophized, and Alfred the Great governed, and Jonathan Edwards thundered of judgment to come. How many men there have been in high political station who would have been insufficient to stand the test to which their moral principle was put had it not been for a wife's voice that encouraged them to do right and a wife's prayer that sounded louder than the clamor of partisanship! Why, my friends, the right of suffrage as we men exercise it seems to be a feeble thing. You, a Christian man, come up to the ballot box, and you drop your vote. Right after you comes a libertine or a sot, the offscouring of the street, and he drops his vote, and his vote counteracts yours. But if in the quiet of home life a daughter by her Christian demeanor, a wife by her industry, a mother by her faithfulness, casts a vote in the right direction then nothing can resist it, and the influence of that vote will throb through the eternities.

My chief anxiety, then, is not that woman have other rights accorded her, but that she by the grace of God rise up to the appreciation of the glorious rights she already possesses. I shall only have time to speak of one grand and all absorbing right that every woman has, and that is to make home happy. That realm no one has ever disputed with her. Men may come home at noon or at night, and they tarry a comparatively little while, but she all day long governs it, beautifies it, sanctifies it. It is within her power to make it the most attractive place on earth. It is the only calm harbor in this world. You know as well as I do that this outside world and the business world is a long scene of jostle and contention. The man who has a dollar struggles to keep it; the man who has it not struggles to get it. Prices up. Prices down. Losses. Gains. Misrepresentations. Gougings. Underselling. Buyers depreciating; salesmen exaggerating. Tenants seeking less rent; landlords demanding more. Gold fidgety. Struggles about office. Men who are in trying to keep in; men out trying to get in. Slips, tumbles. Defalcations. Panics. Catastrophes. O woman, thank God you have a home and that you may be queen in it!

Better be there than wear a queen's coronet. Better be there than carry the purse of a princess. Your abode may be humble, but you can by your faith in God and your cheerfulness of demeanor gild it with splendors such as an upholsterer's hand never yet kindled.

There are abodes in the city—humble, two stories, four plain unpapered rooms, undesirable neighborhood—and yet there is a man here to-day who would die on the threshold rather than surrender it. Why? It is home. Whenever he thinks of it he sees angels of God hovering around it. The ladders of heaven are let down to this house. Over the child's rough crib there are the chantings of angels, as those that sounded over Bethlehem. It is home.

These children may come up after awhile, and they may win high position, and they may have an affluent residence, but they will not until their dying day forget that humble roof under which their father rested and their mother sang and their sisters played.

Oh, if you would gather up all tender memories, all the lights and shades of the heart, all banqueetings and reunions, all filial, fraternal, paternal and conjugal affections, and you had only just four letters to spell out that height and depth and length and breadth and magnitude and eternity of meaning, you would, with streaming eyes and trembling voice and agitated hand, write the out in those four living capitals, H-O-M-E!

What right does woman want that is grander than to be queen in such a realm? Why, the eagles of heaven cannot fly across that dominion. Horses, panting and with lathered flanks, are not swift enough to run to the outpost of that realm. They say that the sun never sets on the British empire, but I have to tell you that on this realm of woman's influence eternity never marks any bound.

Isabella fled from the Spanish throne, pursued by the nation's anathema, but she who is queen in a home will never lose her throne, and death itself will only be the annexation of heavenly principalities.

When you want to get your grandest idea of a queen, you do not think of Catherine of Russia or of Anne of England or Maria Theresa of Austria, but when you want to get your grandest idea of a queen you think of the plain woman who sat opposite your father at the table or walked with him arm in arm down life's pathway, sometimes to the thanksgiving banquet, sometimes to the grave, but always together, soothing your petty griefs, correcting your childish waywardness, joining in your infantile sports, listening to your evening prayers, toiling for you with needle or at the spinning wheel and on cold nights wrapping you up snug and warm. And then at last on that day when she lay in the back room dying and you saw her take those thin hands with which she toiled for you so long and put them together in a dying prayer that commended you to God whom she had taught you to trust—oh, she was the queen! The chariots of God came down to fetch her, and as she went in all heaven rose up. You cannot think of her now without a rush of tenderness that stirs the deep foundations of your soul, and you feel as much a child again as when you cried on her lap, and if you could bring her back again to speak just once more your name as tenderly as she used to speak it you would be willing to throw yourself on the ground and kiss the sod that covers her, crying, "Mother, mother!" Ah, she was the queen, she was the queen!

Now, can you tell me how many thousand miles a woman like that would have to travel down before she got to the ballot box? Compared with this work of training kings and queens for God and eternity, how insignificant seems all this work of voting for aldermen and common councilmen and sheriffs and constables and mayors and presidents! To make one such grand woman as I have described how many thousand would you want of those people who go in the round of godlessness and fashion and dissipation, distorting their bodies and going as far toward disgraceful apparel as they dare go so as not to be arrested of the police, their behavior a sorrow to the good and a caricature of the vicious and an insult to that God who made them women and not gorgons, and tramping on down through a frivolous and dissipated life to temporal and eternal destruction?

O woman, with the lightning of your soul strike dead at your feet all these allurements to dissipation and to fashion! Your immortal soul cannot be fed upon such garbage. God calls you up to empire and dominion. Will you have it? Oh, give to God your heart, give to God your best energies, give to God all your culture, give to God all your refinement, give yourself to Him for this world and the next!

Soon all these bright eyes will be quenched and these voices will be hushed. For the last time you will look upon this fair earth. Father's hand, mother's hand, sister's hand, child's hand, will be no more in yours. It will be night, and there will come up a cold wind from the Jordan, and you must start. Will it be a lone woman on a trackless moor? Ah, no! Jesus will come up in that hour and offer His hand, and He will say, "You stood by Me when you were well, now I will not desert you when you are sick." One wave of His hand and the storm will drop; another wave of His hand, and midnight shall break into midnoon, and another wave of His hand and the chamberlains of God will come down from the treasure houses of heaven with robes lustrous, blood washed and heaven glinted, in which you will array yourself for the marriage supper of the Lamb. And then with Miriam, who struck the timbrel by the Red Sea, and with Deborah, who led the Lord's host into the fight, and with Hannah, who gave her Samuel to the Lord, and with Mary, who rocked Jesus to sleep while there were angels singing in the air, and with Florence Nightingale, who bound up the battle wounds of the Crimea, you will from the chalice of God drink to the soul's eternal rescue.

One twilight after I had been playing with the children for some time I lay down on the lounge to rest, and, half asleep and half awake, I seemed to dream this dream: It seemed to me that I was in a far distant land—not Persia, although more Oriental luxuriance crowned the cities; nor the tropics, although more than tropical fruitfulness filled the gardens; nor Italy, although more than Italian softness filled the air. And I wandered around, looking for thorns and nettles, but I found none of them grew there. And I walked forth and I saw the sun rise, and I said, "When will it set again?" And the sun sank not. And I saw all the people in holiday apparel, and I said, "When will they put on workingman's garb again and delve in the mine and swelter at the forge?" But neither the garments nor the robes did they put off. And I wandered in the suburbs and I said, "Where do they bury the dead of this great city?" And I looked along by the hills where it would be most beautiful for the dead to sleep, and I saw castles and towers and battlements, but not a mausoleum nor monument nor white slab could I see. And I went into the great chapel of the town and I said: "Where do the poor worship? Where are the benches on which they sit?" And a voice answered, "We have no poor in this great city." And I wandered out, seeking to find the place where were the hovels of the destitute, and I found mansions of amber and ivory and gold, but no tear did I see or sigh hear.

I was bewildered, and I sat under the shadow of a great tree, and I said, "What am I and whence comes all this?" And at that moment there came from among the leaves, skipping up the flowery paths and across the sparkling waters, a very bright and sparkling group, and when I saw their step I knew it, and when I heard their voices I thought I knew them, but their apparel was so different from anything I had ever seen I bowed, a stranger to strangers. But after awhile, when they clapped hands and shouted, "Welcome, welcome!" the mystery was solved, and I saw that time had passed and that eternity had come and that God had gathered us up into a higher home, and I said, "Are all here?" And the voices of innumerable generations answered, "All here." And while tears of gladness were raining down our cheeks and the branches of the Lebanon cedars were clapping their hands and the towers of the great city were chiming their welcome we began to laugh and sing and leap and shout, "Home, home, home!"

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR SEPTEMBER 1.

Subject: Isaac the Peacemaker, Gen. xxvi., 12-22—Golden Text, Matt. v., 9—Memory Verses, 21, 22—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

Connecting Links. Soon after the events of our last lesson Sarah died at Hebron, and Abraham purchased the cave of Machpelah for a burying-place for his wife. When Isaac was forty years old Abraham sent his servant to Mesopotamia, called Abraham's country (24: 4) because it was the place where the family of Haran, his brother, had settled, and where Abraham's father was buried. The servant succeeded in his undertaking and Rebekah was brought back to Canaan and became Isaac's wife. When Isaac was sixty years old Jacob and Esau were born. In B. C. 1821 occurred the death of Abraham. He had lived to the good old age of 175. He was "quiet and restful in his later years, growing in faith and piety, and guiding with his counsels and his example his son and his grandsons, Jacob and Esau, with whom he lived until they were fifteen years old, showing them acts of kindness and love." Abraham was buried in the cave of Machpelah with his beloved wife Sarah. At present this cave is covered by a Mohammedan mosque, which is sacredly guarded against the intrusion of travelers. When Jacob and Esau were thirty-one years old Esau, the elder, sold his birthright to Jacob for a mess of pottage. Gen. 25: 27-34. We read that he "despised his birthright." About a year after Esau had sold his birthright there was a famine in the land, and Isaac went to dwell in Gerar, which was the chief city of the Philistines. He seems to have been making preparations to go to Egypt, where his father had gone during the first famine, more than a hundred years before this; but the Lord appeared unto him and told him not to go down into Egypt, but to dwell in Canaan. At this time the covenant made with his father, Abraham, was renewed. Gen. 26: 3-5. It seems strange that when Isaac went to dwell at Gerar he should fall into the same snare that Abraham had fallen into in the very same place, but such was the case, for when they asked him concerning his wife, Isaac said, "She is my sister," for he feared they would kill him for his wife. This was untrue, for Rebekah was only his cousin.

12. "Isaac." Isaac was a man of faith, but in many respects a great contrast to his father. He was patient, but not enterprising and powerful. He was devout and submissive, but not active in organizing in God's service. His life was uneventful, almost monotonous. He was not physically robust, and seems to have come into a condition of bodily prostration, for he must have spent forty or fifty years in blindness and incapacity for all active work. "In the same year." While there was a famine in the land, when others scarcely reaped at all, he reaped thus plentifully. See Isa. 65: 13. "Hundredfold." Probably meaning a very great increase.

13. "Went forward." Hebrew, "going," that is, became increasingly greater. The Hebrew term for walk is frequently used in the sense of continued increase. See R. V. He grew more and more until he became very great.

14. "Envied him." Here we see how vanity attaches to every earthly good; prosperity begets envy, and from envy proceeds injury. Envy is the constant companion of prosperity.

15. "For all the wells," etc. In those countries a good well of water was a possession of immense value, and hence in their wars it was an object for either party to fill the wells in order to distress the enemy. Envy considers that which is lost to another as gain to itself.

16. "Go from us." Isaac does not insist upon the bargain he had made with them for the lands he held, nor upon his occupying nor improving of them, nor does he offer to contest with them by force, but peaceably departs. We should deny ourselves rather than quarrel.

17. "Valley of Gerar." The country around Gerar.

18. "Digged again the wells," etc. It is our duty to keep up the memorials of the great and good. The Philistines had filled the wells Abraham had dug, and Isaac resolves to open them again. Many of our enjoyments, both civil and religious, are the sweeter for being the fruits of the labor of our fathers, and if they have been corrupted by adversaries since their day, we must restore them to their former purity.

19. "Well of springing water." "Well of living waters." This is its meaning both in the Old and New Testaments. See John 4: 10-14; 7: 38; Rev. 21: 6; 22: 1. An unfailing spring was an emblem of the graces and influences of the Spirit of God.

20. "Did strive." Those that avoid striving, yet can not avoid being striven with. Psa. 120: 7. In this sense Jeremiah was a man of contention (Jer. 15: 10), and also Christ Himself, though He is the Prince of peace.

21. "Digged another well." "Never did any man more implicitly follow the divine command, 'Resist not evil,' than did Isaac;" whenever he found that his work was likely to be a subject of strife and contention, he always chose to suffer wrong than do wrong. He overcame evil with good.

22. "Removed from thence." We are told that he met the envy with patience and removed from well to well. At last the Philistines desisted. Endurance, meekness, the gospel spirit, are the only true weapons to use against the world. Isaac, like Christ, conquered by meekness. Abraham was the man of faith, Isaac the man of endurance, and Jacob was the man of prayer.

23. "Went up—to Beer-sheba." Isaac had trouble while among the Philistines. "To enjoy God's presence we must be where He is, and He certainly is not to be found amid the strife and contention of an ungodly world; and hence, the sooner the child of God gets away from all such the better; so Isaac found it."

24. "The Lord appeared." "The angel of the covenant—the Messiah. "The same night." "He needed special encouragement when insulted and outraged by the Philistines, and God immediately appears to comfort and support him in his trials by a renewal of all His promises." "The God of Abraham." "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living." Matt. 22: 32. Therefore Isaac is assured that his father has not perished by death, but that he is still alive. "With thee." Isaac was encouraged not merely by the Lord's blessing, but by the Lord Himself.

25. "Builded an altar." "Isaac first built an altar and then digged a well. Every dwelling-place of the godly should be a sanctuary. Here at last he had real enjoyment. He had an undisputed well which the Philistines could not fill up, because they were not there.

The hope is held out that we may yet be able to dispense with elaborate cooking. Several chemists are said to be at work on the problem of compressed food, and they expect to compass "in the capacity of a small vial" elements which will sustain life for days. One enthusiast predicts that science will yet be able to extract the life force that is in the heart of the corn, the kernel of the wheat and the luscious juices of the fruits.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain,
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly . . . $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

The Constitutional Convention is waiting on the printer. Probably a good many printers are waiting on the delegates, so, after all, it is only turn and turn about.

The first bale of cotton this season was brought into Clanton on Monday by Mr. Jim Edwards of Swift Creek, and was bought by E. M. Pinckard & Co. for 9 cents per pound. The bale weighed 492 pounds. As compared with last year this was two days ahead, the first bale last year having been marketed on August 28, and brought 9¼ cents per pound.

Quite a number of enquiries are reaching us anent the new constitution. At present all we can say is, wait! The Convention met again yesterday, and it will be probably not many days before the new Constitution will be presented to us in its entirity, and we can then discuss its merits and demerits, and decide whether it is any improvement upon the old Constitution or not. The old Constitution has answered very well, but if the new one is better adapted to modern requirements, let us cheerfully accept it, even if it is not all that could be wished. But we again say, wait? Let us not decide rashly; when we know definitely what the new organic law is we shall be in a position to form a just opinion upon it.

There is a serious problem confronting the merchants of Clanton, and more particularly the cotton buyers—how is cotton to be shipped under existing arrangements? The recent fire not only destroyed the depot, but the platform, with the exception of a few planks at the south end, went also. Cotton is now coming in, and it is only a matter of a week or two when it will be coming on the market in quantities. What is to be done with seventy-five or a hundred bales a day, and no facilities for shipping it? The L. & N. is usually very prompt in responding to the demands of its patrons, and this is a case where, we believe, it is only necessary for their attention to be called to have it at once rectified. The depot building we can manage to wait a little while for, but we hope to see the platform built without delay.

St Clair county has a sheriff who is determined to do his duty at all hazards. The law is all-powerful, and the prisoner has as much right to its protection as the most innocent man alive. When by due legal process a prisoner has been convicted, in due course the law will be carried out and the sentence fulfilled. The prisoner may deserve instant death, but in the best interests of the human race it is better to go slowly and deliberately to the prisoner's execution than to take summary vengeance upon him. The lamentable affair at Asnville, Ala., is greatly to be deplored. One white man killed and two more wounded, while the Sheriff defended his negro prisoner, is a terrible story. The negro had been tried, convicted and sentenced with unusual celerity and would in a short time expiate his crime upon the scaffold. This time was too long, however, for some rash men, who wanted instant vengeance. While we regret the fatalities, it is due to the Sheriff of St. Clair county to say he only did his duty. The law must be omnipotent or anarchy will prevail.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

The Convention re-convened on Wednesday and 115 delegates responded to roll call. The chairman of the Committee on Harmony said the report of the committee had been in his hands several days but the printers were not quite ready to distribute the copies. A resolution was offered providing for the appointment of a committee to prepare an address to the people of the State setting forth the advantages of the new constitution. It was referred to the committee on rules, and convention adjourned to 3:30 p.m.

Another fine piece of Clanton real estate is on the market. The four lots upon which the Congregational church stands are to be sold at public auction on September 30. This property is centrally located and would make ideal lots for residences at the present time, although it will not be a great while before that part of town will be needed for business houses.

It is doubtful if throughout the broad State of Alabama two more prosperous, go ahead towns can be found than the sister cities of Clanton and Thorsby. Both places are as busy as can be erecting new buildings in all directions—substantial buildings at that. There is nothing "shoddy" in Clanton or Thorsby.

Shocking Death of Oscar Gentry.

Oscar Gentry, a son of our ex-tax collector, B. M. Gentry, was shot and killed by a white man named Dan Connell, last Friday, at Patterson's mill, about ten miles south of Centreville, the shooting taking place in Perry county. It seems that several citizens had met at the mills for the purpose of enjoying a fish fry. During the day two of the party engaged in a fisticuff fight and in the effort to separate them, Daniel Connell and Oscar Gentry, became involved, resulting in their cutting each other seriously with knives. Friends interfered, and it was thought the trouble had been adjusted as the men all shook hands an agreed to be friends. The knife wounds received by both Connell and Gentry were serious, and a doctor was sent for. While awaiting the coming of the physician, for some cause, Connell seized a shot gun and fired on Gentry, almost disemboweling him. Gentry lived two hours after the fatal shot. Connell was carried to his home and his wounds, while serious, are not considered dangerous. Officers were despatched at once to the scene, and as Connell cannot be removed, Deputy Sheriff Robert Woolley is guarding him at his home. Deputy Sheriff Joe King arrested Crockett Fountain and Sam Green, charged with being accessories to the killing, and carried them to Marion Monday night and placed them in jail. A preliminary hearing of the case will be held before Justice Curry of Marion as soon as Mr. Connell's condition will allow his removal. Connell and Gentry were good farmers and stood well in the community. Whiskey is said to have been at the bottom of the trouble. Gentry leaves a wife and child. Connell is also married, and has three children. Gentry was buried Sunday morning at Jemison, a large concourse being at the cemetery. Great sympathy is felt for Mr. P. M. Gentry and all the family in this terrible bereavement.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL.

POSTPONEMENT OF OPENING.

In view of the prevalence of scarlet fever in Clanton, the opening of the above school is postponed to Wednesday, September 25th, by which time it is believed that the disease will be stamped out and the town safe for pupils. Because of this, we have decided to reduce our session from nine to eight months, and total expenses of session from $101 to $90.

E. Y. McMorries, Principal.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50c at Clanton Drug Co.

PROGRAM TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

The next Institute for white teachers will be held at Macedonia, eight miles west of Jemison and five miles east of Randolph, on the 13th and 14th of September, 1901.

FRIDAY

10 a m. Devotional Exercises.

10:30 Welcome Address, John T. Martin. Response, L. E. Byrum.

11. Why educate? How? K. B. Deason, Mrs. A. G. Dunlap.

1:30 p.m. How should schools be graded? Ex-Supt. Judson Strock: Strock, G. L. Speer.

2:30. Would it be better to divide the county into School Districts? R. E. R. Hicks, Rob. E. Sessions.

3:30. My first experience as a teacher, J. H. Anderson, Miss Jennie Wilson.

SATURDAY.

9 a m. Chilton county Schools R. A. Rasco, Supt. J. W. Moore.

10. The importance of Physiology, F. D. Carmichael, Miss Tracy Garrett.

11. Educational Address, J. M. Collier.

A concert will be given by Prof. Martin's school, Friday evening, beginning at 7 o'clock.

Teachers coming on train will write Prof. Jno. T. Martin, Randolp, and have arrangements made for conveyance.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

Will Good Times Continue?

It has been thought in many quarters that the extraordinary period of trust-forming, company-promoting, and general business expansion through which we have been passing for several years must end in a crash of proportions suited to the unprecedented magnitude of the new financial and industrial operations. This, of course, does not necessarily follow. As we have remarked in previous discussions of the business outlook, the amalgamation of capital and industry may prove to give greater steadiness to the general movement of business. There must, of course, be local speculative collapses, as, for example, in the oil-land craze of the Southwest, and in the premature overdevelopment of some forms of industry. Thus, although the progress in the manufacture of various kinds of self-propelling vehicles has been amazing, and their use is becoming quite common, it is possible that the further march of invention may prove disastrous to a portion of the large aggregate of capital that has already gone into automobile manufacture. It may be well at this point to call attention to a very valuable illustrated article that we present in this number on the make of automobiles in the United States. Generally speaking, the business of the country seems to be upon a firm basis, and the continuance of such industrial activity as may afford employment to all able-bodied workers seems to be fairly assured.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for September.

Probate Notice.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

In the Probate Court of said County.

In the matter of the petition to probate the last will and testament of James Franklin Welch, deceased, late of said County:

To Darius S. Welch, at Bloomingrove, Texas, Vancey B. Welch, at Meridian, Mississippi, John Welch, who is an infant under the age of 14 years, residing with his mother, Annie Welch, at Meridian, Mississippi; and to all other the heirs at law of the said James Franklin Welch, deceased, who reside out of the State of Alabama.

Take notice that on this day Oscar S. Welch, executor, filed in said Court an instrument purporting to be the Last Will and Testament of said James Franklin Welch, deceased, which is dated October 14, 1899, and is attested by W. H. Burns and J. L. Cox; and also filed this day in said Court their petition in writing praying the said Court to admit said instrument to probate and record thereof, as and for the last Will and Testament of the said James Franklin Welch, deceased, and that the said Probate Court has appointed Sept. 16th, 1901, as the day for the hearing of said petition, at which time you may appear and contest the same if you desire.

Given under my hand, on this the 29th day of July, A. D., 1901.

Samuel M. Adams,
Judge of Probate.

To Save Her Child

From frightful disfigurement Mrs. Nannie Galleger, of LaGrange, Ga., applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve to great sores on her head and face, and writes its quick cure exceeded all her hopes. It works wonders in Sores, Bruises, Skin Eruptions, Cuts, Burns, Scalds and Piles. 25c. Cure guaranteed by Clanton Drug Co.

TAX NOTICE.

ASSESSOR'S & COLLECTOR'S First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of assessing the State and County Taxes of Chilton County for the year 1902, and collecting the taxes for the year 1901.

			1901
Fletcher	Beat 8	Oct.	1
Stanton	" 8	"	2
Dixie	" 8	"	3
Shoults	" 7	"	4
Maplesville	" 7	"	5
Benson	" 3	"	7
Macedonia	" 3	"	8
Providence	" 2	"	9
Jemison	" 2	"	10
Mineral Springs	" 1	"	11
Strasburg	" 9	"	12
Clanton	" 4	"	14
Coopers	" 5	"	15
Verbena	" 5	"	16
Kincheon	" 6	"	17

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made, and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE"

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C 986 EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2836 and 2838 Market Street, Philadelphia.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, Northeastern Chancery Division. Fall Term, 1901.

Eufaula Mahan, Complainant, vs. W. J. Mahan, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of William M. Adams, solicitor for Complainant, that the Defendant, W. J. Mahan, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama; that said Mahan resides in the State of Mississippi; and that the residence of said Mahan in the State of Mississippi is to said William M. Adams, unknown; and further, that, to the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Chilton county once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring the said W. J. Mahan, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause, within thirty days after the 18th day of September, 1901, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office, in Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama this 19th day of August, 1901.

W. E. Stewart,
Register in Chancery.

Wm. M. Adams,
Solicitor for Complainant.

The Best Prescription for Malaria

Chills and Fever is a bottle of Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. It is simply iron and quinine in a tastless form. No cure—no pay. Price 50c.

DEFECTIVE ORIGINAL

ing ourselves and our class, for we want you to come in and look our goods to your homes, then we won't have much moving to do.

REMOVAL SALE NOW ON

W. H. SARTOR
CLANTON

The Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Ala

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
"BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE"
CHILTON COUNTY BRANCH

PRESIDENT. N. J. Calloway, Clanton. SEC'Y & TREAS. P. D. Wilson, Clanton

COUNTY AGENT:
B. T. Calloway, Coopers.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

1. H. C. Young
2. Thomas Harrison
3. Alex Glasscock
4. A. J. Wilson
5. D. S. Robinson
6. A. T. Hathcock
7. C. J. Coker
8. John E. Fe
9. W. A. Ray

Insures farmer's dwellings, outbuildings and contents, all stock against loss by fire, wind and lightning.

During the year just closed, Aug. 3, 1901, there has not been single loss to the Association.

The cheapest, safest and most sensible method of insurance to man. For full particulars call on or address the County Agent.
B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers, Ala.

We will move October 1st to 2012 First Ave.

EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES

J. Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Q

COLLIER DRUG CO.,
THE CUT RATE DRUG STORE
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

West End Store

For the convenience of the people in this part I have opened a store at my place one mile west of town, and have a full line of

General Merchandise

AND A COMPLETE LINE OF

Dry Goods, Hats, Shoes, Notions, CHOICE GROCERIES

W. A. KEMP, Clanton, Ala.

THE NULITE.
750 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS
Produce the most artistic light in the world. Cheaper than kerosene oil. A 19th Century Marvel in the Art of Lighting.
They darkness into daylight turn,
And are instead of money burn.
No smoke. No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely Safe. They are Portable, Hang or Stand them anywhere. We also manufacture Table Lamps, Wall Lamps, Pendants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, Etc. The best and only really successful Incandescent Vapor Gas Lamps made. Burning like them Each burner 100 candle power. Sell on sight. Good Agts Wanted. Write for catalogue and prices.
Chicago Solar Light Co. 81 Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

TOWN ITEMS

February first Monday in April Monday in June second Monday in August first Monday in November

CLANTON COTTON MART

to-day 7½c. Ac B.
same date last year 8½ cents.
RECEIVED to date 1901 1902
Ward & Co
Total

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market price
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Miss Nannie Merrill of Birmingham is visiting friends in Clanton.

Dr. N. S. Elmore returned from a visit to New Orleans. He reports a fine time.

Mrs. M. A. Moore and daughter Miss Julia of Mount Carmel are visiting the family of Capt. A. A. Middleton.

Mr. Jesse Hayes of Montgomery was in town this week.

Married at the residence of Mr. Wm. Heaney, Mr. E. H. Culp to Miss A. A. Mims, on Thursday evening Aug. 22, E. H. Deason, J. P., performing the ceremony. We wish them all possible happiness together.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices
E. M. PINCKARD & CO

Any druggist will sell you a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for 50c. and tell you what it is good for free of charge. Try it.

Mr. Harry L. Byrne and wife of Birmingham are visiting Mrs. C. A. Boyd, gradmother of Mrs. Byrne.

Miss Bertie Blanc of Verbena has returned home after a pleasant visit to Miss Ruth Abernathy.

Mrs. J. M. Potts and mother Mrs. Rhinehart are visiting relatives at Hartford.

Mrs. O. A. Duke of Deatsville was a visitor here this week.

Mr. A. Norrell of Verbena was in town Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Popwell of Energy were here yesterday.

C. W. WILSON is now getting in a full line in all departments and respectfully invites you to call and inspect them. Prices are put down very low and the goods speak for themselves.
C. W. Wilson, Clanton.

Miss Cora Bell is visiting friends in Birmingham.

Mrs. F. M. Woods has returned home after a pleasant visit to Bloc-

Mr. John Garner of Montevallo is spending a few days in Clanton.

If you, your baby, or your horse is colic, Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure it and "don't you forget it." Only 50c. a bottle.

Mrs. E. A. Matthews, Miss Mamie Matthews and Miss Maggie Jackson visited Birmingham this week.

Capt. Mumford DeLarnette, of Montgomery, was in town Wednesday.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy, Eclectic, a girl, at the residence of Rev. F. B. Tichnor, Aug. 27.

Mrs. Eugene Cowan has returned to her home at Gadsden, after a pleasant visit to relatives here.

Mrs. Dellardeleben of Tuskegee is visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. Pinckard.

Mrs. W. L. Sampey came down to Gadsden to attend the funeral of her little niece, Evelyn Hickman, and returned home next day.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's ad in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every two days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will abpreciate same in future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1185½ 21st st., between 2nd and 3rd aves, Birmingham.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

T. James L. Meroney and Miss Ella Vinzant; Mr. G. L. Dawson and Miss Jennie Blackman.

Married, Bailey Holmes and Ella Garland.

STOPS THE COUGH and works off the Cold. Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

VE ORIGINAL

SALE NOW ON

. SARTOR

CLANTON

...surance Association of Alabama

...IAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
...LE AND FOR THE PEOPLE"

COUNTY BRANCH

...SEC'Y & TREAS:
...ton. P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

...OUNTY AGENT:
...LOWAY, Coopers.

...D OF DIRECTORS.

A. J. Wilson 7. C. J. Cabera
D. S. Robinson 8. John. R. Pur...
A. T. Hathcock 9. W. A. Mims

...gs, outbuildings and contents, and li...
...l and lightning.

...ed, Aug. 3, 1901, there has not been a ...

...most sensible method of insurance kn...
call on or address the County Agent
B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers, Ala.

October 1st
2 First Ave.
...NG AT CUT PRICES

...Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Qu...

...ER DRUG CO.,
...CUT RATE DRUG STORE
...HAM, . AL...

...End Store
...the people in this part I have opened ...
...west of town, and have a fine stock ...

Merchandise
...COMPLETE LINE OF
...ats, Shoes, Notions
GROCERIES
KEMP, Clanton, Ala.

...NULITE.
...WER ARC ILLUMINATORS
...pen artificial light in the world. ...electricity or gas. Cheaper than ...
...A 20th Century Revolution in the ...darkness into daylight turn, ...ar instead of money burn.
No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely ...e Portable. Hang or stand them any...
...o manufacture Table Lamps, Wall ...ants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, ...and only really successful Incandes...
...ion Lamps made. They call at night. ...0 candle power. Nothing like them. ...anted. Write for catalogue and prices.
...ar Light Co. 81 Funk Av. Chicago, Ill.

TOWN ITEMS

...Commissioners' Court meets second ...y in February first Monday in ...and Monday in June second ...y in ... second Monday in Au...st first Monday in November.

...ANTON COTTON MART.

...to-day 7½ cents.
...same date last year 8½ cents.
...RECEIVED TO DATE: 1901 1900
...chard & Co. ... 1 ...
...lins ... ...
...s ... ...
...ns ... ...
...otal ... 1 ...

...are in the market buying ...and Cotton Seed, paying ...market price.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

...Mr. ... Merchant of Birming...ham was visiting friends in Clanton ...

...Mr. A. N. ... returned ...from a visit to New Orleans. He ...reports a fine time.

...Mrs. M. A. Moore and daughter, ...Miss Julia, of Mount Carmel, are ...visiting ... of Capt. W. A. ...Hodnette.

...Mr. Jesse ... of Montgomery ...was in town this week.

...Married at the residence of Mr. ...Wm. Hewley, Mr. E. H. Culp ...to Miss A. V. Mims, on ...Thursday evening, Aug. 22, E. B. ...Dixon, J. P., performing the cer...emony. We wish them all possi...ble happiness together.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Any druggist will sell you a bot...tle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic ...for 50c, and tell you what it is ...good for free of charge. Try it.

Mr. Harry L. Byrnz and wife of ...Birmingham are visiting Mrs. C. ...A. Boyd, grandmother of Mrs. ...Byrnz.

Miss Bertie Blair of Verbena ...has returned home after a pleasant ...visit to Miss Ruth Abernathy.

Mrs. J. M. Cotts and mother, ...Mrs. Rhinehart, are visiting rela...tives at Hartsells.

Mrs. O. A. Duke of Deatsville ...was a visitor here this week.

Mr. A. N. ... of Verbena was ...in town Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Popwell of ...Energy were here yesterday.

C. W. W. ... is now getting ...in a full line in all departments, ...and respectfully invites you to call ...and inspect them. Prices are put ...down very low and the goods speak ...for themselves.
C. W. WILSON, Clanton.

Miss Cora Bell is visiting friends ...in Birmingham.

Mrs. F. M. Woods has returned ...home after a pleasant visit to Bloc...ton.

Mr. John Garner of Montevallo ...is spending a few days in Clanton.

If you, your baby, or your horse ...is sick, Dr. Tichenor's Antisep...tic will cure it and you don't you for...get it. Only 50c. a bottle.

Mrs. E. A. Matthews, Miss Ma...ggie Matthews and Miss Maggie ...Jackson visited Birmingham this ...week.

Capt. Mumford DeJarnette, of ...Montgomery, was in town Wed...nesday.

We are in the market buying ...Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying ...highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy, ...Eclectic, a girl, at the residence ...of Rev. F. B. Tacknor, Aug. 27.

Mrs. Eugene Cowan has return...ed to her home at Gadsden, after a ...pleasant visit to relatives here.

Mrs. Della Belleben of Tuskegee ...is visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. ...Stockard.

Mrs. W. L. Sampey came down ...from Gadsden to attend the funeral ...of her little niece, Evelyn Hick...ock, and returned home next day.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's ...ad in this paper. He has estab...lished a branch office at Clanton, ...and will spend a week here every ...two days. Thanking the peo...ple of Chilton county for past pat...ronage, he will appreciate same in ...the future. Will pay fare one way ...those going to his office in Bir...mingham to have their dental ...work done. 2181½ 22st st., between ...2nd and 3rd aves., Birmingham.

Marriage licenses have been issued ...during the week by the Probate Judge to ...the following persons.

...James L. Meroney and Miss ...Ella Vinnant; Mr. G. L. Daw...son and Miss Jennie Blackman. ...Colored. Bailey Holmes and ...Maggie Garland.

STOPS THE COUGH
...and works off the Cold.
...Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets ...Cures a cold in one day. No Cure ...No Pay. Price 25 cents.

NOW!

Our Mr. Pinckard has just returned from the East, where he purchased our Fall Stock, securing many fine grades of goods.

We must make room for these new goods, so NOW is your chance. We will show you great bargains, call and see us.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

FIRE! FIRE!

GREAT SACRIFICE SALE!

Goods damaged by removal must be sold at any price.

This is Your Great Opportunity.

All these goods are good as new, they were only slightly damaged by removal; the fire did not reach my store, but all the stock was removed.

Calicoes from 3 and 4 cents. Lawns from 4 cts.
Ladies' Hats 50 cents on $1.
Men's and Children's Straw Hats 50 c on $1.
Clothing at half price.
Shoes at half price.
Big line of Umbrellas.
Embroidery 4 cents.

I have a big stock and it must positively be sold. Come in and see for yourselves and pick out your own bargains. You have never seen such values before. Respectfully,

H. TOURO, Clanton

C. R. MULLINS

REPRESENTS THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEWARK, N. J., AND SEVERAL LEADING FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

and will insure your lives and property at lowest current rates.

I also wish to state that I am getting in my Fall stock of the Latest Improved High-arm SINGER MACHINES, and I have my office full of second hand machines of different kinds, all in good running order, that I will sell cheap for cash or trade for produce, most any old way and at any old price. I must have the room for my new stock which will arrive about September 1st.

Also have on sale at my office the latest improved SMOOTHING IRON with Fluter combined.

NEEDLES, OIL, BANDS, CANS, ETC.

Regular office days Saturday and Monday.

C. R. MULLINS, Agent, Singer Office, Clanton.

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES.

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	$1.50
Nashville American	1.50
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald	$1.50
Home and Farm	$1.10
Southern Farmer	$1.00

NEW ROYAL

HIGH ARM. LIGHT RUNNING

WARRANTED TEN YEARS.

FIVE DRAWER $32.

The New Royal is not a cheap machine, but a high-class machine made out of good material, all parts adjustable and ball-bearing; has a good set of steel attachments and all of them work well.

I will exchange the New Royal for old machines and allow the full value of the old machine. Come and see me. I can sell you a machine as cheap as you can buy in Clanton.

Some second hand machines from $5 up. Send me 25 cents in silver or stamps and an old needle for sample and I will send you 1 doz. needles to fit your machine.

REPAIR WORK GUARANTEED.

L. D. POPWELL,
CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Nauseous Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2530 and 2532 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

Headache and Neuralgia cured by Dr. MILES' PAIN PILLS. "One cent a dose."

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People, everywhere it has been introduced, are wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. Send stamps for one. Ladies' size 50c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. (See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

The BANNER office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us trial.

If Grip threatens use Dr. Miles' Nervine.

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Parry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bachelor mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T. U. CRUMPTON, Prop'r
MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERY THING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L. Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS—SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE

FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1 00	2 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water, white 150 fire test oil	18
½ bbl " " "	2.25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	13
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14-lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware and the very best Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please,

A. M. JOHNSON, Manager

THE VITAE ORE PREPARATIONS

are on sale by
Campbelle Drug co., clanton.
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A. Ayers, clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kinchson
J. B. Downs, clanton.

N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

CHURCH DIRECTORY

BAPTIST—Preaching on the first and third Sundays at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Sunday-school every Sunday at 10 a.m.

Prayer-meeting every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

F. M. WOODS, Pastor.

METHODIST—Preaching every second Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and every fourth Sunday at 7 p.m.

Sunday-school at 10 a.m. every Sunday.

Prayer-meeting at seven o'clock every Wednesday night.

D. F. ELLISON, Pastor.

TALKS ABOUT WOMANKIND

Of Ice-Blue Foulard.

An odd model for a foulard gown is of ice-blue, ringed with white and black. The collar, cuffs and flounce have rows of black bebe ribbon velvet, joined by diamonds of yellow lace, and the vest and sleevelets are of lace to match, the front held in with two crossed braces of black velvet ribbon. To be worn with this costume is a jaunty little hat of blue straw, trimmed with tea roses and black velvet.

Shirt Waists.

Six shirt waists should meet the requirements of most careful girls. To have a sufficient stock of blouses to be able to ring the changes in routine lengthens the life of each one considerably. Therefore, two of gingham, two of plain silk for afternoon wear and one or two of smarter nature for parties would not be too many, while, needless to say, the more the better. And when these are manufactured at home, their cost is really so very slight that one is justified in the extravagance.

Dainty Veilings for Summer Wear.

Veilings of every shade and variety, often of the faintest blue or gray, but by preference of white, are far and away the daintiest things for dressy summer wear this year. The simplest way to make them very smart is to put them over a Pompadour silk overskirt. The fabrics are so thin and sheer that the flowers just show through with a suggestiveness of color and shimmer that is irresistible. If your dressmaker is equal to it have one summer gown made with a princesse slip of Pompadour silk. All its elegance than will come from lines, and a few dainty shirrings or ruffles, these last tucked, at the bottom of the skirt, and some similar trimming on the bodice.—The Ladies' Home Journal.

Train the Boys Early.

The boy at five or ten years of age is marvelously impressionable—far more so than he ever will be again. Mothers get their strongest hold on the boys at this period, but fathers are apt to "wait until the boys become older." But then puberty influences the young mind, previously stored with a great variety of impressions or experiences, the early formative period is practically concluded, and while it is yet possible to mold the character, the nascent stage of development is past, never to return. Science and experience agree in proving that this nascent period of childhood is most important. The greatest church organization the world has ever seen is based on a realization of this fact. Education is being modified according to this principle. Parents and especially fathers, need to recognize it. —Good Housekeeping.

Most Extravagant Woman in History.

The Empress Josephine was allowed at the beginning of her reign $72,000 a year for her toilet, and later this was increased to $90,000. But there was never a year during the time that she did not far overreach her allowance and oblige the Emperor to come to her belief.

According to the estimate Mason has made, Josephine spent on an average of $220,000 yearly on her toilet during her reign. It is only by going over her wardrobe article by article and noting the cost and number of each piece that one can realize how a woman could spend this amount. Take the simple item of her hose—which were almost always white silk, often richly embroidered or in open work. She kept 150 or more pairs on hand, and they cost from $4 to $8 a pair.

She employed two hairdressers—one for every day, at $1200 a year; the other for great occasions, at $2000 a year; and she paid them each from $1000 to $2000 a year for furnishings. It was the same for all the smaller items of her toilet.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

English Working Girls' Clubs.

At the exhibition held by the English working girls' clubs in the People's Palace, in London, recently, great interest was shown in the departments of needlework and cookery. In the former branch the girls have found a new incentive to ambition in their desire to make extra clothing for themselves to take away on their summer outings. This is a marked step in advance of their custom of a few years ago, when a pocket handkerchief contained their entire outfit. They are now actually saving money with which to buy small trunks.

In cookery, a prize was offered for the best Sunday dinner for a man, wife and four children, at a cost of not more than 50 cents. It was found necessary to divide the honors between one young woman who supplied a meal of meat pie, mashed potatoes and rice, with stewed rhubarb, and another providing pea soup, with fried bread and dry mint, stewed beef and carrots, cabbages, potatoes and a plain pudding.

Twenty-two clubs were represented at the exhibition, comprising in all some 2000 members from the poorest classes of London.

Buckles and Buttons.

Buttons and buckles—what an incessant chorus these adjuncts make! On behalf of the former a good deal of applique work is employed, this taking the form of a delicate tracery in gilt, silver or aluminum on groundworks of smoked pearl, mother of pearl and imitation colored stones of every sort, kind and description.

Amethysts are wonderfully imitated and have become a great vogue. Amethysts and topazes have alike been out of favor and fashion for their allotted span, and the time is just ripe for their return.

Before the shrine of the turquoise all continue to bow in adoring worship, but this pretty blue stone has become a trifle too familiar to the sight to be altogether pleasant.

Many are doing their best to take coral seriously. Coral buttons, appliqued with dull silver are especially decorative. Broblingnagian buttons are not nearly so much in vogue as they were. Of course, they are to be found here and there when some particular period of style commands their presence. But decidedly of more pronounced popularity is the small button arranged in detached groups—two, three and four, as the fancy dictates. As to buckles, their story is a long and bewildering one. Scarcely in millinery can a buckle go wrong, and in this department do they seem to grow longer and longer and narrower and narrower every day. And it is buckles that create a decorative item in one's chic visiting toilet.

Art Colors in New Linens.

The new lines in art colorings are delightfully cool and very smart for summer wear, and are usually made without lining, being of a sufficiently firm texture to set well without further support. Nine to ten yards of linen will make a full gown and allow a deep hem to the skirt, but even less may be allowed for a bolero and skirt, and this is a very popular fashion for duck and linen.

Frills, flounces and anything of the full or fussy type must be avoided for linen, but flat bands of Russian galon or coarse lace of point d'Arabi type are most effective, and grouped lines of machine stitching and large pearl buttons are invariably an attractive combination. Some of the new galons or coarse lace are filled in with shaded or chintz colorings, and these are charming on red, blue and biscuit linen.

Very little of this trimming is required, and it must be laid quite flat and not put on full, as lace usually is.

Foulard gowns are always in evidence at this time of year, and many of the new foulards are wonderfully pretty, both in color and design, especially those who exhibit a light, graceful pattern in some delicate tint on a white ground, mauve and pale green being among the most effective. Like all other light fabrics, foulards require to be very daintily made, the skirts trimmed with frills or flounces, tucks and insertion, and the bodices prettily trimmed. A nice design represents a dress of mauve and white foulard, the trained skirt bordered with three rather wide tucks, a newer style than the little frills or shaped flounces, of which one so soon tires. Above are two bands of ivory Irish lace insertion, through which the mauve lining of the skirt is seen with good effect. The bodice is quite simply made, with tucked chemisette of white lawn with openwork insertion, through which is run black bebe ribbon, giving a very smart and pretty finish. There is a kind of half yolk of the Irish lace, and insertions of the same lace, while the picturesque sleeves have bands and cuffs to match the chemisette, and full puffs of fine lawn. This model could be made very inexpensively, in one of the nice "foulardines," or mercerized sateens in foulard patterns, or it is equally suitable for making up in one of the thicker muslins, especially those which exhibit a pretty haircord stripe. The hat with it is of black tucked tulle with paste ornaments and cluster of mauve poppies.—The Lady.

FOR WOMAN'S BENEFIT

The latest models in shirtwaists fasten down the back with pearl, gilt or silver buttons.

The linen batiste collar with lace applications is much favored by Parisian dress designers.

Heavy ivory white and ecru lace comes in sailor collar and cuff sets as accompaniments to shirtwaists.

White silk roses with black velvet leaves make an effective trimming for a white straw hat faced with black.

Parasols of miroir silk with inch wide fan tucks around the edge are very attractive, with carved handles of ivory.

Stockings made entirely of lace are among the novelties and silk mousseline stockings, handsomely embroidered, are also on the season's hosiery list.

Some of the newest sunshades are decorated with cretonne applique and valled in chiffon. Gold and silver spangles are seen on a few of the black lace parasols.

Among expensive novelties are belts of rattlesnake skin, tanned so that all the markings are preserved and the scales returned to their places. Self covered or silver gilt buckles are used as fasteners.

Deep hyacinth blue is one of the shades that is seen in bordered voile, a new fabric. The borders are sometimes of a darker or lighter shade than the plain material and occasionally of a contrasting tone.

While the military heel and broad toe have not lost favor, the new low cut shoes show pointed toes and high spool heels. The extension sole is still in evidence, but shoes are narrower and less mannish than last season.

GARDEN AND FARM

EFFECT OF RAIN UPON THE SOIL.

Rains and snows assist to a certain extent in adding fertility to the soil. In one year rains bring down about four pounds of ammonia per acre. Nitric acid, chlorine, sulphuric acid and ammonia are all brought to the ground, though the amounts are not large.

KEEP ONLY PRODUCTIVE COWS.

A cow that gives sixteen quarts of milk per day is worth two that give eight quarts each, for the reason that she will occupy but one stall, while the others require two. One cow will incur less expense to the owner for shelter and also for labor and care, consequently she gives more profit not only by reason of greater product but also because she is less expensive than the unprofitable cows.

BUILD CISTERNS FOR CATTLE.

Cows in order to do their best and give us the greatest amount of profit must have ready access to pure drinking water at least three times a day in summer. Farmers who have no wells or springs on their land should dig a few large cisterns around their buildings and see to it that the supply of water is constantly replenished by each rain. Cisterns will be one of the best investments they can make, for they are not only useful in summer, but in winter as well. During the cold days water freshly drawn will be drunk in pails full, whereas a few swallows would suffice if sucked through a hole in the ice.

POULTRY IN THE GARDEN.

Late in the season all kinds of poultry may be allowed the run of the garden, except geese and ducks, which should be turned out on a pasture. Fowls do not injure gardens after the crops are well under way, though hens with chicks will scratch for seeds on newly-prepared plots. The fowls will destroy many insects and also consume the seeds of some weeds. They also eat the young and tender weeds that are coming up. Geese will consume that persistent and annoying weed known as purslaine, or pursley, while both ducks and geese will thrive on green food entirely if allowed. It is a waste of grain to give it to fowls that have the run of grass and young weeds, as they can select for themselves all the food desired.

A LATE FODDER CROP.

Listing corn is a quick way of growing a late crop for fodder. A lister is a double plow, or a right-and-left hand plow set together at the landsides, so as to throw a furrow both ways, thus making a ditch. At the back end of the beam is a subsoiler, which stirs up the bottom of the furrow. The one-horse drill follows, which plants the seed, though the lister and drill may be combined if preferred. The seed is thus planted deep and somewhat thick, no checking being required, as the corn is cultivated but one way. Even as late as August corn may be planted with the lister, and as the method is a quick one the cost is not great. If too late to mature the corn it may be cut at any stage of growth and cured, but the proper time is when the ears are in the milky stage.

TRENCHING.

It is doubtful if there is any more effectual method of pulverizing the soil to the depth of two feet or more than by trenching. In fact, it is difficult to see how it could be done in any other way, as the surface soil which is the richest should be turned below and the subsoil thrown on the top. This is the indispensable condition of a good vineyard. It is not the mixture of the surface with the subsoil that is wanted, but about twelve inches of the surface soil, mixed up and put below, and the subsoil thrown on the top of it, a complete reversion of the soil, so the foot roots of the vines will have rich soil and make a strong growth.

There are other methods of partially accomplishing this result. One is to dig large holes and throw the rich soil below and the subsoil on the top. Another is to trench in narrow rows about two feet wide and deep, reversing the soil. And still another is by plowing with a heavy plow as deep as can be done, and follow after with a subsoil plow. This method might do in loose, rich or sandy soil, but in clay soil is of little value over digging holes. It is the cost of trenching compared with other methods that must be considered in going into the business on a large scale. Trenching costs about $75 per acre, in narrow strips about $40, digging holes about $15 and plowing and subsoiling about $25.—The Epitomist.

WHERE THE TROUBLE WAS.

While making cheese I once had a patron whose milk was seldom perfectly sweet. I expostulated and lectured, and he seemed to really try to improve matters, but without success. He claimed to aerate and cool his milk down to a low temperature every night, yet in the morning it would be on the verge of acidity. In passing his house one afternoon just as I had finished my day's work I saw his wife washing the milk cans, which had stood in the hot sun since early morning! The next day I told my delinquent patron that I had discovered the source of his trouble, and that if he would still continue to aerate and cool his milk with the same assiduity, and in addition see that his milk cans were thoroughly washed and scalded with boiling water before 8 o'clock every morning I would be almost willing to guarantee the quality of his milk. He did so, and we had no trouble thereafter.

Even with the best facilities, coupled with painstaking efforts, it is sometimes very difficult to preserve milk quality for twelve or eighteen hours in hot weather. Many fly to ice, and depend upon that solely. But this does not necessarily imply good dairying. If one is possessed of a supply of ice it is a valuable adjunct in these matters, but it should be used circumspectly. Do not cool milk down suddenly with ice before that milk has been thoroughly aerated. With pure air surrounding, and except in the most sultry and "muggy" weather, I have no fears of preserving milk quality without the help of ice. I would simply aerate it, and thus cool it at the same time.—Dr. G. E. Newell, in Nebraska Farmer.

BEES AS BLIGHT DISTRIBUTERS.

I have thoroughly worked out the question relative to bees carrying blight. The conclusion reached is that bees carry pear blight extensively, and with other insects are the principal or almost the only agency of distribution of the germs. The occurrence of the blight on the blossoms in great quantities and the great rapidity with which the disease spreads from flower to flower indicate a normal and very effective method of distribution. The germs were found growing freely in the nectar of the blossoms.

Bees were seen repeatedly visiting the infected flowers, and some were caught taking infected nectar, and by means of plate cultures the pear blight germs were isolated from their mouth parts. By covering parts of the trees with sacks of various kinds of material, including mosquito netting, and then artificially infecting certain flowers on the tree, the blight was observed to spread very freely over the uninfected and uncovered blossoms, but was entirely absent in the blossoms covered by mosquito netting.

Blossoms were infected and at once covered with sacks and the blight in such cases was retained in the infected blossoms. Pear blight germs died very soon after being dried up, and lived for only a brief period on exposure to weather conditions out of doors, hence they cannot live in dust and be blown around to any great extent by the wind. Pear blight virus, particularly that which occurs on the blossoms, is a very sticky substance, and is readily carried by insects, birds or other animals, but cannot be blown by the wind.

It may also be well to state that as a result of this serious charge against bees I was led to carry on an extensive series of experiments in the pollination of pomaceous fruits, and as a result of these I found that bees are indispensable to the pollination and setting of most of our pomaceous fruits, hence they should not be destroyed, as some California growers think. They simply carry the pear blight incidentally while performing an important and necessary function.—Professor M. B. Waite, in American Agriculturist.

SPRAYING AND CULTIVATING ORCHARDS.

In order to get the most from the orchards there is nothing like thorough spraying every season, and liberal fertilizing with ashes and commercial and barnyard manures. No surer protection against blights, droughts and other injuries can be conceived. The force of this is not always appreciated. Sometimes it is necessary to have a lesson brought straight home. Well, if one wishes to learn by experience, take two orchards or two parts of the same orchard, and spray and fertilize one and neglect the other. Keep at it for two or three seasons, in order to make sure of the results. If this does not convince one of the value of spraying and fertilizing, then you are justified in giving up both practices. Sometimes exceptionally good seasons will not make the difference between care and neglect of an orchard very apparent. When the blights and insects are not around in the orchards much, and the season is well adapted to produce good crops of fruits, even the neglected orchards will show a fair yield; but, then, every orchard in the country is full, and it is no sign of good farming that one has raised a good crop.

It is the off season that tells. When all other fruit trees are injured by the blight, insects or dry weather, then is the time that your trees will pay the most in full. It is in the off season that the experienced horticulturist makes his greatest profits. He has fruit to sell when nobody else has, and the high prices he receives for it make his profits large and satisfactory. It costs to fertilize and spray the trees every season; but the work will pay if done thoroughly and economically. The spraying should be so thorough on every tree and on every side and part of the tree that no insect is missed. Only in this way will the tree be absolutely guarded against attack. The fertilizing with ashes and manures should be conducted in the same thorough and economical way. Not a load of either should be wasted. Only so much as the trees and vines need should be used, and some years the soil may get so full that nothing but a little stirring and plowing will be needed. We do not wish to overfeed the soil lest it should get sour. Trees growing on rich soil, supplied with ashes, potash and phosphoric acid, will grow so thriftily that they will not be very susceptible to the attacks of insects and blights. They form their own protection in the strong, vigorous growth of root, trunk and leaves.—A. B. Barrett, in American Cultivator.

The sun spot was a little late in getting into the hot-wave proposition, but when it did arrive it made up for lost time by promising four years of sizzling weather.

About one-half of the world's requirements of camphor is produced in Formosa and about one-third in Japan.

A MEMORABLE SUMMER.

CALLED "EIGHTEEN HUNDRED AND STARVE-TO-DEATH."

American and European Data Record the Season of 1816 as Having Been Phenominal in Almost Every Particular—The Sun's Rays Destitute of Heat.

There are few persons now living who recollect the year 1816, but European and American data represent it as having been phenomenal in almost every particular.

In New England the year went by the name of "eighteen-hundred-and-starve-to-death," and the summer months are known in history as "the cold summer of 1816," so remarkable was the temperature.

The sun's rays seemed to be destitute of heat and all nature was clad in a sable hue. Men and women became frightened and imagined that the fire in the sun was being rapidly extinguished, and that the world would soon come to an end.

Ministers took the phenomena for the text of their sermons, and pseudo-scientific men talked of things they knew not of, while the fanatics took advantage of the occasion to form religious organizations.

The winter of 1815-16 was very cold in Europe, but comparatively mild in this country, and did not in any way indicate the severe weather that soon prevailed.

Even the almanacs were silent, and although the usual indications, "about now look out for cold weather," or "this is a good time for snow" were entered in the regular portions of the book devoted to the winter predictions, those used for chronicling the pleasanter months had no such alarming warnings.

January was mild, so much so that for days the people allowed their fires to go out, as artificial heat made the buildings uncomfortably warm. This pleasant weather was broken by a severe cold snap in February, but this low temperature passed in a few days and a warmer condition, similar to the month previous, set in.

March "came in like a lion, but went out like a lamb." There was nothing unusual in the climatic conditions of the month which differed from those generally found in this windy season.

April was the advance guard of this strange freak in temperature. The early days were warm and bright, but as the month drew to a close the cold increased until it ended in ice and snow and a very low temperature.

To those who delighted in balmy May days and loved to watch the budding flowers the May of 1816 was a bitter disappointment. True, buds came, but so did the frost, and in one night laid all vegetation a blackened waste.

Corn was killed, and the field had to be made ready for another planting, but the people's astonishment was complete when they found ice formed to the thickness of half an inch in the pools.

June, "the month of roses," was this year a month of ice and desolation. The "oldest inhabitant" was surprised, for never before had the mercury sunk so low in the tube in these latitudes in the last month of spring.

Frost, ice and snow were common. Almost every green thing that had taken advantage of a few warm days to develop was killed, and various kinds of fruit were nearly all destroyed.

One day the beautiful snow fell to a depth of 10 inches in Vermont, seven inches in Maine and three inches in Massachusetts and Central New York.

Matters were beginning to be interesting. People were undecided whether to spend the summer in the south or at the seashore and mountains. One day the latter resorts were desirable and the next would decide in favor of the former, but on the whole the southern clime was preferred.

July was accompanied by frost and ice, and those who celebrated the glorious Fourth "not wisely but too well" found an abundance of ice handy for immediate use the next morning. It was not very thick, not more than one-sixteenth of an inch, but it was ice, and it caused the good people of New England, New York and some sections of Pennsylvania to look grave. That month Indian corn was destroyed in all but the most favored locations, and but a small quantity escaped.

Surely August would put an end to such cold weather, but the farmers as well as hotel proprietors were doomed to disappointment. The mid-summer month was, if possible, more cheerless than the days already passed. Ice formed even thicker than it had done the month before and corn was so badly frozen that it was cut for fodder and almost every green plant in this country as well as in Europe was frozen.

Papers received from England stated that the year 1816 would be remembered by the generation then living as a year in which there was no summer.

What little corn ripened in the unexposed states was worth almost its weight in silver and farmers were compelled to provide themselves with corn grown in 1815 for the seed they used in the spring of 1817. This seed never cost so much, being difficult to get even at $5 per bushel.

The last month of summer was ushered in bright and warm, and for two weeks the now almost frozen people began to thaw out. It was the mildest weather of the year, but just as the inhabitants got fairly to appreciate it old Boreas and Jack Frost came along and whitened and hardened everything in their path.

On the 16th ice formed a quarter of an inch thick and winter clothing that had been laid away for a few days was again brought [illegible] wrapped round shivering [illegible]

By this time the people had [illegible] all hopes of again seeing the [illegible] bloom or hearing the birds sing [illegible] began to prepare for a dreary winter.

October kept up the reputation [illegible] its predecessors, as there was [illegible] a day that the thermometer [illegible] higher than 20 degrees.

November was also exceptional [illegible] and sleighing was good [illegible] of the month but strangely [illegible] December was the mildest and [illegible] comfortable month of the entire [illegible] a condition which led many [illegible] believe that the seasons were [illegible] about.

Of course the cold spell [illegible] stuffs to an unheard of price [illegible] was impossible to obtain [illegible] many of the common vegetables they were required for seed.

Flour sold in 1817 at [illegible] $13 per barrel and the price [illegible] of wheat in England was [illegible] per quarter.—Boston [illegible]

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

French syndicates in Normandy [illegible] Brittany use the parcels post [illegible] ing table butter and cheese [illegible] tomers. Parcels weighing [illegible] can be mailed for 30 cents.

In Lake Minnetonka, Minn., there [illegible] a picturesque island which [illegible] name from the fact that it is uninhabited by man, and given over to cranes. Generations ha[illegible] decided upon this spot for a [illegible] resort. As time went on and the surrounding islands populated [illegible] had the heart to disturb them.

Speaking of rare and beautiful [illegible] tery, seekers after curiosities [illegible] delving in the earth near [illegible] on the Dardanelles, uncovered a beautiful vase. It is made of bronze [illegible] incrusted on the exterior with [illegible] It has three golden handles and [illegible] did relieve representing [illegible] scenes. The date of the vase [illegible] contained human ashes bones [illegible] pearls, is estimated at about B.C. [illegible]

A remarkable picnic took place [illegible] so very long ago near Chicago. The guest was "made up" as an animal, lions, tigers and foxes being prominent in this unique gathering [illegible] there was a fair sprinkling of [illegible] dogs and cats. When luncheon was served the "animals" proceeded to squat upon the ground, each after the manner of his or her kind and the eatables were then devoured with much gusto. This picnic which is described as a "Noah's Ark" affair certainly deserved its name.

The trial of the pyx, or the test of the money of the United Kingdom took place at Goldsmith's Hall in London the other day. The ceremony is a very ancient one. The first recorded trial for which a writ was issued took place in 1281. Edward III in 1363 formally established the ceremony which, down to 1870, took place at uncertain intervals. An act passed in 1871 however, stipulated that the trial of the pyx, which is a box or chest in which are deposited specimen coins, shall be held at least once in every year in which coins have been issued.

Very peculiar was the picnic in which a New York resident recently invited his friends at Narragansett, R. I. Every guest was requested to drive to the meeting place in a donkey cart and to be attired after the manner of a "dead-beat," or tramp. Some of the picnickers turned up in the real rags and for their amusement coon songs, "shies" and such like sports were provided by the host. To enhance the realism of the affair every lady and gentleman in the company affected ungrammatical speech and rough behaviour, and it was difficult to believe that the guests were made up of the most wealthy and refined members of New York millionaire dom.

At a Mexican Hotel.

The dining room is scrupulously clean, and the mozos are in attendance in their spotless white linen (which resemble our shirtwaists with the gathering string let out at the bottom), the corners tied in a knot in front below the waist. The first meal of the day is called the desayuno, and consists usually of several kinds of bread, some very light and sweet, with coffee if desired, also fruit and eggs, if you order them. After a very slow canter into the country on the back of a burro through banana groves to some haciendas, etc., you return promptly at 12 o'clock, ready for your comida. This is a full course dinner beginning with soup and rice. The dishes are novel and are quickly liked. Some of them are rather hot, but after a few meals you find your taste for chile con carne has become cultivated, and you enjoy the piquancy of the delicacies set before you. I have learned to be very fond of the Mexican's favorite, stuffed chiles stuffed with cheese and fried; a very delicious combination of peas, pineapple and banana together; meats dressed with olives, salad of the alligator pear (a fruit), onions, tomato and chile, the standby of all Mexicans, tortillas (corn cake) and frijoles (beans). These last are always served with the meat courses. Then we have dulces (preserved fruits) and cheese. The cena (supper) at 7 is of the same number of courses as the comida, very much like it.—Illustrated Magazine.

A man, walking day and night without resting, would take [illegible] to journey round the world.

DESTRUCTIVE STORMS

SWEEPS THE COUNTRY CAUSING LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY.

HUNDRED OFFICER DEFIES A MOB

Mrs. Brigham Young is Dying—Fatal Collision — Railway Changes—Warrior Dead—Chinese Students Now in California.

TERRIBLE STORM IN OKLAHOMA.

A wind and rain storm amounting almost to a tornado nearly demolished the new town of Anadarko Wednesday. W. P. Levis, of Weatherford, Tex., and John Antoine, of Paris, Tex., were killed by falling buildings. Dr. Mayes, of Wichita, Kas., was killed in his tent by an unfinished house blowing down on him. A number of others were injured, while about twenty buildings were almost completely wrecked and hundreds of tents and great quantities of merchandise were strewn over the prairie. The damage will amount to several thousands of dollars. The storm struck almost without warning. At Hobart there was almost a cloud burst, two and one-fourth inches of rain falling in an hour. Thousands of dollars worth of merchandise in unfinished buildings and tents was ruined, but so far as learned, no one was hurt. It is believed the damage to crops and live stock will be heavy. Chickasw, south, and El Reno, east of Anardako, in the Indian Territory, county, was also in the path of the storm. The damage there, however, appears to have been slight, and no one was reported injured.

DESTRUCTIVE RAIN STORM.

A most violent and protracted rainstorm, accompanied by wind which at times in some sections approached the proportions of a hurricane, swept over New York city, West Chester county, and the northeastern portion of New Jersey, Saturday afternoon. The most damage done was at Jersey City, where buildings were wrecked, including a church and a theatre. Jersey City had the worst storm experienced in its history. Two windstorms seemingly met and a cyclonic condition resulted. Horses and wagons were blown over, telegraph poles and wires fell. The steeple of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, the largest in the city, fell backward upon the church, the piles of brick from the spire crushing through the roof and down upon the pews. The roofs of twelve three story buildings were ripped off. In Vanderbilt Park trees that were the growth of many decades were uprooted or broken off. No one was reported killed or injured. The storm in New York city was confined to a heavy downpour of rain with a violent wind.

HIDDEN OFFICER REPELS MOB.

An unsuccessful attempt was made early Friday morning to lynch Dan Cotton and Charles Shipp, who are confined in jail at Lebanon, Ky., charged with murder. The mob called at the house of Jailer Clayton, but his wife refused them the keys to the jail. They went to the jail and began to batter the doors, when Officer Grant, secreted in a coalshed nearby, fired upon them. The mob returned the fire, but no one was hit. They then dispersed.

FLOODS IN KENTUCKY.

Reports come of a terrific water burst on Barnett's creek, in Ohio county. A number of houses were washed away and much live stock drowned. The Rough river, into which Barnett's creek flows, is backed up for ten miles. It is feared some lives were lost.

STREET CAR COLLISION.

A head-and street car collision late Friday in Atlanta killed one man and injured seventeen persons, three of them seriously. The collision occurred on a curve. The cars were running at full speed, and they came together so suddenly on rounding the curve that there was no chance to check the momentum or opportunity for the passengers to jump. It is understood one of the cars was behind time and was attempting to make a speed it should have reached had it maintained its schedule.

GEN. WILLIAMS DEAD.

General Robert Williams died Sunday night from apoplexy. He was [illegible] years old. General Williams was born in Virginia and was a graduate of West Point. In 1892 he was appointed adjutant general of the army and retired a year later. He married the widow of the late Stephen A. Douglas. He leaves three sons and two daughters.

days was again brought forth and wrapped round shivering humanity.

By this time the people had given all hopes of again seeing the flowers bloom or hearing the birds sing and began to prepare for a hard winter.

October kept up the reputation of its predecessors, as there was snow a day that the thermometer registered higher than 20 degrees.

November was also extremely cold and sleighing was good the first week of the month but strange to relate December was the mildest and most comfortable month of the entire year, a condition which left many people to believe that the seasons are changing about.

Of course the cold spell sent breadstuffs to an unheard of price and it was impossible to obtain for table use many of the common vegetables they were required for soup.

Flour sold in 1817 in the cities for $13 per barrel, and the average price of wheat in England was 97 shillings per quarter.—Boston Globe.

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

French syndicates in Normandy and Britany use the parcels post for sending table butter and cheese to customers. Parcels weighing 20 pounds can be mailed for 30 cents.

In Lake Minnetonka, Minn., there is a picturesque island which takes its name from the fact that it is uninhabited by man, and given over to the crows. Generations back these birds decided upon this spot for a summer resort. As time went on and the surrounding islands populated no man had the heart to disturb them.

Speaking of rare and beautiful pottery seekers after curiosities, while delving in the earth near Lampsacus on the Dardanelles, unearthed a beautiful vase. It is made of burnet clay incrusted on the exterior with gold. It has three golden handles and spirited reliefs representing hunting scenes. The date of the vase, which contained human ashes bones and pearls, is estimated at about B. C. 400.

A remarkable picnic took place not so very long ago near Chicago. Every guest was "made up" as an animal—lions, tigers and foxes being prominent in this unique gathering, while there was a fair sprinkling of sheep, dogs and cats. When luncheon was served the "animals" proceeded to squat upon the ground, each after the manner of his or her kind, and the eatables were then devoured with much gusto. This picnic, which was described as a "Noah's Ark" banquet, certainly deserved its name.

The trial of the pyx, or the testing of the money of the United Kingdom, took place at Goldsmith's Hall in London the other day. The ceremony is a very ancient one. The first known trial for which a writ was issued took place in 1281. Edward III in 1346 formally established the ceremony, which down to 1870, took place at uncertain intervals. An act passed in 1870, however, stipulated that the trial of the pyx, which is a box or chest in which are deposited specimen coins, shall be held at least once in every year in which coins have been issued.

Very peculiar was the picnic which a New York resident recently bid his friends at Narragansett, R. I. Every guest was requested to drive to the meeting place in a donkey cart and to be attired after the manner of a "dead-beat," or tramp. Some 3 picnickers turned up in the said guise and, for their amusement cocoanut "shies" and such like sports were provided by the host. To enhance the realism of the affair every lady and gentleman in the company affected ungrammatical speech and rowdy behaviour, and it was difficult to believe that the guests were made up of the most wealthy and refined members of New York millionairedom.

At a Mexican Hotel.

The dining room is scrupulously clean, and the mozos are in attendance in their spotless white blouses (which resemble our shirtwaists, with the gathering string let out at the bottom), the corners tied in a hard knot in front below the waist. The first meal of the day is called desayuno, and consists usually of different kinds of bread, some very fresh and sweet, with coffee or chocolate, also fruit and eggs, if you choose them. After a very slow canter about the country on the back of a burro through banana groves, to sugar plantations, etc., you return promptly at 12 o'clock, ready for your comida). This is a full course meal beginning with soup and rice. All dishes are novel and are generally liked. Some of them are rather hot but after a few meals you find your taste for chile con carne has become cultivated, and you enjoy the piquancy of the delicacies set before you. I have learned to be very fond of the Mexican's favorites, such as chiles stuffed with cheese and roasted, a very delicious combination; peas, pineapple and banana baked together; meats dressed with olives; salad of the alligator pear (the fruit), onions, tomato and chile, the standby of all Mexicans, tortillas (corn cake) and frijoles (beans). These last are always served with the meat courses. Then we have dulces (preserved fruits) and cafe. The cena (supper) at 7 is of the same number of courses as the dinner, very much like it.—Interstate Magazine.

A man, walking day and night, without resting, would take 423 days to journey round the world.

DESTRUCTIVE STORMS

SWEEPS THE COUNTRY CAUSING LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY.

ARMED OFFICER DEFIES A MOB

Mrs. Brigham Young is Dying—Fatal Collision — Railway Changes—Warrior Dead—Chinese Students Now in California.

TERRIBLE STORM IN OKLAHOMA.

A wind and rain storm amounting almost to a tornado nearly dimolished the new town of Anadarko Wednesday. W. P. Levis, of Weatherford, Tex., and John Antoine, of Paris, Tex., were killed by falling buildings. Dr. Mayse, of Wichita, Kas., was killed in his tent by an unfinished house blowing down on him. A number of others were injured, while about twenty buildings were almost completely wrecked and hundreds of tents and great quantities of merchandise were strewn over the prairie. The damage will amount to several thousands of dollars. The storm struck almost without warning. At Hobart there was almost a cloud burst, two and one-fourth inches of rain falling in an hour. Thousands of dollars worth of merchandise in unfinished buildings and tents was ruined, but so far as learned, no one was hurt. It is believed the damage to crops and live stock will be heavy. Chickasha, south, and El Reno, east, of Anadarko, in the Indian Territory, mostly, was also in the path of the storm. The damage there, however, appears to have been slight, and no one was reported injured.

DESTRUCTIVE RAIN STORM.

A most violent and protracted rainstorm, accompanied by wind which at times in some sections approached the proportions of a hurricane, swept over New York city, West Chester county, and the northeastern portion of New Jersey, Saturday afternoon. The most damage done was at Jersey City, where buildings were wrecked, including a church and a theatre. Jersey City had the worst storm experienced in its history. Two windstorms seemingly met and a cyclonic condition resulted. Horses and wagons were blown over. Telegraph poles and wires fell. The steeple of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, the largest in the city, fell backward upon the church, the piles of brick from the spire crushing through the roof and down upon the pews. The roofs of twelve three story buildings were ripped off. In Vanderbilt Park trees that were the growth of many decades were uprooted or broken off. No one was reported killed or injured. The storm in New York city was confined to a heavy downpour of rain with a violent wind.

HIDDEN OFFICER REPELS MOB.

An unsuccessful attempt was made early Friday morning to lynch Dan Hatten and Charles Shipp, who are confined in jail at Lebanon, Ky., charged with murder. The mob called at the house of Jailer Clayton, but his wife refused them the keys to the jail. They went to the jail and began to batter the doors, when Officer Grant, secreted in a coalshed nearby, fired upon them. The mob returned the fire, but no one was hit. They then dispersed.

FLOODS IN KENTUCKY.

Reports come of a terrific waterspout on Barnett's creek, in Ohio county. A number of houses were washed away and much live stock drowned. The Rough river, into which Barnett's creek flows, is backed up for ten miles. It is feared some lives were lost.

STREET CAR COLLISION.

A head end street car collision late Sunday in Atlanta killed one man and injured seventeen persons, three of them seriously. The collision occurred on a curve. The cars were running at full speed, and they came together so suddenly on rounding the curve that there was no chance to check the momentum or opportunity for the passengers to jump. It is understood one of the cars was behind time and was attempting to make a match it should have reached had it maintained its schedule.

GEN. WILLIAMS DEAD.

General Robert Williams died Sunday night from apoplexy. He was 72 years old. General Williams was born in Virginia and was a graduate of West Point. In 1892 he was appointed adjutant general of the army and retired a year later. He married the widow of the late Stephen A. Douglas. He leaves three sons and two daughters.

DAMAGE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Reports state that the heavy rains have resulted in the most disastrous flood experienced in many years. At Mauch Chunk the storm was attended by four fatalities. The Mauch Chunk is fifteen feet above its normal mark and towns along its course have suffered. Bridges, culverts and arches are destroyed and the loss will be many thousands of dollars. At Wilkesbarre a landslide occurred along the Lehigh Valley Railroad at the eastern approach of the Vosburg tunnel, and traffic was suspended for several hours. A washout on the Sunbury branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad delayed traffic several hours. Many collieries have been flooded and work suspended. Crops in the Catawissa valley, a farming section, are practically ruined. The Hudsondale reservoir broke through its banks and the tracks of the Lehigh Valley on the Quakake branch which runs close by, were completely inundated. There was a landslide on the Lehigh Valley which delayed traffic three hours. In some townships it will be necessary to lay a special tax to meet the expenses. In Snake Spring Valley holes eight feet beep were washed out in the road.

INSTITUTION IMPROVED.

Montevallo is pardonably proud of the handsome new addition to the Alabama Girls' Industrial School that has just been made. The new building is the result of an appropriation of $65,000 by the legislature. This, with the original buildings, makes the school able to accommodate about 400 girls. The new building is of red pressed brick and stone, and as finished is an ornament to the state. In an interview Dr. F. M. Peterson, president of the institution, said he expected almost 400 girls during the coming winter. More than two hundred of these can room in the building. A 30,000 gallon water tank placed twenty-five feet above the highest part of the roof gives perfect protection against fire. An elevator will be one of the conveniences, and an electric plant will supply light.

MRS. BRIGHAM YOUNG NO. 1.

Mrs. Zina Young, first wife of the late Mormon Apostle Brigham Young, passed through Helena Saturday, en route to Salt Lake City, in a dying condition from a stroke of paralysis. She was stricken at the home of her daughter near the Canadian border and her last request before losing consciousness, was that she be taken to her old home to die. She is nearly 80 years of age and for more than fifty years has been prominent in the Mormon church, until recently being the head of the Mormon Relief Committee.

MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN IN AMERICA DEAD.

Miss Maude Coleman Woods, of Charlottsville, Va., pronounced the most beautiful woman in America, died Saturday night of typhoid fever. Her profile is on the medals of award of the Pan-American exposition. Miss Woods was about 22 years of age. She was the daughter of Capt. Micajah Woods, and her beauty has been sung in song and story by the Daughters of the Confedracy.

MRS. COL. C. C. POST claims to be able to heal all kinds of diseases, even restoring the blind to sight, holding no disease incurable by her method of treatment. She is under arrest at Daytona, Fla., for sending through the mails circulars professing to cure patients at a distance by means of mental science.

WASHOUT CAUSED WRECK.

The Florda and Metropolitan limited train of the Seaboard Air Line was wrecked Sunday night due to a sand bank which had washed out. One man was crushed to death and three injured. The passengers escaped with a severe shaking up. The engine and four cars left the track and completely turned over. The wreck is a mass of debris. The tender of the engine was thrown fifty yards away. The track was torn up for 150 yards and every car was off the track.

FRANCE AND TURKEY.

The French ambassador, M. Constans, has sent a letter to the Sultan informing him that he would leave Constantinople with the entire staff of the embassy if the matters in dispute are not settled immediately. The letter was in the nature of an ultimatum. It accords the Sultan the briefest delay within which to comply with the demands.

PICNIC DAYS.

I.

Under the spreading chestnut tree
The well-filled baskets stand;
Containing chicken, pies and things—
The work of Bridget's hand.
And way off in the distance there's
A blaring country band.

II.

Dick battles with a bumble bee;
And Bob, with youthful zest,
Falls from the lofty chestnut tree
And papa and the rest
Proceed to eat the lunch upon
A yellow-jacket's nest!

III.

The gentle rainstorm rolls around
And when the day is late
They homeward wend their weary ways
And turn inside the gate,
And lie in bed and wonder just How many ants they ate.
—Indianapolis Sun.

HUMOROUS.

Nell—Maud is the most generous girl I know. Belle—Yes; she can't open her mouth without giving herself away.

"I wonder what makes stocks so feverish?" "Well, they ought to be feverish when they absorb so much water."

"This potato is only half done, my dear," said he crossly. "Then only eat half of it, my love," she replied affectionately.

Wigg—Bjones has a great deal of adaptability. Wagg—Yes, I've even seen him grow quite excited over a game of golf.

"Say, pop," said little Willie, "what kind of fruit comes from an ambush?" "A bury," replied the old man. And silence reigned.

Hoax—Henpeckke says he is taking the rest cure. Joax—Why, I see him every day. Hoax—I know it, but his wife's away.

Sillicus—Do you believe that all poets wear their hair long? Cynicus—No; some of them get bald and others get married.

"Here's a story about a surgeon who amputated his own hand. Do you believe it?" "I suppose it's possible. Perhaps he took ether first."

"It is the unexpected that always happens," remarked the optimist. "Not with me," grumbled the pessimist; "I'm always expecting it."

"Barbara's engagement to Prof. Snopps is broken." "On what ground?" "Well, he lent her historical novels to read and then persisted in examing her on them."

Rollingstone Nomoss—I cum acrosst a dog de odder day wot was so tame he eat out o' me hand. Ragson Tatters—I encountered a dog onct wot eat out o' me leg. I got the scar yet.

Blobbs—For a married man he has wonderful self control. Slobbs—Why do you say "for a married man?" Blobbs—Why, he never gets off any of the bright sayings of his children.

"Gracious goodness, Harriet, seven trunks." "Don't get excited, Harry. I haven't packed a thing except that little list of 'Home Comforts for the Summer Vacation' which you clipped out of the newspaper."

ARMY NO PLACE FOR MAN IN LOVE.

So Says the Corporal Whose Captain Forbids Him to Marry.

"The army is no place for a man who falls in love," muttered the corporal connected with one of the uptown recruiting stations the other day.

He took a picture out of his pocket and looked at it longingly. It was of a girl with short, curly hair, and her white felt hat was pulled down over one eye, as a contrast to the direction taken by its white chicken feather. The corporal's eyes said that it was about the finest thing he had ever seen. There was love in them.

"This is a picture of my girl. Lulu is her name, and she's the finest ever. Her and me want to get tied up, and if it wasn't for this blamed army business we would have been spliced long ago."

"Has the army a legal right to keep you from getting married?" asked the visitor in amazement.

"Of course, this is supposed to be a free country, but they can make it mighty uncomfortable for you in the army if you get spliced without permission" said the corporal. "They can't stop you, but they can take your stripes away and refuse to let you re-enlist. I worked hard for these." He pointed to his chevrons and stroked them with affection. "I don't want to lose them. My captain is a surly old cuss, that never could get any girl to love him, and so he don't believe there is such a thing as love. I asked him for permission to marry Lulu. Told him all about her good job, and how we wouldn't never become a charge on the company.

"'Marriage,' says he, 'is a bloomin' failure, and you'd best keep out of it. Married corporals are a curse to any company, and if you become one you'll have to look for another job when your enlistment runs out.'

"What can I do? The army is my profession."

"If I loved a girl and she'd have me, I'd marry her in spite of everything," said the visitor.

"Yes, and get another job if your employer didn't like it. You forget there is only one army in this country.' And he put the picture away.—New York Tribune.

A Distorted View.

A British manufacturer seems to have a rooted objection to the risk of enlarging his works. He will rather say he is too busy, and send orders away. He looks on a pressure of work as a temporary evil, which will blow over if he does not do anything.—The Engineer.

Stretching an Injunction.

"Your Honor," said the lawyer, "my client has reason to believe that the police are about to interfere arbitrarily with his business, and he would like to have an injunction restraining them from looking at him while he is at work or touching the tools of his profession."

"I do not see," said the learned judge, "why we should go so far as to restrain the police from looking at your client."

"He is of a very nervous temperament, your honor, and to be watched while at work seriously disturbs him."

"In that case," the judge admitted, "the demand seems reasonable. What is your client's business?"

"He is a burglar, your honor."

With the aid of a microphone you can hear a fly walk.

Best For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Wolves, the most energetic travelers among the lower animals, are comparatively short lived.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure to get the genuine. It is taken internally, and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists; price, 75c. per bottle.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

The longest pipe line in the United States is to be built from Wyoming to Salt Lake City.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa

No matter how bad music may be it never comes out at the small end of the horn.

In Portugal electric lights are attached to the collars of hunting dogs to scare foxes and badgers from their holes as the dogs enter.

See advt. of SMITHDEAL'S BUSINESS COLLEGE

There are 1700 Indians in Arizona owning farms.

Short-Lived Insects.

The life of a perfect insect is usually very brief. Of all the myraids of butterflies and moths, bees and wasps, flies and beetles, which make up one of the most marked features of the summer, the vast majority will die before the season is over. A mere handful will survive into next year, while few, indeed, are those that will live to see a second summer. The duration of the larval stage is much longer. The dragon-fly nymph, as it is called, lives 11 months in the water. The perfect insect that emerges from it has only a few weeks, at most, of sunshine and the upper air. There are flies which live only for a single day, taking in that time no food, having, indeed, no mouths by which to take it.

Clubs Have Their Advantages.

I think it must be owned that the departures from the old order of home life have greatly ameliorated the condition of the weak, the timid, the less self-assertive writes Bishop Potter in the Woman's Companion. In any given home circle it is not always the cleverest or the strongest who claims and exercises the mastery. A shrinking and sensitive nature will not fight for its precedence in the home any more than out of it. A gentle, modest woman will often be overborne by her loud, pushing and vulgarly modern children. A man of refinement and real force will often let himself be bullied by a brawling woman because his very nature makes him "no brawler." Now, in the old days, so far as social intercourse was concerned, it was largely a question of the home or—nothing. If there was no bright talk, no diverting recreation, no songs and laughter there, there was none anywhere.

Reforms That Were Expensive.

About three-quarters of a railroad's receipts come from the freight department. The passenger department supplies nearly all the rest, the income from mail, express and other privileges being comparatively small. Carrying passengers is a simple matter, or would be, if state legislatures did not now and then take a hand in prescribing added specifications for railroad passenger service. In Ohio a law was passed decreeing that the height between the platform and the lowest steps of passenger coaches should not exceed 12 inches. This cost the railroads nearly $100,000, and the reform led to the abolition of a number of flag stops where the passengers had been quite willing to scramble up off the ballast.—Ainslee's Magazine.

Thirty minutes is all the time required to dye with PUTNAM FADELESS DYES. Sold by all druggists.

A man may own a watch that is a good timekeeper, and yet he may not have a good time.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle

An ostrich which was lately dissected in London had in its stomach a small prayer book.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. SAMUEL, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

Only nineteen of the seventy Berlin tram lines are now worked by horse traction.

Gray Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over thirty years. It has kept my scalp free from dandruff and has prevented my hair from turning gray."—Mrs. F. A. Soule, Billings, Mont.

There is this peculiar thing about Ayer's Hair Vigor—it is a hair food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn black, look dead and lifeless. But gradually the old color comes back,—all the rich, dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Dizzy?

Then your liver isn't acting well. You suffer from biliousness, constipation. Ayer's Pills act directly on the liver. For 60 years they have been the Standard Family Pill. Small doses cure. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers

50 CTS. OF DRUGGISTS, OR R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H.

WE PAY R. R. FARE AND UNDER $5,000 Deposit, Guarantee

Positions

500 FREE SCHOLARSHIPS. BOARD AT COST. Write Quick to Ga.-Ala. Business College, Macon, Ga.

Bryant & Stratton

Business, Shorthand and Telegraph College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free

Mitchell's Eye Salve

Intense pain in the eye is often excruciating and calls for immediate relief. Mitchell's Eye Salve will do more for the sufferer than all the new-fangled remedies put together. Mitchell's is an old, reliable salve. Price, 25c.

By mail, 25c. Hall & Ruckel, New York City.

Smithdeals

Is the oldest and only business college in Va. owning its building—a grand new one. No vacations. Ladies & gentlemen. Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Typewriting, Penmanship, Telegraphy, &c. Leading business college south of the Potomac river.—Addis Stenographer, Address, G. M. Smithdeal, President, Richmond, Va.

Atlanta College of Pharmacy.

Well equipped Laboratories, excellent Teachers, a free Dispensary, where hundreds of prescriptions by the best physicians are compounded daily by the students. Students obtain first-class practical instruction as well as that of a theoretical nature. There is a greater demand for our graduates than we can supply. Address DR. GEO. F. PAYNE, Payne's Chemical Laboratory, Room H, Atlanta, Ga.

Now is the Time

You Need a Good Liver Medicine.

LIVERINA

Acts directly on the Liver, Relieving Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache and that Languid Feeling Peculiar to this Season of the Year.

Try it. 50c a Bottle at All Retailers.

GAY, HARDIE & DURR,

Proprietors, Montgomery, Ala.

$900 TO $1500 A YEAR

We want intelligent Men and Women as Traveling Representatives or Local Managers; salary $900 to $1500 a year and all expenses, according to experience and ability. We also want local representatives; salary $5 to $15 a week and commission, depending upon the time devoted; send stamp for full particulars and state position preferred. Address, Dept. B. THE BELL COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

AGENTS WANTED for the Brohard Sash Lock and Brohard Door Holder

Active workers everywhere can earn big money; always a steady demand for our goods. Sample sash lock, with prices, terms, etc., free for 3c stamp for postage. THE BROHARD CO., Station "O," Philadelphia, Pa.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE. ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E. 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

$75.00 To $150.00 Per Month

MADE BY AGENTS. Elegant Premiums Free. Address SCOTT REMEDY CO., LOUISVILLE, KY.

When you write mention this paper.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

USE CERTAIN COUGH CHILL CORN CURE. 25 50 $1.00

"The Sauce that made West Point famous."

McILHENNY'S TABASCO.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

$20.00 TO $40.00 PER WEEK

Being Made selling "500 Lessons in Business." It is a complete handbook of legal and business forms. A complete Legal Advisor—a complete Compendium of plain and ornamental Penmanship; a complete Lightning Calculator and Farmers' Reckoner.

A complete set of Interests, Grain, Lumber, and Cotton Tables; measurements of CISTERNS, Timber, Lumber, Logs and Bins of Grain, etc., in one volume. Over 472 pages, 250 illustrations.

It is a complete business educator; brought home to every purchaser, SIMPLE, PRACTICAL and PLAIN. 5,000 agents wanted at once. Boys and girls can sell as well as men and women.

One agent in the country sold 45 copies in one day. Another 110 in one week. Agents have canvassed all day and sold a copy at every home. Selling price, $1.00 and $1.50. Liberal discount to agents. Send 25c for outfit; satisfaction guaranteed (or money refunded). Circulars Free.

J. L. NICHOLS & JENKINS, ATLANTA, GA.

McLean's Strengthening Cordial

Is the Only Tonic Remedy

which has an immediate stimulating effect, relieves the weariness incident to over-exertion, and which continues its tonic effect, curing temporary illnesses and those of long standing. It has no equal as a "pick me up," toning up the system to withstand the lassitude and weariness incident to changes of season. It promotes appetite, aids digestion and makes one feel strong and well.

The best blood purifier in the world. One testimonial out of thousands:

Paducah, Texas, July 6th, 1900.

The Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sirs:—I am now 97 years old. I have been using McLean's Cordial in my family ever since the spring of 1886, and it has proven to be the most successful remedy I can get for the complaints for which you recommend it.

Yours truly, W. L. Lavy.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. Made only by

The Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Sozodont for the Teath and Mouth 25c | Thompson's Eye Water

For Bargains

—GO TO—

W. M. WILSON & BRO,

Closing out all Millinery and Ladies' Shirt Waists for less than cost.

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON.

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : ALA.

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER office

AT REDUCED PRICES

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

They banish pain and prolong life. ONE GIVES RELIEF.

R·I·PANS

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

THIS COMPLETE SHAVING OUTFIT FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

1 English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to shave	75c
1 9½ in Hair Brush	35c
1 Shaving Brush	10c
1 7 in Barber Comb	10c
1 Rubber Fine "	10c
1 4 in Pocket comb in case	10c
1 Bar good Shaving soap	10c
1 2½ in Mirror	10c
1 23 in Razor Strop	50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

The O. K. Lunch Counter

MEALS AND LUNCHES SERVED AT ALL HOURS AT POPULAR PRICES

Fish and Oysters during the Season

I pay highest market price for Chickens and Eggs.

LUNCHES PUT UP FOR TRAVELERS

THE O K. LUNCH COUNTER

NEXT THE RAILROAD, CLANTON

W. H. STACY, Proprietor.

WOMAN'S RELIEF

A really healthy woman has little pain or discomfort at the menstrual period. No woman needs to have any. Wine of Cardui will quickly relieve those smarting menstrual pains and the dragging head, back and side aches caused by failing of the womb and irregular menses.

WINE OF CARDUI

has brought permanent relief to 1,000,000 women who suffered every month. It makes the menstrual organs strong and healthy. It is the provision made by Nature to give women relief from the terrible aches and pains which blight so many homes.

GREENWOOD, LA., Oct. 14, 1900.

I have been very sick for some time. I was taken with a severe pain in my side and could not get any relief until I tried a bottle of Wine of Cardui. Before I had taken all of it I was relieved. I feel it my duty to say that you have a wonderful medicine.

MRS. M. A. YOUNT.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP

W. H. TAYLOR, Proprietor.

HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING

In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.

HOT AND COLD BATHS.

CLANTON

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the BANNER.

Headache bad? Get Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

GENERAL CONVENTION EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SAN FRANCISCO, California, October, 1901.

The Southern Pacific Co's "Sun Set Route" takes pleasure in announcing very low round trip rates from all Coupon Tickets Offices in this territory to San Francisco, Cal., account of the above occasion

Tickets on sale September 18-26 inclusive.

Stop-Overs are allowed on the going trip in Texas and West thereof provided, passengers reach San Francisco not later than October 2nd, and on the return trip at points West of Colorado Common Points, San Antonia and Fort Worth, Texas, provided, passengers reach starting point within the extreme limit of the ticket, November 15, 1901.

The privilege of going one route and returning another will be allowed.

Particular attention is called to the "Convention Special," one of the finest trains in the world, from New Orleans through to California without change. This train carrying the equipment of the "Famous Sun Set Limited" Vestibuled Sleeping and Dining Cars, especially arranged to carry the delegates and visitors to California, will leave New Orleans Wednesday, September 25th. Stops will be made at various interesting points enroute.

The following rates have been authorized from various points to San Francisco and return.

Anniston	$ 55.55
Attalla	$ 55.15
Birmingham, Selma, Decatur, Mobile, Montgomery and Tuskaloosa	$ 51.75
Eufaula	$ 56.55
Florence	$ 50.95
Huntsville	$ 53.20
Opelika	$ 55.70

Rates are open to all.

For further information call on or address GEO. W. ELY, T. P. A. Sun Set Route," Montgomery, Ala.

A Water Melon Party.

For a short while Tuesday evening the young people of Clanton were very blue. They had anticipated a moonlight drive to the residence of Mr. Alfred Popwell, where they were to spend some time in devouring some very fine water melons. At the hour for starting on the drive the weather was so unfavorable the party thought it prudent not to go out, and just at the point of such conclusion Mrs. W. H. Foshee, (much to the delight of all concerned), in her usual hospitable manner, invited the party to spend the evening at her home, which we did. Those that lent most to the pleasure of the evening were Miss Nellie Merritt, of Birmingham, with her music, and Miss Blanche Foshee with her recitations. At 9:30 two of the young men, probably those who had had most experience in pulling melons at night, were requested to visit Mr. Foshee's patch and see what could be had in the melon line. They did as requested and returned with four very fine melons, which were eaten and very much enjoyed by the party. We were much indebted to Mrs. Foshee for an evening of royal pleasure.

Near the Popping Point.

"Mary," said her father, "you have been keeping company with that Mitchell fellow for more than a year now. This courtship must come to a termination."

"Oh, father, how can you talk so? He is, oh, so sweet and nice!"

"Ah!" And the fond father arched his eyebrows. "Sweet and nice, eh? Has he proposed?"

"Well, father, not exactly." And the girl hung her head and fingered the drapery of her dress. "He hasn't exactly proposed; but, then, last evening when we were out walking we passed by a nice little house, and he said, 'That's the kind of cottage I'm going to live in some day,' and I said, 'Yes,' and then he glanced at me and squeezed my hand. Then, just as we got by, I glanced back at the cottage, and—and I squeezed his hand!"

"Oh, ah, I see!" said her father. "Well, we'll try him another week or two."—London Answers.

He Was Relieved.

The other day a person dropped down in an apoplectic fit immediately in front of a police station and was carried inside. A moment after a woman forced her way in through the crowd gathered around the door, exclaiming: "My husband! My poor husband! Clear the way and let in the air!"

She then busted herself by taking off the man's cravat and performing other little offices until a surgeon arrived, when the patient gradually recovered his senses. On this the sergeant in charge observed that it was a happy relief for his distressed wife as well as for himself.

"My wife!" exclaimed the man. "Why, I am a bachelor!"

On seeking for the woman it was found that she had disappeared and with her the watch and purse of the patient, which she had adroitly abstracted under the very eyes of the police.—London Tit-Bits.

Lomax.

Some of our farmers are busy pulling fodder.

The little infant child of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McKinney, we are sorry to say is quite sick.

We are glad to say Mrs. Gid Hendley is improving after five months of serious illness.

Several from here attended services and baptizing at Cane Creek Sunday.

Miss Willie Marlar and little Mary Lodge of Billingsley paid a pleasant visit to Mrs. Markee Monday.

Mr. T. J. Marcus and family of Jasmine are visiting Mr. G. O. Foshee.

Mr. Dudley Thompson of Long Street paid our town a pleasant visit Sunday evening.

Misses Annie and Mary Lou Marlar visited Miss Eloise Markee Tuesday.

Mr. Bill Lodge of Mt. Creek is a pleasant visitor here this week.

Miss Laura Langston of Jemison is visiting relatives here this week.

Miss Evie Hill has returned from a pleasant visit to her sister at Swift Creek.

Miss Edna Gaylor is visiting friends here this week.

Mr. W. I. Mullins is coning up the timber on Mr. H. A. Wilson's land; so Lomax will soon put on a little business appearance. M.

Bicyclist, base ball and foot ball teams will find Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic the very thing they "need in their business" when the race is ended and the game is tied. For Sore muscles, Bruises, Sprains, etc., it is O. K., and "don't you forget it." Clean and pleasant as perfume and costs only 50c.

NEURALGIA cured by Dr. Miles' Pain Pills. "One cent a dose." At all druggists.

An Enjoyable Entertainment.

In compliment to Misses [illegible] and Essie Charles Stewart, who will shortly depart for Loretto College, Loretto, Ky., Mrs. Gemma Jackson, on Tuesday afternoon, from four until six, entertained a party of their young lady friends at a luncheon. A game of rare training game, known as Schoolmarm was played and much enjoyed by the party. Everyone expressed and appreciated the generous hospitality of their hostess, Mrs. Jackson.

Your druggist knows a good thing when he sees it. He always keeps Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for sale because it is a good thing. He likes to sell it because it always gives perfect satisfaction.

THE BEST WAY TO THE SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST NORTH AND NORTH-WEST

—is via the—

L. & N.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.

The Through Cars

Of this line pass Chicago daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans.

Connecting with all points in TEXAS AND THE WEST.

Also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Connecting for all points in the NORTH AND NORTH-WEST

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or B. F. Ansley, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS is the one important magazine in the world giving in its pictures, its text, in its contributed articles, editorials and departments, a comprehensive, timely record of the world's current history. Not the enumeration of mere bare facts, but a comprehensive picture of the month, its activities, its notable personalities, and notable utterances. The best informed men and women in the world find it indispensable.

There are many readers in your locality who have yet to learn of its usefulness. We wish to establish active agents in every city and township in the country. We will pay liberally for energetic effort in the subscription field. Leisure moments can be utilized with substantial increase of income. Make a list of the persons in your locality who should have the "Review of Reviews," and send to us for agent's terms, sample copies, and working outfit. Then solicit their subscriptions. It is a compliment to approach a person with a subscription proposition for the "Review of Reviews" and consequently orders are easily secured. This is the active subscription season. Make application at once, naming your references.

Price, 25 cents a number. $2.50 a year.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS COMPANY,

13 Astor Place, New York City.

SAVE YOUR STAR TIN TAGS

"Star" tin tags (showing small stars printed on under side of tag). "Horse Shoe," "J. T.," "Good Luck," "Cross Bow," and "Drummond" Natural Leaf Tin Tags are of equal value in exchanging presents mentioned below, and may be assorted. Every man, woman and child can find something on the list that they would like to have, and can have

FREE!

	Tags.
1 Match Box	[illegible]
2 Knife, one blade, good steel	[illegible]
3 Scissors, 6½ inches	[illegible]
4 Child's Set, Knife, Fork and Spoon	[illegible]
5 Salt and Pepper box, one each, quadruple plate on white metal	[illegible]
6 French Briar Wood Pipe	[illegible]
7 Razor, hollow ground, fine English steel	[illegible]
8 Butter Knife, triple plate, best quality	60
9 Sugar Shell, triple plate, best quality	60
10 Stamp Box, sterling silver	70
11 Knife, "Keen Kutter," two bladed	70
12 Butcher Knife, "Keen Kutter," 6-in blade	70
13 Shears, "Keen Kutter," 8-inch	70
14 Nut Set, Cracker and 6 Picks, silver plated	60
15 Base Ball, "Association," best quality	100
16 Alarm Clock, nickel	400
17 Six Genuine Rogers' Teaspoons, best plated goods	200
18 Watch, nickel, stem wind and set	900
19 Carvers, good steel, hardwood handles	240
20 Six Genuine Rogers' Table Spoons, best plated goods	300
21 Six each, Knives and Forks, hardwood handles	300
22 Six each, Genuine Rogers' Knives and Forks, best plated goods	[illegible]
23 Clock, 8-day Carriage, Time and Thermometer	[illegible]
24 Gun (or another, at same price, [illegible]	[illegible]
25 Revolver, automatic, double action, or 20 caliber	[illegible]
26 Tool Set, 101 pieces, best tools made	[illegible]
27 Toilet Set, decorated porcelain, very best design	[illegible]
28 Remington or Winchester R. R. or R. R. caliber	[illegible]
29 Watch, sterling silver, [illegible]	[illegible]
30 Dress Suit Case, leather, hardwood and graphite	[illegible]
31 Sewing Machine, first class, with all attachments	[illegible]
32 Revolver, Colt's, Smallbore, target size	[illegible]
33 Rifle, Colt's, Marlin, Smallbore	[illegible]
34 Guitar, Washburn's, rosewood, [illegible]	[illegible]
35 Mandolin, very best [illegible]	[illegible]
36 Winchester Repeating Rifle, best [illegible]	[illegible]
37 Investigate, double-barrel, hammerless shotgun, 10 or 12 gauge	[illegible]
38 Bicycle, standard make, [illegible]	[illegible]
39 Rifle, Remington, [illegible]	[illegible]
40 Shotgun Shell, Nitro, 10 to 12 gauge	[illegible]

THE ABOVE OFFER EXPIRES NOVEMBER 30TH, 1900.

BE SURE IN MIND that a dime's worth of

STAR PLUG TOBACCO

will last longer and afford more pleasure than a dime's worth of any other brand.

MAKE THE TEST!

Send tags to CONTINENTAL TOBACCO CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Judge of Probate

THE BANNER.

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

X | CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 5, 1901 | NO. 46

An Enjoyable Entertainment.

In compliment to Misses Alice and Essie Charles Stewart, who will shortly depart for Loretta College, Loretta, Ky., Mrs. Gamma Anderson, on Tuesday afternoon last, from four until six, entertained a party of their young lady friends at a luncheon. A novel and entertaining game, known as Silhouette, was played and much enjoyed by the party. Everyone enjoyed and appreciated the generous hospitality of their hostess, Mrs. Anderson.

Your druggist, knows a good thing when he sees it. He always keeps Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for sale because it is a good thing. He likes to sell it because it always gives perfect satisfaction.

THE BEST WAY TO THE SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST, NORTH AND NORTH-WEST, IS VIA THE

L. & N.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.

The Through Cars

Of this line pass Clanton daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans.

Connecting with all points in TEXAS AND THE WEST.

Also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Connecting for all points in the NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or S. F. Ammons, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

N MONTHLY REVIEWS

NTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS
in the world giving in its pictures, cles, editorials and departments, a f the world's current history. Not facts, but a comprehensive picture notable personalities, and notable men and women in the world find it

In your locality who have yet to h to establish active agents in every ry. We will pay liberally for energ- ld. Leisure moments can be utilized ome. Make a list of the persons in the "Review of Reviews," and send copies, and working outfit. Then a compliment to approach a person for the "Review of Reviews" and secured. This is the active subscrip- at once, naming your references.

er. $2.50 a year.

REVIEWS COMPANY,

New York City.

TAR TIN TAGS

small stars printed on under side of "Good Luck," "Cross Bow," and Tin Tags are of equal value in assort- , and may be assorted. Every man, mething on the list that they would

REE!

PIRES NOVEMBER 30TH, 1900.

dime's worth of

UG TOBACCO

re pleasure than a dime's worth of snuff

THE TEST!

AL TOBACCO CO., St. Louis, Mo.

MAN ON THE CORNER

Of So Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

more contracts for brick have been made this last and the work has been al commenced. Mr. Harry L. of Birmingham, is the con- and he has made a vigor- start which promises well for days ahead. The two new for A. C. Smith and Mims, and are located next Kamie's old store, right up court house well. They good deal to the appearance street at that end.

the other side of the street some verandas are being on front of the four new buildings recently completed, sidewalk has been put in fine condition. Will Sartor into his new brick store and it looks mighty well Dick Edwards has nearly the brick work on his and is about ready to fit another couple of weeks J. M. Broadhead will occu- with a new stock of goods want to see things hum Clanton.

we heard some very conflict- as to how Clifton was vote on the new constitu- Some say the vote will be ification, and others affirm county will go two to one the new constitution. I yet made up my mind—ing until The Banner gives of the new constitution, a good deal like the fel- the old song: "O, how could I be with either, were dear charmer away."

is now coming in, and I heard Mr. Danforth has cents for a bale this after- Now, I am not going to advice on my own ac- am going to tell you are advising. The growers' Protective Asso- says don't take less than The Birmingham Age- published at Age-Herald, take of you can't get any Dispatch or the Age- for the price of those kind, this is a news- published in Birmingham, something worth think- and it can't get take eight cents, in consideration of all events, the Age-Herald.

Begins to be a feeling in sequent after sundown, of the nights are delightfully pleasant. The fall of gladness brings to hearts gay. Man and is never the summer it is too long for winter, in the is too cool and we sigh And so it goes, ever for that which is beyond us.

help feeling sorry for fortunate men in Elmore who have gone to the peni- for participating in a It is not so much the themselves, but their families hard on them. At the same men met their passion their discretion they have the consequences, and the children are left to weep them. They are the real sufa lot of bravery to walk Justice's office and have a tried.

Maplesville.

Miss Leonora McAllister of Marion has lately visited Mr. R. H. Martin.

Miss Lela May Bostwick of Randolph, Mrs. Shelley and daughter, Miss May Belle, of Miss., Mr. McGee of Talladega, brother of Mrs. Mary DuBose, and Mr. Anderson of Fort Deposit have all been visitors of Mr. T. U. Crumpton.

Mrs. Sullivan of Dayton has visited Mrs. Glover, her sister, at this place.

Mrs. Eva McCary, Miss Sallie Walker and Misses Abney have all lately visited here.

Mrs. Touro and family of Clanton are now with her brother here Mr. Domsky.

The Misses Blalock have lately pleasantly visited in Columbiana.

Mrs. Minnie Blalack of Ridersville has visited the old folks here.

Miss Manvey Lathram of Centreville has visited Misses Savage.

Little Miss Rice of Tuskaloosa has visited her sister, Mrs. Biddie, here.

Capitalists are still floating around promiscuously, we hope will alight some day and invest.

Mr. Nash and family have moved to the regret of many friends.

Cotton is opening and making trade brisker; crops are much better than once hoped.

Little Lillian Claughton's grandpa of Montgomery has delighted her with a visit.

Our colored friends and some whites are enjoying watermelon.

SUBSCRIBER.

On the 30th of Aug. we feel that Maplesville was spiritually refreshed by the most earnest sermons delivered in the Methodist church by Rev. A. J. Cousins, P. C. Moore of Randolph, W. B Dennis of Plantersville. Our layman, J. W. Fox, gave us a most earnest and Christian talk. Sister Rush gave us a most impressive talk on the missionary cause to a large congregation; her words were so impressive as to decide the ladies here to form a missionary society. Though all were not here as programed we had a most profitable and pleasant meeting. Maplesville sustains her record for hospitality to the visiting members of the conference. The town is under obligations to Mesdames R. R. Martin, A. S. Foshee and T. U. Crumpton; the last for a very handsome pulpit bouquet; the first with the assistance of Masters Kelley Martin, Fred McCarty and little Miss Mede Kelley rendered valuable assistance in putting our church and yard in good condition.

It is invidious to speak of any because there were so many who showed good will by hospitality to visitors.

REVOLG.

Don't throw away that sample bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic you have received. It's too good to be wasted. Nothing like it for cuts, burns, nail punctures, inflamed eyes, sore throat, etc. Internally it cures colic, diarrhoea and flux.

Macedonia.

Everything is moving on as usual; some of us are about done pulling fodder and ready to pick cotton.

The storm damaged crops considerably in this "neck of the woods," though we hope we will get a good price for our cotton. If so we will not be hurt so bad after all.

Mr. Wilson Gipson has had a very sick child, though is some better at this writing.

Quite a number of our people have been attending the meeting at Mulberry the past week.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Martin, a daughter.

Messrs. Hubbard & Glass have sold their mill and gin to Mr. Merchant, and he will move it to his home four miles west of Jemison.

Mr. W. D. Nix will now put in a grist mill, or rather that is what dame rumor saith, and we hope it is so.

Mr. J. C. Veazey is now at home after teaching a singing school at Adams.

Well, the Teachers' Institute is coming, so I guess "Trick" had better put up a chicken and have it fat.

TRICK.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25 cents.

Stumps Hill.

The most powerful revivals this neighborhood have ever known closed here last Wednesday, the 28th of August. The Baptist church at New Hope closed their meeting, conducted by Rev. C. H. Lowery, on the 16th of August with 19 additions to the church, and the Methodists at Arches Chapel closed their meeting on the 28th of August with 27 additions to the church. These churches are only about one-half mile apart and Baptists and Methodists worked together in brotherly love in both meetings. Rev. N. A. Dobbs, Rev. Cyrus Cassady and Rev. C. H. Lowery worked in the Methodist meeting.

Very often all in the house except about a half dozen were either shouting, praying aloud or kneeling to be prayed for, and one night all but two. God's power came down and seemed to fill the whole house. At times the regular course of the meeting had to be stopped while the people shouted and praised God. The exact number of conversions is not known but there were many, some of whom were converted between services while at prayer in the grove near the church.

I stated these revivals have closed but this is only true in a sense. We don't expect to see them close. Our prayermeetings (two or three times a week) are like a revival. May God's blessing be with the ministers who labored with us.

Bro. Cassidy says there is more religion and less pride in Stumps Hills than anywhere else in Chilton county, and Bro. Dobbs, who is 76 years, old and has spent most of his time preaching, says this was the best meeting he ever saw.

SR. C. THORNTON.

Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is the most wonderful healing compound of the nineteenth century. Preserves the flesh, preventing inflammation and heals like magic. Ask your druggist for it.

East Chilton.

Sweet summer is gone again, and harvest time is now at hand. Cotton fields are putting on their beautiful robes of white and the fodder fields are already ripe unto harvest. Our hearts swell with gratulation when we listen to the merry farmer boy singing his songs of glee, as he goes forth into the field to gather in the results of his honest labor.

There is quite an excitement prevailing now over the scarlet fever epidemic, though we haven't had any cases of it in this immediate neighborhood.

We are glad to say that Mr. W. T. Mims' family is up again.

Mr. E. A. Norris is being troubled with backache.

David Kendrick has about succeeded in breaking E. A. Norris' wild mule to ride.

B. . Kendrick left here Saturday en route to Wetumpka, where he will enter school.

J. T. Beck and family visited relatives at Burwell Sunday.

Quite a number of our young people attended service at Chestnut Sunday.

The writer had the honor of being present at the marriage of four of his most intimate friends, Thursday evening, August 29.

W. D. Goss will begin work at W. D. Driver's again Monday.

W. F. Connell has returned from a visit to his brother in Tuskaloosa.

SUDON.

Jemison.

The Jemison Institute opens on Monday, September 9, with Prof. W. A. McCreless as principal. A successful and prosperous session is anticipated.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

THORSBY, ALA.

Notice to Bridge Builders

I will let to the lowest and best bidder, on Monday, September 9, 1901, a bridge to be built over Walnut Creek, near Clanton. Description of bridge will be given on that day.

RUFUS RIGGINS,
Commissioner.

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brooding into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Clanton Drug Co.

DOWNS' FIRE SALE
—ON—
SNUFF AND TOBACCO
FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS

$3.50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnaps Early Bird, Long Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

and on Thursday, July 25,

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Bruton.
$1.00 gets you 10 boxes 3½ oz. Bruton.
$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 3½ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO
and 600 pounds of SNUFF
Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $
But they must go just the same.

Mortgage Sale.

Under and by virtue of the powers contained in a deed of mortgage, executed by the trustees of Clanton Congregational church of the town of Clanton, to the Congregational Church Building Society, on the 4th day of February, 1893, which said deed of mortgage is recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, in Volume 28 of Mortgages, page 473, and which said mortgage has been duly transferred and assigned to the undersigned, I will proceed to sell at auction to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court House door, in Clanton, in said County, on

MONDAY SEPTEMBER the 30, 1901, within the legal hours of sale, the following described real estate in said mortgage deed mentioned and described, to-wit:

Lots number 1, 2, 7 and 8 in Block 12, situated east of the Louisville & Nashville railroad in the town of Clanton, county of Chilton and State of Alabama.

ALEX G. DAKE, Transferee.
By ROBT H. KNOX, his Attorney.

Commissioner's Sale.

In pursuance and in accordance with the terms and directions of a Commission issued and directed to the undersigned by the hon. S. M. Adams, Judge of Probate of Chilton county, bearing date of July 22nd, 1901, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder for cash, at public auction, in front of the Court House door of said county, at Clanton, on TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER the 10, 1901, the following described land to-wit: The northwest quarter of the southwest quarter, section 29, township 21, range 3 in Chilton county, Alabama, which land and is to be sold under the decree of the Probate Court of said county for the purpose of a division among the several owners thereof, who are the heirs at law of Edward Mims, deceased.

A. G. SMITH, Commissioner.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Clanton drug store.

WANTED.

LAND FOR SALE. Any man wishing to buy good farms will do well to apply to

C. J. STEWART, Clanton, Ala.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1899. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

"It's no joke," when we say that Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is superior to anything offered the "dear people" as a dressing for wounds, bites and stings of insects, "poison oak," It's cleanliness, pleasant odor and quick cures make it a universal favorite wherever known. Price 50c. Remember that it is guaranteed by your druggist.

Mr. H. Barclay says he has found oil in Prattville and has looked over Chilton county and found a rich vein of gold near Fort DeSoto and the finest ochre bed in the United States and also the best oil stones, a mountain of each, and he is pretty certain he has discovered emery. About four miles from Prattville, he has the best clay for making fire brick that can be found.—Prattville Progress.

Alabama Girls' Industrial School.
MONTEVALLO, ALA.

The next session opens September 18, 1901. An enlarged Dormitory and new class rooms make it possible to provide for more girls, and to offer better accommodations. For catalogue address

FRANCIS M. PETERSON,
President.

GOING TO SCHOOL?

The Fifth District Agricultural School at Wetumpka, Ala., offers you good opportunities and low prices. $5.00 (Five dollars) covers all charges for nine months, session beginning Sep. 3d, 1901.

Board $8.00 per month.

Send for catalogue.

H. J. WILLINGHAM,
President.

Positions GUARANTEED UNDER A $5,000 DEPOSIT
R. R. FARE PAID
200 FREE
Scholarships offered. Write quick to
GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts.
Office at the Adams' place
CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN C. DENNIS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts.
CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. KNOX,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CLANTON, ALA.
Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama.

Dr. OTTO M. WISEHART,
DENTIST.
OFFICE HOURS. 8 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 6 p.m.
Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS,
SPECIALIST
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
OFFICE 22 S. PERRY ST.
Office Hours: 9 to 12 and 2 to 4.
Telephone 496—2 Calls.
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. N. S. JOHNSON
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at Olan on Drug Store CLANTON

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL,
JACKSONVILLE, ALA.
A school to prepare teachers Demand for graduates greater than the supply. Board $5 per month up. Tuition free. Nineteenth year. Session begins Oct. 1, 1901. For catalogue address
CLARENCE W. DAUGETTE,
President.

E W Grove
This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL
CLANTON, ALA.

Is a training and strictly private school for boys and girls.

Correllated to the University of Alabama and to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Has fitted more pupils for college, more pupils for teaching, more pupils for advanced business positions than all other schools in Chilton county combined. It is the only school in Chilton county whose pupils have a First Grade Certificate under the present school laws.

Its course of instruction is the best arranged, its methods the soundest, most thorough and up-to-date; its scholarship the most advanced; its location, buildings, grounds, furniture, equipments, the most attractive and best adapted of any school in Chilton county.

Its pupils enter any college in the South on certificate of the Principal. It deals honestly with the public adheres to professional courtesy, and performs its promises. Its mission is to build up, not to pull down. It is not, as some are, a mere common school called "College," "Normal," etc., by which misnomers the uninformed are misled.

$101 pays all expenses of board, tuition, fuel, lights, etc., for session of nine months. School opens September 11, 1901. Write for catalogue.

E. Y. MEMORRIES, Principal.

To All Whom it May Concern:

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 3, 1901

No person, or persons, can lawfully solicit or write insurance for the Chilton county Branch of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama, unless he, or they, bear a commission (empowering him or them to perform such work) signed by Wallace C. Edler, General Agent of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama.

All persons concerned will govern themselves accordingly.

WALLACE C. EDLER,
General Agent Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

SLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

An attempt to prove war impossible will never result in the abolition of war. There is, however, a growing belief that war is always impolitic.

The convict who has been released because of his claim that he has discoverd the lost art of hardening copper has probably mistaken that metal for brass.

Many a woman would possibly feel discouraged did she realize that she carried from 40 to 50 miles of hair on her head and that some of them are burdened with the task of dressing over 70 miles of hair every day of their lives.

An international congress is projected, to be held shortly at Berne, Switzerland, at which an amendment is to be offered to the Geneva convention, to provide for the immunity from capture of surgeons and their attendants serving on the field of battle under the Red Cross. Common humanity suggests its adoption.

One of the results of the South African war has been the organization of rifle clubs in Great Britain on the Boer plan, to teach every man capable of carrying arms how to shoot at long range and to detect objects at long distances. These clubs are organized by field cornets, and all members are on an equal footing in service, irrespective of their status in society.

The success of the recent experiment made by a Philadelphia tug matter in towing two loaded coal barges from the Delaware to Havana promises a growth of the export coal trade to the West Indies which is encouraging. Hitherto the chronic swell off Cape Hateras has deterred a venture of this sort, but, the trip once easily made, many other towns may be expected to follow in the wake of this courageous Philadelphia captain.

About a year ago the Hawaiian government undertook to burn up some plague infected buildings, and in so doing set fire to the local Chinatown, thus sewing the seed of a crop of claims now nearly ready for harvesting A million and a half was appropriated to meet them, but they already exceed $5,000,000 and are still coming in. It is a new role for John Chinaman to appear in, but as a debutant it is not to be denied that he shows considerable talent.

The growing importance of commerce on the Pacific is indicated by the charting of "lanes" for steamers crossing that ocean. Such lanes have been established for many years between Europe and America and have greatly diminished the risks of collision. There is still danger of collision of steamers with sailing ships, especially in the foggy region off the Newfoundland coast, but such vessels know when they are in one of the steamship lanes and take extra precautions to avoid danger. Hitherto the steamers on the Pacific have been so few that no official action has been deemed necessary, authouga the courses usually taken have been fairly well understood by all shipmasters.

This is largely, perhaps essentially, an ultilitarian age, but that is no reason why the esthetic and beautiful should be ignored in government buildings and parks. Very recently Mr. Frederic Harrison, one of the leading English men of letters, visited Washington and spoke in high terms of the beauties of the capital of its possibilities in the future. Europeans who come to the United States and visit Washington compare it most favorably with the capitals of the old world. The United States is the youngest of the great powers in the world, but it is not too young to make its capital city take rank in architectural beauty with those of nations which were well advanced in years before this republic was born.

The man who means to succeed with a farm must plow and harrow, and sow and cultivate, doing so with his head as well as with his hands, and the head must precede the hands and know by constant reflection, as well as by experimentation, what is lacking and what is present and what to do in every case. This no outsider can tell the farmer. Nature is a jealous mistress and demands constant association and oneness before she will give of her best to any one, reflects Home and Farm.

CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS

Further Report of Alabama's Constitutional Convention.

Seventy-seventh Day.

Convention Reassembled—Harmony Committee Reports—Address To the People to be Issued.

One hundred and fifteen delegates answered roll call at the reassembling of the convention, and two more were present in the afternoon. At the first session Mr. Samford introduced a resolution providing that a committee be appointed to prepare an address to the people of the state, setting forth the advantages of the constitution, and that 50,000 copies be printed and distributed.

In the afternoon the committee report recommending a two-thirds vote necessary to adopt further amendments was defeated. In the debate Judge Cobb remarked that the constitution would be ratified by 50,000 majority.

A silver band has been placed on the gavel which President Knox uses, inscribed: "This gavel was used by me while presiding over and in adjourning the constitutional convention. Montgomery, Ala., August, 1901. John B. Knox." It is the property of the mother of Delegate Vaughan, of Dallas. It is made from the wood of the First Methodist church of Selma, recently torn down. Mrs. Vaughan loaned it to President Knox.

Seventy-eighth Day.

Five Sections Adopted—Bessemer Lost Out—Sheriff Matter Settled—Amendments Tabled.

Ninety-four delegates answered both roll calls today. The report of the committee on harmony came up for discussion. Article I containing the declaration of rights was adopted. Article II, relating to state and county boundaries, was read and Mr. Cornwell made a final effort to get a new county for Bessemer. The attempt failed, and the section was adopted. Article III, governing the distribution of the powers of government, was adopted without change. Article IV, the legislature department, was adopted after considerable debate. Article V, the executive department, came next. This contains the sheriff matter and debate was rife upon that section. The matter remains as in the old constitution save that the sheriffs may be impeached before the supreme instead of circuit court. Article VI on judiciary was read and the convention adjourned.

Seventy-ninth Day.

Four Articles Adopted—Another Poor Day for Amendments—Burns' Sensational Speech.

Ninety and 99 was the attendance today. The articles on judiciary, impeachments, suffrage and elections were adopted. Gov. Oates offered three amendments in succession to the article on judiciary but they were all tabled. Mr. O'Neal tried it also but his amendment went to the graveyard for such measures. Gov. Jones was more successful in amendments to the article on impeachment, scoring two tallies, one providing that if the governor or lieutenant-governor is tried before the senate as a court of impeachment, the chief justice of the supreme court or some other justice should preside at the trial; the other providing that the secretary of state, on request in writing of a majority of the members of the house, stating they desired to impeach the governor, shall call a special session of the legislature to consider the matter.

The article on suffrage was read. Mr. Freeman, a republican, moved to amend to provide that none but legal white voters should vote at the election called for the adoption of the constitution. Mr. Burns offered another, providing that illigitimates should not vote, and made a sensational speech in which he called republicans rattlesnakes. The amendments were tabled.

General Harrison, of Lee, offered an amendment providing that a person could vote who owned $300 of property of all kinds. This was adopted and the article referred back to the committee on harmony.

The article on representation was adopted without change. The article on taxation was adopted after placing Bessemer in the same class with Birmingham. The article on municipal corporations was read and the convention adjourned.

Eightieth Day.

Constitution Completed—Final Vote Was 95 to 10—Sheriffs to Hold Two Years Longer.

But one session was held today and ninety-one delegates were present. The convention reconsidered its action of yesterday in adopting an amendment allowing persons owning $300 of real and personal property to vote. The law now stands as originally adopted.

An ordinance was adopted extending the terms of the present sheriffs two years. Another was adopted prohibiting cities of over 6,000 inhabitants granting franchises for a longer time than thirty years. Mr. Beddow made an effort to change the convict lease system, but it was defeated.

The articles on suffrage, banks and banking, education, militia, miscellaneous provisions and amending the constitution were adopted and a provision making it necessary to register to vote for the constitution.

This completes the work of the convention except the enrolling of the constitution. This will be finished and the delegates will sign it.

The constitution as a whole was adopted by a vote of 95 to 10. The announcement of the vote was greeted with cheers. Those who voted against the constitution were delegates Bartlett, Beddow, Byars, Cofer, Forshee, Phillips, Porter, Spears, Studdard and White.

The convention adjourned until noon Monday, when several ordinances not intended to go into the constitution will be taken up.

Eighty-first Day.

Oates and Harrison Will Support the New Constitution—Ready for Signing Tomorrow.

One hundred and eight and 98 was the attendance today. The morning session lasted only an hour and was spent largely in personal explanations. Mr. Case announced that he voted for the adoption of the constitution when he intended to vote against it. Gen. Harrison announced that he would support the new constitution although he was absent when the vote was taken.

The committee on harmony reported that the constitution would be ready for signing tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

In the afternoon, Judge Cobb offered a resolution that the roll be again called tomorrow to enable those delegates who were absent Saturday to vote for the adoption of the constitution. This was adopted.

Gen. Oates announced that he would support the new constitution.

A GENIUS DEAD.

Dr. William Barnsmore Pope died Friday at Mobile, aged 51 years. He was noted as a pianist of remarkable gifts. When thirteen years of age he appeared with Mme. Anna Bishop in NewYork. He visited Havana, then Canada, and made two tours of England, playing before the royal family of England in 1864. Later in life he devoted himself to the practice of medicine.

MOTHER AND CHILD KILLED.

One of the most pitiful accidents in the history of Birmingham occurred Saturday. A young mother, with her baby boy clasped in her arms, was run into by an electric car and both were crushed lifeless beneath the wheels. The speed of the car was such that it passed entirely over the bodies and ran half a block before stopped. The men in charge of the car were arrested. The identity of the woman was not revealed for several hours. She was a Mrs. Curry S. Norris, and the bodies were taken to Tuscaloosa for interment.

WAS DETERMINED.

Mrs. Jennie Day, a widow, attempted to commit suicide in Montgomery Tuesday night by cutting her throat with a knife, but was prevented from doing so. She later was found with a bottle of morphine, but this, too, was taken away from her. She stated to the officers by whom she was arrested that she was utterly destitute and without employment, so wished to end her life.

SUPERINTENDENT of Education Abercrombie has announced the re-appointment of the following county superintendents for the term beginning October 1: Barbour county, C. S. McDowell, Jr.; Chambers county, W. G. Jarrell,; Choctaw county, O. L. Gray,; Greene county, John G. Apsey,; Hale county,; J. A. Ellerbe,; Madison county, J. D. Humphrey,; Perry county, L. V. Spessard,; Pickens county, L. V. Rosser,; Talladega county, J. B. Graham.

CORN lands are out of water and the crop is ruined, at Florence.

CORONER PARIS, of Jefferson county, is investigating the death of a white child who was found inclosed in a wooden box and barely covered near Enon Ridge. The child was several days old and its head bore bruises evidently made with a blunt instrument.

DEMOPOLIS is to have a street fair in October.

As an evidence that the Mexican Republic is progressing it is only necessary to state that the expenses of that Government are over three times what they were twenty years ago.

A TERRIBLE CLOUDBURST.

A LAUNCH EXPLODES ON THE HUDSON RIVER, NEAR ALBANY.

HORRIBLE FREIGHT WRECK IN MONTANA.

Dr Frederick H. Knight Elected President of New Orleans University—A Large Mortgage Filed—Building Collapsed.

FAMILY ALMOST ANIHILATED.

A naphtha launch exploded on the Hudson river, a mile and a half below Albany Sunday night, killing Mrs. Alexander and her little daughter, and burning Wilbur Alexander and his son in a horrible manner. The son, 12 years old, carried a lantern past the tank containing the naphtha and an explosion occurred, scattering the fluid in every direction and setting fire to the launch. Mrs. Alexander and her daughter were near the tank and their bodies were completely covered with the burning oil. The son jumped into the water when the explosion took place. Mr. Alexander rushed to the assistance of his wife and daughter, but they were burned to death before his eyes. He was at length compelled to jump into the river to save himself. The bodies of the wife and daughter were burned to a crisp and the launch was entirely consumed. Mr. Alexander and his son were severely burned about the head and body. It is believed Mr. Alexander will die. The boy will recover.

CLEVELAND FLOODED.

A terrible cloudburst occurred at Cleveland Sunday morning between 3 and 5 o'clock followed by a furious rain until after 9 o'clock. The storm, according to the weather officials, was the heaviest that has swept over Cleveland since the establishment of the government bureau more than forty years ago. That no lives were lost is nothing short of a miracle, as stories of thrilling escapes on the principal residence streets are told. The waters spread over an area eight miles long and a mile and a half wide, and varying in depth from one to six feet. Residences were inundated and fell like buildings of cards. Rowboats plied back and forth assisting whole families from perilous positions, and it was found neccessary to call on the life saving crew from the river, seven miles away. The damage will aggregate $1,000,000. The damage to the railways cannot even be estimated until the large force of track hands sent out on emergency calls can be heard from. The precipitation was 4.28 inches.

TERRIBLE WRECK.

About 8:30 p. m. August 30, at Essex, Montana, eighteen cars broke from the rear of a frieght train and ran down hill, sixteen miles to Nyock where it overtook a passenger train. In the collision P. T. Downs, Assistant General Superintendent his son, Kirk T. Downs, his cook, Henry Blair, and about twenty-five laborers were killed. None of the regular passengers on the train were injuried. The wreck took fire and the remains of all except five of those killed were burned. Twelve laborers and a brakeman were injured, and ten cars of freight caught fire.

DR. FREDERICK H. KNIGHT, of Boston, has been elected president of the New Orleans University. Dr. Knight has been pastor of St. John's Church, of Boston, for the past eight years. He will enter upon his new duties at the opening of the school this year.

A BIG BET.

What is said to be the greatest wager in the history of the sporting world is arranged upon the international yacht races. Twenty English and American capitalists are interested in a venture which involves nearly a half million dollars. W. F. Mustin, president of the Pittsburg Stock Exchange, representing ten wealthy residents of that city, gave assurances to Walter J. Kingsley that the $150,000 which he brought from an English syndicate of prominent men to be placed upon the Shamrock would be covered at odds of 5 to 3.

AN INTERESTING TIME.

Workmen while excavating for a sewer on Christiana street, Santiago, Cuba, a hundred yards from the shore of the bay in made land, discovered the wreck of a schooner ten feet below the surface. Silver coins bearing date of 1648 were found in the wreck. Several interesting relics and old silver plates of the seventeenth century were also found.

A BIG MORTGAGE.

The filing of a mortgage for $7,500,000 by the Bethlehem Steel Company, stating that securities deposited included 5555 acres of land on the Hackensack meadows, brings to light a very important feature of the Anglo-American steel deal in process of formulation. Extensive improvements are in contemplation in that district, and it is said to be the intention of this company to build another large steel plant to be used chiefly for the making of armor plate for warships. Where the plant will be located is impossible to state, but it will presumably be somewhere within easy reach of the mining regions. In addition to this armor plant possibly in Pennsylvania, it is understood that a great shipbuilding plant will be located in the Hackensack meadows.

DOWIE AFTER LAND.

It is stated on what seems to be reliable authority that John Alexander Dowie has made an offer to the Winthrop Harbor and Dock Company for the purchase of all the holdings of the company. The Winthrop Harbor Company owns thousands of acres of land and has a lake frontage of two miles. The price demanded, about $2,000,000, is said to have been offered by Dowie. The tract of land adjoins Dowie's Zion city. The principal portion of the land is taken up by the village of Winthrop Harbor, which is the property of the company.

FALLING BUILDING KILLS TWO

A two-story brick building occupied as a business house and residence, collapsed without warning at Rutherford, Tenn., Saturday, fatally injuring Roy Townsend and Kerr Alexander. Five others were injured, but none seriously. Grading and excavating a lot next to the place caused the crash.

EX-OFFICER ARRESTED.

Former Auditor James H. Burns, of St. Paul, Minn., has been arrested on a charge of grand larceny preferred by County Treasurer Metzdorff. The arrest was made in connection with the alleged recently discovered tax certificate frauds, by which the county is believed to have lost large sums.

FIRST SINCE JUNE.

A good rain fell in Waco, Texas, Friday afternoon, the first since ne 1st. Good rains are reported all over that country. Some high winds have done considerable damage to cotton bolls. No other damage reported. The rain extended as far north as Corsicana.

THE STRIKE.

Nothing leading to the settlement of the big strike has developed. Both sides are claiming gains. The labor organs, are asking for Shaffer's impeachment. Some of the labor leaders are declaring the strike lost.

PRESIDENT HILL, of the Great Northern, has ordered that steam locomotives be superceded by electric motors on the Cascade division of the Great Northern. It is understood that if this change works satisfactorily electric motors will be introduced on other divisions of the road.

CAPTAIN VODGES, in charge of the Knoxville recruiting station, during the month just closed swore in 214 men for army service. This is the banner record except during progress of war, and will eclipse records made by many of the larger cities.

SAN FRANCISCO capitalists have undertaken to establish a coach line between Cook Inlet, St. Michael and Nome, a distance of about 600 miles. The enterprise will involve an expense of $200,000.

THE family of Lord Salisbury is anxious for him to relinquish the Premiership owing to the undue strain which is impairing his health.

GEORGE BELCHER, well known as an expert and fancy swimmer, was drowned at Rockaway Beach, Sunday, while giving an exhibition.

DURING the week just closed nine gushers were brought in, which is decidedly the biggest week in the history of the Beaumont fields.

CARRIE NATION was arrested in New York Sunday for "raising a crowd and creating a riot."

THE Shamrock II developed a speed of 14 knots an hour last Saturday.

LATEST FROM WASHINGTON

RECENT PROBLEMS OF [illegible] AND HOW SOLVED.

OUR CORRESPONDENT'S WEEKLY [illegible]

Money to Move Cotton—[illegible] Boston Banks—New Mexico [illegible] Roosevelt for President [illegible] 1904—the British Cable [illegible]

Acting under instructions from Treasury department, Assistant [illegible] ed States District Attorney [illegible] Casey brought suit in the [illegible] States Circuit Court against [illegible] tional banks of Boston, Mass. [illegible] cover on pension checks [illegible] them for collection. The [illegible] which the banks are sued range [illegible] $7,000 down, a sibling [illegible] allegation is that the banks have [illegible] fraudulent pension vouchers [illegible] having drawn upon the [illegible] in Boston for the amount. The [illegible] are the outcome of the arrest and [illegible] viction of W. A. Munson who [illegible] recently in the Rhode Island [illegible] prison. Munson was sentenced [illegible] years for unlawfully making false [illegible] tificates on pension vouchers and [illegible] fraudulent endorsements. [illegible] collections were made through the [illegible] banks the United States government [illegible] decided to bring suit against the [illegible] the recovery of the full amount.

The shipments of money from [illegible] treasury to the South and West [illegible] the movement of crops have been much heavier this season than [illegible] before. At the close of August [illegible] there had been transferred [illegible] treasuries at Chicago, New [illegible] and St. Louis the sum of $2,[illegible] At the close of the same month [illegible] the total was $3,400,000, and at [illegible] close last month the total was [illegible] 000, of which New Orleans has [illegible] ed $2,525,000. The currency [illegible] ped as a rule one-fourth in [illegible] tificates up to $5, one-fourth [illegible] ted States notes of the denomination [illegible] of $10 and the remainder in [illegible] tificates. Gold coin is not [illegible] for crop moving purposes.

An interesting report, [illegible] work on the British Pacific [illegible] be the longest one ever laid [illegible] received at the State Department [illegible] Consular Agent Robinson at [illegible] Island. The report states that [illegible] passage across to Norfolk Island [illegible] Brisbane, Australia, soundings [illegible] taken every ten miles. The [illegible] depth obtained was 2800 fathoms [illegible] and the most shallow 237 fathoms [illegible] has been decided to land the [illegible] Anzon Bay on the west side of [illegible] folk Island.

Gov. Otero, of New Mexico, [illegible] the territory over which he is [illegible] is enthusiastic in its support of [illegible] President Roosevelt for the [illegible] in 1904. In the opinion of [illegible] Otero, Vice President Roosevelt [illegible] at this early date, can feel [illegible] sure that the united votes of [illegible] Mexico delegation will be given [illegible] when his name comes up in the [illegible] republican convention.

The comparative statement [illegible] government's receipts and expenditures during the month of [illegible] shows the total receipts from all [illegible] to have been $45,394,12[illegible] expenditures $39,351,49[illegible] surplus for the month of $6,[illegible] against August, 1900, of $6,[illegible]

Brig. Gen. William Lefferts [illegible] A., died at Convent, N. J., [illegible] sumption Friday. His illness [illegible] noticed on his arrival in the Philippines, in May last. He was [illegible] sent home in the hope that the [illegible] can climate would restore him [illegible] went at once to Convent.

The Nicaraguan Congress [illegible] proved the Merry-Sanson [illegible] treaty with the United States [illegible] journed. It will probably be [illegible] ble in the latter part of January.

General Whiteside has left [illegible] a two-months' furlough. He [illegible] man of the Eighth Cavalry will [illegible] mand the district from Ringgold [illegible] ing General Whiteside's [illegible]

It seems that Admiral Dewey [illegible] not be relieved by the Navy [illegible] ment of the appointment of the [illegible] inquiry board.

Uncle Sam has purchased [illegible] order of steel from the [illegible] for repair work in the navy [illegible]

The Federal party has been [illegible] ized in Manila, and Juan [illegible] prominent native Filipino [illegible] elected president. The [illegible] outlined a strong pro-American [illegible]

Senator Hanna's [illegible] has been launched. The [illegible] Ward M. A. Hanna Club [illegible] land is behind the enterprise.

Admiral Sampson is improving though still very feeble. It [illegible] that he will appear [illegible] Schley inquiry.

ILL ARP'S LETTER

[illegible] Man Delights to Hear [illegible] Aged Contemporaries.

GIVES MANY LETTERS FROM THEM

[illegible] of the Writers Were William's [illegible] in the Long Ago.—Tries to Answer All of Them.

[illegible] are not all dead. In fact, they [illegible] to multiply as the years roll on—[illegible] contemporaries, I mean. I receive [illegible] letters from old men than I ever [illegible] and they write well and give long [illegible] When a man gets along in [illegible] seventies he feels lonesome, notwithstanding the near presence of [illegible] and grandchildren. The companions of his youth are gone, and so [illegible] of these old men unbosom themselves to me for sympathy. I like such [illegible] and try to answer them all, but [illegible] in my arm and hand [illegible] my replies. One old gentleman from Alabama says he feels better after he has written, for he is a [illegible] Georgian and loves her people [illegible] her old red hills and the sweet [illegible] of Emory college and his [illegible] to Athens, where his Uncle Eli Newton lived, and how he met me [illegible] in the forties and John Grant [illegible] Dan Hughes and Jack Brown and [illegible] Williams, who married my [illegible] cousin and took charge of the [illegible] asylum—and how he heard Dr. [illegible] preach and was charmed with [illegible] music of the choir, where Miss Ann [illegible] and Rosa Pringle and other [illegible] girls sang, and how a tall, long [illegible] man, with a big hooked nose and [illegible] "pomum Adamus" on his throat [illegible] bass, and how he was a room [illegible] of Tom Norwood at Emory and a [illegible] mate of Bishop Key and Judge [illegible] Longstreet, the author of "George [illegible]" was the president, and [illegible] removed to Alabama in 1849 [illegible] married and has seven daughters [illegible] sons, and has ten orphan grandchildren, and has to work early and [illegible] to support and educate them, but [illegible] sees and rarely hears from any [illegible] of his youth and is at times sad [illegible] depressed and longs for sympathy. Poor old man, I wish that he [illegible] near me, for I would visit him and [illegible] him up, and tell him anecdotes [illegible] antidotes, and we would talk over [illegible] old times and swap college stories [illegible] brag about the good old days [illegible] there were no telegraphs or telephones or bicycles, and we did not [illegible] any; no sewing machines or [illegible] clothes, and we didn't need any; [illegible] football or baseball or hazing or [illegible] or appendicitis. And in those [illegible] same Toombs and Stephens and [illegible] Dougherty and Howell Cobb and [illegible] Colquitt and spake to the people [illegible] face to face, and such eloquent [illegible] as George Pearce and Bishop Capers and Jesse Mercer and Dr. Hoyt [illegible] Goulding and Ingles preached to [illegible]. Yes, we would talk about the [illegible] of our boyhood, when there was [illegible] or kerosene or friction matches [illegible] nothing but candles to give us light [illegible] no Prometheus to steal fire from [illegible] to light them with. Shakespeare knew how it was, for he wrote:

"[illegible] far that little candle throws its beams [illegible]hines a good deed in a naughty world."

Shakespeare wrote by candle [illegible], why shouldn't we? And he, [illegible] used the flint and steel to make a [illegible] to light them. "Pick your flint [illegible] keep your powder dry," was Gen. Jackson's order at New Orleans. [illegible] I was a young merchant gunpowder was as common as marbles, and [illegible] them at the same price—10 [illegible] a dozen. Wonderful, wonderful [illegible] the changes, and we old people [illegible] in with them and adapt them to [illegible] and our comfort. I wouldn't [illegible] back to the good old times if [illegible], but I would enjoy seeing this [illegible] all set back about seventy [illegible], just for about a week. My Alabama friend and other veterans would [illegible] to death to see the university—no railroads or telegraph, [illegible], but once a week—and 25 cents [illegible] a single letter. No daily newspaper in the state and only four weekly [illegible] with no sensations, no suicides [illegible]ings. There would be no cook-stoves, no coal, no steel pens or [illegible], no cigarettes. No millionaires or free niggers. I remember [illegible] cotton was packed in round [illegible] with a crowbar. The long bag [illegible] made first and was suspended [illegible] a hole in the gin house floor and [illegible] Jack got down in it and packed [illegible] cotton hard as it was thrown to [illegible]. He packed two bales a day and [illegible] weighed 400 pounds each. Two [illegible] filled the bed of the big wagon and five more were crossed on top [illegible] fastened down with a long pole. The little spaces were filled with [illegible] and fodder, the big cover put on [illegible] with a four or six-horse team we [illegible] off for Augusta. It was a ten-[illegible] trip and we boys were happy to [illegible] and camp out all night and [illegible] to the nigger drivers tell about [illegible] and Jack-o'-Lanterns and [illegible] and raw head and bloody [illegible]. It was great fun. We brought [illegible] sugar and molasses in great [illegible]. It was brown sugar, for [illegible] sugar wasn't invented, except a [illegible] called loaf sugar, which was put [illegible] five-pound cones and covered [illegible] blue paper. That kind was for [illegible] and was very precious. It

LATEST FROM WASHINGTON

RECENT PROBLEMS OF STATE AND HOW SOLVED.

OUR CORRESPONDENT'S WEEKLY LETTER

Money to Move Cotton—Suing Boston Banks—New Mexico for Roosevelt for President in 1904—the British Cable.

Acting under instructions from the Treasury department, Assistant United States District Attorney John Casey brought suit in the United States Circuit Court against six national banks of Boston, Mass., to recover on pension checks taken by them for collection. The sums which the banks are sued range from $7,000 down, a sliding scale. The allegation is that the banks have paid fraudulent pension vouchers and having drawn upon the sub-treasury in Boston for the amount. These are the outcome of the arrest and conviction of W. A. Munson, who was recently in the Rhode Island state prison. Munson was sentenced to two years for unlawfully making false certificates on pension vouchers and for fraudulent endorsements. As the collections were made through Boston banks the United States government decided to bring suit against them for the recovery of the full amount.

The shipments of money from the treasury to the South and Western for the movement of crops have been much heavier this season than ever before. At the close of August, 1902, there had been transferred to the sub-treasuries at Chicago, New Orleans and St. Louis the sum of $2,118,000. At the close of the same month in 1903 the total was $3,400,000, and at the close last month the total was $7,000,000, of which New Orleans has received $2,525,000. The currency is shipped as a rule one-fourth in silver certificates up to $5, one-fourth in United States notes of the denomination of $10 and the remainder in gold certificates. Gold coin is not in demand for crop moving purposes.

An interesting report, showing work on the British-Pacific cable to be the longest one ever laid—has been received at the State Department from Consular Agent Robinson at Norfolk Island. The report states that the passage across to Norfolk Island from Brisbane, Australia, soundings are taken every ten miles. The greatest depth obtained was 2800 fathoms and the most shallow 237 fathoms. It has been decided to land the cable at Anzon Bay on the west side of Norfolk Island.

Gov. Otero, of New Mexico, says the territory over which he is the chief is enthusiastic in its support of President Roosevelt for the presidency in 1904. In the opinion of Governor Otero, Vice President Roosevelt, at this early date, can feel reasonably sure that the united votes of the New Mexico delegation will be given him when his name comes up in the republican convention.

The comparative statement of the government's receipts and expenditures during the month of August shows the total receipts from all sources to have been $45,394,125 and the expenditures $39,351,497, leaving a surplus for the month of $6,042,628, against August, 1900, of $6,552,000.

Brig. Gen. William Ludlow, U. S. A., died at Convent, N. J., of consumption Friday. His illness was noticed on his arrival in the Philippines, in May last. He was then sent home in the hope that the American climate would restore him. He went at once to Convent.

The Nicaraguan Congress has approved the Merry-Sanson canal treaty with the United States and adjourned. It will probably be in the latter part of January.

General Whiteside has left on a two-months' furlough. Major Hoff, man of the Eighth Cavalry will command the district from Helena during General Whiteside's absence.

It seems that Admiral Howison will not be relieved by the Navy Department of the appointment on the inquiry board.

Uncle Sam has purchased in order of steel from the Krupps for repair work in the navy.

The Federal party has been organized in Manila, and Jose A. Leal, a prominent native Filipino, has been elected president. The new party outlined a strong pro-American policy.

Senator Hanna's presidential boom has been launched. The Young Men's Ward M. A. Hanna Club of Cleveland is behind the scheme.

Admiral Sampson is improving though still very feeble. It is hoped that he will appear before the Schley inquiry.

...LL ARP'S LETTER

...ow Man Delights to Hear ...rom His Aged Contemporaries.

...OME HAVE LETTERS FROM THEM

...ost of the Writers Were William's "Chums" in the Long Ago.—Tries to Answer All of Them.

They are not all dead. In fact, they seem to multiply as the years roll on—contemporaries, I mean. I receive letters from old men than I ever did before, and they write well and give long sermons. When a man gets along in his seventies he feels lonesome, notwithstanding the near presence of children and grandchildren. The companions of his youth are gone, and so many of these old men unbosom themselves to me for sympathy. I like such letters and try to answer them all, but my arm and hand are not in my replies. One old gentleman from Alabama says he feels better after he has written, for he is a true Georgian and loves her people and her old red hills and the sweet memories of Emory college and his home in Athens, where his Uncle Ellington lived and how he met me in the forties and John Grant and Dan Hughes and Jack Brown and Joe Williams, who married my mother's cousin and took charge of the lunatic asylum—and how he heard Dr. Longstreet preach and was charmed with the music of the choir, where Miss Ann Eliza and Rosa Pringle and other young girls sang, and how a tall, long, lean man with a big hooked nose and a "potium Adamus" on his throat was there and how he was a room mate of Tom Norwood at Emory and a mate of Bishop Key and Judge A. B. Longstreet, the author of "Georgia Scenes," was the president; and how he removed to Alabama in 1849 and married and has seven daughters and no sons and has ten orphan grandchildren, and has to work early and late to support and educate them, but never sees and rarely hears from any of his youth and is at times sad and depressed and longs for sympathy. Poor old man, I wish that he could hear me, for I would visit him and cheer him up and tell him anecdotes and anecdotes and we would talk over old times and swap college stories and brag about the good old days when there were no telegraphs or telephones or bicycles, and we did not care a say no sewing machines or sewing clothes and we didn't need any; no football or baseball or hazing or hobbies or appendicitis. And in those days came Toombs and Stephens and Cobb and Dougherty and Howell Cobb and Robert Colquitt and spake to the people face to face, and such eloquent men as George Pearce and Bishop Capers and Jesse Mercer and Dr. Hoyt and Goulding and Ingles preached to us. Yes, we would talk about the days of our boyhood, when there was no gas or kerosene or friction matches nothing but candles to give us light and to Prometheus to steal fire from the gods to light them with. Shakespeare knew how it was, for he wrote:

"For that little candle throws its beams Shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Shakespeare wrote by candle light, why shouldn't we? And he, had to use the flint and steel to make a fire to light them. "Pick your flint and keep your powder dry," was General Jackson's order at New Orleans. And I was a young merchant gunner. They were as common as marbles, and cost them at the same price—10 cents a dozen. Wonderful, wonderful are the changes and we old people must go with them and adapt them to our use and our comfort. I wouldn't go back to the good old times if I could, but I would enjoy seeing this generation all set back about seventy years just for about a week. My Alabama friend and other veterans would be shocked to death to see the university today—no railroads or telegraph, mail, but once a week—and 25 cents for a single letter. No daily newspaper in the state and only four weeklies with no sensations, no suicides or hangings. There would be no cookstoves, no coal, no steel pens or hoops, no cigarettes. No millionaires or free niggers. I remember a cotton was packed in round bales with a crowbar. The long bag was made first and was suspended from a beam in the cotton house floor and the Jack got down in it and packed the cotton hard as it was thrown to him. He packed two bales a day and weighed four pounds each. Two ropes tied the bed of the big wagon and five more were crossed on top and fastened down with a long pole. The little spaces were filled with fine fodder, the big cover put on with a four or six horse team we set for Augusta. It was a ten-day trip and we boys were happy to go along and camp out all night and listen to the nigger drivers tell about ghosts and Jack-o-Lanterns and eat raw head and bloody bones. It was great fun. We brought sugar and molasses in great cones. It was brown sugar, for white sugar wasn't invented, except a refined loaf sugar which was put up in five-pound cones and covered with blue paper. That kind was for company and was very precious. It was crystallized like these little square lumps that are common now. When our mother would unwrap the loaf she would let us children lick the sweet white tissue paper that was next to the sugar. It was good. Most anything was good then. A stick of striped candy was a rare treat. So was half an orange, or a bunch of "resins," as the niggers called them. Most anything was good then, for our appetites had not been surfeited with cakes and sweetmeats, as they are now. We loved sassafras root and angelica and sugar berries and locusts and wild cherries and the inside bark of chestnut trees and slippery elm. We were always hungry and hunting for something. My Alabama friend is sad, not only because he has lost his youthful companions, but his youthful appetite. Even ginger cakes have lost their relish and a game of sweepstakes and town ball and bull-pen their fascination. I envy the happy children as they play around me, but I am happy, too, in trying to make them happy, for I know that there is trouble enough ahead of them, for man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble. The best we can do is to do the best we can to fortify against it and take the bad with the good. Try to be calm and serene, for life is full of blessings and we should school ourselves to magnify them and be thankful. I have not forgotten the poor little boy who slept under the straw, and one cold windy night his mother laid an old door on the straw to hold it down, and he said, "Mother, I reckon there are some little boys who haven't got any door to put over them." It is a good way for us to think about those who are worse off than we are, and my Alabama friend knows there are thousands of them.

But I must stop, for it is hard to write a cheerful letter these gloomy days. The weather is depressing and that helps my Alabama friend to feel sad. Cobe says that a long wet rain is worse on a man than a long dry drought. We have not seen the blessed sunshine for four long days and the wind has blown down my pretty butter bean arbor flat to the ground.—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

PROMINENT PEOPLE.

Marquis Ito, of Japan, has abandoned his proposed American tour.

President Kruger has definitely abandoned his proposed trip to America.

Cardinal Gibbons has returned to Baltimore, Md., after a tour of Europe.

The King and Queen of Italy will probably visit Germany during the autumn.

Empress Frederick left a fortune estimated at $5,000,000, besides the Friedrichshof estate, which cost her $1,500,000.

William J. Bryan has bought a controlling interest in a tract of oil lands, embracing several hundred acres in Wyoming.

Henry L. Wilson, United States Minister to Chile, formally denies the report that he will retire and devote his time to commerce.

Lieutenant-Colonel Marchand, of Fashoda fame, has been promoted to the chief command of a brigade of French troops in China.

Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, and his family, have arrived at St. Petersburg, Russia, after a brief visit to Moscow and Warsaw.

Adjutant-General Thomas J. Stewart, of the Pennsylvania National Guard, has broken his left leg below the knee jumping from a carriage at Harrisburg.

A Judge appointed by President Lincoln still sits on the United States Circuit Court bench. He is John Jay Jackson, of Parkersburg, W. Va., whose term of office has now extended over forty years.

H. N. Pillsbury, the chess expert, recently played one night twelve simultaneous games of chess and six games of checkers, winning them all. Then, next morning, he worked out the games for a number of his friends, not making a mistake in repeating one of the moves.

Englishmen smile when you ask for a copy of the British constitution. That august document exists only in the imagination, although it is quoted and discussed and appealed to frequently. It is like the ghost of Hamlet's father. It has been and it is and it ever shall be, but it is an intangible thing. The British constitution consists of the precedents established by parliament during the last 600 years—a very complicated and intricate code, which may be changed at any moment in deference to public sentiment or to meet new conditions and emergencies, but never to promote the ambition of men. The voters of England are extremely sensitive and suspicious. They keep good men in parliament, but bad men cannot stay and are seldom re-elected, writes William E. Curtis, in the Chicago Record-Herald.

Consul-General Guenther at Frankfort, Germany, notifies the State Department, at Washington, that German newspapers report that the agricultural societies of Italy will pay a prize of $193 for a reliable method of ascertaining the quality of sulphur and of mixtures of sulphur and sulphate of copper most effective in the use against plant diseases. Often such mixtures, it is stated, are inferior, and this competition, international in character, is thus offered with a view of alleviating that difficulty.

THE GRACIOUSNESS OF MIRTH.

One of the Greatest Treasures a Household Can Possess.

The man who labors and unselfishly struggles all the long days for the wife and children and home, says the New York Evening Post, does not realize that if he could put into the family treasury the richness of occasional hours of happy intercourse he would endow them more graciously than when he bestows his generous wealth. The lost hilarity and gladness of his youth would be a measureless boon at his own fireside and endear him to his children. Parents and children who laugh together become comrades in a very close way and when serious speech becomes necessary it has far more weight and force, because it is unusual.

Anything more dismal than the ordinary professional joker, anything more depressing than the studiously funny book, it is hard to find. The temperament which lightens the family atmosphere, and becomes a provider of oxygen to labored breathing, is wholly unconscious of a mission and gives forth its healthful influences as the sun and the sea breeze and the rippling water give, with the effortless beneficence of a wholesome, vitally strong nature. Merriment which is infectious belongs to him who has a clean heart and a wholly true nature, whose mental environment is proof against the microbes of distrust and deceit, and who counts love and good faith more precious than a fortune.

Such a temperament will triumph over disease and disappointment and give out his tonic antidotes against life's ills to the last. He who sleeps at Vaillima was a marvelous example of what I mean. And other such have I seen, valiantly smiling while death stood at the door, though helplessly feeble on a long-required bed, or standing erect, with a quenchless cheerfulness of eye and lip, encouraging his loved ones, even when the summoning angel laid his hand upon his gallant heart.

Endurance, courage, resignation, Spartan defiance of pain, are concomitant characteristics of our noblest men; but when a man inflexibly determines to keep "that side the world the sun's upon," and with quick kindling thought and gracious cheerfulness, reflect its light, he will add to these the remedy for ills which comes from a glad heart, and give to his companions the music of honest laughter set to merry words.

Let us bear in mind that around a family board and in the intercourse of our daily lives we can, without knowing it, kill every germ of these bright qualities in our children's minds by enveloping them in clouds of danger-dreading anxiety. Gradually, laughter will cease to be heard in the house, and the spectre-laying spear of quick wit lie idle in its place. To-day it is not rare to see children—boys especially—of ten and twelve and onward, keen and sharp in practice, energetic to an annoying degree, and perhaps boisterous in their clamor of one sort or another, who never laugh joyously or sincerely or attempt any playful raillery. Home is responsible for their unnatural hardness and maturity, and parental example has deprived them of the jolly spontaneity proper to their years.

Our human lives and mutual intercourse might well take pattern from the lovely aspect of midsummer nature, whose smiling face expresses joy even when clouds pile darkly on the horizon. The whole earth seems full of jollity, and in the deep shadow of the woods we yet hear the laughing flow of running streams.

The Art of Coloring Pearls.

Pearls can be made of various colors by a simple process. Each mollusk deposits its own sort of nacre. The nacre of the fresh-water mussel is pink. Pearl oysters will produce black, gray or pure white pearls, according to the part of the animal where the nucleus is lodged. At the National museum in Washington there is an artificial pearl of exquisite pink color as large as a pigeon's egg.

Parisian jewelers are very clever in the art of "peeling" pearls. They will take a pearl that is not pretty, remove its outer coat and reveal a beautiful gem within. A pearl is composed of alternate layers of nacre and animal tissue, and the process of peeling is very difficult. The tools employed are a sharp knife, various sorts of files, pearl powder and a piece of leather. The pearly coats are extremely hard and must be cut off piece by piece, the operator relying more on the sense of touch conveyed by the blade of the knife than on the sense of sight. Pearls found imbedded in the mother of pearl of the oyster shell are made marketable by skillful treatment with acids. Experts know how to make pearls of any color, black by a bath of nitrate of silver, and by other chemical means they can turn them to rose color, lilac or gray. Pearls of these unusual tints bring fancy prices.

Slender Cadet Turner.

Senator McComas has succeeded in having the physical disqualification of Herman S. Turner for admission to the Naval Academy waived, and the young man has entered the school. He is considerably more than six feet tall, but was said to weigh less than 100 pounds. He was threatened with rejection on this account, but the Senator came to his rescue and found that Turner's father, a robust man, was of similar physique in his youth, and that there was every reason to believe that the new cadet would develop into a strong man with the physical training given at Annapolis.—Baltimore Sun.

The milk of human kindness is too often condensed.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Nothing is Insignificant—Instances of on What a Slender Thread Great Results Hang—A Little Thing May Decide Your Fate—The Importance of Trifles.

[Copyright 1902.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A Bible incident not often noticed is here used by Dr. Talmage to set forth practical and beautiful truth; text, II. Corinthians xi. 33, "Through a window in a basket was I let down by the wall."

Sermons on Paul in jail, Paul on Mars hill, Paul in the shipwreck, Paul before the sanhedrin, Paul before Felix, are plentiful, but in my text we have Paul in a basket.

Damascus is a city of white and glistening architecture, sometimes called "the eye of the East," sometimes called "a pearl surrounded by emeralds," at one time distinguished for swords of the best material called Damascus blades and upholstery of richest fabric called damask. A horseman of the name of Saul riding toward this city had been thrown from the saddle. The horse had dropped under a flash from the sky which at the same time was so bright it blinded the rider for many days, and I think so permanently injured his eyesight that this defect of vision became the thorn in the flesh he afterward speaks of. He started for Damascus to butcher Christians, but after that hard fall from his horse he was a changed man and preached Christ in Damascus till the city was shaken to its foundation.

The mayor gives authority for his arrest, and the popular cry is, "Kill him, kill him!" The city is surrounded by a high wall, and the gates are watched by the police lest the Cilician preacher escape. Many of the houses are built on the wall, and their balconies projected clear over and hovered above the gardens outside. It was customary to lower baskets out of these balconies and pull up fruits and flowers from the gardens. To this day visitors at the monastery of Mount Sinai are lifted and let down in baskets. Detectives prowled around from house to house looking for Paul, but his friends hid him now in one place, now in another. He is no coward, as fifty incidents in his life demonstrate, but he feels his work is not done yet, and so he evades assassination. "Is that preacher here?" the foaming mob shout at one house door. "Is that fanatic here?" the police shout at another house door. Sometimes on the street incognito he passes through a crowd of clinched fists, and sometimes he secretes himself on the house top. At last the infuriate populace get on sure track of him. They have positive evidence that he is in the house of one of the Christians, the balcony of whose home reaches over the wall. "Here he is! Here he is!" The vociferation and blasphemy and howling of the pursuers are at the front door. They break in. "Fetch out that gospelizer and let us hang his head on the city gate. Where is he?" The emergency was terrible. Providentially there was a good stout basket in the house. Paul's friends fasten a rope to the basket. Paul steps into it. The backet is lifted to the edge of the balcony on the wall, and then while Paul holds the rope with both hands his friends lower away carefully and cautiously, slowly but surely, farther down and farther down, until the basket strikes the earth and the apostle steps out and afoot and alone starts on that famous missionary tour the story of which has astonished earth and heaven. Appropriate entry in Paul's diary of travels: "Through a window in a basket was I let down by the wall."

I observe first on what a slender tenure great results hang. The ropemakers who twisted that cord fastened to that lowering basket never knew how much would depend upon the strength of it. How if it had been broken and the apostle's life had been dashed out? What would have become of the Christian Church? All that magnificent missionary work in Pamphylia, Cappadocia, Galatia, Macedonia, would never have been accomplished. All his writings that make up so indispensable and enchanting a part of the New Testament would never have been written.

The story of resurrection would never have been so gloriously told as he told it. That example of heroic and triumphant endurance at Philippi, in the Mediterranean Euroclydon, under flagellation and at his beheading would not have kindled the courage of 10,000 martyrdoms. But that rope holding that basket, how much depended on it! So again and again great results have hung on slender circumstances.

Did ever ship of many thousand tons crossing the sea have such an important passenger as had once a boat of leaves from taffrail to stern only three or four feet, the vessel made waterproof by a coat of bitumen and floating on the Nile with the infant lawgiver of the Jews on board? What if some crocodile should crunch it? What if some of the cattle wading in for a drink should sink it?

Vessels of war sometimes carry forty guns looking through the portholes, ready to open battle. But the tiny craft on the Nile seems to be armed with all the guns of thunder that bombarded Sinai at the lawgiving. On how fragile a craft sailed how much of historical importance!

The parsonage at Epworth, England, is on fire in the night, and the father rushed through the hallway for the rescue of his children. Seven children are out and safe on the ground, but one remains in the consuming building. That one awakes and, finding his bed on fire and the building crumbling, comes to the window, and two peasants make a ladder of their bodies, one peasant standing on the shoulder of the other, and down the human ladder the boy descends—John Wesley.

If you would know how much depended on that ladder of peasants, ask the millions of Methodists on both sides of the sea. Ask their mission stations all around the world. Ask their hundreds of thousands already ascended to join their founder, who would have perished but for the living stairs of peasants' shoulders.

An English ship stopped at Pitcairn Island, and right in the midst of surrounding cannibalism and squalor the passengers discovered a Christian colony of churches and schools and beautiful homes and highest style of religion and civilization. For fifty years no missionary and no Christian influence had landed there. Why this oasis of light amid a desert of heathendom? Sixty years before a ship had met disaster, and one of the sailors, unable to save anything else, went to his trunk and took out a Bible which his mother had placed there and swam ashore, the Bible held in his teeth. The book was read on all sides until the rough and vicious population were evangelized, and a church was started, and an enlightened commonwealth established and the world's history has no more brilliant page than that which tells of the transformation of a nation by one book. It did not seem of much importance whether the sailor continued to hold the book in his teeth or let it fall in the breakers, but upon that small circumstance depended what mighty results?

Practical inference: There are no insignificances in life. The minutest thing is part of a magnitude. Infinity is made up of infinitesimals; great things an aggregation of small things. Bethlehem manger pulling on a star in the Eastern sky. One book in a drenched sailor's mouth the evangelization of a multitude. One boat of papyrus on the Nile freighted with events for all ages. The fate of Christendom in a basket let down from a window on the wall. What you do, do well. If you make a rope, make it strong and true, for you know not how much may depend on your workmanship. If you fashion a boat, let it be waterproof, for you know not who may sail in it. If you put a Bible in the trunk of your boy as he goes from home, let it be remembered in your prayers, for it may have a mission as far-reaching as the book which the sailor carried in his teeth to the Pitcairn beach.

The plainest man's life is an island between two eternities—eternity past rippling against his shoulders, eternity to come touching his brow. The casual, the accidental, that which merely happened so, are parts of a great plan, and the rope that lets the fugitive apostle from the Damascus wall is the cable that holds to its mooring the ship of the church in the storm of the centuries.

Again, notice unrecognized and unrecorded service. Who spun that rope? Who tied it to the basket? Who steadied the illustrious preacher as he stepped into it? Who relaxed not a muscle of the arm or dismissed an anxious look from his face until the basket touched the ground and discharged its magnificent cargo? Not one of their names has come to us, but there was no work done that day in Damascus or in all earth compared with the importance of their work. What if they had in their agitation tied a knot that could slip? What if the sound of the mob at the door had led them to say, "Paul must take care of himself and we will take care of ourselves?" No, no! They held the rope and in doing so did more for the Christian church than any thousand of us will ever accomplish. But God knows and has made record of their undertaking. And they know.

How exultant they must have felt when they read his letters to the Romans, to the Corinthians, to the Galatians, to the Ephesians, to the Philippians, to the Colossians, to the Thessalonians, and when they heard how he walked out of prison, with the earthquake unlocking the door for him, and took command of the Alexandrian corn ship when the sailors were nearly scared to death and preached a sermon that nearly shook Felix off his judgment seat! I hear the men and women who helped him down through the window and over the wall talking in private over the matter and saying: "How glad I am that we effected that rescue! In coming times others may get the glory of Paul's work, but no one shall rob us of the satisfaction of knowing that we held the rope."

Once for thirty-six hours we expected every moment to go to the bottom of the ocean. The waves struck through the skylights and rushed down into the hold of the ship and hissed against the boilers. It was an awful time, but by the blessing of God and the faithfulness of the men in charge we came out of the cyclone, and we arrived at home. Each one before leaving the ship thanked Captain Andrews. I do not think there was a man or woman that went off that ship without thanking Captain Andrews, and when years after I heard of his death I was impelled to write a letter of condolence to his family in Liverpool. Everybody recognized the goodness, the courage, the kindness of Captain Andrews, but it occurs to me now that we never thanked the engineer. He stood away down in the darkness amid the hissing furnaces, doing his whole duty. Nobody thanked the engineer, but God recognized his heroism and his continuance and his fidelity, and there will be just as high reward for the engineer, who worked out of sight, as for the captain, who stood on the bridge of the ship in the midst of the howling tempest.

Come, let us go right up and accost those on the circle of heavenly thrones. Surely they must have killed in battle a million men. Surely they must have been buried with all the cathedrals sounding a dirge and all the towers of all the cities tolling the national grief. Who art thou, mighty one of heaven? "I lived by choice the unmarried daughter of an humble home that I might take care of my parents in their old age, and I endured without complaint all their querulousness and administered to all their wants for twenty years." Let us pass on round the circle of thrones. Who art thou, mighty one of heaven? "I was for thirty-five years a Christian invalid and suffered all the while, occasionally writing a note of sympathy for those worse off than I, and was general confidant of all those who had trouble, and once in awhile I was strong enough to make a garment for that poor family in the back lane." Pass on to another throne. Who art thou, mighty one of heaven? "I was the mother who raised a whole family of children for God, and they are out in the world Christian merchants, Christian mechanics, Christian wives, and I have had full reward for all my toil." Let us pass on in the circle of thrones. "I had a Sabbath-school class, and they were always on my heart, and they all entered the kingdom of God, and I am waiting for their arrival." But who art thou, mighty one of heaven, on this other throne? "In time of bitter persecution I owned a house in Damascus, a house on the wall. A man who preached Christ was hounded from street to street, and I hid him from the assassins, and when I found them breaking into my house and I could no longer keep him safely, I advised him to flee for his dear life, and a basket was let down over the wall with the maltreated man in it, and I was one who helped hold the rope." And I said, "Is that all?" And he answered, "That is all." And while I was lost in amazement I heard a strong voice that sounded as though it might once have been hoarse from many exposures and triumphant as though it might have belonged to one of the martyrs, and it said, "Not many mighty, not many noble, are called, but God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty, and base things of the world and things which are despised hath God chosen; yea, and things which are not to bring to naught things which are, that no flesh should glory in His presence." And I looked to see from whence the voice came, and, lo, it was the very one who had said, "Through a window in a basket was I let down by the wall!"

Henceforth think of nothing as insignificant. A little thing may decide your all. A Cunarder put out from England for New York. It was well equipped, but in putting up a stove in the pilot box a nail was driven too near the compass. You know how that nail would affect the compass. The ship's officers, deceived by that distracted compass, put the ship 200 miles off her right course and suddenly the man on the lookout cried, "Land ho!" and the ship was halted on Nantucket shoals. A sixpenny nail came near wrecking a Cunarder. Small ropes hold mighty destinies.

A minister seated in Boston at his table, lacking a word, puts his hand behind his head and tilts back his chair to think, and the ceiling falls and crushes the table and would have crushed him.

A minister in Jamaica at night by the light of an insect called the candle fly is kept from stepping over a precipice a hundred feet. F. W. Robertson, the celebrated English clergyman, said that he entered the ministry from a train of circumstances started by the barking of a dog.

Had the wind blown one way on a certain day the Spanish Inquisition would have been established in England, but it blew the other way, and that dropped the accursed institution, with seventy-five tons of shipping, to the bottom of the sea or flung the splintered logs on the rocks.

Nothing unimportant in your life or mine. Three naughts placed on the right side of the figure one make a thousand, and six naughts on the right side of the figure one a million, and our nothingness placed on the right side may be augmentation illimitable. All the ages of time and eternity affected by the basket let down from a Damascus balcony.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR SEPTEMBER 8.

Subject: Jacob at the Well, Gen. xxviii, 10-22—Golden Text, Gen. xxviii., 15—Memory Verses, 12-15—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

10. "Jacob." "The supplanter." Jacob took advantage of his brother Esau, and by deception stole his blessing. The Lord had promised Rebekah that the birthright should be given to Jacob (chap. 25: 23), and if she and Jacob had waited with faith for the fulfilment of the promise, Jacob would have had honestly what he gained by trickery. But it seemed to Rebekah and Jacob that God's promises were about to fail, and they must do something to bring the right thing to pass, even if they did a wrong in accomplishing it. They gained nothing, but lost much by their wicked interference with God's plans. Jacob was obliged to flee for his life, and his mother never beheld her beloved son again. "Went out." Urged and assisted by Rebekah, who planned with Isaac to have Jacob go to seek a wife, but really the journey was taken to escape the wrath of Esau. Esau and Jacob were now fifty-seven years old. "From Beer-sheba." This was forty-five miles southwest of Jerusalem, where Isaac lived. "Haran." This was about 300 miles from Beer-sheba. Some say the distance was much greater. He went without a servant or any accommodations, except a staff (Gen. 32: 10); on foot and alone he pursues his solitary journey.

11. "A certain place." Near Luz. V. 19. This was between fifty-five and sixty miles northeast of Beer-sheba. It must have been toward the close of the third day since he left home. The gates of the city were probably closed for the night, before he was able to reach Luz, and thus he was forced to remain in the open field during the night. "Sun was set." The gates of the city were closed at the setting of the sun, but this may merely mean that it was late and therefore time for Jacob to stop. "One of the stones" (R. V.) This was no hardship for Jacob, as the Syrians do the same thing every night. Sleeping on the ground in the open air, where there is not even a bush for shelter is a common thing. A pillow of stone was but an outward expression of Jacob's feelings at this time. He was alone, poor, banished, undefended, with a long and dangerous journey before him among hostile tribes, and with an uneasy conscience.

12. "He dreamed." God has frequently appeared in dreams since Jacob's time. "A ladder." The design of the ladder was, 1. To show that God was watching over and regulating all things. 2. It pointed out the close connection between heaven and earth. 3. It was a type of Christ. The true life has always visions and ideals reaching far beyond our present state. We should be always climbing upward, and the rising will be step by step. "Angels of God." God would teach Jacob the connecting and living intercourse between heaven and earth. The angels descending designate the revelations, the words and promises of God; the ascending angels indicate faith, confession and prayer. Jacob had thought himself alone and defenseless; the vision musters armies for his safety. He had been conscious of but little connection with heaven; the vision shows him a path from his very side right into its depths.

13. "Stood above it." From Jacob's ladder we receive the first definite intimation that beyond "Sheol," heaven is the home of man. "To thee will I give it." Of all the descendants of Abraham "Jacob had been selected as the one in whose line the covenant blessings should flow."

14. "And thy seed," etc. The old promise made to Abraham more than a century before this is here renewed. "Of the earth." The expression points to the world-wide universality of the kingdom of the seed of Abraham. The fulfilment of this was in Jesus Christ. In Christ, who descended from Jacob according to the flesh, shall all the nations of the earth be blessed.

15. "I am with thee," etc. I will direct, help and support thee in a peculiar manner. He is assured that he will not be cast away from the presence of God.

16. "The Lord is in this place." God has made this place His peculiar residence. God is often very near when the trial is most severe and it seems to us that He has forsaken us entirely.

17. "He was afraid." Jacob had sinned and he knew it, and therefore was in no condition to meet God. His heart was not at home in the presence of God; nor can any heart be so until it has been thoroughly emptied and broken. "How dreadful." Awe-inspiring, commonly rendered fearful or terrible. To be in the presence of God is a dreadful place for a sinner. "The house of God." In whatever place the soul of man feels the presence and power of God there is the house of God. "The gate of heaven." Alluding to the ladder he had seen in his dream. A gate is an entrance, and if angels could ascend on this ladder and enter heaven, a poor distressed sinner might; so Jacob decided, and he acted accordingly, for soon we see him entering in.

18. "Set it up." He placed the stone in an erect position. "Poured oil." Thus consecrating it to God, so that it might be considered an altar.

19. "Beth-el." "House of God." The original name was Luz, but Jacob named the place Bethel.

20. "Jacob vowed a vow." A vow is a solemn promise by which a man binds himself to perform certain acts. When Jacob came to Bethel he was an unconverted man, and he was not converted while he was dreaming. God saves men when they are wide awake. According to the Bible plan no person is converted without true repentance, confession and faith. Did Jacob repent at this time? It seems clear that he did. Years afterward he desired to return to Bethel and build an altar to the God "who answered" him in the day of his "distress." Gen. 35: 3. From this we see, 1. That he was in "distress"—he had "godly sorrow" (2 Cor. 7: 10) on account of his sins. 2. He called on the Lord and God "answered" him. Thus God's appearing to him was the result of earnest, agonizing prayer on his part. 3. Jacob gave himself to God and took the Lord to be his God. V. 21. 4. He even promised to give to God a tenth of all that God might give him. Now here is ample proof of his conversion; for when a repenting heart comes thus to God, and makes his vow to God as Jacob did, the Lord is always ready to save. "If God," etc. A better rendering is "since God." His words are not to be considered as implying a doubt. He did not dictate terms to God; he really said that inasmuch as God had promised to sustain and keep him, therefore he would give himself to God.

22. "God's house." A place sacred to the memory of God's presence. "The tenth." As Abraham had done. Gen. 14: 20.

Steam turbine engines and Texas oil as fuel are new prospective agencies upon which promoters of fast transatlantic navigation rely for the future four-day boat. Why not? The drop from five days to four will scarcely be wonderful as the drop from seven days to five within twenty years past, remarks the Philadelphia Record.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

THERE was for a short time some fears entertained of an epidemic of scarlet fever in Clanton, but we are happy to say these fears have proved unfounded. Our leading physicians inform us there are no new cases of scarlet fever in Clanton, and the few old cases are convalescent.

SECRETARY Hester of the New Orleans cotton exchange has issued his annual report. The total cotton crop for 1900-1901 was 10,383,000 and its value $494,567,549. He compares the value of this crop with that of the year before last, 11,274,840 bales, the largest ever grown, and shows that we have received this year $211,794,562 more than we did for that crop, although this crop is 891,418 bales less.

THE Constitutional Convention has adjourned. Next week the Governor will set the day for the voters to decide upon ratification or rejection, and the election will be some time in November. THE BANNER is making arrangements to give its readers the new Constitution in full, and it is rather a lengthy document. It may be necessary to publish it as a supplement. We hope every man will study it himself and vote accordingly. If he thinks it better than the present Constitution he will of course vote for ratification, if not, then he should vote for its rejection.

OUR attention happened to be called a few days ago, to some stationery printed for the Town of Clanton. It was of poor quality and workmanship, and we thought it nothing but our privilege to find out how much it had cost the taxpayers of Clanton. We did find out, and our astonishment was great in discovering the unfortunate taxpayers of Clanton had been mulcted to the tune of about one hundred per cent. In other words the Town of Clanton had paid $7.25 (not including express charges, which probably amounted to 50 or 75 cents) for that which they could have obtained for four dollars in Clanton. And, we say this after due thought, for the four dollars in Clanton, the Town would have had BETTER work than that for which they paid double elsewhere.

If a merchant or individual prefers to pay higher prices and send his work away from home, that is his privilege, and we leave it to him for further consideration. But we do strongly object to the taxpayers—whether town or county—having to pay exorbitant prices for work which can be done at home for LOWER FIGURES AND EQUALLY AS GOOD.

So far as printing is concerned THE BANNER makes this proposition to all officials—county and municipal: any work we undertake to do shall be as good in quality and as low in price as they can get elsewhere, or the work shall be destroyed and THE BANNER will make no charge. The matter shall be left in their own hands; the Court of Commissioners shall be judges for the county, and the Councilors or Board of Aldermen for the municipalities. Is that a fair proposition? We would like to hear from the taxpayers.

THE BANNER asks favors from none, but we are not disposed to pay extra taxation to enrich competing firms at a distance.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

AFTER a session of eighty-two days the Constitutional Convention has adjourned sine die..

The new Constitution was signed by all but one of the one hundred and fifty-five delegates, and the Governor was authorized to expend one thousand dollars in publishing the new organic law throughout the State.

Each of the delegates was presented with a penholder and pen, provided by Mr. Sexton, chief clerk in the Secretary of State's office, to be preserved as souvenirs of the Convention of 1901.

President Knox was presented with a gold watch, and other officials also received presents. At the conclusion the Convention waxed musical, and several songs were sung, including "God be with you 'till we meet again," and the Doxology.

The Convention of 1901 is now a matter of history.

COL. J. M. FALKNER

The name of Col. J. M. Falkner the able attorney of the L. & N. railroad in Alabama has been suggested for vice-president of this system, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. A. W. Graham. Col. Falkner is most admirably suited for the position. It is understood the duties of the position are, in a large measure the framing of the policy of the system, as well to whom the traffic manager reports, this being the case, it would be difficult to find a man better fitted for the same than Col. Falkner, who has always had the confidence of President Smith as a faithful officer and who is known to have the good will of the whole people of Alabama. In this connection we desire to state that we do not believe there is a man to-day in Alabama that has more personal friends and weilds more influence in this State than Col. Falkner. If Col. Falkner should be promoted to the second vice-presidency of the L. & N. his position would necessarily remove him to Louisville, the headquarters of the road. His removal from Alabama would be a distinct loss to the State, while we would be glad to see him honored and advanced in railroad circles, still we would regret to see him leave Alabama.—Dixie Manufacturer.

Late Literary News.

Fourteen noted writers were sent by the Cosmopolitan Magazine to the Pan-American Exposition to study the most interesting features with a view to preparing the most beautiful souvenir of any Exposition ever made, from both a literary and an artistic standpoint. To "Mr. Dooley" was committed the case of the bird's-eye view of the Exposition in his own most delightful style. Albert Shaw and Nicholas Murray Butler studied the value of the Expesition, and its educational influence. Charles Y. Turner, to whom was committed the color-scheme of the Pan-American, explains the methods by which he has produced such marvellous results. Arthur Brisbane, in his own incomparable way, takes the Incubator Baby and Niagara Falls for his subject. Director-General Buchanan contributes a very interesting paper on the organization of the Exposition. Prof Pupin, Col. David Porter Heap, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Lavinia Hart, Julian Hawthorne and John Brisbane Walker are among others who will consider the various phases of the Exposition.

Under the direction of the editors of the Cosmopolitan, 104 photographs were prepared showing every variety of architecture and every phase of life, not neglecting the Midway, at the Pan-American. These are engraved and printed in a style never surpassed even in the Cosmopolitan's highest standard of art.

At Chicago thousands of copies of the World's Fair number were sold at one dollar a copy after the edition—the plates having been worn out—began to be exausted, and a few copies at the price of five dollars—something that has never happened in the history of any other periodical since printing was invented.

The Cosmopolitan's Pan-American souvenir will be an even finer number than that of the Chicago Fair. To those who have visited the Exposition it will recall vividly in days to come every feature they have seen and those who are unable to go there will secure such a comprehensive view of its main attractions as will be well worthy of preservation.

"Why did the fly fly?" Because the spider spied 'er.—Boston Christian Register.

PROGRAM TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

The next Institute for white teachers will be held at Maccdonia, eight miles west of Jemison and five miles east of Randolph, on the 13th and 14th of September, 1901.

FRIDAY.

10 a.m. Devotional Exercises.

10:30 Welcome Address, John T. Martin. Response, L. E. Byrum.

11. Why educate? How? E. B. Deason, Mrs. A. G. Dunlap.

1:30 p.m. How should schools be graded? Ex-Supt. Judson Strock.

Strock, G. L. Speer.

2:30. Would it be better to divide the county into School Districts? R. E. R. Hicks, Robt. E. Sessions.

3:30. My first experience as a teacher, J. H. Anderson, Miss Jennie Wilson.

SATURDAY.

9 a.m. Chilton county Schools R. A. Rasco, Supt. J. W. Moore.

10 The importance of Physiology, F. D. Carmichael, Miss Tracy Garrett.

11. Educational Address, J. M. Collier.

A concert will be given by Prof. Martin's school, Friday evening, beginning at 7 o'clock.

Teachers coming on train will write Prof. Jno. T. Martin, Randolp, and have arrangements made for conveyance.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

The September Review of Reviews is an unusual number, even for that magazine, of which the public has come to expect great things. Merely to list the contents of this issue is to enumerate the topics that now, at the approach of September, 1901, have "preferred position" in the daily news. The great steel strike, the career of Admiral Schley, the contributions of Dr. Koch to the modern method of dealing with consumption, the rapid advance of the horseless carriage, the conditions in Kansas after the severe summer's drought, are some of the subjects treated in this number, and each subject is dealt with by an expert.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Mothers who have always so dreaded the approach of hot weather when they have a teething babe, should not forget that TEETHINA counteracts and overcomes the effects of hot weather on children, keeps them in healthy condition and makes teething easy. TEETHINA costs only 25 cents per box at druggists; or mail 25 cents to C. J. Moffett, M.D., St. Louis, Mo.

Probate Notice.

The State of Alabama, }
Chilton County. }

In the Probate Court of said County.

In the matter of the petition to probate the last will and testament of James Franklin Welch, deceased, late of said County:

To Darius S. Welch, at Bloomingrove, Texas, Vancey B. Welch, at Meridian, Mississippi, John Welch, who is an infant under the age of 14 years, residing with his mother, Annie Welch, at Meridian, Mississippi; and to all other the heirs at law of the said James Franklin Welch, deceased, who reside out of the State of Alabama.

Take notice that on this day Oscar S. Welch, executor, filed in said Court an instrument purporting to be the Last Will and Testament of said James Franklin Welch, deceased, which is dated October 14, 1899, and is attested by W. H. Burns and J. I. Cox; and also filed this day in said Court their petition in writing praying the said Court to admit said instrument to probate and record therein, as and for the last Will and Testament of the said James Franklin Welch, deceased, and that the said Probate Court has appointed Sept. 19th, 1901, as the day for the hearing of said petition, at which time you may appear and contest the same if you desire.

Given under my hand, on this the 26th day of July, A. D., 1901.

SAMUEL M. ADAMS,
Judge of Probate.

Stood Death Off

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digesiton, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Clanton drug store.

TAX NOTICE.

ASSESSOR'S & COLLECTOR'S First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of assessing the State and County Taxes of Chilton County for the year 1902, and collecting the taxes for the year 1901.

				1901
Pletcher	Beat 8		Oct.	1
Stanton	" 8		"	2
Dixie	" 8		"	3
Shoults	" 7		"	4
Maplesville	" 7		"	5
Benson	" 3		"	7
Macedonia	" 3		"	8
Providence	" 2		"	9
Jemison	" 2		"	10
Mineral Springs	" 1		"	11
Strasburg	" 9		"	12
Clanton	" 4		"	14
Coopers	" 5		"	15
Verbena	" 5		"	16
Kincheon	" 6		"	17

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders and gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. These powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE"

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C 935 EDWIN B GILES & COMPANY, 2350 and 2352 Market Street, Philadelphia.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama, }
Chilton County. }

In Chancery, at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, Northern Chancery Division, Fall Term, 1901.

Rufusia Mahan, Complainant, vs. W. J. Mahan, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of William M. Adams, Solicitor for Complainant, that the Defendant, W. J. Mahan, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama; that said Mahan resides in the State of Mississippi; and that the residence of said Mahan in the State of Mississippi is to said William M. Adams, unknown; and further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Chilton county once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring the said W. J. Mahan, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause, within thirty days after the 18th day of September, 1901, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office, in Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama this 18th day of August, 1901.

W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

WM. M. ADAMS,
Solicitor for Complainant.

The Best Prescription for Malaria

Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price 50c.

REMOVAL SALE

EVERYTHING GOES

PRICES AWAY DOWN

BARGAINS IN ALL LINES

We move into our new building September 1, we don't mind moving ourselves and our clerks, but we want you to come in and move our goods to your homes, then we won't have much moving to do.

REMOVAL SALE NOW ON

W. H. SARTOR

CLANTON

The Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Ala

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
"BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE."

CHILTON COUNTY BRANCH

PRESIDENT.
N. J. CALLOWAY, Clanton.

SEC'Y & TREAS
P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

COUNTY AGENT:
B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

1. H. C. Young
2. Thomas Harrison
3. Alex Glasscock
4. A. J. Wilson
5. D. S. Robinson
6. A. T. Hathcock
7. C. J. Coleman
8. John R. Fo
9. W. A. Mas

Insures farmer's dwellings, outbuildings and contents, and stock against loss by fire, wind and lightning.

During the year just closed, Aug. 3, 1901, there has not been a single loss to the Association.

The cheapest, safest and most sensible method of insurance known to man. For full particulars call on or address the County Agent.

B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers, Ala.

We will move October 1st to 2012 First Ave.

EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES

J. Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Q

COLLIER DRUG CO.,

THE CUT RATE DRUG STORE

BIRMINGHAM, . . ALA.

West End Store

For the convenience of the people in this part I have opened a store at my place one mile west of town, and have a full

General Merchandise

AND A COMPLETE LINE OF

Dry Goods. Hats, Shoes, Notions

CHOICE GROCERIES

W. A. KEMP, Clanton, Ala.

C. W. WILSON

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Fancy Groceries a Specialty

CLANTON

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' Court stands adjourned to February, first Monday in March, first Monday in June, second Monday in June, second Monday in August and third Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART.

Price to-day 7¾ cents
Same date last year 9¼ cents

BALES RECEIVED TO DATE.	1901	1900
Pinckard & Co	6	10
Mullins	3	10
Wilson
Downs		1
Total	9	21

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Rev. F. M. Woods has removed his family to North Heflin. We regret to lose them.

Mr. Leroy Waters of Birmingham visited Clanton Saturday.

Mrs. J. M. and Miss Lena Potts are visiting friends at Vincent.

Mr. J. L. Maddox has moved his family into the Conley house.

Dr. G. A. Dennis of Montgomery paid relatives a visit here the week.

Mr. Will March of Bessemer is visiting Mr. Cliff Gustlebow.

Misses Allee and Essie Charles Stewart left on Tuesday for college at Loretto, Ky.

Mr. J. O. Middleton is visiting relatives at Mt. Carmel.

Mr. McKinney of Lomax has moved his family into the Marsh house.

Commissioner Alex Glassco and Tax Collector Hubbard were in town Monday.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Mr. C. W. Wilson is sick this week.

Mr. W. H. Sartor has moved into his new store.

City Clerk A. L. Tornblom of Thorsby was in town Tuesday.

It is not a liniment, nor a salve. Contains no grease or ammonia. A rational, scientific, chemical compound. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic stands pre-eminently superior to any remedy offered the public for healing Wounds, Burns and other injuries. Used internally it is a fine thing for colic and bowel troubles.

Mrs. Jessie Burnett of Ensley is visiting friends here.

Misses Sallie and Laura Cooley of Shelby delighted their friends with a short visit last week.

Miss Lillie Graham, after a pleasant visit to Mr. W. I. Mullins' family, returned to her home at Meridian, Miss., last Saturday.

Mrs. Leah Satterwhite of Lynchburg, Va., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Watts.

C. W. WILSON is now getting in a full line in all departments, and respectfully invites you to call and inspect them. Prices are put down very low and the goods speak for themselves.

C. W. WILSON, Clanton.

Deputy Sheriff Haynes of Prattville was in town Wednesday.

Mr. A. C. Holt and daughters, Misses Lucille and Doll, of Helena are visiting Mrs. A. L. Evans.

Mr. J. C. Dennis attended Chancery Court at Prattville this week.

Mr. W. M. Adams went to Wetumpka Tuesday, on legal business.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton seed, pay the highest market prices.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's adv. in this papes. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every 30 to 60 days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will abpreciate same in the future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 118½ 22st st., between 1st and 2d aves, Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. T. N. Parrish and Miss Mattie Dupree; Mr. J. A. Maddox and Miss Dora Dupree; Mr. W. D. Cherry and Miss A. R. Barrett.

STOP THE COUGH and Works off the Cold. Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure, No Pay. Price 25 cents.

VAL SALE

OES

WAY DOWN

RGAINS IN ALL LINES.

into our new building
we don't mind mov-
and our clerks, but
to come in and move
your homes, then we much moving to do.

L SALE NOW ON

. SARTOR

CLANTON

ns Insurance Association of Alab

IAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE
PLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE."

COUNTY BRANCH

SEC'Y & TREAS.:
ton. P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

OUNTY AGENT:
LLOWAY, Coopers.

RD OF DIRECTORS.

A. J. Wilson — T. C. J. Coleman
D. S. Robinson — S. John. R. Pa
A. T. Hathcock — B. W. A. Mim ngs, outbuildings and contents, and

d and lightning.

ned, Aug. 3, 1901, there has not been a most sensible method of insurance ka

call on or address the County Agent
B. T. CALLOWAY, Coopers, Al

October 1st

2 First Ave.

ING AT CUT PRICES

-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Q

ER DRUG CO.,

CUT RATE DRUG STOR

HAM, · AL

t End Store

the people in this part I have open
e west of town, and have a fine sto

Merchandise

A COMPLETE LINE OF

Hats, Shoes, Notio

GROCERIES

. KEMP, Clanton, Al

W. WILSON

—DEALER IN—

MERCHANDIS

ceries a Special

CLANTO

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' Court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July, second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART.

Price to-day 7½ cents. Same date last year 9¼ cents.

BALES RECEIVED TO DATE:	1901	1900
Pinckard & Co.	6	10
Mullins	3	10
Wilson		....
Downs		1
Total	9	21

We are in the market buying Corn and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Rev. P. M. Woods has removed his family to North Birmingham. We regret to lose them.

Mr. Leroy Waters of Birmingham has visited Clanton this week.

Mrs. T. M. Boyd, Miss Emma Pate are visiting friends at Verbena.

Mr. T. L. Maddox has moved into Mrs. Cooley's house.

Dr. G. A. Dennis of Montgomery paid relatives a visit here this week.

Mr. Will Marsh of Bessemer is visiting Mr. Cook Gadsborn.

Misses Alice and Essie Charles Stewart left on Tuesday for college at Lorettto, Ky.

Mr. L. O. Middleton is visiting relatives at Mt. Carmel.

Mr. McKinney of Lomax has moved his family into the Marsh house.

Commissioner Alex Glasscock and Tax Collector Hubbard were in town Monday.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Mr. C. W. Wilson is sick this week.

Mr. W. H. Sartor has moved into his new store.

City Clerk A. L. Tornblom of Thorsby was in town Tuesday.

It is not a liniment, nor a salve. Contains no grease or ammonia. A mineral, scientific, chemical compound. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic stands pre-eminently superior to any remedy offered the public for healing Wounds, Burns and other injuries. Used internally it is a fine thing for colic and bowel troubles.

Mrs. Jessie Barrett of Ensley is visiting friends here.

Misses Sallie and Laura Cooley of Shelby delighted their friends with a short visit last week.

Miss Lillie Graham, after a pleasant visit to Mr. W. L. Mullins family, returned to her home at Meridian, Miss., last Saturday.

Mrs. Leah Satterwhite of Lynchburg, Va., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Watts.

C. W. WILSON is now getting in a full line in all departments, and respectfully invites you to call and inspect them. Prices are put down very low and the goods speak for themselves.
C. W. WILSON, Clanton.

Deputy Sheriff Haynes of Prattville was in town Wednesday.

Mr. A. C. Holloway and daughters, Misses Lucile and Doll, of Helena are visiting Mrs. A. E. Evans.

Mr. J. C. Dennis attended Chancery Court at Prattville this week.

Mr. W. M. Adams went to Wetumpka Tuesday on legal business.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's ads in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every 60 to 90 days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in the future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1128½ 22st st., between 2nd and 3d aves, Birmingham

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. T. N. Parrish and Miss Mattie Dupree, Mr. J. A. Maddox and Miss Dora Dupree; Mr. W. D. Cherry and Miss A. R. Barrett.

STOPS THE COUGH
and Works off the Cold.

Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

NOW!

Our Mr. Pinckard has just returned from the East, where he purchased our Fall stock, securing many fine grades of goods.

We must make room for these new goods, so NOW is your chance. We will show you great bargains; call and see us.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

FIRE! FIRE!

GREAT SACRIFICE SALE!

Goods damaged by removal must be sold at any price.

This is Your Great Opportunity.

All these goods are good as new, they were only slightly damaged by removal; the fire did not reach my store, but all the stock was removed.

Calicoes from 3 and 4 cents. Lawns from 4 cts.
Ladies' Hats 50 cents on the $1.
Men's and Children's Straw Hats 50 c on $1.
Clothing at half price.
Shoes at half price.
Big line of Umbrellas.
Embroidery 4 cents.

I have a big stock and it must positively be sold. Come in and see for yourselves and pick out your own bargains. You have never seen such values before. Respectfully,

H. TOURO, Clanton

C. R. MULLINS

REPRESENTS THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEWARK, N. J., AND SEVERAL LEADING FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

and will insure your lives and property at lowest current rates.

I also wish to state that I am getting in my Fall stock of the Latest Improved High arm SINGER MACHINES, and I have my office full of second hand machines of different kinds, all in good running order, that I will sell cheap for cash or trade for produce, most any old way and at any old price. I must have the room for my new stock which will arrive about September 1st.

Also have on sale at my office the latest improved SMOOTHING IRON with Fluter combined.

NEEDLES, OIL, BANDS, CANS, ETC.

Regular office days Saturday and Monday.

C. R. MULLINS, Agent, Singer Office, Clanton.

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES.

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	$1.50
Nashville American	1.50
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald	$1.50
Home and Farm	$1.10
Southern Farmer	$1.00

NEW ROYAL

HIGH ARM. LIGHT RUNNING

WARRANTED TEN YEARS.

FIVE DRAWER $32.

The New Royal is not a cheap machine, but a high-class machine made out of good material, all parts adjustable and ball-bearing; has a good set of steel attachments and all of them work well.

I will exchange the New Royal for old machines and allow the full value of the old machine. Come and see me. I can sell you a machine as cheap as you can buy in Clanton.

Some secondhand machines from $5 up. Send me 25 cents in silver or stamps and an old needle for sample and I will send you 1 doz. needles to fit your machine.

REPAIR WORK GUARANTEED.

L. D. POPWELL,
CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Nauseous Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquor, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2850 and 2852 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

Headache and Neuralgia cured by Dr. MILES' PAIN PILLS. "One cent a dose."

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Parry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bachelor mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T. U. CRUMPTON, Prop'r
MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERY THING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L. Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS—SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE

FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1 00	12 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water, white 150 fire test oil	18
½ bbl " " "	2.25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	15
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14-lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware and the very best Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please,

A. M. JOHNSON, Manager

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People everywhere it has been introduced, are wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. Send stamps for one. Ladies' size 50c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. (See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

The BANNER office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us a trial

If Grip threatens use Dr. Miles' Nervine.

THE VITAE ORE PREPARATIONS are on sale by

Campbelle Drug co., clanton,
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A. Ayers, clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kincheon
J. B. Downs, clanton.

N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

CHURCH DIRECTORY

BAPTIST—Preaching on the first and third Sundays at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Sunday-school every Sunday at 10 a.m.

Prayer-meeting every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

F. M. Woods, Pastor.

METHODIST—Preaching every second Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and every fourth Sunday at 7 p.m.

Sunday-school at 10 a.m. every Sunday.

Prayer-meeting at seven o'clock every Wednesday night.

D. F. ELLISON, Pastor.

FOR WOMAN'S BENEFIT

Rings for the Middle Finger.

Rings for the middle finger are a frequent gift among Parisians. Two, exactly matching, are given together in a dainty case. This is because it is the fashion in Paris to wear rings on every finger, and no gloves, and the middle finger is less likely to be supplied than the other ones.

Gowns of Pina Cloth.

Girls who have lovers, brothers, fathers and our friends in the Philippines are to be seen these days in gowns of diaphanous pina cloth, and are the envied of all their kind. The fabric is woven from the pineapple fibre, and when it arrives is so stiff as to require washing before it can be made up. The cloth sent is cross barred or plain, and with each length comes a strip hand embroidered in dots and quaint designs for the vest and yoke.

Flower Sprays.

Chic is the illuminative word to apply to some entrancing trails of fruit blossoms—apple, cherry and peach—especially prepared in view of the requirements of debutantes and the younger members generally of the community, who are likewise to be permitted to wreath their pretty heads literally with crowns of flowers and foliage. It is to be devoutly hoped they will be created of a size and shape to fall in tastefully with the particular idiosyncrasies of the wearer.

Dresses Growing Shorter.

It is a noteworthy fact that dresses are gradually growing shorter and less cumbersome, a blessing in the matter of street robes. It must not be imagined from this that walking toilets are to be unequivocally short, but simply that they will be more reasonable. Reception gowns, visiting gowns and house gowns, on the other hand, are a trifle longer than they have been through the last season, a circumstance that will hardly be objected to by women who have mastered the coquetish art of handling a train.

Fashions in Tailor Mades.

Gray and white is admittedly one of the most attractive cloth admixtures of the hour. And yet another growing freak of the tailor world is the suppression of revers and even collars to the short coats and boleros, a deletion that affords a greater display of the undervest or blouse and so falls in happily with the summer scheme of things. Not to every figure, however, is it given to carry off successfully the somewhat severe outline of the plain frontage coatee. One must of necessity be possessed of curves and undulations, combined with a certain width of shoulder.

White the Reigning Shade.

It is the fashion this summer to wear white, and the smartest of all the frocks are of white mousseline de soie or batiste. There are, however, any number of dotted muslins in white, light gray, light yellow, or black that are made up for evening use. The so-called robe gowns are also in great demand, and are very useful, provided one has a well-fitting low waist and long skirt of silk over which the robe gown can be placed. The summer silks, not foulard, making charming low gowns for evening, while when the higher waists are desired the foulards come into play again. One of the smartest gowns of the year is made of black and white foulard, a white ground with irregular black dots.—Harper's Bazar.

An Important Item.

The popularity of white dresses this season has made the white glace petticoat an exceedingly important item of feminine attire, says the London Graphic. On many there is an embroidery in black silk. One with the flounce so treated, in slender single blossom design, had the edge in scallops formed of applique black velvet pansies, with a touch of white in the heart of each. This was very pretty—more so than a similar garment with the flounce composed of alternate diamonds in black and white tucked silk, and bordered with black lace. A white silk underskirt, finished with narrow frills, each edged with narrow black Valenciennes lace, is good; and another with silk flounce veiled in an equally deep flounce of black Chantilly lace is even more pleasing. But, attractive as these dainty petticoats undoubtedly are, for good, serviceable wear they are far behind the skirts made of gray glace silk, which do not soil so readily, and appear impervious to the damaging effect of dust.

Useful Fancy Work.

Clever workers who want pretty fancy work with which to beguile the wet days spent at home should buy boleros, collars or trimmings in either black or white lace, selecting a bold design, and then with small tinsel cord outline all the larger designs and fill in the centres of circles or flowers with three of four loops, like a miniature rosette. These items will be useful in the summer and are costly to buy, says the Springfield Union.

Insertions for trimming gowns may be treated in the same fashion. A combination of gold cord and cream or ecru lace is charming for cream, biscuit or black gowns, or black lace treated with silver cord is effective over white satin for a black dress or on pale colors. Applique motifs of lisse or grenadine can also be made by stamping the fabric with transfers on the wrong side, placing the design over white cloth and then outlining the edges with chenille or tinsel cord and working out the design in massed jet beads and tiny rosettes of tinsel.

Nature's Beautifier.

The summer time is the golden opportunity for the girl troubled with pimples and comedones. The torrid heat offers an efficacious substitute for the Turkish or Russian bath. The healthy streams of perspiration with which Dame Nature strives to eradicate these facial blemishes should never be dammed by the opposing powder rag. Rather encourage the very friendly drop which adds its tiny share in promoting the health and purity of the complexion. I am reminded here of a young girl who has happily been cured of some very disfiguring pimples of the chronic type which physicians had prescribed for in vain. One intolerably hot day she tried to catch a nap in the attic, where the temperature equalled the hot room of the Turkish baths.

A member of the family called for her to come down to cooler quarters.

"Oh, no, mamma," she replied, "this is part of the cure! I am told that I must perspire!" and she resolutely turned a deaf ear to all expostulation. When last seen that girl had a complexion without a blemish.—Stella Stuart, in Ledger Monthly.

Life of the Filipino Girl.

The life lived by the Filipinos is not an intricate life, says Ramon Reyes Lala in the Ledger Monthly, nor is Philippine etiquette the highly involved system that is found in the old and artificial society of western lands.

I do not know that I can better describe it than by following a society young lady of Manila through the ordinary events of one day's existence. It may interest American women to know how their sisters beyond the seas pass their lives.

The day of the fair Filipino is a long one. With her there is no lazy rising to a 9 o'clock coffee and toast. She is usually up with the sun, not later than 6, and, if very religious, as early as 4, that she may attend early mass. Breakfast is set early, about 6 o'clock. Then come the morning duties of the household, sewing, washing, cooking, or whatever there may be, for our young lady is not expected to spend her days in idleness. The midday meal is taken at 12 o'clock, in order that the warmest hours of the day may be the hours of rest. About two hours are thus spent in the enjoyment of the siesta, when our lady fair arises, refreshed and ready for the later pleasures of the day.

At 4 o'clock the "afternoon tea" is served. This is a light repast, usually consisting of chocolate, with rice and cakes, or other simple viands. Then, at the hour of 5.30 or 6 o'clock, the carriage is brought out and the daily ride taken to the Luneta, the beautiful park on the bay south of the city. Here the military band discourses sweet music every evening, and the beauty and fashion of Manila meet and enjoy the evening air and melodious strains. Returning from the drive about 7 o'clock, the evening meal, or supper, comes next in order, after which our belle of Manila is free for any mode of spending the evening hours that may appeal to her; perhaps a friendly visit, a trip to the theatre or opera, or an "at home" to receive callers. Early as she arose, bedtime often comes late, and no hours more than nature demands are spent in the enjoyment of slumber. Going to rest, however, is different there and here. Ladies, even of the highest social rank, do not sleep in a bedstead, but prefer the floor, lying on a peate, or mat, which is provided with a long bolster or pillow, and covered with the conventional mosquito netting.

FASHION NOTES

Vests of grass linen, with vari-colored embroidery, are new and smart.

Cherry red blouses and hats to match are worn with fawn colored or gray cloth skirts for morning wear.

Belts of black velvet with long loop and streamers are worn by young girls, the dotted ribbons being especially popular.

Many women are wearing the skirt length chemise trimmed around the lower edge. They can be bought for reasonable prices and are cool and comfortable.

Taffeta forms the waist ribbon of a stylish gown of dark blue veiling, which is trimmed with stitched bands. There is a good sized bow with ends tied a little to the left at the waist.

A dainty shirtwaist of black and white striped lawn worn by a young woman was most attractively set off by a stitched red satin belt and a white stock and tie, edged with red of the same color as the belt.

Pique collars with white ties in some instances have the collar embroidered, and a field of flowers is apparently going up from behind the tie. These are unique, but hardly as satisfactory as the plain pique collar.

The long, low back combs worn in the hair show best when selected with special reference to the color of the hair. Blondes usually prefer the lighter shell, inset with a row of turquoises, while the rhinestones on dark shell are most effective against dark hair.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN

Two Students.

A little boy sat on the shore of a pond
While a bullfrog sat in the pool:
And each one gazed on the other one
Like scholars in a school.

Then at last the little boy spoke and said:
"Why, Frog, do you gaze at me?
Pray swim or jump, that I may learn
Some Natural History!"

The frog he croaked out his reply:
"That's what I'm here for, too.
I'm studying Boys, and their curious ways,
For I've nothing else to do!"

Then the boy he turned and went away,
And the frog he sank below;
While circling ripples on the pool
Were all that was left of the show.
—Benjamin Webster in St. Nicholas.

Three Amusing Games.

The game called water sprite affords children a lot of fun. Players stand in two lines facing each other, with a large open space, representing a river between. The child called the water sprite stands between and beckons one to cross. This one signals to one on the opposite side, and they run across to exchange places. If touched by the water sprite, the water sprite and the one touched exchange places, and the game is continued.

Last pair pass is another amusing game. The children stand in twos, one behind the other. One who is catcher stands in front with his back to the others and calls, "Last couple out!" when the last two in the line run around to the front and try to join the hands before they are touched by the catcher. The one touched becomes catcher. His partner joins the previous catcher, and they take their places as first couple in the line.

To play red lion, one player, the red lion, stands in a den. The others venture near to him, calling:

Red lion, red lion, come out of your den;
Whoever you catch will be one of your men.

He runs out and tries to catch one. The first one caught joins hands with him, and together they try to catch others, each captive being added to his line. Only the two persons at the ends of the line can catch others.

Japanese Children at Play.

In an article in the St. Nicholas entitled "Glimpses of Child Life in Japan," illustrated by himself, Theodore Wores says that two holidays especially for children are observed by the Japanese during the year. The one occurs on May 5, and is called "Boys' Day," and the other, on March 3, is known as "Girls' Day," or the "Feast of Dolls." On Boys' Day the streets present a very bright and festive appearance, as almost every house is decorated with a tall bamboo pole to which one or more large paper fish are attached. The number of fish hung from each pole corresponds to the number of boys in the family.

These fish are very cleverly constructed, and are painted so as to present a very natural appearance. They are fastened to the pole by a cord passed through the jaws, and openings at the mouth and tail allow the wind to blow through, filling them out and causing them to plunge in a most lifelike manner. These paper fish vary in length from three to 20 feet.

In many houses, on this occasion, miniature stands of arms, containing swords, spears, bows, banners, and suits of armor, are brought out of the kura, or storehouse, and placed on view. Some of these toy weapons are as carefully made as the real things, and are often very old, having served on Boys' Day in the same family for many generations. On Girls' Day almost every household has more or less of a collection of dolls on view. These dolls are carefully packed away, each in its own wooden case, during the year, and are only brought out on these special occasions, when it is the custom for little girls to pay visits to one another, exchange the compliments of one another's dolls. In addition to these dolls, all sorts of miniature household articles, consisting of dressing-cases, toilet-sets, furniture, and kitchen utensils, etc., made of silver and lacquer, are displayed. The principal dolls imitate the mikado and his empress in ancient court dress. Many of these collections of dolls are centuries old.

Japan has not without reason been called a "children's paradise." While my own observations have proved to me that Japanese children are about the happiest I know, I have also observed that they always display the greatest respect for their parents and elders, who are thus more than repaid for the unfailing love and attention they bestow upon the little ones of the "Sunrise Kingdom."

Missing Words.

The five children had played everything they knew over twice; at least they thought they had, and still it would not to be 5 o'clock, when they were to go down-stairs to the library to play a brand-new game with their father.

But if you only wait long enough it will get to be 5 o'clock after a while; and just as the clock began to strike 5 the five children went down-stairs with a rush, and almost before it was through they had swarmed into his library.

"This, my dear children," he said, "is the game of missing words. I will give you the first line complete, and the second line to its last word, which you must at once give, and it must rhyme with the las tword of the first line. If you cannot think of it you get dropped out. The one who stands the longest may get out the next missing-word lesson. Are you ready?"

"Yes, father," they all answered at once.

"Donny will be number one, Tommy two, Molly three, Polly four and Dummy Dee five. You may help Dummy Dee a little if he needs it," said their father.

"I'm not going to need it!" said Dummy Dee, indignantly.

So father began:

"A young fellow whose surname was Sill harnessed his horse and started to—"

"Till," said Donny, promptly and eagerly.

"That's good," said his father, "although the word was mill."

So Donny sat down.

"He stopped beside a flowing—"

"Rill," said Tommy, who said afterward that he said it by mistake, but it appeared to be right.

"There came a pretty girl named—"

"Jill," said Molly, sure she was right.

"He wished that his was Jack, not—"

"Sill?" asked Polly.

"No, we cannot use the same word twice; but you did not know that, so you may try again."

"Will?" asked Polly again, and that was right.

"Or, as they sometimes called him—"

"Bill," said Dummy Dee, with such an air of conviction that he received much applause.

"Which really was a bitter—"

"Pill," said Tommy, delighted with his easy one.

"His errand he forgot—"

But Molly could not think, neither could Polly. Dummy Dee shouted, "Until!" and was right again.

"The sun shot down behind the—"

"Hill," said Tommy, and that was right, too, and the last line.

Then they all decided to write one for their father, and it had to be hard because, as Molly said, their father wrote things with rhymes in them for the papers, so he was in the habit of it; but before they were through with their task the supper-bell rang, to their great surprise, so they had to wait until the next afternoon. But they had decided on the rhyming word. It was cry.—Youth's Companion.

A True Story.

Toggles's Sunday-school teacher had told him something he did not understand very well. As nearly as he could remember, some man had said that the whole world was like two great heaps, one of the happy things and the other of the unhappy things, and every time we took something from the unhappy heap, and put it on the happy heap we made the whole world pleasanter and better.

Then she had told them how the man who said it had made the world happier by giving a penny to a little girl who had lost hers and was crying about it. Toggles thought it very unlikely that he should ever do a thing like that, because, even if he should meet such a little girl, the chances were he wouldn't have any penny. Being at grandpa's on a visit, and having a new teacher, he just kept quiet, and put the whole matter carefully away in the back of his head, to keep until he had time to think it over.

The time came the next afternoon when he was out by the barn, digging in the load of new fresh sand that grandpa had had dumped there on purpose for him. He made two great piles, as nearly of a size as he could, and the one by his left foot he called the happy pile, and the one by his right hand the unhappy pile; and then he took a big trowel full of sand from the right-hand pile, and let it sift down on the left-hand pile, and rejoiced to see the unhappy heap grow smaller, and the happy heap grow bigger. And all the time he was thinking how to tell it to Mabel, who was Toggles's little sister, and who hadn't been to Sunday-school because she had torn a great hole in one of her new shoes, and the shoemaker had not fixed it yet.

It was while he was very busy there that mamma called him to come into the house. Grandpa had come back with the wagon, and was all ready to take him to the big factory where they made the kind of milk Toggles had seen the men squirt out of the cows into the thick, sticky milk that Toggles' mamma bought in cans at the grocery store. Toggles had asked so many questions about it that grandpa had promised to take him to see it done.

They were ready to start, and grandpa had just said, "Get up!" to Dobbin, when Mabel came running to the door.

"I want to go, too," she called.

"Oh, no!" said mamma: "you have not any shoes to put on. Why, what would the men in the big factory say if they were to see a little girl without any shoes?"

"I want to go," repeated Mabel. "I want to see them make the thick, sticky milk."

"No," said mamma, "you can go some other time."

And then Mabel began to cry; for she was littler than Toggles, and all of a sudden Toggles thought of his two heaps.

"I can go some other time, "he said. Mabel can wear my shoes."

Grandpa and mamma did not say anything while Mabel, with tear-stained cheeks, but as radiant as a little cherub, was pulling on the shoes Toggles had just taken off; but they looked at each other, and there were tears in mamma's eyes.

"Good-bye," called Mabel, as grandpa gathered up the reins. "I wish you were going, too."

"Oh! never mind," answered Toggles. "I can go some other time."

And then, hurrying back to his piles, he fell to digging so hard that, long before grandpa and Mabel returned, the unhappy heap was gone, and only the great round happy heap remained.—Frederic Hall, in Sunday School Times.

FLOWERS FOR THE APPETITE.

Part They Play in Increasing a Hotel Guest's Bill.

"'No appetite? Too hot to eat, anyway?'" the doctor repeated after his patient, a thin and bloodless little woman who seemed to be fairly withering under the summer sun. "Then why don't you put some flowers and green stuff on your table?

"I don't want you to eat them, understand," for the patient stared at him as if she doubted his sanity. "They'll help your appetite, though. See if they don't.

"Up to last summer it never had occurred to me that flowers in a dining-room served any other purpose than that of decoration. But in a London hotel I met people who had studied the thing, and the head waiter gave me their theory.

"'Yes, sir, certainly, sir,' this man said, when I complimented him on the appearance of my table and the room in general. 'We find it 'elps, sir, to trim pretty hextensively, especially hin close weather. Say that a gentleman—as it might be yourself, sir—is almost hovercome by the 'eat and doesn't care whether 'e heats hanything or not. But the flowers and the greenery make the place look cool, and then hinfluence 'im, sir, they hinfluence him. Hafter a while 'e feels rested and refreshed, and 'is happetite comes back. We hestimate that it's worth pounds to us to 'ave such things 'ere on the table.'

"I believe the waiter was right, and I've been recommending the flower cure ever since. There's just one warning to add: don't overdo it. Use only one kind of flower, and that in one color only, at a time, and have plenty of green stuff. A rose or two and a little smilax will do more good than a 'Joseph-coat bouquet'—as my wife calls the 'loud' kind—as big as a water pail."—Youth's Companion.

A Youthful Promoter.

A horseman had an amusing experience near the Speedway a few days ago. He called to an idle newsboy to hold his horse while he made a call on a client. On leaving the house he was surprised to see another boy in charge of the horse. So he asked:

"How's this? You are not the boy I left my horse with."

"No, sir. I jist spekilated and bought him of the other boy for ten cents. He said as how you were only worth a nickel, and I says you were good for a quarter. See?"

The boy got the quarter and went around the corner, where the first boy was waiting under an open window in the home of the horseman's friend.

"That's ther way ter work the gwells," said the young speculator to his companion. "Ef yer had stayed he wouldn coughed up a dime. The bluff made him ershamed to hand over les than two bits. You gets twelve cents and I keep the extry cent for permotin' dis scheme. See?"—New York Times.

Parliamentary Sittings.

Parliamentary sittings in the early days began generally at 8 o'clock in the morning, but often at 6 or 7, and continued until 11, the committee being appointed to sit in the afternoon. In the time of Charles II. 9 o'clock was the usual hour for commencing public business, and 4 o'clock the hour for rising. At a later period 10 o'clock was the ordinary time of meeting, and the practice of adjourning the house nominally until that hour continued until 1806, although so early a meeting had long been discontinued. According to the present practice no hour is named by the house for its next meeting, but it is announced in the "votes" at what hour Mr. Speaker will take his chair. There is nothing to prevent the house sitting at a later hour than usual for the sake of convenience. Thus on the occasion of the naval review at Spithead in 1853 it did not meet until 10 o'clock at night.—London Chronicle.

The Missing Link.

In the jungles of Southeastern Asia and the islands near by, which have long been known to science as the cradle of the human race, and which are still inhabitated by the very lowest orders of human beings, the pithecanthropus lives with the elephant, tapir, rhinoceros, lion, hippopotamus, gigantic pangolin, hyena, and other animals, remains of which were found around him. It has been computed that this ancestor lived somewhere about the beginning of our last glacial epoch, some 270,000 years ago. In other words, about 17,000 generations have been born and have died between him and ourselves. It will assist our understanding of what this relationship really means to know that nearly 250 generations carry us back beyond the dawn of history, 5,000 years ago.—McClure's Magazine.

The Fulmar Petrel.

The fulmar petrel somewhat resembles a common gull at a distance, but has a much more graceful flight, skimming the waves, or hovering by the cliffs, without perceptible motion of its wings. It makes its nest upon the grassy ledges and cliffs of St. Kilda, and is caught with a rod in the same way as a puffin, only, as it is found on the precipices, it is more difficult to secure.

It was greatly valued formerly for its oil, of which each bird has about half a pint, and which it uses as a means of defense, and ejects with great force at the enemy. The present general use of mineral oils makes that of the fulmar of less importance, but it is the purest animal oil in existence, and is still used for various purposes, and also medicinally by the natives for sprains and bruises.—Good Words.

A Night Thought.

It must occur to every honest man when he looks at his bare feet at night that great credit for his personal appearance is due to his shoes.—Atchison Globe.

NOTES AND COMMENT

In spite of the scientists, some people are unscientific enough to believe that the only good mosquito is a dead mosquito.

Sir Edwin Arnold is one of those who without much pecuniary reward, but likely worse poets have drawn generous salaries.

The drought has been a severe calamity to the western farmer, but it may prove a valuable one if it causes a relaxation of the systems of irrigation.

Eighty-four square inches of land offered for $1,000 is the "highest asking price" yet recorded in New York City. Yet full lots have been sold at prices between $2 and $3 per square inch.

A town that leaps into [illegible] population may be considered a thing of a phenomenon, but such a kind has popped up in the Indian reservation recently opened to settlers.

Diamonds have been [illegible] on account of the South African war, although the supply from Brazil has been considerably increased and new mines have been discovered in British Guiana.

The Nebraska State Game Warden has forbidden the farmers to feed grasshoppers longer with poison, saying that the loss of birds and game is too costly a price to pay for the destruction of comparatively few insects.

Time is taking heavy toll of the actors on the historic stage of the last century. In one week the Emperor Frederick and Crispi, the greatest statesman of the new Italy, passed away. Even such youngsters as the Kaiser feel that they are getting along and will soon be veterans. The old order changes rapidly, giving place to the new.

An interesting feature of the work of the Census Bureau is a collection of statistics as to the number of fenced live stock in our country. The figures show that, so far as the great cities are concerned, Chicago contains the most swine, Philadelphia the most mules and horses, and New York the most asses.

The Montreal Gazette says that Canada is quite well satisfied with the restriction under the agreement between Great Britain and the United States of 1817 of three war vessels of less than one hundred tons on the great lakes by each government, and it is quite sure that the Dominion would not willingly sacrifice it "for the benefit of a few Grand Lake Shipbuilders."

Referring to the facilities given at French harbors and on French railways for the transportation of American corn to the Swiss frontier, the Berlin correspondent of the London Standard says: "It is pretty certain that this will enable American coal to be delivered cheaper than German coal, and the Swiss manufacturers, who have hitherto bought German coal, will highly welcome the American product."

The story of John Winters, the San Francisco thief who stole over $[illegible] in gold bullion from a smelting company and hid it in the Bay, reads like a rather improbable, or indeed impossible, romance. If the incident had been described in a tale of adventure, the fact that one man was represented as doing the job alone would have excited the indignant scorn of the young schoolboy critic. But here once more it is shown that it is the chap who lives by their imagination who lags behind that great romancer—the world. Fiction takes a back seat in the presence of fact.

The Agricultural Department's exhibit at the Buffalo Exposition included a case hung with squares of cloth that were originally white, but are now yellow, orange, scarlet, crimson, blue and purple, all colored by aniline dyes extracted, as an object lesson, from various jams and jellies that are sold in the open market. The object of the department, of course, is to show up adulteration practiced by some makers, to turn on the light, as it were, and thus let publicity help to put a stop to it. When Mr. Gladstone jokingly advised the English farmers to turn their superfluous turnips into "beautiful" [illegible] he little thought, perhaps, that his suggestion would be carried to an far greater length in America.

Prince Henry of Orleans, who died in Cochin China the other day, was famous for a profligate career from the beginning. No one of his stock and of the same circumstances of birth could have eluded the destiny which he fulfilled. Born a prince and trained to an exalted idea of the dignity and rights of his title; the son of an exiled father, himself debarred from the country of his sires; surrounded by foolish flatterers and idolized by silly women; possessed of plenty of money for various years shut out of all honest ambitions in life by the sense of his own dignity, it was inevitable that he should go the rapid pace of spoiled royalty. But the financial aid and moral encouragement of some of the old aristocrats of France he had periods of ambition during which he underwent experiences of severe privation and did some work for to geographical science; but the influences of birth proved too strong and again he became a mere good-for-nothing spendthrift. There are few cases in which ancestors have more completely doomed a man to a life of folly.

THE NEWS IN ALABAMA.

ABERCROMBIE TO STAND FOR RE-ELECTION.

MORE LYNCHERS BROUGHT TO JUSTICE.

Little Boy Seriously Hurt—Investigating Death of Child—To Manufacture Car Wheels—Storm at Eufaula—Industrial.

WANTS RE-ELECTION.

Hon. John W. Abercrombie, state superintendent of education, will stand for re-election. In an interview he said: "I have concluded to be a candidate for re-election. I am perfectly aware of the strength of the party system which accords to state officers two terms and no more, and I have not decided on asking for a third term without careful consideration and taking the advice of my friends. I can not mistake or ignore the most unanimous wish of the educators of the state that there shall be no change in the administration of the office at this period and stage of our educational development. I am running on my record and appeal only to that." Mr. Abercrombie is yet a young man. During his two terms the state appropriation for schools has been increased $100,000 per annum and the system of examining teachers inaugurated. His office is not without a third term precedent, Major Palmer having held the office six years, from 1884 to 1890. Mr. Abercrombie is yet without opposition, though Colonel Thomas L. Bulger, of Tallapoosa, being the only one spoken of. J. B. Graham, of Talladega, will support Abercrombie.

THE ELMORE LYNCHERS.

A few weeks ago Robert White, a negro, was taken from the officers and lynched in Elmore county. The governor started an investigation, ten men were arrested and three of them have been tried. Convictions have resulted in every case. George Howard, the first one tried and a prominent citizen, was sentenced to life imprisonment and John Strength and Martin Fuller to ten years each. John Thomas, the white man with whom Robert White, and his brother, Winston, had the difficulty, which resulted in the lynching of Robert, is now on trial. The defense made a strenuous effort for a continuance, the main contention being the absence of witnesses, two of whom are alleged to have left the county under indictments charging them with complicity in the lynching. Judge Denson decided that the case will be heard at once. Every step is being bitterly contested, and the trial may consume several days.

PREMATURE EXPLOSION.

A serious accident befell the six-year-old son of Alderman J. C. Waldrop Friday. His father had taken home a dynamite cap and the little fellow got hold of it, and applied a match, intending to throw it down as he would a cracker, but it exploded in his hand with disastrous results. A portion of the thumb and forefinger of his left hand are gone. Portions of the cap struck the boy in the face, cutting it badly. He suffered considerably from the shock and loss of blood.

IT IS reported from Cordova that the Haughton Oil Company, sinking a well in that vicinity, struck a strata of mineral supposed to be iron ore. If the mineral fulfills the expectations of the company, it will be a valuable find.

TUSCALOOSA citizens think the $2,500 is too much for them to raise for the survey of the Birmingham Vicksburg Railway, if Birmingham raises but $5,000. One-fifth of what Birmingham is asked is all they think fair for their city.

REPORTS from all over the state of the crops are very encouraging. The recent rains have materially improved all sorts.

THE University of Alabama opens on September 18th. Ten young ladies are already booked for the annex.

THE First National Bank of Anniston has received what is said to be one of the largest safe deposit vaults in the state. The vault weighs 24,000 pounds, and it was necessary to construct a timber track from the railroad to the bank, as there was no dray in the city strong enough to transport it.

JAMES GEDES has been appointed assistant general manager of the Birmingham Railroad company.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

In spite of the scientists, some people are unscientific enough to believe that the only good mosquito is a dead mosquito.

Sir Edwin Arnold is out of health and without much pecuniary reliance. Various poets have drawn government pensions.

Trouble enough has been a severe experience for western farmers, but it may prove a valuable one if it causes an extension of the systems of irrigation.

Lots of four square inches of land about the $1000 is the biggest "sale" of lots yet recorded in New York. Per foot lots have been sold at prices between $2 and $3 per square inch.

A town that leaps into life with the exception of a phenomenon, for one of that kind is dropped upon the former location recently opened to white settlers.

Diamonds have been rising in price since the South African war, though the supply from Brazil has considerably increased and new fields have been discovered in British Guiana.

Nebraska's State Game Warden wants to run the farmers who fight the game birds longer with poison, supposing the loss of birds and game is not a price to pay for the destruction of comparatively few insects.

We are taking heavy toll of the big animals in the historic stage of the last century. In one week the Empress Frederick and Crispi, the greatest statesman of the new Italy, passed away. Even such young rulers as the Kaiser must feel that they are getting along and will soon be very rare. The old order changes and gives place to the new.

An interesting feature of the recent work of the Census Bureau is a collection of statistics as to the number of domestic live stock in our country. The figures show that, so far as the great cities are concerned, Chicago contains the most swine, Philadelphia the most mules and horses, and New York City the most asses.

The Montreal Gazette says that Canada is quite well satisfied with the restriction under the agreement between Great Britain and the United States in 1817 of armed war vessels of less than one hundred tons on the great lakes for each government, and it is quite sure that the Dominion would not willingly sacrifice it "for the benefit of a few Grand Lake Shipbuilders."

Referring to the facilities given in French harbors and on French railways for the transportation of American coal to the Swiss frontier, the Berlin correspondent of the London Standard says: "It is pretty certain that this will enable American coal to be offered cheaper than German coal, and the Swiss manufacturers, who have heretofore bought German coal, will highly welcome the American product."

The story of John Winters, the San Francisco thief who stole over $300,000 in gold bullion from a smelting company and hid it in the Bay, reads like a rather improbable, or indeed impossible romance. If the incident had been described in a tale of adventure, the fact that one man was represented as doing the job alone would have excited the indignant scorn of the youthful schoolboy critic. But here once more it is shown that it is the chaps who live by their imaginations who lag behind that great romancer—the truth. Fiction takes a back seat in the presence of fact.

The Agricultural Department's exhibit at the Buffalo Exposition includes a case hung with squares of cloth that were originally white, but are now yellow, orange, scarlet, crimson, blue and purple, all colored by aniline dyes extracted, as an object lesson, from various jams and jellies that are sold in the open market. The object of the Department, of course, is to show up the adulteration practiced by some makers—to turn on the light, as it were—and thus let publicity help to put a stop to it. When Mr. Gladstone jokingly advised the English farmers to turn their superfluous turnips into "beautiful jam," he little thought, perhaps, that his suggestion would be carried to an even greater length in America.

Prince Henry of Orleans, who died in Cochin China the other day, was marked for a profligate career from the beginning. No one of his stock and the same circumstances of birth could have eluded the destiny which befell him. Born a prince and trained to an exalted idea of the dignity and rights of his title; the son of an exiled father, and himself debarred from the country of his sires; surrounded by foolish fawners and idolized by silly women; possessed of plenty of money for vanities, and shut out of all honest ambitions in early life by the sense of his own dignity, it was inevitable that he should go the rapid pace of spoiled royalty. Under the financial aid and moral encouragement of some of the old aristocracy of France he had periods of ambition during which he underwent experiences of severe privation and did some service to geographical science; but the influences of birth proved too strong, and again he became a mere gambler and spendthrift. There are few cases in which ancestors have more plainly doomed a man to a life of folly.

THE NEWS IN ALABAMA.

ABERCROMBIE TO STAND FOR RE-ELECTION.

EMORE LYNCHERS BROUGHT TO JUSTICE.

Little Boy Seriously Hurt—Investigating Death of Child—To Manufacture Car Wheels—Storm at Eufaula—Industrial.

WANTS RE-ELECTION.

Hon. John W. Abercrombie, state superintendent of education, will stand for re-election. In an interview he said: "I have concluded to be a candidate for re-election. I am perfectly aware of the strength of the party system which accords to state officers two terms and no more, and I have not decided on asking for a third term without careful consideration and taking the advice of my friends. I can not mistake or ignore the most unanimous wish of the educators of the state that there shall be no change in the administration of the office at this period and stage of educational development. I am relying on my record and appeal only to that." Mr. Abercrombie is yet a young man. During his two terms the state appropriation for schools has been increased $100,000 per annum and the system of examining teachers inaugurated. His office is now without a third term precedent, Mr. Palmer having held the office six years, from 1884 to 1890. Mr. Abercrombie is yet without opposition, though Colonel Thomas L. Bulger, of Lowndes, being the only one spoken of, Hon. J. B. Graham, of Talladega, will support Abercrombie.

THE EMMORE LYNCHERS.

A few weeks ago Robert White, a negro, was taken from the officers and lynched in Elmore county. The governor started an investigation, ten men were arrested and three of them have been tried. Convictions have resulted in every case. George Howard, the first one tried and a prominent citizen, was sentenced to life imprisonment and John Strength and Marion Fuller to ten years each. John Thomas, the white man with whom Robert White, and his brother, Winston, had the difficulty, which resulted in the lynching of Robert, is now on trial. The defense made a strenuous effort for a continuance, the main contention being the absence of witnesses, two of whom are alleged to have left the county under indictments charging them with complicity in the lynching. Judge Denson decided that the case will be heard at once. Every step is being bitterly contested, and the trial may consume several days.

PREMATURE EXPLOSION.

A serious accident befell the six-year-old son of Alderman J. C. Waldrop Friday. His father had taken home a dynamite cap and the little fellow got hold of it, and applied a match, intending to throw it down as he would a cracker, but it exploded in his hand with disastrous results. A portion of the thumb and forefinger of his left hand are gone. Portions of the cap struck the boy in the face, cutting it badly. He suffered considerably from the shock and loss of blood.

IT IS reported from Cordova that the Haughton Oil Company, sinking a well in that vicinity, struck a strata of mineral supposed to be iron ore. If the mineral fulfills the expectations of the company, it will be a valuable find.

TUSCALOOSA citizens think that $2,500 is too much for them to raise for the survey of the Birmingham & Vicksburg Railway, if Birmingham raises but $5,000. One-fifth of what Birmingham is asked is all they think fair for their city.

REPORTS from all over the state re the crops are very encouraging. The recent rains have materially improved all sorts.

THE University of Alabama opens on September 18th. Ten young ladies are already booked for the annex.

THE First National Bank of Anniston has received what is said to be one of the largest safe deposit vaults in the state. The vault weighs 24,000 pounds, and it was necessary to construct a timber track from the railroad to the bank, as there was no dray in the city strong enough to transport it.

JAMES GEDES has been appointed assistant general manager of the B. & R. Railroad company.

WHILE THE OPPORNENTS SLEPT

Thursday night a railroad line one-fourth of a mile in length, was built from Smithfield on the right of way granted by the Birmingham Railway, Light and Power Co. and claimed by both that company and the Tennessee Coal, Iron and R. R. Co. Several weeks ago the railway company decided to lay double tracks to Ensley; work was bugun on the line, but before track was laid a dispute arose with the Tennessee Company relative to the ownership of the right of way. Pending a settlement of this question the work stopped. The road was built by the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company during the night, but without the permission or knowledge of the street railway company.

A RAILROAD TO GAINESVILLE.

John T. Cochrane, president of the Carrollton Short Line, was asked in Tuscaloosa Thursday if it was true that the Gainesville people had complied with his proposition regarding the building of a railroad connecting that town with the Mobile & Ohio. He said: "I made the Gainesville people a proposition to build a twenty-two mile road connecting their town with the Mobile & Ohio on the condition that they raise $20,000 and give me right of way and other facilities. They have submitted an offer of $15,000 as a counter proposition, which I am now considering." He said further that the road would be built if the $20,000 was raised.

LEWIS OWES ALABAMA $1,650.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 29—It has been ascertained that L. P. Lewis, Tax Collector of Marshall county is due the state $1,650, and that he has left Marshall county for parts unknown. This report has been confirmed by Hon. Thomas L. Sowell, State Auditor, who states that he has received a message from Lewis' bondsmen, prominent citizens of that county, assuring him that they will make the amount good and that they are investigating the cause of the shortage.

Tax collectors are required under the law to make their annual settlement on or before July 1st. Mr. Sowell says that Lewis was several weeks behind this year, and that he had sent him a statement of his account and urged him to make a settlement. Since that time he sent several statements to Lewis, who repeatedly asked for time. On Monday of last week Lewis telegraphed the Auditor that he was en route to Montgomery to make the settlement. The telegram was dated Birmingham. Lewis failed to show up at Montgomery, so the Auditor notified his bondsmen that he would hold them to account.

The whereabouts of Lewis have not been ascertained.

STORM AT EUFAULA.

A heavy rain and wind storm swept over Eufaula and section Wednesday afternoon, lasting nearly an hour. A high wind prevailed and the rain fell in torrents. A bolt of lightning struck a building under construction and demolished the chimney, tore away some of the plastering and did other damage. Trees were uprooted and many fences blown down. The telephone exchange suffered serious injury. The damage to crops will be heavy. The storm was at its worst at Clayton, Ala. Pruett's drug store was flooded and the entire stock almost ruined.

THE work of excavating for the foundations of the car works plant at Wylam is going ahead rapidly. The entire surface of the the site selected for the erection of the plant is broken up and the dirt is being moved rapidly.

THE selection of the superintendent of education of Chambers county has caused quite a muddle in educational circles. It seems that State Superintendent of Education Abercrombie re-appointed W. G. Jarrell to the place. The Democrats of the county, however, elected G. B. Avery, of Lanette over Mr. Jarrell. Mr. Abercrombie was informed of the fact, but declined to consider Mr. Avery's election. It now remains to be seen whether or not the people of Chambers will raise a row about the matter.

M. L. DAVIS has been appointed postmaster at Lynch, Shelby county.

NEW MANAGER.

G. B. McCormack, for many years general manager of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, has been elected vice president and general manager of the Woodward Iron Company, and will have entire charge of the properties of that company. His election to the office became effective Monday.

MEASURING THE SUN'S HEAT.

The Immense Work Done by the Rays on the Earth's Surface.

Every school boy knows that rain is produced by the sun evaporating the water from the sea and the reprecipitation of this water. But let him ask his teacher at what rate this evaporation takes place and few will be able to answer. In order to study the force of the sun Professor Buchanan has, according to Nature, devised what he calls a "Solar Calorimeter." By means of this apparatus the sun's rays are concentrated by a reflector upon the surface of a silver tube in which is water, the area of all parts being accurately measured. Now the heat from the sun changes the water in the silver boiler to steam and this is condensed by a suitable arrangement and measured. Thus by noting the time required, the area of the various surfaces and the amount of water changed to steam the sun's heat can be calculated.

MEASURING THE SUN'S HEAT.

Observations made at Sohag in Egypt showed that the sun could evaporate to steam more than seventeen and a half cubic centimeters of water per square meter of surface per minute. No allowance has been made for instrumental imperfections. They certainly exist and by making suitable corrections we find the force of the sun per square meter to be equal to about one horse-power. By making suitable calculations the author reckons that each meter of the sun's surface emits 45,000 horse-power per minute.

Signs Used by English Burglars.

Should you, while taking your morning or evening stroll around your house, notice any of these drawings, or any chalk marks in the least resembling them, on your garden wall or the walls of your house, says Answers, notify the police. These signs are in common use among housebreakers and tramps and thieves, each having its special significance.

MARKS USED BY ENGLISH HOUSEBREAKER

Thus Fig. 1 means: Following the point of the arrow, the fourth house in the direction given is to be burgled during the night of the next moon crescent.

The tools needed for the burglary are indicated in the second line.

A bird (lantern), die (hammer), key, pitcher (chloroform), and ladder.

Fig. 2, a key crossed by an arrow, means that a free-lance tramp has been reconnoitering and desires assistance; also that it would not be amiss to visit the place at night, when in all probability a valuable acquaintance may be formed.

Fig. 3, two swords crossed, with an arrow running through, signifies the direction a certain troop of tramps or gypsies have taken.

Fashions For Equines.

HATS WORN BY PHILADELPHIA HORSES DURING THE HOT SPELL.

Half-Sick

"I first used Ayer's Sarsaparilla in the fall of 1848. Since then I have taken it every spring as a blood-purifying and nerve-strengthening medicine."
S. T. Jones, Wichita, Kans.

If you feel run down, are easily tired, if your nerves are weak and your blood is thin, then begin to take the good old standard family medicine, Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It's a regular nerve lifter, a perfect blood builder. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Ask your doctor what he thinks of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He knows all about this grand old family medicine. Follow his advice and we will be satisfied.
J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Liver Pills

That's what you need; something to cure your biliousness and give you a good digestion. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation and biliousness. Gently laxative. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers
50 CTS. OF DRUGGISTS, OR R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H.

Now is the Time

You Need a Good Liver Medicine.

LIVERINA

Acts directly on the Liver. Relieving Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache and that Languid Feeling Peculiar to this Season of the Year.

Try it. 50c a Bottle at All Retailers.

GAY, HARDIE & DURR,
Proprietors, Montgomery, Ala.

$900 TO $1500 A YEAR

We want intelligent Men and Women as Traveling Representatives or Local Managers; salary $900 to $1500 a year and all expenses, according to experience and ability. We also want local representatives; salary $9 to $15 a week and commission, depending upon the time devoted. Send stamp for full particulars and state position preferred. Address, Dept. B.
THE BELL COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER

CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE
SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE.
ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E. 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

$75.00 To $150.00 Per Month

MADE BY AGENTS. Elegant Premiums Free. Address SCOTT REMEDY CO., LOUISVILLE, KY.
When you write mention this paper.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

$3.00 W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES $3.50
UNION MADE.

For More Than a Quarter of a Century

The reputation of W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes for style, comfort, and wear has excelled all other makes sold at these prices. This excellent reputation has been won by merit alone. W. L. Douglas shoes have to give better satisfaction than other $3.00 and $3.50 shoes, because his reputation for the best $3.00 and $3.50 shoes must be maintained. The standard has always been placed so high that the wearer receives more value for his money in the W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than he can get elsewhere.

W. L. Douglas sells more $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than any other two manufacturers.

W. L. Douglas $4.00 Gilt Edge Line cannot be equalled at any price.

W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes are made of the same high grade leathers used in $5 and $6 shoes and are just as good.

Sold by the best shoe dealers everywhere.

Insist upon having W. L. Douglas shoes with name and price stamped on bottom.

How to Order by Mail.—If W. L. Douglas shoes are not sold in your town, send order direct to factory. Shoes sent anywhere on receipt of price and 25 cts. additional for carriage. My custom department will make you a pair that will equal $5 and $6 custom made shoes, in style, fit and wear. Take measurements of foot as shown on model; state style desired; size and width usually worn; plain or cap toe; heavy, medium or light soles. A fit guaranteed. Try a pair.

Fast Color Eyelets used.
Catalog free. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

Am. N. U., No. 36. 1901.

WINCHESTER

"NEW RIVAL" FACTORY LOADED SHOTGUN SHELLS

outshoot all other black powder shells, because they are made better and loaded by exact machinery with the standard brands of powder, shot and wadding. Try them and you will be convinced.

ALL ♦ REPUTABLE DEALERS ♦ KEEP ♦ THEM

USE CERTAIN COUGH CHILL CORN CURE. 25 50 $1

"The Sauce that made West Point famous."
McILHENNY'S TABASCO.

Germany has 24,000 friendly societies and clubs, the United Kingdom 22,000; France only 8000.

Best For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

President Harper announces that the University of Chicago has begun to establish preparatory schools in Europe.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES do not spot, streak or give your goods an unevenly dyed appearance. Sold by all druggists.

Only 116 passengers on British ships last year lost their lives through shipwreck.

A horse drawing light loads can average twenty miles a day for twenty years.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Props., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

The largest enclosure of deer is said to be the royal park in Copenhagen, 4200 acres.

See advt. of SMITHDEAL'S BUSINESS COLLEGE

The blind man doesn't believe in love at first sight.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa.

In one sense of the word a Chinese laundryman is a man of iron.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The population of Norway is about 2,200,000 souls.

Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of throat and lungs.—WM. O. ENDELEY, Vanburen, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900.

Substance Similar to Rubber.

M. Col of Paris has discovered that a substance similar to rubber may be obtained from the Japanese spindle tree. The announcement was made to the Academie des Sciences.

WE PAY R. R. FARE AND UNDER $5,000 Deposit Guarantees Positions
100 FREE SCHOLARSHIPS. BOARD AT COST. Write Quick to Ga.-Ala. Business College, Macon, Ga.

Smithdeal's
Is the oldest and only business college in Va. owning its building—a grand new one. No vacations. Ladies & gentlemen. Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Typewriting, Penmanship, Telegraphy, &c. "Leading business college south of the Potomac river."—Phila. Stenographer. Address, G. M. Smithdeal, President, Richmond, Va.

Bryant & Stratton
Business, Shorthand and Telegraph College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

FALLING HAIR

Prevented by Shampoos of CUTICURA SOAP and light dressings of CUTICURA, purest of emollient skin cures. This treatment at once stops falling hair, removes crusts, scales, and dandruff, soothes irritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, supplies the roots with energy and nourishment, and makes the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp when all else fails.

MILLIONS USE CUTICURA SOAP

Assisted by CUTICURA OINTMENT, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, for too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women and mothers. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients, and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines, in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humour, Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT, to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and speedily and heal; and CUTICURA RESOLVENT to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, humiliating and costly skin, scalp, and blood humours, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

Cuticura THE SET

For Bargains

—GO TO—

W. M. WILSON & BRO,

Closing out all Millinery and Ladies' Shirt Waists for less than cost.

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON.

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : : ALA.

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER office

AT REDUCED PRICES

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

They banish pain and prolong life. ONE GIVES RELIEF.

R·I·P·A·N·S

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

THIS COMPLETE SHAVING OUTFIT FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

1 English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to shave.....75c
1 9½ in Hair Brush.....35c
1 Shaving Brush.....10c
1 7 in Barber Comb.....10c
1 Rubber Fine " 10c
1 4 in Pocket comb in case.....10c
1 Bar good Shaving soap.....10c
1 2¼ x1 Mirror.....10c
1 23 in Razor Strop.....50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

The O. K. Lunch Counter

MEALS AND LUNCHES SERVED AT ALL HOURS AT POPULAR PRICES

Fish and Oysters during the Season I pay highest market price for Chickens and Eggs.

LUNCHES PUT UP FOR TRAVELERS

THE O. K. LUNCH COUNTER
NEXT THE RAILROAD, CLANTON.
W. H. STACY, Proprietor.

WOMAN'S RELIEF

A really healthy woman has little pain or discomfort at the menstrual period. No woman needs to have any. Wine of Cardui will quickly relieve those smarting menstrual pains and the dragging head, back and side aches caused by falling of the womb and irregular menses.

WINE OF CARDUI

has brought permanent relief to 1,000,000 women who suffered every month. It makes the menstrual organs strong and healthy. It is the provision made by Nature to give women relief from the terrible aches and pains which blight so many homes.

GREENWOOD, LA., Oct. 14, 1900.
I have been very sick for some time. I was taken with a severe pain in my side and could not get any relief until I tried a bottle of Wine of Cardui. Before I had taken all of it I was relieved. I feel it my duty to say that you have a wonderful medicine.
MRS. M. A. YOUNG.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP

W. H. TAYLOR, Proprietor.

HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING

In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.

HOT AND COLD BATHS.

CLANTON

Beauty Is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets,—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the BANNER.

Headache 5c? Get Dr. Miles' Pain Pills

GENERAL CONVENTION EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SAN FRANCISCO. California, October 1901.

The Southern Pacific Co's "Sun Set Route" takes pleasure in announcing very low round trip rates from all Coupon Tickets Offices in this territory to San Francisco, Cal., account of the above occasion.

Tickets on sale September 18-26 inclusive.

Stop Overs are allowed on the going trip in Texas and West thereof provided, passengers reach San Francisco not later than October 2nd, and on the return trip at points West of Colorado Common Points, San Antonio and Fort Worth, Texas, provided, passengers reach starting point within the extreme limit of the ticket, November 15, 1901.

The privilege of going one route and returning another will be allowed.

Particular attention is called to the "Convention Special," one of the finest trains in the world, from New Orleans through to California without change. This train carrying the equipment of the "Famous Sun Set Limited" Vestibuled Sleeping and Dining Cars, especially arranged to carry the delegates and visitors to California, will leave New Orleans Wednesday, September 25th. Stops will be made at various interesting points enroute.

The following rates have been authorized from various points to San Francisco and return:

Anniston	$ 55.55
Attalla	$ 55.15
Birmingham, Selma, Decatur, Mobile, Montgomery and Tuskaloosa	$ 51.75
Eufaula	$ 56.55
Florence	$ 50.95
Huntsville	$ 53.20
Opelika	$ 55.70

Rates are open to all.

For further information call on or address GEO. W. ELY,
T. P. A. "Sun Set Route,"
Montgomery, Ala.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer," writes Dr. A. Kellet, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for Burns, Boils, Piles and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Clanton Drug Co.

Cotton Goods Market Improving.

One particularly bright spot on the business horizon at the moment is the cotton goods market. The volume of trade in local jobbing lines is large and still growing, with advices from the West and South most encouraging. First hands too, are experiencing a largely increased spot trade as a result of the unexpected activity in jobbing lines; in some instances there is difficulty in making prompt deliveries. The hardening tendency in prices of most staples of cotton goods continues, acting as a stimulant to further improvement.

A new phase has been developed in the export market, too, of some significance and of widespread interest. This is the demand from China for brown sheetings of lighter weight than has heretofore been taken in any considerable quantity for shipment to the Orient. Domestic manufacturers have thus demonstrated their ability to successfully compete with foreign looms on finer count cottons, which is but a step toward capturing the trade on still finer goods. This broadening of the foreign market, too, renders American manufacturers more independent of local conditions.

All-in-all, it is a development to be heralded with acclamation.—New York Commercial.

THE BEST WAY TO THE

SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST.

NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

—IS VIA THE—

L. & N.

(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.)

The Through Cars

Of this line pass Calera daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans,

Connecting with all points in

TEXAS AND THE WEST,

Also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis,

Connecting for all points in the

NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or C. P. Atmore, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

Progress In Medicine.

Medical science grows apace with civilization and among the leading remedies, one that combines all the results of scientific study up to the present time and is put up in convenient and economical form, easy to take, easy to carry, is the famous Cascarets. Five years ago marked the time of the advent of the first Cascarets. Last year the sale reached the enormous total of six million boxes. This fact tells its story, every day life of users prefer them, but this kind of a medicine is sensational, their bowels and liver need regulating, Cascarets act on the liver just enough to keep it right without causing that awful sick, weakening feeling but usually follows the taking of Calomel and violent purges. We hope our readers who have never tried the merits of Cascarets will give them a good trial. We like them because we believe in them and because we know they are good.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

The Kinore Lynching

The conviction in Alabama of the member of a mob which hanged a man some months ago is calculated to give hope to the friends of law and order. The prosecuting judge imposed a sentence of life imprisonment. It requires more nerve on the part of judge and jury to thus vindicate the majesty of law than can readily be appreciated in other sections of the country. The Alabama case sets a precedent and a most valuable one, too, that will at very worst, if for the cross-roads rascals, behavior is bordering on a genuine expression of the public feeling there, it may be on that locality at least, and example can do its become glorious—the rule of the majority.—Ex-Louisville American.

How Are Your Kidneys?

Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Pills cure all kidney ills. Sold from Add. Sterling Remedy Co. Chicago.

THE NULITE.

750 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS

Produce the finest artificial light in the world. Superior to electricity or gas. Cheaper than kerosene oil. A 20th Century Revolution in the Art of Lighting.

They darkness into daylight turn
And air railroad of money burn

No Smoke. No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely Safe. They are Portable. Hang or stand them anywhere. We also manufacture Table Lamps, Wall Lamps, Pendants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, Etc. The best and only really successful Incandescent Vapor Gas Lamps made. They will last sight. Each burner 100 candle power. Nothing like them. Good Ag'ts Wanted. Write for catalogue and prices.

Chicago Solar Light Co. 81 Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

THE

AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS is the one important magazine in the world giving in its pictures, its text, in its contributed articles, editorials and departments, a comprehensive, timely record of the world's current history. Not the enumeration of mere bare facts, but a comprehensive picture of the month, its activities, its notable personalities, and notable utterances. The best informed men and women in the world find it indispensable.

There are many readers in your locality who have yet to learn of its usefulness. We wish to establish active agents in every city and township in the country. We will pay liberally for energetic effort in the subscription field. Leisure moments can be utilized with substantial increase of income. Make a list of the persons in your locality who should have the "Review of Reviews," and send to us for agent's terms, sample copies, and working outfit. The solicit their subscriptions. It is a compliment to approach a person with a subscription proposition for the "Review of Reviews" and consequently orders are easily secured. This is the active subscription season. Make application at once, naming your references.

Price, 25 cents a number. $3.50 a year.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS COMPANY,
13 Astor Place, New York City.

SAVE YOUR STAR TIN TAGS

"Star" tin tags (showing small star printed on under side of tag), "Horse Shoe," "J. T.," "Good Luck," "Cross Bow," and "Drummond" Natural Leaf Tin Tags are of equal value in securing presents mentioned below, and may be assorted. Every man, woman and child can find something on the list that they would like to have, and can have

FREE!

	Tags
1 Match Box	25
2 Knife, one blade, good steel	25
3 Scissors, 4½ inches	25
4 Child's Set, Knife, Fork and Spoon	35
5 Salt and Pepper Set, one each, quadruple plate on white metal	50
6 French Briar Wood Pipe	25
7 Razor, hollow ground, fine English steel	50
8 Butter Knife, triple plate, best quality	50
9 Sugar Shell, triple plate, best quality	50
10 Sardine Box, sterling silver	75
11 Knife, "Keen Kutter," two blades	75
12 Hunting Knife, "Keen Kutter," 5-in blade	75
13 Shears, "Keen Kutter," 6-inch	75
14 Pen Set, Cracker and 6 Picks, silver plated	80
15 Base Ball, "Association," best quality	100
16 Alarm Clock, nickel	150
17 Six Genuine Rogers' Teaspoons, best plated goods	175
18 Watch, stem-wind, stem-set	200
19 Carving Set, best steel, Rosewood handles	200
20 Six Genuine Rogers' Table Spoons, best plated goods	200
21 Six each, Knives and Forks, Rosewood handles	200
22 Six each, Genuine Rogers' Knives and Forks, best plated goods	200
23 Clock, Alarm, Calendar, Thermometer, Barometer	200
24 Gun case, leather, for hunting shells or 20 shellers	200
25 Tool Box, for blacksmiths, tool and tackle	200
26 Tool Set, detachable, portable, very handsome	200
27 Remington Knife No. 6, 10 or 12 blades	200
28 Watch, stemwind, silver, Full Jewelled	200
29 Dress Suit Case, leather, handsome and durable	200
30 Sewing Machine, first class, with all attachments	200
31 Revolver, Colt's, Hammer, blued steel	200
32 Rifle, Colt's, Hammer, Breechloader	200
33 Guitar (Washburn's), rosewood, inlaid	200
34 Mandolin, very handsome	200
35 Winchester Repeating Rifle, fine, 32 calibre	200
36 Shotgun, double-barrel, hammerless, Damascus, 10 or 12 gauge	200
37 Bicycle, standard make, ladies or gents	200
38 Shot Gun, Ham-hammer, Damascus barrel, 12 gauge	200
39 Bugle Music Box, 12 by 8 inch	200

THE ABOVE OFFER EXPIRES NOVEMBER 30TH, 1900.

REMEMBER IN MIND that a dime's worth of

STAR PLUG TOBACCO

will last longer and afford more pleasure than a dime's worth of any other brand.

MAKE THE TEST!

Send tags to CONTINENTAL TOBACCO CO., St. Louis, Mo.

MAN ON THE CORNER

of the Sights He Saw and Some He Saw Not

Clanton goes to be more than every day. Our new stores with large ... with a grand opening day. ... all the wealth and fashion ... to see the new styles. The ... spring firm of W. M. Wilson ... are in the swim, and for ... first time in its history Clanton ... have a grand opening day. ... Wilson Bros. have secured the ... services of a lady from St. Louis ... superintend their millinery department, and they have made ... special purchases of all the very ... styles and fashions, and invite ... all the ladies from everywhere ... come on Tuesday, Sept. 24, and ... their eyes on these wonderful ... creations in millinery.

... educational matters in Chilton ... rapidly improving. The citizens ... display more interest than ... merly in the different schools ... the consequence is the pedagogues ... strive their utmost to please ... patrons. At the opening of ... Clanton High School last Monday ... there was a goodly number of ... visitors present and interesting ... speeches were made by Judge Adams, ... Rev. D. F. Elliser and Mr. ... J. Mullins. 56 students were ... enrolled that day and 6 more the ... following. Prof. Collier's ... school starts off with glowing prospects.

... next Monday Thorsby will celebrate the opening of the Normal ... Institute, and Professors Rasco ... Carmichael are working indefatigably to make the Institute a ... grand success, and there is every ... reason to believe the coming session ... will mark an era in the education ... affairs of Chilton.

... On Wednesday, Sept. 25, the ... University School at Clanton commences its ninth annual session. ... Prof. McMorries looks forward ... to being one of the most successful sessions the school has yet ... had. It is a healthy sign the interest which these school openings ... are exciting in the public, and ... shows much for the future welfare ... of the county.

CANNING FACTORY

... the farmers located within ten ... miles of Thorsby:

... am requested to notify you ... Mr. J. M. Bosworth of Columbiana wishes to meet you next ... Saturday, September 14, at 2 p.m., ... at City Hall, Thorsby, to explain ... canning business and tell you ... what fruits and vegetables that ... he can produce and sell at a fair ... price to the large cannery he is arranging to locate in Thorsby at ...

... he proposes to put in a 60,000 ... per day outfit and give us a ... contract, sure and profitable ... market for all the canning stock ... we can deliver to him. As this ... enterprise opens up new fields and ... possibilities for us, I hope all ... progressive farmers will be on hand ... to hear what Mr. Bosworth has to ... say along that line. Remember ... Saturday, Sept. 14, 2 p.m.

P. C. SMITH.

Riderville.

... The railroad commission has ordered a new depot to be built at ... Riderville.

... In compliance with this order, the ... railroad company has drawn up ... plans for the new building. These ... plans have been passed upon and ... approved by the commission. The ... work on the new building will be ... pushed at once.

THE BANNER.

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. IX — CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 12, 1901 — NO. 47

...MAN ON THE CORNER

...of the Sights He Saw and Some He Saw Not.

Clanton seems to be more metro... Our new stores ... display of ... coming up ... their opportunities ... large cities the ... different ... with a grand opening day, ... in the wealth and fashion ... to see the new styles. The ... firm of W. M. Wilson ... in the evening, and for ... time in its history Clanton ... to have a grand opening day. ... Wilson Bros have secured the ... of a lady from St. Louis ... superintend their millinery de... ment, and they have made ... purchases of all the very ... styles and fashions, and ... all the ladies from everywhere ... on Tuesday, Sept. 24, and ... their eyes on these wonderful ... in millinery.

Educational matters in Chilton ... rapidly improving. The citi... display more interest than ... in the different schools ... the consequence is the peda... strive their utmost to please ... patrons. At the opening of ... Clanton High School last Mon... there was a goodly number of ... present and interesting ... were made by Judge Ad... Rev. D. F. Ellisor and Mr. ... Mims. 50 students were ... that day and 6 more the ... following. Prof. Collier's ... starts off with glowing pros...

Next Monday Thorsby will cel... the opening of the Normal ... and Professors Rasco ... Carmichael are working inde... to make the Institute a ... success, and there is every ... to believe the coming ses... marks an era in the education... affairs of Chilton.

On Wednesday, Sept. 25, the ... University School at Clanton com... its ninth annual session. ... Prof. McMorries looks forward ... being one of the most suc... sessions the school has yet ... It is a healthy sign the in... which these school openings ... exciting in the public, and ... bodes much for the future wel... of the county.

CANNING FACTORY

The farmers located within ten ... miles of Thorsby ... are pleased to notify you ... Mr. L. M. Bosworth of Col... Ala. wishes to meet you next ... day, September 14, at 2 p.m., ... Hall, Thorsby, to explain ... business and tell you ... fruits and vegetables that ... can produce and sell at a fair ... to the large factory he is ar... to locate in Thorsby at ...

He proposes to put in a 60,000 ... per day outfit and give us a ... sure and profitable ... for all the coming stock ... can deliver to him. As this ... opens up new fields and ... possibilities for us, I hope all ... farmers will be on hand ... what Mr. Bosworth has to ... along that line. Remember ... Saturday, Sept. 14, 2 p.m.

P. C. SMITH.

Riderville.

The railroad commission has or... a new depot to be built at ... ville.

In compliance with this order, the ... company has drawn up ... for the new building. These ... have been passed upon and ... by the commission. The ... on the new building will be ... at once.

Poplar Springs.

Gathering and selling cotton seems to be the order of the day; farmers are hoping for a good price.

Messrs. Reece and Rudy Hardy of Weogufka were in our midst Sunday.

Mr. J. W. Patterson and family visited relatives near Eld Saturday.

Prof. J. N. Goss, of Burwell was in our midst again Sunday.

Misses J. L. Wilson and G. H. Vinson visited Ozmoor last week.

Prof. W. A. Dupree's school closed Friday evening.

Messrs. J. E. McDowell, S. E. Patterson and Master Irving Downs entered Prof. Collier's school Monday. We wish for them much success.

Rev. W. S. Cox has been recalled to pastorate of Poplar Spring church.

Mr. J. G. Downs and charming daughter, Miss Lena, paid Clanton a flying visit Monday.

CHIGG AND CHANG.

Don't throw away that sample bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic because it cost you nothing. It's too good to be wasted. Nothing like it for cuts, burns, nail punctures, inflamed eyes, sore throat, etc. Internally it cures colic, diarrhoea and flux.

Lily.

Now, we cannot tell the readers of your paper where Tom Jones or Billy Smith went with their families on Sunday for, we do not know, but we think they should have been at home on Sunday morning, ready to go with their families to Sabbath-school and preaching; nor can we tell what young gents called on their best girls Sunday eve, but presume they all did. "'Tis not mine to pursue where their young hopes are straying." I'm getting too old to keep up with them.

Rev. T. Deason preached at Mulberry yesterday to an appreciative audience.

Mulberry has just had a revival conducted by Evangelist F. M. Turner. All is peace, and joy and love among the members now and we hope this sentiment will be perennial.

Messrs. Calfee and Hayes ginned their first bale of cotton to-day for G. L. Speer.

Cotton is opening very rapidly. The prevailing opinion is that it will be only about two-thirds of a crop. Farmers should save all the food products yielded this year, let none of it go to waste. This will enable them to sell a lot of stuff at a good price (for all food products will be high) which will largely compensate for the short cotton crop; then we may continue on this line by sowing early rye, oats, barley, wheat, and thus be among the first on the market next spring with new crops.

Mr. Wm. Johnson is building a new dwelling on his "Sam Johnson" place.

Mr. Wm. Veazey's new residence is nearing completion.

Mr. R. L. Veazey is placing material on the ground for the erection of a storehouse at the cross roads, opposite Mr. Geo. Calloway's. We are building a new town here to take the place in the county of old wooden Clanton which is so rapidly passing away.

The Isabella academy will be moved from its present site to the center of the original school lot, a beautiful lot of ten acres. Fall term of this school will open about middle of October. Prof. G. L. Speer has again been chosen teacher.

The good roads sentiment prevails to such an extent in this corner that a squad of hands, many of whom were not subject to road duty on this road, met on top of the steep little hill between S. K. Rasberry's and S. Jones' last week and in one half day succeeded in changing what had been almost an impassable barrier to a good road. With one two horse plough and six improvised scrapes made by bolting a one by twelve board to a double foot ploughstock, a very good substitute for a railroad scrape, we ploughed off the top of this hill and removed the dirt to the foot of the slope. Such work as this could be done in many places in Chilton, greatly improving our highways, but alas we have no law under which to act.

CITIZEN.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25 cents.

NOTICE.

The churches of the Unity Association will meet at the time and place appointed at their last Association held with Jemison church, at which time the new movement can be fully discussed and all churches who desire to do so can withdraw or go into the formation of the county association.

Respectfully,
F. M. WOODS,
Chairman Ex. Com.

Macedonia.

Mr. Monroe Nix was the first to get a bale of cotton out in this section. He sold it at Randolph last Thursday, the 5th inst., the price paid for it was eight cents. It being the first new bale for Randolph this season. The cotton crop in this section is not good.

Prof. Martin's school will close next Friday.

CLINT.

Sardis.

Sardis church has just closed a series of meetings which have been the most successful that has ever been conducted at this place. A Baptist evangelist from Pensacola, Fla., by the name of F. M. Turner, conducted the service. Seventeen accessions to the church. God, through the instrumentality of Bro. Turner, has done a wonderful work in this community. Since the fourth Saturday in July 38 souls have been saved through the faithful work of Bro. Turner. He has now gone to his home in Florida.

S. B. MCCARY.

Adams, Ala., Sept. 6, 1901

Dear Banner—We have just closed a glorious revival meeting at our church at Sardis. Evangelist F. M. Turner did the preaching. He preached with great power, and in all 41 souls was added to the church. The evangelist made a host of lasting friends in this county. He leaves to-day for his home in Pensacola, Fla., after preaching for us one week. He is a great revivalist and a worker for the Master.

Yours in Christ,
H. J. GROOMS.

East Chilton.

Potatoes and cane are needing rain. Crops are proving to be better than was expected. Syrup making and horse swapping is prevalent here now.

Mr. D. Kendrick visited Clanton last week.

Mr. Culver of Lightwood was in our town Friday.

I don't think the people will form an idea that Burwell is like Montgomery or Birmingham. It is just a little place that wouldn't if it could.

J. N. Goss attended the opening exercises of Prof. Collier's school at Clanton Monday, and will enter school shortly.

Messrs. W. D. Goss and W. M. Howard have been appointed township trustees, in place of W. T. Mims and T. N. Howard.

Some of our boys carry chairs on the horn of their saddle.

Mr. W. D. Goss is the fig man now.

We regret to learn that President McKinley is likely to die from the effects of wounds.

Mr. P. H. Connell and wife are visiting relatives in Elmore this week.

SUDON.

"It's no joke," when we say that Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is superior to anything offered the "dear people" as a dressing for wounds, bites and stings of insects, "poison oak," It's cleanliness, pleasant odor and quick cures make it a universal favorite wherever known. Price 50c. Remember that it is guaranteed by your druggist.

52 Banners cost only 75 cents.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.
THORSBY, ALA.

Southeast Chilton.

Farmers are getting along very nicely picking cotton, and we hope that we will get a good price this season. Farmers had good weather for saving fodder.

The big meeting started last Saturday at Canaan church, three miles north of Mountain Creek; hope everybody will attend that can.

We are glad to say that Charlie Kendrick is about to get well, after a long spell of sickness.

Dave Norris and Miss Pearl Cooper and brothers made a pleasant visit to the river last Saturday, and they report a fine time.

Mr. P. H. Connell and family went to Elmore last Friday to visit their sister, Mrs. W. H. Kendrick.

We are sorry to say that the stock law will come in force October 1, and I will say that it is one of the worse things that ever happened in Chilton county.

ONE OF THE BOYS.

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Clanton Drug Co.

Borrowing is sorrowing, and so is lending half the time.

HOWNS' FIRE SALE
—ON—
SNUFF AND TOBACCO
FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS

$3.50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnaps Early Bird, Lodg Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

and on Thursday, July 25,

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Bruton.

$1.00 gets you 10 boxes 3⅓ oz. Bruton.

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 3⅓ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO and 600 pounds of SNUFF Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $

But they must go just the same.

Mortgage Sale.

Under and by virtue of the powers contained in a deed of mortgage, executed by the trustees of Clanton Congregational church of the town of Clanton, to the Congregational Church Building Society, on the 4th day of February, 1893, which said deed of mortgage is recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, in Volume 28 of Mortgages, page 474, and which said mortgage has been duly transferred and assigned to the undersigned. I will proceed to sell at auction to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court House door, in Clanton, in said County, on

MONDAY SEPTEMBER the 30, 1901,

within the legal hours of sale, the following described real estate in said mortgage deed mentioned and described, to-wit:

Lots number 1, 2, 7 and 8 in Block 12, situated east of the Louisville & Nashville railroad in the town of Clanton, county of Chilton and State of Alabama.

ALEX G. DAKE, Transferee.
By ROB'T H. KNOX, his Attorney.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Clanton drug store.

WANTED.

LAND FOR SALE. Any man wishing to buy good farms will do well to apply to
C. J. STEWART, Clanton, Ala.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1899. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager 316, Caxton Building, Chicago.

PAINT! If you want the best work and material at low prices see MOORE, the Painter, Clanton.

Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is the most wonderful healing component of the nineteenth century. Preserves the flesh, preventing inflammation and heals like magic. Ask your druggist for it.

Alabama Girls' Industrial School,
MONTEVALLO, ALA.

The next session opens September 28, 1901. An enlarged Dormitory and new class rooms make it possible to provide for more girls, and to offer better accommodations. For catalogue address
FRANCIS M. PETERSON, President.

GOING TO SCHOOL!

The Fifth District Agricultural School at Wetumpka, Ala., offers you good opportunities and low prices. $5.00 (Five dollars) covers all charges for nine months, session beginning Sep. 3d, 1901.
Board $8.00 per month.
Send for catalogue.
H. J. WILLINGHAM, President.

GUARANTEED UNDER A $5,000 DEPOSIT
R. R. FARE PAID
200 FREE Scholarships offered. Write quick to
GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts.
Office at the Adams' place
CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN C. DENNIS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practicing in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts.
CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. KNOX,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CLANTON, ALA.
Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama.

Dr. OTTO M. WISEHART,
DENTIST.
OFFICE HOURS. 8 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m.
Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS,
SPECIALIST
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
OFFICE 20 S. PERRY ST.
Office Hours: 9 to 12 and 2 to 4.
Telephone 664—2 Rings
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. N. S. JOHNSON
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at Blan on Drug Store CLANTON

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL,
JACKSONVILLE, ALA.
A school to prepare teachers. Demand for graduates greater than the supply. Board $8 per month up. Tuition free. Nineteenth year. Session begins Oct. 1, 1901. For catalogue address
CLARENCE W. DAUGETTE, President.

E. W. Grove
This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL
CLANTON, ALA.

Is a training and strictly private school for boys and girls.

Correlated to the University of Alabama and to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Has fitted more pupils for college, more pupils for teaching, more pupils for advanced business positions than all other schools in Chilton county combined. It is the only school in Chilton county whose pupils have a First Grade Certificate under the present school laws.

Its course of instruction is the best arranged, its methods the soundest, most thorough and up-to-date, its scholarship the most advanced; its location, buildings, grounds, furniture, equipments, the most attractive and best adapted of any school in Chilton county.

Its pupils enter any college in the South on certificate of the Principal. It deals honestly with the public adheres to professional courtesy, and performs its promises. Its mission is to build up, not to pull down. It is not, as some are, a mere common school called "College," "Normal," etc., by which misnomers the uninformed are mislead.

$101 pays all expenses of board, tuition, fuel, lights, etc., for session of nine months. School opens September 11, 1901. Write for catalogue.
E. Y. MCMORRIES, Principal.

To All Whom it May Concern:

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 3, 1901

No person, or persons, can lawfully solicit or write insurance for the Chilton county Branch of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama, unless he, or they, bear a commission (empowering him or them to perform such work) signed by Wallace C. Edler, General Agent of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of the State of Alabama.

All persons concerned will govern themselves accordingly.

WALLACE C. EDLER,
General Agent Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

Says the Minneapolis Times: "Judges everywhere are complaining of the prevalence of perjury. A few horrible examples in the penitentiary might prove a quickener of the conscience of those who are tempted."

Some idea of the vast extent and immense expenditures of the railroads of the United States may be gathered from the latest report of the interstate commerce commission. The report does not come up beyond June 30, 1900, but it shows that then there were no less than 1,017,653 persons employed by the railroad companies of the country. This was an average of 520 employes to every 100 miles of railway, a much larger number than would be generally supposed. For the train service of the railroads alone 450,063 persons were employed. To pay the army of railway employes one year the enormous sum of $377,261,841 was required.

The hero in everyday life who is always ready to do his duty and something more without expectation of recompense or fame is an inspiring figure and happily not an infrequent one. Such a man is Joseph Parry, a veteran engineer, whose run is between Syracuse and Rochester. In alighting from his locomotive for orders at Seneca Falls the other day he broke his hip, and, of course, found himself in immediate need of a surgeon. But there was nobody else to take his place, so he insisted on being lifted back to his seat beside the lever, and in defiance of the pain that racked him he ran his train through to Rochester almost on time. Hats off to Joseph Parry!

It is said that, when a man has reached the age of forty-five or fifty, he ceases to grow, that he is no longer capable of new efforts, of initiating fresh enterprises. That depends entirely upon what the man has been before that age, how he has used his powers, whether he has kept his mind flexible by contented effort, or whether he has permitted himself to be contented with what he has learned in youth. The true learner never ceases to grow, even if his physical powers wane. Growth is not merely a question of increase of strength or of mental alertness; but it is quite as much a ripening of the nature, the development of judgment, wisdom, moderation, sympathy, and quiet contemplation of the facts of life, observes the Christian Register.

An influential movement has been started in Italy with the object of bringing about prison reform. The punishment of solitary confinement has existed in Italy for ten years, and the general opinion is that it is infinitely worse than death. Official figures show that of every hundred convicts so punished 17 commit suicide and 19 go mad. Previous to the abolition of capital punishment only 22 of every 100 murderers condemned were actually executed.

THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION.

At 10:20 p. m., Sept. 10th, the following bulletin signed by the president's physicians was issued:

The condition of the president is unchanged in all important particulars. His temperature is 100.6; pulse, 114; respiration, 28.

At the operation on Friday last it was noted that the bullet had carried with it a short distance a fragment of the president's coat. This foreign material was removed, but a slight irritation of the tissues was produced, the evidences of which have appeared only tonight. It has been necessary to remove a few stitches and partially open the skin wound. This incident cannot give rise to other complications, but it is communicated to the public, as the surgeons in attendance wish to make their bulletins entirely frank. In consequence of this separation of the edges of the surface wound the healing of the same will be somewhat delayed. The president is now well enough to begin to take nourishment by the mouth in the form of pure beef juice.

The physicians are so confident of the remoteness of serious danger that Vice-President Roosevelt, Senator Hanna and members of Abner McKinley's family have left Buffalo. Secretary Wilson says the president will be signing papers by Saturday night.

Emma Goldman, "the queen of anarchy," is under arrest in Chicago. She disclaims all knowledge of a plot against the president.

PRESIDENT WM. McKINLEY SHOT.

While Holding a Public Reception in the Temple of Music an Anarchist's Bullet Lays Him Low.

HE HELD REVOLVER HIDDEN UNDER HIS HANDKERCHIEF

Full Account of the Dastardly Deed--Criminal in Jail--Confesses But Shows No Remorse--The Whole World Sorrows--Sympathy Universal--The Latest from Buffalo.

Friday afternoon the nation was electrified by the news that President McKinley had been assassinated. It was too sudden and too horrible for many to believe at first, but as the hours passed and the report was confirmed the mighty indignation of a powerful nation became manifest.

Just after 4 o'clock while the president was holding a public reception in the Temple of Music on the Pan-American Exposition grounds the cowardly attack was made. Standing in a crowd numbering thousands, apparently all friends eager to clasp his hand in token of love and loyalty, and amid the patriotic applause of all, the nation's chief executive received the threatening missiles from the weapon of an anarchistic fanatic.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

The president, though well guarded by United States secret service detectives, was fully exposed to such an attack as occurred. He stood at the edge of the raised dais upon which stands the great pipe organ. Upon his right stood President Milburn, of the Exposition, chatting with the president and introducing to him persons of note who approached. Upon the president's left stood Mr. Cortelyou, his secretary.

WHERE THE SHOOTING TOOK PLACE.

A medium sized man of ordinary appearance and plainly dressed in black, approached as if to greet the president. Both Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn noticed the man's hand was swathed in a bandage or handkerchief. He worked his way amid the storm of people up to the edge of the dais until he was within two feet of the president.

McKinley smiled, bowed and extended his hand in that spirit of geniality the American people so well know, when suddenly the sharp crack of a revolver rang loud and clear above the hum of voices.

The multitude which thronged the edifice came to a realizing sense of the awfulness of the scene of which they had been unwilling witnesses and with a single impulse, surged forward, while a hoarse cry swelled up from a thousand throats and a thousand men charged forward to lay hands upon the perpetrator of the crime.

President McKinley, after the first shock of the assassin's shot, retreated a step, then, as the detectives leaped upon his assailant, he turned, walked steadily to a chair and seated himself, at the same time removing his hat and bowing his head in his hands. In an instant Assistant Secretary Cortelyou and President Milburn were at his side. His vest was hastily opened, the president meanwhile admonishing those about him to remain calm, and telling them not to be alarmed.

"But you are wounded," cried his Secretary; "let me examine you."

"No, I think not," answered the president. "I am not badly hurt, I assure you."

Nevertheless, his outer garments were hastily loosened, and a trickling stream of crimson was seen and their worst fears were confirmed.

With the fury of tigers the secret service men and bystanders had thrown themselves upon the would-be assassin and in a twinkling he was borne to the ground, his weapon wrested from his grasp and strong arms pinioned him down. Even then he attempted to fire a third time. He was later safely confined in the Buffalo police headquarters, but not until the infuriated populace had attempted to lynch the president's assailant. The president was removed in the automobile ambulance and taken to the Exposition Hospital, where an examination was made. The best medical skill was summoned and within a brief period a number of Buffalo's best known practicioners were at the patient's side.

The president retained the full exercise of his faculties until placed on the operating table and subjected to anesthetics. Upon the first examination it was ascertained that one bullet had taken effect in the right breast, causing a comparatively harmless wound. The other took effect in the abdomen. It was probed for. The walls of the abdomen were opened, but the ball was not located. The incision was hastily closed, and after a consultation it was decided to remove the patient to the home of President John G. Milburn.

Leon F. Czolgosz, the self confessed assassin, has signed a confession covering six pages of foolscap, which states that he is an anarchist and that he became an enthusiastic member of that body through the influence of Emma Goldman, whose writings he had read and whose lectures he had listened to. He denies having any confederate and says that he decided on the assassination three days ago and bought the revolver in Buffalo with which the act was committed. He has seven brothers and sisters in Cleveland.

Czolgosz does not appear uneasy or penitent for his action. He says Emma Goldman's lectures and writings decided him that the government in this country was all wrong and he thought the best way to end it was by killing the president. He shows no signs of insanity but is very reticent about much of his career. While acknowledging himself an anarchist, he does not state to what branch of the organization he belongs. He first gave his name as Frederick Neiman, and said his home was in Detroit, and that he had been in Buffalo about a week. He said he had been boarding in Broadway. Later this place was located and in his room was found a small traveling bag containing an empty cartridge box and a few clothes. With these facts in hand, the police went at the prisoner with renewed vigor to obtain a straight account of his identity and movements since his arrival in Buffalo.

He at first admitted that he was an anarchist but denied strenuously that the attempt on the life of the president was a result of a preconcerted plot of any anarchist society. At times he was defiant and again indifferent. But at no time did he betray the remotest sign of remorse. He declared the deed was not premeditated, but refused to say why he perpetrated it.

Czolgosz was subjected to six hours of examination and questioning at the hands of the police officials Saturday. The lengthy examination of the prisoner was fruitless save in so far as his own individual fate is concerned, for while he told nothing that would implicate any one else in his crime, he went over the scene again and again, completing a confession as ample as the law ever exacted. The police believe he was selected by lot to commit the deed, believing him incapable of planning so shrewdly.

The latest news obtainable is that Mr. McKinley is not necessarily fatally shot. He is not by any means out of danger, but not the slightest symtom of peritonitis, the thing to be dreaded, has developed. His chances of recovery are constantly multiplying. The sympathy and the prayers of the world is poured out in his behalf.

The news of the attempt on the life of the president did not reach the financial district in New York, until after the stock market had closed for the day and most of the important bankers had left. A number of conferences by various financial interests were called, and the following was given out:

"After a somewhat prolonged period of liquidation the financial situation is one that should excite no alarm. The banks are strong and are in a position to meet the emergency that has arisen. The business of the country is on a substantial basis and the clearing house banks are amply able to cope with the situation and they will stand together in this emergency as they have done in the past."

BECAUSE HE LOVED HER SO.

At St. Louis last Thursday, George Kenile, aged, 22, shot and killed Bertha Richter, his 16-year-old sweetheart, and with the same weapon put a bullet into his own breast. He is probably fatally wounded. The girl had refused to marry him.

FREE delivery service will be inaugurated in Florence on December 1st.

TEXAS LEGISLATURE.

The second session of the Texas legislature assembled at Austin Thursday in conformity with the governor's proclamation. The first extra session expired by constitutional limitation at midnight Wednesday night. The principal work for this special session is to pass an appropriation bill for state expenses for the next two years, involving from five to six million dollars.

RIOTOUS ACTS.

The tipple of the Carbondale Coal Company was fired into at 1 o'clock Thursday morning, some thirty shots being fired. The shooting was done with Winchesters. Two railroad trestles were burned during the night, destroying the connection of the Crabtree and Carbondale mines with the main line of the Illinois Central Railroad. The mines were closed next day for want of railroad connection.

THE NEWS IN ALABAMA.

STEAMSHIP COMPANY MAKES A TEST OF ALABAMA COAL.

DR. POWERS WITH PUBLISHING COMPANY.

Prisoner Killed in Jefferson County Jail—Oil Found at Cordova—Bulger for Superintendent of Education—Other Items.

RANKS WITH THE BEST.

The Ocean Steamship Co., of Savannah, has made a test of Alabama coal in comparison with coal from Pennsylvania. The trial was made with steam coal, the object being to find out which is the better fuel. The result was very satisfactory and is creating considerable talk among the coal companies of the Birmingham district. In making the trial the best coal from various parts of Pennsylvania was used. For a representative of Alabama coal the product of the Ragland Coal Co., of St. Clair county, was used. This coal has attracted considerable attention and is used extensively. Other Alabama coal has been tested along the same line with satisfatory results.

A comparative analysis has been made which proves conclusively that the product of the mines of this state equals that of Pennsylvania or of any other state.

KILLED IN JAIL.

Friday afternoon Will Linn and P. M. Mooney, two white prisoners in the Jefferson county jail, became involved in a fight and Lynn was killed outright. Mooney is a trusty and was showing some visitors through the jail. Lynn was lying across a passage and refused to move no allow the visitors to pass. The men had some words over this and Lynn, becoming angered, rose and struck Mooney in the face. The men clinched and a brief struggle ensued. Suddenly Lynn fell limply to the floor unconscious, and died in a few minutes. Death was the result of strangulation. The coroner investigated and holds the killing justifiable although he referred the matter to the grand jury. Lynn has been in jail a number of times and was awaiting trial for aiding prisoners to escape. Mooney is to be tried for assault with intent to murder.

EIGHT FAILED TO SIGN.

There are but eight members of the late constitutional convention who have not signed the instrument as it was finally adopted by the convention.

T. J. Cornwell, of Jefferson; it is said that he purposely refrained from signing on account of the failure of the convention to provide a way for securing the county of Bessemer, so near his heart, and for which he so earnestly labored.

J. M. Fashee, of Conecuh; he was the only delegate to announce publicly his refusal to sign.

The others are: L. W. Grant, of Calhoun; L. W. Locklin, of Monroe; J. E. Long, of Buttler; E. R. Morrissette, of Monroe; William H. Samford, of Pike and E. D. Willett, of Pickens.

AT CORDOVA.

No new developments have followed the finding of oil at Cordova by the Houghton Oil Company. Work was carried forward five feet deeper but no more oil was found. The drilling will be continued. It is believed that the oil found was near the edge of a deposit of extensive size and within a short time it is probable that another well will be drilled.

THE CHARGE IS SERIOUS.

Thos. McKee, a young widower with three children, was arrested in Birmingham Saturday on requisition papers from Indiana charged with the betrayal of a young girl of that state. The young man's father is well off and has just invested quite heavily in Jefferson lands. He says there is nothing in the charge.

THE Tennessee Co. has decided not to declare a dividend this year on its common stock but to use its profits in making improvements and additions.

A contract is closed at Bay Minette to have an artesian well put down at once. The contract calls for six-inch well that is guaranteed to have a flow of water thirty feet above the ground.

JIM HOGG, of Sandusky, aged 19, was crushed to death at Pratt City Friday by falling slate in the mines.

GREAT preparations are making for Selma's street fair in October.

IN A NEW FIELD.

Dr. Jas. K. Powers, late professor in the University of Alabama, is now representative of the B. F. Johnson Publishing Co., of Richmond. This announcement will be of interest by his personal friends in Alabama and other Southern states where he is widely known. The Johnson first publishing house to put the idea of supplying the schools with school books adapted to their needs. The idea proved a great boon to the world of letters among the Southern authorship which gave the South its true place in literature. Johnson Publishing Co. was fortunate in securing the services of Dr. Powers, perhaps the most widely known educator in Alabama. He has been active in educational circles and knows personally nearly every prominent teacher and public man in the state.

WILL NOT BE A CANDIDATE.

It now seems that Hon. Tom Abercrombie is to have no opposition in his candidacy for a third term as superintendent of education. The next term under the new constitution will be for four years and it is thus too tempting to go in without a fight for it. The man who will fight with Mr. Abercrombie is Hon. Thomas E. Kilby of Talladega. Mr. Kilby was a member of the last two legislatures and the constitutional convention and in all three of these bodies he was conspicuous for his zeal in behalf of the common schools and his ability in securing for them liberal appropriations.

TUSCALOOSA'S FORTUNE.

Additional proof has been given Tuskaloosa that work on the extension of the Southern Railway from Aliceville to Searles will soon begin. The opening of the books is considered the formal beginning of a new era in Tuskaloosa. The richest part of the county, hitherto inaccessible, Tuskaloosa, will soon be connected by rail with the city. The building of this road also means the location of the furnace of the Central Coal Company. Their coal mines at Searles and it was given out when the company was incorporated that they would build their furnace in Tuskaloosa if a road could be had to haul fuel from their mines.

PLENTY OF WORK.

The New Decatur shops of the N. R. R. have orders to build more freight cars. This order is a total of 1176 boxes, flats and gondolas which the shops now have in addition to build. These orders for cars will give employment to a number of extra men; at present 1,500 men are employed. The shops were built solely for the repair business of the company, but about years ago they decided to build cars there and since that time hundred have been built.

BOOTH COMING.

General William Booth, commander in chief and founder of the Salvation Army, will visit Birmingham in January. General Booth and party leave New York on the 28th of September in a car built especially for him, and will make an extensive first going across the continent. This will be the first time General Booth has ever visited the South, and will be made the occasion of great rejoicing. Free transportation has been given the party by the Southern Railway.

THE first bale of Florence cotton weighed 508 pounds and brought cents.

CARR ACQUITTED.

"Bud" Jett, at Stout's Mill, was killed by a jab in the neck with an umbrella point in a scuffle three weeks since. Pat Carr, of Bloesburg, was arrested, charged with the offense, but on trial in court was found not guilty.

BANKHEAD ILL.

Congressman J. H. Bankhead of the Sixth District is ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Perry, in Aiken, S. C., but his indisposition is not regarded dangerous.

A FEW CHANGES.

W. H. Hasselgrave, Southern manager of the Republic Iron and Steel company, will attend the meeting of the board of directors and stockholders of the company in New York. Colonel Warner, the president, will be absent. His successor will be A. W. Davison. C. S. Rader, formerly president, has resigned. During the last few months the company has made improvements and has added materially to its working property.

LL ARP'S LETTER

Old Man Has Little Faith In Manual Training Schools.

TRIED IT MANY LONG YEARS AGO

Readers' Interesting and Laughable Recitation of His Experience in Days that Long While a College Student.

Manual training is no new thing. Sixty years ago we have had it in the Manual Labor school in old Mount. We had to work with our hands three hours a day. We worked the hoe or the ax or plowed corn in cotton or hauled wood or did some of farm work and the three hours labor was intended to pay our board. But that was a dead The boys didn't do one-third as much as they frolicked. Captain Gardner, the old hero of Shepherd's Mountain during the Creek war, was overseer and he said he had rather fight Indians than watch these boys. He was a good-hearted, brave man, but he couldn't manage a lot of boys who hadn't been raised to work and whose fathers were rich and had neglected to work them. Some of these boys had been sent at last and had been sent to the school to be tamed and reformed. Poor Captain Garmany. He pleaded with them, took the foremost row and showed them how to hold the plow or spell it or grind an ax, but when he was teaching and training one squad in the field, another squad in another would slip off and go in washing. The old fashioned wagons had linch pins to hold the wheels on and sometimes the boys would lose a linch pin on the way to the woods and the wheel would come off and they would go back to the blacksmith shop to get another and fool away the time until the two hours were out and not a load of wood hauled. Captain Garmany gave up in despair before the year was out and they tried another with no better success. As a general rule, a rich man's son is not going to work with his hands. We had a very fine lot of boys from the best families such as the Goldings and Holts, of Columbus; the Listons, of Athens; the Allens, of Athensville, the Hendricks, of Hutts, and a lot of Harrises and Hoyles and Affords and Johnsons, but they eat more than they earned and so the experiment proved a failure and the manual labor feature was abandoned. My father, who had inaugurated it and was president of the board, had paid the bill of $3,000 for its failure. To-day that day it has been set down as a maxim that three hours of work of a rich man's son won't feed him. But the boys didn't turn out bad. Most of them made good scholars and citizens. Thomas Allen became comptroller general of the state. Ned Gould was colonel of the Ninth Georgia, William T. Wofford a brigadier general, and Dr. Jim Alexander and Hendricks stand high in their profession. Gig Wright and Bill Wright, Remsey Alexander and James Little became judges of the circuit courts.

I was ruminating about good old Dr. Patterson, our principal—how fat he was and how faithful and indulgent sometimes of a hot sultry afternoon, while we were blundering along through Caesar's commentaries, he would go fast asleep in his chair and we would skip a whole paragraph and keep on reading and skipping until his book would fall on the floor and wake him up. Then he would hunt all about to find out where we were at, but he never complained or made any sign of suspicion. I remember our debating society and how once a month, on Friday evening, we had to take sides and discuss some great question. Just a dozen of the older boys were engaged in it, and though I was the smallest, I was right smart and my father helped me and I held my own with the big boys. I remember when the question was who was the greatest man that ever lived, and each boy had to choose a different man and advance his claims. If two or more chose the same man, Dr. Patterson had to settle it. My father told me he chose Ben Franklin and I have never changed my opinion since, for I convinced myself that he was the best all round man that history tells of. He was the fifteenth of seventeen children, never went to school after he was ten years old, was apprenticed to his brother, who was a printer, ran away from him when he was 17, hired as a printer in Philadelphia, next year was sent to London to buy stock for a new printing office, but the promised money was not sent, so he hired to another printer, after two years returned to Philadelphia, invented a copper plate press—the first in America—married Miss Deborah Read in 1730, when he was 24 years old; founded the Pennsylvania Gazette and rose to commerce and renown. Founded the Philadelphia library in 1731; published Poor Richard's almanac for twenty years; in 1736 was chosen postmaster of Philadelphia; in 1743 founded the University of Pennsylvania; in 1744 founded the American Philosophical society and the Academy of Science, investigated electricity and took rank with the great discoverers and was elected F. R. S. of London and Edinburgh. In 1753 was appointed

AMA.

ES A

MPANY.

County

a—

of

T.

of Saabama from made ing to
The
is cree coal strict,
from as us
abama

IN A NEW FIELD.

Dr. Jas. K. Powers, late president of the University of Alabama, is now representative of the B. F. John Publishing Co., of Richmond. This announcement will be read with interest by his personal friends in Alabama and other Southern states where he is widely known. This was the first publishing house to adopt the idea of supplying the Southern schools with school books adapted to their needs. The idea pursued has given to the world of letters several great Southern authorship which gives the South its true place in history. The Johnson Publishing Co. was fortunate in securing the services of Dr. Powers, perhaps the most widely known educator in Alabama. He has long been active in educational circles, and knows personally nearly every prominent teacher and public man in the state.

WILL NOT BE ALONE.

It now seems that Hon. John Abercrombie is to have opposition in his candidacy for a third term as state superintendent of education. The next term under the new constitution will be for four years and the prize is thus too tempting to go to any man without a fight for it. The gentleman who will tilt with Mr. Abercrombie is Hon. Thomas L. Bulger, of Tallapoosa. Mr. Bulger was a member of the last two legislatures and the constitutional convention journeyed, and in all three of these bodies was conspicuous for his devotion to the common schools and his ability in securing for them increased appropriations.

TUSCALOOSA'S FORTUNE.

Additional proof has been given that Tuskaloosa that work on the extension of the Southern Railway from Birmingham to Searles will soon begin. The opening of the books is considered the formal beginning of a new era in Tuskaloosa. The richest portion of the county, hitherto inaccessible, Tuskaloosa, will soon be connected by rail with the city. The building of this road also means the location of the furnace of the Central Iron and Coal Company. Their coal mines are at Searles and it was given out when the company was incorporated that they would build their furnace at Tuskaloosa if a road could be secured to haul fuel from their mines.

PLENTY OF WORK.

The New Decatur shops of the L. N. R. R. have orders to build 1176 more freight cars. This order means a total of 1176 boxes, flats and gondolas which the shops now have instructions to build. These orders for new cars will give employment to a number of extra men; at present about 1,500 men are employed. The shops were built solely for the repairing business of the company, but about two years ago they decided to build cars there and since that time one hundred have been built.

BOOTH COMING.

General William Booth, commander in chief and founder of the Salvation Army, will visit Birmingham in January. General Booth and party will leave New York on the 28th of September in a car built especially for him, and will make an extended tour, first going across the continent. This will be the first time General Booth has ever visited the South, and will be made the occasion of great rejoicing. Free transportation has been given the party by the Southern Railway.

THE first bale of Florence cotton weighed 508 pounds and brought [illegible] cents.

CARR ACQUITTED.

"Bud" Jett, at Stout's Mill, was killed by a jab in the neck with an umbrella point in a scuffle a few weeks since. Patt Carr, of Blossburg, was arrested, charged with the offense, but on trial in Court was found not guilty.

BANKHEAD ILL.

Congressman J. H. Bankhead, of the Sixth District is ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Perry, in Greenville, S. C., but his indisposition is not regarded dangerous.

A FEW CHANGES.

W. H. Hassenger, Southern manager of the Republic Iron and Steel company, will attend the meeting of the board of directors and stockholders of the company in New York. Mr. Warner, the president, will be there. His successor will be A. W. Thomson. C. S. Rader, furnace superintendent, has resigned. During the past few months the company has made improvements and has added considerably to its working property.

UNCLE ARP'S LETTER

How Man Has Little Faith In Manual Training Schemes.

TRIED IT MANY LONG YEARS AGO

Produces Interesting and Laughable Narration of His Experience In that Line While a College Student.

Marietta, Ga., Sept. 1.—This is no new thing. We had it in the Manual Labor school in old Mount. We had to work with our hands three hours a day. We worked in the blacksmith shop or chopped wood or hoed cotton or plowed corn or did some other farm work and the three hours was intended to pay our board. But that was a mistake. The boys didn't hire to one hour's work. Captain Gardenhire, who had charge of Shepherd's farm, was a Mexican war veteran and he had rather watch those Yankees than work them. He was a good-hearted, brave man but he didn't manage a hundred boys very well. We had been raised to be waited on and our fathers were rich and had their farms. We had been wild at home and didn't want to go to this school and we didn't. Poor Captain Gardenhire! He pleaded with them on his knees sometimes and showed them how to hold the plow or split the rails or grub or hoe but when he was marching one squad in another would be playing and in another would be playing and go in washing. The wagons had linch pins taken out and some times a linch pin would be lost in the woods and the wheel would come off and they would go back to the blacksmith shop to get another and fool away the time until the three hours were out and not a load of wood hauled. Captain Garmany gave up in despair before the year was out and they fired another with no better success. As a general rule, a rich man's boy is not going to work with his hands. We had a very fine lot of boys from the best families, such as the Gouldings and Holts, of Columbus; the Liddons of Athens, the Allens, of Griffin, the Hendricks, of Butts, and a lot of Harrisons and Hoyles and Roberts and Johnsons, but they eat more than they earned and so the experiment proved a failure and the manual labor feature was abandoned and my father who had inaugurated it and was president of the board, had to foot the bill of $3,000 for its failure. To this day it has been set down as a maxim that three hours of work of a rich man's son won't feed him. But some boys didn't turn out bad. Most of them made good scholars and citizens. Thomas Allen became comptroller general of the state. Ned Goulding was colonel of the Ninth Georgia, and William T. Wofford a brigadier general and Dr. Jim Alexander and Hendricks stand high in their profession. Gid Wright and Bill Wright and Ramsey Alexander and James Hoyle became judges of the circuit courts.

I was running on about good old Dr. Nicholson, our principal—how fat he was and how learned and indulgent and sometimes of a hot sultry afternoon, while we were blundering along through Caesar's commentaries, he would go fast asleep in his chair and we would skip a whole paragraph and go on reading and skipping until his book would fall on the floor and wake him up. Then he would hunt all about to find out where we were at, but he never complained or made any sign of suspicion. I remember our debating society and how once a month, on Friday evening we had to take sides and discuss some great question. Just a dozen of the older boys were engaged in it and though I was the smallest, I was right smart and my father helped me and I held my own with the big boys. I remember when the question was who was the greatest man that ever lived and each boy had to choose a different man and advance his claims. If two or more chose the same man, Dr. Patterson had to settle it. My father told me to choose Ben Franklin and I have never changed my opinion since, for I convinced myself that he was the best and most practical man history tells of. He was the offspring of seventeen children, never went to school after he was ten years old, was apprenticed to his brother who was a printer; ran away from him when he was 17, hired as a printer in Philadelphia; next year was sent to London to buy stock for a new printing office but the promised money was not sent, so he hired to another printer, after two years returned to Philadelphia, invented a copper plate press—the first in America—married Miss Deborah Read in 1730, when he was 24 years old, founded The Pennsylvania Gazette and rose to commerce and renown. Founded the Philadelphia Library in 1731; published Poor Richard's almanac for twenty years; in 1736 was chosen postmaster of Philadelphia; in 1743 founded the University of Pennsylvania; in 1744 founded the American Philosophical Society and the Academy of Sciences, investigated electricity and took rank with the great discoverers of his age, was elected F. R. S. of London and Edinburgh. In 1753 was appointed postmaster general of the colonies. He was the defender of all colonial interests; was sent to England to have the stamp act repealed; labored hard to prevent war, but failed; came home and signed the Declaration of Independence; was sent to France to secure aid and recognition and succeeded; signed the treaty of peace at Paris in 1783; died in 1790; on motion of Mirabeau the national assembly of France put on mourning for him. In the constitutional convention of 1787 his last motion was that congress should open its sessions with prayer, and this is done to this day.

What a record is that for a poor, friendless, uneducated boy to make. I have recorded it in this letter as an example for poor boys everywhere.

The territory of Tennessee belonged originally to North Carolina and was called the territory of Washington. The settlers, however, named it Franklin and for three years it bore that name—the state of Franklin. In 1785, after North Carolina had ceded it to the United States, congress got to quarreling over the name and couldn't agree on either Washington or Franklin and compromised on the name of that long, crooked Indian river. Wasn't that a shame? It should be Franklin now.

Well, I gained my case in that debate—at least my father did, for he trained me. I gained it over Napoleon and Washington and Jefferson and Shakespeare and Newton and Demosthenes and others and am still proud to recall the victory.

But the fact remains that there is no greatest man. There is the greatest orator, the greatest philosopher and poet and preacher and statesman and general and discoverer and inventor and painter and sculptor, but each of these is greatest only in his own profession. Outside of that most of great men were weak and childish and some of them corrupt. Lord Bacon was perhaps the greatest writer on political economy and public morals, but he accepted bribes while on the bench and publicly confessed it, and was deposed and fined 10,000 pounds and sent to prison. Pope says of him that he was the wisest, brightest and meanest of mankind. Sir Isaac Newton was so absent-minded that it made him appear ridiculous. When the fire burned him he called his servant and told him to move it back. It did not occur to him that he could move back himself. His favorite cat came into his room through a hole in the bottom of the door. When she had five kittens he ordered five smaller holes cut for them to pass in and out. Zerah Colburn was no doubt the greatest natural mathematician who ever lived. When he was ten years old he could multiply any number of numerals in his head and give the answer instantly, but he was almost an idiot about other things, and when 23 years old lost his faculty in figures. The admirable Crichton when sixteen years old was the most learned classical scholar in Europe and could converse fluently in twenty languages, but could not do a sum in the simple rule of three. Goldsmith had no superior as a writer of pure English, both in prose and poetry, but he couldn't utter a respectable sentence in conversation. Dr. Johnson said of him: "He wrote like an angel and talked like a parrot." John Wesley was a very great preacher and a writer of sacred hymns, but he was not wise enough to choose a good wife nor great enough to subdue and keep her after he had chosen. When she left him he said: "I did not forsake her. I did not dismiss her. I will not recall her." Petruchio did not tame his Kate that way. Lord Byron was an unprincipled rake. Napoleon left a dark cloud over his fame by divorcing Josephine. In fact, almost every great genius had some defect or some foul blot in the make-up of his character. Our Heavenly Father did not choose to create one perfect man or woman, not one. Just think what faculties it would require in a man to be as great an orator as Demosthenes or Webster, as great a poet as Milton or Shakespeare, as great a philosopher as Plato or Socrates, as great a preacher as Wesley or Jonathan Edwards, as great a composer as Mozart or Beethoven, as great a painter as Raphael or Michael Angelo, as great an astronomer as Newton or Gallileo, or as great a general and patriot as Washington—wouldn't he be a wonderful man? If there was such a man and he could live on and on the world wouldn't need kings or armies, for he would rule it wisely and well and all the people would say amen.—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

Possibilities of the Propeller.

The last group of the battleships have furnished additional proof that the possibilities of the propeller screw are still in the ascendant, for as each battleship has made its speed trials it had exceeded the speed record of its predecessors, until the last man-of-war, the Wisconsin, topped the record figures of everything in her class with a speed for two hours of 18.6 knots.—New York Times.

Up to about forty years ago Cornwall, England, supplied nearly all the tin used in the world, but now only about seven per cent. of the total supply comes from there. The Malay peninsula has taken Cornwall's place, furnishing about sixty per cent. of the world's production, and the Dutch East Indies comes next, with ten per cent.

Queensland has no university of its own, although steps are now being taken to insure the establishment of one in the colony.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

Patience is bitter, but its fruit is sweet.—Rousseau.

For some not to be martyred is a martyrdom.—Donne.

Who fears to offend takes the first step to please.—Cibber.

Origniality is simply a pair of fresh eyes.—T. W. Higginson.

Learning passes for wisdom among those who want both.—Sir W. Temple.

We cannot always oblige, but we can always speak obligingly.—Voltaire.

Any man may make a mistake, but none but a fool will continue in it.—Cicero.

Pleasure is the flower that fades; remembrance is the lasting perfume.—Bouffiers.

Absence of occupation is not rest; a mind quite vacant is a mind distressed.—Cowper.

The prudence of the best heads is often defeated by the tenderness of the best of hearts.—Fielding.

To owe an obligation to a worthy friend is a happiness and can be no disparagement.—J. Chanon.

Put this restriction on your pleasures: Be cautious that they injure no being that lives.—Zimmerman.

Our incomes are like our shoes; if too small they gall and pinch us, but if too large they cause us to stumble and trip.—Colton.

VALUE OF EXERCISE.

Development the Result of Heredity, Environment and Activity.

Physical exercise, like all other things, has had its ups and downs. When Greece and Rome had the upper hand, the physical was most cultivated. In the 17th century things physical had a downfall. The reaction toward physical inactivity was as great as was formerly its strivings after an ideal. It was early in the 18th century when more interest was taken in these things; this interest increased until now physical education is recognized in the school, college and university as an essential part in the education and all-around development of the youth.

Since it is through the physical that we come in contact with an influence our fellow-beings, and as so much depends upon physical conditions, it is not entirely out of place to discuss such a subject before a body of this kind.

Development and an approach toward perfection are results of exercise. If a growing nerve cell never sends an impulse over its axon it cannot become on efficient nerve cell. A growing muscle fibre which never contracts fails to develop into a healthy adult fibre. A growing gland which never secretes its fluid does not become a perfect gland. Without exercise there is no true growth, and when exercise ceases degeneration sets in. Activity is the law of growth.

Development is the result of three factors—heredity, environment and activity. These terms hardly need defining here, yet for our purpose we will say a word concerning each.

Heredity is the expression of the structure and character of the fertilized ovum from which all the cells of the body are derived. It gives us the living material upon which to work, and at once determines the possibilities, the limitations and to a certain extent the course of training.

Environment, both of the body as a whole and of each of its units, the living cells. This includes the external conditions of life as well as the chemical and physical character of the blood. Under it are included the food supply, surrounding temperature, clothing, the care of the young by parents, hygienic condition of the dwelling, etc.

Activity of the individual cell of the body as a whole. By activity is meant not simply muscular activity that is merely activity of one kind of cell—the muscular fibre. A nervous impulse from a nerve cell is another case of activity. A gland cell performing its function normally is still another case.—Honolulu Commercial-Advertiser.

Thomas Jefferson's Note.

Carrington C. Bacon of Imboden, Lawrence county, Ark., is the possessor of a promissory note for $370, which was given by Thomas Jefferson, April 7, 1813, to Edmund Bacon, great-grandfather of the present holder of the paper. The note has long since been paid, but on acount of the customs and institutions of the period when it was executed, remained in the possession of the drawee and descended through three generations to the present owner. At the time the note was drawn Edmund Bacon owned a farm adjoining Mr. Jefferson's Monticello place in Virginia. Before the note was paid Mr. Bacon moved west and made his home in Kentucky. With him he brought the note, which was duly paid. The mails at the time were slow and uncertain, and for this reason the note was not returned to Mr. Jefferson. This odd bit of yellow, mildewed paper is prized by its owner as much for its connection with the history of his family as for being an autograph of a famous man and written by the same hand that executed the Declaration of Independence.—Little Rock Democrat.

A Trio in Evidence.

"Authors are frightfully conceited."

"Oh, not all of them."

"Well, the three authors I wrote to for their autographs all sent me their photographs."—Chicago Record-Herald.

New Orleans has 300 policemen to patrol 700 miles of streets.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: Religion is Evergreen—The Olive Branch of Peace, the Pine Branch of Consolation, the Palm Branch of Usefulness and Victory—The Gospel Arbor

[Copyright 1905.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—This discourse of Dr. Talmage is full of the breath of the hills and fields and is a summer sermon; text, Nehemiah, viii. 15, "Go forth unto the mountain and fetch olive branches and palm branches and branches of thick trees to make booths."

It seems as if Mount Olivet were unmoored. The people have gone into the mountain and have cut off tree branches and put them on their shoulders, and they come forth now into the streets of Jerusalem and on the housetops and they twist these tree branches into arbors or booths. Then the people come forth from their comfortable homes and dwell for seven days in these booths or arbors. Why do they do that? Well, it is a great festal time. It is the feast of tabernacles, and these people are going to celebrate the desert travel of their fathers and their deliverance from their troubles, the experience of their fathers when, traveling in the desert, they lived in booths on their way to the land of Canaan. And so these booths also became highly suggestive—of our march toward heaven and of the fact that we are only living temporarily here, as it were, in booths or arbors, on our way to the Canaan of eternal rest. And what was said to the Jews literally may be said figuratively to all this audience. Go forth into the mountain and fetch olive branches and pine branches and myrtle branches and palm branches and branches of thick trees to make booths.

Yes, we are only here in a temporary residence. We are marching on. The merchant princes who used to live in Bowling Green, New York, have passed away, and their residences are now the fields of cheap merchants. Where are the men who fifty years ago owned Washington and New York? Passed on. There is no use in our driving our stakes too deep into the earth; we are on the march. The generations that have preceded us have gone so far on that we cannot even hear the sound of their footsteps. They have gone over the hills, and we are to follow them.

But, blessed be God, we are not in this world left out of doors and unsheltered. There are gospel booths or gospel arbors in which our souls are to be comforted. Go forth unto the mountain and fetch olive branches, and pine branches, and myrtle branches, and palm branches and branches of thick trees and build booths.

Well, now, we are to-day to construct a gospel arbor or gospel booth, and how shall we construct it? Well, we must get all the tree branches and build. According to my text, we must go up into the mount and bring olive branches. What does that mean? The olive tree grows in warm climates and it reaches the height of twenty or twenty-two feet, a straight stem, and then an offshoot from that stem. And then people come and they strip off these branches sometimes, and when in time of war the general of one army takes one of these olive branches and goes out to the general of another army, what does that mean? Why, it means unsaddle the war chargers; it means hang up the war knapsacks. It is but a beautiful way of saying peace!

Now, if we are to-day going to succeed in building this gospel arbor we must go into the mount of God's blessing and fetch the olive branches, and whatever else we must have we must have at least two olive branches—peace with God and peace with man. When I say peace with God, I do not mean to represent God as an angry chieftain having a grudge against us, but I do mean to affirm that there is no more antagonism between a hound and a hare, between a hawk and a pullet, between elephant and swine than there is hostility between holiness and sin.

And if God is all holiness and we are all sin there must be a readjustment, there must be a reconstruction, there must be a treaty, there must be a stretching forth of olive branches.

There is a great lawsuit going on now, and it is a lawsuit which man is bringing against his Maker; that lawsuit is now on the calendar. It is the human versus the divine; it is iniquity versus the immaculate; it is weakness versus omnipotence. Man began it; God did not begin the lawsuit. We began it; we assaulted our Maker, and the sooner we end this part of the struggle in which the finite attempts to overthrow the infinite and omnipotent—the sooner we end it the better. Travelers tells us there is no such place as Mount Calvary; that it is only a hill, only an insignificant hill, but I persist in calling it the mount of God's divine mercy and love, far grander than any other place on earth, grander than the Alps or the Himalayas, and there are no other hills as compared with it; and I have noticed in every sect where the cross of Christ is set forth it is planted with olive branches.

And all we have to do is to get rid of this war between God and ourselves, of which we are all tired. We want to back out of the war; we want to get rid of this hostility. All we have to do is just to get up on the mount of God's blessing and pluck these olive branches and wave them before the throne. Peace through our Lord Jesus Christ!

Oh, it does not make much difference what the world thinks of you! But come into the warm, intimate, glowing and everlasting relationship with the God of the whole universe; that is the joy that makes a hallelujah seem stupid. Why do we want to have peace through our Lord Jesus Christ? Why, if we had gone on in 10,000 years of war against God we could not have captured so much as a sword or a cavalry stirrup or twisted off one of the wheels of the chariot of His omnipotence, but the moment we bring this olive branch God and all heaven come on our side. Peace through our Lord Jesus Christ, and no other kind of peace is worth anything.

But then we must have that other olive branch—peace with man. Now, it is very easy to get up a quarrel. There are gunpowdery Christians all around us, and one match of provocation will set them off. It is easy enough to get up a quarrel. But, my brother, do you not think you had better have your horns sawed off? Had not you better make an apology? Had not you better submit to a little humiliation? "Oh," you say, "until that man takes the first step I will never be at peace with him! Nothing will be done until he is ready to take the first step." You are a pretty Christian. When would this world be saved if Christ had not taken the first step? We were in the wrong; Christ was in the right, all right and forever right, and yet He took the first step. And instead of going and getting a knotty scourge with which to whip your antagonist, your enemy, you had better get up on the radiant mount where Christ suffered for His enemies and just take an olive branch, not stripping off the soft, cool, fragrant leaves, leaving them all on, and then try on them that gospel switch. It will not hurt them, and it will save you. Peace with God; peace with man. If you cannot take those two doctrines, you are no Christian.

But my text goes further. It says, "Go up into the mountain and fetch olive branches and pine branches." Now, what is suggested by the pine branch? The pine tree is healthy; it is aromatic; it is evergreen. How often the physician says to his invalid patients, "Go and have a breath of the pines; that will invigorate you." Why do such thousands of people go South every year? It is not merely to get to a warmer climate, but to get the influence of the pine. There is health in it, and this pine branch of the text suggests the helpfulness of our holy religion. It is full of health, health for all, health for the mind, health for the soul. I knew an aged man who had no capital of physical health. He had had all the diseases you could imagine. He did not eat enough to keep a child alive; he lived on a beverage of hosannas; he lived high, for he dined every day with the King; he was kept alive simply by the force of our holy religion. It is a healthy religion, healthy for the eye, healthy for the hand, healthy for the feet, healthy for the heart, healthy for the liver, healthy for the spleen, healthy for the whole man. It gives a man such peace, such quietness, such independence of circumstances, such holy equipoise. Oh, that we all possessed it; that we possessed it now!

And some one says, "My business is to manufacture horseshoe nails." Then manufacture horseshoe nails to the glory of God. There is nothing for you to do that you ought to do but for the glory of God.

Usefulness is typified by the palm tree. Ah, we do not want in the church any more people that are merely weeping willows, sighing into the water, standing and admiring their long lashes in the glassy spring! No wild cherry dropping bitter fruit. We want palm trees, holding something for God, something for angels, something for man. I am tired and sick of this flat, tame, insipid, satin slippered, namby pamby, highty tighty religion! It is worth nothing for this world, and it is destruction for eternity. Give me 500 men and women fully consecrated to Christ, and we will take this city for God in three years; give me 10,000 men and women fully up to the Christian standard, in ten years 10,000 of them would take the whole earth for God. But when are we going to begin? We all want to be useful. There is not a man in the pews that does not want to be useful. When are we going to begin?

Ledyard, the great traveler, was brought before the Geographical Society of Great Britain, and they wanted him to make some explorations in Africa, and they showed him all the perils and all the hard work and all the exposure, and after they had told him what they wanted him to do in Africa they said to him, "Now, Ledyard, when are you ready to start?" He said, "To-morrow morning." The learned men were astonished. They thought he would take weeks or months to get ready. Well, now, you tell me you want to be useful in Christian service. When are you going to begin? Oh, that you had the decision to say, "Now; now!" Oh, go into the mount and gather the palm branches!

But the palm branches also mean victory. Well, now, we are by nature the servants of satan. He stole us; he has his eye on us; he wants to keep us. But word comes from our Father that if we will try to break loose from this doing of wrong our Father will help us, and some day we rouse up, and we look the black tyrant in the face, and we fly at him, and we wrestle him down, and we put our heel on his neck, and we grind him in the dust, and we say, "Victory, victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ!" Oh, what a grand thing it is to have sin underfoot and a wasted life behind our backs! "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven and whose sin is covered."

Some one says, "How about the future?" What, says the man, I feel so sick and worn out with the ailments of life. You are going to be more than conqueror. But, says the man, I am so tempted, I am so pursued in life. You are going to be more than conqueror. I, who have so many ailments and heartaches, going to be more than conqueror? Yes, unless you are so self-conceited that you want to manage all the affairs of your life yourself instead of letting God manage them. Do you want to drive and have God take a back seat? "Oh, no," you say; "I want God to be my leader." Well, then, you will be more than conqueror. Your last sickness will come, and the physicians in the next room will be talking about what they will do for you. What difference will it make what they do for you? You are going to be well, everlastingly well. And when the spirit has fled the body your friends will be talking as to where they shall bury you. What difference does it make to you where they bury you? The angel of the resurrection can pick you out of the dust anywhere, and all the cemeteries of the earth are in God's care. Oh, you are going to be more than conqueror!

Do you not think we had better begin now to celebrate the coming victory? In the old meeting house at Somerville my father used to lead the singing, and he had the old fashioned tuning fork, and he would strike it upon his knee and then put the tuning fork to his ear to catch the right pitch and start the hymn. But, friend, do you not think we had better be catching the pitch of the everlasting song, the song of victory, when we shall be more than conquerors? Had we not better begin the rehearsal on earth?

My text brings us one step further. It says go forth into the mount and fetch olive branches, and pine branches, and myrtle branches, and palm branches and branches of thick trees. Now you know very well—I make this remark under the head of branches of thick trees—that a booth or arbor made of slight branches would not stand. The first blast of the tempest would prostrate it. So, then, the booth or arbor must have four stout poles to hold up the arbor or booth, and hence for the building of the arbor for this world we must have stout branches of thick trees. And so it is in the gospel arbor.

Blessed be God that we have a brawny Christianity, not one easily upset. The storms of life will come upon us, and we want strong doctrine; not only love, but justice; not only invitation, but warning. It is a mighty gospel; it is an omnipotent gospel. These are the stout branches of thick trees.

I remember what Mr. Finney said in a schoolhouse. The village was so bad it was called Sodom, and it was said to have only one good man in all the village, and he was called Lot, and Mr. Finney was preaching in the schoolhouse, and he described the destruction of Sodom; how the city was going to be destroyed unless they repented, and that there would be rain from heaven of sorrow and destruction unless they, too, repented. And the people in the schoolhouse sat and ground their teeth in anger, and clinched their fists in anger, but before he got through with his sermon they got down on their knees and cried for mercy while mercy could be found. Oh, it is a mighty gospel; not only an invitation, but a warning, an omnipotent truth; stout branches of thick trees.

Well, my friends, you see I have omitted one or two points, not because I forgot to present them, but because I have not time to present them. I have shown you here is the olive branch of peace, here is the pine branch of evergreen gospel consolation, here the palm tree branch of usefulness and of victory and here are the stout branches of thick trees. The gospel arbor is done. The air is aromatic of heaven. The leaves rustle with the gladness of God. Come into the arbor. Come into the booth. I went out at different times with a fowler to the mountains to catch pigeons, and we made our booth and we sat in that booth and watched for the pigeons to come. And we found flocks in the sky and after awhile they dropped into the net, and we were successful. So I come now to the door of this gospel booth. I look out. I see flocks of souls flying hither and thither. Oh, that they might come like clouds and as doves to the window! Come into the booth. Come into the booth.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR SEPTEMBER 15.

Subject: Jacob a Prince With God. Genesis xxii., 1-20—Golden Text, Luke xviii., 1—Memory Verses, 24-28—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

1. "Went on his way." In some way God had spoken to Jacob and told him to return to his native land. Gen. 31: 3. The Lord would not permit him to remain away longer, for he might become perverted in his religious life and forget the promises of which he was heir, and then, as he could no longer live in peace with Laban it was time for him to return. "Angels of God." A host of angels. See 2 Kings 6: 17. "Met him." Literally, "came, drew near to him."

2. "God's host." The angels are called hosts. 1. From their multitude. 2. From their order. 3. From their power for the protection of the saints. "Mahanaim." "Two camps."

3. "Sent messengers." These messengers were probably sent before he saw the host of angels, for they seem to have returned soon after this. "Land of Seir." This is on the east and south of the Dead Sea.

4. "Unto my lord." "Yielding pacifieth great offenses." Eccles. 10: 4. Jacob humbled himself before his brother, recognizing him as lord, and putting himself down as a servant.

6. "Cometh to meet thee." The mind of Esau was in that wavering state when the slightest incident might soothe him into good will, or arouse him to vengeance.

7. "Greatly afraid." The fear of his brother was the direct consequence of his sin, the sin that embittered his whole life. "Two bands." Disposal of his company into two bands, so that if one was attacked the other might escape, was characteristic of Jacob. He was a scheming man, and never neglected to take every possible precaution.

9. "O God of my father Abraham." In this great emergency he had recourse to prayer.

10. "Not worthy." The Hebrew expression is "little among all the mercies;" that is, too little to have received less; less than all. "With my staff." When he passed over this Jordan he had nothing but his staff, but now he has wives and children and flocks and herds.

11. "The hand of my brother." Jacob knew that his brother was coming toward him with an army, and he feared the worst. "The mother with the children." He must have had an awful opinion of his brother when he used this expression, which implies the utmost cruelty, proceeding in the work of slaughter to total extermination.

12. "Thou saidst." God's promises are the sure ground of all our hopes, and "to remind God of His promises is one of the privileges of prayer."

13. "A present for Esau." Jacob did not regard praying as a substitute for the use of means. It was rather a guide, an inspiration from God in their use.

14, 15. "Two hundred," etc. We can learn something of his great prosperity from the fact that this present to Esau consisted of 580 animals.

16. "Every drove by themselves." The disposition of this princely present in several droves, following one another at intervals, was such as to repeat the favorable impression made by each, as they successively came before Esau, accompanied with a conciliatory message. "Pass over before me." They were now near the fords of the Jabbok, close to the region of expected danger.

20. "Will apease him." Jacob hoped to pacify his brother and turn away his anger by the presents, and by the words of esteem which he had instructed his servants to speak to Esau.

22. "Rose up that night." Jacob took his family across in the night when there would be no opportunity for the enemy to see or to hinder. "Ford Jabbok." The Jabbok was a stream flowing into the Jordan about two-thirds of the distance from the Sea of Galilee to the Dead Sea.

24. "Was left alone." To be left alone with God is the only true way of arriving at a just knowledge of ourselves and our ways. "There wrestled." From Hosea 12: 4 we learn that the wrestling of Jacob was not merely a physical exercise, but also a spiritual one. "A man." This was doubtless the Lord Jesus Christ. In Hosea 12: 4, the man who wrestled with him is called the angel, and the Lord of hosts; and in verse 30 of this chapter Jacob calls Him God.

25. "He prevailed not." It would have been easy enough for the angel to prevail physically, but the Lord was endeavoring to lead Jacob to a complete abandonment of himself. "He touched—his thigh." The thigh is the pillar of a man's strength; Jacob was thus shown his utter helplessness and dependence on God. God can bring down to the dust the stoutest.

26. "I will not," etc. To say this from the heart is the secret of all true strength. "Thou bless me." The blessing of God on the heart is of greater value than the best this world can give.

27. "What is thy name?" God directed attention to his name as representing his character. "He said, Jacob." That is, "supplanter." Thus did Jacob admit the true state of his heart.

28. "Israel." A prince of God, or one powerful with God. God had taught him that his greatest enemy was not Esau, but himself. "Power with God." The only sure way of having power with men is to have power with God first. Earnestness, perseverance, submission, faith—these will move both God and man. "Hast prevailed." All of God's people are wrestlers. Great things are promised to those who give themselves fully to God, not the least of which is that they shall prevail with God.

29. "Tell me—thy name." Reveal thyself to me more fully. "He blessed him there." The angel did not gratify Jacob's curiosity when he asked his name, but he did bless him. 1. Consider the place. It was a place (1) of great trial (vs. 6, 7); (2) of humble confession (v. 10); (3) of pleading (vs. 11, 12); (4) of communion (v. 30); (5) of conscious weakness. V. 31. 2. Consider the blessing. He was (1) saved from a great peril (v. 11); (2) he was able to feel that a great breach was healed (33: 4); (3) he had won a new name and rank (v. 28), and was made a prince on the spot; (4) he was now under a fresh anointing, and was a superior man ever after.

30. "Peniel." Or Penuel (v. 31), meaning "the face of God." "My life is preserved." These words have a deep spiritual meaning. The only way in which the life can be preserved is to meet the angel—Christ; He is the life.

31. "The sun rose." See Mal. 4: 2. The rising sun was a type of the spiritual sunrise upon his soul. "Halted," etc. Perhaps Jacob was healed at this time, or was ever after a cripple, is mere conjecture.

32. "Eat not of the sinew." What this sinew was neither Jew nor Christian can tell.

The medical crusade against the mosquito is marching on to the extermination of the house fly. At present mankind is fortified behind screens and nettings against the attacks of both these enemies. Offensive measures against the small Macbeth have only just begun, but every movement against the one involves the destruction of the other.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain,
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly . . . $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

CHANCERY COURT was in session Monday and Tuesday, and Chancellor Kelly, with his usual energy, has about cleared up the docket. There is not a case now in the Chancery Court more than ten months old. For expedition and just decisions Chancellor Kelly cannot be excelled.

THE BANNER is not, by a long way, in love with the new constitution, and we fail to see that it is any great improvement upon the old constitution under which the State has throve and prospered. Yet, on the whole, as it is at least as good, and in some instances better, than the old constitution, we are not disposed to reject it. We regret exceedingly that we have been unable to do as promised and give the new constitution in full to our readers. With our present facilities it is impossible to get out the new constitution, which is a lengthy document, and we have been unable to obtain it elsewhere, or we would publish it as a supplement to The Banner. We hope, however, to put in a steam press, and add other improvements to our plant, this fall, when we shall be in a better position to give our readers EVERYTHING that is worthy of their attention. Under the circumstances we give them this week all that we possibly can of the Suffrage clause of the new constitution, and will follow it up with other clauses, taking what we consider to be the most important. If we possibly can we will yet give our readers the entire constitution.

Since writing the above we are glad to say that through the courtesy of Gov. Jelks all our subscribers will be furnished with a copy of the new Constitution, and as soon as we receive them we will distribute them.

THE villanious attempt upon the life of President McKinley has evoked the sympathy of the whole world, and in the United States has called forth a token of love and devotion to the elect of the people that has never been witnessed elsewhere. Irrespective of political opinions the American people recognize that he who is elected their chief magistrate is "of the people and for the people," and "by the people" must be protected in his high office. It is distressing to think that the miscreant who committed the dastardly deed can only be sentenced, under the laws of the State of New York, to a term of ten years in the penitentiary, which, by good behavior, can be commuted to six and a-half years.

The president, vice-president, and the cabinet ministers, in their private capacities, are fully protected in their lifes and property by the laws of the States in which they reside. In their official capacities, as servants of the people of the whole Union, their lives, at all events, should be protected by a federal law, and any attack upon their persons should be punishable by death. As the highest representatives of the people their persons should be sacred.

President McKinley was graciously performing a public function, demanded by his official position, when he was ruthlessly shot down by the would-be assassin, who declares it was his intention to kill.

The only way it appears to be possible for Caolgosz to get what he deserves, is to turn him loose out of prison, and let the people known beforehand the time he will come out. They will be on hand, depend upon it.

THE SUFFRAGE CLAUSE OF THE NEW CONSTITUTION.

Section 177. Every male citizen of this State who is a citizen of the United States, and every male resident of foreign birth, who, before the ratification of this Constitution, shall have legally declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States, twenty-one years old or upwards, not laboring under any of the disabilities named in this article, and possessing the qualifications required by it, shall be an elector, and shall be entitled to vote at any election by the people, provided, that all foreigners who have legally declared their intention to become citizens of the United States, shall, if they fail to become citizens thereof at the time they are entitled to become such, cease to have the right to vote until they become such citizens.

178. To entitle a person to vote at any election by the people, he shall have resided in the State at least two years, in the county one year, and in the precinct or ward three months, immediately preceding the election at which he offers to vote, and he shall have duly registered as an elector, and shall have paid, on or before, the first day of February next preceding the date of the election at which he offers to vote, all poll taxes due from him for the year nineteen hundred and one, and for each subsequent year; provided, that any elector who, within three months next preceding the date of of the election at which he offers to vote, has removed from the precinct or ward in the same county, incorported town or city, shall have the right to vote in the precinct or ward from which he has removed, if he would have been entitled to vote in in such precinct or ward but for such removal.

179. All elections by the people shall be by ballot, and all elections by persons in a representative capacity shall be viva voce.

180. The following male citizens of the State, who are citizens of the United States, and every male resident of foreign birth who, before the ratification of this Constitution, shall have legally declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States, except those who shall not have had an opportunity to perfect his citizenship prior to the twentieth day of December, nineteen hundred and two, twenty-one years old or upwards, who, if their place of residence shall remain unchanged, will have, at the date of the next general election the qualifications as to residence prescribed in Section 178 of this Constitution, and are not disqualified under Section 182 of this Constitution, shall upon application be entitled to register as electors prior to the twentieth day of December, nineteen hundred and two, namely:

First—All who have honorably served in the land or naval forces of the United States in the war of 1812, or in the war with Mexico, or in any war with the Indians, or in the war between the States, or in the war with Spain, or who honorably served in the land or naval forces of the Confederate States, or of the State of Alabama in the war between the States; or

Second—The lawful descendants of persons who honorably served in the land or naval forces in the war of the American Revolution, or in the war of 1812, or in the war with Mexico, or in any war with the Indians, or in the war between the States, or in the land or naval forces of the Confederate States, or of the State of Alabama in the war between the States; or Third—All persons who are of good character and who understand the duties and obligations of citizenship under a Republican form of government.

181. After the first day of January, nineteen hundred and three, the following persons, and no others, who, if their place of residence shall remain unchanged, will have at the date of the next general election, the qualifications as to residence prescribed in Section 178 of this Constitution, shall be qualified to register as electors, provided, they shall not be disqualified under Section 182 of this Constitution.

First—Those who can read and write any article of the constitution of the United States in the English language and who are physically unable to work; those who can read and write any article of the constitution of the United States in the English language, and have worked or been regularly engaged in some lawful employment, business or occupation, trade or calling, for the greater part of twelve months next preceding the time they offer to register, and those who are unable to read and write if such inability is due solely to physical disability; or

Second—The owner in good faith, in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner

(continued on 5th column page 8)

PROGRAM TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

The next Institute for white teachers will be held at Macedonia, eight miles west of Jemison and five miles east of Randolph, on the 13th and 14th of September, 1901.

FRIDAY

10 a.m. Devotional Exercises.

10:30 Welcome Address, John T. Martin. Response, L. E. Byrum.

11. Why educate? How? R. B. Denson, Mrs. A. G. Danisp.

1:30 p.m. How should schools be graded? Ex-Supt. Judson Strock.

Strock, G. L. Speer.

2:30. Would it be better to divide the county into School Districts? R. E. R. Hicks, Robt. E. Sessions.

3:30. My first experience as a teacher, J. H. Anderson, Miss Jennie Wilson.

SATURDAY.

9 a.m. Chilton county Schools R. A. Rasco, Supt. J. W. Moore.

10 The importance of Physiology, F. D. Carmichael, Miss Tracy Garrett.

11. Educational Address, J. M. Collier.

A concert will be given by Prof. Martin's school, Friday evening, beginning at 7 o'clock.

Teachers coming on train will write Prof. Jno. T. Martin, Randolp, and have arrangements made for conveyance.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished, when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager, 316 Caxton Building, Chicago.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Mothers who have always as dreaded the approach of hot weather when they have a teething baby should not forget that TEETHINA counteracts and overcomes the effects of hot weather on children, keeps them in healthy condition and makes teething easy. TEETHINA costs only 25 cents per box at druggists; or mail 25 cents to C. J. Moffett, M.D., St. Louis, Mo.

Barwell.

Farmers are busy in these diggins picking cotton.

Mr. Bender Kendrick will return from the agricultural school at Wetumpka next Wednesday.

Mr. David Kendrick visited Clanton Wednesday of last week on business.

There is nothing that will flatter a fool quicker than asking his advice.

The prompters say they will put the stock law in force October 1.

Life is not always what it could be wished for, but let us look at the bright side even in those dark days.

Mr. J. F. Jones and family have returned to their home at Prattville.

There is a protracted meeting running at Canaan church this week, hope there will be much good accomplished. BILLY THE KID.

Lily.

On the 6th day of September 1901, Sister Sarah Williams, wife of G. B. Williams, departed this life to go to her reward, leaving a husband and two little children and many friends to mourn her loss. She was of noble Christian character, sweet spirited. A genuine type of Christianity. Her blessed redeemer has taken her home to be forever with the Lord. Rev. W. A. Wood.

Stood Death Off

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Clanton drug store.

TAX NOTICE.

ASSESSOR'S & COLLECTOR'S First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of assessing the State and County Taxes of Chilton County for the year 1901, and collecting the taxes for the year 1901.

			1901
Pletcher	Beat 8	Oct.	1
Stanton	" 8	"	2
Dixie	" 8	"	3
Shoults	" 7	"	4
Maplesville	" 7	"	5
Benson	" 3	"	7
Macedonia	" 3	"	8
Providence	" 2	"	9
Jemison	" 2	"	10
Mineral Springs	" 1	"	11
Strasburg	" 9	"	12
Clanton	" 4	"	14
Coopers	" 5	"	15
Verbena	" 5	"	16
Kincheon	" 6	"	17

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.
"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C 935 EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2530 and 2532 Market Street, Philadelphia.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.
In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, Northeastern Chancery Division. Fall Term, 1901.

Eufania Mahan, Complainant, vs. W. J. Mahan, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of William M. Adams, solicitor for Complainant, that the Defendant, W. J. Mahan, is a non-resident of the state of Alabama; that said Mahan resides in the State of Mississippi; and that the residence of said Mahan in the State of Mississippi is to said William M. Adams, unknown; and further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Chilton county once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring the said W. J. Mahan, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause, within thirty days after the 18th day of September, 1901, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office, in Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama this 19th day of August, 1901. W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

WM. M. ADAMS,
Solicitor for Complainant.

The Best Prescription for Malaria

Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

REMOVAL SALE

EVERYTHING GOES
PRICES AWAY DOWN
BARGAINS IN ALL LINES

We move into our new building September 1, we don't mind moving ourselves and our clerks, but we want you to come in and move our goods to your homes, then we won't have much moving to do.

REMOVAL SALE NOW ON

W. H. SARTOR
CLANTON

We will move October 1st to 2012 First Ave.
EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES
J. Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Qt.
COLLIER DRUG CO.,
THE CUT RATE DRUG STORE
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

West End Store
For the convenience of the people in this part I have opened a store at my place one mile west of town, and have a full line of
General Merchandise
AND A COMPLETE LINE OF
Dry Goods, Hats, Shoes, Notions
CHOICE GROCERIES
W. A. KEMP, Clanton, Ala.

C. W. WILSON
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
Fancy Groceries a Specialty
CLANTON

THORSBY NORMAL SCHOOL
A SCHOOL OF INDEPENDENT NORMALISM, OF SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS.
THOROUGH, PRACTICAL, MORAL AND NON-SECTARIAN.

Economy taught and practiced. We court investigation and shall be glad to have anyone, at any time, examine into the work of our work.

One of the best equipped schools of the State. The Main building is a beautiful two-story structure of fifteen rooms. The Dormitory is an excellent three-story structure well suited to the purposes for which it is used. The Library consists of many thousand volumes.

BOARD, $10.50 TO $8.00 PER MONTH.
TUITION, $1.50 TO $2.50 PER MONTH.

It is our purpose to build up and to lend a hand in helping institutions throughout the State in elevating the youth to a standard of citizenship.

For catalogue or further information, address
RASCO & CARMICHAEL, Thorsby, Ala.

TOWN ITEMS

Chancery Court opens second Monday in February first Monday in April, first Monday in June second Monday in July, second Monday in August and first Monday in November

CLANTON COTTON MART.

Price to-day 7½ & 7⅞ cents.
" same date last year 10.90 cts.

Bales received to date:	1901	1900
Pinckard & Co.	53	117
Malone	46	48
Wilson	4	4
Downs		5
Total	103	169

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Miss Mattie Chandler of Birmingham visited relatives here the week.

Mr. W. J. Cochee went to Birmingham Tuesday.

Mr. Atkinson, of Jemison was in town Tuesday.

Prof. R. A. Rasco of Thorsby was in town Wednesday.

Mr. T. P. McKinney and daughters, Misses Annie and Minnie, of Barwell were visitors here Monday.

Mrs. James Collins of Lindsey is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Gastman has returned home from Prairie City, where she has been visiting for some time.

Mrs. L. C. Gore is visiting her mother, Mrs. Deadwilder, at Lily, who is quite sick.

Mr. E. W. Duke visited Prattville Monday.

Mrs. Denson has returned home from a pleasant visit in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. White of Lily spent Monday in Clanton.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Miss White of Prattville is visiting Miss Hattie Oates.

Miss Essie McDaniel visited the capital city Monday.

Messrs. N. A. Kicker, L. N. Price and W. C. Robinson all went to the Pan-American at Buffalo, N. Y., last Saturday.

It is not a liniment, nor a salve, contains no grease or ammonia. A rational, scientific, chemical compound. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic stands pre-eminently superior to preparations offered the public for healing Wounds, Burns and other injuries. Used internally it is a fine thing for colic and bowel troubles.

Mr. P. D. Wilson has returned from a trip to St. Louis.

Dr. O. M. Wisehart went to Birmingham Sunday.

Mr. W. H. Merritt, of Birmingham was in town last Saturday.

Mr. H. Touro's store will be closed Saturday on account Jewish New Year.

Mr. R. L. Marcus has opened up a stock of goods in the store now vacated by W. H. Sartor.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Read all the advertisements—there is always something to be learned from them. And especially read and study the new advts.—Thorsby Normal School, Reynolds Bros. of Jemison, Wilson & Bro. of Clanton, as well as those in our "Want" column. It will pay you.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's ad. in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every 30 to 60 days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in the future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1185½ 21st st., between 11 and 12 aves, Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

M. E. M. Marcus and Miss Arlena Littleton; Mr. Charlie Buckler and Miss Julia Edwards.

STOPS THE COUGH and works off the Cold.
Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

All Day Singing.

There will be an all day singing at Liberty church, four miles west of Clanton, on Fourth Sunday in this month. Everybody invited especially the singers.

VAL SALE

OES

WAY DOWN

GAINS IN ALL LINES

ate our new building
we don't mind mov-
and our clerks, but
to come in and move
your homes, then we hing moving to do.

SALE NOW ON

. SARTOR

CLANTON

October 1st

2 First Ave.

G AT CUT PRICES

Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Qua

R DRUG CO.,

UT RATE DRUG STORE

HAM, · AL A

End Store

e people in this part I have opened west of town, and have a fine stock of

Merchandise

OMPLETE LINE OF

ts, Shoes, Notions

GROCERIES

KEMP, Clanton, Ala.

. WILSON

EALER IN—

MERCHANDISE

eries a Specialty

CLANTON

NORMAL SCHOOL

PENDENT NORMALISM, OF
L DEPARTMENTS.
AL, MORAL AND NON-SECTARIAN

practiced. We court investigation ne, at any time, examine into the ed schools of the State. The Main B structure of fifteen rooms. The L three-story structure well suited to

ed. The Library consists of more th

50 TO $8.00 PER MONTH.
$1.50 TO $3.50 PER MONTH.
uld up and to lead a band in helping
State in elevating the youth to a

er information, address
CO & CARMICHAEL, Thorsby, Al

TOWN ITEMS

Chambers county court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in August and second Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART.

Price to-day 6 & 7½ cents.
Same date last year 10.30 cts

Receipts	TO DATE: 1901	1900
Planters	55	112
Packers	46	46
Machine	4	4
Wise		5
Dwes
Total	105	169

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Miss Martin Chandler of Birmingham visited relatives here this week.

Mr. W. J. Pierce went to Birmingham Tuesday.

Mr. Ark Jones of Jemison, was in town Tuesday.

Prof. R. A. Rasco of Thorsby was in town Wednesday.

Mr. T. P. McKinney and daughters, Misses Annie and Minnie, of Harwell were visitors here Monday.

Mrs. [illegible] Collins of Ensley is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Griffith has returned home from Pine City, where she has been visiting for some time.

Mrs. J. P. Gore is visiting her mother, Mrs. Deadwilder, at Lily, who is quite sick.

Mr. E. W. Duke visited Prattville Monday.

Mrs. Dobson has returned home from a pleasant visit in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. White of Lily spent Monday in Clanton.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Miss White of Prattville is visiting Miss Lottie Oates.

Miss Essie McDaniel visited the capital city Monday.

Messrs. N. A. Kicker, J. N. Price and W. C. Robinson all went to the Pan-American at Buffalo, N. Y., last Saturday.

It is not a liniment, nor a salve. Contains no grease or ammonia. A rational, scientific, chemical compound. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic stands pre-eminently superior to any remedy offered the public for healing Wounds, Burns and other injuries. Used internally it is a fine thing for colic and bowel troubles.

Mr. P. D. Wilson has returned from a trip to St. Louis.

Dr. O. M. Wisehart went to Birmingham Sunday.

Mr. W. H. Merritt, of Birmingham was in town last Saturday.

Mr. H. Touro's store will be closed Saturday on account Jewish New Year.

Mr. R. L. Marcus has opened up a stock of goods in the store-house vacated by W. H. Sartor.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Read all the advertisements—there is always something to be learned from them. And especially read and study the new advts.—Thorsby Normal School, Reynolds Bros., of Jemison, Wilson & Bro., of Clanton, as well as those in our "Want" column. It will pay you.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's ads. in his paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every 30 to 60 days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in the future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1181½ 21st st., between 1st and 2d aves, Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

M. E. Marcus and Miss Arizona Clifton; Mr. Charlie Clickler and Miss Julia Edwards.

HOW'S THE COUGH
Knocks off the Cold.
Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

All Day Singing.

There will be an all day singing at Liberty church, four miles west of Clanton, on Fourth Sunday in this month. Everybody invited and especially the singers.

NOW!

Our Mr. Pinckard has just returned from the East, where he purchased our Fall Stock, securing many fine grades of goods.

We must make room for these new goods, so NOW is your chance. We will show you great bargains; call and see us.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

FIRE! FIRE!

GREAT SACRIFICE SALE!

Goods damaged by removal must be sold at any price.

This is Your Great Opportunity.

All these goods are good as new, they were only slightly damaged by removal; the fire did not reach my store, but all the stock was removed.

Calicoes from 3 and 4 cents. Lawns from 4 cts.
Ladies' Hats 50 cents on the $1.
Men's and Children's Straw Hats 50 c on $1.
Clothing at half price.
Shoes at half price.
Big line of Umbrellas.
Embroidery 4 cents.

I have a big stock and it must positively be sold. Come in and see for yourselves and pick out your own bargains. You have never seen such values before. Respectfully,

H. TOURO, Clanton

C. R. MULLINS

REPRESENTS THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEWARK, N. J., AND SEVERAL LEADING FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

and will insure your lives and property at lowest current rates.

I also wish to state that I am getting in my Fall stock of the Latest Improved High arm SINGER MACHINES, and I have my office full of second hand machines of different kinds, all in good running order, that I will sell cheap for cash or trade for produce, most any old way and at any old price. I must have the room for my new stock which will arrive about September 1st.

Also have on sale at my office the latest improved SMOOTHING IRON with Fluter combined.

NEEDLES, OIL, BANDS, CANS, ETC.

Regular office days saturday and Monday.

C. R. MULLINS, Agent, Singer Office, Clanton.

REYNOLDS BROS.,

—DEALERS IN—

...General Merchandise...

COTTON BUYERS.
JEMISON, ALA.

Owing to a change in our business we are going tn sell our entire stock at prices that will alarm you.

10 lbs. Good Coffee	$1.00
18 lbs. Sugar	1.00
Success Soda ... per pound	4
Men's Oil Grained Best Grade Shoes	1.25
Women's Oil and Glove Grained Shoes—Button or Lace—Best on Earth ... only	1.00
1 lb. Schnapps, Red Apple, Red Rabbit, and Early Bird Tobacco	32
Calico ... per yard	5
Cotton Checks ... per yard	5
Good Suit Clothes ... only	4.00
Good Family Flour	3.25

Remember the old adage: "Make hay while the sun shines," and get your share of these goods.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR
BEEF CATTLE AND COTTON SEED

This is Spot Cash. Do not ask to have them charged, as you will be denied.

REYNOLDS BROS.

NEW ROYAL

HIGH ARM. LIGHT RUNNING
WARRANTED TEN YEARS.
FIVE DRAWER $22.

The New Royal is not a cheap machine, but a high-class machine made out of good material, all parts adjustable and ball-bearing; has a good set of steel attachments and all of them work well.

I will exchange the New Royal for old machines and allow the full value of the old machine. Come and see me. I can sell you a machine as cheap as you can buy in Clanton.

Some secondhand machines from $5 up. Send me 25 cents in silver or stamps and an old needle for sample and I will send you 1 doz. needles to fit your machine.

REPAIR WORK GUARANTEED.

L. D. POPWELL, Agt.
CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

THE
VITAE ORE
PREPARATIONS

are on sale by
Campbelle Drug co., clanton,
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A. Ayers, clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kincheon
J. B. Downs, clanton.

N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the Banner.

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Parry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bachelor mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T. U. CRUMPTON, Prop'r
MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERY THING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L. Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS—SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE

FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1.00	2 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water, white 150 fire test oil	18
½ bbl " " " "	2.25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	13
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14-lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware on the very best Staples and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please,
A. M. JOHNSON, Manager

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	$1.50
Nashville American	1.50
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald	$1.50
Home and Farm	$1.10
Southern Farmer	$1.00

THE NULITE.

750 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS

TABLE LAMP.

Produce the finest artificial light in the world. Superior to electricity or gas. Cheaper than kerosene oil. A 20th Century Revolution in the Art of Lighting.

They darken into daylight here,
And are raised of money here.

No Smoke. No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely safe. They are Portable. Hang on stand them anywhere. We also manufacture Table Lamps, Wall Lamps, Pendants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, Etc. The best and only reliable Incandescent Mantle Vapor Gas Lamps made. They will at sight, each burner 100 candle power, nothing like them. Good Agents Wanted. Write for catalogue and prices.

Chicago Solar Light Co. 81 Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

OUTDOOR ARC.

GARDEN AND FARM

DON'T CULTIVATE THE WEEDS.

Hundreds of farmers purchase fertilizers every year in order to provide plant food for weeds. In experiments made in England, by growing beets on the same land for forty years, the crop was much better at the end of the fortieth year than that on land that had received barnyard manure. This superiority was due to the fact that the close cultivation given the beets year after year destroyed all weeds. The weeds in a field will sometimes take more nitrogen than is supplied by the fertilizers applied. Therefore if farmers will give thorough culture, they will save the value of the fertilizers appropriated by weeds.

WHEN TO WEAN THE LAMBS.

The usual age for weaning the lambs is about at the end of the fourth month, except for some special reason and when a more vigorous and early growth is desired. At that age the lambs should have become accustomed to eat about everything the old sheep lives upon and should gain a thrifty support without the milk of the dam, which should be dried off preparatory to breeding again in the fall. This applies to flocks of improved breeding, the lambs of which are intended for future breeding animals themselves.

KEROSENE FOR ROOSTS.

There is no one thing so absolutely necessary to the poultry yard as kerosene. Aside from its cheapness, it will be found one of the best things to spray on the roosts. It not only prevents mites from getting a foothold, but the fowls will never have scaly legs when it is used. There is nothing so good for slight attacks of colds which fowls often catch during changeable weather, and in mild cases of croup it almost invariably cures. Scaly legs are caused from parasites that burrow under the skin, and aside from their unsightliness, will in time produce lameness. Kerosene applied to the legs will in a few days cause every sign of scale to disappear.

The roosts should have a general application of kerosene at least twice a month, and when whitewashing the house a gill should be put in each bucket of whitewash. During the winter moments a little may be poured around the edges of the nests, and thus make doubly sure that all mites are killed.—Home and Farm.

GUINEA FOWL AS BUG CATCHERS.

Some insects that are known to be a pest to farmers are destroyed by birds. Farmers should be friends of the birds and help to make public sentiment and laws to protect them.

But in place of insect-catching birds, guinea fowls serve a like purpose. A writer in Western Fruit Grower gives his experience:

"I had a flock of fifteen," says he, "and in watching them travel (and they are travelers) I learned that what the first did not get those in the rear did. They have an eye like a robin. I have seen them turn their heads a little sideways, as though looking wise, step six or eight feet away, and get the worm every time.

"They are fond of potato bugs, and will clean a patch better than Paris green. I believe a flock of a hundred will beat spraying all to pieces; and then the young, half-grown birds are as good for a fry as prairie-chicken.

"The main trouble is to raise the young. I would set them under a common hen. She will beat the mother guinea hen, who, while she will hatch twenty-five or more, will travel off and let them drop out one by one until they are all gone."

HELP OUT THE COWS.

Farmers are more and more understanding the value of a continuous supply of succulent foods for stock, and there is much effort on the part of all the experiment stations to test the value of forage crops that will tend to prolong the pasturage season. Most of the grasses now in common use are injured by the usual summer drouth, and then the pastures are dried up. The value of the cowpea as an adjunct to the pasture is being recognized, and farmers will do well to study the adaptability of this crop to their localities. Cowpeas may be sown after grain is harvested, and will grow quickly if there is moisture enough to sprout them. The seed bed should be firm. While they may be sown broadcast, yet most farmers prefer drilling them in. If all the tubes are used a fine forage will be secured, though some recommend using every other drill tube. Usually a bushel and a half of seed is sown to an acre.

Cattle or sheep may be turned on them when the peas have reached the blossoming stage. The land on which has grown this crop of cowpeas can be disked once or twice late in August or early in September and sown to rye. It will be best to cross the disk the second time. When rye is intended for fall pasture, there should be not less than two and one-half bushels of seed sown to the acre. It should be kept closely grazed, so that it will not joint, for when it joints its power to produce much pasture or good pasture is destroyed.—Rural World.

FEEDING AND FATTING YOUNG GEESE.

When the young geese are hatched do not give them feed or water for the first thirty-six hours, or if water, only a few drops from the finger tips. Their first feed should be bread crumbs, moistened with boiled sweet milk, and mashed up fine with a hard-boiled egg. After that for the first week feed boiled oatmeal and bran moistened with milk, or scalded meal and shorts. Then add cracked corn and wheat. When three days old feed all the green food that they will eat, young sprouting rye, clover, purslane, onion tops, etc. Have plenty of water for drinking purposes near them, but in a vessel which they cannot get into, as they should be kept as dry as possible.

They should be fed often, but not more than they will eat at one feeding. They should be kept clean, as they eat so greedily that they will devour droppings or anything, and filth is fatal to them. They need care for the first two or three weeks, after which they will look out for themselves.

A good pen in which they can be kept during this time is made of four boards one or two feet wide and ten or fifteen feet long, nailed together at the corners. This can be moved about from place to place over patches of young rye or tender grass, for a few young goslings will soon eat a place very clean of green food. They should always be housed at night, and have shade accessible during the day, as intense heat or dampness is fatal to them. When young they should not be allowed to run on the grass until the dew is off.

Kill by severing the artery in the neck with a small, sharp knife, or by giving a sharp blow on the head. Let them bleed hanging up, for about five minutes. Then plunge into boiling water for about twelve seconds, wrap in a cloth and let steam for five minutes. Pick immediately, beginning at the head, and the down will come off very easily. Care should be exercised in plucking young goslings, as the skin is often very tender and tears readily. Green goslings, as young goslings are called, should not be drawn for market. After picking place them in ice cold water for an hour to plump them.

In eight weeks geese can be made to weigh eight pounds, and at the end of three months from fifteen to eighteen pounds, depending on the breed. Some large varieties will weigh twenty pounds the first season. When they are from eight to ten weeks old they can be sold to those who make a business of fattening them for market, or may be fattened at home, when they will bring much more. The fatter they are the better price they will bring, especially in Jewish quarters, as the Jews make extensive use of goose fat. The best market for them is in June or early July. If not sold then keep them and fatten for Christmas.

Pen them three or four weeks before selling them, first putting them into water to clean their feathers, and then into a pen with clean straw. Feed scalded meal in a crumbly state, with about one-fifth part meat scraps, or give cracked corn with water, or a little corn and always plenty of grass. They should be given all the food they will eat. Keep them quiet for if excited or disturbed they will not fatten. Young geese are ready for market when the tips of the wings reach the tail.—E. I. Cole, in American Agriculturist.

MANUFACTURING "EARLY POTATOES."

Dr. G. W. Harvey, in Popular Science, tells of bogus new potatoes which he found in various parts of the West, but which are manufactured in California.

"The manufacturing gardener," he says, "is an enterprising genius of foreign extraction, generally Portuguese, Italian or Chinaman, and he makes the most of his opportunities. By his private process of making new potatoes, he gets at least two months' advance on the market in many places, and thereby reaps a profit many times above what the legitimate natural product would bring him. The extent of this business must be somewhat gigantic, for I have seen these made new potatoes in all the markets from Denver to Albuquerque, and Salt Lake City to Cape Nome. The commission merchants and wholesale dealers must certainly know of and abet the fraud, or the gardener could not market his wares. The average retail merchant is not aware of the deception, to my own personal knowledge, and deals out to his customers in all innocence the fraudulent new potatoes.

"The method of their manufacture is unique, and it is done as follows: Late in the season, after other crops are out of the way, the gardener plants a crop of late and good keeping potatoes. The time has been chosen from experience, and is opportune for a yield of small potatoes before the frosts of winter come down upon the gardener's truck patch. These potatoes are dug and buried in heaps in the open field and left until spring opens and the new potato season arrives. At the proper time the heaps are opened and the potatoes sorted according to sizes. In the meantime a large kettle or vat is set in the field adjacent to the potato heaps, and made ready by filling with water and adding sufficient lye to effectually curl the skin of the potato when dipped into the boiling solution. A crane and metal basket are rigged so that the dipping can be done expeditiously, and the way that new potatoes are turned out is astonishing. The effect of dipping any potato, no matter how old, into this boiling lye solution, is to crack and curl the skin, and at the same time it hardens or makes the potato much more firm, so that its resemblance to a new potato is so near that it would be hard to pick out the impostor, from appearance alone, from a basket of the genuine article. After dipping, the potatoes are rinsed in another vat and spread out to dry in the sun and cure into perfect new potatoes and the work is complete.

"The only way that you can tell the fraudulent new potato is to cut one open and notice its appearance carefully from circumference to centre. For a short distance in from the skin of the made potato you will, if you look closely, see a yellowish white line of semi-cooked and watery appearance. If this test is not conclusive, put one or two into some cold water and let them come to a boil, and you will notice a faint lye color, and the water that covers them will have a slippery, alkaline feel that any housewife cannot mistake."

With a population of only 210,000 Manitoba equals in size the whole of Great Britain and Ireland.

FOR WOMAN'S BENEFIT

A Kerchief to Tuck Into One's Glove.

In these days, when Mme. La Mode has decreed that we shall do without pockets, or else have one in an inaccessible position, the designers of handkerchiefs have come to our aid with the daintiest of articles, which they have named "glove handkerchiefs." These are about six inches square and are of the finest Irish lawn or cambric, trimmed with exquisite Valenciennes lace, which are, indeed, capable of being carried in one's glove or hanging purse.

Gloves with Monograms.

The glove with the monogram of the wearer on the back of it will find its way into the scented box on the dressing table. In place of the neatly-stitched three ribs on the back of the glove that have so long been in favor with fastidious folk, this year the monogram of the wearer will take their place. The monogram will be embroidered in either a darker shade of the same coloring as the glove or in a contrasting color. The darker shading of the same color, however, is considered much better form, and probably very few monograms embroidered in contrasting colors will be seen.

Court Ladies Pensioned.

The ladies of Queen Victoria's court have learned, after a period of somewhat anxious waiting, that they are to receive pensions. That in itself is something of a relief; for many of thes ladies, though of high lineage, were of meagre fortune, and in most cases had years of faithful and arduous service to plead. A maid of honor, for example, always found her post richer in honor than in profit. But the pensions accorded are minute, and the excuse alleged is the inadequacy of the provisions for loyal expenses. For the last two or three years Queen Victoria failed to meet her official expenditure out of the civil list, and had to bring up the reserves of her private fortune.—Woman's Life.

Postmen's Widows and Orphans.

Widows and orphans of the postmen of Paris are provided for by the "Union Fraternelle," a society whose object is threefold—first, to care for destitute families; second, to pay the funeral expenses of its members, and, third, by a monthly assessment to provide a pension for those who wish to retire from it. The organization agrees to pay to the widow, or, if there be no widow, to the children, of a member who had died a fixed sum, irrespective of the time during which the member has belonged. It also provides a fixed sum for the payment of funeral expenses, and certain honors are also granted in connection with the burial service, a delegation of the society appearing in uniform, etc.

The Pelerine Ruffle.

Boas and ruffles are so deep and wide at the back and on the shoulders that they become nothing less than shoulder capes, and, indeed, there is a new kind which is really a shaped sailor collar, of soft embroidery falling over the shoulders, and edged with net frills, ending in front with long wide boa ends. These are pretty, and more becoming to short-necked people than the round ruffle, while for matrons who abhor the elderly mantle, and yet desire some outdoor covering, they are the very thing. Net, tulle and chiffon boas seem to have quite displaced the once favored ostrich feather boa, though a really good ostrich boa, which is by no means synonymous with cheapness, is never out of date.

Skirts and Waists.

How to finish the skirt to be worn with a shirtwaist is a never-ending problem which, in these days when skirts must fit as well as waists, is a question that requires careful consideration. Stout, short-waisted women should have their skirts cut quite large in the band, in a point in front, and should wear their skirts over the waists, with a belt on the skirt as narrow as can possibly be worn. With the skirt worn outside the waist, sometimes a belt that is pointed in the back, with a point going above the waist-line and then slanted down in a point in front, is the most becoming; but it should never be worn if it is unbecoming. Slight women can wear broad belts made of folded peau de soie or liberty satin ribbon, white or black as the case may be; but these too must have the pointed effect in front, whether they are finished with a buckle or with a bow. The exaggerated point in front is rapidly going out of style, but there must be some point and a decided curve from the side of the waist towards the front.—Harper's Bazar.

The Cane Feminine.

Walking sticks for ladies offer nearly as many varieties as are shown for gentlemen, and it is a matter of some diculty to select your stick, says the Ladies' Pictorial. I think that a cherry stick is the best, the faint smell of the cherry wood making itself onvious every now and again when the stick is much in use. Hazels, holly stumps and ground ash poles and light canes are also in vogue. I suppose that many cavillers against the custom of ladies carrying walking-sticks will raise their voices against this new-fangled idea. As a matter of fact a gold-mounted staff or stick was commonly used by both the male and female heads of families in early English history. Even Queen Elizabeth carried one of them toward the end of her life, and the late Queen is depicted in many of her photos leaning on a stick. The handles, of course, give a scope for much variety of treatment and of substance. Beautiful enamel, crystal globes, quaintly carved heads in jade, jasper, ivory and other materials, and some even in the natural wood, all contribute to the value and beauty of a lady's walking-stick.

The Social Saleswoman.

If all stories are true, writes a London correspondent of the New York Herald, some society ladies are adopting curious means of raising the wind because, as I have said before, there are those who find the shoe pinching pretty badly. In fact, it is becoming quite a grievance in certain circles that so much bartering is going on within them, ladies being waylaid, called upon, visited, and even invited as guests, all with the same object, to buy goods made ready for sale.

Here is one society lady's terrible tale of woe:

"Wherever you go," she says, "you are pestered to death to buy barbaric bead chains, the latest goods on hand. Originally they were made for savages, but now it is fashionable women who wear the worthless rubbish. For there is nothing real or good about them at all.

"'A little business' is the term every one uses nowadays. You go out to luncheon. Opposite you is seated a woman with rows of these common beads round her neck. You know what is coming as soon as she catches your eye.

"'Why, you haven't one of these pretty chains, you poor thing,' she will gush. 'Look at mine. Isn't it sweet? You really must have one. I know some one who makes them. He will send one on to you. They are wonderfully cheap, only 16 shillings.'

"What can you do?

"Men suffer just the same. Over the top of some beautiful flowers or ferns you see a woman at the other end of the table holding up her string of colored beads. You pity the man next to her, who is trying to wriggle out of the seller's clutches. But he very rarely does.

"Only the other day at luncheon I heard a woman saying:

"'Now, do give a guess. How much do you think they are?'

"'I think I know,' some one else broke in; '22 shillings.'

"'Oh, I'm afraid they're a little more than that,' was the answer, with a glare at the woman for interfering. 'No, they are three guineas. They are such beautiful things.'

"So the man paid three guineas.

"Really, the men are giving these beads away as wedding presents because they don't know what to do with the chains they are forced to buy. A girl who was married the other day received no less than seven of these chains. Before the chains came up, lamp shades of apple blossom hue were always being forced on one's notice. 'The loveliest lamp shades in the world are to be bought at So-and-so's. You say I told you, or say you want one like mine,' your hostess or guest would suggest. Afterward you would discover that she made them herself and supplied the shop where they were sold on a small commission."

FASHION NOTES

Bodices for the most part fall off the shoulders, but the square neck is also modish.

The newest coats have the fronts a little longer than the sides without being narrow enough to be called spade-fronted.

Squares, diamonds and disks appear upon all sorts of lingerie. They are of lace or embroidery and occasionally silk is used on the most elegant undergarments.

All tones of violet from deep pansy to the palest amethyst are among the season's favorites. They are used alone or combined with tea rose pink, water green or delicate shades of blue.

Petticoats of foulard, in delicate tints, are preferred by many women to taffeta, with its rustle and swish. These foulard skirts are very full around the bottom and elaborately flounced.

Crepe de chine is made into a neat plaited skirt. It is a black crepe accordion-plaited up to the hips, where the upper part fits closely, with the edge of the plaiting outlined with black lace.

Half length linen and holland coats are taking to themselves pockets, and the woman who is fortunate enough to have a coat long enough will have at least three of them. The pockets are coming in again.

Basqued coats, cut like a habit behind, are favorites for linen frocks, while for softer materials the coats end at the waist line in front with a gathered or plaited basque behind and a broad, black satin waistband.

Red hats with green rims, green hats with red rims, red hats with green bands, and vice versa. How is that for golf colors in hats? These are all felts and no wearer of such a hat should be endangered by the wandering golf ball.

New and striking veilings are being made for use as hat draperies. A red chiffon, embroidered with green golf sticks, recently seen, would be pretty around a white duck hat, with the accompaniment of a red golf jacket with green lapels, but scarcely under any other conditions.

Children's Column

The Butterfly's Toilet.

O butterfly, how do you, pray,
Your wings so prettily array
Where do you find the paints from which
To mix your colors warm and rich?

The butterfly in answer said:
"The roses lend me pink and red,
The violets their deepest blue,
And every flower its chosen hue.

"My palette is a rose-leaf fair,
My brush is formed of maidenhair,
And dewdrops shining in the grass
Serve nicely for my looking-glass."
—Christian Register.

The Little Great Man.

During the American revolution the captain of a little band of soldiers was giving orders to those under him about a heavy beam that they were endeavoring to raise to the top of some military works which they were repairing. The weight was almost beyond their power to raise, and the voice of the superintendent was often heard: "Heave away! There it goes! Heave ho!"

An officer, not in military costume, was passing, and asked of the superintendent why he did not give a helping hand. The latter, astonished, turned around with all the pomp of an emperor, and said: "Sir, I am a corporal!"

"I ask your pardon, Mr. Corporal," the man replied, and taking off his hat, he bowed, saying, "I was not aware of the fact."

Upon this he dismounted and pulled till the perspiration stood in drops on his forehead, and when the beam was raised, turning to the little great man, he said: "Mr. Corporal, when you have another such job, and have not men enough, send for your commander-in-chief, and I shall gladly come and help you a second time."

The corporal was thunderstruck. It was Washington. This goes to illustrate that a man, though great, may always find one who is greater.

My Dog Josh.

We had had a houseful of company all last summer. One night our guests had all left us for a few days. My sister and myself were alone in our old house, with the servants quite remote from us in the L of the house. Our room was on the ground floor, and very easy of access from the piazza and road, but we felt quite protected, having with us two small dogs, an electric bell connecting with the man's room in the stable, and a good six-shooter. We were thankful to our sharp-voiced terrier before that night was over, as my tale will tell.

It was a foggy, grim night out; you who know what seashore fogs are can picture to yourselves the night! And just after I had retired, my Josh, the hero of this story, started up from his snug quarters and barked furiously and continuously. I remonstrated, but he had no idea of being pacified, and barked with such evident purpose that he completely aroused both my sister and myself. So we consulted as to what had best be done, feeling sure some mischief was brewing. We listened but could hear no sound, still Josh kept on with his voice of warning, and at last I touched my electric bell to call over the man.

In the stillness of the night the clear ring of the bell could be distinctly heard, and as it was sounding I heard some one run, and concluded it was our man; but soon after he came walking quietly over. I let him in, and sent him over the house; everything seemed as quiet as a well-regulated family should be, and so I sent him back, and we again settled for a tranquil night.

No sooner, however, had the man gone into the stable than we were startled by hearing three men jump from off the roof of the piazza over our heads! They saw that the alarm had been given, that we were aroused, and that their little game for that night was frustrated, so the fog shielding them, they laid quite still on the roof of the piazza till their danger was past, and then descended in haste. Their plans were well-laid, and would have been successful but for our vigilant little watchman, from whose collar now hangs a gold medal in token of our gratitude.—Our Dumb Animals.

Strange Playthings of Camp Children.

I wonder if the boys and girls who have traveled to the Pacific coast remember the wide, desert-like plain over which the train seems to travel so slowly. Perhaps they remember better the grand old mountains that tower far up into the clouds. One often hears the remark, "A fine piece of engineering!" and people exclaim over the wisdom and ingenuity of the brain that made it possible to cross those terrible mountains by bridges, tunnels and switchbacks. But you don't hear much about the workmen who dug it out, mile after mile, along the weary stretches.

These men are called contractors, sub-contractors, and men, and they live a life quite different from the rest of the world, particularly the sub-contractors and the men. The work takes them from one part of the country to another, wherever there is "railroading" to be done, and many of them take their families with them. They do not sleep in a house year in and year out, but camp near a town between "jobs." When moving camp or going on a new piece of work, the boys and girls mount their ponies and ride along beside the wagons, which carry the scrapers, plows, cooking utensils and bedding. Often the children of the camps do not see a town or other children for months, or sometimes years, at a time. They grow up very hardy and strong from the outdoor life, but as wild as deer.

I went into the tent of one of the contractors a few years ago, and in the farther corner I noticed two little girls chuckling over the antics of some [illegible]. I wondered what it was, but was afraid to speak to them for fear they would run, as they had on a previous occasion, so I went on talking with their mother. Presently a piercing scream and a low sob were heard in the same from the corner.

"What is it?" I cried, running over to them.

"Maggie dropped it, and it has killed one little girl." There in a heap were three baby mice, who one instant in the heartbreaking little [illegible] palm.

"Maybe it isn't," their mother said comfortingly. "Drop a little water on its head and see."

The little girl who had dropped it rushed to the pail and put the mice in it, then she dropped it [illegible] on the tiny head of the mouse. Instantly it squirmed, and [illegible] leaping it might screech out of the girl's hand, but the little girls cried exclamations of delight. The mother mouse came and carried her babies away. All [illegible] children ran from one [illegible] to the other, hunting their pets and as they found them. They [illegible] with them this time, and they ran away and left them [illegible] after carefully marking the [illegible] they could find it again. [illegible] Monroe in Chicago Record-The aid.

Baby Clarke's "Chupper."

"No," said Baby Clarke, "I don't go to bed till after chupper."

"But we had supper long ago," mamma. "Don't you remember? We ate supper on the 'choo-choo cars' before we got to grandma's house."

He shook his yellow head with [illegible] rowful emphasis. "Vat was chupper?"

"Bless his dear heart!" cried grandma. "He's forgotten. Poor little [illegible] hungry so often. Let me get him a bread and milk, Gertrude. That will hurt him; and then he'll go to bed like a lamb."

Grandma suited the action to the word, and in a trice Clarke found himself seated before a little round table in the high chair that had been brought down from the attic the day before, and grandpa and grandma had received the letter telling them that their little grandson was coming to visit them a visit. The bread and milk appeared slowly, seriously slowly.

"What a quiet child!" quoth grandpa. "Is he always so still, Gertrude?"

Clarke's mamma looked puzzled. "No, indeed," she responded. "His appetite were not so good. I should certainly be quite alarmed. I suppose he is tired from his first journey on the steam cars."

"I hope it's nothing worse," said grandma, settling her spectacles to see him better, and beginning to look worried.

Presently Clarke laid his spoon down, and wiped his rosy lips methodically. Then mamma took him in her lap and began to unbutton his little shoes. But the astonished and reproachful expression in his eyes made her pause, with the shoe foot in her hand.

"Oh, muvver, I don't want to go bed before chupper! I hasn't been naughty!"

Grandma dropped her spectacles, forgot to pick them up.

Grandpa threw back his head and laughed and laughed.

"Well, well, well!" he said at last. "The boy's hearty, and no mistake. Glad to see it! Glad to see it!"

"He certainly is the healthiest," said grandma, smilingly donning the "specs" which grandpa had picked up between laughs. "But do—don't give him on victuals. I'll get him some more bread and milk."

"He doesn't need it," said mamma, half laughing and half puzzled. "I can't imagine what ailed him act so."

Clarke watched and listened, his eyes exceedingly bright and his lip beginning to quiver. And when he was placed in the high chair and before a second bowl of bread and milk he could bear it no longer, but burst forth in broken English, punctuated with heartrending sobs.

"Oh, no, no!" he wailed. "No, no! Vat ain't chupper. Vat with me ain't chupper. Chupper." He raised his woe-begone face and extended his short arm imploringly. "chupper is a long table—an' lots of folks round it—an'—an—fun."

Down went the yellow head with a pathetic thump.

"Dear heart!" said grandma, as she misses the rest of them so." And she picked him out of the high chair and cuddled him close, smiling through moist "specks."

"The little chap has the right idea," said grandpa, heartily. "Tea-time ain't a genuine meal, and that's [illegible]. He's hit the idea precisely. Now, spozen you set out some [illegible] know we don't need a thing, and we're plumb tired,—but spozen you just set out some things on the table, and we all draw up."

"Of course I will, father," said grandma. And she really was [illegible] done it, but just then Gertrude said, "Sh-h-h!" Baby was fast asleep.

"Dear heart!" said grandma softly. "We'll have things right in the morning."

"That we will," said grandpa. "Grandparents are so [illegible]."—Christian Register.

STORM ON LAKE HURON.

A BIG WRECK ON THE TEXAS PACIFIC.

STRAIGHT CUT MAKERS WERE ABDUCTED.

Women Burned to Death in Kansas—A Suicide in Georgia—New Orleans Has a Big Fire—Postal Clerks Adopts Reports.

INLAND SEA DISASTERS.

Dispatches indicate that a very serious storm raged Sunday and Sunday night on Lake Huron. These dispatches report a number of disasters to lake craft and show that in all fifty-six seamen were rescued at different life saving stations on the lake. The first dispatch came from Huron and said that the schooners Pauly with a crew of twelve, Amaranth with seven, Paige with ten and Sarnia with eight, stranded near Port Huron and that all the seamen were rescued by the life saving service. The dispatch adds that the steamer Quito also stranded but released herself and that no lives were lost.

A message from Harbor Beach, Mich., reports the stranding of four other vessels and the rescue of their crews, and another instance occurred at Point Aux Barques.

READS LIKE A NOVEL.

Early in August thirteen of the leading striking cigar makers of Tampa were abducted. They returned last Friday to Key West and report having been marooned on a barren uninhabited island off the Honduras coast, at night with a box of soda crackers, two small hams, three cans of beef and about a gallon of water. After days of suffering they were found by an Indian and finally reached their native state. They say their abductors were prominent citizens of Tampa. The authorities at Washington have instructed the United States district attorney to investigate the matter. Sworn depositions of the men taken before Federal officials have been mailed to Washington.

TEXAS PACIFIC WRECK.

A Texas Pacific freight crashed through a Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe passenger train at the crossing of the two roads in Dallas, Texas. The combination baggage and express car was cut in two and the body of the mail clerk was found buried under the cab of the freight engine. The two front cars, loaded with horses and mules were demolished, killing between fifteen and twenty of the animals. The engineer and fireman of the freight narrowly escaped with their lives. None of the passengers were hurt. The freight was heavily loaded and from all appearances was going at the rate of ten or fifteen miles per hour.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Miss Zolah Hounsom was burned to death in her home at Topeka, Kansas, last Friday. Miss Hounsom was 35 years old, and lived alone in a one-story frame building. The origin of the fire is unknown. Murder with robbery in view is suspected by the police, as she was known to have had some money.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Late Saturday afternoon at Marietta, Ga., Ben Copeland, an employe of the Brumby Chair Co., fired four shots at H. H. Kolkhoarst, superintendent of the factory, and then blew out his own brains. The superintendent died soon after. Copeland was well known in Bessemer, Ala.

NEW ORLEANS FIRE.

The ship chandlery concern of J. H. Menges, of the chemical warehouse of L. M. Brunswig & Co., in New Orleans, burned Sunday night, entailing a loss of $200,000.

AN ecclesiastical authority says Japan is anxious to fight Russia, claiming a superior navy and a vastly better army. The island empire is opposed to the partition of China and is anxious that Russia shall not secure a foothold fearing for the future of Korea. Japan wishes to accomplish an alliance with England and America.

TALKED TO DEATH.

Miss Rose Wells, a well-known stenographer of Memphis, died last week from the effects of laudanum taken with suicidal intent. She announced her approaching marriage to Frank P. Fuston a prominent Memphis lawyer, and he declined to confirm the announcement. She left letters in which she said publicity and gossip were the cause of her desire to kill herself.

and bedding. Often the children of the camps do not see a town or other children for months, or sometimes years at a time. They grow up very hardy and strong from the outdoor life, but as wild as deer.

I went into the tent of one of these contractors a few years ago, and in the farther corner I noticed two little girls chuckling over the antics of some pet. I wondered what it was, but was afraid to speak to them for fear they would run as the bear on a previous occasion, so I went on talking with their mother. Presently a piercing scream and a low sob were blended as they came from the corner.

"What is it?" I cried, running over to them.

Maggie dropped it and it is dead," sobbed one little girl. There in a pool were three baby mice, while one lay dead in the heartbroken little girl's grim.

Maybe it isn't," their mother said comfortingly. "Drop a little water on it, head and see."

The little girl who had dropped it dabbed to the pail and put the water on it, she dropped it in, so carefully as he tiny creed of the species. Presently it squirmed, and jumped back, making it might scramble out of Maggie's hand but the little girls uttered exclamations of delight. That night the mother mouse came and carried her babies away. All [illegible] the children ran home one [illegible] bush to another hunting their pets, and at last found them. They only played with them a little time and then went away and left them to their mother, after carefully marking the bush so they could find it again.—Anne Shaw, in Minneapolis in Chicago Record.

Baby Clarke's "Chupper."

"No," said Baby Clarke, "I tan't go to bed till after chupper."

"But we had supper, baby," said mamma. "Don't you remember? We ate supper on the 'choo-choo cars' before we got to grandma's house."

He shook his yellow head with scornful emphasis. "Vat wasn't chupper."

"Bless his dear heart!" cried grandma. "He's forgotten. Boys do get hungry so often. Let me get him some bread and milk." Gertrude. That will hurt him, and then he'll go to bed like a lamb."

Grandma suited the action to the word, and in a trice Clarke found himself seated before a little round table in the high chair that had been brought down from the attic the night before that grandpa and grandma had received the letter telling them that the little grandson was coming to make them a visit. The bread and milk disappeared slowly, seriously, silently.

"What a quiet child!" quoth grandpa. "Is he always so still, daughter Gertrude?"

Clarke's mamma looked puzzled.

"No, indeed," she responded, "if his appetite were not so good, I should certainly be quite alarmed. I suppose he is tired from his first journey on the steam cars."

"I hope it's nothing worse," sighed grandma, settling her spectacles so as to see him better, and beginning to look worried.

Presently Clarke laid his spoon down, and wiped his rosy lips meditatively. Then mamma took him in her lap and began to unbutton his tiny little shoes. But the astonished and reproachful expression in his wide eyes made her pause, with the chubby foot in her hand.

"Oh, muvver, I don't want to go to bed before chupper! I hasn't been naughty!"

Grandma dropped her spectacles, forgot to pick them up.

Grandpa threw back his head, and laughed and laughed!

"Well, well, well!" he said at last. "The boy's hearty, and no mistake. Glad to see it! Glad to see it!"

"He certainly is the beaterest," said grandma, smilingly donning the "specs" which grandpa had picked up between laughs. "But do—don't scold him on victuals. I'll get him some more bread and milk."

"He doesn't need it," said his mamma, half laughing and half puzzled. "I can't imagine what makes him act so."

Clarke watched and listened, his eyes exceedingly bright and his lip beginning to quiver. And, when he was placed in the high chair again before a second bowl of bread and milk he could bear it no longer, but burst forth in broken English, punctuated with heartrending sobs.

"Oh, no, no!" he wailed. "No, no' Vat ain't chupper. Vat table me ain't chupper. Chupper," and he raised his woe-begone face and extended his short arm impressively, "chupper is a long table—an' lots folks round it—an'—an'—fun!"

Down went the yellow head with a pathetic thump.

"Dear heart!" said grandma. "He misses the rest of them so!" And she picked him out of the high chair and cuddled him close, smiling through moist "specks."

"The little chap has the right idea," said grandpa, heartily. "Eating alone ain't a genuine meal, and that's a fact. He's hit the idea precisely. Mighty spozen you set out some things, we know we don't need a thing, and you're plumb tired,—but spozen you do, and set out some things on the dining-room table, and we all draw up?"

"Of course I will, father," responded grandma. And she really would have done it, but just then Mamma Gertrude said, "Sh-h-h!" Baby Clarke was fast asleep.

"Dear heart!" said grandma softly. "We'll have things right in the morning."

"That we will," said grandpa.

Grandparents are so indulgent.—Christian Register.

STORM ON LAKE HURON.

A BIG WRECK ON THE TEXAS PACIFIC.

SMOKING CIGAR MAKERS WERE ABDUCTED.

Women Burned to Death in Kansas—A Suicide in Georgia—New Orleans Has a Big Fire—Postal Clerks Adopts Reports.

INLAND SEA DISASTERS.

Dispatches indicate that a very severe storm raged Sunday and Sunday night on Lake Huron. These dispatches report a number of disasters to lake craft and show that in all fifty-six seamen were rescued at different life saving stations on the lake. The first dispatch came from Huron and said that the schooners Pauly with a crew of twelve, Amaranth with seven, Paige with ten and Sarina with eight, stranded near Port Huron and that all the seamen were rescued by the life saving service. The dispatch adds that the steamer Quito also stranded but released herself and that no lives were lost.

A message from Harbor Beach, Mich. reports the stranding of four other vessels and the rescue of their crews, and another instance occurred at Point Aux Barques.

READS LIKE A NOVEL.

Early in August thirteen of the leading strikers of cigar makers of Tampa were abducted. They returned last Friday to Key West and report having been marooned on a barren uninhabited island off the Honduras coast, at night with a box of soda crackers, two small hams, three cans of beef and about a gallon of water. After days of suffering they were found by an Indian and finally reached their native state. They say their abductors were prominent citizens of Tampa. The authorities at Washington have instructed the United States district attorney to investigate the matter. Sworn depositions of the men taken before Federal officials have been mailed to Washington.

TEXAS PACIFIC WRECK.

A Texas Pacific freight crashed through a Gulf, Colarodo and Sante Fe passenger train at the crossing of the two roads in Dallas, Texas. The combination baggage and express car was cut in two and the body of the mail clerk was found buried under the cab of the freight engine. The two front cars, loaded with horses and mules were demolished, killing between fifteen and twenty of the animals. The engineer and fireman of the freight narrowly escaped with their lives. None of the passengers were hurt. The freight was heavily loaded and from all appearances was going at the rate of ten or fifteen miles per hour.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Miss Zolah Hounsom was burned to death in her home at Topeka, Kansas, last Friday. Miss Hounsom was 38 years old, and lived alone in a one-story frame building. The origin of the fire is unknown. Murder with robbery in view is suspected by the police, as she was known to have had some money.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Late Saturday afternoon at Marietta, Ga., Ben Copeland, an employe of the Brumby Chair Co., fired four shots at H. H. Kolkhoarst, superintendent of the factory, and then blew out his own brains. The superintendent died soon after. Copeland was well known in Bessemer, Ala.

NEW ORLEANS FIRE.

The ship chandlery concern of J. H. Meagos, of the chemical warehouse of L. M. Brunswig & Co., in New Orleans, burned Sunday night, entailing a loss of $200,000.

AN ecclesiastical authority says Japan is anxious to fight Russia, claiming a superior navy and a vastly better army. The island empire is opposed to the partition of China and is anxious that Russia shall not secure a foothold fearing for the future of Korea. Japan wishes to accomplish an alliance with England and America.

TALKED TO DEATH.

Miss Rose Wells, a well-known stenographer of Memphis, died last week from the effects of laudanum taken with suicidal intent. She announced her approaching marriage to Frank P. Poston a prominent Memphis lawyer, and he declind to confirm the announcement. She left letters in which she said publicity and gossip were the cause of her desire to kill herself.

THE POSTAL CLERKS.

The National United Post Office Clerks' Association, at Milwaukee, Wis., Friday adopted the report of the committee on classification which asks that the minimum salary for clerks in first and second-class offices be $600 and that the maximum be $1,200, with a yearly increase until the salary reaches $1,400. It further asks that bill clerks receive as a minimum $600 with yearly advances of $100 until they receive $1,000. This applies to all classes below the chief clerk. There is considerable discord between the East and West factions over the proposition for an eight hour bill.

TRAGIC IDENTIFICATION.

Mrs. S. S. Barney, wife of Congressman S. S. Barney of the Fifth district, and Mrs. W. H. Ramsey, Sr., were killed by a Northwestern train Tuesday near Milwaukee. W. H. Ramsey, Jr., was asked to see if he could recognize the bodies. Mr. Ramsey stepped into the waiting room, where they lay. He lifted the covering from Mrs. Barney, but the remains were so terribly mangled he could not make out the features. He lifted the cover from the other body and fell back trembling with blanched face. He had looked upon the dead face of his mother.

LIKES TO SEE THEM RUN.

Robert W. Ditto, a former member of the New Philadelphia fire department, is under arrest and has confessed to having been the author of a large number of incendiary fires during the last six months. He gave no reason for his incendiary work except that he liked to see the people get excited and run to the fires. Ditto was held under $10,000 bond.

GONE WITH THE MONEY.

Frank C. Lechner, cashier of the Bank of Timmonsville, S. C., suddenly disappeared a short while ago for reasons unknown at the time. Since then an examination of the bank's accounts shows the cashier to be short some $5,000, and it is feared an increased shortage will be found as the investigation continues.

THE LAST RELIC.

Alfred Jackson, former slave and body servant of Andrew Jackson, died Thursday at his cabin on the Hermitage farm, the famous Jackson home, near Nashville, where he was born ninety-six years ago. He was the last of the old circle of the Jackson family servants and never left them.

BIG COMBINE.

The oil producers of California have formed a great corporation, with capital of $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 for the purposes of protecting and promoting their interests. It has no relations with the Standard Oil Company.

ONCE more are they agitating the building of a tunnel from Scotland to Ireland. The proposed route is 21 miles and the project will cost $50-000,000.

THE first anniversary of the great storm was appropriately observed in Galveston Sunday with public memorial services on the beach at the foot of Broadway.

IT is reported that Capt. Richmond P. Hobson is bethrothed to Miss May Van Alen, a granddaughter of Mrs. Astor.

ATTEMPTED ARSON.

What firemen say was a well arranged plan to destroy the Orpheon theater building in Chicago is found. Assistant Fire Marshal Horan and his men discovered evidences of incendiarism in a room on the fourth floor. The evidence consists of one large bottle containing gasoline, two glasses half filled with kerosene, several candles burned almost to the end, and a bundle of rags soaked in oil and a quantity of charred newspaper. On the floor a train of powder was found. The matter is being thoroughly investigated.

NOT DISCOURAGED.

Dr. Caldas will resume his experiments with his yellow fever serum. He said: My yellow fever tests are by no means over. Against the reports of failure in Cuba, I place the long record of our experiments in Mexico and Brazil." He declares the Cuban patients died of blood poisoning, not of yellow fever, and says the world will yet recognize that he is right.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

THE SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY.

OUR CORRESPONDENT'S EEKLY LETTER.

The Congressional Party Arrives in Manila—The Attempted Assassination of the President Discussed — Other News.

All interest surrounds the Schley court and the president's condition should not change materially for the worse, the court will meet on Thursday as ordered in the precept, and inquiry will begin at once. The determination of the court is to settle down to work immediately. If objection is made to any members of the court, that objection probably will be disposed of by the court itself in short order. Acting Secretary of the Navy Hackett has been pressing Attorney-General Knox, by wire and letter, to appoint one of the assistant attorney-generals to assist Captain Lemley, judge advocate of the Schley court in the conduct of the case. The attorney-general has declined to take a step which he believes would look like the government prosecuting the officer under investigation. The government, in his opinion, should have no part in the inquiry. The attorney-general was supported in his opinion by all the members of the cabinet whom he consulted, and has wired his decision to Mr. Hackett.

On Thursday the Navy Department received two letters from Admiral Schley relating to the court of inquiry. One of these was in reply to to Acting Secretary Hackett's note stating that if Admiral Schley would furnish a list of important witnesses he desired to have brought to Washington at once, his request would be acceded to as rapidly as the interests of the service would permit by bringing several of the witnesses at a time. Although the reply of Admiral Schley was not made public, it is understood it is in the nature of a respectful remonstrance against the course suggested with a specific request that all the witnesses easily available shall be summoned for the purpose of conference.

The United States transport McClellan, having on board the Congressional party, has arrived at Manilla. The delegation is to examine into the general administration of affairs in the Phillippines, and report to Congress any recommendation for the improvement of existing conditions on the islands. The party consists of Senators Bacon, of Georgia, and Dietrich, of Nebraska; and Representatives Mercer, of Nebraska; Smith, of Illinois; Burleson, of Texas; DeArmond, of Missouri; Driscoll, of New York; Gaines, of Tennessee, and Green, of Pennsylvania.

In discussing the attempted assassination of President McKinley, Congressman George A. Pearce of Maryland, said: "I will offer a bill in the next Congress, to amend the Constitution making an unsuccessful attempt on the life of a president of the nation treason, and the penalty death. A man who strikes at the nation's head is a public enemy and should be treated as such."

While the reports grow constantly more definite concerning Admiral Sampson's wrecked mentality, and while it is predicted that Admiral Sampson will not be on the stand, it is asserted with equal positiveness by both the navy department and the counsel for Admiral Schley that Admiral Sampson will unquestionably appear before the court of inquiry.

"Admiral Sampson will appear before the court if he has to be brought in on a stretcher and taken from the court to his grave," is the emphatic was in which Acting Secretary Hackett replied to a question.

Admiral Schley's counsel make no attempt at epigramatic statements. They merely say significantly: "We will see that Admiral Sampson is put on the stand by the government, or we will know the reason why,"

JOHN DISKEN, a miner of Brookside, was severely injured by falling coal in a mine last Friday. He may lose a foot.

Dr. Silva, the Colombian minister, has sent to the State Department a formal and written acceptance in behalf of Colombia of the American proposition to mediate. The letter is dated August 27, three days after Secretary Hay's offer of mediation.

France has coined 2200 tons of gold during the past 40 years. As a user of the precious metal the republic is said to outrank all other nations. The English mint only coined 1400 tons during the same period.

Not a Pauper Though Barefooted.

For some weeks a gentleman elegantly dressed, except as regards his feet, has been walking for several hours daily in one of the public gardens of Moscow. On his feet he wore neither shoes nor stockings, and for this reason he naturally attracted much attention from the crowds that frequent the garden. That he was a man of wealth many persons conjectured from his extremely fashionable attire, but why he did not cover his feet they could not understand.

The mystery has now been solved. As the odd looking pedestrian was walking in the garden the other day, an elderly woman, confident that he was a beggar, approached him, and, taking out her purse, handed him twenty-five cents, saying: "Take this and go and buy yourself a pair of second hand shoes. I am only a poor woman; otherwise I would give you more."

With these words she went away, but the gentleman followed her hastily, and, holding out the twenty-five cents, he said: "Please take this back for I really do not need it. I can buy all the shoes I want, but am a disciple of Kneipp, and I think it healthier to go barefooted."

The woman, however had never heard of Abbe Kneipp, and, still convinced that the man was a beggar, she refused to take the money, and hurried off so fast that the gentleman could not overtake her.—New York Herald.

PUTNAM'S FADELESS DYE produces the fastest and brightest colors of any known dye stuff. Sold by all druggists.

The State which produced the largest corn crop last year was Illinois, with 247,000,000 bushels.

Climbed Old Owl's Head.

Two Worcester lads, Clarence and Carl Burch, sixteen and eighteen years old, respectively, have distinguished thmselves by making the ascent of Owl's Head, an elevation of 3,206 feet, situated in the adjoining town of Benton, N. H. By this feat, hitherto pronounced impossible, the young men have achieved notoriety, and are believed to be the first that ever reached the top of the mountain.

The face of Owl's Head is formed by exposed ledges, varying from 300 to 2,000 feet in height, and in places is nearly perpendicular. Nowhere is it at a less angle than 45 degrees. The ascent began at 11 a. m., and from that time until 4 p. m. their time was occupied in the task. Several times they were obliged to swing in midair, holding to wisps of bushes high up and out over space hundreds of feet above a yawning chasm of rocks, ledges and old windfalls. The starting of a single stone or mound of earth would have resulted in death.—New York Sun.

Poor Pay For Pat.

An Irishman had just filled an ash bucket with clinkers in the stokehold of a steamer and a man on deck was heaving it up, when the chain snapped and down went the bucket.

By way of warning, the man on top shouted out: "Under below." But poor Patrick was unable to dodge the bucket, which struck him on the head.

"Under below' be blistered!" he roared. "Sure, an' ain't it under below Oi've bin for the last tin minutes? An' this is phwat Oi git for me trouble!" —London Answers.

Icebergs Make Their Presence Known.

The captain of an ocean steamer is often warned of the proximity of icebergs by the men in the engine room. When a ship enters water considerably colder than that through which it has been going its propeller runs faster, and as such water surrounds the vicinity of icebergs for many miles the engineers know when the propeller's action is greatly accelerated without any increase of the steam power icebergs may be expected. Of course the thermometer is the most useful indicator of icebergs.

Dress in Java.

A kabaya is a sort of dressing jacket of profusely embroidered white batiste, fastened down the front with ornamental pins and little gold chains; and under it is worn the sarong, a gaudily colored skirt falling down straight and narrow, with one deep fold in front, and kept in place by a single scarf wound several times around the waist, its ends dangling loose. With this costume, little high-heeled slippers are worn on the bare feet, and the hair is done in native style.—Facts and Fancies About Java.

And old bachelor says the friendship of two women is always a plot against a third.

A vessel going from Montreal to Port Arthur has to ascend 600 feet.

Rest For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. Cascarets Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

A man can go down hill faster than he can go up.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa.

Physical culture is only another name for hard work.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle

Europe and Australia together are almost exactly equal in area to South America. North America and Australia combined would almost cover Africa.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars sent free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Potatoes form the world's greatest single crop, 4000 million bushels being produced annually, equal in bulk to the entire wheat and corn crop.

H. H. GREEN'S SONS, of Atlanta, Ga., are the only successful Dropsy Specialists in the world. See their liberal offer in advertisement in another column of this paper.

An ordinary piano contains a mile of piano wire.

Piso's Cure cannot be too highly spoken of as a cough cure.—J. W. O'BRIEN, 322 Third Avenue, N., Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6, 1900.

Cremation of the dead has been the custom in Japan for 1200 years.

FRAGRANT

SOZODONT

Tooth Powder

in a handy Patent Box (new)
SOZODONT LIQUID - - 25c
Large LIQUID and POWDER, 75c
At all Stores, or by Mail for the price.
HALL & RUCKEL, NEW YORK

25c

PRICE, 25 c.

WE PAY R. R. FARE AND UNDER $5.000 Deposit, Guarantee

Positions

500 FREE SCHOLARSHIPS. BOARD AT COST. Write Quick to Ga. Ala. Business College, Macon, Ga.

Bryant & Stratton

Business, shorthand and Telegraph College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

Mother

"My mother was troubled with consumption for many years. At last she was given up to die. Then she tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was speedily cured."
D. P. Jolly, Avoca, N. Y.

No matter how hard your cough or how long you have had it, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best thing you can take. It's too risky to wait until you have consumption. If you are coughing today, get a bottle of Cherry Pectoral at once.

Three sizes: 25c., 50c., $1. All druggists.

Consult your doctor. If he says take it, then do as he says. If he tells you not to take it, then don't take it. He knows. Leave it with him. We are willing.
J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Sick Headache?

Food doesn't digest well? Appetite poor? Bowels constipated? Tongue coated? It's your liver! Ayer's Pills are liver pills; they cure dyspepsia, biliousness.

25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers

Now is the Time

You Need a Good Liver Medicine.

LIVERINA

Acts directly on the Liver. Relieving Biliousness, Jaundice, Sick Headache and that Languid Feeling Peculiar to this Season of the Year.

Try it. 50c a Bottle at All Retailers.

GAY, HARDIE & DURR,
Proprietors, Montgomery, Ala.

$900 TO $1500 A YEAR

We want intelligent Men and Women as Traveling Representatives or Local Managers; salary $900 to $1500 a year and all expenses, according to experience and ability. We also want local representatives; salary $9 to $15 a week and commission, depending upon the time devoted. Send stamp for full particulars and state position preferred. Address, Dept. B.
THE BELL COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER
CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE
SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE.
ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E. 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

AGENTS WANTED for the Brohard Sash Lock and Brohard Door Holder

Active workers everywhere can earn big money; always a steady demand for our goods. Sample sash lock, with prices, terms, etc., free for 10 cents for postage. THE BROHARD CO., Station "G," Philadelphia, Pa.

$75.00 To $150.00 Per Month

MADE BY AGENTS. Elegant Premiums Free. Address SCOTT REMEDY CO., LOUISVILLE, KY.
When you write mention this paper.

USE CERTAIN COUGH CHILL CORN CURE. 25 CTS

"The Sauce that made West Point famous."
McILHENNY'S TABASCO.

Am. N. U., No. 37, 1901.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

McLean's Strengthening Cordial

Is the Only Tonic Remedy

which has an immediate stimulating effect, relieves the weariness incident to over-exertion, and which continues its tonic effect, curing temporary illnesses and those of long standing. It has no equal as a "pick me up," toning up the system to withstand the lassitude and weariness incident to changes of season. It promotes appetite, aids digestion and makes one feel strong and well.

The best blood purifier in the world. One testimonial out of thousands:

Knob Lick, Mo., Aug. 11th, 1900.
The Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co.,
St. Louis, Mo.
Gentlemen:—For three years I have used McLean's Strengthening Cordial in my family, and I am confident it saved my daughter's life. I can cheerfully recommend it to everyone.
Yours truly,
J. H. Storey.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. Made only by
The Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Ladies!

Our Millinery Department is in charge of Mrs Annie Miller, of St. Louis, who comes to us with the latest styles in Hats.

The ladies of Clanton and vicinity are cordially invited to attend our opening on Tuesday, September 24, and inspect our line of Millinery, before buying.

Very respectfully,

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : ALA.

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER office

AT REDUCED PRICES

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

They banish pain and prolong life. ONE GIVES RELIEF.

R·I·P·A·N·S

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

THIS COMPLETE SHAVING OUTFIT FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

1 English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to shave	75c
1 9½ in Hair Brush	55c
1 Shaving Brush	10c
1 7 in Barber Comb	10c
1 Rubber Fine "	10c
1 4 in Pocket comb in case	10c
1 Bar good Shaving soap	10c
1 2½ x3 Mirror	10c
1 23 in Razor Strop	50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

The O. K. Lunch Counter

MEALS AND LUNCHES SERVED AT ALL HOURS AT POPULAR PRICES

Fish and Oysters during the Season

I pay highest market price for Chickens and Eggs.

LUNCHES PUT UP FOR TRAVELLERS

THE O. K. LUNCH COUNTER

NEXT THE RAILROAD, CLANTON.

W. M. STACY, Proprietor.

ALL WOMEN

Wine of Cardui is the guardian of a woman's health and happiness from youth to old age. It helps her safely into womanhood. It sustains her during the trials of pregnancy, childbirth and motherhood, making labor easy and preventing flooding and miscarriage. It gently leads her through the dangerous period known as the change of life.

WINE OF CARDUI

cures leucorrhœa, falling of the womb, and menstrual irregularity in every form. It is valuable in every trying period of a woman's life. It reinforces the nervous system, acts directly on the genital organs and is the finest tonic for women known. Ask your druggist for a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

Batesville, Ala., July 11, 1900.
I am using Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught and I feel like a different woman already. Several ladies here keep the medicines in their homes all the time. I have three girls and they are using it with me.
MRS. KATE BROWDER.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

The BANNER office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us trial

CHURCH DIRECTORY

BAPTIST—Preaching on the first and third Sundays at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Sunday-school every Sunday at 10 a.m.

Prayer-meeting every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

F. M. WOODS, Pastor.

METHODIST—Preaching every second Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and every fourth Sunday at 7 p.m.

Sunday-school at 10 a.m. every Sunday.

Prayer-meeting at seven o'clock every Wednesday night.

D. F. ELLISOR, Pastor.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP

W. H. TAYLOR, Proprietor.

HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING

In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.

HOT AND COLD BATHS.

CLANTON

The Case.

"Gentlemen of the jury," cried the council for the defendant, "if there ever was a case which in any case must be carefully compared with other cases this case is that case."

"Which case?" asked the puzzled judge.

Domestic Economy.

Madam—Poor Fido, he was such a nice dog! I am so sorry he died.

Bridget—So am I, mom. Mang's the plate he saved me washing.—Baltimore World.

GENERAL CONVENTION EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SAN FRANCISCO, California, October, 1901.

The Southern Pacific Co's "Sun Set Route" takes pleasure in announcing very low round trip rates from all Coupon Tickets Offices in this territory to San Francisco, Cal., account of the above occasion

Tickets on sale September 18-26 inclusive.

Stop Overs are allowed on the going trip in Texas and West thereof provided, passengers reach San Francisco not later than October 2nd, and on the return trip at points West of Colorado Common Points, San Antonio and Fort Worth, Texas, provided, passengers reach starting point within the extreme limit of the ticket, November 15, 1901.

The privilege of going one route and returning another will be allowed.

Particular attention is called to the "Convention Special," one of the finest trains in the world, from New Orleans through to California without change. This train carrying the equipment of the "Famous Sun Set Limited" Vestibuled Sleeping and Dining Cars, especially arranged to carry the delegates and visitors to California, will leave New Orleans Wednesday, September 25th. Stops will be made at various interesting points enroute.

The following rates have been authorized from various points to San Francisco and return.

Anniston	$ 55.55
Attalla	$ 55.15
Birmingham, Selma, Decatur, Mobile, Montgomery and Tuskaloosa	$ 51.75
Eufaula	$ 56.55
Florence	$ 50.95
Huntsville	$ 53.20
Opelika	$ 55.70

Rates are open to all.

For further information call on or address GEO. W. ELY,
T. P. A. Sun Set Route,"
Montgomery, Ala.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer," writes Dr. A. Kellet, of Willford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for Burns, Boils, Piles and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Clanton Drug Co.

Six Million A Year.

Did you ever stop to consider what a million means? Multiply this six times and it shows you how popular Cascarets are and what great merit they possess. For, last year over six million boxes of this wonderful medicine for liver and bowels was sold in this country alone. The American people know a good thing. The sale of Cascarets prove it. The medicine is the best for the bowels, the price right, 10c, 25c and 50c a box, and a 50c box is a whole month's treatment for the worst kind of a case. It is a pleasure for us to advertise a medicine like this as well as to endorse the makers and ask our readers to buy it

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

THE SUFFRAGE CLAUSE

(continued from 2d col. page 4)

in good faith, in her own right, of forty acres of land situate in this State assessed for taxation at the value of three hundred dollars or more, or the owner in good faith, in his own right, or the husband of a woman who is the owner in good faith, in her own right, of personal property assessed for taxation at three hundred dollars or more; provided, that the taxes due upon such real or personal property for the year next preceding the year in which he offers to register shall have been paid, unless the assessment shall have been legally contested and is undetermined.

182. The following persons shall be disqualified both from registering and from voting, namely:

All idiots and insane persons; those who shall by reason of conviction of crime be disqualified from voting at the time of the ratification of this Constitution; those who shall be convicted of treason, murder, arson, embezzlement, malfeasance in office, larceny, receiving stolen property, obtaining property or money under false pretenses, perjury, subornation of perjury, robbery, assault with intent to rob, burglary, forgery, bribery, assault and battery on the wife, bigamy, living in adultry, sodomy, incest, rape, miscegenation crime against nature, or any crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, or of any infamous crime or crime involving moral turpitude; also any person who shall be convicted of vagrancy or a tramp, or of selling or offering to sell his vote or the vote of another, or of buying or offering to buy the vote of another, or of making or offering to make a false return in any election by the people or in a primary election to procure the nomination or election of any person to any office, or of suborning any witness or registrar to secure the registration of any person as an elector.

183. No person shall be qualified to vote or participate in any primary election, party convention, mass meeting or other method of party action of any political party or faction, who shall not possess the qualifications prescribed in this article for an elector, or who shall be disqualified from voting under the provisions of this article

184. No person not registered and qualified as an elector under the provisions of this article shall vote at the general election in 1902, or at any subsequent State, county, or municipal election, general, local or special; but the provisions of this article shall not apply to any election held prior to the general election in the year 1902.

185. Any elector whose right to vote shall be challenged for any legal cause before an election officer, shall be required to swear or affirm that the matter of the challenge is untrue before his vote shall be received, and any one who wilfully swears or affirms falsely thereto shall be guilty of perjury, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary for not less than one nor more than five years.

186. The Legislature shall provide by law for the registration, after the first day of January, 1903, of all qualified electors. Until the first day of January, 1903, all electors shall be registered under and in accordance with the requirments of this section, as follows:

First—Registration shall be conducted in each county by a board of three reputable and suitable persons resident in the county, who shall not hold any elective office during their term, to be appointed within sixty days after the ratification of this constitution by the Governor, Auditor and Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, or by a majority of them, acting as a board of appointment. If one of the persons appointed on such board of registration shall refuse, neglect or be unable to qualify or serve, or if a vacancy or vacancies occur in the membership of the board of registrars from any cause, the Governor, Auditor and Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, or a majority of them, acting as a board of appointment, shall make other appointments to fill such board. Each registrar shall receive two dollars per day to be paid by the State and disbursed by the several judges of probate, for such entire attendance upon the sessions of the board. Before entering upon the performance of the duties of his office each registrar shall take such oath as may be required of judges of elections of the State, which oath may be administered by any person authorized by law to administer oaths. The oath shall be in writing and subscribed by the registrar and filed in the office of the clerk of the court of probate of the county.

Quaint Baseball Poets.

To the editor of the Times: Hamlin was at the ball game in Jersey City last Saturday and returned home at a late hour in the morning. His tall form, which in his age was but slightly bent, was clothed in the old fashioned swallow tail suit, and he also wore a tall silk hat, generally a size number," tilted slightly back on his head. For years he was famous as a man who never wore an overcoat, and in his death he never hankered to part with that. In him, immortality consisted except on the most extremely cold days. For a half century he never changed the style of his clothes. He walked with a swinging gait and had so many friends and acquaintances to whom he had to bow that a smile seemed to be ever on his face.

Both Trained.

Little Edith had been very ill, but was convalescent. Waking up suddenly and finding a strange lady at her bedside, she asked, "Are you the doctor?"

"No, dear," replied the lady, "I'm your trained nurse."

"Oh," exclaimed Edith, pointing to a cage hanging near the window, "mamma's trained nurse, let me introduce you to my trained canary."

Awful Affliction.

Junior Partner—I received a letter from our bookkeeper this morning saying that he wouldn't be able to come to work for several days.

Senior Partner—What's the matter with the man?

Junior Partner—His wife has been cutting his hair.—Town Topics.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. Wheeler's Electric Comb. The only patent Comb in the world. People everywhere it has been introduced are wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonder already is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold with written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. Sent stamps for one. Ladies' size 25c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. Want column of this paper. Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

THE BEST WAY TO THE SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST
NORTH AND NORTHWEST
—IS VIA THE—

L. & N.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE

The Through Cars

Of this line pass Clanton daily, through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans.

Connecting with all points in

TEXAS AND THE WEST.

Also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Connecting for all points in

NORTH AND NORTHWEST

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala.

C. P. Ammons, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

PURINA FEED

KEEPS MULES UP
FEED BILLS DOWN

CAPACITY: 25 CARS PER DAY.

PURINA MILLS
ST. LOUIS, MO.

VOL. IX

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of The Sights He Saw and Some of Those Not.

I am sorry the University School has been removed from Clanton to Montevallo. It had become an institution here, and Prof. McMorris has done good work and made a fine reputation. We can't afford to lose a good school and a good teacher, and a wish from a resident in his new location hoping soon he will return here.

We have at all events a good school in the Clanton High School and I am glad to learn Prof. Cooper has now 77 students enrolled.

John Oates killed a big rattlesnake the other day. It was 4 feet long and 7½ inches in circumference, and had 9 rattles and a button. It was a whopper and no mistake.

Thorsby Cannery Meeting.

At two o'clock last Saturday afternoon the people began to assemble in the city hall, and although the accomodations of the hall are inadequate for ordinary occasions, it soon became evident that not more than half the people could be made comfortable, and Prof Rasco kindly came to our rescue by offering the use of the new school hall.

Glad of the opportunity of viewing the new school house, the crowd was soon seated in the large hall of the new school, and I am sure the magnificent surroundings inspired pride and greater zeal for the undertaking on hand.

Dr. Bosworth was very eloquently and satisfactorily introduced by Mayor Fargee, and proceeded to explain all details of the canning industry from field to consumer. From figures furnished by members it could be demonstrated that we could make from $60 to $100 per acre growing stuff for the canning factory. He promises us the largest factory in the United States, with ample capital to back it. He is connected with two other large factories in the U. S. and is well up with the business.

After explaining and explaining the canning and following out the development of each in the business part of further discussion was entered into and put to a vote, showing almost a unanimous rising vote in the affirmative for the purpose of further discussion of the canning industry.

DIED

At his home at Clanton Mr. J. Maddox died on Friday, September 13, after a short illness. A good man and a good citizen has gone to rest. May the good Lord be with the bereaved family in their affliction.

Mrs. Owen died at her home at Jemison on Friday, September 13. Our deepest sympathies are with the bereaved family.

STOPS THE COUGH and Works off the Cold.

Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

S M Adams

THE BANNER.

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. IX CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 19, 1901 NO. 48

Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, or a majority of them, acting as a board of appointment, shall make other appointments to fill such board. Each registrar shall receive two dollars per day to be paid by the State and disbursed by the several judges of probate, for each entire day's attendance upon the sessions of the board. Before entering upon the performance of the duties of his office each registrar shall take the same oath required of judicial officers of the State, which oath may be administered by any person authorized by law to administer oaths. The oath shall be in writing and subscribed by the registrar, and filed in the office of the judge of probate of the county.

Quaint Hannibal Hamlin.

To the day of his death Hannibal Hamlin was a figure that men would turn and look at a second time on the street. His full form, which in old age was but slightly bent, was always clothed in the old fashioned black swallow-tail suit, and he always wore a tall silk hat, generally a "black rubber," tilted slightly back on his head. For years he was famous as a man who never wore an overcoat, and to his death he never burdened himself with that, to him, unnecessary garment except on the most severely cold days. For a half century he never changed the style of his clothes. He walked with a swinging gait and had so many friends and acquaintances to whom he had to bow that a smile seemed to be ever on his face.

Both Trained.

Little Edith had been very ill, but was convalescent. Waking up suddenly and finding a strange lady at her bedside, she asked, "Are you the doctor?"

"No, dear," replied the lady; "I'm your trained nurse."

"Oh," exclaimed Edith, pointing to a cage hanging near the window, "trained nurse, let me introduce you to my trained canary."

Awful Affliction.

Junior Partner—I received a note from our bookkeeper this morning saying that he wouldn't be able to come to work for several days.

Senior Partner—What's the matter with the man?

Junior Partner—His wife has been cutting his hair.—Town Topics.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People, everywhere it has been introduced, are wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. Send stamps for one. Ladies' size 50c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. (Agents are wild with success. See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

THE BEST WAY TO THE SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST. NORTH AND NORTH-WEST

—IS VIA THE—

L. & N.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.

The Through Cars

Of this line pass Chicago daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans.

Connecting with all points in TEXAS AND THE WEST.

Also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Connecting for all points in the NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or C. P. Ammons, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

FEED PURINA MILLS ST. LOUIS, MO.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

I am sorry the University School has removed from Clanton to Plantersville. It had become an institution here, and Prof. McMorries has done good work and made a fine reputation. We can ill afford to lose a good school and a good teacher, and I wish him all success in his new location, hoping some day he will return here.

We have at all events a good school in the Clanton High School, and I am glad to learn Prof. Collier has now 77 students enrolled.

John Oates killed a big rattlesnake the other day; it was 4 feet long and 7½ inches in circumference, and had thirty rattles and a button. It was a whopper and no mistake.

Thorsby Cannery Meeting.

At two o'clock last Saturday afternoon the people began to assemble in the city hall, and although the accomodations of the hall are adequate for ordinary occasions, it soon became evident that not more than half the people could be made comfortable, and Prof Rasco kindly came to our rescue by offering the use of the new school hall.

Glad of the opportunity of viewing the new school house, the crowd was soon seated in the large hall of the new school, and I am sure the magnificent surroundings manifested in this grand building inspired new and greater zeal for the undertaking on hand.

Dr. Bosworth was very eloquently and satisfactorily introduced by Mayor Fagan, and proceeded to explain all details of the canning industry from field to consumer. From figures furnished by members of the audience Dr. Bosworth easily demonstrated that we could make from $50 to $100 per acre growing stuff for the canning factory. He promises us the largest factory in the United States, with ample capital to back it. He is connected with two other large factories in the U. S. and is well up with the business.

After touching and explaining the business side, with and following the establishment of such an enterprise, the business part of the meeting entered into and put Thorsby in the lead. Furnish land for building, 60 x 100 feet, and the Canning Company will put up $12,000 and the city council [illegible] the amount necessary for the building, and appointed a committee—Messrs. Fagan, chairman, Scott, secretary, Scott, J. W. Francis, George [illegible] Pounds, [illegible] elected by the people present at once [illegible] for the erection and—well, we have the canning factory, the farmers near [illegible] for this enterprise, the benefits to be [illegible] here and the necessary amount [illegible] entered into the success, and will [illegible] the community [illegible] and adjacent to [illegible] purpose of furthering [illegible] COMMITTEE.

DIED

At his home at Clanton Mr. I. Maddox died on Friday, September 13, after a short illness. A good man and a good citizen has gone to rest. May the good Lord write [illegible] bereaved family in their affliction.

Mrs. Owen died at her home at Jemison on Friday, September 13. Our deepest sympathies are with the bereaved family.

STOPS THE COUGH and works off the Cold. Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25 cents.

NOTICE.

The churches of the Unity Association will meet at the time and place appointed at their last Association held with Jemison church, at which time the new movement can be fully discussed, and all churches who desire to do so can withdraw or go into the formation of the county association.

Respectfully,
F. M. WOODS,
Chairman Ex. Com.

Clanton, Ala., Sept. 12, 1901.

To the churches of the Mulberry and Unity Associations:

Your committee appointed at a convention of messengers who met at Macedonia church, have heard from a number of the churches favoring the new Chilton County Association, but some of the churches suggest that the churches send delegates respectively to the Mulberry and Unity Associations at the time and place already named and then and there present the question, and each church desiring to unite with the proposed Chilton County Association can withdraw, and the time and place will be named by the committee to organize the Chilton County Association.

S. M. ADAMS
F. M. WOODS } Com.
E. B. DEASON

Don't throw away that sample bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic because it cost you nothing. It's too good to be wasted. Nothing like it for cuts, burns, nail punctures, inflamed eyes, sore throat, etc. Internally it cures colic, diarrhoea and flux.

Jemison, Sept. 16, 1901.

Editor Banner—As it has been a long time since I have seen anything from Mars Hill, I wish you would give me a little space in your paper. Cotton picking is all the go; sorry crop, and we fear the death of our beloved president will cause us to get a low price. However, we hope for the best.

Well, we are soon to have the election for or against the new constitution, and as we understand the two, we all here prefer the old. However, we would like to have both sides explained to us; and by the way, Congressman Bowie made a speech at Pleasant Grove in favor of calling a convention and said no white man was to be distranchised. Now, we would all be glad for him to come back to Pleasant Grove and explain the provisions of the new constitution. We would be glad for him and Mr. Reynolds to meet and have another discussion; we will give them a larger crowd now than we did before the election, as we are all anxious to hear him explain the provisions of the new constitution, as we take it for granted that Mr. Bowie is for the constitution and Mr. Reynolds is against it. Yes, we hope he will agree to come; he is our congressman, and a strong lawyer, and from what we have seen in some of the papers he is a strong supporter of the measure. Now, in conclusion, I hope Mr. Bowie will agree to come down some Saturday night and we will get him out to Pleasant Grove and such a crowd you never saw as will be there.

Very respectfully,
F. M. LANGSTON.

Jemison, Ala., Sept. 16, 1901

Editor Banner—I ask permission to say a few words about the new constitution, but I will not undertak now to state all my objections; but I think it is vicious in many respects, and in some respects is better than the old; but the suffrage in the new is a great deal

(continued on 5th column page 8)

East Chilton.

I come again for the last time from East Chilton.

We had the much needed rain last week.

Baxter Kendrick has returned from Wetumpka, and will enter Prof. Collier's school in the near future.

J. N. Goss went to Clanton Saturday, and will enter school Monday.

Messrs. W. T. Mims and Charlie Montes visited friends and relatives near Clanton Friday.

J. E. Goss visited Concord Saturday.

Mrs. Davis of Montgomery, is visiting Mrs. Kendrick this week.

Rev. M. J. Parrish filled his regular appointment here Sunday.

We are reading the new constitution with much interest.

No more news from East Chilton.

SUPOS.

Southeast Chilton.

We had a good rain last Friday and it was appreciated very much.

Farmers are getting along very nicely picking cotton.

B. P. Kendrick has returned home from Wetumpka, and will enter school in Clanton Monday, 16th inst; we all wish him much success.

D. E. Kendrick has a good name for riding wild mules, he has had good success in breaking E. A. Norris' mule. So when you want a mule broke to ride just call D. E. Kendrick.

We are sorry to say that the stock law will come in force October 1, and I will say it is one of the worst things that ever happened in Chilton county.

Rev. M. J. Parrish filled his regular appointment here Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. E. L. Manning is on the sick list this week. A FRIEND.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE

The Teachers' Institute of Chilton county met at Macedonia, Sept. 14, 1901. Called to order by Supt. at 10:45 a.m.

Welcome Address, delivered by Prof. J. T. Martin.

Why Educate? How? Was discussed on a paper by Mrs. A. G. Dunlap and in short speeches by Profs. Strock, Moore and Carmichael. Adjourn for noon recess upon the motion of Prof. Strock.

The afternoon meeting was called to order by Supt. at 1:45 p.m. Prof. Strock opened the discussion upon "How Schools should be Graded." He was followed by Messrs. Carmichael, Mims and Moore.

"Would it be better to divide the County into School Districts?" was discussed by Messrs. Martin, Waldrup, Mims, and Carmichael.

"My first Experience as a Teacher" was presented by Messrs. Moore, Waldrup, Mrs. Dunlap, Messrs. Martin and Carmichael. Adjourned till Sept. 15, 9 a.m., by order of Superintendent.

The Institute Saturday morning, was called to order by Supt. at 9:20. Opened with song and with prayer by Supt.

Prof. Moore opened the discussion upon "Chilton County Schools." He was followed by Prof. Carmichael. "The Importance of Physiology" was discussed by Messrs. Waldrup, Sessions, and Mrs. A. G. Dunlap. Recess for 15 minutes.

After song by the Macedonia choir, Prof. Collier failing to arrive, the Supt. extended to any and all teachers, who might want to make a short speech on education. Prof. Robt. E. Sessions opened the discussion, followed by Supt. Moore.

Profs. Waldrup and Robert Sessions were appointed by Supt. to draw up resolutions.

Resolved, That we, the teachers of Chilton county Institute do hereby tender our thanks to the people of Macedonia community for their courtesy shown us while in their midst.

R. B. WALDRUP
ROBT. E. SESSIONS.

Thorsby was elected as the place for holding the next Institute. Time: Sometime in November, 1901. After song and prayer by Robt. E. Sessions, the Institute stood adjourned until Nov. 1901.

R. D. CARMICHAEL, Sec.

52 Banners cost only 75 cents.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.
THORSBY, ALA.

Waddy.

A revival meeting of this community closed here last Thursday night, Aug. 12, conducted by Rev. Charles H. Lowery. We had some young bold soldiers with us from several churches; one from Mt. Zion, some from Union Grove and New Hope and elsewhere. Some of those bold soldiers are girls—some of Alabama's brightest young ladies. This meeting will encourage this community greatly to have a church built here. The converts are unknown but there are many. We had prayer services twice a day. It was the case many times that the people would shout and pray so long until the preacher could not preach. We don't believe in the preacher having all the work to do. We are having prayermeetings two and three times a week. We do earnestly thank God for such blessings.

SOLDIER OF THE CROSS.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL.

The University School, formerly of Clanton, has been transferred to Plantersville, Ala., where the Ninth Annual Session will begin Sept. 25, 1901. The people of Clanton and Chilton county deserve and receive my endearing gratitude for their substantial support of the school during the last eight years at Clanton.

E. Y. MCMORRIES.

DOWNS' FIRE SALE
—OF—
SNUFF AND TOBACCO
FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS

$3 50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnaps Early Bird, Long Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

and on Thursday, July 25,

$1 00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Bruton.
$1 00 gets you 10 boxes 3½ oz. Beaton.
$1 00 gets you 12 boxes 3½ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO and 600 pounds of SNUFF Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $

But they must go just the same.

Mortgage Sale.

Under and by virtue of the powers contained in a deed of mortgage, executed by the trustees of Clanton Congregational church of the town of Clanton, to the Congregational Church Building Society, on the 4th day of February, 1898, which said deed of mortgage is recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, in Volume 28 of Mortgages, page 474 and which said mortgage has been duly transferred and assigned to the undersigned, I will proceed to sell at auction to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court House door, in Clanton, in said County, on

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER the 30, 1901,

within the legal hours of sale, the following described real estate in said mortgage deed mentioned and described, to-wit:

Lots number 1, 2, 7 and 8 in Block 12, situated east of the Louisville & Nashville railroad in the town of Clanton, county of Chilton and State of Alabama.

ALEX G. DARR, Transferee.
By ROB'T H. KNOX, his Attorney.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Clanton drug store.

WANTED.

LAND FOR SALE. Any man wishing to buy good farms will do well to apply to C. J. STEWART, Clanton, Ala.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1899. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager 316, Caxton Building, Chicago.

Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is the most wonderful healing compound of the nineteenth century. Preserves the flesh, preventing inflammation and heals like magic. Ask your druggist for it.

PAINT now while fair weather lasts. Yours for good work. J. M. MOORE, the Painter, Clanton.

"It's no joke," when we say that Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is superior to anything offered the "dear people" as a dressing for wounds, bites and stings of insects, "poison oak," It's cleanliness, pleasant odor and quick cures make it a universal favorite wherever known. Price 50c. Remember that it is guaranteed by your druggist.

Alabama Girls' Industrial School.
MONTEVALLO, ALA.

The next session opens September 18, 1901. An enlarged Dormitory and new class rooms make it possible to provide for more girls, and to offer better accommodations. For catalogue address FRANCIS M. PETERSON, President.

Positively GUARANTEED UNDER A $5,000 DEPOSIT. R. R. FARE PAID 200 FREE. Scholarships offered. Write quick to GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM H. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts.
Office at the Adams' place
CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN C. DENNIS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts.
CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. KNOX,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CLANTON, ALA.
Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama.

Dr. OTTO M. WISEHART,
DENTIST.
OFFICE HOURS. 9 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m.
Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS,
SPECIALIST
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
OFFICE 22 S. PERRY ST.
Office Hours: 9 to 12 and 2 to 4.
Telephone 404—2 Rings
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. N. S. JOHNSON
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at Olan on Drug Store CLANTON

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL,
JACKSONVILLE, ALA.

A school to prepare teachers. Demand for graduates greater than the supply. Board $8 per month up. Tuition free. Nineteenth year. Session begins Oct. 1, 1901. For catalogue address CLARENCE W. DAUGETTE, President.

E W Grove

This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL
PLANTERSVILLE, ALA.

Is a training and strictly private school for boys and girls.

Correlated to the University of Alabama and to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Has fitted more pupils for college, more pupils for teaching, more pupils for advanced business positions than all other schools in Chilton county combined. It is the only school in Chilton county whose pupils have a First Grade Certificate under the present school laws.

Its course of instruction is the best arranged, its methods the soundest, most thorough and up-to-date; its scholarship the most advanced; its location, buildings, grounds, furniture, equipments, the most attractive and best adapted of any school in Chilton county.

Its pupils enter any college in the South on certificate of the Principal. It deals honestly with the public, adheres to professional courtesy, and performs its promises. Its mission is to build up, not to pull down. It is not, as so many are, a mere common school called "College," "Normal," etc., by which misnomers the uninformed are mislead.

$101 pays all expenses of board, tuition, fuel, lights, etc., for session of nine months. School opens September 25, 1901. Write for catalogue. E. Y. MCMORRIES, Principal.

The Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE.
"BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE"
WALLACE C. EDLER, General Agent, Clanton, Ala.

CHILTON COUNTY BRANCH:

PRESIDENT: N. J. CALLOWAY, Clanton.
SEC.-TREAS.: P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

1. H. C. Young
2. Thomas Harrison
3. Alex Glasscock
4. A. J. Wilson
5. D. S. Robinson
6. A. T. Hathcock
7. C. J. Coburn
8. John R. Parnell
9. W. A. Mims

Insures Farmers' dwellings, outbuildings and contents, and Live stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning;—the cheapest, safest and most sensible method of insurance known to man.

AGENTS MUST HAVE A COMMISSION SIGNED BY THE GENERAL AGENT.

Full particulars furnished by the county Agent,
ALEX GLASSCOCK, Jemison, Ala.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

The spirit of democracy may be making great progress among the English people, as many assert, but the craving for orders and titles of nobility that pervades all ranks does not afford much evidence of the fact.

A San Francisco doctor has been honored by the French Academy of Medicine for the discovery of a new disease. This is wrong. Doctors who discover new diseases should not be encouraged. There are enough diseases now.

The Memphis Commercial-Appeal says that to solve the servant girl problem domestic service must be made more attractive. It must be elevated. The foolish prejudice that debases it should be destroyed. The gulf between mistress and maid must be closed or bridged.

The Boston Herald remarks that there never was a time when the nation was so actively engaged in carrying out the earnest counsel of Washington in the Farewell address: "Promote, then, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge."

The United States is the greatest food-producing country of the world. Although this country represents but one-fifth of the total civilized population of the world, it produces more than one-fourth of all foodstuffs. The United States produces 74,000,000 tons of grain of a total of 229,000,000, and 4,500,000 tons of meat of a total of 15,260,000 tons. The Americans also produce a large percentage of the dairy and fishery production of the world.

The bubonic plague is the most stubborn of epidemics. It seems to be almost impossible to exterminate this Black Death even with the utmost efforts of the ablest doctors. The dread of cholera and yellow fever has been much lessened in recent years, and the medical profession has fought valiantly and victoriously against many an infection and many a contagion. But this plague can not be annihilated as yet. Fortunately in these days it is not a grave menace to the great capitals of the world. But it is still a dread spectre in filthy quarters of cities, both of the Orient and the Occident, in which the conditions of clean and wholesome living are neglected.

It is an encouraging sign for the health of the modern American that the popularity of outdoor life in the United States seems to be increasing. The number and variety of sports and pastimes which allure to open air exertion has grown greatly. Not very many years have elapsed since the time when tennis and foot ball were unusual and golf and the bicycle were almost unknown. Yet the influence of these and other sports has been so strong in recent years that open-air life has come to be enjoyed for its own sake and apart from the amusements associated with it. It is a mistake to suppose that the pleasures of outdoor life are especial privileges of youth or of any given type of summer amusement seeker. The immense advantages they confer should be shared by all alike. In the present state of our society development they are among the richest of the blessings within the reach of the people.

Forty years ago 87 percent of the total amount of broad silk in the United States was imported; today the condition is reversed and, according to the latest official figures, 13 percent only is imported. Today the United States is the greatest silk producing country in the world, and it was less than two centuries ago that the industry was first dreamed of here. The quality is being steadily improved so that it promises to compare before many years with that of French manufacture. Italy stil produces the most beautiful fabrics, and because of the perfection attained must always be drawn on for the heavy satin damasks and other rich cloths. When the attempt was first made in this country to manufacture silk, only sewing-silks, handkerchiefs and the like were made. It is estimated now that one-third of the domestic output is ribbons, next in order come broad or web goods—as the material for dresses is called—silk thread, hand and machine twist, knitting, crochet, embroidery, art silks, and so on. The domestic manufacturers stand first in that branch of the business which includes the threads, and the exportations increase yearly, while there are no importations.

ROOSEVELT OUTLINES HIS POLICY.

Opposes Commercial War, for Reciprocity, Tariff Reduction, the Canal and International Arbitration.

President Roosevelt has outlined the policy he will follow. It will be remembered that when he took the oath of office he stated definitely: "It shall be my aim to continue absolutely unbroken the policies of President McKinley for the peace (and he emphasized that word) and prosperity of the country." The President collected some personal friends in Buffalo and cabinet members who were there and gave to them such ideas as he had formulated for the conduct of public affairs and his own policy. In no sense are they divergent from McKinley's policy. This, as outlined to his friends, will be: liberal and extensive reciprocity in purchase and sale of commodities, so that the overproduction of this country can be safely disposed of fairly and equitably with foreign countries; the abolition of international commercial war and the adoption of reciprocity treaties; the abolition of tariff on foreign goods no longer needed for revenue, if it can be had without harm to our industries and labor; establishment of direct commercial lines between the eastern coast of the United States and the ports in South America and the Pacific coast ports of Mexico, Central and South America; the encouraging of the merchant marine and the building of ships to fly the American flag and be owned and controlled by Americans and American capital; the building and completion as soon as possible of the Isthmian canal; the laying of a government cable to our foreign possessions, notably Hawaii and the Philippines; arbitration of disputes with foreign nations to avoid armed strife; the protection of the savings of the people in banks and in other forms of investments by preserving the commercial prosperity of the country and placing in positions of trust men of the highest integrity.

PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ISSUES A PROCLAMATION.

President Roosevelt's first act was the issuing of the following:

"By the President of the United States of America—Proclamation:

"A terrible bereavement has befallen our people. The President of the United States has been struck down; a crime committed not only against the chief magistrate, but against every law-abiding and liberty-loving citizen.

"President McKinley crowned a life of largest love for his fellow-men of most earnest endeavor for their welfare by a death of Christian fortitude; and both the way in which he lived his life, and the way in which, in the supreme hour of trial, he met his death, will remain forever a precious heritage of our people.

"It is meet that we as a nation, express our abiding love and reverence for his life, our deep sorrow for his untimely death.

"Now, then, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do appoint Thursday next, September 19, the day in which the body of the dead President will be laid in its last earthly resting place, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States. I earnestly recommend all the people to assemble on that day in their respective places of divine worship, there to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God and to pray out of full hearts their homage of love and reverence to the great and good President whose death has smitten the nation with bitter grief.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington, the fourteenth day of September, A. D., 1901, and of the independence of the United States the 126th.

(Seal) "THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"By the president:

"John Hay, Secretary of State."

A BRIEF SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

The man upon whom falls the mantle of state has been prominently before the American people during the last three years, and is the youngest man ever to fill the high position of chief executive. He is a descendant of sons of the South and traces his paternal ancestry back to Klaas Martensen Roosevelt, who emigrated to this country from Holland in 1649. On his mother's side he is a great-great grandchild of Georgia's first governor, Archibald Bullock, and also of Gen. Daniel Stewart, a Georgia revolutionary hero. Theodore Roosevelt was born in the city of New York October 27, 1858. He first became prominent in New York politics as an advocate of civil service reform. From 1882 to 1884 he was an assemblyman in the New York legislature and introduced the first civil service bill, passed in 1883, almost simultaneously with the passage of the celebrated measure in Congress. He advanced rapidly in political life and in 1884 was chairman of the New York delegation to the national republican convention. In 1889 President Harrison appointed him civil service commissioner and he served as chairman of the board until 1895.

In 1895 he resigned his position on the board of civil service commissioners to accept the presidency of the New York board of police commissioners. This he resigned in 1897 to become assistant secretary of the navy under McKinley. Shortly after assuming the duties of this office he asked for an appropriation of $800,000 for ammunition for target practice in the navy and this request being granted he asked for another of $500,000 which was also granted. Although doubts were entertained at first as to the wisdom of this measure, the assistant secretary's foresight was happily vindicated in the following year by the successful issue of the Spanish-American war, which turned largely upon the unerring skill of the American sailors in the handling of guns. It was he who suggested the appointment of Admiral, then Commodore Dewey, as commander of the Asiatic fleet, thus paving the way for the splendid victory at Manila.

HIS WAR RECORD.

In 1898, Roosevelt resigned his position as assistant secretary of the navy and undertook the organization of a regiment of western cowboys and hunters, subsequently known as the Rough Riders. In the engagements preceding the fall of Santiago, the Rough Riders took an important part and at the battle of San Juan, Roosevelt himself leading the charge, winning the admiration of his followers and plucking victory from the jaws of defeat. On July 11, 1898, he was commissioned colonel. He was elected governor of New York in 1898 and against his protest the nomination for vice-president under McKinley.

President Roosevelt is well known in literature being the author of several books. He is connected with various political, historical and literary organizations. He has been twice married, first to Miss Alice Lee, of Boston, who lived only two years after his marriage, leaving a daughter; and second to Miss Edith Carow, of New York, by whom he has six children, four of whom are sons. Colonel Roosevelt is singularly happy in his domestic life, and despite the demands of public office he never neglects those at home, but is tenderly thoughtful of them at all times.

TAKES THE OATH.

President Roosevelt took the oath at 3:30 p. m., Saturday, and said: "In this hour of deep national bereavement I wish to state that it shall be my aim to continue absolutely and without variance the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our beloved country."

The great, far-reaching significance of this pledge to continue the policy of the dead President announced at the very threshold of a new governmental regime profoundly impressed his hearers, and President Roosevelt's first step after taking the oath was in time with this redemption. His first act was to ask the members of the cabinet to retain their portfolios in order to enable him to conduct the government for a little time along the lines laid down by him whose policy he had declared he would uphold. Such an appeal was not to be resisted, and every member of the cabinet, including Secretary of State Hay and Secretary of the Treasury Gage, who were communicated with in Washington, have agreed for the present at least to retain their several portfolios.

BEFORE THE GRAND JURY.

The case of Leon Czolgosz, the assassin of the president, was presented to the grand jury Monday morning. Alexander H. Robertson, of the Pan-American police force, told the story of the circumstances of the tragedy. A true bill was found of murder in the first degree. The trial will begin on Monday next before Supreme Court Justice White.

ACCUSED IN SILENCE.

Czolgosz maintained absolute silence before Judge Emory Monday. He stubbornly refused to answer questions put to him. Judge Emory assigned Hon. Loran L. Lewis and Hon. Robert C. Titus, former Supreme Court justices, whose names had been suggested by the Erie County Bar association. Apparently the murderer feigned insanity and his glance roamed around but his big eyes were always downcast. Not once did he look the county prosecutor or the judge in the face. It is claimed that insanity will be the defense.

THE FUNERAL JOURNEY.

The body of the honored chief executive of the nation was borne away in sad splendor from Buffalo on Monday. Thousands watched the impressive procession. It was doubly impressive because of its lack of pomposness and because following close behind the body of the dead president was the successor to the title and the living change in the country's history.

Mrs. McKinley was not awakened until after 7 o'clock. She had not slept well, despite the fact that she is almost exhausted and Dr. Rixey had given her a sleeping potion. The first thing she asked was a repetition of the query of the last two days:

"When can I see the Major?"

Dr. Rixey told her that they were going to let her see him that day.

Mrs. William McKinley, robed in black, and supported by Abner McKinley on one side and Dr. Rixey on the other, was the central figure of the group. To the surprise of all she walked briskly, with her head quite erect, her face hidden behind her long black veil.

The train that bore the late president's body from Buffalo was a solid Pullman of seven cars, drawn by two locomotives. Crepe was draped from the two locomotives and from the rear of the observation car in which was the body, and the railings of the cars were shrouded in crepe. The only relief was in two tiny pilot flags of white on the leading locomotive. The entire route was lined with people. At stations the train slackened its speed and people could see the casket in the car as it passed. The train was smothered in flowers all along the route.

IN WASHINGTON.

Monday night the body of the dead executive rested in the East Room of the White House. The street were filled with mounted troops, the entire ceremonies being in recognition of the fact that the dead chief was the head of the government forces.

As the casket emerged from the observation car a bugle note rose clearly and "taps" rang out. That was the only sound that broke the dead silence. Just beyond the entrance to the station President Roosevelt with the members of the cabinet had paused and had taken station so as to leave a broad way for the cortege. They ranged themselves on the sidewalk in double rows opposite each other and stood with bared heads as the corpse was carried to the hearse and drawn up at the side of the gate. The hearse was drawn by six coal black horses each of which was led by a colored groom in black livery.

The military was already in line and Pennsylvania avenue was deeply hung in black, and the solemn procession moved up the historic thoroughfare in silence. A guard of the army, the navy, the G. A. R. and the Loyal Legion was placed at the bier and Washington and the nation slept.

Mrs. McKinley stood the trip bravely. In the morning soon after leaving Buffalo she pleaded so earnestly to be allowed to go into the car where her dear one lay that reluctant assent was given and she spent half an hour beside the coffin. All the way the train was preceded about fifteen minutes by a pilot engine sent ahead to test the bridges and switches and prevent the possibility of accident to the precious burden it carried. The train had the right of way over everything. Not a wheel moved on the system thirty minutes before the pilot engine was due or for the same length of time after the train had passed.

SERVICE AT WASHINGTON.

The program of the religious service held in the rotunda of the capital was announced by Commissioner McFarland as follows:

Hymn, "Lead Kindly Light."

Prayer by Rev. Henry R. Naylor, Presiding Elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C.

Hymn, "Sometime We'll Understand."

Address by Bishop Edward G. Andrews, D. D., of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee."

Benediction by Rev. W. H. Chapman, acting pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church.

The music will be furnished by the choir of the Metropolitan Church.

AT CANTON.

The funeral train is expected to reach the old home of McKinley just before noon of Wednesday. Just what will be done with the body between that hour and the church services at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon has not yet been officially announced beyond the fact that it will be at the McKinley home part of that time, in response to the wishes of Mrs. McKinley. At the church services Thursday afternoon Rev. Dr. C. F. Manchester will deliver a short address and the services will be brief. Afterwards a military and civic parade will escort the remains to West Lawn cemetery, where they will be deposited in the public receiving vault awaiting the preparation of a permanent resting place.

MEMORIAL SERVICES IN WESTMINSTER.

The United States Embassy learns that a memorial service in honor of the late President McKinley will be held in Westminster Abbey at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, at which seats will be reserved for members of the government and the diplomatic corps. Memorial service will also be held simultaneously at St. Paul's Cathedral, the lord mayor and the sheriffs of the city of London attending in state.

ARMY ORDER APPROVED.

Secretary Root has approved the order of the army announcing the death of President McKinley. It orders that:

At dawn thirteen guns will be fired at each military post, and afterwards at intervals of thirty minutes between the rising and setting sun a single gun, and at the close of the day the salute of the union of forty-five guns. The national flag will be displayed at half mast. On the 19th instant, the day of the funeral, all labor will be suspended at all military posts and stations and on all the public works under the direction of the department, and at noon twenty-one minute guns will be fired. The officers of the army will wear the usual badges of mourning. The following officers will compose the guard of honor and accompany the remains of their late commander-in-chief from the national capitol to Canton, O: Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles; Major Generals John R. Brooke, Elwell S. Otis and Arthur McArthur, and Brigadier General Joe L. Gillespie.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Hackett has issued an order to the navy directing the firing of half-hour guns and the half-masting of ensigns and union jacks.

Counsel for Admiral Schley express themselves as satisfied with Rear Admiral Frances M. Ramsey as a member of the court in the place of Rear Admiral Howison.

No summons has been issued by Judge Advocate Lemley for Rear Admiral Sampson, and unless something unforeseen occurs he will not call Admiral Sampson to Washington on his own initiative. Captain Lemley has issued very few summonses so far, and some of those already issued have been withdrawn. In addition he does not regard the testimony of Admiral Sampson necessary in this case. If Admiral Schley's counsel, however, care to call Admiral Sampson, the Judge Advocate will issue the summons, and his physical and mental condition will determine the character of his response.

The Secretary of the Treasury has given notice that he will receive and consider proposals for the sale to the government on account of the sinking fund, of 3 per cent bonds, loans of 1908–1918; 4 per cent bonds, funded loan of 1907, 4 per cent bonds, loan of 1925, and 5 per cent bonds, loan of 1904, to an amount not exceeding twenty million of dollars. He has also directed that internal revenue receipts be deposited with the national bank depositories up to the par value of all bonds deposited, including the 2 per cent bonds.

This will release about $5,000,000.

Admiral Ramsey, at one time chief of the bureau of navigation, has been selected as Howison's successor on the Schley court of inquiry.

CROLGOSZ THE ASSASSIN.

Very soon a supreme effort will be made to break through the shield of self-possession with which Assassin Czolgosz has protected himself since the day he shot the president. Old Paul Czolgosz will be taken to Buffalo by the police to aid them in their effort to solve the baffling story of the plot that killed McKinley. Interpreters unseen will make a record of every word that father and son utter and the interview will be arranged to make its dramatic effect upon the prisoner as intense as possible.

Paul Czolgosz has declared himself willing to go and do all in his power to make amends for the crime of his son. "I am ready to go with them whenever they come for me," he said through an interpreter. "I am willing to do what they want. I know I cannot save my boy, but I can help to make him tell what he ought to tell."

At 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning Superintendent of Police Bull gave notice that the prisoner assassin had been removed from the headquarters building. Superintendent Bull left the police headquarters before the statement was given out and could not be found afterward. Nothing is known as to where the prisoner is now confined. It is likely that Czolgosz is now in either the jail or penitentiary.

The assassin who plunged the world into sorrow will pay the penalty of his crime in the electric chair. Murder in the first degree will be the charge.

District Attorney Penny has prepared the complaint against Czolgosz and the case will be presented to the grand jury at once.

INCORPORATION papers are filed in the Secretary of State's office in Montgomery for the Bank of Louisville, Barber county. The bank begins its existence with a capital of $50,000. The incorporators are: Messrs. Charles Capel, F. B. Pierce, W. H. Pierce and H. C. Grey.

MOBILE'S street railway fight is over. The street railway company agrees to extend its lines, and to pay into the city treasury each year a percentage of its earnings. The city in return grants the company a franchise until March, 1955, and the use of certain streets.

LOOK INTO YOUR SAFE.

There was an old unused safe the property of the late Judge Coleman, stored in the back of cotton office of Ward & Dunlap, Eutaw. Mr. Dunlap had asked J. O. Banks, Jr., several times to move the safe out as it was in the way. Mr. Banks overlooked it. Messrs. Ward and Dunlap took action to open the safe and get out of old papers and other things that had been in the safe for some thirty-five years untouched. The key was found in one of the spittoon holes and in the sack full of bills.

TO CONTEST IT.

It now seems that the democrats who oppose the new constitution will contest it simultaneously with the issuing of proclamation by Governor Jelks for the election. The governor has fixed the date for about November [illegible]. The most prominent opponent is Jesse F. Stallings, [illegible] from the Montgomery district.

It is understood that Mr. [illegible] will lead the fight on the [illegible]. General Charles M. Shelley will be manager, with headquarters at Birmingham.

SAWED HIS WAY OUT.

James P. Keily, a self-confessed safe blower, who had been sentenced in Montgomery for some term, has been brought here from Birmingham charge of robbery, made his escape Friday afternoon during a heavy storm. Keily was confined in a cell and succeeded in sawing through the bolt that guarded his only window. How he got the tools is a mystery. The other prisoners in the same cell might have gone too but did not.

TENNESSEE COMPANY BUYS.

The officers of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company are now engaged in signing and selling new bonds for the $15,000,000 arranged several months ago. The reports in connection with the contemplated Tennessee Coal and Iron improvements is that plans are being drawn up for the erection of two new steel furnaces, which will double the capacity of the plant and place it in position to turn out over 2,000,000 tons of steel billets each day.

POSTMASTER C. B. NUTT

of Sterling postoffice, reports that he and the postoffice therein were totally destroyed by fire.

THE GREAT STEEL STRIKE.

The great steel strike, which began on June 30, was brought to an end by a conference held Saturday between the leaders of the Amalgamated Association and officers of subsidiary companies of the United States Steel Corporation. An agreement was reached under which the men will return to work in the mills. The settlement was made at the New York office of the American Tin Plate company, where the conference was held. The full terms of the settlement are not divulged, in accordance with an agreement between the parties to the conference that no statement would be made until President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association could arrive in order to the men to return to work. It was learned, however, from authoritative source that no concessions were made by the United States Steel Corporation.

FLORIDA'S SUPREME COURT.

The last legislature of Florida provided for a supreme court commission which has just begun work. It was created to assist the supreme court to catch up with its work, which is about four years behind. The members of the commissioners will be able to prepare opinions on cases assigned them and submit such opinions to the justices. If any two of them agree they will become the opinion of the court and judgment rendered accordingly. A constitutional amendment now pending provides for the increasing the number of justices to six.

THE G. A. R.

The thirteenth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, in Cleveland, came to a close amid silence and gloom. Because of the grave condition of the President a shadow over the proceedings. Torrance was elected commander-in-chief. Mrs. Carlista R. Dunham, of Bradford, Vt., was elected president of the Woman's Relief Corps by acclamation.

FIRE IN SALT LAKE.

Last Tuesday the offices of the Oregon Short Line railroad in Salt Lake City, were badly injured by fire. A small quantity of dynamite in the basement exploded and five men were injured. Nearly all the records of the road, including the original new Salt Lake–Los Angeles contract were lost. The new high-[illegible] slightly damaged. Loss [illegible]

PRESIDENT

He Succumbs to Bullet in Buffalo at Saturday M

The President, Aware of His App and Resigned, and Told Th

He Acquiesced Cheerful Will and Was Sure

dered For th

God's Will, Not Ours, B Words to His Faith

He Lost Consc

A NATION WEEPS

William McKinley, President of the United States, died at the home of John G. Milburn, in Buffalo, at 2:15 o'clock Saturday morning. The end was peaceful and painless. The President was conscious at intervals during the night. He called Mrs. McKinley and bade her an affectionate farewell, his last words being "It is God's way. His will be done." The relatives, members of the Cabinet and their friends were admitted to the room and took their leave of him several hours before the end.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The tragedy of the new century culminated at 2:15 o'clock on Saturday morning, when President McKinley peacefully passed away at the residence of John G. Milburn. Mrs. McKinley had retired to her room and was not with him at the end. His last conscious words reduced to writing by Dr. Mann, who stood at his bedside when they were uttered, were as follows:

"Good bye. All good bye. It is God's way. His will be done, not ours."

Those present at the time of the President's death were Secretary Cortelyou, Dr. Rixey, Mrs. and Miss Barber and Miss Duncan.

The announcement of the death to the members of the Cabinet was made by Webb Hayes, who said: "It is all over."

President McKinley's last conscious hour on earth was spent with his wife, for whom he devoted a life-time of care. He died unattended by a minister of the gospel, but his last words were a humble submission to the will of the God in Whom he believed. He was resigned to the cruel fate to which the assassin's bullet had condemned him, and faced death in the same spirit of calmness and poise which had marked his long and honorable career.

Mrs. McKinley last saw her husband between 11 and 12 o'clock. At that time she sat by the bedside, holding his hand. The members of the Cabi were admitted to the sick room singly at that time.

President McKinley's relatives and the members of his official family who were at the Milburn house, except Secretary Wilson, who did not avail himself of the opportunity, and some of his personal and political friends took leave of him. His friends came to the door of the sick room, took a long glance at him and turned tearfully away. He was practically unconscious during this time. But powerful heart stimulants, including oxygen, were employed to restore him to consciousness for his final parting with his wife. He asked for her, and she was at his side and held his hand. He kissed her and bade her good by. He went through the heart-trying scene with the same bravery and fortitude with which she has borne the brunt of the tragedy which ended his life.

At various times the President's

LOOK INTO YOUR SAFE.

There was an old unused safe ... the property of the late Judge W... Coleman, stored in the back of ... cotton office of Ward & Dunlap, ... Eutaw. Mr. Dunlap had asked ... J. O. Banks, Jr., several times ... move the safe out as it was in the ... way. Mr. Banks overlooked it ... Messrs. Ward and Dunlap took a ... tion to open the safe and get out a ... of old papers and other things ... had been in the safe for perhaps ... thirty-five years untouched. A ... sack was found in one of the pigeon-holes and in the sack $655 in ... bills.

TO CONTEST IT.

It now seems that the fight by dem... ocrats who oppose the ratification ... the new constitution will open ... in earnest by with the issue of a pro... nouncement by Governor Jelks calling ... the legislature. The governor will ... the late Grandest November 11. The ... most prominent opponent is Hon. ... Lasse F. Stallings, ex-congressman ... from the Montgomery district.

It is understood that Mr. Stallings ... will make the fight on the stump ... against Charles M. Shelley will be the ... manager, with headquarters at Birmingham.

SAWED HIS WAY OUT.

James P. Kelly, a self-confessed safe ... blower, who had been confined ... in Montgomery for some time, having ... been brought here from Marion, on ... charge of robbery, made his escape ... Friday afternoon during a heavy ... storm. Kelly was confined alone and ... succeeded in sawing through the bolts ... that guarded his only window. How he ... got the tools is a mystery. The ... other prisoners in the same corridor ... might have gone too but did not.

TENNESSEE COMPANY BONDS.

The officers of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company are now ... engaged in signing and sealing the ... new bonds for the $15,000,000 ... arranged several months ago. One of ... the reports in connection with the ... contemplated Tennessee Coal and Iron ... improvements is that plans are being ... drawn up for the erection of ten ... steel furnaces, which will double the ... capacity of the plant and place it in ... position to turn out over 2,000 tons ... steel billets each day.

POSTMASTER C. B. NUCKOLS ...

of Sterling postoffice, reports his ... and the postoffice therein totally ... stroyed by fire.

THE GREAT STEEL STRIKE.

The great steel strike, which began ... on June 30, was brought to an end ... a conference held Saturday between ... the leaders of the Amalgamated Association and officers of subsidiary companies of the United States Steel Corporation." An agreement was signed ... under which the men will return ... work in the mills. The announcement was made at the New York office of the American Tin Plate ... where the conference was held. ... ful terms of the settlement are ... divulged, in accordance with an agreement between the parties to the ... ference that no statement would ... made until President Shaffer of the ... Amalgamated Association issued an ... order to the men to return to ... It was learned, however, from ... thorative source that no concessions were made by the United States ... Corporation.

FLORIDA'S SUPREME COURT.

The last legislature of Florida ... vided for a supreme court commission ... which has just begun work. It was created to assist the supreme court ... catch up with its work, which is ... about four years behind. The ... of the commissioners will be to ... pare opinions on cases assigned ... and submit such opinions to the ... tices. If any two of them concur ... will become the opinion of the court ... and judgment rendered accordingly. A constitutional amendment ... pending provides for the increase ... the number of justices to six.

THE G. A. R.

The thirteenth annual encampment ... of the Grand Army of the Republic ... in Cleveland, came to a close ... amid silence and gloom. News ... grave condition of the president ... shadow over the proceedings. ... Torrance was elected commander-in-chief. Mrs. Carlista R. Jones ... Bradford, Vt., was elected president ... of the Woman's Relief corps by ... mation.

FIRE IN SALT LAKE CITY.

Last Tuesday the offices of the Oregon Short Line railroad, in Salt ... City, were badly injured by fire. A ... small quantity of dynamite in the ... basement exploded and five men were injured. Nearly all the ... of the road, including the ... new Salt Lake–Los Angeles ... were lost. The new high school ... slightly damaged. Loss about ...

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY DEAD

He Succumbs to the Assassin's Bullet in Buffalo at 2.15 O'clock Saturday Morning.

The President, Aware of His Approaching End, Was Calm and Resigned, and Told Those About Him That He Acquiesced Cheerfully in the Divine Will and Was Sure It Was Ordered For the Best.

"God's Will, Not Ours, Be Done," His Dying Words to His Faithful Wife Before He Lost Consciousness.

A NATION WEEPS AT HIS BIER.

William McKinley, President of the United States, died at the home of John G. Milburn, in Buffalo, at 2.15 o'clock Saturday morning. The end was peaceful and painless. The President was conscious at intervals during the night. He called for Mrs. McKinley and bade her an affectionate farewell, his last words being: "Nearer to God's way. His will be done." The members of the Cabinet and other friends were admitted to the room and took their leave of him several hours before the end.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The tragedy of the ... occurred at 2.15 o'clock ... when President McKinley finally passed away at the residence of John G. Milburn. Mrs. McKinley had retired to her room, ... at the end. His ... confined to writing. Dr. McBurney, who stood at his bedside, holding ... the President's death to the Cabinet." ... were uttered, were: "It is all ... good bye. It is ... will be done, not ... the time of the ... Secretary Cortelyou ... and Miss ... Duncan ... of the death to the Cabinet was made ... and: "It is all ... last conscious ... with his wife ... time of care ... a minister of ... words were a ... the will of the ... He was ... time to which ... condemned ... the same ... pose which ... and honorable ... husband ... At that ... side, holding ... the Cabinet.

The President breathed his last after a fight for life covering seven days. In all that time, although suffering intensely, he had manifested a magnificent courage. His soul was sustained through the dark hours by the sublimest Christain serenity. From the time when he was pierced by the assassin's bullet, when he said pityingly, referring to the assassin, "Let no one harm him," up to his last night, when he voiced his resignation to the inevitable to his devoted wife, every hour of suffering had been characterized by lofty Christian fortitude.

The sense of loss to the people of Buffalo and to the strangers within her gates is almost overpowering. The President came to this city to lend a neighborly hand in making the exposition a success. The assassin's bullet which struck him down in the Temple of Music was a blow felt throughout the length and breadth of the land, but it was perhaps more intensely felt by the people here. Every bulletin from the sickroom has been regarded almost as a personal message.

The scenes at the intersection of the streets, beyond which the unprivileged who wanted to get near the Milburn house could not pass, constituted in themselves a wonderful tribute to the stricken President, testifying to the supreme affection with which he was regarded. Men and women in every walk of life, schoolboys, with their natural boisterousness checked, and little children without knowledge of what the great tragedy meant, pressed against the rope barriers and waited with mute eloquence for any stray news which might drift to them from the sickroom. Far into the night they waited, and the places of those who went away were filled by others to whom sleep was impossible. When the end finally came, the effect was instantaneous. The pent up tears coursed down the faces of men and women alike. There were sobs and prayers for the stricken wife, followed by fierce condemnation for the assassin.

MRS. McKINLEY'S COURAGE.

When the Blow Came She Did Not Collapse—A Farewell Meeting.

Buffalo, N. Y.—In that unearthly light that surrounds a death bed with all its unearthly halo a soft radiance was cast upon a woman who stood bravely by the President from the sound of the first pistol shot to the hour of gathering gloom. It was her place, for she was his wife.

An invalid who not so long ago had been a short distance removed from death's door, weak, and with a perfect trust that whatever Providence might have in store was for the best, yet she leaned heavily on her husband, the Chief Executive of these United States. He was not the President to her, only husband.

When the blow came she did not collapse or grow ill or cry out. She asked meekly to be permitted to see her husband—that was all. They had been together long, and could look back through it all without one faint shadow over bright memories.

Mrs. McKinley slept well on the night preceding his death, and it was thought best not to interfere with her much-needed rest. But with the cold dampening of the President's brow the surgeons thought of another than their patient. Cabinet officers should know and statesmen ought to know, but the wife must know, of the inevitable.

It fell to the lot of Dr. Rixey to tell the whole truth. He went to her room and broke it as gently as death possibly can be spoken of. She did not falter, for away down in her woman's heart she had perhaps formed by intuition, guided by awful fear for a loved one, what the surgeons learned long after.

"May I see him?" she said simply, and a nod was the silent response.

Quietly, as if making her customary call at the bedside, she entered the room where there lay stretched all that she loved in life. He smiled up at her as he always did, and she bravely smiled back. Then she stooped and whispered a few words into his ear, and he smiled again and answered softly. Then she went away, turning at the door to smile again at her husband.

Then she went to her room alone.

There was no drive for her on the last day her husband was alive, it being thought best that she should not leave the house. Her women friends gathered beside her, but she had no heart to talk.

With the shadows of evening she heard again what she had been waiting for and knew would come. Her husband had been unconscious for many hours, but when he came back to earth for a short while his first request was for her. Again Dr. Rixey was the messenger.

Dr. McBurney was stooping over the couch when she entered the room, and a nurse stood by his side. They glanced around at her, then softly withdrew, but not before they saw there were no tears and nothing but a woman bidding a long farewell. Then the husband and wife were left alone for a few minutes, and then all in the household who should be there were called in.

THE HUNT FOR ROOSEVELT.

Guides Found Him on Mount Marcy—Special Train Took Him to Buffalo.

Albany, N. Y.—Away on the top of Mount Marcy, attired in full hunting costume and with his gun slung over his shoulder, Theodore Roosevelt was found, and informed by a haggard travel-stained guide that he was needed in Buffalo "immediately." That word of command was sufficient to tell him what the weary messenger could not.

"Immediately," and he started on the long walk of ten miles to the upper Tahawus Club house, ten miles from the top of Mount Marcy; "immediately," and it meant a drive of ten miles from there to the lower club house, and of thirty-five miles from there to North Creek, where a special train awaited him. Then came the long, roundabout run to Buffalo.

When news reached North Creek that Roosevelt's presence was demanded in Buffalo because of the serious turn that had been taken in the condition of the President, word immediately was sent to the lower club house, and thence to the upper, ten miles further in the mountains.

Every guide available, and every club member at once started out in a search that seemed hopeless, so great was the extent of territory to be covered. All were armed with guns and pistols, which they fired off at intervals to attract attention. Thus, with the cracking of pistols and the heavier reports of shotguns and the halloaing of "Roosevelt! Roosevelt! Roosevelt!" there began a remarkable hunt for the Vice-President to inform him that the head of the Nation was dying.

One by one the tired searchers returned, almost voiceless from incessant calling and with ammunition exhausted. One by one they reported their fruitless search by telephone to North Creek, where a special train, with engine with full steam up, lay panting in idleness all day.

About 5 o'clock p. m., an old guide found Roosevelt resting with his companions and counting their game. The old guide knew Roosevelt's favorite haunts and had piloted him there many times. He saved his lungs and ammunition until he began the long, weary ascent of Mount Marcy. Then he fired his shotgun at intervals of five minutes and halloaed until the woods rang.

For a long time nothing but echoes answered to "Roosevelt! Roosevelt! Roosevelt!" the name being flung back mockingly from the mountainside. Then, as he neared the top, there came from afar a faint "Halloa!"

Then his shots met answering firing and the lost was found, and the fateful message delivered to a white-lipped hunter. Then, forgetting all fatigue, Roosevelt and the guides started on a swinging walk to the upper club house, ten miles away.

The first message Roosevelt received gave no details, except that he was wanted. When he reached the upper club house, stained and worn, with even the hardy guides lagging far behind, messages were there awaiting him, and informing him that McKinley was dying. They had been brought by dripping horses urged to a dead run for ten miles from the lower club house, which is the only one in direct communication with the outer world.

This was shortly before 10 p. m. Again the foam-flecked horsees were lashed into a gallop, where fair roads permitted, and there began the wild ride for the lower club house, which was not reached until after midnight. More urgent messages awaited Roosevelt there. The worn out horses were changed for a swift, fresh team, and with a good driver he started on the weary drive of thirty-five miles from the club house to North Creek.

SENATOR HANNA PROSTRATED.

Overcome by His Last Look at His Dying Friend, the President.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Senator Hanna, Colonel Myron T. Herrick and Secretaries Wilson and Hitchcock were at the Milburn house awaiting news of the sinking President early Friday evening.

Dr. Rixey, knowing Senator Hanna's longing to see the President alive, told the four men that they might go into his bedroom for a few minutes. Senator Hanna no sooner looked at the pain marked face of his friend than he burst into tears, and would have fallen to the floor but for Secretary Wilson and Colonel Herrick. He was led from the room, soothed and soon regained control of himself. Then he said:

"I'm all right now. I'm all right again. I must go in and see him again."

His request for another look was granted. He stood a few feet from the bedside and looked again at the unconscious President. Suddenly Senator Hanna dropped to his knees at the bedside, and peering into the President's unresponsive face, said in tones that never will be forgotten by those within earshot:

MILBURN HOUSE,
Where the President died.

"Mr. President, Mr. President, can't you see me? Don't you know me?"

There was no response and the stillness became painful as Senator Hanna exclaimed:

"William, William, speak to me."

The President seemed at first to remember the familiar voice, but no permanent look of recognition came into his eyes.

Colonel Herrick went to Senator Hanna, raised him from the floor and supported him as he led him away.

Senator Hanna became so ill that one of the physicians was called on to attend him and Mrs. Hanna was sent for. The Senator is ill with prostration.

WHY DOCTORS GAVE SOLID FOOD.

Prescribed For the President to Relieve the Coating on His Tongue.

Buffalo, N. Y.—A surgeon who attended President McKinley was told that many persons were criticizing the surgeons for having permitted the President to eat toast, because there was a general belief, among laymen at any rate, that toast was a substance that would be gritty and tend to irritate the weakened stomach.

"I knew we would be criticized, and bitterly, whenever a change for the worse appeared in the President's condition, no matter what we did," he said. "People cannot be altogether reasonable at such a time and in such matter as this, and we are too human ourselves to expect them to be. But about the toast."

The physician held out his index finger and the one next to it and crossed them just below the nail of the index finger.

"There," he said, "that is as large as the piece of toast the President had and it was very thin, much thinner by half than are my fingers. He merely nibbled at the toast. He had hardly a mouthful of it, not a mouthful of not half a bite altogether. It was given him not so much as food but because there seemed to be no better way of removing the heavy coating on his tongue and the inside of his mouth. The coating was very disagreeable to him and was endangering his comfort."

DR. M. D. MANN,
Who performed the operation.

The surgeon added that of all of the troubles of the surgeons of the last twenty-four hours, none was more distressing to them than the way the President's heart acted. Some people have said that the President had a "tobacco heart." This description has not satisfied the physicians. They did not understand the causes which influenced the action of the heart and it was impossible to treat conditions which had symptoms that they could not understand.

WILLIAM McKINLEY'S CAREER.

He Rose From Lowly Origin to Position of Greatest Honor.

WILLIAM McKINLEY.

Born at Niles, Ohio, 1843.
Enlisted as private, 1861.
Mustered out as brevet major, 1865.
Admitted to the bar, 1867.
Elected prosecuting attorney, 1869.
Married, 1871.
Elected to Congress, 1876.
Member of ways and means committee, 1880.
Chairman of ways and means committee, 1889.
McKinley tariff enacted, 1890.
Elected Governor of Ohio, 1891.
Re-elected Governor, 1893.
Elected President, 1896.
Re-elected President, 1900.

William McKinley, soldier, statesman and President, will go down in history as an American of the highest type. In personality and achievement his career embodied those qualities and triumphs that constitute the choicest fruits of Americanism. Of humble birth and reared among a simple folk, he rose steadily by his own efforts to the proudest position open to men, and throughout his progress his manhood remained unsullied by a single blemish.

William McKinley was born at Niles, Ohio, January 29, 1843. His ancestry is generally classed as Scotch-Irish, but there were in it strains of German and English blood.

Niles in 1843 was one of the smallest towns in Ohio, little more than a trading place for neighboring farmers. Wishing to give their large family of children better educational facilities, the father and mother decided to move to Poland, which boasted of an academy. During this period at Poland young McKinley studied at the academy, led the village debating society, often relieved the postmaster, tried his ability as a teacher, and was marked as the most promising boy of the community. It was there in 1858 that he became a member of the Methodist Church, a connection that he has maintained throughout life.

He went from his schoolmaster's desk into the army. He was but a boy of eighteen, but he had learned his duty at the hearthstone. When there was a call for volunteers young McKinley was one of the first to enlist. He entered Company E of the Twenty-third Ohio Infantry as a private, and he soon saw active service. For fourteen months he trudged in the ranks, and he was singled out for commissary sergeant. He displayed such conspicuous gallantry at Antietam as to attract the notice of his superiors and win a commission as second lieutenant. McKinley's regiment saw much fighting in the eastern campaigns. He was promoted to first lieutenant and captain, and in 1864 was brevetted major by President Lincoln "for gallant and meritorious services at the battles of Opequan, Cedar Creek and Fisher's Hill."

He was tempted to remain in the army, but at the request of his father he decided to return to civil life, and was mustered out in September, 1865. He was then in his twenty-third year. Returning to Poland he took up the study of law, and soon afterward went to a law college at Albany, N. Y., for a two year course. He was admitted to the bar in 1867. He was then a poor young man of twenty-four, with no resources but his native pluck and ability. Seeking a larger field of action than Poland offered he settled in Canton, Stark County, Ohio.

McKinley's first case was a suit for replevin. The young lawyer scored a victory and earned a fee of $25. He proved to be a man of so much force that he soon impressed himself on the community, and after his arrival at Canton he became the Republican candidate for prosecuting attorney. The county had always been so hopelessly Democratic that Republican nominations were empty honors, but he made a vigorous canvass and surprised old politicians by winning. He was a candidate for re-election, and was defeated by only forty-five votes.

Returning to legal practice, Major McKinley continued in private life until 1876, when he became a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress. He carried every township but one in his county against strong opposition. He was almost as popular in the other counties of the district, and got his nomination on the first ballot.

Congressman McKinley held his place in the National Legislature for fourteen years. In 1878 he was put into a district with an apparent majority against him of 1800, but he carried it by 1300. Six years later he turned a supposed majority of 1500 into a victory with 1500 votes to spare.

In 1880 he ran in a district that had given the Democrats a majority of 2900 the year before. It was a political combat which has been compared to that fought out between Lincoln and Douglas in Illinois.

McKinley was a candidate against Thomas B. Reed in 1889 for the Speakership of the House, but fate, wiser than he, reserved him for the Chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee, the second highest place, and sometimes the first, in the House. It was thus that the way was paved for the McKinley tariff bill of 1890.

McKinley was an important factor in the National Convention of 1884.

Four years later at Minneapolis he was a Harrison delegate. Ohio tried to start a McKinley stampede by casting its vote for him, but he arose from the chair, for he was presiding, and challenged the vote, leaving no doubt of his loyalty to his pledge. After his defeat for Congress in 1890 he was nominated for Governor of Ohio the following year. He was elected and re-elected in 1893. The Presidential nomination came to him in 1896. The campaign of that year was one of the most hotly contested in the political history of the nation.

President McKinley's career since taking possession of the executive mansion in Washington is so recent that its incidents are fresh in the memory. He has had to face great problems and grave emergencies. With his entrance into the White House the United States entered upon an era of industrial growth and prosperity.

The President's conduct of the war with Spain shed new lustre on our arms and our diplomacy. It carried the country to a victory unmarred by a defeat. It raised the United States in the estimation of the world, removed the last barrier between North and South and opened the way to new triumphs in the walks of peace.

In his last address, which he delivered on President's Day at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, President McKinley pointed the way to new triumphs in the arts of peace by the construction of the Isthmian canal and the adoption of reciprocity treaties. In a speech breathing good will to all men, and bristling with the epigrammatic phrases for which he is noted, he voiced a national policy which will have little opposition. His has been a noble career, full of mighty achievements and unmarred by a blemish.

Excitement in Buffalo.

Great crowds assembled in the streets in the business centres of Buffalo at the announcement that President McKinley was dead. Mounted police charged their horses through the crowds and dispersed them.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

THE copies of the new Constitution have not yet come to hand, but we have every reason to believe we shall be able to send them out to our readers as a supplement to our next issue.

As we go to press we have received notification that Hon. Jesse Stallings will speak against the ratification of the proposed new Constitution at Clanton, Saturday, Sept. 28, at 10 a.m., and at Jemison the same night. Everybody is invited, especially the ladies.

COL. J. M. FALKNER is being prominently mentioned for the vice presidency of the Louisville & Nashville railroad company. The Colonel's great popularity would render this appointment a most agreeable one to the public, and we hope to soon record it as an accomplished fact.

THE DEATH OF PRESIDENT McKINLEY.

WITH profoundest grief, early last Saturday morning, the world learned that President McKinley had succumbed to the wounds inflicted by the dastardly assassin Czolgosz. For several days innumerable prayers from all over the civilized world had ascended to the throne of grace asking that the life of our President might yet be spared for the good of humanity and civilization. But "He who doeth all things well," decided that President McKinley's work on earth was done, and we can only bow in submission to His will. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away."

President McKinley had endeared himself to the American people, and the whole world recognized in him a man whose aim was to do right, and that the elect of the American people was a man to be trusted.

OPENING OF THORSBY NORMAL SCHOOL

Thorsby celebrated the opening of the Normal School on Monday last. The elegant building was much admired by the visitors, the large hall, the finest in the county, in which the exercises were held, coming in for many eulogistic remarks. 136 students were enrolled, 48 of whom were from outside of Thorsby.

Prof. Rasco introduced Judge Adams, who made an interesting speech on education. A few remarks were made by Frank Crichton, and Prof. Carmichael impressed the audience with an earnest speech.

The opening was a grand success and the Normal School starts off with every prospect of success.

On Friday night, September 20, at 7:30 o'clock, the public is invited to the dedication ceremonies of the school, when the following program has been arranged:

Introduction . . . . . Prof. Rasco
Invocation . . . . . Judge Adams
Welcome Address . . Mayor Faegre
Song . . . . . "America"
Remarks . . . . . Prof. Rasco
Music . . . . . Band
Remarks . . . . . Frank Crichton
Mandolin . . . . . Miss Fors
Remarks . . . . . Mr. Engh
Music . . . . . Miss Strock
Remarks . . . . . Rev. F. M. Woods
Graphophone . . . . . S. A. Thorson
Cornet Solo . . . . . Vance McManus
Remarks . . . . . Prof. Carmichael
Song . . . . . Miss Carrie McManus
Music . . . . . Band

The Best Prescription for Malaria

Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price 50c.

CORRESPONDENCE.

(continued from 1st col. page 4)

worse than the old. If the new is adopted every man in Alabama will be disfranchised, and his right to vote will depend upon the good graces of the three registers appointed to pass on the qualifications of every voter, and it is left with them to say what evidence will be required to establish one's right to vote—there is no rule laid down for them to go by, even under the soldier clause they could require such strong proof that many soldiers would be disfranchised, and nearly every strong lawyer in the convention declared that clause was unconstitutional, and if it is, then the old soldier that has not got the required education or property will have to stand aside and see the negro that comes up to requirements take his ballot and vote. As I have often said I do not believe that manhood should be measured by the amount of property one owns. And look for one moment at the kind of property qualifications there is in the new constitution. It requires $300 real estate or $300 personal property. You see at once the unfairness in this provision. How many white men in Chilton are there that have $300 of personal property? Leaving out the business and public men I do not believe there is five men in Chilton that could meet this requirement, but is a special provision to get in the negro in the black belt. He is the only man in Alabama that this special provision will help. He buys mules and wagons on a credit in the spring; while he owes for them, yet under this provision he can vote. At the last moment I offered an amendment providing that the owner of $300 of property could vote and the convention after some preliminary adopted the change or amendment by a vote of 90 to 30. But when Judge Coleman and two or three of the other bosses got the delegation out and caucussed with them, the convention reconsidered the amendment and let the provision stand just as it is. There never was anything more unfair on earth. Suppose there were three sons, one had 40 acres of land on which he lived that was worth $20, he could vote, and the second had 39 acres worth $299, also had $299 worth of stock, he could not vote, suppose the third had a house and lot worth $299 and a stock of goods worth $299, he could not vote. Now, of course these are extreme cases, but are true. Here are two brothers worth $598 and cannot vote: one brother worth $20 and vote. I charged openly in the convention that this was a special provision for the black belt and no one denied it. I asked Judge Coleman who it benefited and what it was in the report for, and he said he would not give out any information to me unless I would promise to help ratify the constitution, and of course I would not do this. So he would not tell me what it was intended for.

Now, as I said in the outset, I would not undertake to mention all the objections I had. I think it bad policy to create 238 new places for lawyers at the expense of the taxpayers of Alabama, etc. But after the whole thing was passed I did not believe that the white men of Alabama wanted any such constitution, and I presented a plan to first have the constitution submitted to the white people in a primary; it was carried to the clerk's desk, but when it was ascertained what the provision was you never saw such a stir in your life. As I had given notice that I would move to suspend the rules and put the resolution on its passage. Yes, whenever you mention the white voters to the Democratic party you scare them into fits. The politicians of the convention would run mad if the ratification of the new constitution was to be submitted to the white voters; and while the clerk still held my plan for a white primary, the politicians run over the convention and told the members what it was, and the convention refused to even let it be read. A very prominent Democrat moved that I be permitted to put the resolution in, but after he found out what it was withdrew his motion; then I made the move myself, and 59 for it and 38 against it, and the President ruled it required a suspension of the rules which to do this required a two-thirds vote, and he declared the motion lost. I did not sign the new constitution, though a resolution was passed that signing it was not an endorsement but a mere attestation, but I preferred not to have my name attached to it. As is well known, I have been opposed to a convention—have done all I could against it, and if there is any glory in it now I am willing for the other fellow to have it. I hope, however, to be able at some future day to express my views to the public on this question, and I would especially urge every voter in Chilton to read every provision of the suffrage article for himself. You will find it in the last week's Banner, file it away and keep it and compare the new with the old, and remember under the old every man that has not committed a crime can walk up to the polls and vote without being questioned by three political bosses. But if the new is adopted you must get permission from the three kings, who would have the right to say you shall or shall not—just as they please. I hope all free thinking men will consider where we are drifting. Every time there is a change made it strikes at the poor man.

A few years back every man could take his ticket in his pocket to the election and vote it whether he had property or could read or not. Then the law was changed—not to help the uneducated—but to confuse him. And now he has to have a helper, and if the new is adopted he will be left out altogether. And the next time God only knows what the change will be, but you may rest assured rights taken from a people are seldom, if ever restored. I hope the new constitution will not be adopted, and I am sure it will not be if there is a fair election.

Very respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

TUSKEGEE, ALA., July 28, 1878

Dr. C. J. MOFFETT—My Dear Sir: Justice to you demands that I should give you my experience with your excellent medicine, TEETHINA. Our little girl, just thirteen months old, has had much trouble teething. Every remedy was exhausted in the shape of prescriptions from family physicians. Her bowels continued to pass off pure blood and burning fever continued for days at a time. Her life was almost despaired of. Her mother determined to try TEETHINA, and in a day or two there was a great change—new life had returned—the bowels were regular, and thanks to TEETHINA, the little babe is now doing well. Yours, etc.

D. W. McIVER,
Editor and Proprietor Tuskegee (Ala.) News.

PROGRAM

Of the 75th Anniversary and Minister's and Deacon's Meeting of the Ebenezer Baptist church, to be held at Stanton, Ala., September 27, 28, and 29, 1901:

FRIDAY.

9:30 a.m. Prayer and song service.
10. Welcome address and responses.
11. Sermon. "The feet-washing scene." A. J. Dickinson.
2:30 p.m. Prayer and song service.
3. "The pastor and his Bible." A. J. Dickinson.
4. Question box.
7. Prayer and song service.
7:30. "The sermon: Its object, nature, power, etc." F. M. Woods
8. Sermon, "Giving the first law of Christ's Kingdom" J. E. Barnes.

SATURDAY.

9 a.m. Prayer and song service.
9:30. "How to preach with power." A. J. Dickinson
10. "A sketch of Ebenezer Baptist church." W. O. Perry.
11. Sermon, "Soul-winning for Christ." P. V. Romar.
2:30 p.m. Prayer and song service.
3. "What the world owes the Baptists" J. E. Barnes.
4. "Why Baptists should teach their distinctive doctrines." W. J. Ruddick.
4:30. "What Baptist young people can do for Christ." A. J. Preston.
7. Prayer and song service.
7:30. "Does God require all Christian men to pray publicly." W. H. Connell.
8. Sermon, by A. J. Preston.

SUNDAY.

9 a.m. Prayer and song service.
9:30. "What the world owes the Missionaries." J. E. Barnes.
10. "Christianity essentially missionary." W. H. Connell.
10:30. "The Sunday-school as a church and missionary agency." A. J. Preston.
11. Missionary sermon by F. M. Woods.
2:30 p.m. Prayer and song service.
3. "The need of foreign mission work as seen by an eye witness." T. U. Crumpton.
3:30. Reflex influence of foreign mission work on the home churches. F. M. Woods.
4. What Baptist missionaries are doing for the world to-day. J. E. Barnes.
7. Prayer and song service.
7:30. "The layman and his Bible." P. V. Romar.
8. Sermon. "The three R's." Issac Windsor.

The public is cordially invited. All visitors will be cared for.

P. G. MAHAFFEY, Pastor.

TAX NOTICE.

ASSESSOR'S & COLLECTOR'S First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of assessing the State and County Taxes of Chilton County for the year 1902, and collecting the taxes for the year 1901.

			1901
Pletcher	Beat 8	Oct.	1
Stanton	" 8	"	2
Dixie	" 8	"	3
Shoults	" 7	"	4
Maplesville	" 7	"	5
Benson	" 3	"	7
Macedonia	" 3	"	8
Providence	" 2	"	9
Jemison	" 2	"	10
Mineral Springs	" 1	"	11
Strasburg	" 9	"	12
Clanton	" 4	"	14
Cooper	" 5	"	15
Verbena	" 5	"	16
Kincheon	" 6	"	17

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished, when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager, 216 Caxton Building, Chicago.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.
"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the affected parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "NUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use

"NUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"NUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "NUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C 985 RUPKIN & GILES & COMPANY, 2030 and 2032 Market Street, Philadelphia.

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Clanton Drug Co.

REMOVAL SALE

EVERYTHING GOES
PRICES AWAY DOWN
BARGAINS IN ALL LINES

We move into our new building September 1, we don't mind moving ourselves and our clerks, but we want you to come in and move our goods to your homes, then we won't have much moving to do.

REMOVAL SALE NOW ON

W. H. SARTOR
CLANTON

We will move October 1st to 2012 First Ave.
EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES
J. Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Quart
COLLIER DRUG CO.,
THE CUT RATE DRUG STORE
BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

West End Store
For the convenience of the people in this part I have opened a store at my place one mile west of town, and have a full line of
General Merchandise
AND A COMPLETE LINE OF
Dry Goods, Hats, Shoes, Notions
CHOICE GROCERIES
W. A. KEMP, Clanton, Ala.

C. W. WILSON
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
Fancy Groceries a Specialty
CLANTON

THORSBY NORMAL SCHOOL
A SCHOOL OF INDEPENDENT NORMALISM. OF THE SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS.
THOROUGH, PRACTICAL, MORAL AND NON-SECTARIAN.

Economy taught and practiced. We court investigation, and shall be glad to have anyone, at any time, examine into the merits of our work.

One of the best equipped schools of the State. The Main Building is a beautiful two-story structure of fifteen rooms. The Dormitory is an excellent three-story structure well suited to the purposes for which it is used. The Library consists of more than a thousand volumes.

BOARD, $6.50 TO $8.00 PER MONTH.
TUITION, $1.50 TO $3.50 PER MONTH.

It is our purpose to build up and to lend a hand to helping other institutions throughout the State in elevating the youth to a higher standard of citizenship.

For catalogue or further information, address
RASCO & CARMICHAEL, Thorsby, Ala.

TOWN ITEMS

[illegible] Court House [illegible] First Monday in [illegible] Monday in [illegible] and third Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART

Price to-day 7 3/4 @ 7½ cents.

[illegible] same date last year 9.50 cts.

[illegible] received to date, 1901 [illegible] 1900

Pinckard & Co	110	150
Phillips	3	24
Wilson	3	24
Sewell	[illegible]	[illegible]
Total	25[illegible]	[illegible]

We are in the market buying Cotton Seed, paying the best market price.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

BRICK for sale $6 and $7 per M. F. E. Woodward, Clanton.

Prof. J. M. Calloway and wife, Mrs. D. J. M. Foster of Wetumpka, and Mrs. H. A. Taylor of Birmingham, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. Smith.

Mrs. G. L. Philips is now established in her new brick store with a beautiful line of Fall goods. Call and examine her stock before buying elsewhere.

Teuro's store will be closed Monday on account of Jewish holiday.

Mrs. J. M. Potts and Miss Em have returned from Virginia, accompanied by Mrs. Williams, sister of the former, who has lost her husband recently.

Miss Lulie Watts of Birmingham is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. Sartor.

Sister Sartor Stewart of Birmingham is visiting relatives in Clanton.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. N. Watts, Sept. 17, a bouncing boy.

Misses Hoppa Stanley, Annie Lois and Olive Gullahorn, left for Montevallo Monday to enter Girl's Industrial School.

Mrs. Charley Duncan of Nashville is visiting her sister, Mrs. Stewart.

Judge Adams is conducting a protracted meeting at New Salem this week.

Mrs. T. E. Evans and children of Birmingham are visiting relatives and friends in Clanton.

We are in the market buying Seed and Cotton Seed, paying the best market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Miss Jessie Allen of Oxford has accepted position as music teacher in Clanton High School.

Mrs. Dr. Stewart has returned home after having attended her daughters, Misses Allee and Essie Lee, to college at Loretto, Ky.

We are in the market buying Seed and Cotton Seed, paying the best market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Rev. Mr. Johnson of Oxford, preached at the Baptist church Sunday morning and night.

Miss Mattie Edwards of Pratt City was a visitor here Wednesday.

Miss Belle Jones of Lily is visiting Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Jones.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's ad in this paper. He has earth, a branch office at Clanton, will stay and a week here every month. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in future. Well may fare one way those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done, 1218 2d ave., between 2d and 3d aves., Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Letters of [illegible] have been issued by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

J. A. Davis and Miss A. B. [illegible]
Mr. H. H. Luther and Willie Keplinger.

Blood Death Off.

[illegible] Monday, a lawyer of Henderson, Tex., once fooled a grave-yard. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to use Electric Bitters, and he was much better, but continued use until he was wholly cured. Sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digesition, cures liver, kidneys and bowels; cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Clanton drug store.

AL SALE

S

Y DOWN

AINS IN ALL LINES

our new building
don't mind mov-
our clerks, but me to and move
r homes, then we moving to do

ALE NOW ON

SARTOR

CLANTON

ctober 1st
First Ave.

AT CUT PRICES

Virginia Rye 75c Per Quart

DRUG CO.,

T RATE DRUG STORE

LA M, · ALA.

End Store

people in this part I have opened up t of town, and have a fine stock of

Merchandise

WELL LINE OF

s, Shoes, Notions,

GROCERIES

EMP, Clanton, Ala.

WILSON

ALER IN—

ERCHANDISE

ries a Specialty

CLANTON

ORMAL SCHOOL

NDENT NORMALISM, OF T
DEPARTMENTS.
MORAL AND NON-SECTARIAN.

ructed. We court investigation, a
, at any time, examine into the m schools of the State. The Main B tructure of fifteen rooms. The L ree-story structure well suited to

The Library consists of more than

TO $8.00 PER MONTH.
50 TO $3.50 PER MONTH.
d up and to lend a hand in helping tate in elevating the youth to a hig

information, address
& CARMICHAEL, THORSBY, ALA.

TOWN ITEMS

[illegible] court [illegible] Monday in [illegible] November.

CLANTON COTTON MART

Close to date [illegible] 7¾ cents.
Same date last year 9.80 cts

	1901	1900
Receipts last week	127	314
Shipped [illegible]	110	160
Sold to [illegible]	5	24
Sold to [illegible]	3	24
Stock	250	526

We are [illegible] market buying [illegible] seed, paying highest market price.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

BRICK [illegible] $6 and $7 per [illegible] F. E. W[illegible], Clanton.

[illegible] and wife [illegible] M. Boyd of Weo[illegible] Mrs. [illegible] A. Taylor of [illegible] visiting Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Smith.

Mr. L. Phelps is now es[illegible] new brick store [illegible] Fall mill[illegible] examine her stock [illegible] before pur[illegible]

[illegible] will be closed [illegible] of Jewish [illegible]

Mr. [illegible] and Miss Em[illegible] return home Virginia, [illegible] Mrs. Williams, [illegible] who has lost [illegible]

Mrs. [illegible] Watts of Birming[illegible] visiting her sister, Mrs. W. [illegible]

Master Sartor Stewart of Bir[illegible] visiting relatives in [illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. N. Watts, [illegible] a young boy.

Misses Hoppa Stanley, Annie [illegible] and Omie Gulliahorn, left [illegible] Monday to enter [illegible] School.

Mr. Charley Duncan of Nash[illegible] visiting her sister, Mrs. [illegible]

Judge Adams is conducting a [illegible] meeting at New Salem [illegible]

Mr. F. E. Evans and children [illegible] are visiting relatives and friends in Clanton.

We are in the market buying [illegible] and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Miss Jessie Allen of Oxford has [illegible] position as music teacher [illegible] Clanton High School.

Mrs. Dr. Stewart has returned [illegible] after having attended her [illegible] Misses Allee and Essie [illegible] to college at Loretto, Ky.

We are in the market buying [illegible] and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Mr. Johnson of Oxford, [illegible] at the Baptist church [illegible] morning and night.

Miss Mattie Edwards of Pratt [illegible] was a visitor here Wednes[illegible]

Mrs. Belle Jones of Lily is visit[illegible] Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Jones.

[illegible] for Dr. A. J. Massey's [illegible] in his paper. He has estab[illegible] a branch office at Clanton, [illegible] will be a week here every [illegible] thanking the peo[illegible] of Chilton county for past pat[illegible] he will appreciate same in [illegible] future. We may take one way [illegible] going to his office in Bir[illegible] have their dental [illegible] visit at between [illegible] and 25 states Birmingham.

[illegible] Deeds, Mortgage [illegible] Notes, Receipt [illegible] on sale at The Banner of[illegible]

[illegible] have been issued [illegible] the Probate Judge to [illegible] persons:
[illegible] A. Ayers and Miss A. B. [illegible]
[illegible] H. Luther and [illegible] Willie Kessinger.

Blood Death Off.

[illegible] B. Murphy, a lawyer of Hen[illegible] Tex., [illegible] a grave[illegible] he says: "My brother [illegible] with malarial fever [illegible] I persuaded him [illegible] Electric Bitters, and he was [illegible] Bitters continued [illegible] was wholly cured. [illegible] Bitters saved [illegible] remedy expels [illegible] germs and [illegible] liver, [illegible] ar's digestion, [illegible] and bow[illegible] constipation, dyspepsia, [illegible] sick headache, kidney troubles, [illegible] Only 50c at Clanton drug [illegible]

NOW!

Our Mr. Pinckard has just returned from the East, where he purchased our Fall Stock, securing many fine grades of goods.

We must make room for these new goods, so NOW is your chance. We will show you great bargains; call and see us.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

FIRE! FIRE!

GREAT SACRIFICE SALE!

Goods damaged by removal must be sold at any price.

This is Your Great Opportunity.

All these goods are good as new, they were only slightly damaged by removal; the fire did not reach my store, but all the stock was removed.

Calicoes from 3 and 4 cents. Lawns from 4 cts.
Ladies' Hats 50 cents on the $1.
Men's and Children's Straw Hats 50 c on $1.
Clothing at half price.
Shoes at half price.
Big line of Umbrellas.
Embroidery 4 cents.

I have a big stock and it must positively be sold. Come in and see for yourselves and pick out your own bargains. You have never seen such values before. Respectfully,

H. TOURO, Clanton

C. R. MULLINS

REPRESENTS THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEWARK, N. J., AND SEVERAL LEADING FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

and will insure your lives and property at lowest current rates.

I also wish to state that I am getting in my Fall stock of the Latest Improved High arm SINGER MACHINES, and I have my office full of second hand machines of different kinds, all in good running order, that I will sell cheap for cash or trade for produce, most any old way and at any old price. I must have the room for my new stock which will arrive about September 1st.

Also have on sale at my office the latest improved SMOOTHING IRON with Plater combined.

NEEDLES, OIL, BANDS, CANS, ETC.

Regular office days Saturday and Monday.

C. R. MULLINS, Agent, Singer Office, Clanton.

REYNOLDS BROS.,

—DEALERS IN—

...General Merchandise...

COTTON BUYERS.
JEMISON, ALA.

Owing to a change in our business we are going to sell our entire stock at prices that will alarm you.

10 lbs. Good Coffee		$1.00
18 lbs. Sugar		1.00
Success Soda	per pound	4
Men's Oil Grained Best Grade Shoes		1.25
Women's Oil and Glove Grained Shoes—Button or Lace—Best on Earth	only	1.00
1 lb. Schnapps, Red Apple, Red Rabbit, and Early Bird Tobacco		32
Calico	per yard	5
Cotton Checks	per yard	5.
Good Suit Clothes	only	4.00
Good Family Flour		3.25

Remember the old adage: "Make hay while the sun shines," and get your share of these goods.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR
BEEF CATTLE AND COTTON SEED

This is Spot Cash. Do not ask to have them charged, as you will be denied.

REYNOLDS BROS.

NEW ROYAL

HIGH ARM. LIGHT RUNNING
WARRANTED TENYEARS.
FIVE DRAWER $32.

The New Royal is not a cheap machine, but a high-class machine made out of good material, all parts adjustable and ball-bearing; has a good set of steel attachments and all of them work well.

I will exchange the New Royal for old machines and allow the full value of the old machine. Come and see me. I can sell you a machine as cheap as you can buy in Clanton.

Some secondhand machines from $1 up. Send me 25 cents in silver or stamps and an old needle for sample and I will send you 1 doz. needles to fit your machine.

REPAIR WORK GUARANTEED.

L. D. POPWELL,
CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is absolutely guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skillful physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2380 and 2382 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

THE
VITAE ORE
PREPARATIONS

are on sale by
Campbelle Drug co., clanton.
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A. Ayers, clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kincheon
J. B. Downs, clanton.

N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the BANNER.

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Perry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bacheler mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T. U. CRUMPTON, Prop'r
MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERY THING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L. Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS—SASH, DOORS, BLINDS; MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE

FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1.00	12 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water white 150 fire test oil	18
½ bbl " " "	2.25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	13
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14-lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware and the very best Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please,

A. M. JOHNSON, Manager

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	$1.50
Nashville American	1.70
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald	$1.50
Home and Farm	$1.10
Southern Farmer	$1.00

TABLE LAMP.

THE NULITE.

750 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS

Produce the finest artificial light in the world. Superior to electricity or gas. Cheaper than kerosene oil. A 20th Century Revolution in the Art of Lighting.

They darkness into daylight turn,
And air instead of money burn.

No Smoke. No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely Safe. They are Portable. Hang or stand them anywhere. We also manufacture Table Lamps, Wall Lamps, Pendants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, Etc. The best and only really successful Incandescent Vapor Gas Lamps made. They sell at sight. Each burner 100 candle power. Nothing like them. Good Ag'ts Wanted. Write for catalogue and prices.

Chicago Solar Light Co. 81 Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

OUTDOOR ARC.

BILL ARP'S LETTER

Sad Experience of Young Ladies Attacked By Yellow Jackets.

HE TALKS OF HIS BOYHOOD DAYS

Mrs. Arp Reminds Him of Repairs and General Work Needed, and He Humbly Obeys Orders.

My wife said she had a premonition that we would have an early fall and I had better prepare for it right away. She reminded me that there were some broken glass on the roof of the flower pit and the sash needed repainting and the shelves renewing and I might whitewash the brick wall, and so forth and so fifth, and so on. Well, I have done all that and was humbly waiting for the next order, when she told me that Sam, the darky, wasent coming to run the lawn mower over the grass in the front yard and maybe I could do it and save 75 cents. Well, I have done that, but nobody paid me the 75 cents, and next thing I knew she sent one of the grandchildren to me for 75 cents to pay her debt to the aid society. These women have got nearly as many clubs and societies as the men, but they stay at home of nights and that is better than the men do. There are the Masons and Odd Fellows, and Nights of Pythias and Nights of Damon and the Royal Arcanum and the Elks and the Nights of Jericho and Nights of Labor and they are all nights, or midnights, and the women have to stay home and nurse the children. If I was a marrying woman I would strike out the word obey and put in a promise for the man that he wouldn't join anything that "took him away from home at night. It's bad enough for young folks to tramp around at night hunting for the moon. They are crazy about the moon, and that's why crazy folks are called lunatics—for luna means the moon, and the ticks are not far off on a moonlight walk in the woods. Last Tuesday night there were six couples of out lunatics who went up the river road in search of the moon. They wanted to see it rise from out the water and they had to get out to the big, flat rock in the river to see it, and they had to slide down the bank to reach the rock, and the young men cooned it down first to clear the way, and the yaller jackets were waiting for them and by the time the girls were on the slide the little devils began the attack and they took 'em on the slide in the flank and in the rear, in the face and shirtwaist and arms and legs, and took the young men, too, and such screaming and scrambling was never heard or seen in that part of the country. The young men did not desert their partners, but shoved them up the slide again with great alacrity. The whole party was bunged up amazingly. Eyes and ears and noses and hands and legs began to swell, and they never got to see the moon at all. The girls cried with anguish and the boys moaned and groaned, and there was no ammonia, no soda, no doctor and no house within a mile. They could just see enough to find the horses, and by the time they got back home some were blind in one eye and some in both, and you couldent tell a hand from a foot, nor a nose from a turnip beet, nor the ankle from the calf—calf of the leg, I mean. Well, they got home about midnight and that five-mile ride was the longest and most miserable of their lives. The young men have not yet reported for duty, nor have the girls dared to look into a mirror, for fear of breaking it. It is a wonder that those girls with such thin apparel were not stung to death; but I suppose that the stuffing and padding about the breastworks saved them.

We old school boys know something about yellow jackets. It is bad enough to tackle a nest in the daytime in open ground where you can run and fight, but to slide down into one near the water on a dark night must be awful in the extreme. The last time I came in conflict with the spiteful things I located the nest and went to the house and got the wire fly catcher and set it over the hole. It worked beautifully and was fast filling up when an outsider took me "ker-bim" on the back of the neck and I departed those coasts with alacrity. By and by the boys came and built a little fire not far away and set the fly catcher over the smoke and killed the whole concern. But you must look out for the outsiders—the scouts and sharpshooters. Bees can't sting but one time, but a jacket can keep up as long as the poison lasts. The sting of a bee is bad, that of a jacket is badder and a wasp is the baddest of all, except a hornet or, perhaps, the devil's packsaddle on a fodder blade. They do say in Texas that a tarantula is worse than all the rest put together and frequently proves fatal. They say, too, that any sting is a cure for the rheumatism, but I never found a man that had tried it. Some poisons affect one person more than another. A good citizen of this county died in 24 hours from a bee sting, but my faithful servant, Tip, can take them up in his hands and let them "lite" on his neck and face and sting him furiously, and he brushes them off and laughs and says they tickle him. I have picked the stings off his flesh by the dozen, and he has never had rheumatism. A colony of honey bees number 5,000, yellow jackets 500 and hornets 200.

But this is enough about such pesky things, though the sting of a mosquito seems to be attracting much attention from the men of science.

But I was ruminating about things that have to be done before long. My wife says it is about time to make a lettuce bed for the winter's supply and it is about time to transplant two or three rows of strawberry plants from our own runners, for it is a good plan to have some newones coming on every year. I receive so many letters from good women asking about how to grow them and so forth, that I will say briefly:

Prepare the ground about like you would for any garden herb or vegetable, fork deep and manure liberally, open a furrow and scatter ashes in it—any kind of ashes, wood, coal or mixed. If you can't sift the ashes, be sure and throw out the cinders and lumps. Place the plants about a foot apart, spread out the roots, draw the earth around lightly. If ground is dry, use water to each plant, then pull some dry earth over the wet. That's all. Have the rows two feet apart. If you have no plants of your own, then order some, and get Brandywine, Lady Thompson, Gaudy and Excelsior. There are several other good kinds, but I know what these are. If ashes are scarce use a good handful to each plant. Stable manure makes the plant grow and ashes makes the fruit. Let me make another suggestion to these good women. If you have no asparagus bed, make one this fall. It is the cheapest thing grown, and about the best. We had it in abundance all the spring and are now having a second crop. Buy one hundred or two hundred crowns at 75 cents a hundred, plant about like you would plant strawberries. Don't dig any ditch as they used to do. Give a good coat of manure every fall or winter and the same bed will last you twenty years. Fork up the ground once or twice a year, but do not fork too close to the crowns.

One other thing and I am done. Plant the small butter bean. It is sometimes called the see-wee bean. It is sure and prolific and keeps on bearing until frost. It will take an arbor or very stout poles to hold up the vines.

That's all.—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

NEWSY GLEANINGS.

Philadelphia now has two recreation piers.

The National Hay Association has held its annual meeting at Indianapolis, Ind.

National legislators believe new laws will have to be passed for the suppression of anarchy.

Reports of the failure of the fisheries along the northern coast of Labrador are confirmed.

Chile's Congress approved the nomination of two delegates to the Pan-American Congress.

Official statements show that the finances of Brazil are on a more solid foundation than for years.

The Socialist party of Iowa has nominated a State ticket, headed by James Baxter, of Hiteman, for Governor.

To aid the poorer classes Venezuela has decided to remit temporarily the duties on corn, beans and peas.

The amount of duties collected on personal baggage arrived at the port of New York during August was $103,290.

The longest electric railroad in the world will be built from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Pontiac, Mich., a distance of 305 miles.

A mountain 500 feet high in northern Japan sank after an earthquake, leaving its top on a level with the surrounding plain.

The new Capitol building at Harrisburg, Penn., is to be of granite and not marble, the first choice of the commission in charge of the business.

A trolley line between Baltimore and Washington may be built shortly, report having it that the financial part of the programme is, after ten years, completed.

American trains demonstrated that the route across this country was the quickest for mail service between London and Australia, cutting down the time by several days.

The schemes for cheap living may become interesting to a greatly increased number of families if the reports as to the scarcity of vegetables shall prove to be well founded. Indeed, it is a fact that the price of potatoes has gone up in most Northern markets, and there are solemn predictions of an almost complete failure of the crop. How far the cupidity of dealers is responsible for this advance in the price of potatoes has not been ascertained, but it is the part of wisdom for the people to keep in a hopeful frame of mind until the alleged scarcity shall have been placed beyond a doubt. From Virginia comes the cheering announcement that the potato crop of this year in that State has exceeded that of any past year. We may have the same sort of news from other sections before long.

Professor Arlo Bates, of Massachusetts, is shocked by the enormous number of books published in this country every year. We do not see why he should be. Surely we have got to do something to fill the shelves of all those new Carnegie Libraries that are being built. Book-writing has come to be a great national industry, and this is no time to try to check it.

THE DANCE OF DAVID.

Curious Religious Ceremony Peculiar to the Abyssinians.

The following extracts, says the London Graphic, are from the diary of Captain R. P. Cobbold, during his journey to join the Abyssinians operating with the British forces against the Mad Mullah: "I was lucky to have been in Harrar at the festival of the 'Dance of David Before the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord.' The sight is probably but little changed since the first performance 1600 years ago, and still bears, in all probability, an intimate relation to the old Jewish dance. The Christianity of Abyssinia of to-day, in accordance and in religious observance, is a replica of ancient Christendom, such as it was in the time of Constantine, and in this sense alone offers historical interest such as is afforded by no other country at the present moment.

"But to get on with the dance. Its origin dates from the year 323 A. D., or thereabouts, when the Emperor Constantine called together the first council of Bishops in Constantinople. At that time the Abyssinians had been recently converted to Christianity, and, as time went on, sent, as did other Christian Kingdoms and States, a Bishop or representative of the church, at the invitation of the Emperor, to the yearly Council of Bishops at Constantinople, where the ordinances of the church for the ensuing year were drawn up and agreed upon. At the sixth council the 'Dance of David Before the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord' was revived, having been copied from the Jews, and was ordered to be hereafter included in the ordinances for each ensuing year by the representatives of the Christian Church. It seems, however, that at the seventh Council of Bishops, the continuation of the dance of David was disallowed, and the order for its performance rescinded. But it happened that the Bishop representing Abyssinia was unable to be present either at this or the next council; the country, in all probability, being in a state of war, and unable to consider spiritual matters. The Abyssinian Church, therefore, continued in ignorance of the order rescinding the dance, which has, in consequence, been continued and performed on the sacred Saturday before Easter.

"As we neared the courtyard of Ras Makennon's house we were greeted with sounds of singing. Upon entering we were surprised to find the place crowded with people, and then realized that we had been asked to witness a religious ceremony. Some of those present were beautifully attired ni Indian robes, and wore gold crowns covered with precious stones. Others dressed in white, with a deep red band running down the centre (distinguishing them from Mohammedans,) the headdress consisting of a large white turban. All these people were seated on the ground in the veranda, and in the centre we discovered the Garasmatch (General of the Right) seated on a chair of state. After greeting him I had time to look about at the weird crowd facing us in a semi-circle. At my left, under a magnificently embroidered umbrella, stood an aged man, and in his immediate following were small children, holding some scriptural sign. The old man was the high priest. Beyond him, and completing the semi-circle, stood other men, all dressed in white, some holding wands and others rattles, while still others were weighted down with heavy drums. Thus they sang the Psalms of David—to the accompaniment of music and dancing. The priests, as they continued the movement, gradually warmed up to the work, and ended in a wild, fantastical figure. This over, a representative was chosen from among the priests, who delivered a long harangue to the Garasmatch, chanting psalms and extolling the merits of the Emperor, Ras Makennon, and the Garasmatch himself, finishing by hoping that the Garasmatch would not forget that they had fasted for two months, and that he would give them plenty of food and money.

The General of the Right thereupon asked us to call upon him in half an hour, and then proceeded to the reception hall, where the priests received money and an invitation to breakfast on the following morning. After this the priests broke up into small parties, and visited the various European high officials in the town, from whom they demanded money. Each man, on giving them a present, received a talisman from the priests, meaning "Good luck and peace be to them."

Value of a Bee's Tongue.

In the new apiculture the length of the bees' tongues is looked upon as a matter of importance. The longer the tongue the greater is the insect's honey-gathering capacity, and a new French apparatus, the glossmeter, is designed to aid the apiarist who, by judicious selection, seeks to develop a long-tongued race. The apparatus is simply a glass vessel for syrup, with a lid containing numerous small perforations, and a floating scale to show the hight of the liquid when the bees just reach it through the holes. It is estimated that the ordinary bee can draw sweets from a depth of about a quarter of an inch, and that selection can increase its range a twenty-fifth of an inch.

Praises Indian Pupils.

At the recent conference of Baptist missionaries at Chautauqua, Miss Ferree, who represents the Industrial School for Indians at Carlisle, Penn., said that among the noticeable traits of character found in the Indian pupils were honor, obedience and generosity.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: The Sin of Borrowing Trouble—A Bad Habit That Unfits Many to Properly Discharge the Duties of Life—God Will Meet Our Exigencies as They Arise

[Copyright 1903.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows the folly of allowing forebodings to influence us and how expectation of evil weakens and destroys; text, Matthew vi. 34, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

The life of every man, woman and child is as closely under the divine care as though such person were the only man, woman or child. There are no accidents. As there is a law of storms in the natural world, so there is a law of trouble, a law of disaster, a law of misfortune, but the majority of the troubles of life are imaginary, and the most of those anticipated never come. At any rate, there is no cause of complaint against God. See how much He has done to make you happy—His sunshine filling the earth with glory, making rainbow for the storm and halo for the mountain, greenness for the moss, saffron for the cloud and crystal for the billow and procession of bannered flame through the opening gates of the morning, chaffinches to sing, rivers to glitter, seas to chant and springs to blossom and overpowering all other sounds with its song and over-reaching all other splendor with its triumph, covering up all other beauty with its garlands and outflashing all other thrones with its dominion—deliverance for a lost world through the Great Redeemer.

I discourse of the sin of borrowing trouble.

First, such a habit of mind and heart is wrong because it puts one into a despondency that ill fits him for duty. I planted two rose bushes in my garden. The one thrived beautifully; the other perished. I found the dead one on the shady side of the house. Our dispositions, like our plants, need sunshine. Expectancy of repulse is the cause of many secular and religious failures. Fear of bankruptcy has upturn many a fine business and sent the man dodging among the note shavers. Fear of slander and abuse has often invited the long-beaked vultures of scorn and backbiting. Many of the misfortunes of life, like hyenas, flee if you courageously meet them.

How poorly prepared for religious duty is a man who sits down under the gloom of expected misfortune! If he prays, he says, "I do not think I shall be answered." If he gives, he says, "I expect they will steal the money." Helen Chalmers told me that her father, Thomas Chalmers, in the darkest hour of the Free Church of Scotland and when the woes of the land seemed to weigh upon his heart, said to his children, "Come, let us go out and play ball or fly kite," and the only difficulty in the play was that the children could not keep up with their father. The McChevnes and the Summerfields of the church who did the most good toiled in the sunlight. Away with the horrors! They distil poison. They dig graves, and if they could climb so high they would drown the rejoicings of heaven with sobs and wailing.

You will have nothing but misfortune in the future if you sedulously watch for it. How shall a man catch the right kind of fish if he arranges line and hook and bait to catch lizards and water serpents? Hunt for bats and hawks, and bats and hawks you will find. Hunt for robin redbreasts, and you will find robin redbreasts. One night an eagle and an owl got into fierce battle. The eagle, unused to the night, was no match for the owl, which is most at home in the darkness, and the king of the air fell helpless, but the morning rose, and with it rose the eagle, and the owls and the nighthawks and the bats came a second time to the combat. Now, the eagle in the sunlight, with a stroke of his talons and a great cry cleared the air, and his enemies, with torn feathers and splashed with blood, tumbled into the thickets. Ye are the children of light. In the night of despondency you will have no chance against your enemies that flock up from beneath, but trusting in God and standing in the sunshine of the promises you shall "renew your youth like the eagle."

Again, the habit of borrowing trouble is wrong, because it has a tendency to make us overlook present blessing. To slake man's thirst the rock is cleft, and cool water leap into his brimming cup. To feed his hunger the fields bow down with bending wheat, and the cattle come down from the clover pastures to give him milk, and the orchards yellow and ripen, casting their juicy fruits into his lap. Alas, that amid such exuberance of blessing man should growl as though he were a soldier on half rations or a sailor on short allowance; that a man should stand neck deep in harvests looking forward to famine; that one should feel the strong pulses of health marching with regular tread all the avenues of life and yet tremble at the expected assault of sickness; that a man should sit in his pleasant home, fearful that ruthless want will some day rattle the broken window sash with tempest and sweep the coals from the hearth and pour hunger into the bread tray; that a man fed by Him who owns all the harvests should expect to starve; that one whom God loves and surrounds with benediction and attends with angelic escort and hovers over with more than motherly fondness should be looking for a heritage of tears! Has God been hard with thee that thou shouldst be foreboding? Has He stinted thy board? Has He covered thee with rags? Has He spread traps for thy feet and galled thy cup and rasped thy soul and wrecked thee with storm and thundered upon thee with a life full of calamity?

If your father or brother come into your bank, where gold and silver are lying about, you do not watch them, for you know they are honest, but if an entire stranger come by the safe you keep your eye on him, for you do not know his designs. So some men treat God not as a father, but a stranger, and act suspiciously toward Him. It is high time you began to thank God for present blessing; thank Him for your children, happy buoyant and bounding; praise Him for your home, with its fountain of song and laughter; adore Him for morning light and evening shadow; praise Him for fresh, cool water bubbling from the rock, leaping in the cascade, soaring in the mist, falling in the shower, dashing against the rocks and clapping its hands in the tempest; love Him for the grass that cushions the earth and the clouds that curtain the sky and the foliage that waves in the forest; thank Him for a Bible to read and a Saviour to deliver.

Many Christians think it a bad sign to be jubilant, and their work of self-examination is a hewing down of their brighter experiences. Like a boy with a new jackknife hacking everything he comes across, so their self-examination is a religious cutting to pieces of the greenest things they can lay their hands on. They imagine they are doing God's service when they are going about borrowing trouble, and borrowing it at thirty per cent., which is always a sure precursor of bankruptcy.

Again, the habit of borrowing trouble is wrong because the present is sufficiently taxed with trial. God sees that we all need a certain amount of trouble, and so He apportions it for all the days and years of our life. Alas for the policy of gathering it all up for one day or year! Cruel thing to put upon the back of one camel all the cargo intended for the entire caravan. I never look at my memorandum book to see what engagements and duties are far ahead. Let every week bear its own burdens. The shadows of to-day are thick enough. Why implore the presence of other shadows? The cup is already distasteful. Why halloo to disasters far distant to come and wring out more gall in the bitterness? Are we such champions that, having won the belt in former encounters, we can go forth to challenge all the future?

Here are business men just able to manage affairs as they now are. They can pay their rent and meet their notes and manage affairs as they now are, but how if a panic should come and my investments should fail? Go to morrow and write on your daybook or on your ledger or on your money safe, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Do not worry about notes that are far from due. Do not pile up on your counting desk the financial anxieties of the next twenty years. The God who has taken care of your worldly occupation, guarding your store from the torch of the incendiary and the key of the burglar, will be as faithful in 1910 as in 1901. God's hand is mightier than the machinations of stock gamblers or the plots of political demagogues or the red right arm of revolution, and the darkness will fly and the storm fall dead at His feet.

So there are persons in feeble health, and they are worried about the future. They make out very well now, but they are bothering themselves about future pleurisies and rheumatisms and neuralgias and fevers. Their eyesight is feeble, and they are worried lest they entirely lose it. Their hearing is indistinct, and they are alarmed lest they become entirely deaf. They felt chilly to-day and are expecting an attack of typhoid. They have been troubled for weeks with some perplexing malady and dread becoming lifelong invalids. Take care of your health now and trust God for the future. Be not guilty of the blasphemy of asking Him to take care of you while you sleep with your windows tight down or eat chicken salad at 11 o'clock at night or sit down on a cake of ice to cool off. Be prudent and then be confident. Some of the sickest people have been the most useful. It was so with Payson, who died deaths daily, and Robert Hall, who used to stop in the midst of his sermon and lie down on the pulpit sofa to rest and then go on again. Theodore Frelinghuysen had a great horror of dying till the time came, and then went peacefully. Take care of the present and let the future look out for itself. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

Again, the habit of borrowing misfortune is wrong because it unfits us for it when it actually does come. We cannot always have smooth sailing. Life's path will sometimes tumble among declivities and mount a steep and be thorn pierced. Judas will kiss our cheek and then sell us for thirty pieces of silver. Human scorn will try to crucify us between two thieves. We will hear the iron gate of the sepulcher creak and grind as it shuts in our kindred. But we cannot get ready for these things by forebodings. They who fight imaginary woes will come out of breath into conflict with the armed disasters of the future. Their ammunition will have been wasted long before they come under the guns of real misfortune. Boys in attempting to jump a wall sometimes go so far back in order to get impetus that when they come up they are exhausted, and these long races in order to get spring enough to vault trouble bring us up at last to the dreadful reality with our strength gone.

Finally, the habit of borrowing trouble is wrong because it is unbelief. God has promised to take care of us. The Bible blooms with assurances. Your hunger will be fed, your sickness will be alleviated, your sorrows will be healed. God will sandal your feet and smooth your path, and along by frowning crag and opening grave sound the voices of victory and good cheer. The summer clouds that seem thunder charged really carry in their bosom harvests of wheat and shocks of corn and vineyards purpling for the wine press. The wrathful wave will kiss the feet of the great storm walker. Our great Joshua will command and above your soul the sun of prosperity will stand still. Bleak and wave struck Palmos shall have apocalyptic vision, and you shall hear the cry of elders and the sweep of wings and trumpets of salvation and the voice of hallelujah unto God forever.

Your way may wind along dangerous bridle paths and amid wolf's howl and the scream of the vulture, but the way still winds upward till angels guard it and trees of life overarch it, and thrones line it, and crystalline fountains leap on it, and the pathway ends at gates that are pearl, and streets that are gold, and temples that are always open, and hills that quake with perpetual song and a city mingling forever Sabbath and jubilee and triumph and coronation.

Let pleasure chant her siren song;
'Tis not the song for me.
To weeping it will turn ere long,
For this is heaven's decree.

But there's a song the ransomed sing
To Jesus, their exalted King.
With joyful heart and tongue,
Oh, that's the song for me!

Courage, my brother! the father does not give to his son at school enough money to last him several years, but as the bills for tuition and board and clothing and books come in pays them. So God will not give you grace all at once for the future, but will meet all your exigencies as they come. Through earnest prayer trust Him. People ascribe the success of a certain line of steamers to business skill, and know not the fact that when that line of steamers started the wife of the proprietor passed the whole of each day when a steamer sailed in prayer to God for its safety and the success of the line. Put everything in God's hands and leave it there. Large interest money to pay will soon eat up a farm, a store, an estate and the interest on borrowed troubles will swamp anybody. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

The Mountain Creation.

Moses was to build the tabernacle after the pattern he had received in the mount. God was the architect, Moses only the builder. That method saved much discussion and trouble with the workers about the tabernacle. There are some things the world cannot change; God's plan for a human life is never out of date; the mountain architecture is perfect. It is neither Grecian nor Roman; it does not follow any human school; it is after the heavenly design. See that you make your architecture after the holy pattern, perfected from foundation to capstone. Strange to say that while there is wide difference of opinion as to what is artistic and beautiful in human workmanship, men are of one mind when they stand before the mountain-creation. The sermon on the mount is the pattern of the mount, the architecture of a right life. When men cry: "Back to Christ," urging us to conform to the principles and rules of the Master, they are simply repeating to all men the command that was given to Moses: "See that thou make all things according to the pattern shewed thee in the mount." What perfect harmony there would be among the life-buildings in the world if we followed the heavenly designs!—Ba.tist Union.

The Setting of a Hope.

The setting of a great hope is like the setting of the sun. The brightness of our life is gone. Shadows of evening fall around us and the world seems but a dim reflection—itself a broader shadow; we look forward into the coming lonely night. The soul withdraws into itself. Then stars arise and the night is holy.—H. W. Longfellow.

THE SABBATH SC

INTERNATIONAL LESSON CO FOR SEPTEMBER 27.

Subject: Woes of Intemperance. Isaiah, 29-33.—Golden Text, Prov. 1—Memory Verses, 29-33.—Comments on the Day's Lesson.

29. "Who." A divine [illegible] every man to investigate [illegible] cause of woe and sorrow [illegible] thus be deterred from [illegible] course in life. Robinson [illegible] the drunkard's looking [illegible] those whose face is toward [illegible] habits, so that they may [illegible] will be if they go on. [illegible] space would be needed [illegible] names of all who could [illegible] to this question. [illegible] committed and a certain [illegible] of suffering. Sin of [illegible] own punishment, but [illegible] so speedily and resentless[illegible] tim as the sin of drunkenness [illegible] and has woes of body [illegible] woe's in himself, woes [illegible] diseases, poverty and [illegible] time. Who hath [illegible] word means first poverty. The drunkard has [illegible] making. The cup contains [illegible] woe, a single sorrow [illegible] a numerous as to fill [illegible] long continued, cry [illegible] hath contentions. [illegible] to the first two questions [illegible] to this. Nine tenths of [illegible] fights, quarrels and [illegible] traceable to drink. "W[illegible] This refers to the [illegible] drink to banish and [illegible] vexing secrets, vile [illegible] noisy demonstrations, [illegible] in different stages of drunk[illegible] without cause. "W[illegible] wholly unprofitable [illegible] of the brawls of drunk[illegible] are especially exposed [illegible] cases which temperance [illegible] vented. "Redness of [illegible] blurred or bleared eyes [illegible] cohol induces a paralysis [illegible] controlling the minute [illegible] capillaries, which results [illegible] specially shows itself [illegible] step and in his eye th[illegible] the secret of his sin. [illegible] drunkard's broad road to [illegible] great bundle of woes. As [illegible] losses of time, of talent [illegible] clean conscience, of self-respect [illegible] of religion, of the soul.

30. "They that tarry [illegible] This answers the above [illegible] begins to drink continue[illegible] ing often a whole night [illegible] day and night. "They th[illegible] or among people where [illegible] are made or stored [illegible] wine." Spiced, drugged [illegible] the intoxicating power [illegible] creased by the infusion of [illegible] Such men drink the [illegible] The chemical analysis of [illegible] by the people in this [illegible] they drink alcohol, arsenic [illegible] bitter almonds, blood, [illegible] cocculus indicus, copperas [illegible] bane, isinglass, lime, [illegible] vounica, opium, oil of vi[illegible] oil of turpentine, tobacco [illegible] resin, etc.

31. "Look not thou [illegible] This prohibits moderate [illegible] put yourself in the way of temptation [illegible] who goes freely into temptation [illegible] more than half fallen. "When [illegible] The bright color of the wine [illegible] attractive look and adds to [illegible] and its danger. "When it goeth [illegible] in the cup." Literally, [illegible] brightness, or the beauty [illegible] which the wine-drinker [illegible] ture. "When it goeth [illegible] This verse pictures the attractive[illegible] wine, when it seems perfectly [illegible] sip a little, when it is bright and [illegible] thrilling the nerves with delight [illegible] ing all joy and freedom. It is the [illegible] side of evil that is so dangerous [illegible] ery entrance to the path that [illegible] death.

32. "At last it biteth." The [illegible] will be attended at last with [illegible] pains, when it works like a serpent [illegible] in thy veins and stings like an [illegible] as hard to care as the bites of a [illegible] its effects are opposite to [illegible] Its only beauty is when it [illegible] cup. It can only harm [illegible] tures to enjoy its pleasure [illegible] sends its poison beyond your [illegible] only end is ruin.

33. "Thine eyes shall behold [illegible] women." The loving [illegible] tender of her goodness [illegible] sires spring up to kill her [illegible] or to go from her [illegible] fallen into the same pit [illegible] yourself. Homes are [illegible] result of strong drink. The [illegible] pleadings of the devoted [illegible] and the dance hall is sought [illegible] are dressed to suit the [illegible] and where natural affection [illegible] and cruel lust rules. "Then [illegible] utter froward things." When [illegible] women indulge in the use of [illegible] they let down the bars to [illegible] follows in the train. The [illegible] tre of life, and from it spring [illegible] sires. In a state of drunkenness [illegible] things out of reason and [illegible] cency.

34. "As he that lieth down [illegible] of the sea." To make [illegible] waves of the sea would be [illegible] up in death. So is the drunkard [illegible] as a pilot who has gone [illegible] ship was in the trough [illegible] the tiller to slip out of his hand [illegible] ship to be swamped [illegible] he might have survived [illegible] sotted men know not [illegible] what they are doing [illegible] down they are as if [illegible] waves of the sea or [illegible] mast. Their heads [illegible] disquiet and troubled [illegible] sleep unrefreshing. [illegible] mast." The drunkard [illegible] of life. He is as [illegible] the masthead whence [illegible] must either fall down [illegible] be dashed in pieces, or [illegible] and be drowned.

35. "They have stricken me [illegible] not hurt." With [illegible] self-respect gone the [illegible] the things which [illegible] with shame. They have [illegible] felt it not." Angry [illegible] their worst to end my life [illegible] their blows did not affect me [illegible] shall I awake? I will seek [illegible] Rather when I shall awake [illegible] again. Self-control is gone. The [illegible] is a slave to appetite. He is [illegible] to the pleadings and warnings [illegible] who seek his salvation or [illegible] beseechings of his comrades [illegible] rious.

The trotting record is [illegible] pretty steadily nearing the [illegible] ute mark. And there were [illegible] who argued scientifically [illegible] physically impossible for [illegible] trot a mile less than 2:[illegible]

Says the Los Angeles [illegible] gress should abolish the [illegible] prize money in the navy. [illegible] vival of the time of pirates.

OLGOSZ, THE ASSASSIN

[illegible] Killer, He Spent Days in Fishing and Hating Work.

FAMILY LIVES IN CLEVELAND

[illegible] Czolgosz, the Father, an Industrious [illegible] Family in Fleet [illegible] Blames the Root of the Family — The Father says His Son Should Be Punished For His Dastardly Crime

Cleveland, Ohio. The [illegible] religious family in Fleet street [illegible] centre of the poorest section [illegible] the city. [illegible] Paul Czolgosz, has a large [illegible] exhibits. He is living [illegible] wife. Besides [illegible] are [illegible] the family. [illegible] Detective [illegible] Detroit, who lives in Fleet street.

[illegible] President's assailant and the second time [illegible]

[illegible] of Marcelle avenue. [illegible] is said to be a soldier in the Fifth [illegible] Joseph and Frank, of Alpena [illegible] and two stepdaughters, Twila [illegible] Clara, who live in the Fleet street [illegible]

Paul Czolgosz, the father, maintains [illegible] his son should be punished for [illegible] he has done, and it is evident [illegible] he has no sympathy with Leon [illegible] other members of the family [illegible] to be different from Leon in sen[illegible] ent. They are thrifty, while he [illegible] lazy, and all save the small child [illegible] are workers. Their home is [illegible] fully furnished, but it is clean. Leon [illegible] to have been a black sheep in [illegible] flock.

Paul Czolgosz, the father, is an in[illegible] trious man. He also has some [illegible] More than thirty years ago [illegible] came to this country with his wife [illegible] was at the high tide of prosperi[illegible] after the war. He found his way [illegible] Detroit, where he secured a posi[illegible] as laborer. There he managed [illegible] make a comfortable living. There [illegible] of his children were born. In [illegible] meantime he had accumulated [illegible] money.

When he came to Ohio, fourteen or [illegible] years ago, he purchased a forty [illegible] farm in Warrensville, eight miles [illegible] Cleveland. There the family [illegible] until last spring, when the farm [illegible] sold for $4500 and the family [illegible] into the city, the father and [illegible] sons obtaining employment in [illegible] manufacturing establishments.

Leon would not work. He disappeared several months ago, and the family knew nothing of his whereabouts until he shot the President. [illegible] This is the story the father told, through an interpreter.

Leon was not like the rest of the family. He did not associate with [illegible]

THE MILBURN RESI[illegible]

[illegible] illustration shows the room [illegible] to guard [illegible]

[illegible] He preferred to be alone. He [illegible] home nights to sleep. All day [illegible] was away fishing or killing. He [illegible] he was not well and could not [illegible] He had no friends or associ[illegible] He hated women.

PRONOUNCE IT "SGOLLGOSCH."

[illegible] Way to Name the Man Who Tried to Kill the President.

Chicago.—The name of the man Czolgosz, who shot President McKinley, offers a problem in pronunciation to nine-tenths of those who attempt to speak it. It is one of those [illegible] which the English alphabet [illegible] spell phonetically, and which [illegible] average English-speaking person [illegible] stumbles over in trying to express [illegible] hearing it spoken by a Russian [illegible] according to its sound, the [illegible]

[illegible] time must come—and it cannot [illegible] long distant—when ten days will be [illegible] time to land passengers in Asia, [illegible] total of two weeks between New [illegible] and Manila. This is only 600 or [illegible] miles a day, and while that speed [illegible] not be maintained except at [illegible] expense, the demands of Asiatic [illegible] travel will soon warrant the [illegible]

THE SABBATH SCHO

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMM
FOR SEPTEMBER 22.

Subject: Woes of Intemperance, Prov. xxiii., 29-35.—Golden Text, Prov. xx. 1.—Memory Verses, 29-32.—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

29. "Who?" A divine compassion every man to investigate the pow cause of sin and sorrow and strife. this be deterred from taking the course in life. Robinson calls this the drunkard's looking glass, yet how he shuns it as toward the drunkard's house, so that they may see what sin will be needed to reveal. ... shall who could truthfully say ... "Who? Dreadful ... the condemnation for a ... and a certain social condemnation ... sin of all kinds brings ... shame, but there is no sin ... and resentment gnaws the ... drunkenness. The drunkard ... body and more of misery ... woes in his family; ... and all without hope ... bath error. The Hebrew first, perverse, and the ... drunkard has sorrow of heart ... sorrow is not all. There ... contains more than ... sorrow in one word. There ... to call for the instant ... of danger. ... The Scriptural questions will also reveal ... Such revelation as the brawls ... and misunderstandings ... drink. "Who hath babbling? ... to the tendency of strong drink and incessant talking, ... vile conversation ... conditions, which are ... of drunkenness. "Who hath wounds?" Wounds received ... quarrelsome disputes, such as ... of drunken men. Drunkenness ... have ... 30. "They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek out mixed wine." Speaks of those who are ... to drink, or who spend ... in drinking a whole night and from the day and night. They that go ... among people where intoxicating ... are made or stored or used. "Mixed wine." Spiced, drugged, medicated ... the intoxicating power of which ... increased by the infusion of drugs and ... Such men drink the cup of costly ... the chemical analysis of the liquors ... by the people in this country shows ... they drink alcohol, arsenic, alum, ... bitter almonds, blood, chalk, cherry-laurel, ... cocculus indicus, coperas, gypsum, ... henbane, isinglass, lime, lead, logwood, ... vitriol, opium, oil of vitriol, oil of ... oil of turpentine, tobacco, sugar of ... resin, etc. ... 31. "Look not thou upon the wine ... This prohibits moderate drinking. Do ... put yourself in the way of temptation, ... who goes freely into temptation is ... more than half fallen. "When it is ... The bright color of the wine gives ... attractive look and adds to its fascination ... and its danger. "When it giveth its ... in the cup." Literally, its eye, the ... brightness, or the bead of bubbles ... which the wine drinker looks with ... "When it goeth down smoothly." ... This verse pictures the attractive ... wine, when it seems perfectly harmless ... sip a little, when it is bright and inviting, ... thrilling the nerves with delight, giving ... all joy and freedom. It is the ... side of evil that is so dangerous—the ... entrance to the path that leads ... death. ... 32. "At last it biteth." The pleasure ... will be attended at last with intense ... pains, when it works like so much ... in the veins and casts thee into ... need to cure as the biting of a serpent ... its effects are opposite to its pleasures ... Its only beauty is when it sparkles ... it. It can only harm the one who ... dares to enjoy its pleasure. Then it ... venomous poison, beyond your reach ... and is ruin. ... "Thine eyes shall behold strange ... women." The loving wife will be ... her goodness despised, and ... seeking up to fill her place with ... to go from her with others who ... fallen into the same pit of drunkenness ... yourself. Homes are broken up ... result of strong drink. The tender ... pleadings of the devoted wife are ... and the dance hall is sought, where ... are dressed to suit the eyes of wicked ... and where natural affection is overcome ... and cruel lust rules. "Thine heart ... utter froward things." When ... women indulge in the use of strong ... they let down the bars to every ... in the train. The heart is ... of life, and from it spring all ... sins. In a state of drunkenness ... things out of reason and contrary ... 34. "As he that lieth down in the ... of the sea." To make one's bed ... waves of the sea would be to be swept ... up in death. So is the drunken man ... as a pilot who has gone to sleep ... ship was in the trough of the sea, ... the tiller to slip out of his hand, ... ship to be swamped with the waves ... he might have outridden. Stupefied ... sotted men know not where they ... what they are doing, and when ... down they are as if tossed by the ... waves of the sea, or upon the top ... "Their heads swim." Their ... dizziness and troublesome dreams ... sleep unrefreshing. "Upon the top ... mast." The drunkard is utterly ... of life. He is as one falling asleep ... the masthead, whence in a few ... must either fall down upon the ... be dashed in pieces, or fall into ... and be drowned. ... "They have stricken me—and ... not hurt." With consciences ... of reproof gone the drunkard ... things which should make him ... wrong, saying, "They have beaten ... and not." Angry companions ... "The worst to end my life, says ... blows did not affect me. ... shall I awake? I will seek it ... further when I shall awake I will ... again." Self-control is gone. The ... is a slave to appetite. He is as ... to the pleadings and warnings ... who seek his salvation as he ... warnings of his comrades when ... rious.

The trotting record is ... pretty steadily nearing the ... ute mark. And there were ... who argued scientifically that ... physically impossible for a ... trot a mile less than 2.20.

Says the Los Angeles Herald: "Congress should abolish the ... prize money in the navy. It ... vival of the time of pirates ... teers."

...OLGOSZ, THE ASSASSIN

... Mill, He Spent Days in Fishing and Hating Work.

...LY LIVES IN CLEVELAND

... Czolgosz, the Father, an Industrious, ... Worthy Man—Leon, the Anarchist, Unlike the Rest of the Family — The Former Says He Son Should Be Punished For His Dastardly Crime.

Cleveland, ... The home of the ... Fleet street, is in ... section of the ... southeastern part ... of the assassin ... is a large family ... with his second ... Leon Czolgosz ... Waldeck, a ... Fleet street;

LEON F. CZOLGOSZ.
(Taken and the record made by the Buffalo police at the time of his arrest.)

... avenue, Michael, ... Northeast. He was connected with different anarchistic societies and was President of the Sala Club, an organization that has since gone out of existence. Marion Przybelowski, a former companion of the assassin, says that Czolgosz was a very noisy fellow, especially when discussing politics.

... in the Phil- ... Frank, of Alpena, ... Celia ... Fleet street ... Just after the outbreak of the Spanish war Czolgosz and his uncle went from Minneapolis to Peoria, Ill. Neither he nor his uncle were considered real anarchists while they lived here, and the Poles say they have no such society here. The Poles do not believe he is of their nationality, and the Rev. Mr. Kamensky says he has reason to believe that he is a Hungarian. The Poles here generally condemn his act, and say if they had the opportunity they would lynch him.

... father, maintains ... be punished for ... and it is evident ... with Leon. ... of the family ap- ... from Leon in sen- ... thrifty, while he ... and all save the small chil- ... Their home is ... it is clean. Leon ... a black sheep in ... the father, is an in- ... He also has some ... thirty years ago ... country with his wife, ... high tide of prosperi- ... He found his way ... where he secured a posi- ... There he managed ... comfortable living. There ... children were born. In ... had accumulated ... Ohio, fourteen or ... purchased a forty ... ville, eight miles ... There the family ... when the farm ... and the family ... the father and ... employment in ... business ... work. He disap- ... ago, and the ... of his whereabouts ... the President, at ... history the father ... the rest of the ... not associate with ...

Close Description of the Assassin.

In facial appearance Leon Czolgosz belies his fatal anarchistic tendencies.

Though narrow, his forehead is high, heightening a look of intelligence.

His eyes are blue-gray, sharp and well defined.

Head round and large at apex.

Nose prominent, mouth well curved, lending pleasant look to features.

Jawbones not prominent.

Chin weak and receding, narrowing to a point.

Teeth good.

Temperament highly emotional.

Hair light brown and wavy.

Height 5 feet 8½ inches.

Weight, 150 pounds.

Age, twenty-eight years.

Figure, erect and solid.

Habit, inveterate smoker.

Voice low, speaks with accent.

Born in Detroit, Mich.

Educated in Catholic parochial school in Detroit.

Well Known to the Poles of That City, Where He Lived in 1897-98.

St. Paul, Minn.—Leon Czolgosz is well known to the Poles of Minneapolis, where he resided in 1897 and 1898. During that period he was employed in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad shops as a machinist's helper and lived with his uncle, Frank Szolkowski, on Washington street, Northeast. He was connected with different anarchistic societies and was President of the Sala Club, an organization that has since gone out of existence. Marion Przybelowski, a former companion of the assassin, says that Czolgosz was a very noisy fellow, especially when discussing politics.

Just after the outbreak of the Spanish war Czolgosz and his uncle went from Minneapolis to Peoria, Ill. Neither he nor his uncle were considered real anarchists while they lived here, and the Poles say they have no such society here. The Poles do not believe he is of their nationality, and the Rev. Mr. Kamensky says he has reason to believe that he is a Hungarian. The Poles here generally condemn his act, and say if they had the opportunity they would lynch him.

Name Is Spelled Phonetically "Tsholgosch," or Its Equivalent, Is Given by Those Who Have Lived Where the Name Is Common.

Cleveland, ... The name of the man who tried to kill the President, ... President McKinley, is a pronuncia- ... those who at- ... one of those ... English alphabet ... and which ... speaking person ... by a Russian, ... its sound, the name of Czolgosz, or its nearest equivalent, is "Tcholgosch," or more broadly speaking, "Sholgosch." The former pronunciation is the one given by Sergeant Ter-Isaian of the Detective Bureau, who is a Russian and who is familiar with the varied dialects in Polish Russia, from whence the parents of Leon Czolgosz came to this country.

"Cz" is represented in the Russian alphabet by a character which is pronounced sch, the same as though one were suppressing a sneeze—"tch." The next two letters, "ol," are pronounced in combination as though written "oll," and the remaining letters of the name, "gosz," have the sound of "gosch."

CZOLGOSZ IN MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Well Known to the Poles of That City, Where He Lived in 1897-98.

St. Paul, Minn.—Leon Czolgosz is well known to the Poles of Minneapolis, where he resided in 1897 and 1898. During that period he was employed in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad shops as a machinist's helper and lived with his uncle, Frank Szolkowski, on Washington street, Northeast. He was connected with different anarchistic societies and was President of the Sala Club, an organization that has since gone out of existence. Marion Przybelowski, a former companion of the assassin, says that Czolgosz was a very noisy fellow, especially when discussing politics.

Just after the outbreak of the Spanish war Czolgosz and his uncle went from Minneapolis to Peoria, Ill. Neither he nor his uncle were considered real anarchists while they lived here, and the Poles say they have no such society here. The Poles do not believe he is of their nationality, and the Rev. Mr. Kamensky says he has reason to believe that he is a Hungarian. The Poles here generally condemn his act, and say if they had the opportunity they would lynch him.

THE MILBURN RESIDENCE AT BUFFALO.
(Showing the room of the President and the precautions taken to guard the house.)

... to be alone. He ... to sleep. All day ... or idling. He ... well and could not ... friends or associates ...

...NCE OF "TSHOLLGOSCH."

Name Is Spelled Phonetically—Name the Man Who Tried to Kill the President.

... of the man ... President McKinley ... pronuncia- ... those who at- ... one of those ... English alphabet ... and which ... speaking person ... by a Russian, ... its sound, the ...

MOVEMENT AGAINST ANARCHISTS.

A Strong Sentiment For the Banishment of All Avowed Reds Developed.

New York City.—The shooting of President McKinley has resulted in a movement throughout the nation for clearing the country of Anarchists. Governors, Senators, Representatives, mayors, jurists and police officers all over the United States are heartily in favor of the suppression of all avowed enemies of Government.

A number of Congressmen propose to introduce bills looking to the exclusion of Anarchists, if not for the expulsion of those now in the country. Others intend to frame and ask for the passage of laws imposing the death penalty upon any person making an attempt to kill the President.

... time ... and it cannot ... which ten days will be ... to land passengers in Asia, ... a total of two weeks between New ... and Manila. This is only 600 or ... miles a day, and while that speed ... not be maintained except at ... expense, the demands of Asiatic travel will soon warrant the ...

One of the most interesting of recent gifts to colleges is that of Mrs. Carroll to the University of Virginia. She has handed over to the institution the greater part of an income which she was to have enjoyed for the term of her natural life. Jefferson's college well deserves such aid. The authorities displayed great pluck after the disastrous fire of a few years ago.

LATEST STATE NEWS.

FROM MONTGOMERY.

Governor Jelks has issued a proclamation announcing the death of McKinley and ordering that the flag over the capitol be hung at half mast, that the capitol building be draped in mourning, that the executive offices of the state capitol be closed during the hour announced for the funeral, that each battery of the Alabama National Guard pay funeral honors by firing the salutes prescribed by the regulations, and that the people in their respective communities are requested to meet at times and places convenient for themselves to give public expression of their sorrow.

The following committee has been appointed by the governor to attend the funeral of President McKinley: Gen. Rufus N. Rhodes, Hon. H. D. Clayton, Mr. Frank P. Glass, Judge D. L. Shelby, Hon. Robert L. Houston, Mr. Phares Coleman, Mr. Tyler Goodwin, Hon. Ross C. Smith, Mr. Erwin Craighead, Hon. B. M. Long, Hon. Samuel Blackwell, Hon. J. T. Heflin, Mr. J. A. W. Smith, Judge Dan Gordon, Mr. H. S. D. Mallory, Hon. John A. Davis.

UNIVERSITY LAND CASE SETTLED.

The controversy between the University of Alabama and the Sloss-Sheffield Co. regarding the sale of certain lands has been settled. The dispute arose over the sale of 4400 acres of coal lands belonging to the University to the Sloss-Sheffield Co. for $56,000. The sale created a political furore and suit was brought to enjoin the terms of the sale from being carried out. By the settlement the Sloss-Sheffield Co. received back its check for $56,000 and conveyed to the university 2,590 acres of land, while the university conveyed to the Sloss-Sheffield Co. a like body of land. This left disposition to be made of the other 1,900 acres of the original deal. This tract is conveyed back to the university. To even up all disparities the Sloss-Sheffield Co. paid to the university a bonus of about $11,000.

RAILROAD IMPROVEMENT.

The Southern system is considering the advisability of building tracks to facilitate the additional traffic occasioned when the Central Coal and Iron Company puts its new furnace into blast at Tuscaloosa. This furnace will be one of the largest in Alabama, the daily capacity being 250 tons. The Alabama Great Southern is desirous of having a road built between Brookwood and Tidewater, eleven miles. The number of side tracks to be built from the main line to the furnace are, of course, under consideration. The furnace will be located on the Warrior, which affords cheap transportation to Mobile.

BELLS TOLLED AT TUSCALOOSA.

When the death of President McKinley became known at 1:30 Saturday morning, a number of citizens who happened to be awake went to the court house and tolled the bell for the departed chieftan. President McKinley's death is deeply deplored there.

RUSSELLVILLE is to have a new school house to cost $7,500.

THE cornerstone of Jasper's new school was laid last Saturday. The plans show a beautiful structure.

ONE of the coaches of a Southern passenger train caught fire near Anniston Thursday, and was considerably damaged. The origin of the blaze is thought to have been a live spark.

CONGRESSMAN BANKHEAD is well again after his severe malarial attack. His malady was not serious but it made him very sick. He will be home in a few days.

THERE was a rumor that the paymaster of the Republic Iron & Steel Co. would be held up last Saturday on his way to pay off the men. Precautions were taken but nothing developed.

THE celebration of the silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Fitts, of Tuscaloosa, took place Friday night in their handsome home in East End. It was one of the largest and most notable affairs in Tuscaloosa's recent history. Among the distinguished guests were former Governor Robert L. Taylor, of Tennessee.

THE Russian government has decided to build five battleships, each of 20,000 tons, in Russian shipyards.

A PORTION of the track of the Southern Railway below Tuscumbia was washed out by the heavy rains Saturday and traffic was delayed several hours.

NEWS has just been given out of another national bank to be established in Anniston, to be known as the City National Bank, with a capital stock of $100,000. M. B. Wellborn is to be president, and J. W. McElrath cashier.

Ancestors of the Ostrich.

The ostrich is a descendant of a genus of bird which in prehistoric times attained an enormous size. In the alluvial deposits of Madagascar evidence has recently been found to show that ostriches 14 and 15 feet in height once lived on the island.

Two thousand of the 30,000 books on the French Revolution, which have been presented to the Bibliotheque Nationale by the British Museum, will be kept there. The remaining 28,000 will be sent to the Bibliotheque Sevigne.

Rest For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cinder, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. CASCARETS Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

There were 150,000 children at school in India sixty years ago. There are 4,000,000 now.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

One way to borrow trouble is to lend money.

I do not believe Piso's Cure for Consumption has an equal for coughs and colds.—JOHN F. BOYER, Trinity Springs, Ind., Feb. 15, 1900.

Express trains in Russia do not run over twenty-two miles an hour.

We refund 10c. for every package of PUTNAM FADELESS DYE that fails to give satisfaction. Monroe Drug Co., Unionville, Mo.

If you don't make hay while the sun shines you won't cut much ice when it freezes.

In these days it is hard for a man to get to the front without backing.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

The greatest depth of the Atlantic Ocean is 27,366 feet.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa.

A man must have some sense to know whether he has any or not.

BURNING LIGHTS AT NIGHT.

Many Timid People Think Artificial Light Protects Them.

"A man troubled with insomnia sees a good many phases of the city's night life that are unknown to those on whom the blessings of sleep descend," said the man with the red mustache. "I myself have not known what it is to rest clear through a night for a good many months, and in my peregrinations and star-gazing I have observed many queer things. One of my curious discoveries is that a goodly percentage of New York's population burn a light at night. When I first noticed those faint points of light shining through so many of the windows in the block that backs up to ours I was alarmed, for I thought that every house must shelter three or four invalids, and that made it look as if an epidemic of some kind had struck our part of the city. Indeed, so seriously did I consider the matter that I made it a point to inquire into the health of the neighborhood, and as a reward for my pains I was informed that out of a population of several hundred souls there were not more than a dozen people on the sick list. Upon making a second and more thorough investigation I was surprised to learn that these lights were kept burning by nervous people, who, although perhaps not exactly afraid of the dark, fancied that they could not sleep well in the middle of it. Even in the hot spells a good many shadow-fearing people have clung to the midnight gas jet."—New York Press.

THEY COURT CAUTIOUSLY.

Lapland Girls Must Have Parental Consent to Marriage.

Getting married among the peoples of the northern nations is by no means the off-hand, hit-or-miss affair which it is with too many people in this blessed country of the free. In Norway before a woman can marry it is necessary, under a law recently passed, that she hold a certificate of housewife ability. She must pass an examination in cooking, knitting, spinning, etc., and get her certificate of proficiency in these branches before she can get her marriage certificate. Also both bride and bridegroom must show evidence that they have been vaccinated properly. In Lapland it is an offense punishable with death to marry a girl without her parents' consent. No elopements in that country! When a pair of lovers apparently have reached that stage of courtship which calls for the official cognizance of "pa" and "ma" the friends of the lovers are invited to meet at a specified place to see the enamored ones run a race. To the girl is allowed in starting the advantage of one-third of the distance, so that it is impossible for the young man to overtake her unless she is willing. If the girl outruns her suitor the affair is ended and she thenceforward is "only a sister" to him. It is a penal offense for the lover to renew his offer of marriage. But if the girl is in the condition of mind of the immortal Barkis, she pretends to meet with some accident—stubs her toe or gets out of breath—and comes to a halt before the course is finished, to be caught by the Lapland swain and live happily ever afterward.

Black Hair

"I have used your Hair Vigor for five years and am greatly pleased with it. It certainly restores the original color to gray hair. It keeps my hair soft."—Mrs. Helen Kilkenny, New Portland, Me.

Ayer's Hair Vigor has been restoring color to gray hair for fifty years, and it never fails to do this work, either.

You can rely upon it for stopping your hair from falling, for keeping your scalp clean, and for making your hair grow.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

A Bad Breath

A bad breath means a bad stomach, a bad digestion, a bad liver. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache.

25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers
50 cts. of Druggists, or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

$900 TO $1500 A YEAR

We want intelligent Men and Women as Traveling Representatives or Local Managers; salary $900 to $1500 a year and all expenses, according to experience and ability. We also want local representatives, salary $9 to $15 a week and commission, depending upon the time devoted. Send stamp for full particulars and state position preferred. Address, Dept. B. THE BEEL COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER
CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE
SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE
ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E. 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

$75 to $200 Per Month made by AGENTS
Elegant Premiums Free
Address, SCOTT REMEDY CO., Louisville, Ky.
When you write mention this paper.

STATE NORMAL BUSINESS COLLEGE
TROY, ALABAMA.
Highest course of study and training, and the best equipped Business College in the Southern States. Low cost. Graduates in demand. It will pay you to get particulars. Address JOHN EUCLID PORTER, PRESIDENT.

WE PAY R. R. FARE AND UNDER $5,000 Deposit Guarantee
Positions
200 FREE SCHOLARSHIPS. BOARD AT COST. Write Quick to Ga.-Ala. Business College, Macon, Ga.

THE Bryant & Stratton
Business, Shorthand and Telegraph College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

$3.00 W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES $3.50
UNION MADE.
For More Than a Quarter of a Century
The reputation of W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes for style, comfort and wear has excelled all other makers sold at these prices. This excellent reputation has been won by merit alone. W. L. Douglas shoes have to give better satisfaction than other $3.00 and $3.50 shoes because his reputation for the best $3.00 and $3.50 shoes must be maintained. The standard has always been placed so high that the wearer receives more value for his money in the W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than he can get elsewhere.
W. L. Douglas sells more $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than any other two manufacturers.
W. L. Douglas $4.00 Gilt Edge Line cannot be equalled at any price.

W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes are made of the same high grade leathers used in $5 and $6 shoes and are just as good.
Sold by the best shoe dealers everywhere.
Insist upon having W. L. Douglas shoes with name and price stamped on bottoms.
How to Order by Mail.—If W. L. Douglas shoes are not sold in your town, send order direct to factory. Shoes sent anywhere on receipt of price and 25 cts. additional for carriage. By custom department will make your pair that will equal $6 and fit as well as those costing more. Take measurement of foot as shown on model; state style desired, kind of leather, whether heavy or light sole, whether plain or cap toe; heavy, medium or light sole. A $5 guarantee. Try a pair.

Fast Color Eyelets used.
Catalog free. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

THE PEOPLE
Always render a true verdict. They have tried
LIVERINA
and pronounce it a Perfect Laxative and Liver Medicine. READER:—Have you tried it? Your money back if it fails to do the work.
GAY, HARDIE & DURR,
Proprietors, Montgomery, Ala.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

USE CERTAIN COUGH CHILL CORN CURE.
"The Sauce that made West Point famous."
McILHENNY'S TABASCO.

MONEY Easily made Mfg. Spring Beds. Outfit free. DROWA & CO., Peoria, Ill.

Am. N. U., No. 38, 1901.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 CTS.
CONSUMPTION

DO YOU SHOOT?
If you do you should send your name and address on a postal card for a
WINCHESTER
GUN CATALOGUE. IT'S FREE.
It illustrates and describes all the different Winchester Rifles, Shotguns and Ammunition, and contains much valuable information. Send at once to the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Conn.

You Should Own This Book!
IT SHOULD BE IN EVERY HOUSEHOLD AS IT MAY BE NEEDED ANY MINUTE.
A Slight Illness Treated at Once Will Frequently Prevent a Long Sickness, With Its Heavy Expenses and Anxieties.
EVERY MAN HIS OWN DOCTOR
By J. HAMILTON AYERS, A. M., M. D.
This is a most Valuable Book for the Household, teaching as it does the easily-distinguished Symptoms of different Diseases, the Causes and Means of Preventing such Diseases, and the Simplest Remedies which will alleviate or cure.
598 Pages, Profusely Illustrated.

This Book is written in plain every-day English, and is free from the technical terms which render most doctor books so valueless to the generality of readers. This Book is intended to be of Service in the Family, and is so worded as to be readily understood by all. Only 60 Cts. Post-Paid.
The low price only being made possible by the immense edition printed. Not only does this Book contain so much Information Relative to Diseases, but very properly gives a Complete Analysis of everything pertaining to Courtship, Marriage and the Production and Rearing of Healthy Families; together with Valuable Receipts and Prescriptions, Explanations of Botanical Practice, Correct Use of Ordinary Herbs, New Edition, Revised and Enlarged with Complete Index. With this Book in the house there is no excuse for not knowing what to do in an emergency.
Don't wait until you have illness in your family before you order, but send at once for this valuable volume. ONLY 60 CENTS POST-PAID. Send postal notes or postage stamps of any denomination not larger than 5 cents.
BOOK PUBLISHING HOUSE 134 Leonard St., N.Y.

Ladies!

Our Millinery Department is in charge of Miss Annie Miller, of St. Louis, who comes to us with the latest styles in Hats.

The ladies of Clanton and vicinity are cordially invited to attend our opening on Tuesday, September 24, and inspect our line of Millinery, before buying.

Very respectfully,

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON.

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : : ALA.

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER office

AT REDUCED PRICES

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

THIS COMPLETE SHAVING OUTFIT FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

1 English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to shave	75c
1 9½ in Hair Brush	55c
1 Shaving Brush	10c
1 7 in Barber Comb	10c
1 Rubber Fine "	10c
1 4 in Pocket comb in case	10c
1 Bar good Shaving soap	10c
1 2½ x1 Mirror	10c
1 23 in Razor Strop	50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

The O. K. Lunch Counter

MEALS AND LUNCHES SERVED AT ALL HOURS AT POPULAR PRICES

Fish and Oysters during the Season

I pay highest market price for Chickens and Eggs.

LUNCHES PUT UP FOR TRAVELERS

THE O K LUNCH COUNTER

NEXT THE RAILROAD, CLANTON

W. H. STACY, Proprietor.

ALL WOMEN

Wine of Cardui is the guardian of a woman's health and happiness from youth to old age. It helps her safely into womanhood. It sustains her during the trials of pregnancy, childbirth and motherhood, making labor easy and preventing flooding and miscarriage. It gently leads her through the dangerous period known as the change of life.

WINE OF CARDUI

cures leucorrhœa, falling of the womb, and menstrual irregularity in every form. It is valuable in every trying period of a woman's life. It reinforces the nervous system, acts directly on the genital organs and is the finest tonic for women known. Ask your druggist for a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

Batesville, Ala., July 11, 1900. I am using Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught and I feel like a different woman already. Several ladies here keep the medicines in their homes all the time. I have three girls and they are using it with me.
Mrs. KATE BROWDER.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

The BANNER office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us trial

CHURCH DIRECTORY

BAPTIST—Preaching on the first and third Sundays at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Sunday-school every Sunday at 10 a.m.

Prayer-meeting every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

F. M. WOODS, Pastor.

METHODIST—Preaching every second Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and every fourth Sunday at 7 p.m.

Sunday-school at 10 a.m. every Sunday.

Prayer meeting at seven o'clock every Wednesday night.

D. F. ELLISON, Pastor.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP

W. H. TAYLOR, Proprietor.

HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING

In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.

HOT AND COLD BATHS.

CLANTON

Not a Success.

"I warn you," he said threateningly, "to keep away from Miss Bilton. I've been making love to her myself."

"Have you, really?" replied his rival. "Well, she'll be glad to have the matter cleared up."

"Cleared up! What do you mean?"

"Why, she said she thought that's what you'd been trying to do, but she wasn't sure."—Chicago Post.

What a man lacks in his head he must make up in his legs.—Atchison Globe.

GENERAL CONVENTION EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SAN FRANCISCO, California, October 1901.

The Southern Pacific Co's "Sun Set Route" takes pleasure in announcing very low round trip rates from all Coupon Tickets Offices in this territory to San Francisco, Cal., account of the above occasion

Tickets on sale September 18-26 inclusive

Stop Overs are allowed on the going trip in Texas and West thereof provided, passengers reach San Francisco not later than October 2nd, and on the return trip at points West of Colorado Common Points, San Antonio and Fort Worth, Texas, provided, passengers reach starting point within the extreme limit of the ticket, November 15, 1901.

The privilege of going one route and returning another will be allowed.

Particular attention is called to the "Convention Special," one of the finest trains in the world, from New Orleans through to California without change. This train carrying the equipment of the "Famous Sun Set Limited" Vestibuled Sleeping and Dining Cars, especially arranged to carry the delegates and visitors to California, will leave New Orleans Wednesday, September 25th. Stops will be made at various interesting points enroute.

The following rates have been authorized from various points to San Francisco and return.

Anniston	$ 55.55
Attalla	$ 55.15
Birmingham, Selma, Decatur, Mobile, Montgomery and Tuskaloosa	$ 51.75
Eufaula	$ 56.55
Florence	$ 50.95
Huntsville	$ 53.20
Opelika	$ 55.70

Rates are open to all.

For further information call on or address GEO. W. ELY,
T. P. A. "Sun Set Route,"
Montgomery, Ala.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer," writes Dr. A. Kellet, of Willford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for Burns, Boils, Piles and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Clanton Drug Co.

Curious Vienna Law.

They have curious laws in Vienna and enforce them too. Recently Marie Friedl and Felix Kopstein, aged 15 and 13 years respectively, were walking along a street in the Austrian capital when they came across an old woman staggering along under the weight of a heavy package. Moved by pity, they offered to carry it for the old woman, a proposition to which she readily acceded. The kind hearted children had not gone far before they were arrested by a policeman for carrying parcels without a license. The children were taken to a police station, where the officer in charge lectured them upon the enormity of their offense. They were kept under arrest for six hours and then released with a warning.

It seems that there is a corps of "messengers" in Vienna to which a municipal statute grants the exclusive right of "carrying" inside the city. The boy and girl had violated the law by carrying the old woman's burden, and under such an interpretation of the statute a man who carries a package for a woman with whom he is walking may be "run in" by the first policeman who sees him.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

A SYMPATHETIC NATION.

It would be almost impossible to record to detail the remarkable outburst of sympathy in Great Britian and her colonies over the death of President McKinley, proofs of which are continually arriving here. Not only the King Edward commanded the court to go into mourning for one week but wherever a public meeting of any kind has been held or wherever a public man has had occasion to speak, expressions of horror and sympathy have been heard. In every place of public worship yesterday from St. Paul's cathedral and Canterbury cathedral down, the preachers made special reference to the dead President and invoked a blessing upon the United States and the American people. The church at Balmoral, whose lords had never before been used except on occasions of national interest, broke the custom and assembled the event in the neighborhood.

Mr. Choate and the staff of the United States embassy, who again yesterday had their hands very full, attended service at St. Paul's cathedral in the afternoon. There were many other Americans in the congregation. Canon Scott Holland made a touching allusion to the martyred President and denounced the crime in the most severe language. In accordance with a special army order to the guards at St. James' Palace and at all other points where guard was mounted throughout the United Kingdom, honors were rendered yesterday to the memory of President McKinley, such as are usually accorded only on the death of royal personages. The troops wore crepe and the bands played dirges.

Funeral marches were played in every church in the Kingdom. There was a painful scene at St. David's church, Merthyr-Tydvil. The vicar, the Rev. Mr. Wykes, while referring to the death of Mr. McKinley, swooned. He was carried home ill. Canon Duckworth, preaching in West Minster Abbey, where a memorial service will be held on the day of the funeral, said: "The opening year of the twentieth century will live in our memory and in that of our kinsmen as one that drew us together in the sacred brotherhood of sorrow. It will unite in firmer friendship two great nations."

Similar tributes are recorded in dispatches from the British colonies.

The morning papers again appear with heavy leaded borders, and are almost entirely devoted to Mr. McKinley's death. No such extended tributes of sympathy and respect ever marked the death of any person but a British sovereign. They certainly would not have been called out by the death of any continental ruler.

In addition to almost endless succession of dispatches describing the final scenes and filling many columns, several pages of each journal are given up to descriptions of the sympathy evoked at home and abroad, to extracts from sermons, speeches and editorials, and to extended sketches of the careers of both Mr. McKinley and Mr. Roosevelt, together with reminiscences, mostly accompanied by portraits.

In the editorials on Mr. Roosevelt a sense of relief and intense satisfaction is exhibited at his declaration that he will maintain his predecessor's policy unbroken. While his high courage and integrity of character form the subjects of eulogistic comment and of congratulation to the American nation upon the possession of such a brilliant man to succeed to the presidency.

The Standard comments upon "irony of circumstances that have brought the man supposed to be relegated to obscurity by the vote of the Philadelphia convention into the Presidential chair."

It compares Mr. Roosevelt to the Presidents of the earlier history of the Republic, suggesting that his place in the annals of the United States is likely to be by the side of Madison, Jefferson and Adams.

The Daily Chronicle says:

"It is certain that a man with such a marvellous record will not be a humdrum President. At the same time he is far too level-headed to do anything rash."

It predicts that the coming Presidents will prove to be among the greatest.

The Daily Mail, which calls attention to the allegation that Roosevelt is not a friend to Great Britain, says he expressed his belief to the contrary.

Some of the editorials on Roosevelt expressed a fear that he may seem to have some tendency to overflow of high spirits, which is a man in an ordinary station of life is a failing, but in the head of a nation is more than he speaks with the firmness of true statesmanship.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION

They cure dandruff, catarrh, headache, etc., yet cost less than an ordinary comb—Dr. Mills' Electric Comb. The only perfect Comb in the world. People everywhere it has been introduced, wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the Comb does the rest. This wonderful Comb is simply unbreakable and so so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. We give a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect or stamps for one. Ladies' size 25c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. Write at once for terms. Mention this paper. Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

Greatest In The World

Within five years Dr. King's New Life Pills have reached the largest sale of any liver or bowel medicine in the world, simply because they are the best. They have great merit and we can prove it by the sale of over six million boxes last year our best testimonial. No matter what ails you, start using Dr. King's New Life Pills to-day and if you are benefited and in every way satisfied after you have given them a fair trial you can have your money back for the asking. They are put up in tasteless tablets. Every tablet is stamped "C." They don't cost much—25c. and 50c. a box, and a 50c. box will furnish a whole month's treatment for the worst case. Cascarets are the best and cheapest liver and bowel regulator in the world.

All Day Singing

There will be an all day singing at Liberty church, four miles south of Clanton, on Fourth Sunday in this month. Everybody invited and especially the singers.

It is not a liniment, or a lotion. Contains no grease or anything else. A rational, scientific, chemical compound. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic stands pre-eminently above any remedy offered the public for healing Wounds, Burns and Bruises. Used internally for cuts and bruises. A fine thing for colic and bowel troubles.

THE BEST WAY TO THE SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST IS VIA THE

L & N

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE

The Through Car Line

Elegant Sun parlor cars daily between Louisville and New Orleans

Connecting with all points

TEXAS AND THE WEST

Also running through to Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis

Connecting for all points

NORTH AND NORTHWEST

Before purchasing tickets write the Agent of the L. & N. at Louisville, Ky., or Cincinnati, O. P. A. Louisville, Ky.

Death of Mrs. C. R. Mullins

Mrs. C. R. Mullins died last Sunday morning at her home at Clanton, in giving birth to a child. For eight years she has been the loving wife of Mr. C. R. Mullins, and with five children mourn her loss. The baby is doing well. The funeral took place Sunday evening at Clanton, Judge Adams preaching the funeral sermon. A large number of sorrowing friends and neighbors attended the funeral. Our sympathies are with the bereaved family, may the Lord be with them in their affliction.

DEFECTIVE ORIGINAL

THE BANNE

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. IX CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 26, 1901 same time he is far too level-headed to do anything rash."

It predicts that the coming Presidents will prove to be among the greatest.

The Daily Mail, which gave attention to the allegation that England is not a friend to Great Britain, now expresses its belief in the same way.

Some of the sentiments Mr. Roosevelt expressed a few weeks ago may seem to have been but the overflow of high spirits in the mind of a man in an ornamental position. No sooner does he feel the weight of office as the head of a nation than he speaks with the firmness of true statesmanship.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb.—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People everywhere it has been introduced, wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. 50c stamps for one. Ladies' size and Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. (If you want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

Greatest In The World.

Within five years Cascarets have reached the largest sale of any liver or bowel medicine in the world simply because they cure. They have great merit and we could not sell over six million boxes a year our best testimonial. Now, whatever ails you, start using Cascarets to-day and if you are not benefited and in every way satisfied after you have given them a fair trial you can have you money back for the asking. There is no way out. They are put up in tablet form. Every tablet is stamped "CCC." They don't cost much—10c, 25c and 50c a box and a 50c box will furnish a whole month's treatment for the worst case. Cascarets are the best and cheapest liver and bowel regulator in the world.

All Day Singing

There will be an all day singing at Liberty church, four miles out of Clanton, on Fourth Sunday in this month. Everybody invited and especially the singers.

It is not a liniment, nor a salve. Contains no grease or ammonia. A rational, scientific, chemical compound. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic stands pre-eminently superior to any remedy offered the public for healing Wounds, Burns and all injuries. Used internally it is the fine thing for colic and bowel troubles.

THE BEST WAY TO THE SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST, SOUTH AND NORTHWEST — VIA THE — L & N. LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE. The Through Cars Sleeping Car service daily, through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans. Connecting with all points in TEXAS AND THE WEST. Also running through to Memphis, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis. Connecting for all points in SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST. Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala. O. P. Ambern, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

MAN ON THE CORNER

He Sees and Hears He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

An interesting item comes up from Verbena. The Battillo Brothers have an up-to-date ginnery there, and if you have cotton to be ginned, you pay your money and take your choice whether they gin you a round or square bale. I believe this is the only ginnery in Chilton that operates a round press. The two first round bales turned out were bought by A. Coleedge at 8¼ cents per pound, while on the same day the same bale of cotton brought 7¾ cents. The difference of half-a-cent per pound is one of the round bale. I don't know whether the difference is gone, to be kept up, but if so it looks to me as if there was something worth considering in a round bale.

The Hon. Jesse Stallings, who is well and favorably known in Chilton county as a popular people, is coming to Clanton next Saturday morning to open his big guns upon the new Constitution. Whether he will speak in this smithereens I don't know, but I look for a large crowd to hear him, and he is sure to tell some good tales. I wish you all had a copy of the new Constitution to read right now, so that you could form your own opinions. For my part, I think it might have been a good deal better, but on the other hand it certainly could be a great deal worse. I feel pretty sure in saying that next week you will get a copy. You have plenty of time before the election November 11 to study it, so you can make up your minds about what you have read it.

No sooner is one building about completed in Clanton than another is ready to start. Dick Edwards is moving into his new brick store—a very neat building and reflects much upon Dick as a builder. Hodges & Son will occupy it as soon as they can get possession. The two new brick stores on the A. C. Smith and [illegible] are roof high. A. C. Smith, understand, has rented his store to Kennedy, who will open a business there, and I know he will be run by Moses. So we have the two stores and you will have to get hold of the [illegible] we shall have "Long Mose" and [illegible].

I have to say that several cars of lumber are now on the ground for the new depot, and work will begin in a day or two. The depot is to be a "thing of beauty and a joy for ever," or until it gets burned down again. Anyhow, I can't tell it will be by far the best depot on the line, outside of Selma, the Montgomery and Birmingham depots. It is to be a handsome erection, fitted with modern conveniences, and up-to-date in all particulars. It will be a credit to Clanton as well as to L. & N.

Death of Mrs. C. R. Mullins.

Mrs. C. R. Mullins died last Sunday morning at her home at Clanton, in giving birth to a child. For eight years she has been the loving wife of Mr. C. R. Mullins, who with five children mourn her loss. The baby is doing well. The funeral took place Sunday morning at Clanton, Judge Adams preaching the funeral sermon. A large number of sorrowing friends and neighbors attended the funeral. Our sympathies are with the bereaved family, may the Lord be with them in their affliction.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25 cents.

Coopers, Ala., Sept. 24, 1901

To whom it may concern:

The people of Beat Five in Chilton county have always been law abiding citizens, as the records of our courts will show. But the last Legislature, contrary to the constitution of the State, and contrary to the will of the people, passed a stock which takes effect the first of October, 1901, and I want to give notice that we are going to fight the thing to the finish. We will keep up our fences, and the man that wants to test the justice, and the constitutionality of the law can proceed, and prosecute us, and we will see what the courts of our country will do in the premises.

TAXPAYER.

Don't throw away that sample bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic because it cost you nothing. It's too good to be wasted. Nothing like it for cuts, burns, nail punctures, inflamed eyes, sore throat, etc. Internally it cures colic, diarrhoea and flux.

Maplesville.

Our glorious cotton picking weather practically speaking, with "floods of golden sunshine," and which we think our sensible farmers utilized, has been broken by light showers which was needed for the good of our late crops.

Some of our sensible colored farmers who know lots from experience say there is a fair yield of remarkably good cotton since it has not been stained by rains.

B. O. Glover has the brag pea field made on ordinary pine land; the field had been used as a cow-pen, which after all is the best and cheapest fertilizer.

Our ice cream supper last Wednesday for the benefit of the Methodist church was a success financially and much enjoyed by all attendants; many thanks to those from the neighboring towns for their patronage.

We fancied seeing the tip ends of Cupid's wings flattering, something may come of this yet, to which we are a sincere well-wisher.

There is yet yet much talk and encouragement given our mill enterprise. Mr. Rollins talks our idea of true patriotism, lives for the good of his country "at home," has promised to build us a mill here on Byrd's creek without a pond, and consequently no miasma, mosquitoes, or yellow fever, so with all these advantages we will soon be on a big solid boom.

Mr. Ensign has gone to Marion to get titles to the timber lands in Perry county.

The whistle of Mr. Lawrence cotton gin is here again. Much cotton has been brought in and Mr. Lawrence is paying liberal prices.

T. U. Crumpton has treated his house to a new cover.

We have not words to express our sorrow and indignation by the cruel, inhuman death of our good President. We plead in prayer that he might be spared for the good of our nation. Now, in grief we pray to have the same spirit of of resignation that God in mercy gave him when he realized death. We think the hot beds of anarchists in our midst should be justly and firmly dealt with before too late, as in this terrible case our deepest sympathy is felt for his bereaved wife.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer," writes Dr. A. Kellet, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for Burns, Boils, Piles and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Clanton Drug Co.

East Stanton.

The death angel visited the home of J. H. Mitchell on the 18th inst., and carried off little Merit, the baby of Brother and Sister Mitchel, to its home on high. Weep not, dear friends, you can meet your baby in the sweet beyond, where you will part no more; no, never! where there will be no tears to wipe away.

A FRIEND

The bridge across big Mulberry creek near Dixie, fell in the 19th inst. with Mr. Will Smith and a negro man on it. Luckily for them they escaped unhurt, except slight bruises. Said to say the bridge has cost the county $300 or over within the past twelve months and has been unsafe the whole time. It is high time we had a good bridge built. What say the commissioners of our county?

J. F. JOHNSON.

Southeast Chilton.

Cotton is opening very fast, and we have good weather for picking it. Cane is fine through our country.

M. C. Williams went to Coopers and Verbena last Saturday on business.

Mrs. Lizzie Kendrick visited friends at Cross Roads last week.

Mr. Jesse Jones and wife of Prattville are visiting friends here this week.

The Sunday school at Cannan church is progressing very fast.

We are sorry to know that East Chilton writer is dead, and all of East Chilton ought to mourn his death one day anyhow, but we hope he will come again.

We are sorry to say that Rev. E. L. Manning is still on the sick list.

We are sorry to say that one of our best farmers is going to move to Kimore soon; E. T. Connell is a well known man, and we hate very much to have to give him up.

A FRIEND.

Burwell.

Sorry to say Rev. E. L. Manning is on the sick list and is getting somewhat behind with his crop.

Some of our people are being forced to sell their stock at a reduced price on account of the stock law in Beat 5. Oh, men of mothers! oh, men of wives! stop in this reflective moment and consider the ordeals through which the people are about to go. Think of the old gray-haired soldier and widow woman that are making a fairly good living, that are forced to make this sacrifice merely to satisfy the whims of a few ambitious politicians, and make just a few rich men richer. Now, my friendly reader, it is not to be said that there is anything here to warrant a stock law, there is not one-tenth of the land in Beat 5 in cultivation; there is enough timber in Beat 5 to fence Chilton county in 40 acre lots, and yet we are forced to see this fraud. Any man that would honestly and conscientiously contend for stock law here ought to be hoed for hollow horn. But David said fret not thyself because of evil doers, neither be thou envious against the workings of iniquity, for they shall soon be cut down like the graves and wither as the green herb.

The wicked have drawn out the sword and have bent their bow to cast down the poor and needy, and to slay such as be of upright conversation; their swords shall enter into their own hearts and their bows shall be broken. A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked. But all is well that ends well.

Hurrah for Hon. Jesse Stallings. God forbid that any man should be disfranchished except for crime.

We ask the good people to join us and let's look sad one day, as we won't hear any more from Sudon.

CHILTON CRACKER.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Hon. Jesse F. Stallings will address the citizens of Chilton county, against the ratification of the proposed new Constitution at Clanton, September 28, at 10 a.m., and at Jemison the same night.

The Best Prescription for Malaria Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price 50c.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.
THORSBY, ALA.

Waddy.

Hats off and a neat bow for the prosperity of Waddy, with its well arranged mail facilities; also a well equipped new saw and grist mill. Eat bread ground there and grow fat. Now, behold a spank new store opens up to day. You may expect good bargains and fair treatment every way. Let us not fail to state that besides these other industries pushed by James Littleton & Blow. They have a new boiler and first rate ginery. You can full in your cotton in a hurry. We have known Mr. Littleton's family for years, and it is a pleasure to say they are worthy of success with all the word means. With good water and good people that Waddy can boast of, we see no reason why this fresh village may not be the center of pleasure and prosperity.

Prosperity opens up the mind more vigorously. Thus we hope the Banner will be more in demand. Neighbors, look over the country and you will not find such a county paper anywhere as the hustling Banner. Send in your subscription at once.

Miss Goldman may admire notoriety; we would prefer a different variety. She will not mourn with the nation on the loss of the nation's head.

MRS. I. CAMPBELL.

You must never kiss and tell, but if you see anybody else doing it you must tell it to everybody.

DOWNS' FIRE SALE
—ON—
SNUFF AND TOBACCO
FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS

$3.50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnaps Early Bird, Long Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

and on Thursday, July 25,

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Brenton.
$1.00 gets you 10 boxes 3½ oz. Brenton.
$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 3½ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO and 600 pounds of SNUFF Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $

But they must go just the same.

Mortgage Sale.

Under and by virtue of the powers contained in a deed of mortgage, executed by the trustees of Clanton Congregational church of the town of Clanton, to the Congregational Church Building Society, on the 4th day of February, 1893, which said deed of mortgage is recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, in Volume 28 of Mortgages, page 475, and which said mortgage has been duly transferred and assigned to the undersigned. I will proceed to sell at auction to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court House door in Clanton, in said County, on

MONDAY SEPTEMBER the 30, 1901,

within the legal hours of sale, the following described real estate in said mortgage deed mentioned and described, to-wit:

Lots number 1, 2, 7 and 8 in Block 12, situated east of the Louisville & Nashville railroad in the town of Clanton, county of Chilton and State of Alabama.

ALEX G. DAKE, Transferee.
By ROB'T H. KNOX, his Attorney.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Clanton drug store.

WANTED.

BRICK! BRICK!! Good hard brick, and favorable freight rates. Prices and samples on application.
I. M. JENKINS,
Wetumpka, Ala.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1899. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager 316, Caxton Building, Chicago.

Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is the most wonderful healing compound of the nineteenth century. Preserves the flesh, preventing inflammation and heals like magic. Ask your druggist for it.

No wife can make home happy by following the rules printed in a woman's paper.

"It's no joke," when we say that Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is superior to anything offered the "clear people" as a dressing for wounds, bites and stings of insects, "poison oak." It's cleanliness, pleasant odor and quick cures make it a universal favorite wherever known. Price 50c. Remember that it is guaranteed by your druggist.

Alabama Girls' Industrial School.
MONTEVALLO, ALA.

The next session opens September 18, 1901. An enlarged Dormitory and new class rooms make it possible to provide for more girls, and to offer better accommodations. For catalogue address

FRANCIS M. PETERSON,
President.

Positions GUARANTEED UNDER A $5,000 DEPOSIT. R. R. FARE PAID. 200 FREE. Scholarships offered. Write quick to GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

FIFFON HULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM H. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts.
Office at the Adams' place
CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN S. DENNIS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts.
CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. KNOX,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CLANTON, ALA.
Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama.

Dr. OTTO M. WISEHART,
DENTIST.
OFFICE HOURS. 8 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m.
Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS,
SPECIALIST
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
OFFICE 20 S. PERRY ST.
Office Hours: 9 to 10 and 2 to 4.
Telephone 494—2 Calls
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. N. S. JOHNSON
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL,
JACKSONVILLE, ALA.

A school to prepare teachers. Demand for graduates greater than the supply. Board $8 per month up. Tuition free. Nineteenth year. Session begins Oct. 1, 1901. For catalogue address

CLARENCE W. DAUGETTE,
President.

E W Grove

This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL
PLANTERSVILLE, ALA.

Is a training and strictly private school for boys and girls.

Correlated to the University of Alabama and to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Has fitted more pupils for college, more pupils for teaching, more pupils for advanced business positions than all other schools in Chilton county combined. It is the only school in Chilton county whose pupils have a First Grade Certificate under the present school laws.

Its course of instruction is the best arranged, its methods the soundest, most thorough and up-to-date, its scholarship the most advanced; its location, buildings, grounds, furniture, equipments, the most attractive and best adapted of any school in Chilton county.

Its pupils enter any college in the South on certificate of the Principal. It deals honestly with the public, adheres to professional courtesy, and performs its promises. Its mission is to build up, not to pull down. It is not, as some are, a mere common school called "College," "Normal," etc., by which misnomers the uninformed are mislead.

$101 pays all expenses of board, tuition, fuel, lights, etc., for session of nine months. School opens September 25, 1901. Write for catalogue.

E. Y. McMORRIES, Principal.

The Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama
CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE.
"BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE"
WALLACE C. COLER, General Agent, Clanton, Ala.
CHILTON COUNTY BRANCH:
PRESIDENT: N. J. CALLOWAY, Clanton.
SEC.-TREAS: P. D. WILSON, Clanton.
BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
1. H. C. Young 2. Thomas Harrison 3. Alex Glasscock 4. A. J. Wilson 5. D. S. Robinson 6. A. T. Hathcock 7. C. J. Cobern 8. John R. Parnell 9. W. A. Mims

Insures Farmers' dwellings, outbuildings and contents, and Live stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning;—the cheapest, safest and most sensible method of Insurance known to man.

AGENTS MUST HAVE A COMMISSION SIGNED BY THE GENERAL AGENT.

Full particulars furnished by the county agent.

ALEX GLASSCOCK, Jemison, Ala.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

England almost owns and controls Portugal. Although a rich and fertile country, Portugal has not been able to support herself, and she has mortgaged her industries to foreign governments until she is nearly as much in pawn as Persia.

Justice Goodrich, of the New York Supreme Court, has drawn attention to the fact that the time is approaching when it will be necessary to cut loose, in a great measure, from precedent and decide law cases upon their merits after analysis. The Justice says that there are now rendered in this country more than 20,000 decisions in each year by appellate tribunals, and that there were published in 1900 420 volumes of reports, seventy-seven volumes of digests, ninety-five volumes of statutes and 150 volumes of treatises. No lawyer can do anything with such a mass of legal matter, even if he has the money to buy it; and, since no lawyer can now hope to keep up with the law as expounded, courts must necessarily fall back on application of recognized first principles to the case immediately in hand.

As the world stands to-day, the fall of nations is through internal decay and disintegration, rather than from the invasion of armed enemies. The mightiest empires of the past, whose legions once ruled a good part of the world, are falling into bankruptcy which must inevitably end their existence as independent countries. The absorption of Persia by Russia and Great Britain is concrete illustration of the new method of invasion of one country by a more powerful empire. Persia is practically a bankrupt nation to-day, and is owned part and parcel by Russia and Great Britain. She has raised loans time and again from the two Powers, and to-day mortgages cover her railroads and chief industries. The end of her resources may not yet be in sight, but she has practically delivered over half her empire to Russia and the other half to England. The result is that Persia is hardly an independent country. She can not make a move in the game of politics without consulting her owners, and if she attempted it one or the other would block the move.

The recent disastrous explosion in Philadelphia from the ignition of gasolene vapor has directed renewed attention to the dangers attending the storage or handling of this volatile oil. Gasolene has been exploded for years in lamps and stoves and more recently in launches and automobiles, and has proved itself to be, in the careless handling given it, about as dangerous as dynamite. If those having some experience and skill in its handling have accidents with it, no surprise need be felt when the vapor from a leaky barrel in a grocer's cellar meets a spark and explodes. Yet in many places no adequate measures have been adopted to regulate the storage of the oil. In the first flush of the excitement in Philadelphia the Ledger of that city recommends that the sale of the fluid be absolutely prohibited. This, it acknowledges, would be a hardship to some manufacturers who use the oil largely, as also to families who employ it in cooking, but they, as well as other people, it argues, would be protected from a real and ever-present danger by the prohibition.

As a result of the observation of a board of British naval officers some important changes are to be made in battleships to be built in the near future as part of England's principle defence. For one thing it has been decided to cut down the masts of such ships some sixty feet, because the new signaling devices introduced into use recently make tall masts unnecessary. Furthermore, the high fore and aft bridges are to be lowered, built entirely of iron, and so arranged that in clearing ship for action they can easily be slid overboard. These improvements are in the general line of naval progress, and must be accepted as good. But what will the cotsider think in regard to the gradual disappearance of all that he has long recognized as marks of a ship? There were weepings and wailings when the old spars and canvas went, and in the course of time even the fighting mast will go, and when steam is superseded perhaps even the funnels. Then we shall have nothing but the floating hulk, filled with death-dealing machines and horrid to look upon. But maybe before that time comes war will have been abolished.

ALABAMA NEWS NOTES.

CONSTITUTIONAL FIGHT BEGINS IN JEFFERSON.

FAMILY ASLEEP AND HOME BURNED.

Steamer Robbed—Gadsden Affairs—Oil Operators—Hawes Case Re-Recalled—Over Bluff With a Mule—Crushed by Cars.

WHAT IS IT?

Farmers living between New Decatur and Guntersville have for the last few days been reporting the depredations by some wild animals which have been raiding their sheepfolds and pig pens. A man named Willing, it is said, was severely clawed and bitten by one of the animals a few nights ago, but was unable to tell what his assailant was. A party of men has been organized to hunt the creature down, as the depredations are becoming serious.

ECHO OF HAWES' CASE.

An effort to secure a pardon for Fannie Bryant, who was convicted for complicity in the Hawes murder, will be made during the next few weeks. It is stated that Mrs. L. B. Trapp, of Anniston, is at the head of the movement. Judge Samuel E. Greene, of the criminal court, before whom the trial was conducted, has been requested to prepare a statement of the case.

NEW COURT HOUSE.

Calhoun county's new court house, at Anniston, is nearing completion and will be finished in a short time. The large clock has been received and will be put in place in a few days. The building is expected to be one of the handsomest structures of its kind in the state when completed.

GADSDEN ON A BOOM.

There has been a wonderful awakening along industrial lines in Gadsden the past sixty days. Some $50,000 has been subscribed to new industries and donated sites. There is a steady demand for property at a fair price and the people feel confident of a substantial and lasting improvement.

SYLACAUGA FIRE.

The two story residence belonging to John T. Lewis was totally destroyed by fire at an early hour Friday night. Late in the afternoon fire was kindled in a room up stairs, and the family went driving. The fire first broke out in the top of the building, and it is believed it caught from the grate. Loss covered by insurance.

AFTER OIL.

The Russellville Oil and Gas Company have closed a contract with McCoy Bros., of Leetonia, O., for two wells on the company's property, six miles northeast of town. Work will be commenced as soon as machinery can be placed on the ground.

ESCAPED DEATH.

D. Wright had a narrow escape from death one day last week at Scottsboro. While driving a four mule team to a heavy log wagon the wagon was overturned and, dragging the team over a bluff, fell a distance of several feet. One of the mules fell on Wright and nearly killed him.

ROBBERY AT WARNER.

Saturday night there were five houses robbed in this town. The burglars went in the windows and went through men's pockets while they were asleep. An incident similar to this occurred here four months ago.

THE T. C. I. & R. R. CO.

Concentration will be the policy of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, as announced by Vice-President J. B. McCreary, who recently came south from Nova Scotia to succeed Mr. McCormick as general manager. Ensley will be the real center of the company's works, but Bessemer will also accommodate much of the company's producing power. At these two places will be concentrated in so far as possible all the furnaces and works of the company in the Birmingham district. Ensley will be made the steel center.

SERIOUSLY INJUR

Birch Bushnell, foreman of the electrical department at the Ensley steel plant, was dangerously wounded in the machine shops Sunday afternoon. A high speed motor was being installed and when the current was turned on a part of the rim on the pulley flew off striking him across the face, cutting it in half from ear to ear. He is in the Cunningham hospital.

Birmingham will not hold a state fair until 1902.

THE trustees of the Dallas Academy have elected Miss Abbotse Spratlin teacher to fill the vacancy existing in the sixth grade.

COL. J. H. BANKHEAD, congressman from the sixth Alabama district, is at home at Fayette to recuperate from his recent illness.

JOHN H. WALLACE, JR., captured the weekly button for the ninth time in the shoot of the Huntsville Gun Club Saturday afternoon, making a score of 22 out of 25.

THE Tuscaloosa Elks' street fair is assuming lively proportions. Judge James C. Brown has promised free marriage licenses to the white couple, who will be publicly married at the fair.

THE comptroller of the currency has notified the incorporators of the City National Bank, of Anniston, that that institution has been approved, and he authorizes the immediate beginning of active banking operations.

THE citizens of Dothan, Henry county, are pleased with the result of their efforts to secure a railroad from that place to St. Joe, Florida, 120 miles. It is announced that the proposed road is a certainty, and the work of construction will begin in a short time. It will much benefit both towns.

THE Birmingham Trades Council has presented to the city council a resolution providing for the examination and licensing of motormen and conductor of street cars using the streets of the city; to provide for the establishment of a licensing board, and providing punishment for violation of the ordinance.

STEAMER ROBBED.

The British steamer, Easterfield, which loaded at Mobile last week with nearly 2,000,000 feet of lumber for South America, was robbed Sunday night of several hundred dollars worth of property, consisting of a supply of liquor, a valuable chronometer and other instruments. No arrests have been made.

SAYS IT WAS ACCIDENTAL.

Harry Dunham, a bartender was shot and dangerously wounded Wednesday afternoon by Fritz Carl, Jr., at Birmingham. Several eye-witnesses say that the shooting was accidental, but Chief of Police Austin stated that a witness had told him the shooting was intentional.

STOLE LUMBER.

A peculiar robbery is reported from Huntsville. It is stated that some unknown parties drove a wagon to the yard of the Huntsville Lumber Company Thursday night and hauled off over a thousand feet of lumber, valued at $40. No clew to the identity of the thieves has been found.

HENRY B. GRAY, CHAIRMAN.

Jefferson county has selected a Democratic constitution campaign committee. Henry B. Gray was elected chairman.

IT is now known that Czolgosz did not used poisoned bullets when he shot McKinley.

BESSEMER has increased the pay of all her city officers.

GEN. FUNSTON has been successfully operated on for appendicitis.

ANTHRACNOSE has been found in the cotton of Fulton county, Georgia.

THE University of Alabama, at Tuscaloosa, has again opened its doors.

THE orange crop of Florida this year is said to be surprisingly prolific.

THE COTTON.

Nearly all the farmers near Montgomery have the same story to tell of blighted prospects for the cotton crop. A month's bad weather has cut the crop a third. Corn is no better, and the only bright spots are the potato and sugar cane patches.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

William Bowman, aged about 17 years, was crushed to death between two freight cars of the Plant System in Montgomery Friday. He was a swithman and was engaged in coupling cars at the time.

DIED IN LONDON.

Saturday Selma received the sad intelligence from London by cable that Judge P. G. Woods, for the past twenty-four years probate judge of Dallas county, is dead from pneumonia. He was attending the Methodist ecumenical conference as representative of the Alabama conference, having been appointed in the place of the late Governor William J. Samford.

WENT OVER THE BRIDGE.

MILITARY RECEPTION TO CZAR AND CZARINA IN FRANCE.

GASOLINE FERRY BOAT BLOWS UP.

Railroad Accident Out West—Fire Engine Rolls Over Man—To Down Anarchy—Killed at a Dance — Forest Fires.

TRAIN DROPS INTO A CREEK.

An engine, three flat cars and two coaches belonging to the Wrightsville and Tennille road are now lying in Turkey Creek. Wednesday night last practically every county bridge across Turkey and Rocky creeks was washed away. In this accident a number of men were injured, one seriously, and the rest only slightly. The train wrecked was a work train and was going to the rescue of the evening passenger train which was caught between two washouts near Younkers, Ga. Over Turkey creek there is a long bridge When half way across the timbers of the bridge gave way, throwing the train into the creek. It is believed the loss will foot up several thousand dollars. Some of the bridges were practically new. It is possible that these bridges will be replaced with steel structures, though this is not certain.

A FOREST OF BAYONETS

Passed before the czar, czarina and President Loubet last Friday when 140,000 troops marched past them on the plains of Betheny. It terminated in a magnificent charge of 20,000 cavalry. The spectacle was very imposing as the infantry went by 150 files deep, with fixed bayonets. In his speech at the luncheon which followed the review, President Loubet created somewhat of a sensation by saying: "The Franco-Russian alliance is pledged to settlements inspired by justice and humanity." Whether rightly or otherwise, some of his hearers took the remark to refer to South Africa.

BOAT BLEW UP.

A gasoline ferryboat running between Elizabeth and Palestine on the Little Kanawha river blew up Friday. The last reports from there state nobody were killed, but the following were seriously and some perhaps fatally burned: William Webb, Parkersburg, captain; A. S. Woodyard, Harvey Thorn, H. H. Hopkins, all of Palestine. The other passengers jumped into the river and escaped with slight injuries. The boat was completely burned. Everybody has not yet been accounted for, and it is feared there may have been some passengers drowned.

WILL HAVE CAVALRY TROOPS.

At a meeting of a number of the leading young men of the social set it was decided to organize a cavalry troop in Chattanooga to become a part of the national guard of the state of Tennessee. About thirty-three men were present, while a number of others signified their intention of joining. The number of members will be limited to sixty. The troop is expected to be a social organization as well as a military company.

CAN'T MAKE CANS NOW.

The Toledo plant of the American Tin Can Company, employing a hundred men, was destroyed by fire Saturday, entailing a loss of $300,000, with insurance of $188,000. The plant was bought by the trust last May.

HEAD-END COLLISION.

One man was killed and others injured in a head-end collision between a Big Four passenger train and a freight on the branch of the Big Four near Lawrenceburg, Ind., Saturday. Benjamin McKee, fireman of the freight train, was killed. The injured are: Edward McMullen, engineer passenger train; Charles Hillard, fireman; Charles Lamb, engineer, fatally scalded; James Withorow, baggage-master; William Stratton, trainman, and S. E. McMunnen. Both engines were badly wrecked but none of the cars were damaged.

NARROW ESCAPE.

C. T. Brown, stoker of fire engine company No. 4, of Macon, Ga., had a narrow escape from death while the company was responding to an alarm of fire. Brown was driving the engine and when it reached the scene of fire he attempted to put on the brakes, his foot slipped and he fell to the ground. The right front wheel passed over both legs near the thigh. No bones were broken.

SENATOR QUAY, who was reported seriously ill at his Florida home, St. Lucia, is not so sick as claimed.

THE directors of the Pan-American Exposition claim to have suffered a loss of $1,000,000 by the attack on President McKinley.

THE first permanent church started in Jacksonville since the fire is underway. It will be of white stone and belongs to the First Christian denomination.

LATE reports indicate that thirty-two persons were killed in a collision between the Vienna express and a petroleum train at Paloia instead of eight as at first reported.

MISS LAURA CONGER, daughter of the United States minister to China, was married last Friday to Lieut. Fred E. Buchanan, U. S. A. Their courtship was begun during the siege in Pekin.

EMPEROR WILLIAM has conferred the grand cross of the order of the Red Eagle upon Prince Chun, head of the Chinese mission of expiation for the murder of Baron von Kettler, and the German press is seriously criticising the act.

AGAINST ANARCHY.

President Louis Lewis, of the Excise Commission, of Newark, N. J., offered an anti-anarchistic resolution to the board which was unanimously adopted. It provides that any saloon keeper in the city, who shall be charged with harboring anarchists or permitting them to hold meetings in their place of business and make speeches against the government and the good of the community, shall be deemed not the kind of person to conduct a business of this character, and any person guilty of such offense shall suffer the revocation of his license and be debarred from again receiving a license to do business in the city. Three capitans of the Newark police thanked the board for its action.

DIED A HERO.

Night Watchman Amos Morris was burned to death in Indianapolis, Saturday afternoon while trying to save the Fly Lilly Manufacturing Company's plant from destruction. Fire was communicated to excelsior in some way and Morris fought the fire till his clothing caught. Efforts were made to get the iron barred windows open but when they were forced, Morris was so badly burned that he died in a few minutes. The damage to the plant was very small.

PISTOL DUEL AT DANCE.

At a country dance in Greene county, Tenn., Friday, a pistol duel occurred at midnight with the following results: Bruce Marshall, killed instantly; Joseph Huff, shot in the back and lungs and will die; Patrick Riley, shot in the stomach. The fight came up over an attempt to put a drunken man out of the ball room.

RAILROAD SMASH-UP.

By the collision of two sections of a train on the Northern Pacific line at Lake, Friday, a number of persons were injured, one seriously. The cause assigned for the accident is the failure of the air brakes to work. An old man named Crankle, of Grants Pass, Ore., was the most seriously injured.

FOREST FIRES RAGING.

Forest fires are raging inside the city limits of Battle Lake, Wyoming, and every man, woman and child in the place is fighting the fire though hundreds of people have fled to the hills for safety.

STORMED THE WALL.

Advices from China say that a party of 40,000 people stormed the walls of Chimo, September 2, because the magistrate refused to grant their request to reduce the indemnity tax. He had been warned that the city would be seized. He posted soldiers on the city walls and made a heroic defense. Many were killed on both sides the first day and the next the forces of the people swelled to over a 100,000. The mandarin finally yielded and the extra taxes were rescinded. An important officer has been sent to Chimo to investigate.

KILLED TWO UNCLES.

At Bryan, Tex., last Saturday Jake and Bony Williams, brothers, were shot to death by Tom Williams, a nephew of the dead men.

MOVING pictures taken at Buffalo during the time President McKinley was making his last speech the day before he was shot, show Czolgosz working his way through the crowd to the front and then apparently waiting for some signal.

AMONG THE LAW MAKERS

WHAT OUR PUBLIC MEN ARE THINKING AND SAY.

OUR CORRESPONDENT'S WEEKLY LETTER.

Cuban Visitors—Roosevelt in Texas—The New Mistress of the White House—Appointments—Court's Inquiry.

Senor Quesada, the special commissioner from Cuba, accompanied by Senor Tonaylo, the Secretary of Cuba under the insular government, and Dr. Miranda, called upon Secretary Hay Saturday. The island is making every effort to further the cause of reciprocity. They realize that the present conditions are intolerable and that unless the United States is prepared promptly to grant some concessions in the matter of duties on the Cuban staples the financial ruin of the island is inevitable. Realizing the delay that would attend an attempt to frame and negotiate a reciprocity treaty, the Cuban delegation hope they will be able to make with the State Department to arrange a modus vivendi which shall remain in force until Congress has had opportunity to act on a more formal convention.

United States Senator C. K. Hanna, of Ohio, who has been on a visit to the Philippines, has returned. He left June 20th for Manila in company with Adjutant General Corbin, Senator Weston and Congressman Jones. Soon after reaching the Philippines these officials with Surgeon General Sternberg made a circuit of the archipelago. All were highly pleased with the progress made under American administration, no dissatisfaction among the Filipinos being apparent in the more southerly ports of the islands, of which comparatively little has been heard, were found to be pleased with Americans and Filipino civilizing. The future of the Philippines in the opinion of Senator Hanna is very promising.

The personal belongings of McKinley will be packed in a box and sent to Canton. Already upholsterers are about to begin the taking of the carpets which were put down for the summer from the principal portions of the house, and it is expected that this will be completed in advance of the occupancy upon the return of Mrs. McKinley from Washington of Mrs. Roosevelt next Monday. She will then indicate her desires in the way of new furniture to put the house in order for winter.

The Schley court of inquiry, inactive during the time of the President McKinley's illness and death, is now under way in earnest. The witnesses have been examined by Mr. Higginson, who said all possible was not done to destroy the Colon. Schroeder, who said the firing was hastily, and Capt. Harber, who said the blockade line was closer by day than at night. It is thought the court will sit three weeks before a decision can be rendered. The outcome can not now even be guessed at.

Gen. Leonard Wood, the new governor of Cuba, has arrived at Havana.

Harry Stillwell Edwards, the author and postmaster, of Macon, Ga., suggests that a brass tablet be placed on the pedestal of every southern statue in the South inscribed with the statement expressed by Mr. Davis in his Atlanta speech when he left the care of the Confederacy for the care of the Confederate Congress.

President Roosevelt has decided to carry out the plans of President McKinley and appoint Dr. Rixey surgeon-general of the navy. The doctor gave up a practice worth $15,000 a year to become the President's physician, and his promotion is a well worthy reward. Another of President McKinley's arrangements will be carried out by President Roosevelt is the appointment of Judge Day, of Springfield, to be comptroller of the currency in place of Mr. Dawes, resigned. Every promise made by President McKinley will be kept by the new chief magistrate.

Major General Elwell S. Otis, who has forwarded to Secretary of War Root his annual report as Chief of the Department of the Pacific, makes chief recommendations touching the administration of military justice in the care of prisoners. One of these suggests increased punishment for military offenders. The report comments on the fact that during the year there were no disorders in the department requiring the attention of military troops.

AGRICULTURAL.

The Management of Cattle.

While the use of the best cows is a most important matter, yet the management of the farm and the cattle has something to do with the production of milk. There are cows that will give more milk on some farms than others, due to better varieties of feed, more grain food and more comfortable quarters. An indifferent farmer may have good cows from which profit is derived because of poor management. During long periods of drought the pasture may not provide a fraction of the grass compared with the capacity early in the season, and it, therefore, becomes more difficult for the animals to supply them. This deficiency the farmer should observe and supply.

The Summer Diet of Chickens.

There is no perfect summer or winter food for chickens, but with a little ingenuity in mixing their diet we can supply them with what may be called perfect food. A good deal depends upon the nature of the chickens and this in regard to the food, and also upon the season of the year. While the supply of corn may do for winter feeding, it could hardly be recommended for summer feeding. It is altogether too fattening and heat producing. On the other hand a little rice is good for the fowls in summer, and is totally unsuitable for winter. There is practically no heating elements in it, and this is what we need for summer feeding, food that will nourish without heating.

Now when we feed summer or winter for eggs we must consider food from a different standpoint. We need to supply the fowls with egg-producing material, and for the time we must consider the relative importance of heating and non-heating foods much more than formerly. Usually, however, foods that make flesh and fat do not contribute to the egg-producing ability of the hens. The foods adapted to the latter are usually in a class by themselves. In addition to them we should consider only such other foods as necessary to repair the daily waste and loss of heat and fat. In cold weather the loss of the latter is much greater than in summer, and consequently the proportion of these foods must be far larger.

Both fowls and chickens indicate what they most need if turned loose. They will pick of grains, seeds, worms, bugs and all sorts of natural foods. The more of this natural food they can secure the better will it be for them. Chickens that can forage for their living in summer will always be healthy and robust. But we must not forget that very often they fail to have enough to keep them in good growing condition. After they have foraged for the day they need additional food. But in the summer this should not be corn, which so many think necessary. A little, and very little at that, will suffice. The evening meal would be much better for the poultry if composed of a great variety of seeds, grains, rice, scraps from the table, ground fresh bones, oats, barley and so on. Make such an evening meal as varied in its composition as possible, adding as few heat-producing, foods as the case will permit. Feed the poultry freely with this mixture every night, giving them what they will eat up clean. In the morning turn them loose to forage again, feeding them artificial food only when night comes again. Of course, where there are many colonies kept, the foraging grounds will be more limited, and the birds will have to receive more artificial foods.—Annie C. Webster, in American Cultivator.

An Excellent Scratching Shed.

In winter as well as in summer it is imperative that fowls should be kept busy. They delight always to be on their feet, and for this reason no better method of affording them exquisite exercise is to be met with than the ground is mantled with snow than supplying the poultry-house in some way with a good, commodious scratching-shed.

Truth to say, the scratching-shed has come to stay, and if only rightly constructed it forms a most pleasing adjunct to any poultry-house, and especially to the inmates. The idea of what is required can be seen in the accompanying illustration, although this may be varied to accommodate whatever style of house one happens to have.

The point of view is to have the shed so situated that when the sun is shining it may derive all the benefit possible from its rays. It should therefore occupy the south side of the house, as indicated in the picture—the more so for the reason that it is then out of reach, as near as can be, of the cold northwest winds.

Now, to build this form of scratching-shed erect in the first place a simple, ordinary shed, with a good roof; then, to exclude animals of prey and the like which may be prowling around even in the daytime, cover the three open sides from the exterior with good wire netting, extending it from the ground or base boards clear

AMONG THE LAW MAK

WHAT OUR PUBLIC MEN THI AND SAY.

OUR CORRESPONDENT'S WEEKLY

Cuban Visitors—Roosevelt in The New Mistress of the Wh House—Appointments—The Court's Inquiry.

Senor Quesenda, the special commissioner from Cuba, accompanied Senor Tonaylo, the Secretary of of Cuba under the insular govern and Dr. Miranda, called upon tary Hay Saturday. The delegation is making every effort to further cause of reciprocity. They rep that the present conditions are erable and that unless the U States is prepared promptly to some concessions in the reduction duties on the Cuban staples, the cial ruin of the island is inevit Realizing the delay that would an attempt to frame and ratify city treaty, the Cuban dele hope they will be able to induce State Department to arrange a vivendi which shall remain in until Congress has had opportun action in a more formal convention.

United States Senator C. H. rich who has been on a visit Philippines, has returned. He June 20th for Manila in company Adjutant General Corbin, G Weston and Congressman Julius Soon after reaching the Phili these officials with Surgeon G Sternberg made a circuit of the pelago. All were highly pleased the progress made under Americ ministration, no dissatisfaction the Filipinos being apparent more southerly ports of the of which comparatively little heard, were found to be pro with Americans and Filipinos lizing. The future of the Phili in the opinion of Senator Dietr very promising.

The personal belongings of McKinley will be packed in a few and sent to Canton. Already upholsterers are about to begin the ing of the carpets which were for the summer from the pres portions of the house, and it pected that this will be re occupancy upon the return to ington of Mrs. Roosevelt next day. She will then indicate w desires in the way of new furn to put the house in order for the ter.

The Schley court of inquiry inactive during the time of Pr McKinley's illness and death but under way in earnest. A fe nesses have been examined; A Higginson, who said all possi not done to destroy the Colon Schroeder, who said the fl hastily, and Capt. Harber, w the blockade line was closer day than at night. It is thoug the court will sit three weeks decision can be rendered. T come can not now even be

Gen. Leonard Wood, governor of Cuba, has re Havana.

Harry Stillwell Edwards, the and postmaster, of Macon, Ga gets that a brass tablet be let pedestal of every southern m in the South inscribed with the ment expressed by Mr. McK his Atlanta speech when he the care of the Confederate the national Congress.

President Roosevelt has to carry out the plans of McKinley and appoint Dr. R geon general of the navy. gave up a practice worth year to become the president physician, and his devotion president and to Mrs. McK well worthy reward. Another dent McKinley's arrangements will be carried out by Presid velt is the appointment of M ley, of Springfield, to be the currency in place of Mr. resigned. Every promise President McKinley will be by the new chief magistrate.

Major General Elwell S. forwarded to Secretary of his annual report as Comm the Department of the L chief recommendations are administration of military the care of prisoners. Ge suggests increased prison military offenders. The rep ments on the fact that dur there were no disorders in the ment requiring the attention eral troops.

AGRICULTURAL.

The Management of Cattle.

While the use of the best cows is a most important matter, yet the management of the farm and the cattle have something to do with the production of milk. There are cows that will give more milk on some farms than others, due to better varieties of cows, more grain food and more comfortable quarters. An indifferent farmer may have good cows from which no profit is derived because of poor management. During long periods of drought the pasture may not provide but a fraction of the grass compared with its capacity early in the season, and it therefore becomes more difficult for the animals to supply themselves. This deficiency the farmer should observe and supply.

The Summer Diet of Chickens.

There is no perfect summer or winter food for chickens, but with a little ingenuity in varying their diet we can supply them with what may be called perfect food. A good deal depends upon the nature of the chickens and care is in regard to the food, and also upon the season of the year. While the fine supply of corn may do for fattening fowls it could hardly be recommended for summer feeding. It is altogether too fattening and heating. On the other hand a little rice is good for the fowls in summer, and is only unsuitable for winter. There is practically no heating elements in it, and this is what we need for summer feeding, food that will nourish without heating.

Now when we feed summer or winter for eggs we must consider food from a different standpoint. We need to supply the fowls with egg producing material, and for the time we must consider the relative importance of heating and non heating foods much more than force fly. Usually, however, foods that make flesh and fat do not contribute to the egg producing ability of the hens. The foods adapted to the latter are usually in a class by themselves. In addition to them we should consider only such other foods as are necessary to repair the daily waste and loss of heat and fat. In cold weather the loss of the latter is much greater than in summer, and consequently the proportion of these foods must be far larger.

Both fowls and chickens indicate what they most need if turned loose. They will pick of grains, seeds, worms, bugs and all sorts of natural foods. The more of this natural food they can secure the better will it be for them. Chickens that can forage for living in summer will always be healthy and robust. But we must not forget that very often they fail to have enough to keep them in good laying condition. After they have foraged for the day they need additional food. But in the summer this food should not be corn, which so many think necessary. A little, and very little at that, will suffice. The evening meal would be much better for the poultry if composed of a great variety of seeds, grains, rice, scraps from the table, ground fresh bones, oats, barley and so on. Make such an evening meal as varied in its composition as possible, adding as few egg-producing foods as the case will permit. Feed the poultry freely with this mixture every night, giving them all they will eat up clean. In the morning turn them loose to forage again, feeding them artificial food only when night comes again. Of course, where there are many colonies kept, the foraging grounds will be more limited, and the birds will have to receive more artificial foods.—Annie C. Webster, in American Cultivator.

An Excellent Scratching Shed.

In winter as well as in summer it is imperative that fowls should be kept busy. They delight always to be on their feet, and for this reason no better method of affording them adequate exercise is to be met with than the ground is mantled with snow than supplying the poultry-house in some way with a good, commodious scratching shed.

Truth to say, the scratching-shed has come to stay, and if only rightly constructed it forms a most pleasing adjunct to any poultry-house, and especially to the inmates. The idea of what is required can be seen in the accompanying illustration, although this may be varied to accommodate whatever style of house one happens to have.

The point of view is to have the shed so situated that when the sun is shining it may derive all the benefit possible from its rays. It should therefore occupy the south side of the house, as indicated in the picture—the same so for the reason that it is then out of reach, as near as can be, of the cold northwest winds.

Now, to build this form of scratching-shed erect in the first place a simple, ordinary shed, with a good roof, then, to exclude animals of prey and the like which may be prowling around even in the daytime, cover the three open sides from the exterior with good wire netting, extending it from the ground or base boards clear to the top. This accomplished, construct on the inside cotton-cloth screen doors to match the netting, and have them hinged at the top so that they can be turned up to the ceiling when the weather is suitable.

When the weather is very stormy, very cold or exceedingly blustering, the doors may be dropped and the fowls left to enjoy their "gymnasium" with scarcely any inconvenience at all, the cloth admitting light sufficient for them to execute the most "foul" antics imaginable. On warm, sunny days, however, the "curtains" may be raised, as likewise they may in summer, and the poultry have a frolicking place well ventilated and pleasant in every respect. This is of decided advantage where fowls have to be confined more or less all the year, as is generally the case in and about villages.

One thing more. To realize good results from such a shed a quantity of straw, hay or the like should occupy it (this to be replaced with fresh every once in a while), and each morning some grain, such as rye, oats, wheat, barley, buckwheat or even grass seed, be sprinkled among it. Thus will the fowls be encouraged to work, so that the laziest among them will obtain a proper amount of exercise and lay in return more eggs—eggs of a much better quality, too.—New York Tribune.

Shrinkage on the Farm.

The loss of corn and fodder by shrinkage varies according to climate and the conditions of the atmosphere. Experiments have been made in different sections, and the results show that there is a wide difference in the shrinkage of corn, wheat and other grains, and that sometimes the loss by shrinkage is such as to render the crop unprofitable. The Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station has given the results of several years' work in solving the problem, and also published facts from other sources. Referring to the relative weights of ears, leaves and stalks, it was found that on August 24 about 24.3 per cent. of the total weight of the corn plant above ground was in the ear. This per cent. gradually increased until near harvest time (September 14) above 35.7 of the total weight of the plant was in the ear. At harvest 46.3 per cent. of the dry matter of the entire plant was in the ear. This experiment was repeated the next year, when it was found that about 47 per cent. of the total dry matter of the plant was in the ear. At harvest (September 14) the ear contained 45.57 per cent. of dry matter, the stalks 21.53 per cent. and the leaves 27.27 per cent., the ears, therefore, not being relatively as dry as the leaves and stalks. It may be claimed, by way of convenience, therefore, that the amount of dry matter in the ears is about equal to that of the whole plant. Ensilage corn, cut at different dates, showed the following percentages of moisture: August 10 the moisture was 82.69; August 25, 79.13; September 6, 72.51, and September 15, 65.14. One lot of 16,155 bushels of corn, of 70 pounds per bushel, was carefully weighed when cribbed. It was to be delivered in July. It weighed at the elevator a fraction over 14,896 bushels, showing a loss from shrinkage of over 1258 bushels, or about 7¾ per cent. In one experiment 2000 pounds of corn shrank 400 pounds between October 19 and January 19. At the end of the year the kernels of corn contained 12.14 per cent. of water and the cobs 25.82 per cent.

It has been demonstrated that there is a slight loss of weight in wheat between complete ripeness and the stage known as dead ripe. There is not only a loss by shelling when the grain becomes over-ripe, but a given area, kept in the ordinary manner, will weigh less if taken from an over-ripe field than if taken from a field cut at the proper time. The amount and quality of the flour, as well as the germinating vigor of the grain, are also less if the grain is allowed to become overripe. Wheat will shrink if the climate is dry; but when the wheat is taken from an intensely dry climate to a comparatively damp one the gain in weight may amount to as much as twenty-five per cent. In eighteen days in an absolutely dry atmosphere the loss in air-dried wheat was 6.2 per cent.; oats, 9.3 per cent., and barley, 7.8 per cent. According to this there must naturally be a gain if exposed again to moist air, the gain in oats in eighteen days being 19.8 per cent.; barley, 20.4 per cent., and wheat (in 14 days), 18.8 per cent. In a very dry climate the grain from such may greatly increase in weight if shipped to some point where the air is moist, the purchaser making the gain by the absorption of moisture by the grain. Experiments also show that wheat lost and gained in weight several times in a season by reason of being exposed to dry and moist conditions. The difference in loss or gain of weight depends upon the condition of the wheat when cured, and hard wheat loses less than the soft varieties. The same rule applies to corn, oats and other grains. Shrinkage usually occurs when grain is kept dry, but loss from shrinkage does not occur in all places with uniformity, as a gain in weight may result during damp periods.—Philadelphia Record.

The egg and poultry crop of Missouri dragged nearly $13,000,000 into the State last year, while mule sales, even under the stimulated demand due to the South African war, amounted to only $9,000,000.

More than eleven per cent. (11.6) of the inhabitants of Switzerland (392,000) are foreigners. In France the proportion of foreigners is three per cent., and Germany only one per cent.

FOR WOMAN'S BENEFIT

All Varieties of Boas.

Boas of every description are seen, from ostrich and coque feathers to the silk and ribbon ruche. Novelties must therefore be found in the art metal pendants chosen for the boa. Some of the latest fancies in these pendants are tiny chestnut burrs of silver and enamel, acorns or apples. Another odd design is a metal bar, from which hang two or three tiny coins. Such a pendant, however, is best used only on the broad ribbon ruche.

One Woman's Luggage.

A woman who has gone abroad for a three months' stay in Europe has put all the belongings she expects to need in a suit case. Her underwear is several suits of silk pongee, and her walking suit, in which she will practically live, is to be used with half a dozen wash-silk waists. One real toilet is all she allows herself, and this is a pretty gown of summer foulard, made with due regard to packing well. A single hat that was selected to do general service, and is handsome and available for a variety of occasions, is supplemented with a crush hat for steamer use and mountain wear.

Influence of a Laugh.

It is the woman who has the courage to be herself who attracts. Originals are so much more desirable than copies, no matter how accurate the copy may be. Let every woman dare to be herself, develop her own individuality, not blindly copy some other woman, whom, it may be, her husband happens to admire.

Let every woman think for herself, act for herself, and express her own honest opinions. Individuality, when combined with that nameless something called manner, is the most potent weapon in the possession of the sex. A good woman's laugh is better than medicine. A well told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick room.

Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows. Don't continually cry. Tears do well enough in novels, but are not desirable in life. —Woman's Life.

Stocks in Autumn.

The newest fall effects will show lattice bands on stock and belt and cuff. Lattice bands will also head flounces and, in some cases, whole yokes will be of lattice work. This may be carried out in the narrow silk bands, stitched on very neatly. A gown of turquoise blue veiling, not a costly gown, by the way, had a stock trimmed with a lattace of black satin ribbon. The yoke was also latticed. The belt of satin, with a lattice work carried over it, and the flounce consisted of a lattice, very cunningly made, so that it required no lining.

For dinner wear the dinner sash gives a finish to the gown. If the skirt be a little worn, or passed its first stiffness, nothing will resuscitate it like a sash. The prettiest sashes are made of chiffon and are shaped, the ends being rounding and rather wider than the sash itself. The entire edge is trimmed with a tiny ruching of chiffon or of white satin ribbon, no broader than baby ribbon.

Counting Housewives' Steps.

The New York State Household Economic association proposes to discover how many steps a housewife takes in a day.

It is estimated that 2000 steps make a mile, and the proposition is to compute how many miles are covered a day by the housewife in the preparation of her meals and washing of dishes. Considering 1000 meals as the average for the year, the mileage involved is something stupendous.

Members of the association have by no means undertaken this labor as a mere course of metal gymnastics. The purpose in view is to discover how often two steps might serve instead of three, and to use the statistics as a basis of reform.

A prize should be offered for the best method of reducing the number of these necessary steps on the part of busy and overworked housewives. Reversing the old saw, the man or woman who makes two steps do where three or four have heretofore been required, deserves a patent, a pension and a monument or a niche in the Hall of Fame.—Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

French Women to Be Jurors.

After securing the right to take legal degrees and be called to the bar, French women have now the prospect of being required to discharge in courts of law duties which many men hitherto have regarded as rather onerous than otherwise, and have sought oftener to avoid than to assume. A deputy has announced his intention of bringing in a bill making it not only admissible but legally obligatory for women to sit as jurors. He proposes that all juries shall be required to consist of six good men and true and six women similarly qualified. Exactly the same obligations as regards the attendance of persons called to be jurors will be binding on "citizenesses" as on citizens, and the same penalties for failure to obey a summons will be authorized by law. It must at once be said, however, that the prospective jurywomen of France nobly rejoice at the privilege which the new measure, if passed, will confer upon them, and show no disposition to grumble in advance at the burden which may be laid upon their shoulders.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Frank Advice to the Summer Girl.

"In the summer days when we are jaunting about, tarrying in new places," writes Margaret E. Sangster in the Ladies' Home Journal, "may it not happen that we are over-precipitate in following enchantments of the novel situation, that we too readily cultivate the untried acquaintance, even ignoring some loyal old friend, it may be, in our new absorption? It is wise to be a trifle reticent until we have had time to take stock of a new acquaintance. Dear girls, may I talk with you frankly about this matter of friendship, as it affects your relations with men? Mary, spending a fortnight in an Adirondack camp, meets John, who has a fortnight's vacation from the office where he is employed in New York. The two are together all day long, and till late in the evening in the witchery of the moon. Before there is the slightest intention of seriousness, one or the other, or both, may become deeply interested. A good rule then is not to be in haste. Though the summer days begin the acquaintance wait for autumn or winter before deciding an issue which must affect the summers and winters of a whole life."

Boudoir Fashions.

Mercerised cotton is effectively employed this season for boudoir gowns. It is the material best adapted to the dashing cretonne applique trimming that is so much in vogue just now. These robes call for the heavier guipure laces, too. There are a great many wash silk gowns on exhibition at the shops that are made up on simple principles purposely, so that they may be turned over to the laundress when they call for rejuvenation. One of pastel pink wash silk was gathered at the shoulder seams and fell in straight folds to the floor. It was finished with narrow frills of the same silk hemstitched. White gauze ribbon painted with a pale pink running rose pattern was wrought into a high corselet girdle with straps that came up over the shoulders. Just at the bust line on the front of the corselet the ribbon was knotted into a bow with short loops and ends extending to the bottom of the robe. The accordion plaited angel sleeves were elbow length and were finished with two rows of the gauze ribbon. This gown was made without a lining and when bereft of its ribbon corselet was as washable as the stoutest white lawn.

The hairdressers advertise freely their new low "boudoir coiffure," which is supposed to be much more in keeping with boudoir robes than the more ceremonious high pompadour styles. The hair is waved slightly around the brow, is parted on the left side and brought back loosely into the figure "8" coil that rests low on the neck. A wired butterfly bow of black velvet tops the coil.

The bootmakers, too, cater especially to these boudoir toilets. They offer some of the daintiest spring heel slippers wrought of daisy ribbon. These are woven with an openwork mesh that is filled in with silk threads holding a strass stone. Often two contrasting ribbons are called into service in manufacturing these novelty slippers. The openwork jute sandals are highly recommended for comfort. Decked out with ribbon straps and bows that are embroidered they may be made quite attractive. Both stockings and slippers worn with boudoir gowns repeat the prevailing shade of robe.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FASHION NOTES

Brown Holland is one of the wash materials that appears this season in simple effective gowns.

The popular hats of the moment are mostly large, showing a great deal of embroidery and trimmings of ostrich plumes.

Bright colored gloves, such as olive green, are considered bad form. White, pale gray and tans are those most worn at present. It is said that in Paris the gloves never match the gown.

The continued absence of pockets in women's gowns is responsible for the popularity of the chatelaine bag. Either oblong or round is considered the proper shape for the bags this season.

One of the handsomest of parasols embroidered in gold has the work done in solid embroidery on white. The tendency is in using gold to use but little of it, and it has a somewhat tawdry effect.

Much of the finest underwear is imported; the ribbed from Switzerland and the plain from France. This is particularly fine in the softness and quality of the material, and is also excellent in shape.

Blue in all shades, from the delicate forget-me-nots and baby blue tints of iris, corn flower and hyacinth shades, will be even more popular as the season advances. All of these shades appear in the linen gowns.

An ingenious device for keeping the corsage bouquet in place has been invented. It consists of an ordinary safety pin to which has been added a buckle or clasp. The latter holds the flower in place and is made of thin metal.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN

The Grasshopper's Untimely End.

"Just watch me," said the grasshopper,
Preparing for a flight;
"I feel so vigorous today,
I'll jump clear out of sight!"
I watched him as he rose in air,
He kept his word no doubt,
For down he came into a stream
Where lived a hungry trout.
—St. Nicholas.

The Game of Cities.

What boy or girl knows how to play the game of "Cities?"

This is how you begin:

I ask you the question: "What city in the United States am I thinking of?"

You reply by naming some city you think I have in mind.

If you do not guess right the first time I say no; that city is too far north, south, east or west from the one I have in mind.

For instance: Supposing I am thinking of San Francisco. I say to you: What city in the United States am I thinking of?

You answer Boston.

No, I reply; Boston is too far northeast.

Then you try again, this time naming a place further west and south of Boston, say, Philadelphia.

I tell you that Philadelphia is still too far east.

Thus you continue, naming cities further west until you say San Francisco, when it will be your turn to think of a city, or until you "give it up," when it will be my turn to choose another one.

If you can keep before your mind's eye a picture of the United States, with the position of the many colors representing the states, you will find it of immense service in locating the direction of the various cities.

Bri-an and the Tur-key.

"Oh! I'm so glad Bri-anis com-ing. He is such a dear lit-tle boy," cried Dot. "What a lot of things we shall have to show him. It seems fun-ny to think he has ne-ver been in the country be-fore."

"Here they come!" cri-ed Mar-ie, rush-ing to the gar-den gate; and the children kiss-ed their lit-tle cou-sin un-til his cap fell off. After dinner the three children made for the farmyard.

"You see, there's such a num-ber of things you've ne-ver seen. Bri-an—chickens and ducks and geese and pigs and—"

"I've seen lots of zem," said Bri-an, a lit-tle in-dig-nant. "We has chickens for din-ner, and ev-er so ma-ny years a-go, I don't 'xactly 'mem-ber when, we had a goose, and we has tur-key at Ch'is-'mas."

Dot and Mar-ie laughed. "But you have ne-ver seen them run-ning a-bout, have you?"

Be-fore Bri-an could make up his mind what to say, they came up-on a brood of duck-lings, and his shout of de-light told them the sight was new to him.

Then the chick-ens and the gos-lings and the lit-tle pigs, all were fresh and de-light-ful to the city boy, and his cou-sins were as happy as he.

But his ro-sy cheeks grew a shade pal-er when he saw a big tur-key strut-ting a-bout with out-spread tail.

"He doesn't look much like the tur-keys in the shops, does he?" said Dot.

As the tur-key took no no-tice of them, Bri-an's courage soon came back. Sud-denly he gave a great shout, and point-ing to the tur-key's wat-tles, he cried ex-cit-ed-ly, "Why, the tur-key's got a trunk!"

Dot and Mar-ie laugh-ed so much at Bri-an's dis-cov-ery that Bri-an began to laugh too, al-though he did not know why; so it was a ve-ry happy par-ty that mo-ther call-ed indoors at last.

But all the time he stay-ed at the farm no-thing plea-sed Bri-an so much as watch-ing the tur-key, and when he was quite a big boy his cou-sins used to re-mind him of the tur-key's trunk.—Cassell's Little Folks.

They Lived 600 Years Ago.

In the early part of the 14th century two exiled Italians left behind them forever their beautiful native city of Florence. One of them was Dante, whom you have all heard of as the poet; the other was Petracco, the father of Petrarch, the poet. Petrarch was born July 20, 1304, at Arrezo, during the second year of his parents' exile, and was named by them Francesco. He was destined to be as famous as his father's companion in exile, Dante. From his earliest childhood Francesco, or Checco, as his little companions called him, loved literature, and daily the longing to be a great writer grew in him. His father, a passionate man, could not give up the desire to see his son a jurist like himself. The story is told that one day in anger he threw into the fire all his boy's most cherished books. Francesco pleaded so hard for his treasures that at last his father rescued two books which were only half burned, and these two were "Cicero" and "Virgil."

This love of letters nothing could kill. It is true that, yielding to his father's wishes, he spent seven years of his life at Montpelier and Bologna studying law, but he always regarded these years as "not so much spent as totally wasted," and after his father's death he gave up the study forever.

Free at 22 to devote himself to literature, he placed himself under the patronage of influential nobles, a necessary step to a literary man of that day. We marvel at the number of books which came from his pen. Though all the world knows him best for the beautiful love songs which he wrote in Italian, his list of Latin books is very interesting. Then there was the Latin poem about Scipio Africanus which brought Petrarch the greatest honor of his life. Largely because of the interest it aroused, on Easter, 1341, Petrarch was crowned with the laurel wreath.

Petrarch's life was a long one, so long that he found time not only to become one of the foremost writers but to collect a library, to make a collection of coins, to arouse interest in preserving old manuscripts, fast becoming lost to the world, and in many ways to awaken the people of his time to a love of the old Greek and Roman writers.

One day in 1374 they found him fast asleep over a book in his home at Arqua. When they tried to waken him they found that he was dead. So was the wish which he had once expressed to his friend Boccaccio fulfilled—"I desire that death find me reading or writing."—Chicago Record-Herald.

What the Wave Said to Molly.

One day not very long ago Molly and Tom went with mamma to the beach. Mamma sat and read while Molly and Tom built castles and forts, waded in the water, caught a jelly fish, and did lots of things.

By and by Molly got tired of playing, so she sat down and watched the waves as they splashed up the beach. At last one little wave almost covered her with water, and then she jumped pretty quick, I can tell you.

"Please don't run away," said the wave. "I wanted to tell you of an adventure of mine." And it gave a splashy chuckle of delight.

"Dear me," said Molly. "Do you have adventures? I thought you did nothing but play all day."

"No, indeed," said the wave. "We have lots of adventures. Once I helped wreck a ship—but I'm not going to tell you about that. This was a funny happening. Yesterday I was playing down there by the bulkhead under the long walk. Lots of land people were leaning over the wall to watch us dance. Pretty soon along came a little girl and her mother. The little girl was crying hard 'cause she was hot and tired and cross. They stopped to watch us and the little girl climbed up and looked over the wall, while her mother held her tight. And all the time the big tears were a-rolling down her face." And the little wave gave another chuckle.

"I don't think it was very funny," said Molly, frowning.

"Don't you?" asked the little wave. "Why, I thought so. Now, please, don't get angry 'cause I haven't come to the funny part yet."

"So the little girl cried," it went on, rippling along the shore. "And I kept a-wondering how to make her laugh. I dashed myself against the bulkhead ever so many times, but it wasn't any use. I couldn't jump high enough you see. And the little girl's tears came so fast she couldn't see through 'em."

Here the little wave stopped and ran off toward the ocean. "O, come back, do, please, little wave," cried Molly, "and tell me how you made her laugh."

The wave came splashing in again and curled around Molly's toes. "I didn't think you cared about it. But if you really and truly want to know—"

"Of course I do," said Molly, clasping he hands.

"Well," said the little wave, as it rolled up a pebble. "I couldn't do it all by myself, you see. So I thought and thought and then I remembered by great-great-great uncle, Seventh Wave. So I ran off quick to find him, 'cause I was afraid the little girl might go away 'fore I came back. And I met him rolling in toward shore. He was foaming with anger and was going to tear down that bulkhead, he said. I told him all the story and after a while he promised to do what I wanted. Then I hopped on his back and away we went rolling in. The little girl was there still, crying hard, and lots of other land people were there, too. Everybody cried, 'Look at that mon-ster-ous wave!' They didn't know it was me on uncle's back that made him look so big. So we came crashing against the bulkhead. And just as we struck it I jumped high in the air and dashed my spray right into the little girl's face."

"And then?" asked Molly.

"And then—the little girl laughed," said the wave as it slipped back into the sea.

"Molly!" called mamma. "You've been standing there for ever so long. Was it a day dream, little daughter?"

Molly rubbed her eyes and laughed, but never a word she said about the story the little wave told her.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Sovereign of Greater Britain.

It appears to be in contemplation to give King Edward a title more worthy of his actual position than that of king, and the one that seems to find most favor in the discussion is "Sovereign of Greater Britain." This would give him distinction over all the other rulers of the earth, since it would raise an indefinite title to a position of commanding definiteness, as the addition of "the" to an Irish name marks the head of the house; when allusion was made to "the sovereign" it would be understood that the Sovereign of Greater Britain alone was meant. How the other sovereigns would take such an assumption of superiority remains to be seen.—Philadelphia Ledger.

And Also Lawyers.

Bobbie—Pa, what happens when cars are telescoped?

Father—The passengers are sure, my son.—Smart Set.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain,
Here patriot truth his glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly . . . $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

FINE weather for cotton picking—if you have the cotton to pick

OPPOSITION to the ratification of the new Constitution is springing up, but it is too early yet to judge what strength it may develop.

FROM all accounts the cotton crop is going to prove a small one, and it is hard to say what keeps the market down to its present figures.

OUR copies of the new Constitution have not yet come to hand, and we are consequently unable to send them out to our subscribers this week.

What has become of the Peoples' Savings Bank? Nothing has been heard of it lately. We hope it is not going to be allowed to fall through. Clanton needs a bank, and needs it now.

ASSASSIN Czolgosz was convicted on Tuesday of the murder of President McKinley, and the Judge will pronounce sentence to-day (Thursday). The law is being expeditiously and faithfully administered in this case.

THE country is settling down again, after the excitement produced by the tragic death of the lamented McKinley. President Roosevelt starts off with a strong feeling of confidence on all sides that he has the ability to make a good strong executive.

Will the Farmer Listen?

While the farmers of the South are selling their cotton crop, it might be well to study out a few figures.

On Saturday Atlanta quoted cotton at 7 7-8 cents per pound.

On the same day corn was quoted at from 78 to 80 cents per bushel—with futures calling for from 10 to 20 cents higher.

Clear ribs sides stood at 9 1-2 cents.

Ribs, 8 7-8 cents.

Hams, to 1-4 cents.

Lard, 10 3-4 to 11 cents.

These articles form the staples of the provision market. The excuse of the all-cotton farmer has been that he could buy these articles cheaper than he could sell his cotton, and that so long as he had a margin he was justified.

The position, of course is not correct. The first law of domestic economy calls for sustenance. The man who plants without regard to sustenance is always in danger, and the figures given above prove it. Not only does the farmer have to give a difference of from 1 to 3 cents per pound for his supplies, but he has to add the wear and tear of transportation, the loss of time and the inevitable interest.

Can a man afford to raise cotton at 7 7-8 cents per pound, and trade it with a bonus of from 1 to 3 cents per pound for ribs, ham and lard?

Or putting the case differently:

One farmer raises all cotton for 7 7-8 cents. His adjoining neighbor raises meats-tuffs at from 8 7-8 to 11 cents per pound. Which of the two get the best of it in the trade?

The cotton crop of the South is the commercial king of America, but to extract its full profit the farmer should raise it as cheaply as he can, and then sell in the highest market. The best cotton-raiser is the man who has his own smoke house and corn crib.

Is there not a lesson in this for next year?—Atlanta Constitution.

Verbena.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox Maull of Deatsville have been visiting friends in our city.

Rev. A. I. Cousins, presiding elder of the Prattville district, has been assisting Rev. Mr. Threadgill in his protracted meeting, also Rev. Mr. Rinehart and Rev. Mr. Feagan are assisting in the meeting. They are having a good old time Methodist protracted meeting.

Miss Susie Merriwether, one of our most accomplished young ladies, has gone to New York to study to be a professional nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Crenshaw and children of Birmingham, who have been spending the heated term at the Clifton House, have gone on a visit to relatives in the capital city.

Mrs. G. M. Rousseau and family who have been spending the summer here, have returned to their home in Montgomery, to the regret of their many friends.

Miss Cathleen Clisby, one of the Magic city's most lovely and fascinating young ladies, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home to attend college at Montevallo.

Miss Fannie Marks, a talented and artistic young lady, of the capital city, is the charming guest of Mr. W. A. Gayle's family.

Miss Lula Virden, one of Montgomery's fair young ladies, who has been spending the heated term in our delightful summer resort, has returned home.

Misses Athens Curry, of Ohio, and Mary Lockwood, of Montgomery, two fair young ladies, who have been stopping at the Clifton House, have gone to Montgomery, to the deepest regret of some of our boys. Cheer up boys and "cease repineing behind the cloud, is the sun still shining."

A number of our young ladies and gentlemen took one of their proverbial possum hunts and caught one lone possum, but they report of having a great deal of fun in hunting the sleepy possum.

Mr. Gus Baumgarten, of Memphis is visiting friends in Verbena

Mr. Noble Billing of Montgomery has been the guest of friends here.

Mrs. J. M. Dennis and children, of Montgomery, are registered at the Clifton House.

Cotton will all be picked out and sold in a short time.

There is two things I don't think our people have got use for, that is the new constitution and the stock jaw in this section.

Beating All Records.

Whenever the American people find a thing of merit, absolute genuine merit, they appreciate it and never hesitate to make liberal use of it. It is merit that counts for the enormous sale of Cascarets—over six million boxes last year. It is the best bowel and liver regulator in the world and sells at prices that suit everybody—10c, 25c and 50c a box, put up in tablet form, and every tablet stamped "C.C.C." There is no waste. Cascarets are easy to take and are sold by the makers under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if Cascarets do not prove satisfactory. A 50c box is enough for a month's treatment for the worst case. We urge every sufferer to give Cascarets an immediate trial.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People, everywhere it has been introduced, are wild with delight You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect Send stamps for one. Ladies' size 50c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sights Agents are wild with success. (See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

Stood Death Off

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digesiton, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Clanton drug store.

52 Banners cost only 75 cents.

PROGRAM

Of the 75th Anniversary and Minister's and Deacon's Meeting of the Ebenezer Baptist church, to be held at Stanton, Ala., September 27, 28, and 29, 1901.

FRIDAY.

9:30 a.m. Prayer and song service.

10. Welcome address and responses.

11. Sermon, "The feet-washing scene." A. J. Dickinson.

2:30 p.m. Prayer and song service.

3. "The pastor and his Bible." A. J. Dickinson.

4. Question box.

7. Prayer and song service.

7:30. "The sermon: Its object, nature, power, etc." F. M. Woods

8. Sermon, "Giving the first law of Christ's Kingdom" J. E. Barnes.

SATURDAY.

9 a.m. Prayer and song service.

9:30. "How to preach with power." A. J. Dickinson

10. "A sketch of Ebenezer Baptist church." W. O. Perry.

11. Sermon, "Soul winning for Christ." P. V. Bomar.

2:30 p.m. Prayer and song service.

3. "What the world owes the Baptists" J. E. Barnes

4. "Why Baptists should teach their distinctive doctrines." W. J. Ruddick.

4:30. "What Baptist young people can do for Christ." A. J. Preston.

7. Prayer and song service.

7:30. "Does God require all Christian men to pray publicly." W. H. Connell.

8. Sermon, by A. J. Preston.

SUNDAY.

9 a.m. Prayer and song service.

9:30. "What the world owes the Missionaries." J. E. Barnes.

10. "Christianity essentially missionary." W. H. Connell.

10:30. "The Sunday-school as a church and missionary agency." A. J. Preston.

11. Missionary sermon by F. M. Woods.

2:30 p.m. Prayer and song service.

3. "The need of foreign mission work as seen by an eye witness." T. U. Crumpton.

3:30. Reflex influence of foreign mission work on the home churches. F. M. Woods.

4. What Baptist missionaries are doing for the world to-day. J. E. Barnes.

7. Prayer and song service.

7:30. "The layman and his Bible." P. V. Bomar.

8. Sermon. "The three R's." Isaac Windsor.

The public is cordially invited. All visitors will be cared for.

P. G. MAXWELL, Pastor.

TUSKEGEE, ALA., July 28, 1898

Dr. C. J. MOFFETT—My Dear Sir: Justice to you demands that I should give you my experience with your excellent medicine, TEETHINA. Our little girl, just thirteen months old, has had much trouble teething. Every remedy was exhausted in the shape of prescriptions from family physicians. Her bowels continued to pass off pure blood and burning fever continued for days at a time. Her life was almost despaired of. Her mother determined to try TEETHINA, and in a day or two there was a great change—new life had returned—the bowels were regular, and thanks to TEETHINA, the little babe is now doing well. Yours, etc.,

D. W. McIVER,
Editor and Proprietor Tuskegee (Ala.) News.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

In Chancery, at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, Northeastern Chancery Division.

Amanda Jones, Complainant, vs. Jack Jones, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of A. C. Smith, Solicitor for Complainant, that the Defendant, Jack Jones, is a non resident of the State of Alabama, whose post-office and residence are unknown to affiant, and further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner a newspaper published in Clanton, Alabama, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said Jack Jones, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 28th day of October, 1901, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office, in Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama this 23rd day of September, 1901. W. L. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

A. C. SMITH,
Solicitor for Complainant.

It is not a liniment, nor a salve. Contains no grease or ammonia. A rational, scientific, chemical compound. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic stands pre-eminently superior to any remedy offered the public for healing Wounds, Burns and other injuries. Used internally it is a fine thing for colic and bowel troubles.

TAX NOTICE.

ASSESSOR'S & COLLECTOR'S First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of assessing the State and County Taxes of Chilton County for the year 1902, and collecting the taxes for the year 1901.

			1901
Pletcher	Beat 8	Oct	1
Stanton	" 8	"	2
Dixie	" 8	"	3
Shoalts	" 7	"	4
Maplerville	" 7	"	5
Benson	" 3	"	7
Macedonia	" 3	"	8
Providence	" 2	"	9
Jemison	" 2	"	10
Mineral Springs	" 1	"	11
Strasburg	" 9	"	12
Clanton	" 4	"	14
Cooper	" 5	"	15
Verbena	" 5	"	16
Kincheon	" 6	"	17

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished, when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager, 316 Caxton Building, Chicago.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the affected parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "NUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"NUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"NUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a compound treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "NUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C 985 EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2340 and 2342 Market Street, Philadelphia.

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Clanton Drug Co.

Here we are

Fairly settled down in our new store with the Finest Line of Goods ever brought to Chilton county, all conveniently arranged for your inspection

OUR DRY GOODS—come and see them—make your eyes glad.

OUR SHOES—come and see them—make your feet easy.

OUR CLOTHING—come and see them—make your family.

OUR HATS—come and see them—make you feel good.

OUR GROCERIES—come and see them—make your mouth water.

OUR NOTIONS—come and see them—make you take a notion to us.

OUR STORE—come and see it once—make you want to come again.

OUR STOCK—Ah!—come and see it—make you want to buy.

OURSELVES—come and see us—we are always glad to see you.

and we are yours most respectfully,

W. H. Sartor,

CLANTON

We will move October 1st to 2012 First Ave.

EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES

J. Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Qt.

COLLIER DRUG CO.,

THE CUT RATE DRUG STORE

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO

W. A. KEMP

KEEP YOUR EYE ON IT

C. W. WILSON

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Fancy Groceries a Specialty

CLANTON

THORSBY NORMAL SCHOOL

A SCHOOL OF INDEPENDENT NORMALISM. OF SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS.

THOROUGH, PRACTICAL, MORAL AND NON-SECTARIAN.

Economy taught and practiced. We court investigation. We shall be glad to have anyone, at any time, examine into the details of our work.

One of the best equipped schools of the State. The Main building is a beautiful two story structure of fifteen rooms. The Dormitory is an excellent three-story structure well suited to the purposes for which it is used. The Library consists of more than a thousand volumes.

BOARD, $8.50 TO $8.00 PER MONTH.
TUITION, $1.50 TO $2.50 PER MONTH.

It is our purpose to build up and to lend a hand to helping institutions throughout the State in elevating the youth to a higher standard of citizenship.

For catalogue or further information, address

RASCO & CARMICHAEL, Thorsby, Ala.

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' Court convenes monthly in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in August, and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART

Price to-day 7¾ @ 7 7-16 cents

Same date last year 9½ cts.

Receipts received to date	1901	1900
Pinckard & Co	275	50
Mullins	146	296
Wilson	6	51
Downs	16	59
Total	443	456

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

BRICK for sale at $5 and $6 per 1000. F. R. Woodward, Clanton.

Mr. Claud McRee of Montgomery visited friends here a couple of days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Foshee returned from Selma Wednesday, after a pleasant visit of several days to their son Durwood.

Mr. R. Y. McMorries, of Gadsden is visiting friends in town.

Write T. M. Collier for a catalogue of Clanton High School.

Mr. R. C. Middleton of New Orleans, and Mrs. W. F. Middleton of Mt. Carmel visited the parents of the former the past week.

Miss Maud Lenoir of Lily was a visitor here Wednesday.

New millinery. Stylish and cheap at Mrs. Phillips. If you want something pretty and cheap call on her.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jones a fine boy Tuesday night.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Noel a bouncing boy Wednesday morning.

Mr. Charlie Gulledge of Verbena was in town Wednesday.

Clanton High School is the place to give your boys and girls a practical education.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Mr. W. M. Sartor is visiting his daughter, Mrs. L. H. Stewart, at Birmingham.

Judge Adams went to Birmingham on Tuesday.

Dr. W. F. Middleton was in town last Friday, en route to his home at Mount Carmel, from Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Collins of Birmingham attended the funeral of the latter's sister, Mrs. C. R. Mullins, here Sunday.

Prepare for enthusiastic teaching in Clanton High School.

Mrs. Mary A. Ray and Mr. and Mrs. Pyron of Deatsville visited the family of Mr. W. I. Mullins Sunday.

Miss Zuella Popwell of Lily was a visitor here Tuesday.

Married at the residence of the bride's parents at Clanton, on Sunday, September 23, 1901, Mr. Jno. Thacker and Miss Annie Mullar, Rev. D. F. Ellison performing the ceremony. Long and happy may their lives together be.

Two prisoners, Will Anderson and Frank Patterson, both colored, made their escape from the county jail last Friday night, and up to the present have not been recaptured.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Missey's ad in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every 30 days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will abpreciate same in future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1185½ 21st st., between 1st and 2d aves, Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Mr. W. H. Stacy has repainted his warehouse, done away with his livery department, and will run a first class restaurant.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. J. D. Thacker and Miss Annie Marler; Mr. Archie Fisher and Miss Lizzie Graham.

STOP THE COUGH and Works off the Cold. Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure, No Pay. Price 25 cents.

e are

. Sartor.

CLANTON

October 1st
First Ave.
AT CUT PRICES

d Virginia Rye 75c Per Qua

DRUG CO.,
UT RATE DRUG STORE
HAM, · ALA

E BELONGS TO

KEMP

ER EYE ON IT

WILSON
EALER IN—
MERCHANDISE
eries a Specialty
CLANTON

ORMAL SCHOOL
NDENT NORMALISM. OF
DEPARTMENTS.
L MORAL AND NON-SECTARIAN.
science! We court investigation
, at any time, examine into the schools of the State. The Main structure of fifteen rooms The hree-story structure well suited
. The Library consists of more than
0 TO $8.00 PER MONTH.
50 TO $3.50 PER MONTH.
d up and to lend a hand in helping tate in elevating the youth to a
information, address
& CARMICHAEL, Thorsby, Al

TOWN ITEMS

Chilton county court comes second Monday in February, first Monday in June, and fourth Monday in October and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART

Price to day (Nov. 8) 7 7-16 cents. Same date last year 9½ cts.

Receipts to date	1901	1900
Pinckard & Co.	226	507
Molina	146	286
Wilsonville	6	54
Downs	16	52
Total	414	889

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

BRICK for sale at $5 and $7 per 1000. F. R. WOODYARD, Clanton.

Mr. [illegible] McRee of Montgomery visited friends here a couple of days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Foshee returned to Selma Wednesday, after a pleasant visit of several days among Durwood.

Mr. R. N. McMorries, of Gadsden, is visiting friends in town.

Write J. M. Collier for a catalogue of Clanton High School.

Mr. J. C. Middleton of New Orleans and Mrs. W. F. Middleton of Mt. Carmel visited the parents of the former the past week.

Miss Maud Lemoir of Lily was a visitor here Wednesday.

New millinery. Stylish and cheap at Mrs. Phillips. If you want some pretty and cheap call on her.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jones a fine boy Tuesday night.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bell a bouncing boy Wednesday morning.

Mr. Charlie Gulledge of Verbena was in town Wednesday.

Clanton High School is the place to give your boys and girls a practical education.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Mr. W. M. Sartor is visiting his daughter Mrs. L. H. Stewart, at Birmingham.

Judge Adams went to Birmingham Tuesday.

Dr. W. T. Middleton was in town on Friday, en route to his home at Mount Carmel, from Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Collins of Birmingham attended the funeral of the latter's sister, Mrs. C. R. Mullins here Sunday.

Prepare for enthusiastic teaching in Clanton High School.

Mrs. Mary A. Ray and Mr. and Mrs. Paton of Deatsville visited the family of Mr. W. I. Mullins Sunday.

Miss Zuella Popwell of Lily was a visitor here Tuesday.

Married at the residence of the bride's parents at Clanton, on Sunday, September 23, 1901, Mr. [illegible] Thacker and Miss Annie Blair, Rev. D. F. Ellisor performing the ceremony. Long and happy may their lives together be.

Two negroes, Will Anderson and Frank Patterson, both colored, have been sent from the county to Birmingham, and up to present writing have not been recaptured.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Work for Dr. A. J. Missey's [illegible] He has established a branch office at Clanton, will spend a week here every [illegible] days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in future. He will pay fare one way to those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1916 First st., between 18th and 19th sts., Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Blanks, etc., at The Banner office.

Mr. W. [illegible] has repainted his store, [illegible] away with his [illegible] and will run a [illegible] paint.

Marriage licenses have been issued since last by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

[illegible] Thacker and Miss [illegible] Mr. Archie Fisher to Miss [illegible] Graham.

STOP THE COUGH and work off the Cold. Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure, No Pay. Price 25 cents.

NOW!

Our Mr. Pinckard has just returned from the East, where he purchased our Fall Stock, securing many fine grades of goods.

We must make room for these new goods, so NOW is your chance. We will show you great bargains, call and see us.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

FIRE! FIRE!

GREAT SACRIFICE SALE!

Goods damaged by removal must be sold at any price.

This is Your Great Opportunity.

All these goods are good as new, they were only slightly damaged by removal; the fire did not reach my store, but all the stock was removed.

Calicoes from 3 and 4 cents. Lawns from 4 cts.
Ladies' Hats 50 cents on the $1.
Men's and Children's Straw Hats 50 c on $1.
Clothing at half price.
Shoes at half price.
Big line of Umbrellas.
Embroidery 4 cents.

I have a big stock and it must positively be sold. Come in and see for yourselves and pick out your own bargains. You have never seen such values before. Respectfully,

H. TOURO, Clanton

C. R. MULLINS

REPRESENTS THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEWARK, N. J., AND SEVERAL LEADING FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

and will insure your lives and property at lowest current rates.

I also wish to state that I am getting in my Fall stock of the Latest Improved High arm SINGER MACHINES, and I have my office full of second hand machines of different kinds, all in good running order, that I will sell cheap for cash or trade for produce, most any old way and at any old price. I must have the room for my new stock which will arrive about September 1st.

Also have on sale at my office the latest improved SMOOTHING IRON with Fluter combined.

NEEDLES, OIL, BANDS, CANS, ETC.

Regular office days Saturday and Monday.

C. R. MULLINS, Agent, Singer Office, Clanton.

REYNOLDS BROS.,

—DEALERS IN—

...General Merchandise...

COTTON BUYERS.
JEMISON, ALA.

Owing to a change in our business we are going to sell our entire stock at prices that will alarm you.

10 lbs. Good Coffee	$1.00
18 lbs. Sugar	1.00
Success Soda per pound	4
Men's Oil Grained Best Grade Shoes	1.25
Women's Oil and Glove Grained Shoes—Button or Lace—Best on Earth only	1.00
1 lb. Schnapps, Red Apple, Red Rabbit, and Early Bird Tobacco	32
Calico per yard	5
Cotton Checks per yard	5
Good Suit Clothes only	4.00
Good Family Flour	3.25

Remember the old adage: "Make hay while the sun shines," and get your share of these goods.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR BEEF CATTLE AND COTTON SEED

This is Spot Cash. Do not ask to have them charged, as you will be denied.

REYNOLDS BROS.

FINEST OIL MADE

FOR SEWING MACHINES, CLOCKS OR BICYCLES.

YOUR MONEY REFUNDED IF NOT SATISFACTORY. FOR SALE BY

L. D. POPWELL, CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $20 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

THE
VITAE ORE
PREPARATIONS

are on sale by
Campbelle Drug co., clanton,
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A. Ayers, clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kincheon
J. B. Downs, clanton.

N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Parry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bachelor mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T. U. CRUMPTON, Prop'r
MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERY THING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L. Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS--SASH, DOORS, BLINDS; MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE
FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1 00	12 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water, white 150 fire test oil	18
½ bbl " " "	2.25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	13
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14-lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware and the very best Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please,
A. M. JOHNSON, Manager

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	$1.50
Nashville American	1.50
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald	$1.50
Home and Farm	$1.10
Southern Farmer	$1.00

THE NULITE.

750 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS

Produce the finest artificial light in the world. Superior to electricity or gas. Cheaper than kerosene oil. A 20th Century Revelation in the Art of Lighting.

They darken into daylight here,
And are indeed of money here.

No Smoke. No Odor. No Noise. Absolutely Safe. They are Portable. Hang or stand them anywhere. We also manufacture Table Lamps, Wall Lamps, Pendants, Chandeliers, Street Lamps, Etc. The brightest and only really successful Incandescent Vapor Gas Lamps made. They sell at sight. Each burner 100 candle power. Nothing like them. Good Agents Wanted. Write for catalogue and prices.

Chicago Solar Light Co. 83 Fifth Av. Chicago, Ill.

BALLOONS IN WARFARE.

ALL MODERN ARMIES USE THEM IN THE FIELD.

Germany's Effective Types—Other Countries Find the Airships Valuable—American Signal Service Employs Them—How General Porter Sailed Over His Enemies.

Germany is further advanced than any other country in the development of the war balloon, says the Boston Herald. The most effective type of the war balloon was invented in Germany. It is known as the kite baloon. It looks very like a German sausage. The large bag of this balloon is an elongated cylinder with hemispherical ends. This bag is filled with hydrogen gas. It hangs at an angel of forty-five degrees, due to the fact that a smaller wind-bag hangs at the end of it and partly surrounds it. This wind-bag is in fact the rudder to the balloon.

A German war balloon is made of cotton cloth. It is composed of two thicknesses of this cloth coated with rubber. This is the heaviest fabric used in ballooning, and this fact is very much against it. It has been found by experiment, however, that the silk balloon is too strong a conductor of electricity, specially when coated with rubber. Some years ago, when a silk balloon was sent up in Berlin, the man handling it received a violent shock, and then the balloon burst into flames and the gas exploded, killing one man and injuring five others. Since that time rubber-coated silk has not been used in military ballooning in Germany. But in the United States there have been silk balloons used for war purposes, and in the experiments made in Colorado by Captain Glassford, of the signal service, pongee silk, treated with linseed oil, was used successfully.

Some very expensive experiments were made abroad with goldbeater's skin. This is the membrane obtained from the entrails of the bullock. One animal furnishes a single membrane from eighteen to thirty inches long and ten to twenty inches wide. These membranes are salted until needed. Then they are placed in a vessel with salt water, with a glue obtained from the sturgeon of the Caspian Sea.

A model of cotton cloth having been prepared, the surface is oiled, and inflated within a scaffolding. The membranes are taken from the water and stretched on the inflated cotton cloth, their edges overlapping. In this way the model is covered completely. Two more layers of membrane are laid on, and then ribbons of the same material are laid so as to form a lattice work. This prevents the balloon tearing. On this ribbon structure three more layers of skin are laid. Air is then pumped between the surface of the cotton model and the first layer of skin, and in this way they are separated so that the cotton model can be withdrawn. These membrane balloons cost $1,800 each. The regulation field balloon of the German army costs about $1,250.

The kite balloon is not surrounded by netting. This saves a great deal of weight. A belt of heavy sailcloth passes around the balloon at the bottom, and to this cords are attached, which suspend the basket and also give connection with the ribbon through a cable system. When the balloon rises, the small bag at the lower end is filled automatically by the wind. The object of this bag is to keep the head of the ballon always to the wind.

The war balloon is always attached to a cable. The outfit consists of eight wagons. One holds the balloon, one the reel and cable and six are filled with tubes and gas, to be used in inflating the balloon. Twelve tube wagons are taken into the field in time of war. Six of these, holding twenty cylinders each will carry enough gas to fill the balloon; the other six are a reserve.

In the field the balloon is inflated and let out at the end of the cable. When it is desired to withdraw it it is reeled in by hand. It takes sixteen men to reel 600 meters of cable in twelve to fifteen minutes.

The regular balloon corps is a branch of the German military service attached to the railroad brigade. There is a course of instruction, both physical and mental, and ascensions are made in all weathers, and observations are made to perfect the observers in drawing conclusions as to the movements of armies the plans of forts, etc., from what they can observe from the car of the balloon. Photographs are also made from the balloon car, and form fairly good maps.

Ballooning in war is no means a novelty, and the late General Fitz-John Porter, nearly forty years ago, had an experience with a runaway balloon at Yorktown, while making observations of the Confederate lines. The balloon got away from the cable and Gen. Porter was in danger several times of being carried into the enemy's country. He was actually traveling over Dixie for a considerable part of the time he was in the air, but he found a favoring current which brought him back within the Federal lines and allowed him to make a landing there.

It was President Lincoln who gave orders to have the balloon used for making observations at the beginning of the war but after two years of experimenting the balloon was abandoned. Its failure was due to lack of scientific operations. To-day every great nation has its balloon corps attached to the army. In the United States the signal corps has charge of ballooning, and has recently made many valuable experiments. To be sure, the balloon in our war with Spain was a source of some criticism and ill-feeling, because it was said the great gas bag which was carried along the Santiago road told the enemy accurately the position of our advancing column. Probably in this place it might have been better had it not been used but there are places where its use is extremely valuable, as the experience of other nations has demonstrated.

APPRECIATION

Soon the rose, full-blown and gay,
From the bough will fade away;
But it tosses, brightly glowing,
Brimming with the joy of knowing
That it blows and blooms—today.
—H. K. Munkittrick.

HUMOROUS.

Sillicus—What do you consider the marriageable age? Cynicus—Bondage.

Hoax—He doesn't know enough to come in out of the rain. Joax—Well, he always knows enough to have a borrowed umbrella.

"Men are all alike," declared the cynical old maid. "Yes; I suppose all men look alike to you," murmured the frivolous young thing.

Nell—Do you think that is all her own hair? Belle—No; part of it is her sister's. At least, I saw her sister buying some just like it.

"Sticking to a thing," said the Wise Guy, "is what causes one to rise in the world." "How about the fly and the fly paper?" murmured the Simple Mug.

"Oh, yes! The Rev. Mr. Kurves is a very eloquent preacher." "I understand that he was once a baseball pitcher." "Yes, and a fine one." "Ah, I suppose that's where he got his good delivery."

Dick—Do you like romantic girls, Harry? Harry—I gues not! When you make a hole in your salary buying them expensive flowers they tear them apart, repeating: 'He loves me—he loves me not.'

"I realize the untruth of that saying now," remarked the little pig who had managed to get into the clover field. "What's that?" asked the imprisoned one, enviously. "'The sward is mightier than the pen.'"

"Madam," said a coarse lawyer, "baffled in his attempt to make a cool witness contradict her statements, "you have brass enough to make a saucepan." "And you have sauce enough to fill it," she retorted.

Mrs. Housekeep—That was a very small quart of peaches you sent me, and besides they were very green. Dealer—Yes'm; I noticed they were green, so I thought I'd better not send you enough to do you any harm.

"My good little man," said the visiting pastor, "I am afraid you've been fighting. A black eye! Don't you want me to pray with you. "Naw," said the good little man; "run home and pray with your own kid. He's got two black eyes."

FEATURE OF THE AGE.

The Tendency of Mankind Toward the Larger and Less Selfish Life.

If we were to ask what is the chief characteristic of the present age we should no doubt receive a great variety of answers. Our own answer would be that fundamentally the most marked feature of these times is an attempt to eliminate human nature as the governing factor in the affairs of mankind. Of course, we do not mean that any one believes that the race can be made over again and constituted with an entirely new nature; but the fact which most deeply impresses itself upon the student of human affairs is that there seems to be quite a unanimous belief that some sort of modus vivendi is capable of being attained whereby we shall all, while retaining in our make-up the old traits with which man was endowed when sentient life first made its appearance on this planet, agree nevertheless to subordinate our natural promptings and to bind ourselves to act strictly in accordance with carefully devised schemes of economic and social expediency. The old animal, self-seeking man is to become a thing of the past. The animal and self seeking propensities will no doubt remain, but we shall all be so immensely impressed with the theory of the whole raised working in the most delicately adjusted and harmonius relations to the achievement of great ends looking to the greatest good to the greatest number that it will be the easiest task in the world for us to put a quietus on these propensities every time they show any signs of asserting themselves. In short, the world is rapidly progressing, or thinks it is, toward an orderly, systematic life." This notion governs, or at least is supposed to govern, our activities in every department of human existence. "The larger life" is now the thing by which we all swear, and in which every one of us would willingly have his individuality swallowed up. Such is life and its tendencies as defined by the philosopher, religious, social, economic and industrial, today.—United States Investor.

France's Stationary Census.

The census returns show the population of France to be, in round numbers, 38,600,000, an increase of only 330,000 on 1896. To this small increase Paris and its suburbs contribute 292,000, the greater part of which number is due to foreign immigrants, so that the rest of France gives an increase of only 38,000. Since 1850 the population of France, allowing for alterations of boundaries, has only increased from 35,000,000 to 38,000,000, whereas that of the United Kingdom has risen from 27,000,000 to 41,000,000, Germany from 35,000,000 to 56,000,000, Austria from 30,000,000 to 45,000,000, Italy from 23,000,000 to 32,000,000 and Russia, partly owing to annexations, from 66,000,000 to 128,000,000.—London Times.

The appellate court of India holds that the release clause in a railway pass does not bar a suit for damages sustained through the negligence of an employe of the road.

"ROSE CURE" AND CRIME.

INTERESTING PHASE OF "BACK-TO-NATURE" IMPULSE.

The Employment of Floriculture as a Remedial Factor in Institutions—The Interest That Criminals Take in Their Charges—Deep-Seated Love of Beauty.

An interesting phase of the impulse "back to nature" that is so widely evidenced of late in the higher literature, the saner fads, amusements, etc., is the employment of floriculture as a remedial factor in the treatment of misdemeanants.

We seem to be slowly possessing ourselves of the knowledge that nature's way with the soul of a man is a good one, after all; that simple gladness of color and grace of contour are powers in our psychic life, and that even from the viewpoint of the most orthodox of reformers Sidney Lanier's reading of the "holiness of beauty" holds a radiance of the truth. As humble witness of all which need only be noted the marvellously remedial effects of rose culture. The discovery of this was, after the manner of many valuable discoveries, made by accident. The matron of a house of correction in the middle west, a place adequate, perhaps, but altogether unattractive in its bald utilitarianness, was presented one spring with a rose tree. Incidentally the donor had hesitated some time between this and some serviceable article of apparel, finally deciding upon the former, with the following results:

Preparatory to taking a rather longer vacation than usual the owner of the rose tree consigned it, not indeed without some misgivings, to the care of one of the women committed, whose confidence it had seemed impossible to gain. Patience, gentleness, friendliness had alike fallen fruitless. The poor soul seemed intelligent enough, but morally dead to any remedial influence. The owner of the rose tree was making arrangements for its return to the donor during her absence when the sullen, sodden features of the woman who had been so much in her thoughts rose before her mind's eye, and on an impulse, as inexplicable as it was sudden, she called her and explaining carefully its needs and how to meet them gave the beautiful blossoming thing into her care. After an absence of some weeks she returned to find the plant in a most flourishing condition, and its caretaker, with a new light is her eyes, the hint of a purpose in her shambling gait and the dawning of a conscience in her dulled consciousness, for she voluntarily, in response to the owners praise of its appearance, admitted having forgotten her charge several times, a carelessness which resulted in the destruction of one of its finest shoots. When this small episode reached the ears of one of the board of directors it gave her an inspiration upon which she was not long in acting. It was shortly reported about the place that the showing now made by the single rose tree was so fine that a rose garden for the house was in contemplation. A friend of the institution was found who was willing to stand financial sponsor for the experiment. A very simple and inexpensive conservatory was erected and a few dozens of the most beautiful variety of roses purchased. Then a course of talks on their care was given—very simple, very practical, very short—interspersed with stories of what roses had done in the world and how they had figured in its work. Very tactfully and unostentatiously wise supervision over every detail of the project was kept, but the full care of the plants was given to the women themselves. The summer following a large plot of ground was appropriated to the "rose cure." This was several years ago, and the success of the experiment has justified every dollar and every effort expended upon it.

Two other institutions, one for men, have adopted this method of employing inmates, and those interested in the matter have reason to believe the work will shortly be self-supporting through the sale of cut flowers and slips; the moral effect has already proved phenomenal. The influence of any sort of out-of-door activity has long been recognized as morally healthful and remedial, but it seems there is a vital difference between the effect of work among beautiful flowers and that given to the cultivation of, for instance, potatoes and cabbages. In the male house of correction mentioned three men who had systematically shirked their consignment of labor on the truck farm during confinement actually, after their release, sought a recommitment through the courts, simply to find out how their rose beds were thriving, they having toiled early and late in the making and care of them, and a half-grown boy in his eagerness to return after discharge threw a brick through a store window, finally admitting his object in doing so when questioned in court. Such instances, though exceptional, and happily so, are nevertheless indicative. The love of beauty is as deep-rooted as the love of life itself; every form of it is ennobling, uplifting, purifying. Changes have perhaps been run to weariness on the "single-rose-reforming-a-whole family" theme, but the fact remains—actual experience proves—that the most intelligent utilitarianism necessarily includes estheticism, or rather, perhaps, the extremes meet, mingle and are eventually one.

At all events the suggestion of these pioneer institutions is worthy of note and amplification, and the principle involved might be applied in many phases of reformatory work.—E. H., in The New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Cork-Faced Pulley.

A new type of pulley has a metal face with inserts of cork. Holes about three-fourths of an inch in diameter are made in the pulley face and filled with cork, which is allowed to project slightly. Great economy of transmission is the chief aim of the invention.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: The Methods Needed in the Modern Church—A Practical Gospel to Helpful—Ministerial Laziness Denounced—The Church Needs No Apologies.

[Copyright, 1901.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Most encouraging to all Christian workers is this discourse of Dr. Talmage while denying the accuracy of statistics which represent Sunday audiences as diminishing; text, Hebrews x, 25, "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together."

Startling statements have been made in many of the pulpits and in some religious newspapers. It is heard over and over again that church attendance in America is in decadence. I deny the statement by presenting some hard facts. No one will dispute the fact that there are more churches in America than ever before, one denomination averaging two new churches every day of the year. The law of demand and supply is as inexorable in the kingdom of God as it is in the world. More churches supplied argues more church privileges demanded. More banks, more bankers. More factories, more manufacturers. More ships, more importers. More churches, more attendants.

In all our cities within a few years churches have been built large enough to swallow up two or three of the old-time churches. I cannot understand with what kind of arithmetic and slate pencil a man calculates when he comes to the conclusion that church attendance in America is in decadence. Take the aggregate of the number of people who enter the house of God now and compare it with the aggregate of the people who entered the house of God twenty-five years ago, and the present attendance is four to one. The facts are most exhilerating instead of being depressing. That man who presents the opposite statistics must have been most unfortunate in his church acquaintance.

You are not to argue adversely because here and there a church is depleted. Churches have their day. Sometimes merchandise will entirely occupy a neighborhood and crowd out the churches and families ordinarily attendant upon them; sometimes a church perishes through internecine strife. But there are no facts to overthrow the statement that I have made in regard to the increasing attendance upon the house of God. Now, I am ready to admit, as every intelligent man will admit, that there are churches which have been depleted, and it is high time that a sermon be preached for the benefit of young men who are just entering the gospel ministry and for the warning of prosperous churches as to what are the causes of decline in any case. If merchandise crowd out a church, that cannot be helped, but under all other circumstances decadence in church attendance is the fault either of the church or of the pastor.

Churches are often cleared of their audiences by the attempt to transplant the modes of the past into the present. The modes and methods of fifty years ago are no more appropriate for to-day than the modes and methods of to-day will be appropriate for fifty years hence. Dr. Kirk, Dr. McElroy, Dr. Mason, Dr. De Witt, Dr. Vermilyea and hundreds of other men just as good as they were never lacked audiences, because they were abreast of the time in which they lived. People will not be interested in what we say unless we understand the spirit of the day in which we live. All the woebegonish statistics are given by those who are trying in our time to work with the worn-out machinery of the past times. Such men might just as well throw the furnaces out of our church basements and substitute the foot stoves which our grandmothers used to carry with them to meeting, and throw out our organs and our cornets and take the old fashioned tuning fork, striking it on the knee and then lifting it to the ear to catch the pitch of the hymn, and might as well throw out our modern platforms and modern pulpits and substitute the wineglass pulpit up which the minister used to climb to the dizzy height of Mont Blanc solitariness, and then go in out of sight and shut the door after him.

The trouble begins away back in the theological seminaries. It is a shame that larger provision is not made for ministers of religion, for the sick and the aged and the infirm who have worn themselves out in the service of God. We have naval asylums and soldiers' asylums for men who fought on land and sea for our country when these men have become aged or crippled, and it is a shame that larger provision is not made for the good soldiers of Jesus Christ who have worn themselves out in battling for the Lord. But lack of provision in that respect makes a tendency to turn our theological seminaries into hospitals for sick and aged and infirm ministers.

When a man begins to go down they give him the title of D. D. by way of resuscitation. If that fails, then the tendency is to elect him to a professorate in some theological seminary. There are grand exceptions to the rule, but it is often the case that the professorate in a theological seminary is occupied by some minister of the gospel who, not being able to preach himself, is set to teach others how to preach. In more cases than one the poorest speaker in the faculty is the professor of elocution.

We want more wideawake, more able-bodied, able-minded men, more enthusiastic men, in our theological seminaries and in the professorates—men like Addison Alexander, who could during the week teach young men the theory of preaching and then on Sunday go into the pulpit and with the thunder and lightning of Christian eloquence show them how. What would you think of a faculty of unsuccessful merchants to train young merchants or a faculty of unsuccessful lawyers to train young lawyers?

It is often the case that theological seminaries cut a man and clip him and square him and mold him and bore him and twist him until all the individual is gone out of him, and he is only a poor copy of a man who was elected to a professorate because he could not preach.

We want less dead wood in the theological seminaries and more flaming evangels. I declare that a man who cannot preach himself cannot teach others how to preach.

At a meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States a clergyman accustomed on the Sabbath to preach to an audience of two or three hundred people in an audience room that could hold 1500 was appointed to preach a sermon on how to reach the masses! I am told the incongruity was too much for the risibilities of many of the clergy in the audience. Now, a young man coming out from such bedwarfing influences, how can he enter into the wants and the woes and the sympathies of people who want on the Lord's day a practical gospel that will help them all the week and help them forever?

Young ministers are told they must preach Christ and Him crucified. Yes, but not as an abstraction. Many a minister has preached Christ and Him crucified in such a way that he preached to an audience of 500 down to 200 and from 200 to 100 and from 100 to fifty and from fifty to twenty and on down until there was but little left save the sexton, who was paid to stay until the service was over and lock up! There is a great deal of cant about Christ and Him crucified. It is not Christ and Him crucified as an abstraction, but as an omnipotent sympathy applied to all the wants and woes of our immortal nature, a Christ who will help us in every domestic, social, financial, political, national struggle, a Christ for the parlor, a Christ for the nursery, a Christ for the kitchen, a Christ for the barn, a Christ for the street, a Christ for the store, a Christ for the banking house, a Christ for the factory, a Christ for the Congressional assembly, a Christ for the court room, a Christ for every trial and every emergency and every perturbation.

Oh, my brethren in the Christian ministry, we must somehow get our shoulder under the burden of the people on the Lord's day and give them a good stout lift, and we can do it. We have it all our own way. It is a great pity if, with the floor clear and no interruption, we cannot during the course of an hour get our hymn and our prayer or our sermon under such momentum as we can, by the help of God, hit the people, body, mind and soul, clear out of their sins, temptations and troubles.

I think that ministerial laziness often empties the church of auditors. Hearers who are intelligent through reading newspapers and by active association in business circles will not on the Sabbath sit and listen to platitudes. Hearers will not come to sermons which have in them no important facts, no information, no stirring power, no adaptation, no fire. The pew will not listen to the pulpit unless at least on the subject that day under discussion, the pulpit knows more than the pew. Ministerial laziness has cleared out many churches. Such ministers saunter around from parlor to parlor under the name of pastoral visitation and go gadding about through the village or the city on erranda of complete nothingness and wrap their brains around a cigar and smoke them up and then on Saturday afternoon put a few crude thoughts together and on Sunday morning wonder that the theme of Christ and Him crucified does not bring a large audience, and on Monday sit down and write jeremiads for the religious newspapers about the decadence of church attendance.

People will not go to church merely as a matter of duty. There will not next Sabbath be a thousand people in any city who will get up in the morning and say: "The Bible says I must go to church. It is my duty to go to church; therefore I will go to church." The vast multitude of people who go to church go to church because they like it, and the multitude of people who stay away from church stay away because they do not like it. I am not speaking about the way the world ought to be; I am speaking about the way the world is. Taking things are they are, we must make the centripetal force of the church mightier than the centrifugal. We must make our churches magnets to draw the people thereunto, so that a man will feel uneasy if he does not go to church, saying: "I wish I had gone this morning. I wonder if I can't dress yet and get there in time. It is 11 o'clock; now they are singing. It is half-past 11; now they are preaching. I wonder when the folks will be home to tell us what was said, what has been going on."

When the impression is confirmed that our churches, by architecture, by music, by sociality and by sermon, shall be made the most attractive places on earth, then we will want twice as many churches as we have now, twice as large, and then they will not half accommodate the people.

Therefore, my brother Christian worker, if you and I find two illustrations for a religious subject, and the one is a Bible illustration and the other is outside the Bible, I will take the latter because I want to be like my Master. Looking across to a hill, Christ saw the city of Jerusalem.

Talking to the people about the conspicuity of Christian example, He said: "The world is looking at you; be careful. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid." While He was speaking of the divine care of God's children a bird flew past. He said, "Behold the ravens." Then, looking down into the valley, all covered at that season with flowers, He said, "Consider the lilies."

Oh, my brother Christian workers, what is the use of our going away off in some obscure part of history or on the other side of the earth to get an illustration when the earth and the heavens are full of illustrations?

Oh, Christian workers, we have got to freshen up. What is the use of our going back in the Christian classics to find an illustration of the victorious Christian deathbed when my personal friend, Alfred Cookman, a few years ago went away in as imperial grandeur as did Edward Payson?

Is it any less an illustration to me and to you because I met him a few weeks before in front of Trinity Church, Broadway, and I said: "Cookman, you look as if you were working too hard?" Where in all the classics is there such a story as that of Cookman, when in his last moment he cried: "I am sweeping through the gates washed in the blood of the Lamb?"

Oh, fellow Christian workers, what is the use of our being stale and obsolete and ancient when all around us are these evidences of God's grace, God's deliverance, God's mercy and God's wisdom? We have got to freshen up in our sermons, freshen up in our songs, freshen up in our zeal, freshen up in our consecration, and if we do it, my brethren and sisters, we will no more have to coax people to come to church than if you throw corn on the ground you have to coax pigeons to come and eat it, no more than you would have to coax a tired horse to eat the oats you throw in his manger. Yes, we must freshen up in our Sunday-schools and in our prayer meetings and in our pulpits.

It is high time that the church of God stopped writing apologies for the church. Let the men who are on the outside, who despise religion, write the apologies. If any people do not want the church, they need not have it. It is a free country. If any man does not want the gospel, he need not have it. It is a free country. But you go out, oh, people of God, and give the gospel to the millions of America who do want it.

It is high time we stop skirmishing and bring on a general engagement. I want to live to see the Armageddon, all the armies of heaven and hell in battle array, for I know our Conqueror on the white horse will gain the day. Let the church of God be devoted to nothing else, but go right on to this conquest.

When Moses with his army was trying to conquer the Ethiopians profane history says it was expected that he would go in a roundabout way and come by the banks of the river, as other armies had done, because the straight route was infested with snakes, and no army and no man had dared to go across this serpent infested region. But Moses surprised them. He sent his men out to gather up ibises. The ibis is a bird celebrated for serpent slaying, and these ibises were gathered into crates and into baskets, and they were carried at the head of the army of Moses, and coming up to the serpent infested region the crates were opened and the ibises flew forth, and the way was cleared, and the army of Moses marched right on and came so unexpectedly on the Ethiopians that they flew in wild dismay. O church of God, you are not to march to a roundabout way, but to go straight forward, depending upon winged influences to clear the way. Hosts of the living God, march on, march on! Church attendance, large now, is going to be larger yet. The sky is brightening in every direction. I am glad for the boy and girl five years old; I think they may see the millennium. The wheel of Christian progress has never made one revolution backward. The world moves, the kingdom advances. All nations will yet salute the standards of Prince Immanuel. To Him be glory in the church throughout all ages. Amen!

THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR SEPTEMBER 1.

Review of the Twelve Lessons of the Third Quarter. Gen. xviii., 17-19, 23-26, 32—Golden Text, Ps. cxl. 13—Summary.

Lesson 1. Topic: The creation. In the beginning God created all things. Afterward He came to the earth to set it in order. He performed six days work. On the first day He made light; on the second the waters were divided; on the third the dry land, seas, grass and trees appeared; on the fourth He made the sun and moon; on the fifth, fish and fowls; on the sixth, creeping things, beasts and man; on the seventh God rested.

2. Topic: The fall of man. Place: The Garden of Eden. The serpent beguiled the woman, said, "Ye shall not surely die," but "shall be as gods." The woman saw that the tree was good for food, pleasant to the eyes, beautiful; would make one wise; took of the fruit; she gave to Adam and he did eat; their eyes were opened; they sewed fig aprons and hid themselves. God came and spake to them; the serpent was cursed; the Redeemer was promised.

3. Topic: The deluge. Place: Ararat mountains. Noah built an ark; took beasts and his family into the ark; the waters were sent; the earth was covered; Noah sent out a raven, and dove; the ark rested; the earth became dry; God told Noah to go forth; he built an altar unto the Lord and offered burnt offerings; the Lord was pleased with his offering, and promised never again to curse the ground for man's sake.

4. Topic: Abram's obedience. Place: God speaks to Abram: "Get thee out of thy country;" "Go to the land I will show thee;" God made great promises, first that he was to become a great nation; that he should be a great name; he would be blessed; he would be a blessing. Abram obeyed; Sarah and Lot and all his substance went; he left Haran and went to Canaan. God again appeared to Abram; he was pleased; Abram built an altar.

5. Topic: The separation between Abram and Lot. Place: Canaan. Abram and Lot left Egypt; they had many herds; their herdmen strove; they decided to separate; Abram told Lot to choose. Lot chose the best; pitched his tent toward Sodom. God appeared to Abram; told him to look in all directions; was promised all he saw; was to become a great nation; built an altar unto the Lord.

6. Topic: God's covenant with Abram. Place: Hebron. The Lord appeared to Abram in a vision; Abram said he had no son; God made him a great promise, his seed was to be as the stars for number; Abram believed God, and the Lord counted it to him for righteousness. Abram prepared an offering—a heifer, a goat, a ram, a dove, a pigeon. Abram waited for the Lord to appear; God gave instructions; made covenant and answered by fire.

7. Topic: God's judgment on Sodom. Places: Abram at Hebron. Lot at Sodom. Three angels appear to Abraham; they promise him a son; they tell Abraham that the cities of the plain are very wicked and must be destroyed. One of the angels is Jehovah; Abraham stands before the angel and makes intercession. Jehovah promises to spare the cities if there are ten righteous. Lot is rescued; the cities are destroyed.

8. Topic: The trial of Abraham's faith. Places: Beer-sheba was Abraham's home. The sacrifice was on Mount Moriah. Abraham is commanded to offer up Isaac for a burnt-offering. Abraham obeys; rises early; takes Isaac, fire and wood; leaves Beer-sheba; starts for Moriah. Isaac asks a question; Abraham answers. An altar is built; Isaac is bound; the knife is raised; an angel stops him; a ram is seen and offered. Blessings; the Lord was pleased with his offering, and promised never again to curse the ground for man's sake.

9. Topic: Isaac oppressed by the Philistines. Places: Isaac dwelt at Gerar; Rehoboth and Beer-sheba. Isaac sowed; Jacob and Esau are born. Isaac prospered; becomes very great; has many possessions; was envied by the Philistines; the Philistines fill his wells; Isaac leaves their country; the Lord appears to Isaac and renews His promises. Isaac builds an altar, dug a well and lived in peace.

10. Topic: The Lord appearing to Jacob. Place: Bethel. Jacob secures Esau's birthright; flees to Haran; sleeps on the plain; has a dream. He sees a ladder reaching to earth to heaven and sees angels on the ladder. God speaks to him and renews many promises. Jacob awoke; knew God was present; was afraid; set up the stone he had used as a pillow, for an altar; gave himself to God.

11. Topic: Jacob's prevailing prayer. Places: Mahanaim. Penuel. Jacob returns to return to Canaan; is met by a host of angels; fears his brother Esau; sends messengers and presents to Esau; divides his company into two bands; prays alone; wrestles with Jehovah; finally succeeds and receives the blessing; is made a prince; his name is changed to Israel. Esau and friendly meeting with Esau.

12. Topic: The effects of wisdom. Solomon, the author of Proverbs, was endued with an unusual degree of wisdom. That we might behold the value of wisdom God has preserved some of the wise sayings of His servant for our use. This lesson has been called the divine looking-glass, and is set before us that we may see our faces are toward the drunkard's home, that they may see what they are when they go on.

Teachings.—God, our Creator, alone can create us anew and give us a new heart. The Psalmist prayed, "Create in me a clean heart, O God." In yielding to the inducements held out by Satan Eve disobeyed God and accepted "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life," and in returning to God it is necessary to forsake "the world" if we can expect to be forgiven. The ways of God's judgments may seem strange, but in the end they can not fail to produce good results.—God's promises are sure and precious; we should believe them and step out upon them with confidence. Those who allow selfishness to control their lives cannot retain the favor and fellowship of God. While God is merciful, the time will come with every one when the door of mercy will be closed and the judgments of God will be meted out. Faith is always tested; the test is not for the purpose of destroying faith, but to strengthen and perfect it. God appears to His people for the purpose of encouraging them and leading them to heaven. True prayer takes hold of God and does not let go until an answer is received. The evil effects of the liquor traffic are so great that no person should stand unalterably against its continuance.

Considering the bulk of the mail the mails are interfered with to a wonderful dom that the letter which should have been sent through it has been received may be regarded as a myth, and the letter writer is said not to have been received. It has certainly been sent, and is said to have got there. We know that it reflects upon a very common apology for running neglect, namely and laziness, but the letter does not lie.

CONSTITUTION CAMPAIGN COMMENCES

Election Day Named by Governor—Chairman Underwood Announces His Campaign Committee.

Governor's Proclamation.

Whereas, Under the terms of section 22 of an act approved December 11, 1900, entitled an act

"To provide for the holding of a convention to revise and amend the Constitution of this state, which said section reads in part as follows:

"Be it further enacted, That if the event of the framing of such constitution by said convention, it shall be the duty of the Governor, within one week after the filing of the same with the Secretary of State, to issue his proclamation, published as heretofore required for the proclamation to assemble the convention to make known the fact that such constitution has been framed, and thereby require an election to be held in the several counties of this state, in the same manner and by the same officers as general elections are required to be held, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of this state for ratification or rejection of said constitution," and

Whereas, The convention did assemble in the hall of the House of Representatives, in the capitol at Montgomery, Ala., on Tuesday, May 23, 1901, and there did frame a constitution in accordance with the provisions of the law as laid down in said above named act:

Now, therefore, I, William D. Jelks, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby, in pursuance of my duty, as provided by section 22 of the said act, appoint Tuesday, November 11, 1901, as the day for an election to be held in each county of this state to determine whether the qualified voters will ratify or reject said constitution, so framed. The sheriffs and other officers charged with duties connected with the election will take notice of this proclamation, and provide for said election in conformity with the law.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed. Done at the capitol, in the city of Montgomery, Ala., this 16th day of September, 1901. WILLIAM D. JELKS.

By the Governor:

Robert P. McDavid,
Secretary of State.

The Arrangements.

Congressman Underwood, the chairman of the State Democratic Campaign Committee on the ratification of the new constitution, has announced the names of the gentlemen who will assist him as follows:

Ben F. Elmore, Demopolis.
George W. Jones, Montgomery.
Henry D. Clayton, Eufaula.
W. B. Brown, Columbiana.
A. J. Driver, Lafayette.
W. W. Brandon, Tuscaloosa.
John L. Burnett, Gadsden.
J. H. Nathan, Sheffield.
B. A. Thompson, Birmingham.
J. G. Moore, Birmingham.
A. M. Tunstall, Greensboro.
E. K. Campbell, Birmingham.
W. T. Sanders, Athens.

Mr. Underwood expresses the greatest confidence in the result. "It will be a campaign of education," said he. "There will be no personalities indulged in and our slogan will be, White Supremacy! Honest Elections! and the New Constitution—One and Inseparable?"

A call has been issued for the committee to meet in Birmingham on Saturday the 21st.

Senator Daniel, of Virginia, lives in very modest style in Washington. He cannot afford to spend much money, because everything he gets goes toward the payment of his father's debts. Daniel has spent thirty years paying off these debts, and it will probably be a life work. His father was Judge William Daniel, of Lynchburg. He was considered well-to-do, but when he died it was found that his fortune had been swept away in the panic of 1873, and that his liabilities were more than $100,000 in excess of the assets. Although Senator Daniel could have repudiated these debts, he chose to assume them. That was nearly thirty years ago, and all that time Senator Daniel has been paying off the debts with interest.

Mosquito hunters will follow with interest the experiments that are being made in New Orleans, where the mosquitoes flourish practically all the year around. Oil has become very cheap in that city since the opening of the Texas fields, and it has been decided to try to do two things at once—lay the lust in the streets and kill the mosquitoes. Railroads have tried sprinkling their roads with crude oil, and have found this method most efficient in permanently laying the dust. New Orleans is trying the same thing, and it is said to be as successful in streets used for traffic as it is on railways. Most of New Orleans mosquitoes are bred in open drains and cisterns, and while the streets are being sprinkled oil is put on the neighboring drains.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR SEPTEMBER 1.

Review of the Twelve Lessons of the Third Quarter. Gen. xviii., 17-22; xxii., 24-28 — Golden Text, Ps. cxlii., 4. Summary.

Lesson 1. Topic. The creation. In the beginning God created all things; afterward He came to the earth to set it in order. He performed six days' work; on the first day He made light, on the second the waters were divided, on the third the dry land, seas, grass and trees appeared; on the fourth He made the sun and moon; on the fifth fish and fowls, on the sixth creeping things, beasts and man, on the seventh God rested.

2. Topic. The fall of man. Place. The garden of Eden. The serpent beguiled the woman, said, "Ye shall not surely die," but shall be as gods. The woman saw that the tree was good for food, was beautiful, would make one wise; she took the fruit, she gave to Adam and he did eat; their eyes were opened, they made aprons and hid themselves. God came and spake to them; the serpent was cursed; the Redeemer was promised.

3. Topic. The deluge. Place. Ararat mountains. Noah built an ark, took beasts and his family into the ark; the waters were sent, the earth was covered; Noah sent out a raven, and then a dove; the ark rested; the earth became dry; God told Noah to go forth, he built an altar, offered burnt offerings; the Lord was pleased with his offering and promised never again to curse the ground for man's sake.

4. Topic. Abram's obedience. Place. Ur. Abram. Get thee out of thy country. Go to the land I will show thee. God made great promises. Abram was to become a great nation, was to have a great name, he would be blessed, and would be a blessing. Abram obeys God, takes Sarai and Lot and all his substances and goes to Haran and went to Canaan. Here God again appeared to Abram, and Abram built an altar.

5. Topic. The separation between Abram and Lot. Place. Canaan. Abram and Lot. Both had many herds, they could not dwell together, they decided to separate. Abram told Lot to choose. Lot chose the best, pitched his tent toward Sodom. God appeared to Abram, told him to look in all directions, was promised all the land he saw, was to become a great nation, built an altar unto the Lord.

6. Topic. God's covenant with Abram. Place. Hebron. The Lord appeared to Abram in a vision. Abram asked for a son, God made him a great promise; his seed was to be as the stars for number. Abram believed God, and the Lord counted it to him for righteousness. Abram prepared an offering, a heifer, a goat, a ram, a dove, a pigeon. Abram waited for God to appear. God gave instruction, made covenant and answered by fire.

7. Topic. God's judgment on Sodom. Places. Abram at Hebron. Lot at Sodom. Three angels appear to Abraham; they promise him a son; they tell Abraham that the cities of the plain are very wicked and must be destroyed. One of the angels is Jehovah. Abraham stands before this angel and makes intercession. Jehovah promises to spare the cities if there are ten righteous. Lot is rescued, the cities are destroyed.

8. Topic. The trial of Abraham's faith. Places. Beer-sheba. Abraham's home. The sacrifice was on Mount Moriah. Abraham is commanded to offer up Isaac as a burnt offering. Abraham obeys; early, takes Isaac, fire and wood and starts for Moriah. Isaac asks a question. Abraham answers. An altar is built. Isaac is bound, the knife is raised; an angel stops him, a ram is seen and offered.

9. Topic. Isaac oppressed by the Philistines. Places. Isaac dwelt at Gerar, Rehoboth and Beer-sheba. Isaac is married. Jacob and Esau are born. Isaac is prospered; becomes very great, has many possessions; was envied by the Philistines. The Philistines fill his wells; Isaac leaves their country; the Lord appears to him and renews His promises. Isaac builds an altar, digs a well and lived in peace.

10. Topic. The Lord appearing to Jacob. Place. Bethel. Jacob secures Esau's birthright; flees to Haran; sleeps on the ground, has a dream. He sees a ladder from earth to heaven and sees angels on the ladder. God speaks to him and makes many promises. Jacob awoke, knew God was present; was afraid; set up the stone he used as a pillow, for an altar; gave himself to God.

11. Topic. Jacob's prevailing prayer. Places. Mahanaim, Peniel. Jacob on his way to return to Canaan, is met by a host of angels; fears his brother Esau; sends messengers and presents to Esau; divides his company into two bands; prays all night, wrestles with Jehovah; finally surrenders and receives the blessing; is made a prince; his name is changed to Israel; has a friendly meeting with Esau.

12. Topic. The effects of wine drinking. Solomon, the author of Proverbs, was endued with an unusual degree of wisdom. That we might behold the value of this wisdom God has preserved some of the wise sayings of His servant for our benefit. This lesson has been called the drunkard's looking-glass, and is set before those whose faces are toward the drunkard's habitation, that they may see what they will become if they go on.

Teachings. God, our Creator, is able to create us anew and give us a new heart. The Psalmist prayed, "Create in me a clean heart, O God." In yielding to the inducements held out by Satan man disobeyed God and accepted "the world" which St. John says consists in "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye and the pride of life," and in returning to God it is necessary to forsake "the world." What we can expect to be forgiven. Although God's judgments may seem severe, yet in the end they can not fail to accomplish good results. God's promises are sure and precious; we should believe them and step out upon them with confidence. Those who allow selfishness to control their lives cannot retain the favor and love of God. While God is merciful, yet we will come with every sinner when the door of mercy will be closed and the judgments of God will be meted out. Faith is always tested; the test is not for the purpose of destroying faith, but to strengthen and perfect it. God appears to His people for the purpose of encouraging them and leading them to heaven. True prayer takes hold of God and does not let go until an answer is received. The evil effects of the liquor traffic are so great that every person should stand unalterably opposed to its continuance.

Considering the bulk of the business in the mails are interfered with in the kingdom that the letter which is said to have been sent through it has not been received may be regarded as a myth, and the letter which is said not to have been received by him it has certainly been sent may be said to have got there. We know this reflects upon a very common institution, the apology for seeming neglect, discourtesy and insolence, but the fact does not lie.

CONSTITUTION CAMPAIGN COMMENCES

Election Day Named by Governor—Chairman Underwood Appoints His Campaign Committee.

Governor's Proclamation.

Whereas, Under the terms of section 22 of an act approved December 11, 1900, entitled an act

"To provide for the holding of a convention to revise and amend the Constitution of this state," which said section reads in part as follows:

"Be it further enacted, That in the event of the framing of such constitution by said convention, it shall be the duty of the Governor, within one week after the filing of the same with the Secretary of State, to issue his proclamation, published as heretofore required for the proclamation to assemble the convention to make known the fact that such constitution has been framed, and thereby require an election to be held in the several counties of this state, in the same manner and by the same officers as general elections are required to be held, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of this state for ratification or rejection such constitution;" and

Whereas, The convention did assemble in the hall of the House of Representatives, in the capitol at Montgomery, Ala., on Tuesday, May 23, 1901, and there did frame a constitution in accordance with the provisions of the laws aforesaid and known in said above named act

Now, therefore, I, William D. Jelks, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby, in pursuance of my duty, as provided by section 22 of the said act, appoint Tuesday, November 11, 1901, as the day for an election to be held in each county of this state to determine whether the qualified voters will ratify or reject said constitution, so framed. The sheriffs and other officers charged with duties connected with the election will take notice of this proclamation, and provide for said election in conformity with the law.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed. Done at the capitol, in the city of Montgomery, Ala., this 16th day of September, 1901.

WILLIAM D. JELKS.

By the Governor:

Robert P. McDavid,
Secretary of State.

The Arrangements.

Congressman Underwood, the chairman of the State Democratic Campaign Committee on the ratification of the new constitution, has announced the names of the gentlemen who will assist him as follows:

Ben F. Elmore, Demopolis.
George W. Jones, Montgomery.
Henry D. Clayton, Eufaula.
W. B. Brown, Columbiana.
A. J. Driver, Lafayette.
W. W. Brandon, Tuscaloosa.
John L. Burnett, Gadsden.
J. H. Nathan, Sheffield.
R. A. Thompson, Birmingham.
J. G. Moore, Birmingham.
A. M. Tunstall, Greensboro.
E. K. Campbell, Birmingham.
W. I. Sanders, Athens.

Mr. Underwood expresses the greatest confidence in the result. "It will be a campaign of education," said he. "There will be no personalities indulged in and our slogan will be, White Supremacy! Honest Elections! and the New Constitution—One and Inseparable!"

A call has been issued for the committee to meet in Birmingham on Saturday the 21st.

Senator Bailey, of Virginia, lives in very modest style in Washington. He cannot afford to spend much money, because every dollar he gets goes toward the payment of his father's debts. He has spent thirty years paying off these debts, and it will probably be a life work. His father was Judge William Daniel, of Lynchburg. He was considered well-to-do, but when he died it was found that his fortune had been swept away in the panic of 1873 and that his liabilities were more than $100,000 in excess of the assets. Although Senator Daniel could have repudiated these debts he chose to assume them. That was nearly thirty years ago, and all that time Senator Daniel has been paying off the debts with interest.

Mosquito hunters will follow with interest the experiments that are being made in New Orleans, where the mosquitoes flourish practically all the year around. Oil has become very cheap in that city since the opening of the Texas fields, and it has been decided to try to do two things at once—lay the dust in the streets and kill the mosquitoes. Railroads have tried sprinkling their roads with crude oil, and have found this method most efficient in permanently laying the dust. New Orleans is trying the same thing, and it is said to be as successful in streets used for traffic as it is on railways. Most of New Orleans mosquitoes are bred in open drains and cisterns, and while the streets are being sprinkled oil is put on the neighboring drains.

THE FINAL TRIBUTE.

In his discourse Rev. Mr. Manchester said:

"The cause of this universal mourning is to be found in the man himself. The inspired penman's picture of Jonathan, likening him unto the 'beauty of Israel,' could not be more appropriately employed than in chanting the lament of our fallen chieftain. It does no violence to human speech, nor is it fulsome eulogy to speak thus of him, for who that has seen his stately bearing, his grace and manliness of demeanor; his kindliness of aspect, but gives assent to this description of him?

"It is a glorious thing to be able to say in this presence, with our illustrious dead before us, that he never betrayed the confidence of his countrymen. Not for personal gain or preeminence would he mar the beauty of his soul. He kept it clean and white before God and man.

"He was sincere, plain and honest, just, benevolent and kind. He never disappointed those who believed in him, but measured up to every duty and met every responsibility in life grandly and unflinchingly."

THE LAST MARCH.

The funeral procession was two miles long. A pathetic feature was the absence of Mrs. McKinley.

At the cemetery Bishop Joyce, of Minneapolis read the burial service of the Methodist church. As his words ended, eight buglers of the Canton band blew the notes of the soldiers last call, "taps." When the last note had floated away Secretary Wilson was in tears. Secretary Long was also weeping and the president was gazing grimly at the walk.

The last resting place of President McKinley, Westlawn cemetery, is on a high knoll overlooking a peaceful valley, with the busy little city of Canton laid out below. If it were not for the intervening church spire one might get a glimpse of the McKinley home. Just inside the stately entrance stands the gray stone vault, where for a time the casket will repose. Its dreary exterior was relieved by great masses of flowers, banked all about until the gray walls were shut out from view. But in due time it will be taken from the vault and committed to the little plot of ground lying further on, the McKinley lot, and here be his father, whose name he bore; the mother he guarded so tenderly in life, his brother James, his sister Anna and his two children. And when the time comes a stately shaft of granite will rise above the grave telling of the civic virtues, the pure life and the martyr death of William McKinley.

THE nineteenth national annual conference of Unitarians is in session in Saratoga, N. Y.

AN agent of the brigands who kidnapped the American missionary, Miss Helen H. Stone, in Salonica, has been arrested.

The U. S. transport Buford carrying the Seventeenth infantry ran aground on a sand bar off the island of Milliana.

President Roosevelt is quoted as saying that it would be his aim to be president of the whole people without regard to geographical lines or class distinction; that it was the welfare of all which he should seek to promote.

State Senator Lasater, of Tennessee, the chief engineer in the launching of the Beveridge boom for the presidency in the Tennessee legislature last spring, in an interview has given it as his opinion that President Roosevelt will unanimously be chosen as the candidate of the next Republican Convention for president. He says that neither Beveridge nor any other man has any show against the Roosevelt forces, and predicts a solid South for his nomination in 1904.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer says: "Asked to make a brief statement as to how he regarded the policy of President Roosevelt so far as it had been expressed, and what sort of an administration he believed the new president would give to the nation, Senator Hannah said:

"'I am done with being interviewed for all time.'

"'Have you decided not to again publicly express your opinion?' was asked.

"'No more,' was the brief answer.

"The senator is broken by the tragedy at Buffalo and his face shows how deeply grief has left its mark."

Elaborate experiments in feeding wheat to farm animals and swine have been made this year at the Kansas Experiment Station, and also in other States of the corn belt. The experts conclude that wheat has greater nutritive value than corn, and may be used either crushed, mixed with oats or corn, or in connection with straw in time of extreme scarcity. The drought in Kansas has not affected the wheat crop, and many farmers will be compelled either to use their wheat as fodder or to sacrifice their live stock.

BACK AT HIS NATIVE HOME

The Remains of Wm. McKinley Repose.

At noon of Wednesday the body of the third martyr president reached its native city. It was met by Judge Day at the head of the local reception committee, while assembled about the station was the entire militia of the state.

President Roosevelt and cabinet in carriages were followed by the guard of honor headed by Admiral Dewey and General Miles in full uniform, and the sad procession moved up Tenth street in the direction of the court house where the body lay in state.

It is estimated that there were 60,000 persons in Canton. All the way from Washington the national grief was shown by deeds of kindness, words of sympathy and display of patriotism and regard. At Pittsburg and Allegheny the demonstration was the most marked.

The crowds moved as if by a common impulse towards the old familiar McKinley cottage. Military guards stationed at the four corners of the lawn paced their beats but there was no other sign of life about the house. A long border of black, which had been put in place after the body was moved to the house, fringed the roof of the porch from which President McKinley had spoken to delegations from every state in the union, and where he had met and talked with all the chieftains of his party.

The people of Canton hardly noticed the president of the United States or his cabinet or the generals and admirals in their resplendent uniforms. The flag-draped casket which contained the body of their friend and fellow-townsman had all their thoughts. He had left them two weeks ago that very day in the full strength of his manhood, and they had brought him back dead. Anguish was in the heart of every man, woman and child.

The only house in all this sorrow-stricken city without a touch of mourning drapery was the old familiar McKinley cottage on North Market street.

The face of the dead president was seen for the last time when it lay in state at the court house. The casket was sealed before it was borne away.

MRS. McKINLEY.

Mrs. McKinley's condition is exciting grave apprehension among those caring for her, and the dreaded collapse is feared. Since she has returned to the old home the full realization of the awful calamity has come upon her. After the body had been brought from the court room and deposited in the little front room formerly used as the president's library she pleaded to be allowed to enter the room and sit beside the casket. Consent was reluctantly granted and for half an hour the stricken widow sat in the dim light beside the flower-draped bier. Then she was led away to her room and has not left it since.

Owing to her condition she was able to take no part in any of the ceremonies, neither going to the church nor coming into the chamber of death when the body was borne away for the last time. From this time on she will be guarded with the most solicitous care and quiet, for it is only in this way that a collapse can be averted.

THE LAST SERVICE.

The services in the Canton Methodist church were simple. They began with the rendition of an organ prelude, Beethoven's funeral march. As the last notes of the prelude were stilled, the Euterpean Ladies' Quartette of Canton sang, "The Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Rev. O. B. Milligan, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of Canton, delivered the invocation, which was eloquent and earnest. First Corinthians xv. 51-58 was read by Rev. E. P. Herbrouck, of the Trinity Reformed church, of Canton.

The favorite hymn of President McKinley, "Lead Kindly Light," was rendered by a mixed quartette. This finished, Dr. C. E. Manchester, pastor of the First Methodist church, delivered his address, at the conclusion of which Bishop I. W. Joyce, of Minneapolis, delivered a short prayer.

The hymn "Nearer, My God, to Thee," was sung by the entire congregation. The people remained standing after the close of the hymn while the benediction was pronounced by Monsignor T. P. Thorpe, of Cleveland.

The casket was then borne from the church to the funeral car and the march of the procession to the cemetery began.

Ireland has become innoculated with the bacilli expositionalis and it is planned to hold a great international exhibition at Cork.

People with chest complaints are recommended by medical men to read aloud, as this strengthens throat, lungs and chest muscles alike. The reading should be deliberate, without being allowed to drag, and the enunciation clear, the body being held in an easy, unstrained, upright position, so that the chest will have free play. The breathing should be natural and as deep as possible without undue effort.

You can come pretty near judging people by their clothes when you see the family wash out on the line.

Must For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. CASCARETS help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. Cascarets Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C.C.C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

Sugar exists not only in the cane, beet root and maple, but in the sap of 18 other plants and trees.

$100 Reward. $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

When a woman gets mad she always wishes she were a man and could swear.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free Dr. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa.

Unpleasant remarks are by no means remarkable.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle

What has the weather done that it should be talked about so much?

I am sure Piso's Cure for Consumption saved my life three years ago.—MRS. THOMAS ROBINS, Maple St., Norwich, N.Y., Feb. 17, 1900.

Automobiling may be dangerous, but it doesn't seem to be as much so as walking.

A Cosmopolitan Army.

The conflict between the Germans and Czechs in Austria-Hungary, which deserves Secretary Seward's appellation of "the irrepressible conflict," makes interesting a study of the elements composing the army of that country, which consists of 428,000 Slavs, 227,000 Allemands, 120,000 Magyars, 48,000 Roumanians and 14,000 Italians. The Slavs are made up of 174,000 Czechs, 76,000 Poles, 75,000 Ruthenians, 75,000 Croatians and Servians and 28,000 Slavonians.

Some girls would like to be rich just to see how much ice cream soda they could consume at one sitting.

A man in Calaveras County, Cal., is hatching pheasants in incubators

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES do not stain the hands or spot the kettle. Sold by all druggists.

Do not despise humble occupations. Even the hod carrier climbs to the top of the ladder.

During the preserving season there is no such word as can't. Can is the word.

Advice to Girls Who Travel.

The young girl who is traveling by herself should seek information from the train people rather than from her companions on the train. No girl in traveling should make confidants of strangers of either sex, disclose her name, her destination of her family affairs, or make acquaintances on the road. She may, however, show kind attention to a mother traveling with little children, amuse a wearied little one, and politely thank anyone who does her an unobtrusive kindness.—Margaret E. Sangster in the Ladies' Home Journal.

"A BAD EYE."

There is only one kind which cannot be cured by Mitchell's Eye Salve. That's a blind eye, morally or otherwise. Having the curable kind, try "Mitchell's." You will be satisfied. Price, 25c.

Mitchell's Eye Salve

By mail, 25c; Hall & Ruckel, New York City.

Poorly?

"For two years I suffered terribly from dyspepsia, with great depression, and was always feeling poorly. I then tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and in one week I was a new man."—John McDonald, Philadelphia, Pa.

Don't forget that it's "Ayer's" Sarsaparilla that will make you strong and hopeful. Don't waste your time and money by trying some other kind. Use the old, tested, tried, and true Ayer's Sarsaparilla. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Ask your doctor what he thinks of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He knows all about this grand old family medicine. Follow his advice and we will be satisfied.

J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Constipation

Does your head ache? Pain back of your eyes? Bad taste in your mouth? It's your liver! Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation, headache, dyspepsia. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers 50 cts. of Druggists, or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

WE PAY R. R. FARE AND UNDER $5.000 Deposit, Guarantee Positions

500 FREE SCHOLARSHIPS, BOARD AT COST. Write Quick to Ga.-Ala. Business College, Macon, Ga.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

SOZODONT Tooth Powder 25c

Kentucky Shorthand Business College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

THE PEOPLE

Always render a true verdict. They have tried and pronounce it a Perfect Laxative and Liver Medicine. READER—Have you tried it? Your money back if it fails to do the work.

LIVERINA

GAY, HARDIE & DURR,

Proprietors, Montgomery, Ala.

$900 TO $1500 A YEAR

We want intelligent Men and Women as Traveling Representatives or Local Managers; salary $900 to $1500 a year and all expenses, according to experience and ability. We also want local representatives; salary $9 to $18 a week and commission, depending upon the time devoted. Send stamp for full particulars and state position preferred. Address, Dept. B.

THE BELL COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE. SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE. ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E. 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

LIFE OF McKINLEY will sell by the thousands. Agents will make from $5.00 to $20 per day. $1.50 book, best author, best terms, freight paid, outfit free, send ten cts. in stamps to pay postage, and begin at once; circulars free. ATLANTA BOOK AND BIBLE HOUSE, Atlanta, Ga.

$75 to $200 Per Month made by AGENTS Elegant Premiums Free

Address, SCOTT REMEDY CO., Louisville, Ky.

When you write mention this paper.

You Should Own This Book!

IT SHOULD BE IN EVERY HOUSEHOLD AS IT MAY BE NEEDED ANY MINUTE.

A Slight Illness Treated at Once Will Frequently Prevent a Long Sickness, With Its Heavy Expenses and Anxieties.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN DOCTOR

By J. HAMILTON AYERS, A. M., M. D.

This is a most Valuable Book for the Household, teaching as it does the easily-distinguished Symptoms of different Diseases, the Causes and Means of Preventing such Diseases, and the Simplest Remedies which will alleviate or cure. 598 Pages, Profusely Illustrated.

This Book is written in plain every-day English, and is free from the technical terms which render most doctor books so valueless to the generality of readers. This Book is intended to be of Service in the Family, and is so worded as to be readily understood by all. Only

60 Cts. Post-Paid.

The low price only being made possible by the immense edition printed. Not only does this Book contain so much Information Relative to Diseases, but very properly gives a Complete Analysis of everything pertaining to Courtship, Marriage and the Production and Rearing of Healthy Families; together with Valuable Recipes and Prescriptions, Explanations of Botanical Practice, Correct Use of Ordinary Herbs. New Edition, Revised and Enlarged with Complete Index. With this Book in the house there is no excuse for not knowing what to do in an emergency.

Don't wait until you have illness in your family before you order, but send at once for this valuable volume. ONLY 60 CENTS POST-PAID. Send postal notes or postage stamps of any denomination not larger than 5 cents.

BOOK PUBLISHING HOUSE 134 Leonard St., N.Y.

McLean's Strengthening Cordial

Is the Only Tonic Remedy

which has an immediate stimulating effect, relieves the weariness incident to over-exertion, and which continues its tonic effect, curing temporary illnesses and those of long standing. It has no equal as a "pick me up," toning up the system to withstand the lassitude and weariness incident to changes of season. It promotes appetite, aids digestion and makes one feel strong and well.

The best blood purifier in the world. One testimonial out of thousands:

Walhalla, N. Dak., March 15, 1898.

The Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Gentlemen:—For loss of appetite, general debility, and for persons who are just becoming convalescent after some lingering disease, there is nothing so beneficial as McLean's Cordial. I am enjoying vigorous health from its use, and feel better than ever before.

Yours respectfully, E. A. Sharpe.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. Made only by

The Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED Immediately responsible men to travel, locally and elsewhere, for our established and reliable house. Salary $18 weekly, with expenses. Position permanent. Address, THE DOMINION COMMERCIAL TOBACCO CO., Richmond, Va.

USE CERTAIN CROUP AND WHOOPING COUGH CURE.

Ans. N. U., No. 38, 1901.

"The Sauce that made Worcester famous."

McILHENNY'S TABASCO.

Thompson's Eye Water

Ladies!

Our Millinery Department is in charge of Mrs Annie Miller, of St. Louis, who comes to us with the latest styles in Hats

The ladies of Clanton and vicinity are cordially invited to attend our opening on Tuesday, September 24, and inspect our line of Millinery, before buying.

Very respectfully,

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON.

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : ALA.

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER office

AT REDUCED PRICES

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get room in any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

They banish pain and prolong life. ONE GIVES RELIEF.

R·I·P·A·N·S

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

THIS COMPLETE SHAVING OUTFIT FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

1 English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to shave	75c
1 9½ in Hair Brush	50c
1 Shaving Brush	10c
1 7 in Barber Comb	10c
1 Rubber Fine "	10c
1 4 in Pocket comb in case	10c
1 Bar good Shaving soap	10c
1 2½ in Mirror	10c
1 23 in Razor Strop	50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

The O. K. Lunch Counter

MEALS AND LUNCHES SERVED AT ALL HOURS AT POPULAR PRICES

Fish and Oysters during the Season

I pay highest market price for Chickens and Eggs.

LUNCHES PUT UP FOR TRAVELERS

THE O.K. LUNCH COUNTER

NEXT TO RAILROAD, CLANTON

W. H. STACY, Proprietor.

ALL WOMEN

Wine of Cardui is the guardian of a woman's health and happiness from youth to old age. It helps her safely into womanhood. It sustains her during the trials of pregnancy, childbirth and motherhood, making labor easy and preventing flooding and miscarriage. It gently leads her through the dangerous period known as the change of life.

WINE OF CARDUI

cures leucorrhœa, falling of the womb, and menstrual irregularity in every form. It is valuable in every trying period of a woman's life. It reinforces the nervous system, acts directly on the genital organs and is the finest tonic for women known. Ask your druggist for a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

Batesville, Ala., July 11, 1900. I am using Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught and I feel like a different woman already. Several ladies here keep the medicines in their homes all the time. I have three girls and they are using it with me.
Mrs. KATE BROWDER.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department", The Chattanooga Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP

W. H. TAYLOR, Proprietor.

HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING

In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.

HOT AND COLD BATHS.

CLANTON

THE BEST WAY TO THE

SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST,
NORTH AND NORTH-WEST,

—IS VIA THE—

L. & N.

(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.)

The Through Cars

On this line pass Cars daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans.

Connecting with all points in

TEXAS AND THE WEST.

Also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Connecting for all points in the

NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or C. P. Ammers, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the BANNER.

GENERAL CONVENTION EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SAN FRANCISCO, California, October 1901

The Southern Pacific Co's "Sun Set Route" takes pleasure in announcing very low round trip rates from all Coupon Tickets Offices in this territory to San Francisco, Cal., account of the above occasion.

Tickets on sale September 18-26 inclusive.

Stop Overs are allowed on the going trip in Texas and West thereof provided, passengers reach San Francisco not later than October 2nd, and on the return trip at points West of Colorado Common Points, San Antonio and Fort Worth, Texas, provided, passengers reach starting point within the extreme limit of the ticket, November 15, 1901.

The privilege of going one route and returning another will be allowed.

Particular attention is called to the "Convention Special," one of the finest trains in the world, from New Orleans through to California without change. This train carrying the equipment of the "Famous Sun Set Limited" Vestibuled Sleeping and Dining Cars, especially arranged to carry the delegates and visitors to California, will leave New Orleans Wednesday, September 25th. Stops will be made at various interesting points enroute.

The following rates have been authorized from various points to San Francisco and return.

Anniston	$ 55.59
Attalla	$ 55.15
Birmingham, Selma, Decatur, Mobile, Montgomery and Tuskaloosa	$ 51.75
Eufaula	$ 56.55
Florence	$ 50.95
Huntsville	$ 53.20
Opelika	$ 55.70

Rates are open to all.

For further information call on or address GEO. W. ELY, T. P. A. "Sun Set Route," Montgomery, Ala.

TAX NOTICE

ASSESSOR'S AND COLLECTOR'S

Second Round

We will attend at the following places for the purpose of assessing the State and County taxes of Chilton county for the year 1901 and collecting the taxes for the year 1901:

Benton	Beat	3	November
Maplesville	"	7
Stanton	"	7
Dixie	"	8
Valley Creek	"	8
Kidersville	"	8	until 12 m.
Macedonia	"	3
Green Coker's Gin	"	2	until 12 m.
Reaves' Mill	"	2	from 2 to 4 p.m.
Providence	"	2
Elijah Busby's	"	2	until 12 m.
Coker's Gin	"	1	from 2 to 4 p.m.
Smith's School House	"	1	until 12 m.
Mineral Springs	"	1
Strasburg	"	7
Cane Creek	"	4	until 12 m.
Goar's School House	"	4	from 2 to 4 p.m.
Providence	"	5
Burwell	"	5
Coopers	"	5
Davis & Rollins Gin	"	6	until 12 m.
Clantonford	"	8
Pletcher	"	8
Kinchloe	"	6
Albert Headley's Store	"	6
James Maddox Gin	"	4
Jemison	"	2	December 11
Thorsby	"	2
Mountain Creek	"	5
Verbena	"	5	until 12 m.
Clanton	"	4

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

I will be at Clanton the last ten days of the year, commencing December 20, 1901.

T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

$300.00 TO BE GIVEN AWAY

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN THE NEW

CONSTITUTION?

DO YOU THINK IT WILL BE ADOPTED OR DEFEATED?

THE WEEKLY ADVERTISER

HAS OFFERED THE FOLLOWING

CASH PRIZES!

GRANDMA WANTS TO KNOW

THE STATE ELECTION

WILL BE HELD NOV. 11, 1901.

The Weekly Advertiser has divided $300.00 into over fifty Cash Prizes to be given away for the best guess on the total vote of the State of Alabama, either for or against the adoption of the new Constitution.

FOR THE BEST GUESS

FIRST Best Guess	$100.00 Cash
SECOND Best Guess	50.00 Cash
FIVE Next Best Guesses, each	10.00 Cash
TEN Next Best Guesses, each	5.00 Cash
FIFTEEN Next Best Guesses, each	2.00 Cash
TWENTY Next Best Guesses, each	1.00 Cash
GRAND TOTAL CASH.	$300.00

Each Subscriber to The Weekly Advertiser

Who sends $1 for one year's subscription on or before midnight Nov. 10, 1901 will be entitled to one guess FREE on the total vote of Alabama either FOR OR AGAINST the New Constitution. Subscribers who are now getting the Weekly Advertiser may have their subscriptions renewed from date of expiration of present subscription and avoid getting two copies at one time by stating when sending in your order whether you are an old or new subscriber.

CUT OUT THIS ORDER BLANK AND FILL OUT CORRECTLY WITH YOUR NAME AND POST OFFICE ADDRESS AND BEST GUESS, EITHER FOR OR AGAINST.

	NAME.	POSTOFFICE ADDRESS	TOTAL VOTE FOR	AGAINST
1
2
3

The Advertiser Co: Please find enclosed cash to the amount of $_____

REMEMBER----$100.00 Cash Paid for the Best Guess!

Last Guess Will Be Received November 10th, 1901

Distribution of prizes is guaranteed by The Advertiser Co. within ten days after official returns are made public. Tell your friends about it. Every yearly subscriber has one guess FREE. All orders must be accompanied by either money order, express order or draft. Send no checks. Address all orders to

THE ADVERTISER CO., Montgomery, Ala.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

Judge of Probate

DEFECTIVE ORIGINAL

THE BANNER

BY THE PEOPLE RULE

VOL. IX CLANTON, ALA.- THURSDAY OCTOBER 3, 1901

NOTICE

AND COLLECTOR'S

d Round

[illegible] Taxes for the purpose [illegible] Chilton county for the year 1901:

[illegible]		November [illegible]
[illegible]		"
[illegible]		"
[illegible]		"
[illegible]	until 12 m.	"
[illegible]	until 12 m.	"
[illegible]	from 2 to 4 p.m.	"
[illegible]	until 12 m.	"
[illegible]	from 2 to 4 p.m.	"
[illegible]	until 12 m.	"
[illegible]	from 2 to 4 p.m.	"
[illegible]		"
[illegible]	until 12 m.	"
[illegible]		"
[illegible]		"
[illegible]		"
[illegible]		Dec. 2 &
[illegible]	until 12 m.	" 6 &

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

[illegible] days of the year, commencing [illegible]
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

EN AWAY

[illegible]MA WANTS TO KNOW

HE BEST GUESS

Guess	$100.00 Cash
st Guess	50.00 Cash
Best Guesses, each	10.00 Cash
ext Best Guesses, each	5.00 Cash
[illegible] Best Guesses, each	2.00 Cash
[illegible]xt Best Guesses, each	1.00 Cash
TOTAL CASH.	$300.00

ly Advertiser

[illegible] 10, 1901 will be entitled to one guess [illegible] Constitution. Subscribers who are [illegible]wed from date of expiration of present [illegible] sending in your order whether your

ITH YOUR NAME AND POST OFFICE OR AGAINST.

TOTAL VOTE FOR	AGAINST amount of $_____

e Best Guess!
d November 10th, 1901
[illegible]. within ten days after official [illegible]
Subscriber has one guess FREE
[illegible]ress order or draft. Send no checks.

Montgomery, Ala.
VHERE.

[illegible]MAN ON THE CORNER

[illegible] of the Sights He Sees, and Some He Does Not

[illegible]ton is getting good, not one [illegible] has been made in a month. [illegible] the blind tigers have gone out [illegible]ness, midnight explosions [illegible] ceased, there is no disturb[illegible] of any kind, and the police [illegible] having an easy time. Marshal [illegible] keeps things quiet during [illegible]day, and Marshal Lee Hayes [illegible] that the nights are peaceful. The Mayor has nothing to do [illegible] pleasant, the Councilmen [illegible] out, the town continues to [illegible] the people are happy and [illegible], and altogether Clanton [illegible] well.

[illegible] Congregationalist church property was sold last Monday for [illegible] Judge Adams being the purchaser. What with the probate [illegible], the county court, a little [illegible], the new Constitution, and [illegible] and one other things, [illegible] judges going to do with a [illegible] on his hands I don't know, [illegible] he will find some use [illegible], or dispose of it to someone. [illegible] building would make a first [illegible] warehouse, and the town is [illegible] to spread in that direction.

[illegible] "long-felt want" is now supplied. Clanton has long needed a [illegible] restaurant, where meals [illegible] served in good style at short [illegible], and the succulent oyster [illegible] be obtained any way you desire. Mr. W. H. Stacy has refitted his place of business next [illegible] depot, has done away with [illegible] stock of groceries, put in a [illegible] of tables, etc., and proposes to run A No. 1 restaurant, [illegible] will supply you with "the [illegible] the market affords" at reasonable prices. It should be well patronized.

[illegible] course of true love does run [illegible] sometimes, Shakespeare to the [illegible] notwithstanding. It [illegible] necessary for true lovers [illegible] to close matters in [illegible] own hands, and steer their course in defiance of opposition. Such a case came to my [illegible] last week when a young [illegible] and a beautiful maiden sought [illegible] at the Probate [illegible], and in the gentle way [illegible] made husband and wife. [illegible] I am proud to [illegible] happy couple came to my [illegible] to pass the honey. [illegible] was touching to see [illegible] which my good friend, Mrs. Smith, took to the [illegible] bride, and gave her lots [illegible] advice.

[illegible], for one moment, pretend to say that I can give the [illegible] advice to brides that [illegible] can, but as far as I [illegible] the following plan is a good [illegible] for brides to act upon. The [illegible] book recipe for cooking a [illegible] catch your hare." [illegible] advice to brides, after [illegible] first to find [illegible] points. (He is [illegible] lots of them, or [illegible] not have caught him). [illegible] them over [illegible] and kindness, never [illegible] him know that you have [illegible] them. (He will never find [illegible] unless you give it away.) [illegible] that you think he is the [illegible] on earth that is worthy [illegible]. (He'll believe it, if [illegible] on thick enough). [illegible] that he is a genius and [illegible] President of the United [illegible] that you want him all [illegible]. (He'll swallow that [illegible] impress upon him the [illegible] on 3d column, page 4)

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25 cents.

Clanton, Sept. 25, 1901

Editor Banner—Space please for only a word. The constitutional convention has done its work and it is only a short while until we will be called upon to do ours in reference to the proposed new organic law for the State of Alabama. We have from now until the 11th of November next to prepare ourselves for casting our votes for or against the new constitution, and I truly hope every voter in Chilton county, yea in Alabama, will cast an unprejudiced ballot at that most important election. We should be broad minded and liberal thinking on this subject and endeavor to give the people of our great commonwealth the benefit of our best judgment. This should not be a party election, or fight, and I don't think we should make it such by past party feeling or affiliation. There may be some objectionable features in the new constitution, and I am frank to say there are some according to my best judgment. For instance, the board of registrars to be appointed all of the same political party, seems to be an unwise thing to do. And of course there may be some things very bad in our present constitution, consequently let the people study them both and make up their minds as to which is the best and vote that way, Democrat, Populist and Republican, and not be for or against the new one because any man or set of men made it.

Yours for the best.

OBSERVER.

For inflamed eyes, sore throat, sore mouth, use Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. Pleasant to taste and smell and will give quick relief.

HAPPILY MARRIED

At the residence of Mr. Fisher at Lily, on September 25, Mr. Archie Fisher and Miss Lizzie Graham were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Rev. W. A. Woods performing the ceremony. The young couple have many friends who we join in wishing long and prosperous rides to the happy pair.

On September 27 at the court house, Clanton, Mr. H. W. Schmidt and Miss G. L. Parrish, both of Mountain Creek, were happily wedded, Judge Adams officiating. We extend congratulations to the young couple, and trust their married life will be as full of sunshine as the bride's countenance was full of joy.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Culver, at Clanton, on September 29, Mr. Ocie K. Foshee, son of Rev. A. L. Foshee, and Miss Dolie Culver were happily united, Rev. S. M. Adams performing the ceremony. The youthful pair, we hope will have many years of happy wedded life, and that each succeeding year will be more full of blessings than the preceding one.

At the court house, Clanton, October 2, Mr. W. J. Powell and Miss Martha Parrish were made man and wife by Judge Adams. Our best wishes go the happy couple for a long and prosperous life together.

A Fiendish Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair except propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvellous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at Clanton Drug Store.

ANTI-RATIFICATION MEETING.

A mass meeting of the citizens of Chilton county, irrespective of political affiliation, called to hear the articles of the new constitution discussed by Hon. Jesse Stallings, was called to order at 11 a.m. by the Hon. L. H. Reynolds at the court house. Col. Wm. A. Collier was unanimously chosen chairman, who upon assuming the chair responded in a few well chosen remarks expressing his regard for the honor conferred, and his opposition to the ratification of the new constitution. Then he introduced the Hon. Jesse Stallings, who entertained the large assembly for one and-a-half hours in opposition to the ratification of the new constitution, and was frequently applauded by the whole assembly.

After which the meeting resolved itself into committee of the whole for the purpose of electing a campaign committee. On motion Col. Wm. A. Collier was chosen chairman with power to appoint remaining members and secretary. He at once appointed Alex G. Dake secretary and will fill out remainder of committee in a few days; then the meeting adjourned.

ALEX G. DAKE,
Sec. Cam. Com.

Death of Miss Mollie Vines.

A sweet young life was ended on Tuesday morning, when Miss Mollie Vines, after a few days illness, went to join the angels. Only nineteen years old, the pride of her parents, the joy of her brothers and sister, the loving companion of a host of friends, her loss will be greatly felt, and mourning relatives can only be comforted by the happy reflection that she is translated to a brighter sphere. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon, and Clanton mourning with the bereaved family.

Oh, the sweet, the bright forever,
Just beyond the jasper sea;
When we cross that golden river,
With the dear ones we shall be.

Bethel.

Cotton picking is all the go in this community and is being gathered fast.

Mr. Jasper Dennis has put up a saw mill near here; we suppose he thinks we need better houses.

Mr. Johnnie Collins and sister, Miss Mary, visited Poplar Springs last Sunday and reported a nice time.

Some of our boys are taking in the school at Clanton; we suppose some of the girls will before long.

Public roads and school houses are ongoing in this community.

Mrs. Josephine Askins has been very sick, but glad to say she is getting better.

Mr. E. G. Rollins and wife are visiting relatives in Autauga.

Mr. J. M. Dennis visited Clanton last week. BUCK EYED BOSS.

Accidents happen to the most careful as well as the thoughtless. Be prepared for them. Keep a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic convenient. Only 50c by all druggists.

Concord.

Sudon is not dead, but migrated. He appreciates the mourning of his friends.

People in this section will soon be done gathering, and some of them will patronize Prof. Collier's school.

We are having a great deal of sickness.

Everyone enjoyed the baptizing and preaching at Concord Sunday.

We are having a lively Sunday-school under the superintendency of W. A. Edwards.

On returning from a frolic some negroes shot into the house of Mr. Dan Wethers, and in response he opened fire on them with a shot gun, shooting Charlie Dupree in the eye.

Mrs. Lila Easterling and four children of Timulgee have been visiting relatives here the past week.

Some people are still trying to build upon the downfall of others.

SUDON.

The Best Prescription for Malaria

Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price 50c.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.
THORSBY, ALA.

Millinery opening at Thorsby, Monday, Octobr 7. Latest styles, Newest Fashions. Ladies of Clanton and the surrounding country respectfully invited.

Miss SELMA FORS,
Proprietor.

Verbena.

Mrs. G. A. Northington and daughter, Miss Myrtle, have returned from a most enjoyable visit to relatives in South Alabama.

Mrs. S. W. John of Birmingham is the guest of friends in Verbena.

Mr. J. W. Dennis of Montgomery has been visiting his family here.

There will be a circus in town soon and the darkies and children are happy in anticipation of a fine time.

Rev. J. W. Shores of Prattville, one of the pioneers of Methodism, has been assisting in the protracted meeting here. He has been preaching for over a half century, and may he continue for many years to come.

Rev. J. E. McCann of Greenville one of Alabama's most gifted divines, has been assisting Mr. Threadgill in his meeting. The meeting has been a great success for the Methodists, and quite a number have joined the church. The meeting closed Thursday night.

"'Possums and taters" are getting ripe and the darkies are happy.

There are very few new constitution men in this section. I tell you, they will have a hard old time converting the people down here. They call us traitors, republicans, and what-not, but as the Irishman says, they will have a "divil of a toime" trying to make us swallow the new constitution.

Mr. Robert L. Williamson has returned from a pleasant visit to the magic city.

Mr. W. A. Howard of Prattville has been visiting relatives here.

For barbed wire cuts on stock, use Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. Nothing equal to it in such cases. 50c. a bottle by all first-class druggists.

RESTAURANT.

The public is informed that I have refurnished and made additions to my restaurant, and am prepared to furnish meals at all times in the best style at short notice.

FISH AND OYSTERS EVERY DAY.

W. H. STACY,
FIRST DOOR EAST L. & N. R.R. DEPOT,
CLANTON.

BOWNS' FIRE SALE
—ON—
SNUFF AND TOBACCO
FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS.

$3.50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnapps, Early Bird, Long Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

and on Thursday, July 25,

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Bruton.
$1.00 gets you 10 boxes 3½ oz. Bruton.
$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 3½ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO
and 600 pounds of SNUFF
Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $
But they must go just the same.

Stepped Into Live Coals.

"When a child I burned my foot frightfully," writes W. H. Eads, of Jonesville, Va., "which caused horrible leg sores for 30 years, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured me after everything else failed." Infallible for Burns, Scalds, Cuts, Sores, Bruises and Piles. Sold by Clanton Drug Co. Price 25c.

WANTED.

BRICK! BRICK!! Good hard brick, and favorable freight rates. Prices and samples on application.

J. M. JENKINS,
Wetumpka, Ala.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1899. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSS, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager 316, Caxton Building, Chicago.

Wanted—Everybody to try Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for wounds, bruises, burns, stings of insects, etc. If you don't like it you can get your money back. You take no risk, see?

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

It is a well-known fact that every man should work to his own interest. Then why not the farmer get the benefit of his own labor? Why not the farmer get his prices as well as the merchant? Simply because he does not look around and see what the market price is. He does not know where to go. He does not know that R. L. MARCUS will give more for Produce of all kinds and sell goods for less money than anybody in the city. One call will convince you. Respectfully, R. L. MARCUS, Clanton.

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 12, 1885

Dr. C. J. MOFFETT, St. Louis, Mo.
—I can truly say that your TEETHINA is the greatest blessing to teething children that the world has ever known. I have used it two years, and do not like to be without a box all the time. My baby would hardly have lived through his second summer if I had not used your powders. He is now strong and well, and has all his teeth. I never allow an opportunity to pass without recommending TEETHINA to mothers. May God reward you for the good you have done teething babies through this remedy. Respectfully,

MRS. A. G. RUSSELL.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

SIFTON HULBERT
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM H. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts.
Office at the Advocate place
CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN C. DENNIS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts.
CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. KNOX,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CLANTON, ALA.
Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama.

Dr. OTTO M. WIRSHART,
DENTIST.
OFFICE HOURS: 9 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m.
Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS,
SPECIALIST
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
OFFICE 22 S. PERRY ST.
Office Hours: 9 to 12 and 2 to 4.
Telephone 601—2 Calls
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. N. S. JOHNSON
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

Positions GUARANTEED

OR A $5,000 DEPOSIT
R. R. FARE PAID
200 FREE
Scholarships offered. Write quick to
GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

E. W. Grove

This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

What stops Neuralgia? Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL
PLANTERSVILLE, ALA.

Is a training and strictly private school for boys and girls.

Correlated to the University of Alabama and to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Has fitted more pupils for college, more pupils for teaching, more pupils for advanced business positions than all other schools in Chilton county combined. It is the only school in Chilton county whose pupils have a First Grade Certificate under the present school laws.

Its course of instruction is the best arranged, its methods the soundest, most thorough and up-to-date; its scholarship the most advanced; its location, buildings, grounds, furniture, equipments, the most attractive and best adapted of any school in Chilton county.

Its pupils enter any college in the South on certificate of the Principal. It deals honestly with the public, adheres to professional courtesy, and performs its promises. Its mission is to build up, not to pull down. It is not, as some are, a mere common school called "College," "Normal," etc., by which misnomers the uninformed are mislead.

$101 pays all expenses of board, tuition, fuel, lights, etc., for session of nine months. School opens September 25, 1901. Write for catalogue.

E. Y. McMORRIES, Principal.

The Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE.

"BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE"

WALLACE G. EGLER, General Agent, Clanton, Ala.

CHILTON COUNTY BRANCH:

PRESIDENT: N. J. CALLOWAY, Clanton.
SEC.-TREAS.: P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

1. H. C. Young	4. A. J. Wilson	7. C. J. Coburn
2. Thomas Harrison	5. D. S. Robinson	8. John R. Powell
3. Alex Glasscock	6. A. T. Hathcock	9. W. A. Mims

Insures Farmers' dwellings, outbuildings and contents, and Live Stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning;—the cheapest, safest and most sensible method of Insurance known to man.

AGENTS MUST HAVE A COMMISSION SIGNED BY THE GENERAL AGENT.

Full particulars furnished by the county agent.

ALEX GLASSCOCK, Jemison, Ala.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

CLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

Railroads in the United States are the best protected and the best signaled in the world, according to expert opinion.

If the old Mississippi cannot be fully utilized in the transportation business, at least, there are 7000 people engaged in taking fish out of her broad bosom, and the fish are mighty good, too.

With public opinion as the greatest power in Europe, according to Frederick W. Holls, the "federation of the world" may have been one of the dreams that held a prophecy.

No statistics can do justice to the yield, monetary value or dietetic worth of the American apple. As the strawberry is the best berry so the apple is the best fruit known to man. It is the king of American fruits.

The Secretary of Agriculture states that the arid area is increasing by reason of the devastation of the forests on the watersheds. As the volume of water decreases in the rivers more and more land is thrown out of cultivation. Some special investigations are in progress, suggested by the recent hot spell, which the officials of the Forestry Bureau believe was greatly intensified by deforestation. As one of them put it: "If you will change the face of nature, you must not expect to escape the consequences."

It has been suggested by lovers of birds that nighthawks, otherwise known as whippoorwills, and swallows, and, above all, purple martins, hunger for mosquitoes as a steady article of diet for breakfast, luncheon, 5 o'clock tea, dinner, supper and frequent smacks and appetizers in the course of every twenty-four hours in the summer. If this is true, societies for the increase of the numbers of these graceful couriers of the air should be organized without delay. More birds and fewer mosquitoes—that's what we want.

Dr. Bernays expressed what is probably the opinion of most medical men of large experience when he said: "I do not think there is a more dangerous thing for a man of fifty or over to do than to change radically his mode of life in any way that will involve more work, either physical or mental. To professional and business men who have reached the middle age I should say: 'Do less than you have been doing, and do not take off weight rapidly.' The golf fad for busy men who have become corpulent while doing hard work is a dangerous experiment."

Those who recall the stories of hardship and danger which attended the voyage of the argonauts to the Klondike are reminded by publications made almost daily of additions to traveling facilities in the North that there is a great difference in the conditions now existing in Alaska and those encountered three or four years ago. The latest news of this kind is that a line of sleigh coaches have been put on the Dawson route. The trip to Dawson is now made with such comparative comfort that it is no unusual thing to meet men who go to and return from there once a year.

The Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post observes that in this age of problems it is hard to discriminate, but there are two upon which all may agree. Just now they lead. The first is in regard to consumption. Some one has said that it has "killed more people than all the wars and plagues and scourges of history put together." Doctor Biggs, the New York expert, declares that of every four New Yorkers who die between the ages of 15 and 65 one dies of consumption, that there are 20,000 cases in that city constantly, and that the death last year numbered more than 9000. According to a New York newspaper, one specialist asserts that of this country's population 10,000,000 "must inevitably expect to die of consumption." The other problem is to get the small cities of the United States to awake to the importance of sanitation. Nearly all of them do nothing until threatened by an epidemic, and then the zeal is only temporary. To arouse these communities to the importance of constant watchfulness and of preventive measures will be to increase the average of life for the nation. We have been dazzled by the outburst of wealth in the new century, but these strivings for health are worth all the dollars that have passed through Wall street.

CANTON CEMETERY GHOULS

AMERICAN COMPANY SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS IN PHILIPPINES.

"COLUMBIA, THE GEM OF THE OCEAN!"

Lincoln Buried—Tennessee Shooting—Episcopal Conference—Floods in Georgia—Drowned Her Children—Other Notes.

ATTACKED McKINLEY'S GRAVE

A strange story comes from Westlawn cemetery where a company of regulars from Ft. Wayne, Mich., are guarding the vault in which the body of President McKinley lies. It is that Private Deprend was on guard duty on top of the vault at a point commanding the entrance from below and the approach from the rear. Shortly before 7:30 he saw what he took to be the face of a man peering from behind a tree about forty feet from his post. He watched it for twenty minutes, he says, and at 7:45 saw the man hurry to a tree ten feet nearer. He challenged the man to halt but this was not heeded. Deprend leveled his gun and aimed to shoot for effect, but just at that instant another man, who came toward him from the opposite side, caught the gun, threw it up and the bullet was spent in the air. This same man struck Deprend on the right side of the abdomen with a knife or other sharp weapon, cutting a gash in his overcoat. All members of the company on hearing the shot, hurried to the vault, and besides searching the cemetery the guard was increased. There are seventy soldiers at the cemetery, twenty of whom are constantly on guard duty around the vault and camp. The first man, the guard says, carried a small white package in his right hand and something that glistened like a polished weapon in the other. The second man, the guard says, wore a mask over his face. Stories regarding the incident when they reached the city were connected with the jail delivery that occurred about the same time. While there seems to be no doubt that at least two prowlers attempted to reach the vault, there is much difference of opinion as to the object of the intruders, who evidently made good their escape, as the cemetery has been searched over in vain.

THE YACHT RACE.

The first race, which was run last Thursday, was declared off because of the failure of the wind. During the race the cup defender, Columbia, was clearly in the lead and had the best of the battle. On Saturday the boats again went over the course, the Columbia winning by thirty-nine seconds actual time, or one minute and twenty-two seconds with the allowance given her under the rules. The Columbia and the Shamrock II are the most evenly matched racers ever competing for the historic cup, and in Saturday's race they ran neck and neck along the entire thirty miles of the course, keeping the result in doubt. Just at the finish the yankee boat spurted and won the race.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

The triennial meeting of the Episcopal convention convenes in San Francisco Wednesday. It will be in session until October 20th. The absence of Rev. Dr. Dix, who has presided over the house clerical and lay deputies since 1886, will necessitate the election of a new president. Among those mentioned for this honor are Rev. Dr. Alsap, of Brooklyn, Rev. Dr. Huntington, of New York, and Rev. Dr. Lindsay, of Boston.

ARKANSAS ANIMOSITY.

A special says that Justice of the Peace Robert O'Kelley and Mrs. Kit Helton were killed at Van Buren Saturday and that officers are searching for the husband of Mrs. Helton. The justice was shot from ambush and the woman is said to have been killed at her home.

STREET CAR COLLISION.

A runaway street car crashed into a freight train at Burlington Sunday and was smashed into kindling wood. Mrs. Charles Kupfer was killed and several others were injured.

UNDERGROUND TRANSIT.

The Long Island Railroad has made application to and filed plans with the Rapid Transit Commission of New York for a tunnel from a point in the vicinity of Broadway and Forty-fifth street under East River to Long Island City. The plans represent an outlay of $5,000,000 and call for a double track tunnel its entire length for the carrying of freight and passengers.

ALMOST ANNIHILATED.

The war department has received the following dispatch from General Chaffee:

"Manila, September 29.

"Adjutant General, Washington.

"'Twenty-four men Ninth regiment, U. S. Infantry, wounded, have just arrived from Balangiga, remainder company killed. Insurgents secured all company supplies and all rifles except twelve. Company was attacked during breakfast, morning September 28th; company 72 strong; officers—Thomas W. Connell, captain; Edward A. Bumpus, first lieutenant; Dr. R. S. Griswold, major surgeon, escaped.'"

(Signed) "Chaffee."

Capt. Edwin V. Bookmiller of the Ninth Infantry reports that General Hughes is assembling a force to attack the insurgents.

Company C was a portion of the Ninth Regiment of United States Infantry, which went to China at the time of the Boxer outbreak and while there performed valiant service. Later the troops were engaged in provost duty in Manila. General Otis says the slaughter did not mean that there is anything like widespread revolt in that province. General McArthur said: This is one of those deplorable, isolated incidents which will have no effect upon the general result.

Capt. Lawrence Hern of the Twenty-first Infantry reports a severe engagement with insurgents near Candelaria, the Americans losing one killed and two wounded. The insurgent loss not ascertained. The Americans captured thirty thousand pounds of rice and several hundred rounds of ammunition.

LINCOLN FINALLY INTERRED.

The burial of the remains of Abraham Lincoln has practically been completed, the casket being placed Thursday in the vault at the base of the monument shaft. Over six feet of cement have been laid over the casket. It is thought now that no further removal of the body will ever be made. The casket is buried thirteen feet in the ground, beneath the tomb containing the crypts where lie the remainder of the family. It would take a large force of workmen several days to exhume the casket under the most favorable circumstances.

TENNESSEE TROUBLE.

Saturday afternoon near Conyersville, Wallace Ward, son of Frank Ward, a prominent planter, killed his brother, Brown Ward. The information received is that the brothers were working in a field, when trouble arose in which the younger brother was victor. This enraged Wallace who went to the house and procured a shotgun. Returning he shot his younger brother through the heart. Wallace made no effort to escape, but endeavored to take his own life with poison. According to the report, however, he still lives. The family is well known throughout western Kentucky and Tennessee.

INSANE MOTHER'S ACT.

At Little York, fifteen miles from Cleveland, Mrs. Perry Curtis, wife of a farmer, today drowned her three children in a well and then committed suicide by jumping in after them. The dead are: Mrs. Perry Curtis, aged 38; Rosa, 2; Annie, 5; Harold Scudder, 9. The latter was Mrs. Curtis' step-son. Mrs. Curtis was released from Massillon insane asylum recently as cured. Eugene Roberts, a neighbor, discovered the insane mother's crime when he attempted to draw some water from the well.

RANDALL METTS KILLED.

Randall Metts was shot and killed on the streets of Wilacoochee, Ga., Saturday by Elish Lott, his father-in-law. Both families are prominent. The men are said to have had some family trouble a few days ago. When they met in the street each drew his revolver and began firing. Lott's bullet pierced the heart of Metts.

EVERETT ST. JOHN, late vice-president and general manager of the Seaboard Air-Line, will, it is understood, succeed C. M. Hays as president of the Southern Pacific.

TROLLEY LINE SLEEPERS.

The Lake Shore Electric Company is planning to equip its line with sleeping cars between Cleveland and Detroit and perhaps Toledo. It is the intention to extend the line to Pittsburg from Detroit, making the longest electric line in the world. The company promises to send through trains, equipped with sleepers, between Cleveland and Detroit by Christmas.

TOOK $50,000 WITH HIM.

William Hoeppner, a former confidential bookkeeper for the A. W. Faber Company of New York, who disappeared June 18th last after having, it is alleged, embezzled between $30,000 and $40,000 from the firm, has been arrested at Buenos Ayres, Argentina. At police headquarters it was said that extradition papers will be secured for Hoeppner's return. He was located when his family booked for the South American port.

McKINLEY'S WILL

Is ready for probating. It is in the president's own handwriting and is on executive mansion letter paper. He bequeaths his entire estate to his wife and after her death to his brothers and sisters share and share alike. One paragraph reads: My chief concern is that my wife, from my estate, shall have all she requires for her comfort and pleasure and that my mother shall be provided with whatever money she requires to make her old age comfortable and happy. The instrument is dated Oct. 22, 1897.

IN CHAMBERS COUNTY.

W. G. Jarrell was recently appointed county superintendent of education, although a primary election favored G. B. Avery.

The fruit-growing industry is rapidly developing in that section, through the enterprise of Paul Hoffman.

Schools have opened with the largest attendance in their history. The increased interest is further demonstrated in the erection of new buildings and the purchase of modern furniture and fixtures.

TOO MUCH OF WATER.

The freshet that came down the Savannah river Friday was one of the worst ever experienced by the rice planters of that section. The river rose a foot or more higher than ever known and practically every plantation on the river is under water. The water reached its greatest height Friday night. It not only overflowed the banks into the fields, but in a number of places broke through the banks, making wide washes that can be repaired only with a great deal of trouble and expense. The damage to the rice will not be known until the flood subsides enough to allow a repair of the banks and the drainage of the fields. The water is receding.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

BUBONIC plague has broken out at Naples.

THE health of the Sultan of Turkey is said to be failing.

BRAZIL has a new submarine vessel, the Marques.

JACK HAVERLY, the well known minstrel, is dead at Salt Lake City.

JOHN G. NICOLAY, formerly secretary to President Lincoln, died last Thursday.

PRINCE CHUN has been ordered home from Germany. He will not visit the United States.

ANDREW CARNEGIE says he could have prevented the recent strike if he could have conferred with the men.

THE Canton, O., bar passed a touching memorial on President McKinley last Saturday. Judge Day was among those who spoke on the occasion.

CAMP HILL has a freak of nature in a three-legged chicken.

THE Bellamy Planing Mill of Florence, will establish a branch mill at Sheffield.

MR. RICHARD PINSON, of Piedmont, fifty years old, is getting his third set of teeth.

AFTER changing their minds several times the decision is reached by the directors that no state fair will be held this year, but every effort will be made for a big show in 1902.

THE International Steamship Company, of Mobile, has contracted for the building of two steamers to operate out of the city.

THE temporary bridge across Choctowhatchie river for the A. and F. R. R. will soon be completed when the trains will pass by on their way to Graceville and Marianna, Fla., which will give a quick route to Jacksonville.

ALL AROUND ALABAMA

ENCAMPMENT OF CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

EXTENSIVE IRON ORE LAND DEAL EFFECTED.

Fatal Accident—Brick Plant at Warrior—Auburn College's New Professor—No State Fair This Year — Miscellany.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

Gen. George P. Harrison has fixed November 13th and 14th for the holding of the state reunion of Confederate Veterans, in Montgomery, and many hundreds of the veterans are expected to be in attendance. The idea of state reunions is new, and a result of action taken at the last annual national reunion. It is thought that the state reunion will bring the old soldiers into closer fellowship, enabling many to enjoy the occasion who are unable to attend the national reunions. Montgomery is preparing a royal entertainment for her expected guests. Special features of the reunion will include a grand parade of the veterans and a barbecue.

A NEW PROFESSOR.

Dr. Edwin Mead Wilcox has been elected to the chair of biology in the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, vice F. S. Earle, resigned to accept a position with Columbia University, New York. Dr. Wilcox is a graduate of the University of Ohio where he served as instructor in botany. Subsequently he spent three years at Harvard University where he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. He was then appointed to a traveling fellowship for the study of economic botany and tropical productions in agriculture and traveled in Java, Ceylon, Singapore and Japan.

ORE LANDS BOUGHT.

C. E. Wilson and associates have transferred to the United States Iron Company several hundred acres of valuable iron ore lands in Franklin county in consideration of $25,000 cash. The United States Land Company has within the last year come into possession of some very valuable ore properties throughout this section, and it is claimed by those who are in a position to know that this company now controls the cream of the ore properties within shipping distance of the railroads.

REBUILDING.

The plant of the Coaldale Brick Company at Warrior, which was destroyed by fire last week, is being rebuilt. The plant will be enlarged and made fire-proof. With these improvements it will be the finest of its kind in the South. The company has a large number of brick on hand and the loss of time caused by the fire and rebuilding will not effect the filling of orders.

SAW MILL TRAGEDY.

Felix N. Williams was killed at Alameda, Clark county, Thursday. Young Williams was employed at a saw mill, and in trying to take a piece of bark from a band saw, his sleeve caught and he was pulled into the saw. His body was terribly mangled, and death was almost instantaneous.

THREE DROWNED.

A small sailboat, containing seven persons, capsized on West Lake, near Kalamazoo, Mich., Sunday, and Mrs. Peter Krondyke, P. Van Halst and Miss Edith Maud were drowned. The body of Mrs. Krondyke was recovered.

HUNTSVILLE FIRE.

Fire caused a damage of nearly $1,000 to the stock of furniture in the basement of the A. J. Stewart wholesale and retail furniture store Sunday morning shortly after midnight. The blaze at first threatened to destroy the entire block. The upstairs stock of furniture was not damaged by smoke or water. $2,500 insurance.

GOVERNOR JELKS has the appointment of the successor of Judge Woods, of Selma, and the candidates are numerous and the excitement high.

"RED SKIN PETE," a miner, made a sneering remark about President McKinley, at Pineville, Ky., near the North Carolina line last Saturday. Carl Fennig, a Louisville drummer, championed McKinley's cause and in the fight following killed the miner.

MEN in ambush fired on the Carbondale (Ky.) coal tipple Saturday, but no one was hurt. Adjt. Gen. Murray is there.

LATEST STATE NEWS.

ALABAMA GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION.

The public roads are usually by intelligent observers accepted best indices of the character and prosperity of the people in the through which they pass. The neglect of their roads is justly evidence of poor business and lack of thrift on the part of population which is most upon them.

One of the most hopeful the South's progress is the attention to roads and improving condition. The condition of roads in the South much better now than it was ago that the transportation of in this section to market or to lines costs now many millions of lars less than it did before provements were made.

Every good road is an that causes the building of where real road improvement gins it is almost sure to Alabama has done much building during the past but she is woefully behind work and an impetus should to the movement and a sentiment created. Now, create and encourage a which will lead to a more interest in the building of highways in Alabama. Manufacturer proposes that Convention be held in Montgomery and a permanent ganization be perfected. work to be done for a hundred The more we progress there will be to do, and the will be the scope.

We suggest that the governor state with himself added, delegates from each congressional trict and four from the state each probate judge, with added, appoint five delegates presidents of Farmers' Clubs, mercial Clubs, Chambers of merce, Boards of Trade, chants' Associations five each, with themselves added, mayors of towns and cities, gates with themselves added, each editor in the state be attend and the commissioner culture and other state officers.

We also suggest at this the United States Government quested to send a man to the tion to give stereopticon roads, good and bad, in this and Europe and also invite the of the National Good Roads dresses.

We are firmly of the belief magnificent association on a ent basis can be organized much and lasting good can be plished. Let's have a good vival in Alabama. Will you movement?—Dixie Manufacturer, tember 25th.

THE ODD FELLOWS.

W. S. Lewis, of Mobile, Master of Independent Order of Fellows in Alabama; H. C. of Huntsville, Grand Secretary Jake Burger, of Birmingham, Warden, are making official the subordinate lodges of the in the upper part of the state. is much activity in Odd Fellowship.

MISS MARGARET McALLISTER has been elected Queen of the ville Elks' Carnival by popular lot. The contest for Queen very lively for three weeks. McAllister received 7,734 ballots, closest rival scoring 6,166.

PHILADELPHIA had a fire Saturday night when the Comfort & Co. plant burned.

ASHLAND, WIS., reports a hail storm, accompanied destructive lightning, one bolt struck a boat and nearly sunk badly injured its four occupants.

MRS. McKINLEY owns 000 of the McKinley Mines. The mines are in Nevada and to be very valuable. A new was organized September develop them more completely.

THE people of Bolign extensive preparations for annual county Sunday school tion, which will be held in Greene county, on October An elaborate programme has ranged and a large number will attend.

GEN. SHELLEY has campaign committee appointed fication of the new constitution.

Blouse Were Mostly at Home.

The blouse is still with us, but is more in the home than with the outer toilet excepting for coats and Many tucked and corded fasten at the back leaving the fitted front entire. Coats are of types, but the extra long three quarter shape is quite an accepted fashion for evening and carriage wear. The fashionable opera wrap is in flare form, with bell sleeves, and a takes the place of the high collar.

A Beauty Hint.

For one who loves a dainty there are many simple ways of preserving or perfuming it. A cold cream always nice. Oatmeal sewed in a of cheesecloth and used like water for a few minutes is good the complexion. Perhaps a more may now be purchased to make frag the bath. Everybody knows how drop of household ammonia are for all cleansing purposes not every one knows that refreshing a tablespoonful of it is in the daily bath. For bathing the face sunburn milk, buttermilk or lemon juice are all good. Very good in the water could in which a cucumber has been boiled. Philadelphia Times.

Made Her Fortune in Oil.

A woman who has made a success venture in oil is told of by the Woman's Journal which says: West Virginia has an oil queen. She is Mrs. Mary Ihrig, formerly of Statesville, now living in the Tyler county field where her venturesome spirit and good luck have been bringing in an income of about $7000 a week for a month past. Mrs. Ihrig was formerly engaged in the shoe business, but as it did not pay very well she began dabble in oil. She is reported to be developing, with success, what was considered a few months ago the most uncertain wild cat territory in the state, and she is preparing to sink new wells as soon as rigging can be hauled to her property. She has bought a handsome home in Parkersburg, and will direct her new interests from that place.

Makes Her Living as a Blacksmith.

Miss Cela Holbrook, daughter of Rufus Holbrook, has continued her father's blacksmith shop in Sherborn, Mass., employing assistants and carrying on the establishment. She is 19, but was only 17 when her father died, leaving his family in very poor circumstances. Her mother had died eight years earlier. Her brother and three sisters, all younger than herself, are supports by her business ability and enterprise. In addition to carrying on the shop she has taken a contract from the United States to carry the mail twice a day from the village station to the postoffice and return. In the summer she carries the mail on her bicycle; in the winter on foot, making four miles' travel daily. Yet this young woman, who for two years has been practically the head of a family, when she comes of age will not be allowed to vote.

Out-of-the-Ordinary in Millinery.

A shade hat recently "created" for an automobile girl is substantial enough to be able to stand wind and rain and yet gracefully pretty. It is of yellow straw and has a scarf and bow of scarlet ribbon spotted and striped with white. There is a touch of black under the brim and at one side are several gold-painted dark quills.

A traveling hat of emerald green straw trimmed with black velvet is stylish and very becoming to a fair-haired wearer.

For an outdoor fete is an original hat made entirely of wild oats and straw cunningly pleated in together. A huge bunch of ripe mulberries and their foliage give a quaint touch and a wonderfully tied bow of mulberry colored velvet completes the very striking effect.

A shade hat of green horsehair, or Panama, is the shade of the unripe almond. It is artfully trimmed with bunches of mulberries and leaves.

A veritable inspiration is a hat of cream-white embroidered lawn, the gracefully waved brim faced with rose-pink tulle. The only trimming is a big bow of black peau-de-soie and a high Spanish comb of jet.

Three Magpie Costumes.

Black and white, black and white still the cry. A white glace silk gown recently made had a succession of shaped flounces piped with black and white striped silk mounted on it, giving a very light effect; and from the waist downward the skirt was threaded with black velvet, ending in long, tagged ends. A charming little bolero of shaped frills to match the skirt showed an underlay of net, striped with velvet, drawn in to the waist by a belt of mauve glace.

A white voile was fitted to the form by means of tiny tucks, with a wide plastron of tinted guipure showing between the triple box-pleats at the back, a deep shaped flounce cut in tabs caught down over a wide band of guipure by tiny straps of green velvet and gold buckles, and the bodice, carried out in the same style, had the upper part all of lace, a wide gold buckle defining the back of the waist.

LATEST STATE NEWS.

ALABAMA GOOD ROADS CONVENTION.

The public roads are usually [illegible] by intelligent observers as about the best indices of the character and prosperity of the people in the sections through which they pass. The neglect of their roads is justly considered evidence of poor business sense and lack of thrift on the part of the population which is most depend[illegible] upon them.

One of the most hopeful signs of the South's progress is the increasing attention to roads and their steady improving condition. The general condition of roads in the South is much better now than it was ten years ago, that the transportation of crops in this section to market or to railroad lines costs now many millions of dollars less than it did before these improvements were made.

Every good road is an object lesson that causes the building of others where real road improvement once begins it is a most sure to continue.

Alabama has done much in road building during the past three years but she is woefully behind in the great [illegible] and an impetus should be given to the movement and a good healthy sentiment created. Now, in order to create and encourage a sentiment which will lead to a more widespread interest in the building of good highways in Alabama, The Dixie Manufacturer proposes that a Good Roads Convention be held in Birmingham or Montgomery and a permanent organization be perfected. There is work to be done for a hundred years. The more we progress the more there will be to do, and the better will be the scope.

We suggest that the governor of each state with himself added, appoint delegates from each congressional district and four from the state at large, each probate judge, with himself added, appoint five delegates, presidents of Farmers Clubs, Commercial Clubs, Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, Retail Merchants' Associations five delegates each, with themselves added, mayors of towns and cities, five delegates with themselves added, each editor in the state be invited to attend and the commissioners of agriculture and other state officers.

We also suggest at this meeting that the United States Government be requested to send a man to the convention to give stereopticon views of roads good and bad, in this country and Europe and also invite the officers of the National Good Roads Association to be present and make addresses.

We are firmly of the belief that a magnificent association on a permanent basis can be organized and much and lasting good can be accomplished. Let's have a good roads revival in Alabama. Will you help the movement?—Dixie Manufacturer, September 25th.

THE ODD FELLOWS.

W. S. Lewis, of Mobile, Grand Master of Independent Order of Odd Fellows in Alabama; H. C. Wood, of Huntsville, Grand Secretary; Jake Burger, of Birmingham, Grand Warden, are making official visits to the subordinate lodges of the state in the upper part of the state, and is much activity in Odd Fellowship.

MISS MARGARET McALLISTER has been elected Queen of the Huntsville Elks' Carnival by popular vote. The contest for Queen has been very lively for three weeks. McAllister received 7,734 ballots, closest rival scoring 6,105.

PHILADELPHIA had a $1[illegible] fire Saturday night when the Paul Comfort & Co. plant burned.

ASHLAND, WIS., reports a severe hail storm, accompanied with destructive lightning, one bolt of which struck a boat and nearly sunk it, badly injured its four occupants.

MRS. McKINLEY owns [illegible] 000 of the McKinley Mines. The mines are in Nevada and are said to be very valuable. A new company was organized September 29th to develop them more completely.

THE people of Bolligee are making extensive preparations for the annual county Sunday school convention, which will be held in Greene county, on October 1st. An elaborate programme has been arranged and a large number of people will attend.

GEN. SHELLEY has named a campaign committee against the ratification of the new constitution.

Blouses Worn Mostly at Home.

The blouse is still with us, but is more in the home than with the [illegible] for coats and [illegible] Many [illegible] and corded [illegible] leaving the [illegible] entire. Coats are of [illegible] the extra long three-[illegible] an accepted [illegible] and carriage wear, [illegible] opera wrap is in [illegible] with long sleeves, and a [illegible] of the high collar.

A Beauty Hint.

[illegible] a dainty bath [illegible] ways of medi- [illegible] Almond meal [illegible] sewed in a [illegible] thrown in [illegible] is good [illegible] tablets [illegible] to make frag- [illegible] knows how [illegible] household am- [illegible] purposes, [illegible] how refresh- [illegible] it is in the [illegible] the face to [illegible] milk or [illegible] Very good, [illegible] in which a [illegible] Philadel-

Made Her Fortune in Oil.

[illegible] was made a success- [illegible] told of by the [illegible] says "West [illegible] She is Mrs. [illegible] of Sistersville, [illegible] county field, [illegible] spirit and [illegible] bringing in as [illegible] a week for a [illegible] Mrs. Ihrig was formerly [illegible] business, but, as [illegible] very well, she began [illegible] She is reported to be [illegible] with success, what was [illegible] a few months ago the most [illegible] wild cat territory in the [illegible] and she is preparing to sink [illegible] as soon as rigging can be [illegible] to her property. She has [illegible] a handsome home in Parkers- [illegible] and will direct her new interests [illegible] that place.

Takes Her Living as a Blacksmith.

Miss Cora Holbrook, daughter of [illegible] Holbrook, has continued her [illegible] blacksmith shop in Sherborn, [illegible] employing assistants and carrying [illegible] the establishment. She is 19, [illegible] only 17 when her father died, [illegible] his family in very poor cir- [illegible] Her mother had died [illegible] years earlier. Her brother and [illegible] sisters, all younger than herself, [illegible] supports by her business ability [illegible] enterprise. In addition to carrying [illegible] the shop she has taken a con- [illegible] from the United States to car- [illegible] mail twice a day from the rail- [illegible] station to the postoffice and re- [illegible] In the summer she carries the [illegible] on her bicycle, in the winter on [illegible] making four miles' travel daily. [illegible] this young woman, who for two [illegible] has been practically the head [illegible] family, when she comes of age [illegible] not be allowed to vote.

Out-of-the-Ordinary in Millinery.

A shade hat recently "created" for [illegible] automobile girl is substantial [illegible] to be able to stand wind and [illegible] and yet gracefully pretty. It is [illegible] yellow straw and has a scarf and [illegible] of scarlet ribbon spotted and [illegible] with white. There is a touch [illegible] black under the brim and at one [illegible] are several gold-painted dark [illegible]

A traveling hat of emerald green [illegible] trimmed with black velvet is [illegible] and very becoming to a fair- [illegible] wearer.

For an outdoor fete is an original [illegible] made entirely of wild oats and [illegible] cunningly pleated in together. [illegible] bunch of ripe mulberries and [illegible] foliage give a quaint touch and [illegible] tidy bow of mulberry- [illegible] velvet completes the very [illegible] effect.

A shade hat of green horsehair, or [illegible] is the shade of the unripe [illegible] It is artfully trimmed with [illegible] of mulberries and leaves. A [illegible] inspiration is a hat of [illegible] white embroidered lawn, the [illegible] brim faced with [illegible] The only trimming is [illegible] of black peau-de-sole and a [illegible] Spanish comb of jet.

Three Magpie Costumes.

[illegible] and white, black and white [illegible] the city. A white glace silk [illegible] recently made had a sucession [illegible] flounces piped with black [illegible] striped silk mounted on [illegible] giving a very light effect; and [illegible] the waist downward the skirt [illegible] adorned with black velvet, end- [illegible] long, tagged ends. A charming [illegible] bolero of shaped frills to [illegible] the skirt showed an under- [illegible] of net striped with velvet, [illegible] in to the waist by a belt of [illegible] lace.

A white voile was fitted to the [illegible] by means of tiny tucks, with a [illegible] pinafore of tinted guipure show- [illegible] between the triple box-pleats at [illegible] back, a deep shaped flounce cut [illegible] tabs caught down over a wide [illegible] of guipure by tiny straps of [illegible] velvet and gold buckles, and [illegible] carried out in the same [illegible] had the upper part all of lace, [illegible] gold buckle defining the back [illegible] waist.

A very smart gown was of black alpaca arranged in loops at the hem, piped with white glace silk, the white repeated in the front seams and in the double loops of the pretty, quaint bolero; its deep square collar of ecru-embroidered batiste and the new ficelle lace had a tiny collar and revers of satin turning back from it, while the skirt was of white chiffon and the belt of silver.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Memory Book.

A good many young people and older people, too, have begun the delightful task of arranging a memory book to record the happy times they have had and the delightful people they have met. Its make-up is easier, it is of more general interest, and much less tedious than the old-fashioned journal, with its daily recount of often trivial and unimportant events. A large scrap book, strongly bound, with guards or extra strips between the leaves to admit the pastings and entry of souvenirs, is the first requisite. A pretty over-cover can be made of denim in blue, green or brown, or of the ordinary tan canvas, with the title in embroidered lettering in outline, or in gold running through the centre.

The title itself may be as fanciful and poetic as one wishes, so long as it is in harmony with the idea. "For Memory's Sake," "The Light of Other Days," etc. A spray of forget-me-nots or a scattering of the blossoms on the outside or on the fly-leaf inside gives a dainty suggestiveness. Let the cover be large enough to meet over the edges and bound with a neat braid or ribbon, stitched on and tied across the ends and at the front.

As this is a keepsake book for the years of after life, it is worth some trouble to make it pretty and attractive. The filling of the pages will be according to the tastes of the maker. A girl of 19 summers has made her memory book really a very dainty piece of work. She selected almost entirely social happenings, using invitations and other suggestive mementos. One whole page was given to a visit to a friend at Thanksgiving time. On the upper part of the large page was the tag which was on her trunk; under it, arranged in a design, were the little hand-painted dinner cards, and so on. Again, on a page commemorating a clambake, given on the rocks of a summer watering place, were some sprays of the seaweed that the clams were baked in, dried, pressed and fastened in the book by little strips of brightly tinted paper, etc.

The Memory Book for traveling should be much smaller—portfolio size—to admit of use on the steamer's deck, or on the long journeys by train. Many a delightful incident, with its accompanying souvenir, can be slipped into its pages for future fastening, that would otherwise be forgotten and lost forever in the crowding experiences that follow.

"My Memory Book is the most precious thing I own," said a young fellow. "It has helped me through many a dismal evening in a lonely city room." Years added to its value, and in the library of the maturer man or woman successive numbers will stand like ledgers of the pleasure times of youth.—Washington Star.

The first asters of the season are out, a sure sign that fall fashions will soon be seen.

Flower crowns independent of leaves and foliage without flowers are features in millinery garniture.

The very latest novelty in corsets for bathing purposes, is made of perforated rubber mysteriously stiffened so that it answers all the requirements of a genuine corset.

White is always the most popular color in underwear, but during warm weather it is more than ever desirable when thin frocks are worn. In winter pink and blue garments are popular.

Cameo brooches have been rescued from the oblivion in which they have lived for some time past and serve a very useful purpose as belt and skirt fasteners. They are not usually worn as stock pins.

Persian patterns represent the latest idea in hosiery and many of the effects are especially pretty. Pale blue, pink or lavender groundworks, with odd Persian designs, are particularly well liked.

The newest petticoats are washable, and enchanting they are with their close tops and full bottoms, which are made to flounce and furbelow by mounting, in points or straight rows, narrow trimming-edged frills upon wider ones.

One of the newest hats is called the Napoleon, but it is greatly modified from any example of headgear associated with the little corporal. It has several points and is worn folded well back from the forehead. It shows the entire front of the coiffure.

In later years there has been a reaction in favor of cambric underwear, and the chemise is regaining popularity. It is to be found in the prettiest and daintiest of makes, French garments in the soft French nainsook, with the most delicate of embroidery, and less expensive and less fine garments of ordinary cambric, but still pretty and dainty. Some of these are made skirt length, trimmed on the lower edge, forming a combination garment.

Floral Designs on Table Linen.

An entirely new touch in patterns for table linen is the introduction of the roots of the plants in the floral designs. Far from being unsightly, they are so artistic, mingled with the plant and its blossoms, as to be extremely effective as well as novel. Fancy a decorative poppy pattern on the finest quality damask so arranged as to appear as if growing from fibrous roots down near the border, then the blossoming plants stretch toward the centre, where they form a circle around the centrepiece.

To Keep Steel Clean.

The best treatment for wrought steel, which has a knack of growing gray, lustreless and ill-looking, is to first wash it very clean with a stiff brush and ammonia soap suds, rinse well, dry, by heat if possible, then oil plentifully with sweet oil, and dust thickly with powdered quicklime. Let the lime stay on two days, then brush it off with a clean, very stiff brush. Polish with a softer brush, and rub with cloths until the lustre comes out. By leaving the lime on, iron and steel may be kept from rust almost indefinitely.

Window Decorations.

"How perfectly beautiful," exclaimed a visitor as she entered the favorite sitting room of the chatelaine of a charming country house. It was no wonder she stood transfixed with admiration. Before her, nearly filling one end of the room, was a deep recessed window and window seat, the former with large plate glass sashes that made the room seem part of a fruit orchard beyond, which was just bursting into pink and white silken cushions to match a great semicircle of hyacinths and tulips just outside that blazed with color within their setting of emerald green turf. Their soft tints of pink, yellow, blue, white, purple, lilac and dark red were all exactly reproduced in the piled up cushions of the window seat.

Proper Care of the Linen.

The best of linen will crack if folded the same way each time that it is ironed. By careful supervision this can be avoided by folding in twos one week and in threes another, and varying the methods. A tablecloth will give a better appearance if the ridges are smoothed out with an iron after the cloth is laid. Many housekeepers who do not like the appearance of folds iron them out entirely after the cloth is on the table.

A table cloth which is to show the creases should be folded lengthwise through the middle, with the two halves folded back in opposite directions, instead of together. This will leave the two creases each side of the central one outward and matching.

A liberal use of tea and tray cloths, centrepieces and doilies every day adds to the dainty appearance of a table and saves the long cloths a great deal of wear and tear, the laundress being spared, meanwhile, much work.

Apple Dumplings—Make a light, melting biscuit dough. Pinch off a small piece and roll thin. Put a heaped spoonful of stiff canned apples in the centre and pinch the edges together. Bake in a quick oven. Serve with sugar and cream.

Spinach Souffle—Take a cupful of spinach which has been prepared and mix it with the beaten yolk of an egg and stir over the fire until the egg is set. Let it cool. When ready to serve stir into it lightly the well-beaten whites of three eggs. Fill individual buttered paper boxes half full and place them in a hot oven for 10 minutes. Serve at once.

Orange Foam—One-half a box of gelatine soaked in one-half a cup of cold water. Dissolve in one pint of boiling water, making only one pint of water in all. Add juice of four large oranges, one cup of granulated sugar. Let it thicken until it is like a syrup. Beat the whites of five eggs, very light. Beat all together until it is white and foamy, then put away to cool. Serve with whipped cream.

Macaroni with Cheese—Break 12 sticks of macaroni into one-inch lengths, and cook in two quarts of boiling salted water for 20 or 30 minutes. Drain the water off and pour into a bake dish. Make a cream sauce by melting a spoonful of butter, rub in a spoonful of flour, then add half a pint of cold milk, and cook until it thickens; salt to taste. Pour over the macaroni, and sprinkle a cup of grated cheese on top. Bake until brown.

Almond Jumbles—Two cupfuls of sugar and one and a half cupfuls of butter beaten to a smooth, light cream. Add six eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly. Then stir in half a wine glass of apricot juice, half a cupful of cornstarch and three cupfuls of sifted flour. Roll out the dough quite thin, cut it with a jumble cutter, sprinkle over one pound of blanched and chopped almonds, press them in with the rolling pin, sprinkle granulated sugar over the top; place on buttered paper in shallow tins and bake in a hot oven.

BLIND MAN'S STRANGE POWER.

Perceives the Proximity of Any Object on a Level With His Head.

Is there a sixth sense? The blind piano tuner, Dean S. Gray, surely possesses one. When passing a high board fence he can, without touching it, mysteriously feel its presence. Anything which is on a level with his head is recognized in the same way.

"I might," he says, "stumble over a post, but wouldn't run into a large tree or a brick wall, unless walking rapidly."

His physician states that this strange "sense of feeling" comes from the nerves in the face, for his sight is destroyed absolutely.

One evening in Milwaukee avenue a house in the process of being moved was standing in the middle of the street. Mr. Gray passed along the sidewalk where there was nothing to indicate the presence of the house. After arriving at his destination he asked: "What's that thing back there in the street? It ought not to be there."

He has the power of impressing this mysterious feeling upon others. A short time ago he was seated in the centre of a Third street car. A lady got on and sat at the end of the seat. Mr. Gray made no movement, but those watching instantly realized that he knew exactly what had happened. When he rose to leave the car he passed her more deftly than does the ordinary man with two perfect eyes.

As Mr. Gray was walking down Michigan avenue recently to the Journal office to have his first photograph taken, his escort turned from Michigan at Cass avenue instead of walking on to Wayne. Quickly he asked, "Why do you turn here? Michigan and Fort are nearer together through Wayne street than through Cass."

A few steps further he said: "Here is the restaurant where we had dinner."

At Howard street he was asked: "What street is this?" He replied: "One end of Howard."

Thus he knows every street in the city, and street numbers, too. At the front steps of the Journal building he swung his cane forward to measure the first step, and after that proceeded up the rest just as any one else would.

His sister said that when they were going anywhere together she let him lead the way, though she sees perfectly, for he knows the quickest routes.

Many street cars he recognizes by their gongs.

"The new Woodward avenue and the Jefferson and Third avenue cars have rather heavy gongs," he said. "Also the Detroit railway cars. But now they are mixing them up, and it is harder to know when the right one comes."

Many conductors assert that Mr. Gray can tell the streets of the city by his "sense of feeling." But as a matter of fact, the city map is in his mind, and he knows when he passes the last intersection of car lines before his destined street. Then so closely does he caluculate short distances run by the car that he can ring the bell at the right time for his own street. Likewise when walking, he knows when it is time to turn a corner.

Nothing escapes his ears, and he can go home and repeat the entire conversation of those sitting near him, especially on politics. Mr. Gray denied the story that he can tell the demonination of bills. Coins are easy, but no blind person in the United States can tell the denomination of a bill, he says.

Mr. Gray is a busy man, for his affliction has given his ear peculiar aptness in his business of piano tuning. All alone he travels over the city, and even to Windsor. The car lines are the points in his compass which keep him informed of his position. His watch has no crystal, and he reads time from it with perfect ease with his fingers.

He is an expert chess player.

Mr. Gray was graduated from the tuning department of the Michigan school for the blind at Lansing. While there he reecived an excellent education and converses fluently on all popular questions. His residence is at No. 291 Harper avenue east.

Those who meet him for the first time bow mechanically, and try to make the points of their conversation more clear to him by means of gestures. He became completely blind from cataract before he was five years old, and, like so many other blind persons, has no memory of his sight except how light appears.—Detroit Journal.

Warships' Funnels.

Le Yacht is the happy possessor of a gentleman with a pretty and caustic wit. There is this week a long and exhaustive description of the Ohio, which concludes as follows: "Finally, the three funnels have a height of 100 feet above the furnace bars and give an admirable target." "Admirable target" is distinctly good. All the same, it is distinctly true. Some day the naval architects may manage to realize that every lofty funnel is as good as another mast, and that the prime use of the mast is to give an enemy an excellent something to lay his guns by. We are firmly convinced that a ship with stumpy funnels, and either no masts at all or else merely thin poles, is likely to be hit only half as much as the ordinary type of warship. Masts, in point of fact, are a greater danger to modern ships than woodwork, which so much fuss is made about.—London Engineer.

A Hair-Raising Episode.

"Asleep on the switch," mused the girl who had forgotten to put her hair on the mantel before retiring.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A successful author of fiction needs as much good press agent work nowadays as the rising statesman.

By introducing potato bugs into England we will also be able to sell the British farmers a potato bug exterminator after awhile.

The mosquito has never been suspected of transmitting appendicitis or any other recherche disease. It is an insect without a redeeming trait.

Somebody claims to have discovered that the ordinary restaurant pie bears a close relation to crime. If the theory can be sustained it might also be used as a plea of justification.

The effort to suppress fictitious titles will receive hearty support from many a civilian whose well-meaning friends insist on calling him "Colonel" when he would be better pleased with plain "Mister."

The new Italian submarine war vessel Delfino is said to have proved a success in her recent trials. She is provided with a cleptoscope, a new device, for reflecting to the crew below a broad view of the surface of the water.

How times change! If Peter the Great were alive and desirous of learning the art of shipbuilding, he would not go to Holland, nor yet to England. He would come to the United States. The Czar sent to the United States for the Variag, and so well likes the performances of that war craft that he will send for others.

In the match industry of the world 1,500,000,000 matches are turned out annually, and possibly 75,000,000 feet of lumber are consumed in their manufacture, and yet scarcely 15,000 people are employed in the industry. Nothing could more strongly exemplify the utility of labor-saving machinery.

Anarchists who rave against all law have cause to be most grateful to the law at present for the protection it gives them. If it were not for the law, and for popular respect for the law, not an anarchist's life in the United States would be worth a moment's lease. As it is, the life even of Czolgosz is quite safe, says the New York Tribune.

The unfortunate woman who floated through the Niagara Rapids in a barrel and was then tossed about in the whirpool for hours must have endured prolonged agonies before death came. She brought upon herself her dreadful fate, but she ought never to have been allowed to sacrifice her life. Surely there is warrant in law for the interference of the police in such cases.

It has been widely noted and variously commented upon that the summer girl has been less in evidence this season than usual. There is no cause for regret at her departure, even if it should prove permanent. The summer girl, as pictorially and poetically described, is a creature of fluff and frizzes, with a penchant for coquetry. She is a fleeting joy, who can better be spared than the common-sense girl who makes all seasons her own.

Sir C. A. Cookson, before the recent congress of the Royal Institute of Public Health, at Eastbourne, England, undertook to deal with the attractive theme, "A Smokeless London." He said the inhabitants of London were always complaining of the black frogs which were almost indissolutely associated with the month of November, and which did more than anything else to lower the city as a place of permanent, or even temporary residence. In the estimation of the outside world, the evil was so inveterate that any attempt to remedy it had come to be deemed desperate. Yet there was a remedy at hand and easy of attainment. The chief element which would conduce to a smokeless London would be the burning for domestic purposes of some form of smokeless coal. That smokeless coal was of two kinds, one anthracite, debituminized by a natural, the other, coke, by an artificial process. There were sentimental and financial objections to the proposal, but even supposing the cost was a little more, the loss would be recouped in the gain effected by cleanliness.

Another public-school fad is making headway in the West. This is basket-making. It originated in Minneapolis, and is to be tried in Chicago. Its basis is the idea that the childhood of an individual is similar in its impulses to the childhood of the race. Axes of chipped stone were made by the human race in its infancy. Instruction in the making of stone hatchets is not practicable, however, and, therefore, the making of rattan baskets was substituted. A few of the Minneapolis teachers learned the art and then taught their pupils. The Board of Education grew enthusiastic over the beautiful glove-boxes and flower-pot holders which were made by the school children, and appropriated $3,000 to buy materials and pay for instruction in rattan basket-making in the first four grades of the schools. Next in order, of course, was a school for teachers in basket-making. This is in session in Chicago, and is attended by ninety women and two men. There is a practical side to the matter, according to the Minneapolis leader of the fad. "One little girl," she says, "sold several of her baskets at fifty cents apiece, and took orders for a number more. She brought nine dollars home to her mother, a hard-working washerwoman, and perhaps you can imagine the little one's joy and pride."

AN OLD MEETING-HOUSE.

Built to Serve as a Place of Worship or as a Fort.

The Alna meeting-house looms high on a rather barren hilltop. As in many of the Plymouth colonies, it was also the military storehouse, and tradition has it that loopholes were provided above the first tier of windows, so that in case of need the building could be shuttered and converted into a blockhouse. When the building was repaired several years ago, a cavity in the wall was found filled with old-fashioned moulded bullets. The building, which is painted a dull yellowish brown, is in good repair, both outside and in. The beams measure 12 by 14 inches, and bear the marks of the broadaxe. At the entrance are two old-fashioned foot scrapers, relics of a careful generation and of wretched roads. The pews are of old-time box style, as at Walpole, each a little compartment, entered by a door. So high are the sides that were it not for the open work of tiny carved banisters surrounding the top, one could, even under the preachers' thunder, have napped very comfortably and unseen in the roomy retreat. There are four groups of body pews, with six pews to each, and bordering three sides of the building is a string of twenty-five pews, while in the gallery are double rows, giving in all a very large seating capacity. There are twenty-four panes of glass in each of the present windows, but the original sashes held such tiny panes that each window resembled a patchwork quilt.

A twisting flight of stairs leads up to the old pulpit, and from this dizzy eminence the Gospel darts were hurled. The builders evidently realized that preachers are men of varying stature for fitted into the pulpit's floor is a series of sliding shelves, or little platforms, to raise or lower his standing. Each of these platforms is dented, scratched, and seamed by expressive feet. Over the pulpit hangs the heavy, bell-shaped sounding board, and in the background is a red curtained window, the one touch of color about the interior.

In a sorry state of preservation, with fist-banged covers, is the old Bible, a huge, leather-bound volume, printed at Worcester, Mass., in 1791, by Isaiah Thomas. The old sexton carefully guards it from the curiosity hunter. "I have to keep it hid," he says, "or it wouldn't last so long as old Brown stayed in Heaven, and that you know is a matter of record." * * * The Alna meeting-house had no stove until thirty-five years ago, even then no chimney being built, but the funnel, branching out over the gallery, was poked through a window for egress. Now a regulation chimney leads the smoke out in the way it should go.

Formerly half a garrison house, the Alna Church has in latter years done double duty in another direction, for now it is the town meeting-house, and here the annual elections are held, although it is difficult to imagine the mechanism of the modern ballot-system in operation under the bulging pulpit's frown.—New England Magazine.

THE VOLUME OF RIVERS.

Comparison of the Discharge of the Mississippi and Columbia.

An estimate by Captain Harts of the volume of water flowing in the Columbia River is interesting, in comparison with the volume of the Mississippi at New Orleans. Captain Harts made his observations at The Dalles. At low water he found a flow of 108,000 cubic feet per second; at high water 1,600,000 cubic feet per second. At low water the discharge at New Orleans is 250,000 cubic feet per second; at ordinary high water 1,000,000 cubic feet, and at extreme high water 1,200,000 cubic feet per second. To these figures from 10 to 15 per cent. should be added for the flow through the Atchafalaya. This estimate as to the Mississippi is from the most recent resources we have at hand. They are from Johnson's Cyclopedia copyright, 1894, and compiled from the "Journal of the Association of Engineering Societies and Other Sources." The mean annual discharge of the whole Mississippi basin into the Gulf of Mexico, including that by the Atchafalaya and Bayou outlets, is estimated at 675,000 cubic feet per second. It is larger, probably, than the mean annual discharge of the Columbian basin, but not greatly larger; for the Columbia flows at low-water stage not more than two months in the year, and at the high-water stage it carries a greater volume than the Mississippi. Below the Ohio the Mississippi gains little in volume, losing by evaporation about as much as it receives from its lower affluents. The flow of the St. Lawrence much exceeds that of any other river in North America. Various authorities agree that the mean annual discharge is in excess of 1,000,000 cubic feet per second. The volume at Niagara is estimated at 300,000 cubic feet per second. It varies little throughout the year, since the great lakes above regulate the volume and give it an even flow.—Portland Oregonian.

Swallowed a Bullet.

Lord Kitchener once had a very extraordinary experience, having swallowed a bullet with which he had been wounded. During the campaign of 1898 Major Kitchener was hit in the side of the face by a bullet during a skirmish near Suakim, and was taken down the Nile and thence to the Citadel Hospital at Cairo, where, despite all the efforts of his surgeons, the bullet could not be located. The wound was a healthy one and soon healed, and the medical officers came to the conclusion that the bullet had worked its way out without being noticed. The major's nurse one day tempted the patient's appetite with a tasty beefsteak, which the major had no sooner attacked than he put his hand to his throat, exclaiming: "Bless, if there was no bone in the steak I've swallowed that bullet; I felt it go down!" This proved to be the case.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

With this issue we send to each subscriber a copy of the new Constitution. Every one should read and study it, and then vote according to his convictions on the matter.

We are glad to learn that the University School at Planterville had a successful opening, with 47 pupils, and the prospects are flattering for a flourishing school there.

The news of the death of Hon. John Bruce, Judge of the United States District Court for the Middle and Northern Districts of Alabama, was received here on yesterday, and evoked expressions of universal regret. He was a just judge and always leaned to side of mercy, and if he had failings, they leaned to virtue's side.

A subscriber writes to us from Prattville that he is not receiving The Banner regularly. We would respectfully ask subscribers, when their postmaster tells them there is no Banner for them, to please take another look, and in most cases he will find it, unless he has given it out to some of your neighbors. The Banner is sent out in bundles to the different postoffices, and unless the bundle should go astray in the mail, when one subscriber gets his paper, all should get theirs also. We are willing to send you another copy, but before you ask for it, please see if you can't find the first one we have sent you, between your postmaster and your neighbors.

In another column we repsint from the columns of the "Dixie Manufacturer" a suggestion for a "Good Roads" convention. That such a convention would result in incalculble advantage to the State we are fully convinced, and sincerely hope the idea will be pushed in every community. The last few years has seen a marked improvement in the conditions of our roads, but they are yet far from being what they should be. "Jordan's a hard road to travel" and so are many of our thoroughfares. The farmer who can haul on good roads his produce to town is far ahead of his competitor who can only bring a small load on account of the poor road he has to travel. This is a matter that concerns every man, and we hope to see good results from the convention.

Banker Routs A Robber

J. R. Garrison, Cashier of the bank of Thornville, Ohio, had been robbed of health by a serious lung trouble until he tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Then he wrote: "It is the best medicine I ever used for a severe cold or a bad case of lung trouble. I always keep a bottle on hand." Don't suffer with Coughs, Colds, or any Throat, Chest or Lung trouble when you can be cured so easily. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Clanton Drug Store.

Too Much.

"You say you think your boy has too great an appetite?" said the physician to an anxious mother. "Do you realize how much a growing boy can eat?"

"I should think I ought to if anybody does," returned the boy's parent. "I'll just put the case to you, doctor.

"Where we were, up in the mountains, the waitress would come in and say to my boy, 'We have fried fish, steak, liver and bacon, baked and fried potatoes, rye biscuit, muffins and dry toast.'

"And that boy Ned would say, 'I'll take it all, please—and some eggs.'"—Exchange.

52 Dinners cost only 75 cents.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER.

(continued from 1st col. page 1)

fact that the best thing he has ever done in his life was to marry you,' and that the only way in which he can show his appreciation is to do just whatever you want him to do. (He'll do at at first, but I can't say how long he will keep it up.) Tell him that you "left your happy home," for him, because you knew he was going to the dogs if you didn't. (They all think that, but it is not so by a long way.) Make him understand that a man is nothing without a wife, and that he ought to think himself mighty lucky that he has got you. (He is bound to agree with you, he dare not do otherwise.) Pickle him with love and kisses, preserve him with "honey" and "sugar," pack him up tightly at home, polish him with your affection, pacify him (if he gets fierce) with the pabulum of your love, pad him with expressions of kindness, paddle him if he won't be good, padlock him up if he shows a disposition to stray, pain him if he's naughty, paint him in fancy colors to your friends, pair him with none, pale not before him, pall not his enjoyments, palliate his faults (if he has any) don't pamper him, don't pander to his peculiarities, don't feed him with pap, and by all means don't be always citing "Papa" to him, and don't parade all your good qualities at once before him. If you can do all this he will think you are his precious pearl, a paragon of perfection without a parallel and that he is in paradise. (And perhaps he is). Some other time I will offer a little advice to bridegrooms, if the brides don't fall out with me for this.

Right-Mindedness Exemplified.

In all that occurred from the beginning of his fateful visit to Buffalo, through the days of alternate hope and fear to his dying moment, Mr. McKinley had exhibited a right-mindedness so perfect that human nature seemed capable of nothing better. And from the first news of the bullet-shot on September 6 to the final obsequies at Canton on September 19, Mr. Roosevelt had also exhibited such sincerity of feeling, and such unfailing discernment as to fitting words and right actions, that he also added something to our faith in the high possibilites of human nature. Furthermore, the conduct and the sentiment of the nation at large were so intelligent, so reasonable, and, in short, so essentially right-minded, as to afford a splendid illustration of the reality of American patriotism, and the repose and strength of our democratic institutions. Thus, the assassin's bullet,—aimed not at William McKinley the man so much as at President McKinley in his official capacity, and thus intended to weaken and injure the fabric of our institutions,—merely served to show at once the great heartedness and moral worth of the two representative men chosen as heads of the state, and, further, to illustrate the wholesome mind and spirit of the nation after its long experience of freedom regulated by law. Thus, it has been made manifest that the American people do not hate their institutions, but rather that they love them, and that they have also the capacity, regardless of such minor differences as are expressed by political parties, to appreciate and to love the upright and faithful men whom they have chosen to be their chief public servants.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for October.

It Is A Good Thing.

We like to say a good word for anything that deserves it, so do not hesitate to endorse the Sterling Remedy Company, makers of the famous Cascarets. Within five years the sale of Cascarets has grown from a single box until last year it reached the enormous sale of over six million boxes. We mention this with pride because we have carried the advertising in the columns of this paper and it is only another proof that the right kind of advertising behind an article with real merit like Cascarets brings success. All druggists report an enormous demand for Cascarets that is steadily increasing. They are put up in convenient form and the prices are 10c, 25c and 50c a box and a 50c box is enough for one month's treatment. We urge our friends, who have the slightest liver or bowel trouble to give them a trial.

Alabama Good Roads Convention.

The public roads are usually taken by intelligent observers as about the best indices of the character and prosperity of the people in the region through which they pass. The neglect of their roads is justly considered evidence of poor business sense and lack of thrift on the part of the population which is most dependent upon them.

One of the most hopeful signs of the South's progress is the increased attention to roads and their steadily improving condition. The general condition of roads in the South is so much better now than it was ten years ago that the transportation of crops in this section to market or to railway lines cost now many millions of dollars less than it did before these improvements were made.

Every good road is an object lesson that causes the building of others and where real road improvement once begins it is almost sure to continue.

Alabama has done much in road building during the past three years, but she is woefully behind in the great work and an impetus should be given to the movement and a good healthy sentiment created. Now, in order to create and encourage a sentiment which will lead to a more widespread interest in the building of enduring highways in Alabama, the Dixie Manufacturer proposes that a State Convention be held in Birmingham or Montgomery and a permanent organization be perfected. There is work to be done for a hundred years. The more we progress the more work there will be to do, and the broader will be the scope

We suggest that the Governor of the State with himself added, appoint two delegates from each Congressional District and four from the State at large, each Probate Judge, with himself added, appoint five delegates, the presidents of Farmers Clubs, Commercial Clubs, Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trades, Retail Merchants Associations five delagates each, with themselves added, and mayors of towns and cities, five delegates with themselves added. Also each editor in the State be invited to attend and the Commissioner of Agriculture and other State officers.

We also suggest at this meeting that the United States Government be requested to send a man to the convention to give stereopticon views of roads, good and bad, in this country and Europe and also invite the officers of the National Good Roads Association to be present and make addresses.

We are firmly of the belief that a magnificent association on a permanent basis can be organized and that much and lasting good can be accomplished. Let's have a good roads revival in Alabama. Will you help the movement?

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People, everywhere it has been introduced, are wild with delight. You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect. Send stamps for one. Ladies' size 50c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. (See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

Why suffer with that painful Wound when Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will stop the pain and heal it so quickly and cost so little? One application will convince an convert you. Price 50c.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

In Chancery, at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, Northeastern Chancery Division.

Amanda Jones, Complainant, vs. Jack Jones, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of A. C. Smith, solicitor for Complainant, that the Defendant, Jack Jones, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, whose postoffice and residence are unknown to affiant, and further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, Alabama, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said Jack Jones, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 28th day of October, 1901, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office, in Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama, this 23rd day of September, 1901. W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

A. C. SMITH,
Solicitor for Complainant.

TAX NOTICE.

ASSESSOR'S & COLLECTOR'S First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of assessing the State and County Taxes of Chilton County for the year 1900, and collecting the taxes for the year 1901.

			1901
Pletcher	Beat 8	Oct.	1
Stanton	" 8	"	2
Dixie	" 8	"	3
Shoults	" 7	"	4
Maplesville	" 7	"	5
Benson	" 3	"	7
Macedonia	" 3	"	8
Providence	" 2	"	9
Jemison	" 2	"	10
Mineral Springs	" 1	"	11
Strasburg	" 9	"	12
Clanton	" 4	"	14
Cooper	" 5	"	15
Verbena	" 5	"	16
Kincheloe	" 6	"	17

A. C. SMITH, Tax Assessor.
T. I. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING

When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished, when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager, 816 Caxton Building, Chicago.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is not a snuff or dry remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Send prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C #35 EDWIN A. GILES & COMPANY, 2350 and 2352 Market Street, Philadelphia.

What's Your Face Worth?

Sometimes a fortune, but never, if you have a sallow complexion, a jaundiced look, moth patches and blotches on the skin,—all signs of Liver Trouble. But Dr. King's New Life Pills give clear Skin, Rosy cheeks, Rich complexion. Only 25 cents at Clanton Drug Store.

Here we are

Fairly settled down in our new store with the Finest Line of Goods ever brought to Chilton county, all conveniently arranged for your inspection.

OUR DRY GOODS—come and see them—make your eyes smile.

OUR SHOES—come and see them—make your feet easy in look at them.

OUR CLOTHING—come and see them—make your heart glad.

OUR HATS—come and see them—make you feel good.

OUR GROCERIES—come and see them—make your mouth water.

OUR NOTIONS—come and see them—make you take a notion to buy.

OUR STORE—come and see it once—make you want to come again.

OUR STOCK—ALL—come and see it—make you want to buy.

OURSELVES—come and see us—we are always glad to see you.

and we are yours most respectfully,

W. H. Sartor,
CLANTON

We have moved to 2012 First Avenue
EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES

J. Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Qt.

COLLIER DRUG CO.,
THE CUT RATE DRUG STORE
BIRMINGHAM, - ALA.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO
W. A. KEMP
KEEP YOUR EYE ON IT

C. W. WILSON
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
Fancy Groceries a Specialty
CLANTON

THORSBY NORMAL SCHOOL
A SCHOOL OF INDEPENDENT NORMALISM, OF THE SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS.
THOROUGH, PRACTICAL, MORAL AND NON-SECTARIAN.

Economy taught and practiced. We court investigation, and shall be glad to have anyone, at any time, examine into the merits of our work.

One of the best equipped schools of the State. The Main Building is a beautiful two-story structure of fifteen rooms. The Ladies' Dormitory is an excellent three-story structure well suited to the purposes for which it is used. The Library consists of more than a thousand volumes.

BOARD, $6.50 TO $8.00 PER MONTH.
TUITION, $1.50 TO $3.50 PER MONTH.

It is our purpose to build up and to lend a hand in helping other institutions throughout the State in elevating the youth to a higher standard of citizenship.

For catalogue or further information, address
RASCO & CARMICHAEL, Thorsby, Ala.

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' Court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July, second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Price to-day 7¾ @ 7 9-16 cents.
Same date last year 9 9-16 cts.

Receipts to date.	1901	1900
Pinckard & Co	426	748
Mullins	257	463
Wilson	63	92
Dawes	98	108
Total	843	1411

We are in the market buying Hides and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

BRICK for sale at $5 and $7 per M. F. R. WOODYARD, Clanton.

Mrs. G. L. Phillips went to the capital city Tuesday.

Mr. W. L. Sampey of Gadsden was in town a day or two this week.

Mr. W. H. Mills of Pletcher was a pleasant visitor here Wednesday.

Prof. W. A. McCreless of Jemison, was one of our welcome visitors last Saturday.

Don't you forget that Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure colic in horses and mules. 25 cents a dose, 50 doses in a bottle. Keep it constant.

Rev. F. M. Woods came down from North Birmingham Wednesday morning and was circulating among old friends, who were glad to see him.

Pleasant, harmless, reliable. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is the best remedy for wounds, burns, bruises, stings of insects, etc.

Dr. E. A. Malone of Lily was one of our welcome visitors Monday.

Judge Adams went to Thorsby Monday.

A gang of workmen are busy building the new depot.

Mr. Will Parrish killed a large amount a few days ago. It can be seen at Kanter's store.

We are in the market buying Hides and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Mr. Wallace C. Edler is back again. He has been adding new members to the Shelby association.

Bridles from $5.00 up; saddles from $1.50 up; bridles from 50 cts.
R. L. MARCUS, Clanton.

Mrs. Phillips has a very pretty display of millinery in her window.

Your cow is suffering with garget or spoiled udder," use Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic freely. It is said by many to be a very fine remedy by those who have tried it.

President Holloway of the People's Savings Bank was in town Monday on business connected with the building of the banking house.

There was a big crowd in town Saturday at the speaking.

Barnes Circus will be at Thorsby Saturday, October 5. Big parade at 10 o'clock. A number of free outside shows on the grounds after parade. Two performances daily at 2 and 7 p.m. Don't afford to miss it. The finest and best show that will be in this section. Come early. Saturday, October 5.

We are in the market buying Hides and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Look for Dr. A. J. Massey's card in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every month. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage he will appreciate same in future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1185½ 21st st., between 2nd and 3rd aves, Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Two houses have been moved by the Probate Judge to poor persons.

W. Schmidt and Miss Parrish; Mr. Ocie K. Foshee and Dollie Culver; Mr. W. Dowdy and Miss Martha Parrish.

CURES THE COUGH
and works off the Cold.
Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure in one day. No Cure, No Pay. Price 25 cents.

e are

our new store with the Finest rought to Chilton county, all
for your inspection.

see them—make your eyes sparkle.
m—make your feet easy to look at e them—make your heart glad.
—make you feel good.
e them—make your mouth water.
them—make you take a notion to once—make you want to come again.
see it—make you want to buy.
—we are always glad to see you.
re most respectfully,

. Sartor,

CLANTON

to st Avenue
AT CUT PRICES

Virginia Rye 75c Per Quart

DRUG CO.,
T RATE DRUG STORE
AM, · ALA.

BELONGS TO

KEMP

R EYE ON IT

WILSON
LER IN—ERCHANDISE
ries a Specialty
CLANTON

ORMAL SCHOOL
DENT NORMALISM, OF THE EPARTMENTS.
NORAL AND NON-SECTARIAN.
iced. We court investigation, and t any time, examine into the merits hools of the State. The Main Building cture of fifteen rooms. The Ladies'
-story structure well suited to the
The Library consists of more than one
O $8.00 PER MONTH.
TO $13.50 PER MONTH.
p and to lend a hand in helping other in elevating the youth to a higher ormation, address
CARMICHAEL, THORSBY, ALA.

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' Court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in March, first Monday in June, second Monday in July, second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET.

Price to-day 7½ @ 7.9 16 cents.
Same date last year 9.92½ cts.

Cotton received to date:	1901	1900
Pinckard & Co	426	748
Mullins	337	469
Wilson	63	92
Guest	18	100
Total	843	1409

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

BRICK for sale at $5 and $7 per M. F. R. WOODWARD, Clanton.

Mrs. G. E. Phillips went to the Birmingham city Tuesday.

Mr. W. L. Sampey of Gadsden, was in town a day or two this week.

Mr. W. H. Mills of Pletcher was a pleasant visitor here Wednesday.

Prof. W. A. McCreless of Jemison, was one of our welcome visitors last Saturday.

Don't you forget that Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure colic in horses and mules. 25 cents a dose, 50 cents a bottle. Keep it convenient.

Rev. F. M. Woods came down from North Birmingham Wednesday morning and was circulating among old friends, who were glad to see him.

Pleasant, harmless, reliable. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is the best remedy for wounds, burns, bruises, stings of insects, etc.

Mr. E. A. Malone of Lily was one of our welcome visitors Monday.

Judge Adams went to Thorsby Monday.

A gang of workmen are busy building the new depot.

Mr. Will Parrish killed a large amount a few days ago. It can be seen at Kinner's store.

We are in the market buying Corn and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Mr. Wallace C. Edler is back again. He has been adding many new members to the Shelby Light association.

Buggies from $50.00 up, saddles from $10.00 up, bridles from 50 cts.
R. L. MARCUS, Clanton.

Mrs. Phillips has a very pretty line of millinery in her window.

Your cow is suffering with garget, unless you use Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic freely. It is said to be a very fine remedy by those who have tried it.

President Holloway of the People's Savings Bank was in town Monday on business connected with the building of the banking house.

There was a big crowd in town Saturday to hear the speaking.

Sells Bros. Circus will be at Clanton Saturday, October 5. Big parade at 10 o'clock. A number of free outside shows on the ground after parade. Two performances daily at 2 and 7 p.m. Can't afford to miss it. The finest and best show that will be in this section. Come early. Saturday, October 5.

We are in the market buying Corn and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Look for Dr. A. J. Massey's card in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every month. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in future. Will pay fare one way for patients going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1184 21st st., between 2nd and 3rd aves., Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgages, Waive Notes, Receipts for sale at The Banner office.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

H. W. Schmidt and Miss Parrish; Mr. Ocie K. Foshee and Miss Dollie Culver; Mr. W. [illegible] and Miss Martha Parrish.

STOPS THE COUGH and Works off the Cold.
Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure in one day. No Cure, No Pay. Price 25 cents.

NOW!

Our Mr. Pinckard has just returned from the East, where he purchased our Fall Stock, securing many fine grades of goods.

We must make room for these new goods, so NOW is your chance. We will show you great bargains, call and see us.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

October bargains

Clearing Out Sale

Bound to go

To clear out my big stock the prices have been cut down and every hing goes at bargain figures. These goods were purchased when the market was low, and I can afford to sell them to you at greatly reduced prices.

You will be surprised and delighted with the quality of these goods, and absolutely astonished to find you can get them for such little money.

Ladies' Capes from 25 cents up. Ladies' Dress Goods from $1 up.

Ladies' Walking Jackets from $1 75 up.

Ladies' Hats from 50 cents up.

Children's Jackets from $1 25 up. Calico 4 cents per yard.

Sheeting, yard wide, 4½ cents per yard. 10 balls Thread 5 cents.

A full line of Men's Clothing, Shoes, Hats etc. but have not space here to give prices.

A BIG LINE OF TRUNKS.

H. TOURO, Clanton

C. R. MULLINS

REPRESENTS THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEWARK, N. J., AND SEVERAL LEADING FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

and will insure your lives and property at lowest current rates.

I also wish to state that I am getting in my Fall stock of the Latest Improved High arm SINGER MACHINES, and I have my office full of second hand machines of different kinds, all in good running order, that I will sell cheap for cash or trade for produce, most any old way and at any old price. I must have the room for my new stock which will arrive about September 1st.

Also have on sale at my office the latest improved SMOOTHING IRON with Fluter combined.

NEEDLES, OIL, RANDS, CANS, ETC.

Regular office days Saturday and Monday.

C. R. MULLINS, Agent, Singer Office, Clanton.

REYNOLDS BROS.,

—DEALERS IN—

...General Merchandise...

COTTON BUYERS.

JEMISON, A A.

Owing to a change in our business we are going to sell our entire stock at prices that will alarm you.

10 lbs. Good Coffee		$1.00
18 lbs. Sugar		1.00
Success Soda	per pound	4
Men's Oil Grained Best Grade Shoes		1.25
Women's Oil and Glove Grained Shoes—Button or Lace—Best on Earth	only	1.00
1 lb. Schnapps, Red Apple, Red Rabbit, and Early Bird Tobacco		32
Calico	per yard	5
Cotton Checks	per yard	5
Good Suit Clothes	only	4.00
Good Family Flour		3.25

Remember the old adage: "Make hay while the sun shines," and get your share of these goods.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR BEEF CATTLE AND COTTON SEED

This is Spot Cash. Do not ask to have them charged, as you will be denied.

REYNOLDS BROS

FINEST OIL MADE

FOR SEWING MACHINES, CLOCKS OR BICYCLES.

YOUR MONEY REFUNDED IF NOT SATISFACTORY. FOR SALE BY

L. D. POPWELL, CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Nauseous Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

THE

VITAE ORE

PREPARATIONS

are on sale by
Campbelle Drug co., clanton.
A. Horn, Thorsby.
A. A. Ayers, clanton.
Rev. M. F. Lett, Kinchen
J. B. Downs, clanton.

N. A. LOGAN,
General Agent for Chilton and Shelby counties, Clanton, Ala.

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Parry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bachelor mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T U CRUMPTON, Prop'r
MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

GOOD NEWS for the People of Maplesville, Riderville and surrounding country.

We beg to call your attention to our stock of DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, SHOES and GENERAL MERCHANDISE, which is now complete in both stores, and everybody is invited to call and examine our goods and prices, which will astonish you. We will give you a few of our prices which will convince you that we are leaders of low prices and first-class goods, and will take great pleasure in showing you bargains. Here they are:

Calicoes at 4 cents per yard. Outings from 3½ cents up.
Yard wide Sheeting 5 cents.
We have the Anvil brand Shoes—Guaranteed to give satisfaction—
Men's and Ladies' Shoes from 90 cents up.
We give you a good heavy Underseirt for 19 cents.
We are again selling 10 balls of Thread for 5 cents.

We could give a long list of prices that would astonish you, but space will not permit. All we ask of you is to give us a trial.

Remember, we pay Highest Prices for WOOL, HIDES, SKINS, BEESWAX and Country Produce generally.

Yours, for bargains, at the Jew stores at Maplesville and Riderville,

J. DAMSKY & BRO.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERY THING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L. Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS—SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE

FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1.00	12 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water, white 150 fire test oil	18
½ bbl " " " "	2.25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	13
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14-lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware and the very best Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please,

A. M. JOHNSON, Manager

BILL ARP'S LETTER

Bartow Man Makes Pathetic Appeal For Orphans' Home.

TOUCHING STORY OF AN EPIDEMIC

His Own Mother Was Bereft of Her Parents at the Tender Age of Seven, But Fortunately Fell Into Loving Hands.

Ninety-nine years ago today Robert Emmett was executed for high treason. I wonder how many of the old school boys have spoken his speech—his beautiful speech—in defense of himself and companions for the Irish rebellion, and their attempt to seize the arsenal and the arms in Dublin and set Ireland free. I wonder how many of the modern school boys ever heard of Emmet, one of the noblest, purest and most eloquent patriots in all history. It took a smart boy, a gifted boy, a good, kind-hearted boy, to speak that speech with feeling and pathos. Chan Holt could do it, and he was the only one of our set who could make the turkey bumps rise on our spines and our hearts go pity-pat as he stretched himself a little higher and exclaimed: "Let no man write my epitaph. Until Ireland is free, let not my epitaph be written." He had been already tried and convicted, and when the stern old chief justice asked him if he had anything to say why sentence of death should not be pronounced, he made this speech. The judge could not conceal his emotion, and all the court was in tears. Robert Emmet was a very great man. Although but 22 years old at his death, he was the peer and companion of Curran, Grattan and Philips, and the friend and college mate of Thomas Moore, the poet. When executed he was engaged to Curran's daughter, the beautiful Sarah, and Tom Moore has written a charming poem about their sad and broken-hearted destiny. Had it not been for Sarah and his love, Emmet would not have been tried, for he and his fellow patriots, who were leaders of the rebellion of 1798, had already escaped, most of them to America, but Emmet lingered for Sarah's sake and was arrested and tried for treason.

Among those rebels who escaped to America was a young man named Maguire, who landed at Charleston and settled there. He had some means, and began business as a linen merchant, and prospered. Not long after this he married an orphan girl, the daughter of a sea captain, and they lived happily together. Two children were born to them, James and Caroline. No children ever had more loving parents, no parents ever had more loving and lovely children, and for years there was no foreboding of any calamity or affliction that could or would befall them.

But now, as next Saturday, the 28th, is Orphans' day, my ruminations that began with Robert Emmet have, without design, brought my thoughts along down to this Maguire, who was one of his friends and compatriots. I wish to tell the young people a little story about what happened to James and Caroline. It may read like a romance, but it is all fact. The story will fit the day that is to come, the 28th, and will fit the orphans at the home, near Decatur, and those at Clinton, in South Carolina, and those anywhere and everywhere, for it is a fact that 10 per cent of all the children under 12 years of age are either fatherless or motherless. Orphans are the wards of the nation, and are as much entitled to our care and maintenance as are the blind and the deaf. Charity to helpless, friendless children is one thing we can all agree upon. We may differ in politics or religion, but charity is a universal sentiment. The man who loves his fellow men and sympathizes with them in their distress is forgiven for his faults, for charity hideth a multitude of sins. A man may gamble or cheat or drink or lie, but if he is good to the poor and friendless it balances the scales. It is a Dutch story that Jacob Snyder kept a mill. When he died and knocked at St. Peter's gate for admission, the good saint said, "Jacob, you did keep a mill down in the lower world, and you did sometimes take too much toll—thee cannot come in." "Ah! goot saint, dot is true," said Jacob, "sometimes ven de vater vas low and de stones vas dull, I did take a little too much toll, but I always gave it to de poor." The good saint pondered and ruminated long, but finally said, "Jacob, Jacob, I will let you in, but it do strain the gate."

In the summer of 1815 the yellow fever, that awful scourge, visited Charleston, and in a week's time had swept the people away by thousands. It was several days before the panic became universal, and then all who could go fled in terror; but in hundreds of families one or more were taken and could not leave. Maguire and his wife were taken the same day. They lived twenty-four hours and were buried by night in the same grave. The little boy of 9 years was hurried away by a kind-hearted man, and the little girl of 7 by another. Just then the order came from the board of physicians to remove all the children immediately, and James was hurried on a schooner bound for Boston, and Caroline on another bound for Savannah. They did not meet nor kiss a sad farewell, nor knew of each others' fate nor where they were going. What grief was theirs! What briny tears! Bereft! Bereft! that is the word, for it means snatched away. Yes, I knew something about these orphans, for this same Caroline was my mother, and many times here I sat at her knee and listened and wept over the sad story of her orphanage. How in a day she lost her parents and her brother, and was left alone without a relative this side of the sea.

She was placed in the orphan asylum in Savannah and was cared for by good people until she was 10 years old, when one day a good lady came in a fine carriage to choose and adopt a child. The orphans were all clad in their best garments and gathered in the great, big company room and after they were seated the grand lady went round and round talking kindly to one and another and after long inspection stopped at Caroline and said, "I will take this one." The poor girl was alarmed and cried with grief at being separated from those she had learned to love. The great lady was the mother of Rev. Dr. Goulding and the grandmother of Frank Goulding, who wrote the pretty story of "Young Marooners." In the meantime Caroline's brother had been placed in an orphans' asylum in Boston, and after two years he was taken home by a wealthy gentleman of Randolph, who had an only daughter and no son. This daughter James married when he was 21 and they received the old man's blessing and a good estate. In vain, and in vain, had James visited Charleston to find some clew to his lost sister and sadly he returned and mourned her as dead.

Caroline was sent to school at old Midway, in Liberty county, where she made good progress in her studies. Her teacher took great interest in her and kindly visited Charleston and advertised in the city papers for her brother, but learned nothing. When Caroline was 15 her teacher became so deeply grieved over her sad and lonely fate that he married her and here I am. Again he advertised in several papers, and at last in a Boston paper, and said in good, large type, "If James Maguire, whose parents died of yellow fever in Charleston, S. C., in 1815, is living he can find his sister, Caroline, by addressing the undersigned." He saw that. A friend handed it to him in church one Sunday and there was a scene. He came to Georgia by the first vessel that was bound for Savannah. From there he came to Lawrenceville, where my father was then living. I was then but 7 years old, but I remember the meeting and no pen can describe it. The young people must imagine the rest. When last in Savannah I visited the very ground and reverently looked upon the place that gave my mother a welcome and a home. If I am anything that is worthy, I owe it chiefly to my mother and she owed all that she was to an orphanage. Friends, do not forget the day nor the deed that should be done. It will pay in the long run. Maybe it will open St. Peter's gate to some who have taken a leetle too much toll. Forty times are the fatherless mentioned in the Bible. The word motherless is not there, but the word fatherless includes all orphans in the translation. Let us not forget the day nor the deed. A dime or a dollar or more given will be like lending it to the Lord. Send to Rev. H. S. Crumley, No. 200 Oak street, Atlanta, Ga. I know him well and love him. His life work is for the orphans.—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

"Let the protest be entered now, and all along the line," says the Washington Star, "against the incorporation into our everyday language of the unsightly and discordant French word chauffeur to describe or identify the driver or conductor of an automobile. Its proper meaning is the equivalent of 'fireman' or 'stoker,' in English, and is therefore not at all applicable to the use to which it is put in connection with the new vehicle. Either 'driver' or 'conductor' is a shorter, simpler and better descriptive term. But, whether it be so or not, down with 'chauffeur' and all who persist in using it!"

Lionel Decle, who has lately returned to England after a thorough study of Central Africa, predicts that within a few years the former dark continent will become an important factor in the economic affairs of the world. There are great natural resources and abundant cheap labor, and the railroad and telegraph are rapidly opening them to industrial and commercial exploitation. It is indeed evident that there must be business in sight to justify such extensive railroad building. Transportation confined to elephants' tusks and lion skins will never pay dividends.

Within a recent week a bank embezzler from Duisburg, Germany, was caught in Chicago, and a murderer from Wyoming was run down in Kimberley, South Africa. What with land telegraphs, ocean cables and extradition treaties, the modern criminal is at a great disadvantage in playing hide-and-seek with the modern sleuth.

Buenos Ayres, South America, is to have an underground electric railway. This is a rather unlooked-for evidence of progress, especially when so few American cities can boast of similar up-to-date service.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

SCIENCE NOTES EAOI

Among the marine articulates life is often prolonged for years. Some of the larger crabs and few species may live on to nearly two decades before attaining their fullest growth.

M. Bourget has detected the presence of iodine, not only in the thyroid glands, but also in the blood and in nearly all the organs of the human body. Plants absorb iodine from the soil, to which it is brought by the underground waters; herbivorous animals take the iodine in with their food, and man, in his turn, takes it in with the flesh of animals. It is eliminated from the human body through the sweat, in the cuttings of hair and nails and with excreted blood, etc.

Mr. Arctowski, the geologist of the Antarctic expedition in the steamer Belgica, calls attention to the difference in the distribution of ice around the two poles of the earth. The floating ice of the north, he says, comes from true glaciers which are pushed down through the valleys until they reach the water, but the glacial caps themselves do not meet the sea. At the south, on the contrary, perpetual snow is encountered at the 65th degree of latitude, and it is probable that the floating ice of the Antarctic originates from a layer covering the whole polar crown.

Country folk are firmly of the opinion that the tumble bug is an excellent barometer and that it takes flight only when a season of fair weather is coming. M. Fabre, a French naturalist, has investigated the question thoroughly and has come to the conclusion that this insect is, in fact, more sensitive than the best barometers, and that it can veritably be used to predict fine weather. It is to changes of electric tension that the insect is sensitive. Whether the American variety is likely to be useful in weather prediction is respectfully referred to our weather bureau for investigation.

During an explosion in the crater of Mt. Vesuvius on May 9, 1900, one of the volcanic bombs hurled skyward and the largest one observed attained an elevation of a third of a mile, and then fell back upon the mountain. As it now lies, its height exceeds that of a man standing beside it, and its estimated weight is 30 tons. Mr. Manteucci, the geologist, says that the energy of the explosion of steam that threw this huge projectile must have equalel about 600,000 horse power. When the masses of partially fluid lava from which such bombs are formed rise in the air they rotate, and are thus caused to assume a more or less globular shape.

In his recent lecture before the Royal society on "The Nadir of Temperature" Professor James Dewar states that the boiling point of helium—the point at which it would change from a gas to a liquid—appears to be about five degrees on the absolute scale. This is 15 degrees below the boiling point of hydrogen. Hydrogen solidifies at about 16 degrees absolute. Professor Dewar has hopes of being able to liquify helium, although this has not as yet certainly been done. The operation depends on subjecting helium to the same process that has succeeded with hydrogen, only instead of using liquid air under exhaustion as the primary cooling agent, liquid hydrogen must be employed.

The Farmer's Boy and Success.

A banker, a lawyer and a preacher sat in a parlor car on the Hudson River railroad enjoying the beauty of a central New York landscape after a June rain. "On that farm," said the banker, pointing out of the car window, "14 years ago Dr. James F. McKernon, then a farmer's boy, tended a sick sheep. He was skillful, gentle and patient; the suffering animal got well. There were vague dreams of another life, of study and struggle, on his mind, and the young man borrowed some money the following autumn and came to New York. Eleven years ago he was graduated at the Columbia Medical college—after three years of work and recitation from 7 a. m. until 11 p. m., study until 1 a. m., and as scant time for eating as for sleeping. In six weeks after graduation he was supporting himself, examining applicants for insurance in an industrial company. In five years he was able to study a specialty in the treatment of the throat and ear. He is making $25,000 a year now, and works just as hard as he ever did. He is one instance of the farmer's boy who comes to the city and conquers fame and fortune, but there are not so many now as there used to be."

And there seems to be considerable food for reflection in this last statement. Perhaps one hears less of these ambitious country lads than in the old days.—Harper's Weekly.

A Self-Dumping Bucket.

A self-dumping hoisting bucket, for handling coal, ore, gravel and the like, has been perfected which has the ball ends pivoted to its lower half, and the pivots work in slots instead of in round holes. The loaded bucket is kept from tipping by a catch on the ball, which hooks into the top of the vessel. When the bucket strikes the dump pile the slotted ball drops straight down by gravity, releases the catch, and the bucket, being thus unbalanced, turns over.

The man who is his own best friend may also be his own worst enemy.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: The Power of Kindness — A Spirit of Amity and Good Feeling to to Be Commended — Victory Through Good Will—Most Potent of Words.

[Copyright, 1901.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage commends the spirit of amity and good feeling and mentions illustrious examples of that spirit; text, Acts xxviii. 2, "The barbarous people showed us no little kindness."

Here we are on the Island of Malta, another name for Melita. This island, which has always been an important commercial centre, belonging at different times to Phoenicia, to Greece, to Rome, to Arabia, to Spain, to France, now belongs to England. The area of the island is about 100 square miles. It is in the Mediterranean Sea, and of such clarity of atmosphere that Mount Etna, 130 miles away, can be distinctly seen. The island is gloriously memorable because the Knights of Malta for a long while ruled there, but most famous because of the apostolic shipwreck. The bestormed vessel on which Paul sailed had "laid to" on the starboard tack, and the wind was blowing east-northeast, and, the vessel drifting probably a mile and a half an hour, she struck at what is now called St. Paul's Bay. Practical sailors have taken up the Bible account and decided beyond controversy the place of the shipwreck. But the island, which has so rough a coast, is for the most part a garden. Richest fruits and a profusion of honey characterized it in Paul's time as well as now. The finest oranges, figs and olives grow there.

When Paul and his comrades crawled up on the beach, saturated and hungry from long abstinence from food and chilled to the bone, the islanders, though called barbarians because they could not speak Greek, opened their doors to the shipwrecked unfortunates. My text finds the ship's crew ashore on Malta and around a hot fire and with the best provision the islanders can offer them. And they go into government quarters for three days to recuperate, Publius, the ruler, inviting them, although he had severe sickness in the house at that time, his father down with a dangerous illness. Yea, for three months they stayed on the island watching for a ship and putting the hospitality of the islanders to a severe test. But it endured the test satisfactorily, and it is recorded for all the ages of time and eternity to read and hear in regard to the inhabitants of Malta, "The barbarous people showed us no little kindness."

Kindness! What a great word that is! It would take a reed as long as that which the apocalyptic angel used to measure heaven to tell the length, the breadth, the height of that munificent word. It is a favorite Bible word, and it is early launched in the book of Genesis, caught up in the book of Joshua, embraced in the book of Ruth, sworn by in the book of Samuel, crowned in the book of Psalms and enthroned in many places in the New Testament. Kindness! A word no more gentle than mighty. I expect it will wrestle me down before I get through with it. It is strong enough to throw an archangel. But it will be well for us to stand around it and warm ourselves by its glow as Paul and his fellow voyagers stood around the fire on the Island of Malta, where the Maltese made themselves immortal in my text by the way they treated these victims of the sea. "The barbarous people showed us no little kindness."

Kindness! All definitions of that multipotent word break down half way. You say it is clemency, benignity, generosity; it is made up of good wishes; it is a contribution to the happiness of others. Some one else says: "Why, I can give you a definition of kindness. It is sunshine of the soul; it is affection perennial; it is a climacteric grace; it is a combination of all the graces; it is compassion; it is the perfection of gentle manliness and womanliness." Are you all through? You have made a dead failure in your definition. It cannot be defined. But we all know what it is, for we have all felt its power. Some of you may have felt it as Paul felt it on some coast of rock as the ship went to pieces, but more of us have again and again in some awful stress of life had either from earth or heaven hands stretched out which "showed us no little kindness."

There is kindness of disposition, kindness of word, kindness of act, and there is Jesus Christ, the impersonation of all of them. Kindness! You cannot affect it; you cannot play it as a part; you cannot enact it; you cannot dramatize it. By the grace of God you must have it inside you, an everlasting summer, or, rather, a combination of June and October, the geniality of the one and the tonic of the other. It cannot dwell with arrogance or spite or revenge or malevolence. At its first appearance in the soul all these Amalekites and Gergishites and Hittites and Jebusites must quit and quit forever. Kindness wishes everybody well, every child well, every bird well, every horse well, every dog well, every cat well.

Give this spirit full swing, and you would have no more need of societies for prevention of cruelty to animals, no more need of protective sewing women's associations, and it would dull every sword until it would not cut skin deep and unwheel every battery till it could not roll and make gunpowder of no more use in the world except for rock blasting or pyrotechnic celebration.

But are you waiting and hoping for some one to be bankrupted or exposed or discomfited or in some way overthrown? Then kindness has not taken possession of your nature. You are wrecked on a Malta where there are no oranges. You are entertaining a guest so unlike kindness that kindness will not come and dwell under the same roof. The most exhausting and unhealthy and ruinous spirit on earth is a revengeful spirit or retaliating spirit, as I know by experience, for I have tried it for five or ten minutes at a time. When some mean thing has been done me or said about me, I have felt "I will pay him in his own coin. I will show him up. The ingrate, the traitor, the liar, the villain!" But five or ten minutes of the feeling has been so unnerving and exhausting I have abandoned it, and I cannot understand how people can go about torturing themselves five or ten or twenty years, trying to get even with somebody. The only way you will ever triumph over your enemies is by forgiving them and wishing them all good and no evil.

As malevolence is the most uneasy and profitless and dangerous feeling, kindness is the most healthful and delightful. And this is not an abstraction. As I have tried a little of the retaliatory feeling, so I have tried a little of the forgiving. I do not want to leave this world until I have taken vengeance upon every man that ever did me a wrong by doing him a kindness.

Let us all pray for this spirit of kindness. It will settle a thousand questions. It will change the phase of everything. It will mellow through and through our entire nature. It will transform a lifetime. It is not a feeling got up for occasions, but perennial. That is the reason I like petunias better than morning glories. They look very much alike, and if I should put in your hand a petunia and a morning glory you could hardly tell which was the petunia and which the morning glory, but the morning glory blooms only a few hours and then shuts up for the day, while the petunia is in as widespread a glow at 12 o'clock at noon and 6 o'clock in the evening as at sunrise. And this grace of kindness is not spasmodic, it is not intermittent, it is not for a little while, but it irradiates the whole nature all through and clear on till the sunset of our earthly existence.

Kindness! I am resolved to get it. Are you resolved to get it? It does not come by haphazard, but through culture under divine help. Thistles grow without culture, Rocky Mountain sage grass grows without culture. Mullein stalks grow without culture. But that great red rose in the conservatory, its leaves packed on leaves, even dyed as though it had been obliged to fight for its beauty and it were still reeking with the carnage of the battle, that rose needed to be cultured, and through long years its floral ancestors were cultured. O God, implant kindness in all our souls, and then give us grace to watch it, to enrich it, to develop it!

The King of Prussia had presented to him by the Empress of Russia the root of a rare flower, and it was put in the royal gardens on an island, and the head gardener, Herr Fintleman, was told to watch it. And one day it put forth its glory. Three days of every week the people were admitted to these gardens, and a young man, probably not realizing what a wrong thing he was doing, pinched this flower and put it in his buttonhole, and the gardener arrested him as he was crossing at the ferry and asked the king to throw open no more his gardens to the public. The king replied: "Shall I deny to the thousands of good people of my country the privilege of seeing this garden because one visitor has done wrong? No, let them come and see the beautiful grounds." And when the gardener wished to give the king the name of the offender who had taken the royal flower he said: "No, my memory is very tenacious, and I do not want to have in my mind the name of the offender, lest it should hinder me granting him a favor some other time." Now, I want you to know that kindness is a royal flower, and, blessed be God, the King of Mercy and Grace, that by a divine gift and not by purloining we may pluck this royal flower and not wear it on the outside of our nature, but wear it in our soul and wear it forever, its radiance and aroma not more wonderful for time than wonderful for eternity.

On your way to noon luncheon you meet an optimistic merchant, and you say, "What do you think of the commercial prospects?" and he says: "Glorious! Crops not so good as usual, but foreign demand will make big prices. We are going to have such an autumn and winter prosperity as we have never seen."

On your way back to your store you meet a pessimistic merchant. "What do you think of the commercial prospects?" you ask. And he answers: "Well, I don't know. Wheat and corn crop blasted in Kansas and Missouri, and the grain gamblers will get their fist in, and the hay crop is short in some places and in the southern part of Wisconsin they had a hailstorm, and our business is as dull as it ever was."

You will find the same difference in judgment of character. A man of good reputation is assailed and charged with some evil deed. At the first story the pessimist will believe in guilt. "The papers said so, and that's enough. Down with him!" The optimist will say: "I don't believe a word of it. I don't think that a man that has been as useful and seemingly honest for twenty years could have got off track like that. There are two sides to this story, and I will wait to hear the other side before I condemn him."

My hearer, if you are by nature a pessimist, make a special effort by the grace of God to extirpate the dolorous and the hypercritical from your disposition. Believe nothing against anybody until the wrong is established.

When you can speak a good word for some one, speak it. If you can conscientiously give letter of recommendation, give it. Watch for opportunities for doing good fifty years after you are dead. All my life has been affected by the letter of introduction that the Rev. Dr. Van Vranken, of New Brunswick Theological Seminary, wrote for me, a boy under him, when I was seeking a settlement in which to preach the gospel. That letter gave me my first pulpit. Dr. Van Vranken has been dead more than thirty years, yet I feel the touch of that magnificent old professor. Strange sensation was it when I received a kind message from Rev. Thomas Guard, of Baltimore, the great Methodist orator, six weeks after his death. By way of the eternal world? Oh, no; by way of this world. I did not meet the friend to whom he gave the message until nearly two months after Thomas Guard had ascended.

So you can start a word about some one that will be on its travels and vigorous long after the funeral psalm has been sung at your obsequies. Kindness! Why, if fifty men all aglow with it should walk through the lost world methinks they would almost abolish perdition!

Furthermore, there is kindness of action. That is what Joseph showed to his outrageous brothers. That is what David showed to Mephibosheth for his father Jonathan's sake. That is what Onesiphorus showed to Paul in the Roman penitentiary. That is what William Cowper recognized when he said he would not trust a man who would with his foot needlessly crush a worm. That is what our assassinated President Lincoln demonstrated when his private secretary found him in the capitol grounds trying to get a bird back to the nest from which it had fallen and which quality the illustrious man exhibited some years before when, having with some lawyers, in the carriage on the way to court passed on the road a swine fast in the mire, and after a while cried to his horses, "Ho!" and said to the gentlemen, "I must go back and help that hog out of the mire." And he did go back and put on solid ground that most uninteresting quadruped.

Suppose all this assemblage and all to whom these words shall come by printers' ink should resolve to make kindness an overarching, undergirding and all pervading principle of their life and then carry out the resolution, why, in six months the whole earth would feel it. People would say: "What is the matter? It seems to me that the world is getting to be a better place to live in. Why, life, after all, is worth living. Why, there is Shylock, my neighbor, has withdrawn his lawsuit of foreclosure against that man, and because he has so much sickness in his family he is going to have the house for one year rent free. There is an old lawyer in that young lawyer's office, and do you know what he has gone in there for? Why, he is helping to fix up a case which is too big for the young man to handle, and the white haired attorney is hunting up previous decisions and making out a brief for the boy. Do you know that a strange thing has taken place in the pulpit, and all the old ministers are helping the young ministers, and all the old doctors are helping the young doctors, and the farmers are assisting each other in gathering the harvest, and for that farmer who is sick the neighbors have made a bee, as they call it, and they have all turned in to help him get his crops into the garner?

And I heard this morning of a poor old man whose three children were in hot debate as to who should take care of him in his declining days. The oldest son declared it was his right because he was the oldest, and the youngest son said it was his right because he was the youngest, and Mary said it was her right because she better understood her father's vertigo and rheumatism and poor spells and knew better how to nurse him, and the only way the difficulty could be settled was by the old man's promise that he would divide the year into three parts and spend a third of his time with each one of them. And neighboring stores in the same line of goods on the same block are acting kindly to each other. It seems to me that those words of Isaiah are being fulfilled when he says, "The carpenter encouraged the goldsmith, and he that smoothed with the hammer; him that smote the anvil, saying, it is ready for the soldering." What is the matter? It seems to me our old world is picking up. Why, the millennium must be coming in. Kindness has got the victory.

THE SABBATH SCH

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COM FOR OCTOBER 6.

Subject: Joseph Sold Into Egypt, Gen. xxxvii., 12-36—Golden Text, Ame 9—Memory Verses, 26-28—Comm tary on the Day's Lesson.

12. "In Shechem." Shechem was fifty miles north of Hebron. Jacob pastures there (33: 19) and had fig

13. "Send thee unto them." doubt had some anxiety about because he had removed from on account of the sins they had there, he therefore decides to send to learn of their welfare. He Joseph, and he had no thought brothers would wish to injure him.

14. "Go, I pray thee." Joseph to this remote and dangerous country proof that Jacob did not trust too much indulgence, and that he keep him home from any desire derness. Lions, bears, panthers wolves were common in Palestine days.

17. "Dothan." This was about or twenty miles north of Shechem.

18. "When they saw him." vious feelings rose up. gave them abundant time for tation and for conversation. less brooded over their relations cherished revenge, and encouraged other in their enmity. "Conspired" ningly plotted. "To slay him" would have been a premeditated had they fully carried out their

19. "This dreamer cometh." of dreams." R. V. margin. form of speech conveying great

20. "And we will slay." malice they proceeded to consider the life of their brother and trived a lie to impose upon father.

21. "And Reuben said." all the brothers had the greatest be jealous of Joseph, for, as he he was entitled to many of which were being conferred upon get Reuben proves to be his best

22. "Shed no blood." to shed his brother's blood, dare manfully to save him. design was to find some way to Joseph to his father.

23. "Out of his coat." was done that, if ever found be discerned as a person of and hence no inquiry would be cerning him. They also took to show to their father.

24. "Into a pit." One of the errors excavated out of the built of stones and plastered pose of holding rain water. bottle-shaped, so that it was possible to escape. There are of such cisterns in upper Galilee, prove how dependent the population upon rain water. "Was empty." safe from drowning, but was from starvation. What men they must have been!

25. "Sat down to eat." to a joyous feast, eating and very dainties he had brought them, they left him to die. It was at (Gen. 42: 21) that they "saw the of his soul," when he besought they would not hear. Reuben partaker of that meal, but was bly devising measures for the his brother. It is impossible envy at his dreams, his gaudy the partiality of their father confirmed them in such awful Their hatred of Joseph must produced by a dislike to his pety count of which they saw their be at ease until they had rid of his hated presence. This is the lution of the mystery, just as it ease of Cain. 1 John 3: 12. ites." Called also Midianites probably because the caravan both of these. The general Arabian merchants. "From country east of the Jordan. Gilead was famous in early times spices and aromatic gums. Jer. 11. "Balm." This was a very gum obtained from the balsam most peculiar to Palestine. Egypt would be a great market on account of their being used in the temples, and for embalming dead."

26. "Judah." The fourth son His name means "praise of the "What profit." What profit is sin at the best?

27. "Let us sell him." The these traveling merchants gave turn to the views of the conspirators having no wish to commit a crime of crime than was necessary accomplishment of their end. approved of Judah's suggestion of their obnoxious brother as a

28. "Sold Joseph." Acting on Judah's advice they had their tim ready by the time the reached them. "Twenty pieces The money was probably in pieces, and silver is always the records of that early age, on account of the rarity of those days money was weighed coined. Twenty pieces (shekels) was the price of a slave years of age (Lev. 27: 5), and to the Oxford Bible was $11.28.

29. "Reuben returned." planned to rescue Joseph and home safely as soon as his left him. But the thing was had designed that Joseph should be accomplished by than his. "Rent his clothes."

34.

30. "Whither shall I go." the eldest and Jacob would sponsible for Joseph's safety.

31. "Killed a kid." They the truth, therefore they made refuge. How true it is that we reap! Jacob had deceived and now in turn he is deceived sons.

32. "Sent the coat." All and said by their servant when sent.

34. "Rent—sackcloth." The signs of Oriental mourning made in the skirt more to the afflicted feelings of and a coarse, rough piece of cloth or camel's hair cloth around the waist. "Many days" twenty-two years before he

35. "All his daughters." only daughter of Jacob that about; his daughters-in-law included here.

36. "Captain of the guard." ness was to take care of the and execute his will.

A writer in the International Magazine amuses himself ing some of the things which sense recognizes as absurd. mathematics proves to be the "axioms" which mathematics disproves is the that "the whole is greater of its parts," whose falsity even to common sense open. For example, all include both odd and even there are as many even there are of all numbers, number can be doubled.

WASHINGTON HAPPENINGS.

PROMINENT MEN ON PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY STILL ON.

Cotton Statistics—Army Changes—From Venezuela—Russian Editorials—"General" Roosevelt—Sampson Not in It.

Dr. Parkhurst has reached New York from England, and, with his characteristic freedom of speech leaped at once into the public world. He took up the Gotham campaign, heaped abuse galore on Boss Croker, endorsed Seth Low and discussed President Roosevelt. "The assassination of President McKinley," he said, "aroused a great deal of sympathy in England. But the sympathy was in large part that which is bred from a sense of common danger. They knew that the bullet which killed McKinley was just as truly a blow at their own institutions as at the government of the United States. The people over there are asking, under their breath, 'Whose turn will it be next?' That is the feeling that is responsible for a great deal of the sympathetic attention that was focused on the deathbed of President McKinley." He says the first utterances of the new president restored great confidence abroad.

Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage said when asked of the future of the country under President Roosevelt: "All the indications are that the new president is receiving the confidence, hearty support and best wishes of all the people of this country, in all sections and without regard to party. The general public business is going on without interruption. The prospects, so far as they appear to us in Washington, are that there is to be no break in the general good industrial and financial condition which has marked the period of the last two or three years."

It is asserted in well informed circles at Caracas that President Castro will declare war on Colombia at the end of the month. The Venezuelan government is without financial resources and will shortly use the method of South American dictators—dip and proceed to raise funds by force. Lack of confidence in the government is manifested everywhere in Venezuela.

Secretary of War Root is much improved in health. Not long ago he underwent an operation for the removal of a carbuncle. He returned to New York last Friday in order to be with his son, Elihu Root, Jr., who is ill with typhoid fever. Mr. Root's son is said to have passed the danger list and is now expected to recover rapidly.

THE Novoe Vyremya, an influential St. Petersburg newspaper, regards President Roosevelt's announcement of his policy as more than a personal opinion. It hails him as a champion of peace, whose desire to remove all cause for existing misunderstandings will be responded to most sympathetically by Russia.

Maj. Charles A. Dempsey, commanding the Thirteenth Regiment of Infantry in the Philippines, is placed on the retired list of the army, after forty years' service. He is a native of Virginia, and was graduated from the West Point Military Academy in the class of '65.

The board of brevets is in session and will consider at this meeting only the cases of those who distinguished themselves in Cuba and the Philippines.

President Roosevelt is recommended for promotion to the rank of lieutenant general.

The census report on report on cotton says: although the cotton crop of 1900 east of the Mississippi, which was 5,044,451 bales, was generally regarded as short, that of 1900 was 4,761,195, a decrease of 313,256. This loss was more than offset by the yield of the cotton region west and northwest of the Mississippi, where the yield was 5,341,832 in 1900, an increase of 25.7 per cent. Following are the total crop of 1900 in commercial bales by states: Alabama, 1,061,678; Georgia, 828,820; Florida, 55,696; Louisiana, 1,270,597; Kentucky, 133; Texas, 714,073; Mississippi, 1,[illegible]; North Carolina, 529,241; South Carolina, 790,182; Tennessee, 227,612; Virginia, 8,836,506.

Gonzales Esteves, Venezuelan consul in New York, received a cable from Dr. J. Torres Cardenas, the secretary of the Venezuelan government, saying that recent reports regarding predatory proceedings carried by that government have no foundation in fact. The secretary says that peace and security reign throughout the province and that the government respects and guards foreign interests.

THE SABBATH SCHO

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENT FOR OCTOBER 6.

Subject: Joseph Sold Into Egypt, Gen. xxxvii., 12-36—Golden Text, Acts 7: 9—Memory Verses, 26-28—Contemporary on the Day's Lesson.

12. "In Shechem." Shechem was about fifty miles north of Hebron. Jacob owned pastures there (33: 19) and had dug a well. 13. "Send thee unto them." Jacob's doubt had some anxiety about his sons because he had removed from Shechem on account of the sins they had committed there; he therefore decides to send Joseph to learn of their welfare. He could not see Joseph, and he had no thought that his brothers would wish to injure him. 14. "Go, I pray thee." Joseph's mission was a remote and dangerous country, proof that Jacob did not treat him with too much indulgence, and that he did not keep him home from any feelings of tenderness. Lions, bears, panthers and wolves were common in Palestine in those days. 17. "Dothan." This was about three or twenty miles north of Shechem. 18. "When they saw him." Their previous feelings rose up. Their occupation gave them abundant time for gloomy reflection and for conversation. They doubtless talked over their relations to Joseph, and revenge and encouraged one another in their enmity. "Conspired." Literally, "united together." "To slay him." This would have been a premeditated murder if they carried out their purpose. 19. "This dreamer cometh." "Master of dreams." R. V. margin. This was a sneering speech conveying great contempt. "And we will slay." From envy, they proceeded to conspire against the life of their brother, and then they proceed to impose upon their father. 21. "And Reuben—said." Reuben, the eldest brother, had the greatest reason of all to envy Joseph, for, as the first born, he was entitled to many of the favors which were being conferred upon Joseph. Reuben proves to be his best friend. "Let us not kill him." He did not wish to shed his brother's blood, neither did he intend fully to save him. Reuben's design was to find some way to restore Joseph to his father. 23. "Coat of his coat." This peculiar coat, it is to be noted, if ever found, he might be recognized as a person of distinction and hence no inquiry would be made concerning him. They also took the coat with them to their father. 24. "Into a pit." One of the many cisterns excavated out of the solid rock with stones and plastered, for the purpose of holding rain water. They were bottle shaped, so that it was almost impossible to escape. There are thousands of such cisterns in upper Galilee, to prove how dependent the population was upon rain water. "Was empty." Reuben was safe from drowning, but was left to perish from starvation. What terribly wicked men they must have been! 25. "Sat down to eat." They sat down to a joyous feast, eating and drinking the very dainties he had brought them, while they left him to die. It was at this time (Gen. 42: 21) that they "saw the anguish of his soul," when he besought them and they would not hear. Reuben was not a partaker of that meal, but was off quietly devising measures for the rescue of his brother. It is impossible that the envy at his dreams, his gaudy dress, the partiality of their father could have confirmed them in such awful wickedness. Their hatred of Joseph must have been produced by a dislike to his piety, on account of which they saw they could not be at ease until they had rid themselves of his hated presence. This is the true solution of the mystery, just as it was in the case of Cain. 1 John 3: 12. "Ishmaelites." Called also Midianites (vs. 28), probably because the caravan consisted of both of these. The general name for Arabian merchants. "From Gilead." The country east of the Jordan. "Spicery." Gilead was famous in early times for its spices and aromatic gums. Jer. 8: 22; 46: 11. "Balm." This was a very precious gum obtained from the balsam tree. It was most peculiar to Palestine. "To Egypt." Egypt would be a great market for it on account of their being used "for embalming in the temples, and for embalming the dead."

26. "Judah." The fourth son of Jacob. His name means "praise of the Lord." "What profit." What profit is there in sin at the best? 27. "Let us sell him." The avarice of these traveling merchants gave a favorable turn to the views of the conspirators, having no wish to commit a great crime, but a degree of crime than was necessary to the accomplishment of their end, they readily approved of Judah's suggestion to sell the life of their obnoxious brother as a slave. "Our brother and our flesh." Acting upon Judah's advice they had their brother in their power ready by the time the merchants reached them. "Twenty pieces of silver." The money was probably in rings or pieces, and silver is always mentioned in the records of that early age, before gold came into use, on account of the rarity of the latter. In those days money was weighed and not coined. Twenty pieces (shekels) of silver was the price of a slave under twenty years of age (Lev. 27: 5), and according to the Oxford Bible was equivalent to $11.28.

29. "Reuben returned." Reuben had planned to rescue Joseph and restore him home safely as soon as his brothers had left him. But the thing was done before he had designed that Joseph's deliverance should be accomplished by other hands than his. "Rent his clothes." Genesis 37: 34.

30. "Whither shall I go." Reuben, the eldest and Jacob would hold him responsible for Joseph's safety. 31. "Killed a kid." They dipped the coat in the blood of a kid, and thus made the truth, therefore they made a lie their refuge. How true it is that what we sow we reap! Jacob had deceived his father, and now in turn he is deceived by his sons. 32. "Sent the coat." All this was done and said by their servant when they had sent. 34. "Rent—sackcloth." The usual signs of Oriental mourning. A gash made in the skirt more or less according to the afflicted feelings of the wearer, and a coarse, rough piece of black cloth or camel's hair cloth bound around the waist. "Many days." Literally, "twenty-two years before he saw his son." 35. "All his daughters." Dinah, the only daughter of Jacob that is mentioned about; his daughters-in-law are included here. 36. "Captain of the guard." Potiphar was to take care of the young Hebrew and execute his will.

A writer in the International Monthly Magazine amuses himself by showing some of the things which common sense recognizes as absurd in mathematics proves to be true. For example, the "axioms" which modern mathematics disproves is the old one that "the whole is greater than any of its parts," whose falsity is even to common sense with open. For example, all numbers include both odd and even numbers, there are as many even numbers as there are of all numbers, the number can be doubled.

WASHINGTON HAPPENINGS.

PROMINENT MEN ON PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

NAVY COURT OF INQUIRY STILL ON.

Vital Statistics—Army Changes—Troubles from Venezuela—Russian Editorials—"General" Roosevelt—Sampson Not in It.

Dr. Parkhurst has reached New York from England, and, with his characteristic freedom of speech, waded at once into the public world. He took up the Gotham campaign, poured abuse galore on Boss Croker, endorsed Seth Low and discussed President Roosevelt. "The assassination of President McKinley," he said, "produced a great deal of sympathy in England. But the sympathy was in large part that which is bred from a sense of common danger. They knew that the bullet which killed McKinley was just as truly a blow at their own institutions as at the government of the United States. The people over there are saying, under their breath, 'Whom will it be next?' That feeling that is responsible for a good deal of the sympathetic attention that was focused on the deathbed of President McKinley." He says the attitude of the new president interested great attention abroad.

Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage said when asked of the future of the country under President Roosevelt: "All the indications are that the president is receiving the confidence, hearty support and best wishes of the people of this country, in all sections and without regard to party. The general public business is going on without interruption. The prospects so far as they appear to us in Washington are that there is to be no change in the general good industrial and financial condition which has marked the period of the last two or three years."

It is asserted in well informed circles at Caracas that President Castro will declare war on Colombia at the end of the month. The Venezuelan government is without financial resources and will shortly use the method of South American dictators—raise funds by force. Lack of confidence in the government is manifested everywhere in Venezuela.

Secretary of War Root is much improved in health. Not long ago he underwent an operation for the removal of a carbuncle. He returned to New York last Friday in order to be with his son, Elihu Root, Jr., who is ill with typhoid fever. Mr. Root's son is said to have passed the danger point and is now expected to recover fully.

THE Novoe Vyremya, an influential St. Petersburg newspaper, regards President Roosevelt's announcement of policy as more than a personal action. It hails him as a champion of peace, whose desire to remove all causes for existing misunderstandings will be responded to most sympathetically by Russia.

Col. Charles A. Dempsey, commanding the Thirteenth Regiment of Infantry in the Philippines, is placed on the retired list of the army, after forty years' service. He is a native of Virginia, and was graduated from the West Point Military Academy in the class of '55.

The board of brevets is in session and will consider at this meeting only the cases of those who distinguished themselves in Cuba and the Philippines. President Roosevelt is recommended for promotion to the rank of major general.

The census report on report on cotton says although the cotton ginned prior to 1899 east of the Mississippi, which was 5,044,451 bales, was generally regarded as short, that of 1900 was 10,784,195, a decrease of 313,256. This loss was more than offset by the increase of the cotton region west and south of the Mississippi, where the yield was 5,341,802 in 1900, an increase of 257 per cent. Following are the totals for 1900 in commercial bales by states: Alabama, 1,061,678; Georgia, 1,257,507; Florida, 55,696; Louisiana, 574,073; Kentucky, 133; Mississippi, 1,077,[illegible]; North Carolina, 629,341; South Carolina, 701,[illegible]; Tennessee, 227,664; Texas, 3,336,500.

Gonsalo Esteves, Venezuelan consul in New York, received a cable from Dr. J. Torres Cardenas, the secretary of the Venezuelan government, saying that recent reports regarding predatory proceedings attempted by that government have no foundation in fact. The secretary says that peace and security reign everywhere in the provinces and that the government respects and guards foreign interests.

ALABAMA BRIEFS.

TWO new 50-ton furnaces will be added to the Ensley steel plant.

HUNTSVILLE has a sensation in the way of a wholesale cotton stealing crime in which several well known citizens are implicated.

EX-GOVERNOR JOS. F. JOHNSTON has gone to California as a delegate to the general convention of the Episcopal church.

THE Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company issued a notice that it will not cash its pay checks to any one but those to whom issued.

COMMISSIONER of Agriculture Poole is home from Buffalo where he has been in charge of the Alabama exhibit at the Pan-American exposition.

IT is now a settled fact that the Central Iron & Coal Company will erect a furnace in Tuscaloosa, and a soil pipe plant may also be added.

OWING to the holding up of the appointment of T. B. Morton as revenue collector at Birmingham it is said that Julian H. Bingham may hold over.

THE case of Pate vs. Block, a contest over the office of sheriff for Geneva county, has again been tried and Pate won. It goes to the Supreme Court for the second time.

ARRANGEMENTS for a system of water works and electric lights are being discussed in Jasper. A proposition has been made to the citizens of that town to construct the water works and power plant if the city will grant a franchise.

THEIR SECOND WRECK.

Christie, Lowe & Heyworth are government contractors building Lock 6 on the Warrior river, near Tuscaloosa. In April one of their boats, the Daisy, went over the falls and was wrecked. Two lives were lost. In June they bought the Donga in Florida and brought it to Tuscaloosa, and Sunday she struck a snag and sank immediately. All on board swam to shore. It is not known whether the Donga can be raised or not, but at any rate the loss will be considerable.

CUNNINGHAM.

A number of leading politicians in Madison county are launching a campaign in favor of Dr. R. M. Cunningham for governor of Alabama. Dr. Cunningham is ex-president of the senate and one of the most stalwart leaders of democracy in the state. Should Dr. Cunningham consent to aspire to the gubernatorial chair he will prove a strong candidate.

THE steamers Lucania and Campania have communicated by wireless telegraphy over distances varying from 33 to 65 miles.

A SPARK from a locomotive started a fire in the property of the Plymouth Cordage Company at North Plymouth, Mass., Friday afternoon, which caused a loss of $100,000. Most of the loss was on 4,000 bales of Manila hemp.

The Schley inquiry is still at work. The sudden death of Jere Wilson, chief counsel for Schley, is much to be deplored but an able successor is found in Mr. Raynor. The examination of witnesses has brought out some conflicting testimony. Admiral Sampson applied to the court to be allowed representation by attorney but the court ruled Sampson to be no party to the inquiry and disallowed the presence of his attorney.

Protection of property and life from lightning flashes has been a subject that has entrained the attention of natural philosophers since Franklin sent up his historic kite. The net result of more than a century of attempt to secure protection has been the lightning rod, in its more or less inefficient forms, and the discovery that buildings of modern construction having metallic roofs, and often metallic frames as well, are practically immune from attack by lightning. The total number of deaths due to lightning in any given summer is comparatively very small—in the ratio of about one to each 200,000 population in the United States.

Bacilli, dirigible balloons, mosquitoes and submarine boats appear to have crowded out articles of the wonders of liquid air.

The news that the Maine sardine crop is not a failure helps to ease the effect of distressful intelligence from elsewhere.

JOKERS BUDGET

REST.

We laid our little one away—
So young, so frail, so fair—
And with hands fondly clasped we stood
Awhile above her, there.

We laid our little one to rest,
And sighed and turned, and then,
Three minutes later she awoke
And howled away again.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

NOT TO BE BALKED.

The Lawyer—The precedents are against you, Madam.

The Lady—Well, sue them, too, then.
—Indianapolis News.

BEYOND RECALL.

"We never remember the faces of those we love most dearly."

"That's so. To save me I can't tell what a hundred-dollar bill looks like."
—Detroit Free Press.

HIS ENJOYMENT LIMITED.

Mrs. Twaddle—Why, Dr. Jalap, it's ages since I saw you! How have you been? Do you enjoy good health?

Dr. Jalap—Not in others, Mrs. Twaddle—not in others.—Boston Transcript.

STRUCK HIM SO, TOO.

Mrs. Wederly (looking at hat in milliner's window)—Oh, what a dear little hat!

Wederly (looking at the price tag)—Well, I should say it is.—Chicago News.

OBJECTED TO.

"How did Stringer get out of serving on the jury?"

"When the lawyer asked him if he had formed an opinion on the case he said no, but he expected to."—Indianapolis News.

A HEATED DISCUSSION.

"At this point," said the narrator, "she broke down and wept scalding tears."

"My goodness!" exclaimed the listener, "she must have been boiling over with rage."—Chicago News.

BETTER REASONS.

She—Love is like a potato.

He—Because why?

She—Because it shoots from the eye.

He—Oh, I thought perhaps it was because paring makes it less.—Chicago Record-Herald.

HOARDING HIS FUNDS.

Old Gentleman—My friend, what do you do with your wages every week—put part of them in the savings bank?

'Bus Driver—No, sir; after paying the grocer, butcher and the rent, I pack what's left away in barrels; I don't believe in savings banks.—Tit-Bits.

HIS LEISURE SEASON.

"Yes," said the loud guest at the seaside hotel; "I move in the best society in our town."

"Ah!" remarked the quiet man; "I suppose you are able to take your vacation now because the moving business is slack at present."—Philadelphia Record.

JUST LIKE HIS FATHER.

Mrs. Howells—Your baby resembles his father very much, don't you think?

Mrs. Growells—Yes, in both looks and actions. Why, he even makes a specialty of crying for the moon in the daytime instead of at night, just for the sake of being contrary.—Chicago News.

NON-COMMITTAL ABOUT HIS HEALTH.

Robert—Oh, I suppose Tom is all right, but he is so close-mouthed. For instance, when I saw him to-day I asked him, "How are you?" and he gave me an evasive answer.

Richard—And what was that?

Robert—He said, "How are you?"—Boston Transcript.

MAN'S SECRET POWER.

"In all my life," she said with a sigh, "I have seen only one man that I would care to marry."

"Did he look like me?" he carelessly asked.

Then she flung herself into his arms and wanted to know what secret power men possess that enables them to tell when they are loved.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A THEORY THAT FAILED.

Relying upon the old saying that the shortest way to a man's heart was through his stomach, the fond wife, who wanted a new Worth gown, regaled her husband with costly viands for a month.

Then she made her request.

But the heartless wretch replied:

"Can't stand it now. The grocery bill and meat bill was too heavy this month."
—Baltimore American.

STUCK.

Penner—Say, give me a synonym for "psychic," will you?

Wright—Well, there's "psychological."

Penner—All right. How do you spell it?

Wright—Why—er—oh. I give it up. Why not use "phychic?"

Penner—I would, but I don't know how to spell that.—Philadelphia Press.

An International Postage Stamp.

I have reason to believe, says a writer in The Sketch, that there are negotiations on between French and English postal authorities with a view to issuing an international postage stamp. Such a stamp is absolutely a necessity. An international postage stamp must come.

The total number of fellows of the Royal Geographical Society is 3,997; the income of the society for last year was over $10,000.

Best For the Bowels.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. Cascarets help nature, cure you without a gripe or pain, produce easy natural movements, cost you just 10 cents to start getting your health back. Cascarets Candy Cathartic, the genuine, put up in metal boxes, every tablet has C. C. C. stamped on it. Beware of imitations.

It may seem peculiar, but the average actor would rather have a long run than a short walk.

FITS permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. $2 trial bottle and treatise free. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Phila. Pa.

Level means flat, but there's a distinction between level-headed and flat-headed.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, soften the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Silk imports yielded in 1900 more than $15,000,000 of duties.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. Samuel, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

If you can reach a man's heart through his stomach it is equally true that you can reach his pocketbook through flattery.

Each package of Putnam Fadeless Dye colors either Silk, Wool or Cotton perfectly at one boiling. Sold by all druggists.

The fellow who laughs and grows fat usually finds that the laugh is turned on him.

How's This!

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Props., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Walding, Kinnan & Marvin Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Sea Birds Disappear.

The investigation made by Prof. Beyer for the American Ornithological Association of the Louisiana gulf coast for the purpose of stationing wardens to protect the sea birds shows that nearly all the breeding places of the birds had been destroyed by killing the birds themselves and taking their eggs. Not a trace of birds was found on several islands, at one time the homes of millions of sea fowl.

Sozodont

Good for Bad Teeth
Not Bad for Good Teeth

Sozodont . . . 25c
Sozodont Tooth Powder 25c
Large Liquid and Powder 75c
25c.

HALL & RUCKEL, New York

$3.00 W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES $3.50
UNION MADE.
For More Than a Quarter of a Century

The reputation of W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes for style, comfort and wear has excelled all other makes sold at these prices. This excellent reputation has been won by merit alone. W. L. Douglas shoes have to give better satisfaction than other $3.00 and $3.50 shoes because his reputation for the best $3.00 and $3.50 shoes must be maintained. The standard has always been placed so high that the wearer receives more value for his money in the W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than he can get elsewhere.

W. L. Douglas sells more $3.00 and $3.50 shoes than any other two manufacturers.

W. L. Douglas $4.00 Gilt Edge Line cannot be equalled at any price.

W. L. Douglas $3.00 and $3.50 shoes are made of the same high grade leathers used in $5 and $6 shoes and are just as good.

Sold by the best shoe dealers everywhere. Insist upon having W. L. Douglas shoes with name and price stamped on bottom.

How to Order by Mail.—If W. L. Douglas shoes are not sold in your town, send order direct to factory. Shoes sent anywhere on receipt of price and 25 cts. additional for carriage. My custom department will make you a pair that will equal $5 and $6 custom made shoes, in style, fit and wear. Take measurements of foot as shown on model; state style desired; size and width usually worn; plain or cap toe; heavy, medium or light soles. A fit guaranteed. Try a pair.

Fast Color Eyelets used. Catalog free. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

WE PAY R. R. FARE AND UNDER $5,000 Deposit Guarantee

Positions

200 FREE SCHOLARSHIPS, BOARD AT COST. Write Quick to Ga.-Ala. Business College, Macon, Ga.

Bryant & Stratton

Business, Shorthand and Telegraph College, Louisville, Ky., open the whole year. Students can enter any time. Catalog free.

Am. N. U., No. 40. 1901.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

SOZODONT for the TEETH 25c

A Cough

"I have made a most thorough trial of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and am prepared to say that for all diseases of the lungs it never disappoints."
J. Early Finley, Ironton, O.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral won't cure rheumatism; we never said it would. It won't cure dyspepsia; we never claimed it. But it will cure coughs and colds of all kinds. We first said this sixty years ago; we've been saying it ever since.

Three sizes: 25c., 50c., $1. All druggists.

Consult your doctor. If he says take it, then do as he says. If he tells you not to take it, then don't take it. He knows. Leave it with him. We are willing.
J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Your Tongue

If it's coated, your stomach is bad, your liver is out of order. Ayer's Pills will clean your tongue, cure your dyspepsia, make your liver right. Easy to take, easy to operate.

25c. All druggists

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers
50 CTS. OF DRUGGISTS OR R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H.

THE PEOPLE

Always render a true verdict. They have tried and pronounce it a Perfect Laxative and Liver Medicine. READER:—Have you tried it? Your money back if it fails to do the work.

LIVERINA

GAY, HARDIE & DURR,
Proprietors, Montgomery, Ala.

ASTHMA-HAY FEVER
CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE
SEND FOR FREE TRIAL BOTTLE
ADDRESS DR. TAFT, 79 E 130TH ST., N.Y. CITY

$900 TO $1500 A YEAR

We want intelligent Men and Women as Traveling Representatives or Local Managers; salary $900 to $1500 a year and all expenses, according to experience and ability. We also want local representatives; salary $25 to $50 a week and commission, depending upon the time devoted. Send stamp for full particulars and state position preferred. Address, Dept. B.
THE BELL COMPANY, Philadelphia, Pa.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Box B, Atlanta, Ga.

"The Sauce that made West Point famous"
McILHENNY'S TABASCO.

USE CERTAIN COUGH CHILL CURE.

WINCHESTER

"LEADER" and "REPEATER"
SMOKELESS POWDER SHOTGUN SHELLS

are used by the best shots in the country because they are so accurate, uniform and reliable. All the world's championships and records have been won and made by Winchester shells. Shoot them and you'll shoot well.

USED BY THE BEST SHOTS, SOLD EVERYWHERE

Millions

USE

MILLIONS of Women Use CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women and mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for every Humour, Consisting of Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; Cuticura Ointment, to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal; and Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. A single set is often sufficient to cure the most fearful form of skin, scalp, blood, humour, and nervous disease, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. British Depot: F. Newbery & Sons, 27 and 28, Charterhouse Sq., London, E. C. Potter Drug and Chemical Corporation, Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

Cuticura THE SET

There is no gathering the rose without being pricked by the thorns.

SOZODONT Tooth Powder 25c

Ladies!

Our Millinery Department is in charge of Mrs Annie Miller, of St. Louis, who comes to us with the latest styles in Hats.

The ladies of Clanton and vicinity are cordially invited to attend our opening on Tuesday, September 24, and inspect our line of Millinery, before buying.

Very respectfully,

WILSON & BRO.
CLANTON.

W. I. MULLINS

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, PLANTATION SUPPLIES AND COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Boots and Shoes.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

N. B. A full line of Burial Clothes and all necessary Undertakers' Goods constantly kept in stock.

CLANTON, : : : : : ALA.

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

THE BANNER

OUR CLUBBING RATES.

For $1.50 we will send you THE BANNER and either of the following papers for one year:

Atlanta Constitution	$1.50
New York World (3 papers every week)	$1.50
Cosmopolitan (America's Leading magazine)	$1.50
Montgomery Advertiser	$1.50
Nashville American	1.50
Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal	$1.50
Birmingham Age-Herald	$1.10
Home and Farm	$1.00
Southern Farmer

R·I·P·A·N·S

No matter what the matter is, one will do you good, and you can get ten for five cents.

THE NULITE.

750 CANDLE POWER ARC ILLUMINATORS

TABLE LAMP.

Outdoor and Indoor.

Chicago Solar Light Co. 21 Fifth Ave. Chicago, Ill.

THIS COMPLETE SHAVING OUTFIT FOR $1.00. 9 PIECES

1 English Steel Razor—Guaranteed to shave	75c
1 9½ in Hair Brush	35c
1 Shaving Brush	10c
1 7 in Barber Comb	10c
1 Rubber Fine "	10c
1 4 in Pocket comb in case	10c
1 Bar good shaving soap	10c
1 2½ by Mirror	10c
1 28 in Razor Strop	50c

For sale by

L. D. POPWELL, Clanton.

The O. K. Lunch Counter

MEALS AND LUNCHES SERVED AT ALL HOURS AT POPULAR PRICES

Fish and Oysters during the Season

I pay highest market price for Chickens and Eggs.

LUNCHES PUT UP FOR TRAVELERS

THE O. K. LUNCH COUNTER
NEXT THE RAILROAD, CLANTON.
W. M. STACY, Proprietor.

ALL WOMEN

Wine of Cardui is the guardian of a woman's health and happiness from youth to old age. It helps her safely into womanhood. It sustains her during the trials of pregnancy, childbirth and motherhood, making labor easy and preventing dragging and miscarriage. It gently leads her through the dangerous period known as the change of life.

WINE OF CARDUI

cures leucorrhœa, falling of the womb, and menstrual irregularity in every form. It is valuable in every trying period of a woman's life. It reinforces the nervous system, acts directly on the genital organs and is the finest tonic for women known. Ask your druggist for a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

Batesville, Ala., July 11, 1898. I am using Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught and I feel like a different woman already. Several ladies here keep the medicines in their homes all the time. I have three girls and they are using it with me.
Mrs. KATE BROWDER.

For advice and literature, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

CLANTON BARBER SHOP

W. M. TAYLOR, Proprietor.

HAIR CUTTING
SHAVING
SHAMPOOING

In all the Latest City Styles. Reasonable Charges. Prompt Attention.

HOT AND COLD BATHS.

CLANTON

THE BEST WAY TO THE SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST. NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

—IS VIA THE—

L. & N.

(LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R. R.)

The Through Cars

Of this line pass Clanton daily, running through Montgomery, Mobile and New Orleans.

Connecting with all points in

TEXAS AND THE WEST,

also running through to Nashville, Evansville, Louisville, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

Connecting for all points in the

NORTH AND NORTH-WEST.

Before purchasing tickets to any point write the Agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Clanton, Ala., or E. P. Ashton, G. P. A., Louisville, Ky.

The Banner is the leading paper of Chilton county and has the largest circulation. Advertisers should take notice of this fact.

Subscribe for the Banner.

GENERAL CONVENTION EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SAN FRANCISCO, California, October, 1901.

The Southern Pacific Co's "Sunset Route" takes pleasure in announcing very low round trip rates from all Coupon Tickets Offices in this territory to San Francisco, Cal., account of the above occasion.

Tickets on sale September 18-26 inclusive.

Stop-Overs are allowed on the going trip in Texas and West thereof provided, passengers reach San Francisco not later than October 2nd, and on the return trip at points West of Colorado Common Points, San Antonio and Fort Worth, Texas, provided, passengers reach starting point within the extreme limit of the ticket, November 15, 1901.

The privilege of going one route and returning another will be allowed.

Particular attention is called to the "Convention Special," one of the finest trains in the world, from New Orleans through to California without change. This train carrying the equipment of the "Famous Sunset Limited" Vestibuled Sleeping and Dining Cars, especially arranged to carry the delegates and visitors to California, will leave New Orleans Wednesday, September 25th. Stops will be made at various interesting points enroute.

The following rates have been authorized from various points to San Francisco and return.

Anniston	$ 55.55
Attalla	$ 55.75
Birmingham, Selma, Decatur, Mobile, Montgomery and Tuskaloosa	$ 51.75
Eufaula	$ 56.55
Florence	$ 50.95
Huntsville	$ 53.20
Opelika	$ 55.70

Rates are open to all.

For further information call on or address GEO. W. ELY, T. P. A. "Sunset Route," Montgomery, Ala.

TAX NOTICE

ASSESSOR'S AND COLLECTOR'S

Second Round

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of assessing the State and County taxes of Chilton county for the year 1902 and collecting the taxes for the year 1902.

Benton	Beat 3		November
Maplesville	" 7		"
Shoals	" 7		"
Dixie	" 8		"
Valley Creek	" 8		"
Ridgeville	" 8	until 12 m.	"
Macedonia	" 3		"
Green Cofer's Gin	" 2	until 12 m.	"
Hayes' Mill	" 2	from 2 to 4 p. m.	"
Providence	" 2		"
Elijah Busby's	" 3	until 12 m.	"
Cofer's Gin	" 1	from 2 to 4 p. m.	"
Mineral Springs	" 1		"
Smith's School House	" 1	until 12 m.	"
Strasburg	" 9		"
Cane Creek	" 4	until 12 m.	"
Flint Hill School House	" 4	from 2 to 4 p. m.	"
Providence	" 5		"
Burwell	" 5		"
Coopers	" 5		"
Davis & Rollins' Gin	" 6	until 12 m.	"
Clantonford	" 8		"
Pletcher	" 8		"
Kinchenor	" 6		"
Albert Headley's Store	" 6		"
James Maddox Gin	" 4		"
Jemison	" 2		Dec. 1
Thorsby	" 9		"
Mountain Creek	" 5		"
Verbena	" 5	until 12 m.	"
Clanton	" 4		"

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

I will be at Clanton the last ten days of the year, commencing December 20, 1901. T. J. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

$300.00 TO BE GIVEN AWAY

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN THE NEW

CONSTITUTION?

DO YOU THINK IT WILL BE ADOPTED OR DEFEATED?

THE WEEKLY ADVERTISER

HAS OFFERED THE FOLLOWING

CASH PRIZES!

GRANDMA WANTS TO KNOW

THE STATE ELECTION

WILL BE HELD NOV. 5, 1901.

The Weekly Advertiser has divided $300.00 into over fifty Cash Prizes to be given away for the best guess on the total vote of the State of Alabama, either for or against the adoption of the new Constitution.

FOR THE BEST GUESS

First Best Guess	$100.00 Cash
SECOND Best Guess	50.00 Cash
FIVE Next Best Guesses, each	10.00 Cash
TEN Next Best Guesses, each	5.00 Cash
FIFTEEN Next Best Guesses, each	2.00 Cash
TWENTY Next Best Guesses, each	1.00 Cash
GRAND TOTAL CASH	$300.00

Each Subscriber to The Weekly Advertiser

Who sends $1 for one year's subscription on or before midnight Nov. 10, 1901 will be entitled to one guess FREE on the total vote of Alabama either FOR OR AGAINST the New Constitution. Subscribers who are now getting the Weekly Advertiser may have their subscriptions renewed from date of expiration of present subscription and avoid getting two copies at one time by stating when sending in your order whether you are an old or new subscriber.

CUT OUT THIS ORDER BLANK AND FILL OUT CORRECTLY WITH YOUR NAME AND POST OFFICE ADDRESS AND BEST GUESS, EITHER FOR OR AGAINST.

	NAME.	POSTOFFICE ADDRESS	TOTAL VOTE FOR	AGAINST
1
2
3

The Advertiser Co: Please find enclosed cash to the amount of $_____

REMEMBER----$100.00 Cash Paid for the Best Guess!

Last Guess Will Be Received November 10th, 1901

Distribution of prizes is guaranteed by The Advertiser Co. within ten days after official vote is released and results are made public. Tell your friends about it. Every yearly subscriber has one guess FREE. All orders must be accompanied by either money order, express order or draft. Send no stamps. Address all orders to

THE ADVERTISER CO., Montgomery, Ala.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

THE BANNER.

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. IX — CLANTON, ALA. THURSDAY OCTOBER 10, 1901 — NO. 51

MAN ON THE CORNER

Of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

[illegible] what are you trying to [illegible] trying to get out of [illegible] This was a question and [illegible] between Sheriff Killgore [illegible] Monday [illegible] he heard a suspicious noise in [illegible] and went to see what was [illegible] He put the question, and the [illegible] very truthfully replied. [illegible] did not get out that time.

[illegible] electric light plant would [illegible] mighty good thing for Clanton [illegible] and were prominent citizens [illegible] making enquiries on the subject [illegible] it is to be hoped will [illegible] There are plenty of towns not so large as Clanton which are supplied with electric light and power, and there does not appear to be any good reason why a small plant here should not be made to pay. Our streets should be lighted, and those merchants of the stores and places would gladly avail themselves of the privilege.

[illegible] of the past appeared last week [illegible] show travel [illegible] country in wagons [illegible] here. It reminded [illegible] of old times. Now we are accustomed to the coming of a train, and it is one can be found on the [illegible] in the good old style. But it [illegible] same old clown and the old tricks gave a very creditable performance, and like the [illegible] few went on its ways.

[illegible] new depot is going up as if by magic. The frame work of offices and freight house is [illegible], and a fair idea can be had of the structure will look [illegible] Packard's warehouse has moved back, and a fine long [illegible] will be built away down [illegible]. Our new depot will be [illegible], and don't you forget it.

[illegible] has its charms, Summer [illegible], and Winter its splendors, but of the seasons Autumn is most beautiful. The many [illegible] of the falling leaves present [illegible] picture, and the [illegible] between the boughs [illegible] a variety of color indescribable. The harvest moon [illegible] as never at any other time, [illegible] the entire field a picture [illegible] country, and the [illegible] golden grain a scene for [illegible] delight in. 'Tis the fall [illegible] year but its beauty is grand.

[illegible] Savannah News thinks that [illegible] estimate of the crop from [illegible] indications would be any [illegible] from 10,000,000 to 10,500,000 bales. [illegible] those who have [illegible] making pretty [illegible] number of [illegible] opinion that the [illegible] about 10,000,000 bales [illegible] estimate is nearer the truth [illegible] advance [illegible] cotton, because the [illegible] more cotton this year [illegible] last year. While [illegible] the mills which are [illegible] the coarse cotton fabrics have been finding some difficulty [illegible] of their products, [illegible] which are manufacturing the [illegible] grades of goods appear to [illegible] no difficulty in selling all [illegible] promptly. Now that [illegible] trading again, and taking [illegible] great deal of our coarser [illegible] it ought not to be very long [illegible] the mills, particularly those [illegible] the South, will be active [illegible] of cotton. In that event [illegible] says that the price of [illegible] would doubtless advance [illegible] reach 10 cents a pound.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25 cents.

CHURCH MEETINGS

The forty-seventh annual session of the Unity Baptist Association, convened Wednesday, and is in session to-day.

The twentieth annual session of the Weogufka Baptist Association convened yesterday (Wednesday) at Cane Creek church.

The seventy-fourth annual session of the Mulberry Missionary Baptist Association will be held next Wednesday and Thursday at Pleasant Grove church, four miles west of Jemison.

The Bibb County Baptist Association (colored) will meet to-day (Thursday) at Spring Hill Baptist church, Marion.

For inflamed eyes, sore throat, sore mouth, use Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. Pleasant to taste and smell and will give quick relief.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, it has pleased our Father in His wisdom to take from earth's garden our beloved friend and pupil, Miss Mollie Vines, and transplant her into His garden above, October 2, 1901. Therefore be it resolved,

First, That while we weep on the earthly side of the grave, we commit her without fear to Him who fulfilleth His promise, "where I am there ye shall be also."

Second, That our Sabbath-school has lost a faithful friend, and a devoted and obedient member and pupil, whose admirable qualities of character have endeared her memory to each of our hearts.

Third, That we feel deeply this bereavement, and extend to her grief-stricken family our tenderest sympathies, and commend them for comfort, to Him "who doeth all things well."

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our school, a copy be sent to the Alabama Baptist and Clanton Banner for publication, and also a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

By order of Sunday-school, October 6, 1901.

Committee—E. B. Deason, Judson Scott, Mrs. W. L. Forney, Miss Lelia Adams.

Commissioner's Sale.

State of Alabama,
Chilton County. } In Probate Court.

Under and by virtue of the mandate of a certain commission issued out of the Probate Court of said County, directed to me, I will proceed to sell for partition, division and distribution among Florence G. Boyd, et al, parties in interest, the following described real estate situated in said county to-wit: sw ¼ of se ¼, w ½ of ne ¼, Section four and se ¼ of ne ¼ and se ¼ of sw 1-4, Section five, all in Township 21 Range 14. Said sale is to be for cash and is to be held on Friday, the 25th day of October, 1901, in front of the Court House door in Clanton, Alabama.

This, the 4th day of October, 1901.

E. B. DEASON, Commissioner.

Mortgage Sale.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a mortgage executed by John J. Roberts and his wife, Sarah Roberts to J. S. Johnson, on the 30th day of March, 1880, to secure an indebtedness to said Johnson by said Roberts and wife, in the sum of $336, which said mortgage was recorded in Volume 5, on Page 401 of the Book of Mortgages in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton county, Alabama, on the 23rd day of July, 1880; and which said mortgage and debt has been duly assigned to Roberta A. Mullins, the undersigned; default having been made in the payment of said debt I, said Roberta A. Mullins, will proceed to sell the lands conveyed by said mortgage, to wit:

The sw 1-4 of the sw 1-4, and the nw 1-4 of the sw 1-4 of Section 19, Township 20, of Range 13, situated in Chilton county, Alabama, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, on FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1901, said sale to be made on said premises, and to satisfy said debt.

This 8th day of October, 1901.

ROBERTA A. MULLINS, Assignee,
by TIPTON MULLINS,
Attorney for Assignee.

ELECTION NOTICE.

Pursuant to the proclamation of His Excellency, the Governor of Alabama I hereby give notice that an election will be held at the several polling places in Chilton county, Alabama on

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1901,

for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters the question of ratifying or rejecting the Constitution for the State of Alabama prepared by the convention held in accordance with the act of the Legislature, approved December 11, 1900.

This 5th day of October, 1901.

MOSES KILLGORE, Sheriff.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA }
CHILTON COUNTY. }

This is to certify that the following named persons have been appointed Inspectors and Returning Officers, as required by law, for the above election, to-wit:

Beat 1—W. H. Conway, Ira Campbell, Walter Gray, Inspectors. J. W. Middlebrooks, Returning Officer.

Beat 2—box 1—W. H. Shaw, John Lowery, Geo R. Moore, Inspectors. L. A. McGraw, Returning Officer.

Beat 2—box 2—Green Coter, Marion Honeycutt, J. H. Patton, Inspectors. A. D. Robinson, Returning Officer.

Beat 3—box 1—Clayton Edwards, W. A. Wood, Jasper Giles, Inspectors. Geo. W. Calloway, Returning Officer.

Beat 3—box 2—Z. J. Jones, S. E. Waldrup, J. C. Yeazey, Inspectors. Jeff Glasscock, Returning Officer.

Beat 4—N. J. Calloway, J. F. Goodgame, W. J. Armstrong, Inspectors. M. A. Killgore, Returning Officer.

Beat 5—box 1—Moses Popwell, J. H. Vinson, Jesse Cox, Inspectors. G. W. Wilson, Returning Officer.

Beat 5—box 2—E. J. Jones, Jim Grant, Will Wells, Inspectors. Noah Duffey, Returning Officer.

Beat 6—R. L. Williams, Sr., A. T. Hathcock, A. C. Popwell, Inspectors. B. F. Dobbs, Returning Officer.

Beat 7—box 1—J. G. Smitherman, J. J. Letcher, F. U. Crumpton, Inspectors. W. Y. Nix, Returning Officer.

Beat 7—box 2—Jasper Gentry, Frank Green, Noah Latham, Inspectors. Charley Walker, Returning Officer.

Beat 8—box 1—T. G. Milling, W. M. Price, W. C. Dyer, Inspectors. Frank Johnson, Returning Officer.

Beat 8—box 2—R. P. Kendrick, J. H. Adams, W. H. Mills, Inspectors. Oscar Harris, Returning Officer.

Beat 9—D. W. Heyenutty, Alfred Chittress, Tom Williams, Inspectors. D. H. Gentry, Returning Officer.

STATE OF ALABAMA. }
CHILTON COUNTY. }

I, M. A. Killgore, Sheriff of said county, hereby appoint the returning officers above named, at their respective voting places to act as special deputy sheriffs to attend upon the above named election.

This, the 8th day of October, 1901. M. A. KILLGORE Sheriff.

Southeast Chilton.

Mr. Willie Manning of Montgomery has returned home after a visit to his father.

D. E. Kendrick and several of the people here made a pleasant visit to Birmingham Sunday.

We are glad to say Rev. E. L. Manning is slowly improving, and hope he will soon be well and enjoying good health again.

Mrs. Pyron has gone to see her sick son at Troy; hope she will find him improving.

Stock law is now here, and what will the poor farmer do? We hope and trust that the people of Beat 5 will come together and say that we will not put up with it at all, for it was got unlawfully.

J. E. Goss and sister made a pleasant visit to Verbena Sunday.

P. H. Connell went to Mountain Creek Monday on business.

A FRIEND.

The Best Prescription for Malaria

Chills and Fever is a bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. No cure—no pay. Price, 50c.

Thorsby.

To such parents who wish to come to Thorsby to educate their children we will give special rates on choice building lots within short distance of dormitory and college building. Call at our office or address

THE CONCORDIA LAND AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.
THORSBY, ALA.

Burwell.

October has come, the calm blue sky, the Indian summer shining over the dewyrd foliage of the woodland, while the grass withereth and the flowers fade: it tells me that the word of the Lord, upon which the stability of the seasons and the continuance of human life depend, endureth and liveth forever.

Everything seems to be calm in our neighborhood; but little sickness a good deal of trading.

P. M. Jones has sold his plantation on the river and has purchased the Connell farm and commenced to make some improvements.

W. T. Mims has purchased machinery and is cleaning out a right-o'way and will erect a mill and ginnery right away.

Same rumor has it that there is to be another grist mill and gin, and a large mercantile establishment to go up in the near future—this is to be done by Pierce & Co. Clanton is on a boom and gee whiz! so is Burwell.

The majority of the people have decided to resist the stock law and let their stock run at large. The perpetrators say they are law-abiding men, but when you ask them how this law came about they don't know what to say. How this will terminate your deponent doesn't know. I reckon the good Lord does.

Subscribe for the Banner and get the news from Burwell.

BILLY THE KID.

Accidents happen to the most careful as well as the thoughtless. Be prepared for them. Keep a bottle of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic convenient. Only 50c. by all druggists.

RESTAURANT.

The public is informed that I have refurnished and made additions to my restaurant, and am prepared to furnish meals at all times in the best style at short notice.

FISH AND OYSTERS EVERY DAY.

W. H. STACY,
FIRST DOOR EAST L. & N. R.R. DEPOT, CLANTON.

DOWNS' FINE SALE
—ON—
SNUFF AND TOBACCO
FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS

$3.50 buys a 10 lb. box of Schnaps Early Bird, Long Pole, Red Rabbit, Stampede, Black Horse, Henry County Leaf or Monarch.

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 2½ oz. Bruton.

$1.00 gets you 10 boxes 3½ oz. Bruton

$1.00 gets you 12 boxes 3½ oz. Hot Scotch.

1500 pounds of TOBACCO and 600 pounds of SNUFF Staple as Gold $ $ $ $ $

But they must go just the same.

FREE TO THE BABIES.

The Eastern Manufacturing Co., of Chicago, will present to every baby, under one year of age, in this county, one solid silver baby spoon with the baby's given name engraved on same. You do not have to pay one cent nor buy anything to get this spoon. The Eastern Manufacturing Co. are large manufacturers and jobbers of jewelry and silverware, and have taken this method of advertising their goods. Instead of spending thousands of dollars for magazine advertising they have decided to give it away direct to consumers.

The undersigned firm has been made distributing agent for this locality. Bring your baby to their store and give its name and age and you will receive one of these beautiful silver spoons all engraved free of cost. This is not a cheap article, but solid silver of elegant design. Don't fail to look over the elegant line of The Eastern Manufacturing Co.'s goods on display at

D. I. DEASON, Verbena.

WANTED.

FOR SALE—80 acres of land, half mile south of Pletcher station. Low price. Easy terms. Call on I. E. SARBER, Thorsby, Ala.

BRICK! BRICK!! Good hard brick, and favorable freight rates. Prices and samples on application. J. M. JENKINS, Wetumpka, Ala.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen to introduce the "hottest" seller on earth. Dr. White's Electric Comb, patented 1899. Agents are coining money. Cures all forms of scalp ailments, headaches, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb. Send 50c in stamps for sample. D. N. ROSS, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager 316, Caxton Building, Chicago.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

It is a well-known fact that every man should work to his own interest. Then why not the farmer get the benefit of his own labor? Why not the farmer get his prices as well as the merchant? Simply because he does not look around and see what the market price is. He does not know where to go. He does not know that R. L. MARCUS will give more for Produce of all kinds and sell goods for less money than anybody in the city. One call will convince you. Respectfully, R. L. MARCUS, Clanton.

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 12, 1885

Dr. C. J. MOFFETT, St. Louis, Mo.,—I can truly say that your TEETHINA is the greatest blessing to teething children that the world has ever known. I have used it two years, and do not like to be without a box all the time. My baby would hardly have lived through his second summer if I had not used your powders. He is now strong and well, and has all his teeth. I never allow an opportunity to pass without recommending TEETHINA to mothers. May God reward you for the good you have done teething babies through this remedy. Respectfully,

Mrs. A. G. RUSSELL.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
CLANTON - ALA

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts.
Office at the Adams' place
CLANTON - - - ALA

JOHN C. DENNIS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in the Supreme Court of Alabama, and all Inferior Courts.
CLANTON, - - ALA

ROBERT H. ENGE,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CLANTON, ALA.
Will practice in all the State and Federal Courts of Alabama.

Dr. OTTO M. WISEHART,
DENTIST.
OFFICE HOURS. 8 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m.
Office over Wright's Store CLANTON

Dr. GEO. A. DENNIS,
SPECIALIST
Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat
OFFICE 20 S. PERRY ST.
Office Hours: 9 to 12 and 2 to 4.
Telephone 401—2 Rings
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dr. M. S. JOHNSON
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Office at Clanton Drug Store CLANTON

GUARANTEED UNDER A
$5,000 DEPOSIT
R. R. FARE PAID
200 FREE
Scholarships offered. Write quick to
GA.-ALA. BUSINESS COLLEGE, Macon, Ga.

E W Grove

This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

What stops Neuralgia? Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL
PLANTERSVILLE, ALA.

Is a training and strictly private school for boys and girls.

Correlated to the University of Alabama and to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Has fitted more pupils for college, more pupils for teaching, more pupils for advanced business positions than all other schools in Chilton county combined. It is the only school in Chilton county whose pupils have a First Grade Certificate under the present school laws.

Its course of instruction is the best arranged, its methods the soundest, most thorough and up-to-date; its scholarship the most advanced; its location, buildings, grounds, furniture, equipments, the most attractive and best adapted of any school in Chilton county.

Its pupils enter any college in the South on certificate of the Principal. It deals honestly with the public, adheres to professional courtesy, and performs its promises. Its mission is to build up, not to pull down. It is not, as some are, a mere common school called "College," "Normal," etc., by which misnomers the uninformed are mislead.

$101 pays all expenses of board, tuition, fuel, lights, etc., for session of nine months. School opens September 25, 1901. Write for catalogue.

E. Y. McMORRIES, Principal.

The Farmers' Mutual Insurance Association of Alabama

CHARTERED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE LEGISLATURE.

"BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE"

WALLACE C. EDLER, General Agent, Clanton, Ala.

CHILTON COUNTY BRANCH:

PRESIDENT: N. J. CALLOWAY, Clanton.
SEC.-TREAS: P. D. WILSON, Clanton.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

1. H. C. Young
2. Thomas Harrison
3. Alex Glasscock
4. A. J. Wilson
5. D. S. Robinson
6. A. T. Hathcock
7. C. J. Cabera
8. John R. Parnell
9. W. A. Mims

Insures Farmers' dwellings, outbuildings and contents, and Live stock against Loss by Fire, Wind and Lightning;—the cheapest, safest and most sensible method of Insurance known to man.

AGENTS MUST HAVE A COMMISSION SIGNED BY THE GENERAL AGENT.

Full particulars furnished by the County Agent,

ALEX GLASSCOCK, Jemison, Ala.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly.

GLANTON, - - - ALABAMA.

Justice might do better service in some parts of the United States if the bandage were removed from her eyes and a modern weapon substituted for the Roman sword.

London has had an automobile funeral. It is feared that the good old city let its desire to strike the modern pace run away with its sense of propriety.

The Chinese residents of the country are evidently taking to heart the old slogan "The Chinese must go," for they have "gone" to the number of 29,000 in the last 20 years, and we now have less than 90,000 of them. When the Chinaman makes his little fortune he goes back to China to live as a nabob among his people, and this accounts for the decrease.

There is this to be said for the Boers, that in the memory of man no lot of men have done as much as they to make war odious and unpopular. They have damaged war as an institution, hurt its prestige and tarnished its glory. They have wholly neglected its show features; it is not known that they have ever maintained a military band. They have driven the British to expedients that must be distressing to the British soul, and have even managed to throw belated dust on the fresh-won laurels of Lord Roberts by not staying thrashed after he had beaten them. No admirer of war can well help having hard feelings toward the Boers, and wishing heartily that they would abate their monumental obstinacy and listen to reason, remarks E. S. Martin, in Harper's Weekly.

Snobbery is "a worm i' the bud" in any character it once feeds upon; destroying first at the heart, then eating outward. If a man possesses a high idea of himself, and also a high idea of others, he is no snob. It is when he first realizes that inferiority of all about him that the worm begins to gnaw at his vitals. Snobs are made at home; nutured in an atmosphere of flattering self-congratulation, untempered by criticism. The highest love is carefully and kindly critical of its object. The mother who for one moment allows her children to enumerate the shortcomings of others in disparaging comparison to their own high abilities is making snobs; the country that encourages its citizens to value the people of all other countries in an inverse ratio to their own remarkable achievements is manufacturing a nation of snobs, reflects a writer in the National Magazine.

In Michigan a compulsory vaccination rule has come in conflict with the compulsory school-attendance law, and has had the worst of the encounter. The supreme court of the state was arbiter in the contest, the case passed upon being the right of the Kalamazoo school board to exclude from the schools unvaccinated children. This it may not unquallfiedly do, the supreme court ruled. The legislature, the court says, has provided who shall and who shall not attend school, and it has nowhere undertaken to confer power on school boards to change the conditions. If the rule was that during the prevalence of smallpox in Kalamazoo the pupil could not attend school unless vaccinated, a dierent result would be reached, but as these epidemics never last very long the standing rule of the board that no person unless vaccinated can attend school at any time is beyond the power of the board to prescribe.

According to the Baltimore Sun a man need not be a scholar to be an inventor. One of the most successful aeronauts of old times who had made a study of aerial currents and the management of balloons, once delivered an address in which he referred to the "anaconda" as "the largest bird that ever flew," and he also remarked that "the mental faculties of a man's mind is so constructed as to bring things down to a pin's pint." He also referred to the currents of air as stretchums, meaning strata, and yet he was one of the foremost balloonists of his time. He was an inventor also of many useful things, and was the first man in the country to suggest an ironclad man of war with slanting sides. He built a miniature vessel on this plan of sheet iron, placed it in the water and fired musket balls at it at short range. Every ball glanced off. The Merrimac was built on a similar plan, and from that humble beginning the evolution or revolution in naval architecture took its start.

SPRINGVILLE SCORCHED.

A PROMINENT FLORENCE MERCHANT SHOOTS HIMSELF.

THE STATE PENSION ROLL FOR 1902.

An Angry Parent—Miners' Pay—Electrician Meets Death—Industrial Notes — College Opens —No Rifles — Short Items.

FIRE AT SPRINGVILLE.

Springville experienced Saturday night one of the most disastrous fires of its history. It originated in the the second story of the Young Hotel. The whole building was aflame before the fire was discovered and it was quickly consumed. The dry goods store of G. M. Truss & Co. caught and the fire spread to the office of A. W. Woodall. In a few minutes two more houses were entirely destroyed. By heroic efforts the fire was checked at the store of J. F. Galbreath. Mr. Young carried no insurance and suffered a total loss. G. M. Truss & Co. and T. E. Moody were fully covered by insurance, it having gone into effect at 12 o'clock of the same day. The building occupied by A. W. Woodall was fully insured. The burned district will be rebuilt at once.

FLORENCE MAN SUICIDES.

Mark Reisman, one of the leading merchants of Florence, shot himself in the head Saturday morning and died in a few minutes. He told his son that he was going upstairs to clean his pistol and while waiting for him to come down to breakfast the report of the pistol was heard and Reisman was found lying on the floor with a bullet through his brain. He had announced his intention to close out his busines the first of the year and was selling out his stock. He had told his friends that while he was going out of the dry goods busines yet he expected to remain in Florence.

MARION SCHOOL OPENS.

The fifteenth session of the Military Institute is under way with increased attendance. Everett B. Horn, a native of Boston, a graduate of the Boston latin school and a bachelor of arts of Harvard University, is the new professor of English and history. C. P. Kelly, of Georgiana, has been appointed adjutant of the corps of cadets. The special function of the institute is the preparation of students for the large universities.

FATHER OBJECTED.

Prof. Arnold, of the Opelika schools, punished a boy last Monday and in a manner Mr. Powell, the boy's father, claims was too severe. He was very indignant and sought out the professor at the school building, striking him several times in the face. Powell was tried in the city court for assault and battery, pleaded guilty and was fined $1 and cost by the mayor. Professor Arnold then swore out a warrant for him in the county court for the same offense, and Mr. Powell waived a trial and appealed to the grand jury which will convene on the 14th inst. The board of education has passed resolutions upholding the teacher.

THE first annual Elk Carnival at Huntsville, came to an end Saturday. It was a success in every way, and the local Elks made money at the same time, bringing thousands of dollars in trade to the city. One of the features of the midway the last night was a wedding in a cage of lions.

NO CHANGE.

The committee of miners of the Sloss-Sheffield Company have examined the books of the company for the purpose of gaining information concerning sale prices to determine the mining wages for October and has announced that there will be no change in the price. The advance in pig iron did not go into effect in time to change the average selling price of iron, hence no change in the mining wage. The miners are now getting 50 cents per ton, which is 5 cents under the maximum of the scale.

OPERATIONS COMMENCED.

The first run has been made at the A. and J. stove foundry at Gadsden The run was made to make castings for patterns to be used at the shops. The foundry will make wood-burning cooking stoves, coal heaters, wood heaters, club grates and regular frame grates, wash pots, kettles and all kinds of hollow ware. This is one of Gadsden's new industries, built by home capital and organized in July.

THE new constitution campaign is now on in earnest.

BIRMINGHAM is to have another 7-story office building.

JEFFERSON county grand jury found 256 indictments last week.

TALLADEGA'S new market is completed and ready for occupancy.

THE German Immigration convention meets in Birmingham on the 23 inst.

TUSCALOOSA is considering the advisability of building a new court house.

GOVERNOR JELKS was entertained last Thursday evening by the Twickenham club at Huntsville.

AN effort is being made to have mail carried between Gadsden and Attalla, by electric cars.

A small fire occurred in the University at Tuscaloosa, Alabama, last Friday, but little damage was done.

THE annual poultry show of the North Alabama Poultry and Pet Stock Association will be held in Huntsville during the second week in January.

DURING the Demopolis street fair, October 28th to November 2nd, the Demopolis Express, H. W. Hayden, editor and proprietor, will issue his paper daily.

HARRISON KENEDY had his right arm badly injured in a gin at Northport Tuesday. He lost his left arm some years ago which renders his case the more pitiful.

MILES MARCELL, of Springfield, Mo. has been in Huntsville seeking a location for a large foundry and machine shop. The business men of Chattanooga and Huntsville have offered inducements for the location of the plant.

LIEUT. WILLIAM S. WELLS, of Huntsville, has gone to Fort Sheridan, Ills., where he has been assigned to duty. Lieutenant Wells has been attached to the Tenth United States cavalry and after spending a few months at Fort Sheridan expects to be ordered to join his regiment in Cuba or the Philippines.

PENSIONS.

Auditor Sowell has completed his estimate of the Confederate pension fund for the year 1900-1901. The total fund is considerably increased over last year, but the increase is not in keeping with the increase in the list of pensions. In consequence the warrants for this year will be slightly decreased. The total fund last year was $244,487.47; this year it is $257,889.73, an increase of $12,902 24. Last year there were 11,224 pensioners; the state board of examiners increased the list this year to 13,332. The warrant clerk is now engaged in filling out the warrants, and they will be sent to the various probate judges for distribution. It will require probably fifteen days to complete the work of drawing the warrants.

ROBERT BRYAN was seriously hurt in a mine at Belle Ellen Friday morning. He was run over by a loaded car, being bruised about the body, his head crushed and the muscle of his left arm was torn loose from the shoulder to the elbow. His injuries are not necessarily fatal.

RAILROAD MAN KILLED.

Charles Dean, for a number of years in the employ of the A. G. S. R. R., was on the front end of a flying switch at Blocton, Friday, and when an attempt was made to stop the cars the brake chain broke, Mr. Dean lost his footing and fell to the track, the cars passing over his body just above the hips.

AFTER two months of idleness, Sheffield's rolling mills have resumed. During the time many improvements have been made.

NO GUNS.

The adjutant general of the state militia has been endeavoring to secure from the war department supplies of cadet rifles for use in the military schools of Alabama, but the attempt has been unsuccessful. The chief of ordinance refuses unless a regular army officer be on duty as professor of military science and tactics. None of the military schools of the state have a "regular" on duty.

EMPEROR WILLIAM may challenge for America's cup in 1902.

A RECEIVERSHIP has been asked for the New York state stores of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co.

REPORTS say the Boers are making every effort to escape from the British. Botha is surrounded.

THOUSANDS of horses in northern Missouri are afflicted with a disease similar to glanders and deaths among them are numerous.

THE president has appointed Chas. Hartzell, of Colorado, secretary of Porto Rico, to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Secretary Hunt to the governorship of the island.

GLAVIOVITCH, an anarchist, recently arrived in Rome, has been arrested. He had been heard to threaten the lives of the Pope and Cardinal Rampolla, pontifical secretary of state

COL. ROBT. M. THOMPSON, president of the U. S. Naval Academy Alumni, says Sampson read the proof of McClay's history, and when he found what the author said about Schley being cowardly refused to have anything further to do with the manuscript. He says Sampson was angered and branded the statement as unjust.

$500,000 LOSS.

A destructive fire occurred in Arkansas City, Ark., Monday, completely consuming the Papcke-Leischt Lumber Company's immense yard of cotton-wood lumber, containing some four million feet of seasoned lumber ready for the market and six cars belonging to the Missouri Pacific Railway Company. The loss is estimated at $500,000, partially covered by insurance.

TAMPA STRIKERS.

The labor situation at Tampa, Fla., is one of intense excitement, though no developments of a sensational character have been made. Over one hundred strikers who have been forced to work on the streets, in persuance of the vagrancy crusade, asked Saturday to be allowed to return to work in the factories. Nothing is known of the whereabouts of the strike leader who was spirited away from the city Friday night. Since Friday's riot the Italians have been in a sullen mood, but have attempted no further demonstration.

ATHENS is rejoicing over the prospects of a new passenger station.

THE Tennessee River Convention meets at Huntsville on October 16th.

EAST LAKE claims to have a nocturnal depredator in the form of a bear.

THE Dallas County Sunday School Association convened in the First Presbyterian church of Selma Sunday morning. A number of strong speeches were made by leading members of the association and the work of the past year was discussed, together with plans for the ensuing twelve months.

HUNTSVILLE has had a number of fires recently and an effort is now being made to find out if a fire bug is in town.

SHEFFIELD will shortly equip a hook and ladder company.

FLORENCE will have free mail delivery after December 1st.

OIL has been found at Hartselle and land has doubled in price.

THE supreme court has issued its calendar for the November term.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals having granted ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers and James Howard new trials in the Goebel murder case, the case of the former will be called Tuesday. Powers has been removed to the jail in Georgetown, and it is denied that his mind is giving way under the long confinement. Powers was serving a life sentence while Howard was sentenced to hang. Much new evidence is claimed.

TWENTY HOUSES BURNED.

Twenty buildings in the heart of West Tampa were burned Friday morning with a property loss of $200,000. The fire was discovered in the large cigar factory of O'Halloran & Co. The water supply in West Tampa was inadequate and the fire practically burned itself out. Great excitement existed on account of the belief that the fire was of incendiary origin.

LATEST STATE NEWS.

JONES SUCCEEDS BRUCE.

President Roosevelt has appointed former Governor Thomas G. Jones, of Alabama, United States District Judge for the Northern and Middle Districts of Alabama, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Bruce. It was somewhat of a surprise in republican circles, and yet is generally conceded to be an able appointment.

SUICIDED IN GEORGIA.

John Y. Turner, of Rockmill, Ala., assistant instructor in the carding and spinning branches of the textile department of the Georgia School of Technology, committed suicide Sunday night by taking morphine. Before taking the drug Turner telephoned one of his friends that he was about to end his life, but help arrived too late.

ALL ABOUT A FENCE.

Two white farmers, Brady Jones and J. P. Cowley, living about twelve miles east of Opelika, had a quarrel last week about a fence line. Monday morning they met and renewed the quarrel, Cowley shot Jones with a double-barreled shotgun loaded with buckshot, killing him instantly. Cowley immediately started to Opelika to surrender. As soon as he heard of the difficulty Sheriff Hodge went to arrest Cowley, and met him near Cnewalka en route to Opelika. He was brought to Opelika and lodged in jail.

THE STATE TREASURY.

The condition of the state treasury, at the close of the fiscal year on September 30, 1901, as given out by Treasurer Smith, gives evidence that the state is abundantly able to meet all obligations. The receipts for the last year were something over $128,000 less than the disbursements, this was caused by extraordinary expense; that of the legislature, the constitutional convention and the university land settlement. Here are some of the figures:

Balance of cash on hand at close of September 30, 1900	$ 629,691.44
Total receipts from Oct. 1, 1900, to September 30, 1901	2,842,435.64
Total	$3,472,127.08
Total disbursements from October 1, 1900, to September 1, 1901	2,970,767.78
Leaving balance on hand at close September 30, 1901	$ 501,359.30

The constitutional convention figures:

Amount paid 155 members for per diem and mileage	$69,621.00
Amount paid secretary, clerks and other subordinates	17,842,00
Amount of expenses incurred for incidentals approved and payment authorized by ordinances of the convention	3,195.28
Total	$90,658.28
Credited by overpayments which have since been refunded amount to	189.20
Total net expenditures	$90.469.03

RUMOR says the Southern Railroad will construct a line from Attalla to Oneonta, and it may be extended to Decatur.

ALMOST A FATAL MISTAKE.

Mrs. Maly Jones, wife of Joe L. Jones, a well-known farmer living near Gadsden, narrowly escaped death Monday night from an overdose of morphine taken through mistake. She filled a large capsule with what she thought was quinine and swallowed it. She soon became sleepy, and rousing said she was going blind. A physician by hard work saved her life.

TUSCALOOSA has a street fair on.

FOUR oil wells are to be driven in Washington county.

The navy department has arranged to sell 3,457 small arms of mixed types at public auction at the Mare island navy yard on the 21st instant. These arms were surrendered by the natives of Samoa to the joint high commission.

General MacArthur probably will be the next commander of the Department of the Lakes.

Mrs. Roosevelt has appointed Miss Isabella Hagner as her social secretary.

LAST Saturday at Toledo, O., $01,90 was raised towards a W[illegible] memorial.

SENATOR CHAUNCEY M. D[illegible]PEW is to marry Miss May P[illegible] the near future.

MEXICO is expressing great [illegible]est in the Pan-American congr[illegible] to convene there.

THE ATLANTA JOURNAL [illegible] purchased the Atlanta News and [illegible] latter has ceased publication.

GREAT BRITAIN has just launched her first submarine boat. It [illegible] the Holland type and five more [illegible] building.

THE fifth annual meeting of the Southern Cotton Spinners Association will take place in Atlanta Nov[illegible] 14th and 15 h.

EDWARD VII is reported [illegible] sick. The real facts are [illegible] able, but the stories about his [illegible] troubles are surprised.

M. H. MASSEE, of Macon, [illegible] new president of the Southern Manufacturing Association of Texas [illegible] Sash, Doors and Blinds.

A WORKMAN threw a bomb [illegible] Baron Rothschild in France [illegible] day. The missile missed its [illegible] but smashed the machinery of [illegible] automobile.

THE Earl Marshal has issued [illegible] rules and regulations to govern [illegible] dress at the approaching coronation of Edward VII. The dresses [illegible] are distinctly medevial.

IT is said that King Otto, of Bavaria, who has been insane for [illegible] five years, has recovered his [illegible] Regent Leopold and the cabinet [illegible] said to be in a quandary.

THE new quarters for the [illegible] the United States naval academy [illegible] Annapolis will be the longest [illegible] in the world, 1278 feet 4 inches [illegible] about a quarter of a mile. [illegible] about 11 acres.

ROBT. E. BURKE, oil inspector [illegible] Chicago has been indicted on [illegible] charges of embezzlement aggregating $23,000. He is chairman of the [illegible]ocratic county executive committee and a close friend of Carter Harrison.

THE Standard Brick Company [illegible] Bessemer, has got its plant [illegible] now for operation. J. W. [illegible] of Indianapolis, Ind., who has [illegible] the machinery, is there awaiting [illegible] starting up of the plant. The capacity of the plant will be 3,000 [illegible]ing brick per day. It will employ about forty hands.

GOVERNOR DURBIN will [illegible] a letter to Theodore C. Search, president of the Manufacturers' Association of the United States, invite [illegible] national conference on reciprocity to meet in Indianapolis. The executive committee will meet in Philadelphia October 18 to decide on a date and place of holding the convention.

AN OPEN SWITCH.

In a wreck on the Southern [illegible] at 10 o'clock Saturday night, [illegible] senger train, east bound, ran [illegible] an open switch at White Plains and collided with a freight train on the siding. Two men were instantly killed and one other hurt. W. H. Kain, Knoxville engineer, is reported badly hurt, legs being crushed.

Secretary of Agriculture [illegible] after careful consideration of [illegible] ports and estimates of leading sugar producers, estimates the sugar production for 1901 at [illegible] tons. The cane sugar production estimated as follows: Louisiana, 300,000 tons; Porto Rico, [illegible] Hawaii, 300,000. Total 700,000. The beet sugar production is as follows in tons: California, [illegible] Michigan, 60,000; Colorado, [illegible] Utah, 150,000; Nebraska, [illegible] York, 7,000; Wisconsin, [illegible] Minnesota, 2,500; Washington [illegible] Oregon, 2,000.

On the 9th of October, Rear Admiral Schley will retire from the list of the navy by age limit. His retirement will promote two men to be rear admirals. Captain Wildes, who was in command of the Boston during the battle of Manila bay, and Capt. Henry Glass.

Miss Helen Long, second [illegible] of Secretary of the Navy [illegible] Long, died last Friday [illegible] memory [illegible]able.

DAY'S RATION FOR A SHEEP.

A day's ration for a sheep is estimated [illegible] two pounds of hay, half a pound of [illegible] oats and half a pound of bran in [illegible] winter season, but as large sheep [illegible] more than smaller ones the [illegible] ration may not be strictly correct. Sheep should also be supplied with [illegible] food, sliced carrots being highly relished. They should not be overfed, but should be kept in moderate condition.

BREEDING STOCK FOR SPECIAL PURPOSES.

The tendency among breeders to build [illegible] breeds of live stock for special purposes has done much to separate the breeds in form and markings and to fix their characteristics. With the desire [illegible] have each breed perform a certain [illegible] has come more science in feeding. Progressive farmers no longer throw [illegible] feed promiscuously, but feed to [illegible] Among the changes in that [illegible] breeding pigs for a better quality of [illegible] preference to a superabundance of [illegible] Large rations of corn are no longer [illegible] rule, as green food, a run in the [illegible] and clean and dry quarters are [illegible] a varied ration being preferred.

WHEN WHEAT SHOULD BE CUT.

There have been different opinions as [illegible] the best time of cutting wheat, judging from the common practice of farmers. It is generally cut when dead ripe, [illegible] at least when the grain has become [illegible] This, no doubt, is an error and [illegible] of more importance than many suppose. It should be remembered that [illegible] is composed of gluten, starch and [illegible] Gluten is the nourishing quality [illegible] the grain. It makes the flour stick [illegible] in the hands of the baker, and [illegible] weight to the grain, and there is [illegible] greatest quantity of gluten in the grain just when the straw is yellow two [illegible] three joints from the ground the head [illegible] downward and you can mash a [illegible] between your thumb and finger [illegible] producing any milk. It may, therefore, be set down as an indisputable [illegible] that every day the wheat stands [illegible] this stage of ripeness the gluten [illegible] in quality and the bran increases in thickness.—E. L. Bates, in The Epitomist.

CURING MILK FEVER.

In a recent circular Dr. Samuel S. [illegible], of the Maryland Experiment Station, states that he has cured six [illegible] of seven cases of milk or calving fever. He says the following method [illegible] as the Schmidt treatment, after [illegible] Danish scientist, was used: 1. Dissolve two grams iodide of potash in one [illegible] of water, which has been boiled, and allowed to cool to about the temperature of the body. 2. Introduce the [illegible] and pipette into the ends of the [illegible] tube and place in a bucket of [illegible] antiseptic fluid. 3. Milk the udder dry, [illegible] place under the cow a piece of oil [illegible] about a yard square (a carriage [illegible] apron may be made to answer) [illegible] that the udder will be about the middle of the cloth. Wash the udder and [illegible] thoroughly with castile soap and [illegible] water, rinsing carefully with antiseptic fluid. 4. Insert the pipette into [illegible] end of a teat and fill the funnel with [illegible] of potash solution. By passing [illegible] from one teat to another [illegible] the solution equally among the [illegible] of the udder. 5. Rub the udder [illegible] the teat toward the body and massage thoroughly in order to distribute [illegible] solution throughout. 6. Eight or ten [illegible] after the injection or when fever is assured, the udder should be [illegible] milked out and then bathed [illegible] warm water, about 100 degrees. A [illegible] injection is rarely necessary, but [illegible] it should be done at the end of [illegible] or eight hours.—American Agriculturist.

POULTRY FOR SHOWS.

It is always valuable to the poultry [illegible] to take an interest in the autumn poultry exhibitions, and even to raise [illegible] birds for them. There is nothing [illegible] the whole business which stimulates [illegible] more in good work than this. We [illegible] the exhibition to see what others have been doing in our line of work and [illegible] how much they have distanced [illegible]. In this way we get valuable lessons which we can take home to put [illegible] practice. Then the effort to secure [illegible] at a show is always a guarantee [illegible] one is making the best of his knowledge and surroundings to raise the best [illegible] one gets interested in these prize [illegible] it is almost impossible to get [illegible] to do his level best. It is the stimulus of competition that makes him study [illegible] connected with the poultry [illegible] for the purpose of improving his [illegible]. I have in mind a friend who raised [illegible] for a living and made a rather [illegible] sort of success. She had eggs [illegible] everybody else had eggs, and her [illegible] were a mongrel mixture and laid [illegible] well. She took no interest in [illegible] breeding, nor attempted to cull her flocks, or to study their needs [illegible]. Then she visited a poultry exhibition and saw some of the [illegible] which took first prizes. She became interested, and when told that she [illegible] raise as good birds if she only [illegible] the question carefully she immediately secured a few well-bred birds [illegible] proceeded to lay her plans to capture a prize in the future. She did not [illegible] in the next year, nor the following, but in the third she took second [illegible]. But the chief part of her story, [illegible] is of value, is that she had become so interested in her well-bred poultry that she had gradually sold off her stock, and replaced it with new, [illegible] by step she had adopted modern [illegible] of poultry culture. She studied [illegible] of the birds as never before, [illegible] did everything possible for her pets,

LAST Saturday at Toledo, O., $1,831,90 was raised towards a McKinley memorial.

SENATOR CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW is to marry Miss May Palmer in the near future.

MEXICO is expressing great interest in the Pan-American congress to convene there.

THE ATLANTA JOURNAL has purchased the Atlanta News and the latter has ceased publication.

GREAT BRITAIN has just launched her first submarine boat. It is of the Holland type and five more are building.

THE fifth annual meeting of the Southern Cotton Spinners' Association will take place in Atlanta November 14th and 15th.

EDWARD VII is reported quite sick. The real facts are unobtainable, all that the stories about his illness contain are guessed.

M. H. MASSELL, of Macon, is the new president of the Southern Manufacturing Association of Yellow Pine Sash, Doors and Blinds.

A WORKMAN uses a spade for the first time in building the Eiffel Tower in France, last Friday. The occasion missed the banal formalities of the machinery of kings and emperors.

THE Earl Marshal has issued the rules and regulations to govern the dresses at the approaching coronation of Edward VII. The dresses ordered are distinctly mediæval.

IT is said that King Otto, of Bavaria, who has been insane for twenty-five years, has recovered his mind. Regent Leopold and the cabinet are said to be in a quandary.

THE new quarters for the cadets at the United States naval academy at Annapolis will be the longest building in the world, 1278 feet 4 inches, or about a quarter of a mile. It covers about 11 acres.

ROBT. E. BURKE, oil inspector of Chicago has been indicted on 17 charges of embezzlement aggregating $23,000. He is chairman of the Democratic county executive committee and a close friend of Carter Harrison.

THE Standard Brick Company, of Bessemer, has got its plant in order now for operation. J. W. Hess, of Indianapolis, Ind., who furnished the machinery, is there awaiting the starting up of the plant. The capacity of the plant will be 30,000 building brick per day. It will employ about forty hands.

GOVERNOR DURBIN will write a letter to Theodore C. Search, president of the Manufacturers' Association of the United States, inviting the national conference on reciprocity to meet in Indianapolis. The executive committee will meet in Philadelphia October 18 to decide on a date and place of holding the convention.

AN OPEN SWITCH.

In a wreck on the Southern Railway at 10 o'clock Saturday night, a passenger train, east bound, ran through an open switch at White Pine, Tenn., and collided with a freight standing on the siding. Two men were instantly killed and one other badly hurt. W. H. Kain, Knoxville, the engineer, is reported badly hurt, both legs being crushed.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, after careful consideration of the reports and estimates of leading sugar producers, estimates the total sugar production for 1901 at 2,100,000 tons. The cane sugar production is estimated as follows: Southern States, 800,000 tons; Porto Rico, 300,000; Hawaii, 300,000. Total 1,400,000. The beet sugar production is divided as follows in tons: California, 90,000; Michigan, 60,000; Colorado, 40,000; Utah, 150,000; Nebraska, 7,000; New York, 7,000; Wisconsin, 2,000; Minnesota, 2,500; Washington, 1,000; Oregon, 2,000.

On the 9th of October, Rear Admiral Schley will retire from the active list of the navy by age limit. His retirement will promote two officers to be rear admirals, Capt. Cook and Wildes, who was in command of the Boston during the battle of Manila bay, and Capt. Henry Glass.

Miss Helen Long, second daughter of Secretary of the Navy John D. Long, died last Friday night of pulmonary trouble.

DAY'S RATION FOR A SHEEP.

A day's ration for a sheep is estimated at two pounds of hay, half a pound of [illegible] and half a pound of bran in winter, with [illegible] as large sheep and smaller ones the [illegible] strictly correct. Sheep should be supplied with [illegible] being high-priced, [illegible] not be overfed, but kept in moderate condition.

FEEDING STALLS FOR SPECIAL PURPOSES.

[illegible] breeders to build a special purpose stall to separate the animals and to fix with the desire [illegible] a certain [illegible] in feeding. [illegible] anger throw [illegible] feed for [illegible] is that of [illegible] of flesh [illegible] abundance of [illegible] no longer [illegible] run in the [illegible] quarters are [illegible] preferred.

[illegible] TO BE CUT.

[illegible] opinions as [illegible] wheat, judging [illegible] of farmers [illegible] dead ripe [illegible] has become [illegible] an error and [illegible] many suppose [illegible] that [illegible] starch and [illegible] quality [illegible] flour stick [illegible] baker, and [illegible] there is [illegible] gluten in the [illegible] is yellow two [illegible] around the head [illegible] can mash a [illegible] and finger [illegible] milk. It may, [illegible] disputable [illegible] the wheat stands [illegible] the gluten [illegible] the bran in-[illegible]—L. L. Bates, in [illegible]

CURING MILK FEVER.

[illegible] Dr. Samuel S. [illegible] of the Maryland Experiment [illegible] has cured six [illegible] milk or calving [illegible] following method [illegible] treatment, after [illegible] failed: 1. Dissolve [illegible] potash in one [illegible] has been boiled, [illegible] about the temperature of the body. 2. Introduce the [illegible] into the ends of the udder [illegible] in a bucket of [illegible] the udder dry, [illegible] a piece of oilcloth [illegible] a carriage [illegible] to answer) [illegible] about the middle [illegible] the udder and [illegible] castile soap and [illegible] with anti-[illegible] the pipette into [illegible] the tunnel with [illegible]. By passing [illegible] to another [illegible] 5. Rub the udder [illegible] the body and massage [illegible] to distribute [illegible] light or ten [illegible] or when re-[illegible] the udder should be [illegible] and then bathed [illegible] 100 degrees. A [illegible] necessary, but [illegible] done at the end of [illegible] hours.—American Agriculturist.

[illegible] FOR SHOWS.

[illegible] the poultry-[illegible] in the autumn [illegible] even to raise [illegible] there is nothing [illegible] the whole business [illegible] which stimulates [illegible] more good work than this. We [illegible] what others [illegible] not work and [illegible] have distanced [illegible] market valuable les-[illegible] take home to put [illegible] effort to secure [illegible] ways a guarantee [illegible] of his knowledge [illegible] raise the best [illegible] in these prize [illegible] possible to get [illegible] It is the stimulus [illegible] makes him study [illegible] the poultry [illegible] improving his [illegible]

[illegible] who raised [illegible] made a rather [illegible] She had eggs [illegible] eggs and her [illegible] care and had [illegible] an interest in [illegible] stopped to cull [illegible] their needs [illegible] a poul-[illegible] some of the [illegible] prizes. She be-[illegible] that she [illegible] She only [illegible] actually she immediately [illegible] a well bred birds [illegible] her plans to cap-[illegible] She did not [illegible] year, nor the following, but the third she took second [illegible] Be [illegible] part of her story, [illegible] is that she had be-[illegible] so interested in her well-bred poultry [illegible] that she had gradually sold off her [illegible] stock and replaced it with new, [illegible] by step she had adopted modern [illegible] of poultry culture. She studied [illegible] needs of the birds as never before, [illegible] did everything possible for her pets. In the second year she found that her revenues were actually increasing, and by the third year she saw that fine breeding of poultry was not only great sport for the show business, but very profitable work for every day in the year. She secured more eggs, and her birds always brought more in the market. To-day, naturally, she pins her faith to well-bred poultry and intensive methods of raising.—Annie C. Webster, in American Cultivator.

COW STABLES IN WINTER.

Economy in various ways is only possible with the best arrangements in the stabling of cows. They must necessarily occupy their stalls the greater part of the time in winter, and unless their ease and comfort are well studied and provided for, there will be a vast amount of fretting among them, which has its results in a diminution of the product, or a loss of food; for the good effect of the food of an animal is greatly interfered with by every discomfort to which it is subjected. There should certainly be room enough to avoid cramping the cows, with a floor so constructed that it is always dry and clean; and this, in turn, should be covered with comfortable litter on which the animals may recline without chafing the skin over the prominent bones, and thus make resting easy and pleasant. Good drainage, to keep the floor dry and the cows clean, is of course necessary, and all interference between neighboring cows should be avoided. The feed troughs should be clean and so built and arranged that there may be no waste, and that each cow may readily get her food. Ample light should be provided, and that the cows may have the full benefit of the warmth and healthful influence of this, it should come in on the sunny side of the barn.

The walls and floor of the stable should be wind-proof. Cold consumes food, for the first use of food is to sustain the warmth of an animal, and exposure to cold will call for so much more food in proportion to the amount of cold to be neutralized by it. Indeed, the most important part of a cow's food, the fats in it, are first to be wasted in this way. In other words, food is fuel, first of all, and exposure to cold wastes it. Even the winds, howling with force and cutting like a knife, must be excluded from the stable, if the cows are to derive all the benefit from their food and their owner all the profit possible from the feeding. Truth to tell, cow stables should have double walls with air-proof lining between them to keep out the wind, and that with proper ventilation to be made use of when necessary; for pure air must not be forgotten, this being a most important element in the sustenance of the natural heat in an animal. Why? Because the oxygen of the air is used up in the animal system in the consumption of such of the food as goes to maintain the animal heat, by the oxidizing of the carbon of the food. On the other hand, impure air, for want of this oxygen, really chills the animals, and so makes an increase of food necessary, just as fuel piled on a full fire, which for want of a draft of air does not burn clearly, is consumed without giving out its due amount of heat. Consequently, pure air is essential in the winter, and it should be supplied by proper ventilation, which will make no drafts and not chill the stable too much. A good ventilator for a winter stable is that which will draw up the foul air, and, by a sufficient number of small sliding ventilators near the floor, admit enough fresh air to keep the interior pure and comfortable.—Fred O. Sibley, in Agricultural Epitomist.

FARM AND GARDEN NOTES.

If you have any sour milk give it to the hens.

Blood and meat are what will make the hens lay.

The clover should be the farmers' emblematic flower.

Burn the rubbish and scatter the ashes among the small fruits.

Let poultry of all kinds fast about twelve hours before killing.

Turkey hens are generally profitable until they are five years old.

It is impossible to have good dairy products without good food.

Cows in good condition make better butter than cows in poor condition.

The more you take from the soil the more you have got to put back on it.

Mutton or wool alone will not pay. You have got to work the two in together.

If you want to be a scientific farmer you must conduct your farm on scientific principles.

It will pay any farmer to oftentimes visit some big market in order to see just what kind of stock brings the profitable prices.

The most successful business men—this includes farmers—are those who study the markets.

Keep the lambs growing. Or, better yet, keep all the young stock growing. It is the easiest way to get the biggest profit out of them.

The biggest horses are not always the most useful on the farm. The "happy medium" horse is the one that it pays the farmer to keep.

It is a great deal easier matter to drive away the birds than it is to kill the insects. Farmers should encourage their "feathered help" to remain with them the year around.

Of late years the most profitable branch of the sheep industry has been the raising of early lambs for market. This is the reason why sheep raisers should choose rams of a breed that are early maturers.

It is fair to credit the sheep with a few extras now and then. They will keep the clover cropped closely, and if this is done through the early part of the summer the seed crop will be heavier from the late growth than by any other manner of handling it.

It isn't any use to build castles in the air unless you own a balloon.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

The British war office has devised a new use for bullets expended upon target practice at rifle ranges. The present market price for spent cupro-nickel bullets is about $90 per ton, and contracts have been made for the recovery and removal of these used bullets from the various ranges.

According to English correspondence, an automobile battery has been evolved abroad which threatens a revolution in horseless travel. In going down hill the motor is reversed and the battery recharges itself, so that it is much stronger at the bottom than at the top. A trip of over 94 miles was made on an American-built wagon equipped with this motor and battery, with no stop for recharging.

As a consequence of the increasing demand for superior grades of sugar in Japan, attention is being turned toward inproving the very primitive methods of crushing now employed at Tainan, and turning out a cleaner and higher grade sugar, says The Engineer. As a first step in this direction four iron mills—crushers—were introduced during the year to replace old stone crushers, but as the same motive power—bullocks—is used as before, this improvement is limited only to the extraction of a larger percentage of juice, and the quality of the sugar produced remains much the same.

Commercial agent Johnson, of Stanbridge, Quebec, has sent to the state department a report on the discovery of a new wood preservative. He says: "The sap is removed from timber and at the same time it is impregnated with chemicals to render the wood either fireproof or impervious to attacks of insects or to decay in salt or other waters. Beechwood can be made suitable for railway sleepers or for boot and shoe lasts. If necessary the impregnating plant can be used at the felling ground. The cost of impregnating is about two cents per cubic foot. The cost of the plant is about $1000."

The product called "electroverre," according to the Moniteur Scientifique, is made as follows: The materials in fine powder are fed into an electric furnace in several compartments; in about 20 minutes a clear liquid glass is obtained, which can be run into moulds or worked as usual, for finer kinds of glass the compartments are placed over one another, as the refining takes place more quietly. Fifty volts is sufficient with the Becker furnace, and the current can be either alternating or continuous. It is claimed as an advantage that the furnace can be easily started or stopped within a short time, and that the expense of pots will be saved. The trials are being made by a company at Cologne.

The geodesists are still measuring the earth, with a view to determining its exact size and shape. People that do not follow closely the work that scientists are doing are under the impression, perhaps, that these points were determined long ago, and so they were approximately. But an approximate conclusion is not satisfactory to science, and so the task of measurement goes on, and will go on until an accurate result is obtained. One of the most important steps recently taken in this direction is the remeasurement of the meridian arc in Peru, which is being done by French geodesists, the original measurement having been made by their countrymen in the early part of the 18th century. The new arc is nearly twice as long as the old one, and covers about six degrees of latitude, crossing the equator near Quito. The great peak of Chimborazo rises not far from the middle point of the new arc.

Gutta-Percha is Not Rubber.

Many persons think that gutta-percha and India rubber are substantially the same product, but, while they resemble each other in some respects, they are distinctly different in others. A writer who was formerly a forester in the Dutch East Indies has recently called attention to these differences. So far as the qualities of the products are concerned the most noticeable difference is that rubber is elastic, while gutta-percha is not. Gutta-percha is obtained from one plant only; rubber from upward of 60 different plants. The gutta-percha tree is cultivated with great difficulty, and the natives of the countries where it grows cut it down to get its sap. Three-fourths of this product comes from Sumatra and Borneo. The total annual production is only about one-twentieth that of rubber, which is estimated at about 99,000,000 pounds, two-thirds of it coming from the Amazon valley, one-third from Central Africa and one-twentieth from Asia.

Rare Butterflies Bring Big Prices.

About 20 butterflies and nearly 600 moths are supplied by Wicken Sege Fen in Cambridgeshire, England, but only a few of the rare and more valuable specimens are sought after by the entomologists. Their value, from a monetary point of view, is somewhat difficult to gauge; for instance, a scarce and inconspicuous brown moth, called Hydrilla palustris, which is only taken at long intervals, several years intervening, is worth $10 to $15, while a swallow tail butterfly, although found nowhere else in England, is worth but 10 cents. A good specimen of the large copper butterfly is worth from $30 to $40, but this butterfly is now extinct.—Pearson's Magazine.

A Warm Weather Dessert.

Mint sherbet is an excellent summer dessert, and has the advantage of being easily made. Pour a pint and a half of boiling water over a bunch of mint, and let it stand. Boil together a quart of cold water and two and one-half cupfuls of sugar for fifteen minutes. Strain the mint into it. Add a cupful each of orange, strawberry and currant juice. Cool and freeze. Arrange a sprig of mint in each cup.

Peanut Cookies.

Peanut cookies will prove a delight to most members of the family. To make them, remove the skins from two cupfuls of shelled peanuts, and put them through a meat chopper. Cream together three teaspoonfuls of butter and one cupful of sugar. Add three eggs, two tablespoonfuls of milk, one saltspoonful of salt, the nuts and enough flour to make a soft dough. Roll them on a floured board, cut them with a small cutter and bake in a moderate oven.

A New Cranberry Pie.

A delicious cranberry pie is made of the uncooked fruit. To make a small pie, take a large cut of the ripe fruit and chop it into small pieces. Add a cup of granulated sugar. Stir a tablespoonful of corn starch into a little cold water and add a quarter of a cup of boiling water. Pour over the cranberries and sugar and mix thoroughly. Roll out the pastry thin, cover the pie plate with pastry and fill with the cranberry filling. Cover with a plain pastry, cover and bake in the oven for about forty minutes.

A Delicious Dessert.

Cherry sauce with plain boiled rice is an inexpensive and delicious dessert. Put into a saucepan a tablespoonful of flour and two ounces of butter. When well blended, a pound of stoned cherries, four whole cloves and a pint of water. Allow this to simmer until the cherries are soft, then strain through a fine sieve, rubbing and mashing the cherries to obtain as much of the pulp as possible. Next add the juice of half a lemon and sufficient sugar to sweeten. Just before serving add the well-beaten whites of two eggs. The eggs must be beaten to a stiff show.

The Breakfast Fruit.

Oranges served whole are always an acceptable fruit to be eaten before the cereal at breakfast, and the combination of sliced oranges and cocoanut with perhaps an addition of sliced bananas is sometimes served at this time, although it is more popularly served at dinner, for dessert. And it is found that the orange cut in squares for this dessert is better than the thin slices, as it does not pack so close in the dish.

Peel as many oranges as are required, and cut in inch-square pieces, removing all the white parts and seeds. Put a layer of these in the bottom of a glass dish and sprinkle them with sugar. Have ready a fresh cocoanut grated and spread some over the sugared oranges. Cut some firm bananas into thin slices and place a layer of them close together over the cocoanut. Repeat with the oranges, sugar, cocoanut and bananas, with a final layer of thickly sugared oranges, and a sprinkling of cocoanut. Serve with candied cherries around the edge of the dish.

Household Hints.

Tinware is made bright by polishing with newspaper.

Fewer dishes will be broken if a small wooden tub is provided instead of the ordinary dishpan.

A fernery and a candle holder combined is a novelty for table decoration found in the jewelry shop.

Salted almonds should be placed on the table at the beginning of the dinner and served with the crackers and cheese.

Dates, figs and raisins chopped together in a meat chopper and moistened with orange or lemon juice make an excellent filling for brown bread sandwiches.

When lamps are clogged with oil the burners should be boiled in a strong solution of soda and water, and allowed to get thoroughly dry before being used again.

A cupful of currant juice to a quart of red raspberries, in canning, will add much to their flavor. Currant juice will also improve red raspberries that are to be eaten raw.

Chairs that look quite hopeless after a season on the porch respond to a stain as well as to enamel paint. An application of ammonia will help to remove any former "coat."

A pinch of powdered ginger added to cranberries in cooking will bring out the flavor. They should not be stewed to a jam, but kept separate, looking more like candied cherries.

Cracks in a stove grate can be easily mended by applying ashes and salt moistened to a stiff paste. Put on at night and in the morning it will be found quite firm. Should it crumble again in the lapse of months, renew the application.

Cranberries make excellent timber for winter shortcakes. Pare, core, and cook with as little water as will prevent burning. Sweeten as for table use, and can. To use place between thin shortcake, cover with frosting and serve. You will call it delicious.

THE WORDS A MAN UTTERS.

The Average Per Day is About Two Newspaper Columns.

"I have been trying to figure out how many words the average man utters in every twenty-four hours," said a gentleman yesterday, who has a penchant for peculiar things, "but I have been unable to reach any satisfactory conclusion on account of the different rates of speed at which different persons talk. Of course, I have no reference to the different kinds of words which may be found in the daily vocabulary of the average man, but I am talking about the total number of words uttered, counting repetitions and all, during every twenty-four hours. There is the quiet, melancholy gentleman will not speak on an average five hundred words a day, and there are many who for one reason and another would not utter anything like this number. On the other hand, there is the conversational Gatling gun, not always a woman either, who will roll off words at a fearful rate of speed, and whose aggregate for one day would run up to dizzy heights. Then there is the normal talker, who will strike a good decent average, the man who will neither bore you with his indifferent silence nor tire you with his meaningless verbosity. But suppose we figure that the average person will utter an average of sixty words every minute. This would amount to 2,400 words every hour, or about 57,600 words for twenty-four hours. Of course, no person will talk this much, as the windiest of men and women would probably break down before they had talked as much as fifty-seven columns in the average daily newspaper. The only question is as to how much time each person puts in talking during each day. Some men and women are situated so that they cannot talk during the day except at meal time, on account of the character of work they have to do. There are others, such as traveling men, for instance, who depend upon talking for their living. I have figured that the high man, probably the traveling man, will talk five hours out of every twenty-four, which would give him a total of twelve thousand words every day. I have figured that most any sort of a man will talk as much as ten minutes of every twenty-four hours, and this would give him a total of six hundred words for the day. These are two extremes. I am satisfied that the normal man, the man who strikes a decent average between indifferent silence and disgusting verbosity, will talk probably one hour, all told, each day, which would allow him twenty-four hundred words. And this, by the way, is considerable talk, for it will fill two columns in a newspaper, and a whole lot of wisdom can be crowded into two columns."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Rice vs. Potatoes.

The shortness of the potato crop at the north and the unprecedented high prices for the tubers have drawn attention to the comparative merit of other food, notably corn and rice. It would be a wholesome thing for the north if this scarcity of a fvorite article of diet induced them to add rice to their menu and benefit them correspondingly. Oriental people have long known the value of rice, and the southern people, as a class, especially in the gulf and south Atlantic States, appreciate it so much, along with corn grits and cornbread, that no meal is considered complete without it. It is excellent with butter or gravy and a superior addition to soup. It can be converted into most palatable and nutritious desserts. Cornbread, corncake, and corn grits are southern dishes. On hog and hominy the negro maintains his great muscle and the white man thrives in this section. As much depends upon cooking, attention must be paid to these matters. As a rule the northern people know how to prepare potatoes for the table and southern people do not. The northern cook makes the potatoes mealy and delectable; the ordinary southern cook converts it into a hard, soggy, indigestible mass. The northern cook turns rice into glue and imperils its palatability; the southern cook brings it to a dry, and succulent condition. We of the south should learn to cook potatoes properly and the northern folk should learn how to manipulate rice. The ladies who go about teaching cooking at schools might become patriotic as well as gastronomic missionaries if they at once began a campaign of education east and west.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

A Tramp in Trouble.

"I had an old barn in a field half a mile from the house," said a Nassau farmer the other day, "and it was a camping place for tramps. One night this last summer there was a big thunder storm, and I felt pretty sure that a bolt hit the old barn. I didn't turn out 'till morning, however, and then I saw the barn had been burned. As I wandered down there I came across a tramp in a fence corner. He was looking dazed and done up, and when I asked him what had happened he slowly explained:

"Why, this thing is going to make me lots of trouble."

"What thing?" I asked.

"This old barn. There was nine of us in there when the lightning struck, and as I was the only one who got out I suppose I'll have to hang around here and attend the funerals of the other eight."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Truing Railway Wheels.

A simple device, it is reported, has been put in operation on some of the railroads by which the wheels can be trued up without interfering with their use. It consists of a brake shoe that contains pockets, filled with a grinding material, so that when a wheel becomes flattened it is only necessary to remove the old shoes and put it in its place, doing the braking as usual, the wheel becoming turned down in the course of a little while.

The assessed valuation of the State of Idaho has increased $4,669,580 in a single year, and the total now is $54,195,486.

Marconi has been awarded a medal for inventing the wireless telegraph. As a rule, the inventor of anything is awarded a lawsuit.

In Italy Sundays are usually preferred for marriages when the principals have never been married before. Widows, however, respect an old custom by marrying on Saturdays.

The city of Pensacola, Fla., now claims to be the third in commercial importance on the Gulf of Mexico, being excelled in exports only by New Orleans and Galveston.

A Boston paper has discovered over three hundred happy couples in New England who have passed their golden wedding anniversary, and it is still continuing the search.

Efforts are being made to develop a taste for rifle shootings in Japan and rifle clubs on European lines are being formed. The Emperor is greatly interested in the project, and has given large sums for prizes.

The Court of Civil Appeals in Texas holds that a person who receives a letter addressed to another and who retains it an unreasonable length of time is guilty of obstructing the mail and is liable for whatever damage may thereby result.

European inventors look to America to perfect the flying machine, because there are men here who can afford to experiment with such expensive luxuries. But even the wealthiest people dislike to squander their money, without some prospect of getting, in the parlance of sport, a run for it. And the flying machine seems very much inclined to remain stationary.

Eight members of the jury that tried Guiteau, the murderer of President Garfield, and whom the assassin cursed bitterly in open court when they brought in the verdict of guilty, yet survive, although their average age at the time of the trial was fifty years. John P. Hamlin, the foreman, still resides in Washington, hale and hearty, though over three-score and ten.

Only about 2,200,000 people in the United States buy novels as they run from the press. They do much of this simply that they may keep up to date in literature. It is part of their capital in society. Most of these buy liberally. Plenty of readers are to be found whose book bills for novels run from $100 to $150 a year steadily. At an average of $8 spent by each the total is imposing.

Some check should be placed on the foolish people who attempt to swim through the rapids below Niagara Falls. Many have lost their lives in the attempt, the latest being a woman who was induced to go in a barrel. Such feats as this appeal only to morbid curiosity and they should not be tolerated. They are not legitimate tests of skill or strength, and therefore there is no excuse for them.

Arizona is commonly regarded as a sun-dried and arid territory which produces little besides hot air. But she comes forward this year with the proud report that she has raised $10,000,000 worth of alfalfa. This is a sort of succulent grass, peculiar to the West, which makes an excellent kind of hay. So, Arizona is taking its place in the agricultural column and may yet develop into a flourishing State.

Whatever argument may be framed against capital punishment in ordinary cases, it is the opinion of a writer in the Christian Register that no adequate reason has ever been given for sparing the life of an assassin. The safety of rulers, the stability of government, and the welfare of all nations would be advanced if, in cases of public assault where there is no doubt of the criminal, he being caught in the act, there were prompt and speedy execution.

Souvenir collectors will be interested to learn that 100 large tables, six dozen chairs, twelve dozen work-boxes, eleven desks, twenty-four dozen knife handles, twenty-four dozen cigar-cases, 100 dozen umbrella handles and over 100,000 penholders have so far been made out of the only original surrender tree of Santiago, and the tree is nearly all there still. The apple tree at Appomattox did less than this for the faddists of a great country.

A large minded corporation in London is venturing upon the gigantic task of providing two millions of twopenny meals daily for the masses of the hungry who need substantial food at low figures. This is a brave undertaking, in which the margin of profit seems to waver close to the edge of the invisible. If it achieves a lasting success its projectors ought to have medals. If it fails the promoters may find a touch of consolation in the thought of well meant endeavor.

There are some things which seem household necessities in the United States for which there is no market whatever in France or Southern Europe. One of these is the range with a hot water back, another is the refrigerator and a third is the rocking chair. Americans living abroad often want these articles so badly that they even send home for them, but among the French there is no demand for them whatever, and American manufacturers only waste time in trying to create a market for them.

THE BANNER.

Printed and Published Every Thursday at Clanton, Chilton County, Ala.

Entered at the postoffice at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription, yearly . . . $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

FIRST SIX—ONE DOLLAR ONLY—The first six persons who want THE BANNER and the Montgomery Weekly Advertiser can get both papers for One Year by paying One Dollar cash down. This offer is good for one week only. 104 papers for one dollar, less than one cent each paper.

RATIFICATION—"To be or not to be, that is the question."

THE directors of the People's Savings Bank should read the statistics of the cotton crop for last year which will be found in another column—nearly $300,000 handled in Clanton alone, and no bank to put it in. Having read it, they should then get down to business at once, and let us have the bank without further delay.

PRESIDENT Roosevelt has appointed ex-Governor Thomas G. Jones to the Federal judgeship made vacant by the death of Judge Bruce. Governor Jones is a fine lawyer and a man of well-balanced mind, eminently fitted for the judicial office. The appointment is a good one and gives general satisfaction. Whether it will have any political effect in the State remains to be seen.

THE anti-ratification campaign committee has submitted a proposition to the ratification committee that the new Constitution be submitted in a primary to the white voters of the State, the election to be held prior to the general election. A similar proposition was made in 1892 with regard to the governorship, and we expect this proposition will meet with the same fate as that did, and will not be accepted, although it is certainly the fairest way to settle the question.

OUR readers now have the new Constitution before them, and we presume are diligently studying its provisions before making up their minds whether to vote for or against ratification. Four weeks from next Monday will be election day, and as every Banner subscriber has a copy of the new Constitution we can all intelligently discuss it. This we propose to do, and will be glad to publish short letters on the subject. We have this much confidence in the new Constitution, that it will bear investigation and discussion, and we are willing to give a copy of it to any one who will call at the Banner office.

THE "Birmingham District" is rather an elastic term and covers a good deal of ground. Chilton county possibly may not be fairly included in that territory, but we are so near by that whatever affects the mineral district also affects us. We believe there are numerous mineral deposits in this county which will yet be developed. The introduction of new capital and fresh ideas will tend to this desirable end.

We are glad to learn that "The Dixie Manufacturer" is preparing to get out 25,000 copies of an illustrated art edition of that journal which will be mailed to all parts of the world. It will contain 200 pages, and will be the most elegant and comprehensive publication of the kind ever issued in the South. It will show to the world that which has already been accomplished, and the immense possibilities of the future. The attention of capitalists and others will be drawn particularly to the Birmingham district, and great advantages to the State will necessarily ensue from this "Industrial Art Edition of the Dixie Manufacturer," which we heartily wish the greatest success.

THE COTTON CROP OF 1900

CENSUS BULLETIN, No. 98, just to hand, contains some very interesting statistics on the cotton crop of 1900. From it we find that Alabama produced 1,061,678 bales (a decrease of 54,717 bales below the crop of 1899,) and its value was $43,768,061.98. There were 488,006 tons of seed from the crop, valued at $7,808,096, making a grand total of $51,576,157.98.

In the State there are 4,347 ginneries, and of that number 4,044 were at work on the 1900 crop, 145 being idle that year, and 158 had been out of business since the crop of 1899. The average capacity of the ginneries was 263 bales.

Montgomery county produced the greatest number of bales, 47,002; Dallas is next with 42,208, and Lowndes third with 36,023. Chilton is the forty-second county on the list with 12,003 bales. Autauga made 12,135, Elmore 18,561, Coosa 12,762, and Shelby 9,510. Mobile county made only 20 bales.

Chilton county produced 12,003 bales, or 6,014,789 pounds, and its value (at the average price of the crop $.0896875 per pound) would be $539,451.38. Using the same method adopted by the Bulletin, we find this number of bales would make 6,014 tons of seed, worth on an average last season $16.00 per ton. This makes the value of the seed $96,224.00 which added to the value of the cotton makes a grand total value of the cotton crop of Chilton county in 1900 of $635,675.38.

On referring to THE BANNER'S cotton market report for 1900, we find that the number of bales marketed at Clanton last season was 5,551, or nearly one-half of the crop raised in the county. The Bulletin gives the average weight per bale in Alabama as 501 pounds, and this makes the number of bales marketed at Clanton equivalent to 2,781,051 pounds, which at the average price above mentioned, means that the Clanton cotton buyers paid out $249,425.51 to the farmers for cotton. This same number of bales would make 2,781 tons of seed, which at the average price of $16 per ton, would be worth $44,496.00. Adding this to the value of the cotton gives us a grand total value of the cotton crop marketed at Clanton last season of $293,921.51.

We hope this season will be at least as good or better than the last.

Late Literary News.

Little is thought and less is known by the average man concerning the lives and aims of the 400,000 men and boys who delve under the surface of the earth in places of darkness and danger, where hardly a day goes by without recording the death by falls of rock, coal or slate of more than one unfortunate miner. An article on this subject at once impartial and vitally interesting is contributed to The Cosmopolitan for October by John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers of America, whom every one recalls as the man who organized the miners and carried through to a successful termination the great anthracite strike of 1900.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

They cure dandruff, hair falling, headache, etc., yet costs the same as an ordinary comb—Dr. White's Electric Comb. The only patented Comb in the world. People, everywhere it has been introduced, are wild with delight You simply comb your hair each day and the comb does the rest. This wonderful comb is simply unbreakable and is made so that it is absolutely impossible to break or cut the hair. Sold on a written guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every respect Send stamps for one. Ladies' size 50c. Gents' size 35c. Live men and women wanted everywhere to introduce this article. Sells on sight. Agents are wild with success. (See want column of this paper.) Address D. N. ROSE, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

A BEAUTIFUL ROSE TRANSPLANTED

Like a beautiful rose plucked from its stem when most lovely, so death's withering blight wrenched from hearts, Miss Mollie Vines, just as she appeared on life's stage of action a mature young woman. After an illness of five days she passed away at 11:45 a.m., October 1, and was laid to rest in Clanton cemetery Wednesday, October 2. It was one of the most memorable funerals that has ever taken place in our town. Rarely, if ever, did such a concourse of sorrowing friends and admirers follow the remains of any one to the grave. The floral contributions were many and costly. The Baptist church was crowded to standing room. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. F. M. Woods, of North Birmingham, former pastor of this church and who baptized Miss Mollie into the church. His tribute to the lamented dead was beautiful in thought and imagery. The life that had just closed was an inspiration to the speaker and most eloquently he commended her life to the surviving relatives and friends.

The following were the active and honorary pall bearers: Messrs. N. A. Kicker, E. B. Deason, H. F. Chandler, Dr. N. S. Johnson, J. Watts Moore, Bascom Y. McMorries, Misses Lillie and Leila Adams, Jessie Allen, Emma Potts, Blanche Foshee and Gamma Leah Chandler.

Heaven has claimed its own, and we thank God for the sweet and blessed influence of the pure life of this christian girl. In her last consciousness she was sure that death was near, and humbly submitted, saying sweetly, "Thy will and not mine be done." "May my death be the salvation of at least one soul." "I will soon be a shining light up yonder."

She was the first young lady of Clanton to die and already she has passed into the pearly gates to beckon loved ones heavenward. She is gone and the place that once knew her will know her no more forever. The once bright and sunny home is now dark and dreary, echoing the tread of those that seem to seek for something that is not. Visitors look in vain for the bright face that once smiled a welcome to all who came. Oh! how changed the scene.

Miss Mollie was a beautiful girl and none could look upon her and not be ready to say that her soul's her spirit, proud in its goodness and purity, was as nobly beautiful as she who lent to the crowded way much of the heavenlike pleasure. None saw her that did not admire her; none knew her that did not love her. She was a loving, obedient daughter, a sweet sister, a true friend, a faithful christian and devoted to those whom she most loved. Her life was as a beautiful poem carrying sunshine and joy wherever she went.

In her death our loss was indeed great and may the ministering angel of mercy comfort and sustain the bereaved father, mother, sister, brothers and hosts of friends and especially that one who seemed most to her and she to him, until God shall call them all home to sing sweet anthems to Him forever. Miss Mollie now enjoys the glories of heaven. God bless her memory.

K. B. D.

If your cow is suffering with garget, "spoiled udder," use Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic freely. It is said to be a very fine remedy by those who have tried it.

It may be necessary to hustle in order to get there, but some men overdo the thing.

Every man has his price, but mighty few of them get it.

Why suffer with that painful Wound when Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will stop the pain and heal it so quickly and cost so little? One application will convince an convert you. Price 50c.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama,
Chilton County.

In Chancery, at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, Northeastern Chancery Division.

Amanda Jones, Complainant, vs. Jack Jones, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of A. C. Smith, Solicitor for Complainant, that the Defendant, Jack Jones, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, whose post-office and residence are unknown to affiant, and further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, Alabama, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said Jack Jones, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 28th day of October, 1901, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office, in Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama, this 23rd day of September, 1901. W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

A. C. SMITH,
Solicitor for Complainant.

TAX NOTICE.

ASSESSOR'S & COLLECTOR'S First Round.

We will attend at the following times and places for the purpose of assessing the State and County Taxes of Chilton County for the year 1900, and collecting the taxes for the year 1901.

			1901
Pletcher	Beat 8	Oct.	1
Stanton	" 8	"	2
Dixie	" 8	"	3
Shoults	" 7	"	4
Maplesville	" 7	"	5
Beeson	" 3	"	7
Macedonia	" 3	"	8
Providence	" 2	"	9
Jemison	" 2	"	10
Mineral Springs	" 1	"	11
Stressburg	" 9	"	12
Clanton	" 4	"	14
Coopers	" 5	"	15
Verbena	" 5	"	16
Kinchenor	" 6	"	17

A. C. MIMS, Tax Assessor.
T. I. HUBBARD, Tax Collector.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU ARE TAKING When you take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic because the formula is plainly printed on every bottle showing that it is simply Iron and Quinine in a tasteless form. No Cure, No Pay. 50c.

WANTED—Several persons of character and good reputation in each state (one in this county required) to represent and advertise old established wealthy business house of solid financial standing. Salary $18.00 weekly with expenses additional, all payable in cash each Wednesday direct from head offices. Horse and carriage furnished, when necessary. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope. Manager, 316 Caxton Building, Chicago.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Wanted—Everybody to try Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for wounds, bruises, burns, stings of insects, etc. If you don't like it you can get your money back. You take no risk, see?

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR. "Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "NUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"NUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"NUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "NUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept C 935 EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2530 and 2532 Market Street, Philadelphia.

For barbed wire cuts on stock, use Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. Nothing equal to it in such cases. 50c. a bottle by all first class druggists.

Here we are

Fairly settled down in our new store with the finest Line of Goods ever brought to Chilton county and conveniently arranged for your inspection.

OUR DRY GOODS—come and see them—make your eyes glad.

OUR SHOES—come and see them—make your feet easy to look at.

OUR CLOTHING—come and see them—make your heart glad.

OUR HATS—come and see them—make you feel good.

OUR GROCERIES—come and see them—make your mouth water.

OUR NOTIONS—come and see them—make you take a notion to buy.

OUR STORE—come and see it once—make you want to come again.

OUR STOCK—All—come and see it—make you want to buy.

OURSELVES—come and see us—we are always glad to see you.

and we are yours most respectfully,

W. H. Sartor,

CLANTON

We have moved to 2012 First Avenue

EVERYTHING AT CUT PRICES

J. Martin's Five-Year-Old Virginia Rye 75c Per Qt.

COLLIER DRUG CO.,

THE CUT RATE DRUG STORE

BIRMINGHAM, . . ALA.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO

W. A. KEMP

KEEP YOUR EYE ON IT

C. W. WILSON

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Fancy Groceries a Specialty

CLANTON

TOWN ITEMS

Commissioners' Court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART

Price to day 7 9-16 @ 7½ cents.
Same date last year 7 7-16 cts.

Bales received to date	1901	1900
Pinckard & Co	719	756
Mullins	525	655
Wilson	98	154
Downs	21	158
Total	1363	1723

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

BRICK for sale at $5 and $7 per 1000. F. R. WOODWARD, Clanton.

Mrs. George Foshee of Maplesville was a visitor here Monday.

Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Meade of Thorsby were visitors here Tuesday.

Miss Gatie Sims of Jasmine visited Clanton Saturday.

Mrs. O. A. Duke of Deatsville spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Clanton.

Pleasant, harmless, reliable. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic is the best remedy for wounds, burns, bruises, stings of insects, etc.

Mr. Charley Echerle, sanitary engineer, was down from Birmingham Monday, to look after the sanitary arrangements at the new depot.

Dr. Wisehart made a trip to Birmingham Monday.

Mr. W. R. Wilson left Tuesday morning to attend a session of the Massey Business college at Birmingham.

Judge Adams and Circuit Clerk L. B. Deason went out on Tuesday afternoon to Alpine to attend Union Baptist Association.

Mr. Leonard Thornton of Mountain Creek spent Sunday in Clanton.

Dr. Joseph Johnson of Chattanooga, Tenn., is visiting friends in town.

Mr. D. K. Middleton, of Haynesville was in town Sunday.

Miss Ida Cabaniss of Shelby is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Nellie McKenzie.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Miss Askins of Billingsley visited Clanton Saturday.

A young deputy—just like his pops—arrived at the home of Sheriff Kilgore Tuesday night.

Don't forget to call on Mrs. Phillips and see her new and pretty line of millinery. Brick store near the court house.

Don't you forget that Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure colic in horses and mules. 25 cents a dose, two doses in a bottle. Keep it convenient.

Mrs. H. M. Martin of Atlanta, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Thornton, left Monday to accompany her daughter to New York to take a course in elocution.

Dr. Henry Martin and wife, of Atlanta, are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton.

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Rev. Hood of Lowndesboro visited his daughter, Mrs. D. F. Elmore.

Mr. Harper and family of Cameron, Texas, have moved into the house vacated by Prof. McMorries.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's ad. in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every two to six days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in the future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1185½ 21st st., between 1st and 2d aves, Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Colored. James Lykes and Mary Calloway; John Dixon and Rose Craig.

STOPS THE COUGH and Works off the Cold. Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

e are

our new store with the Finest ought to Clanton county, all
for your inspection.

see them—make your eyes sparkle.
m—make your feet easy to look at
e them—make your heart glad.
m—make you feel good.
re them—make your mouth water
them—make you take a notion to once—make you want to come again
see it—make you want to buy.
—we are always glad to see you.
ure most respectfully,

. Sartor,

CLANTON

to rst Avenue
G AT CUT PRICES

d Virginia Ry. 75c Per Qu

DRUG CO.,
UT RATE DRUG STORE
HAM, · AL

CE BELONGS TO

KEMP

OUR EYE ON IT

WILSON
EALER IN—
MERCHANDIS
eries a Special
CLANTO

NORMAL SCHOO
ENDENT NORMALISM, OF
L DEPARTMENTS.
AL, MORAL AND NON-SECTARIAN
racticed. We court investigation e, at any time, examine into the d schools of the State. The Main structure of fifteen rooms. The three-story structure well suited
d. The Library consists of more
50 TO $8.00 PER MONTH.
$1.50 TO $3.50 PER MONTH.
id up and to lend a hand in helping
State in elevating the youth to a r information, address
O & CARMICHAEL, Thorsby,

TOWN ITEMS

Confederate Court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in June, first Monday in June, second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART.

Price to-day 7 7-16 @ 7¼ cents.
Same date last year 9 7-16 cts.

	1901	1900
Bales received to date	719	956
Packard & Co.	525	655
Mullins	98	154
Wilson	21	128
Downs
Total	1363	1903

We are in the market buying Cotton and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

BRICK for sale at $5 and $7 per M.
F. R. WOODWARD, Clanton.

Mrs. George Lubbee of Maples was a visitor here Monday.

Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Meade of Thorsby were visitors here Tuesday.

Miss Grace Sims of Jasmine visited Clanton Saturday.

Mrs. O. A. Duke of Deatsville spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Clanton.

Pleasant, painless, reliable. Dr Tichenor's Antiseptic is the best remedy for wounds, burns, bruises, scaldings, insect bites, etc.

Mr. Charley Eckerle, sanitary engineer, was down from Birmingham Monday, to look after the sanitary arrangements at the new depot.

Dr. Winehart made a trip to Birmingham Monday.

Mr. W. R. Wilson left Tuesday morning to attend a session of the Massey Business college at Birmingham.

Judge Adams and Circuit Clerk E. B. Deason went out on Tuesday afternoon to Alpine to attend Union Baptist Association.

Mr. Leonard Thornton of Mountain Creek spent Sunday in Clanton.

Dr. Joseph Johnson of Chattanooga, Tenn., is visiting friends in town.

Mr. D. K. Middleton, of Haynesville was in town Sunday.

Miss Ida Cabaniss of Shelby is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Joe McKenzie.

We are in the market buying Corn and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Miss Akins of Billingsley visited Clanton Saturday.

A young deputy—just like his pa—arrived at the home of Sheriff Kilgore Tuesday night.

Don't forget to call on Mrs. Phillips and see her new and pretty line of millinery. Brick store near the court house.

Don't you forget that Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic will cure colic in horses and mules. 25 cents a dose, one dose is a bottle. Keep it convenient.

Mrs. H. M. Martin of Atlanta, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Thornton, left Monday to accompany her daughter to New York to take a course in elocution.

Dr. Henry Martin and wife, of Atlanta, are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton. D

We are in the market buying Corn and Cotton Seed, paying highest market prices.
E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

Rev. Hood of Lowndesboro visited his daughter, Mrs. D. F. Elmore.

Mr. Harper and family of Camden, Texas, have moved into the house vacated by Prof. McMorries.

Watch for Dr. A. J. Massey's ad. in this paper. He has established a branch office at Clanton, and will spend a week here every three os days. Thanking the people of Chilton county for past patronage, he will appreciate same in the future. Will pay fare one way for those going to his office in Birmingham to have their dental work done. 1181 21st st., between 1st and 2d aves., Birmingham.

Warranty Deeds, Mortgage Deeds, Waive Notes, Receipt Books, on sale at The Banner office.

Marriage licenses have been issued last week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.
Colored. James Lykes and Mary Galloway; John Dixon and Rose King.

STOPS THE COUGH
and works off the Cold.
Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

NOW!

Our Mr. Pinckard has just returned from the East, where he purchased our Fall Stock, securing many fine grades of goods.

We must make room for these new goods, so NOW is your chance. We will show you great bargains: call and see us.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

October bargains

Clearing Out Sale

Bound to go

To clear out my big stock the prices have been cut down and every hing goes at bargain figures. These goods were purchased when the market was low, and I can afford to sell them to you at greatly reduced prices.

You will be surprised and delighted with the quality of these goods, and absolutely astonished to find you can get them for such little money.

Ladies' Capes from 25 cents up. Ladies' Dress Goods from $1 up.

Ladies' Walking Jackets from $1 75 up.

Ladies' Hats from 50 cents up.

Children's Jackets from $1 25 up. Calico 4 cents per yard.

Sheeting, yard wide, 4½ cents per yard. 10 balls Thread 5 cents.

A full line of Men's Clothing, Shoes, Hats etc. but have not space here to give prices.

A BIG LINE OF TRUNKS.

N. TOURO, Clanton

C. R. MULLINS

REPRESENTS THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEWARK, N. J., AND SEVERAL LEADING FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES

and will insure your lives and property at lowest current rates.

I also wish to state that I am getting in my Fall stock of the Latest Improved High-arm SINGER MACHINES, and I have my office full of second hand machines of different kinds, all in good running order, that I will sell cheap for cash or trade for produce, most any old way and at any old price. I must have the room for my new stock which will arrive about September 1st.

Also have on sale at my office the latest improved SMOOTHING IRON with Fluter combined.

NEEDLES, OIL, BANDS, CANS, ETC.

Regular office days Saturday and Monday.

C. R. MULLINS, Agent, Singer Office, Clanton.

THE CLANTON DRUG CO.

CARRIES A LARGE LINE OF

Drugs, Medicines, Patent Medicines and Stationery

and is prepared to serve you in a nice way.

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED

A large stock

constantly replenished affords the purchaser an opportunity to select what is wanted.

In Clothing and Dry Goods the fashions are always changing, and to get the best Groceries they must be fresh.

Our stock is large and new goods always coming in, that is why you can find the best at

WILSON & BRO.

CLANTON.

FINEST OIL MADE

FOR SEWING MACHINES, CLOCKS OR BICYCLES.

YOUR MONEY REFUNDED IF NOT SATISFACTORY. FOR SALE BY

L. D. POPWELL, CLANTON.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses, No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! this remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. C 935. EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

THE

VITAE ORE

PREPARATIONS;

All Agents desiring a supply of Vitæ-Ore will find it at the Campbelle Drug Co., Clanton, at usual agents' prices.

N. A. LOGAN, General Agent

AGENTS WANTED

KRUMP'S KORNER

Has just received a big lot of the Famous Tennent shoes. Every pair warranted. Lot of Perry Buggies from 35.00 up to $75.00. Lot of Famous Heron Iron Bedsteads. No more trouble with vermin if you use them. Lot of all kinds of Furniture. He needs money, you need these things, come let us swap.

Prof. W. J. Atchison, the famous bachelor mathematician, got the Sewing Machine. The girls can look him up.

T U CRUMPTON, Prop'r

MAPLESVILLE, ALA.

GOOD NEWS for the People of Maplesville, Riderville and surrounding country.

We beg to call your attention to our stock of DRY GOODS, CLOTHING, SHOES and GENERAL MERCHANDISE, which is now complete in both stores, and everybody is invited to call and examine our goods and prices, which will astonish you. We will give you a few of our prices which will convince you that we are leaders of low prices and first-class goods, and will take great pleasure in showing you bargains. Here they are:

Calicoes at 4 cents per yard. Outings from 3½ cents up.
Yard wide Sheeting 5 cents.
We have the Anvil brand Shoes Guaranteed to give satisfaction—
Men's and Ladies' Shoes from 90 cents up.
We give you a good heavy Underseirt for 19 cents.
We are again selling 10 balls of Thread for 5 cents.

We could give a long list of prices that would astonish you, but space will not permit. All we ask of you is to give us a trial.

Remember, we pay Highest Prices for WOOL, HIDES, SKINS, BEESWAX, and Country Produce generally.

Yours, for bargains, at the Jew stores at Maplesville and Riderville,

J. DAMSKY & BRO.

J. W. FRANZEN

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE, DRY GOODS, SHOES, HATS AND EVERY THING KEPT IN A FIRST-CLASS STORE.

COFFINS AND CASKETS AND FUNERAL SUPPLIES

THORSBY.

A. L. Wambem

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER

HOUSE MOVING A SPECIALTY

—DEALER IN—

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS—SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, MANTELS, ETC.

OFFICE ON JONES ST. OPPOSITE DEPOT

THORSBY.

—CALL AT THE—

CASH STORE

FOR BARGAINS,

THORSBY, ALA.

OUR CASH PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

15 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1.00	8 bushel sack Meal	1.20
1 bbl Red Seal Patent Flour	4.50	1 gal water, white 150 fire test, oil	15
½ bbl " " " "	2.25	1 lb Ham	15
24 lb sack " " "	60	Whole Ham, per pound	13
1 bbl Straight Family Flour	3.50	Bacon and Bulk	10-12
14-lb sk Family Flour	50	1 lb Lard	10
100 lbs Bran	1.10	50 lbs Lard	4.50

We are handling Minneapolis Flour. Soda Crackers and Sweet Crackers, Ginger Snaps, Cheese, Lemons, Irish Potatoes always in stock. Also best Dried Fruits in the market. Also handle Roller Champion and I. E. M. Flour.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Hardware, and the very best Staple and Fancy Groceries.

Fresh Fish and Oysters every Saturday.

We take Eggs, Butter, Corn, Meal, Fruit and Chickens at the highest market price in exchange for goods.

Yours to please.

A. M. JOHNSON, Manager.

BILL ARP'S LETTER

Bartow Man On Assassination of President McKinley.

EXTOLLS MANHOOD OF DEAD LEADER

William Is Well Acquainted With Some of Roosevelt's Relatives and Hints For a Government Job on that Account.

The public grief has assayed. The shock that made the nation tremble has passed away. Editors and preachers have had their say and the wheels of government roll on in their established way. Not for a day was there any interruption to commerce or agriculture. Party and partisans softened down and paid regard to the time-honored maxim, "De martimus nil nisibonum"—say nothing but good of the dead. Even the yellow journals stopped their cartoons and gave their readers a rest. But one extreme always follows another and so idolatry began as soon as the resident was assassinated. He would have been sainted if sainting was revived. Now that he is dead he is everybody's president. But time is a good leveler, and history is beginning to be made. Mr. McKinley was no demigod nor will he be written down as a great statesman. He was a Christian gentleman—a better man than his party—but was carried along with it into an unjust war that will not bear the scrutiny of time. He had to fall into line with the greed of commerce, and the consequence is there are thousands of widows and mothers silently mourning for husbands and sons killed in battle or died in hospitals in a foreign land. There is no lamentation over them.

But as Governor Oates said, what are we going to do about it; nothing? Some preachers say it is the will of God and the way to spread the gospel. I don't believe it; and I have not much regard for the preacher who does. It takes more faith than I have got to see the hand of God in any war for dominion or the acquisition of territory. For more than a hundred years Ireland has been held in vassalage against her will. So were the American colonies held until our fathers rebelled. Napoleon coveted the earth and our government coveted Cuba and found a casus belli in a pretense of feeding her starving people, but never fed them. Then our commercial greed crossed the ocean to the Philippines and bought them for a song with ten millions of negroes thrown in. England coveted South Africa and has already spent millions of money and rivers of blood in an effort to subdue a free people and get possession of their gold mines! I don't believe that any of this is God's will. Greece and Rome and Carthage and Napoleon all came to grief. Offense must needs come, but woe unto those by whom they come. I don't believe that any war of aggression has the favor of God, but sooner or later the aggressor will reap what he has sown. John Brown was backed by Henry Ward Beecher and other preachers who thought they saw the will of God in an uprising of the slaves against their masters, no matter if it resulted in murder and arson and other outrages too horrible to mention. He was as much an anarchist as Czolgosz, and his infamous scheme a thousand times more horrible; but last year they removed his bones to Connecticut and reinterred them with honors and a monument. No, I am still the same old rebel—unreconstructed, unrepentant, and I am incredulous of any real or lasting harmony between the north and the south as long as the pension grab goes on and gets bigger every year and we have to pay a third of it for being conquered. If peace and love and harmony prevail, why bleed us forever? Why take our hard earnings to support the children and grandchildren of union soldiers, one-third of whom were Hessians and hirelings who were fighting for $10 a month and rations, with no thought of patriotism? From that imported class, no doubt, sprang these anarchists that breed discord and discontent among our people. Czolgosz was no foreigner. He was born in Detroit, went to school there, learned his trade there, and his elder brother was a soldier in the union army, and he is just as much an American citizen as 54 per cent of the population of New York City—native-born, but of foreign parents. The seeds of anarchy were sown long ago, and it is too late to drive it out by any legislation. The assassins of our presidents were all native-born American citizens. Indeed, it is not surprising that among 75,000,000 of people there are to be found a few men of such abnormal mind as to glory in killing a president. As Roosevelt said, a president must take his chances. "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." Why that wretch should wish to kill such a kind-hearted and unselfish man as Mr. McKinley, passeth comprehension. If he was jealous of power or great wealth, why didn't he pursue Morgan or Rockefeller or Carnegie? Oh, the pity of it! An unselfish, great-hearted, Christian gentleman. No wonder the women are helping to build the Atlanta monument, for Mr. McKinley was a model husband, true to his marriage vows and ever thoughtful of his loving wife. Even in apprehension of his fate he carried $100,000 of life insurance, and it was all for her—yes, all for her whom he loved better than fame or wealth or power.

And now comes President Roosevelt, the first president from Georgia stock. I like the start he has made, and I believe he will be as much the president as was Andrew Jackson. If we had a United States bank he would close it and remove the deposits. Yes, I know the stock from away back. When I was a school-boy I visited Roswell, where the Kings and Dunwoodys and Bullochs and Pratts and Hands all lived in elegant seclusion. Dan Elliott was one of my companions—a mischievous, black-eyed youth of 16; I went to school with him. He was half-brother to our president's mother. Yes, I know the stock, and maybe I can get some little office with good pay and little work—something like a sinecure or a sine qua non—something that would suit my declining years and let me down easy. I think I would like that, and the president ought to give it to me because I went to school with his half-uncle Dan or his uncle half Dan—that's reason enough.

But my time is up, for my wife says she is going to take an evening nap and I must look after the two little granddaughters, Jessie's children. There is a brand new little boy there now, and the little girls are staying with us till their little brother gets acquainted. Before long I will have to brush up my old baby songs again and sing that boy to sleep. They keep on working me as long as I last. When I die I reckon the women will build a monument to me and say on it:

"He was a faithful husband and father. He nursed the children and grandchildren as long as he lasted."

—Bill Arp, in Atlanta Constitution.

CUTSIDE THE PRISON GATE.

A Few Kind Words That Changed the Life of a Discharged Convict.

The following is the substance of a true story recently told by a gentleman who had been one of the Prison Commissioners of the State of Connecticut:

"Some thirty years ago, when I was passing the State Prison at Wethersfield, I noticed the gate open and a man come out. The tears streamed from his eyes as he stood perplexed.

"'Where now, my friend?' I asked cheerfully.

"'I don't know, sir. I don't suppose any one wants me anywhere.'

"'I am walking to Hartford; come with me.'

"It was a warm day in early May. The poor convict opened his heart to his new acquaintance, and told him what had brought him to the penitentiary. It soon came out that the convict had made shoes in prison.

"'I think I know a man,' said the gentleman, 'who will hire you in his factory, and if I were in your place I would not lisp a word about having been in prison.'

"'You have been kind,' said the released prisoner, turning away with quivering lips; 'I must say good-by, I cannot longer live and lie. I promised God last night in my cell that when I came out I would be an upright man and take the consequences, and I will keep my word.'

"'Forgive me for tempting you at the outset,' I said. 'Come on.'

"I saw my friend, the manufacturer, and told him the whole story. He had a little talk with my man and made a bargain with him. That night, just as the shop was about to close, we three went into the workroom.

"'Here is a poor fellow who was discharged from State Prison this morning,' said the proprietor. 'I am going to give him a start in life by taking him into the shop; he begins work to-morrow.'

"There were indignant glances among the men, and one spoke up hastily:

"'I shall leave is he stays! I will not work with a jailbird!'

"'Very well,' said the employer. 'Any one who wishes to leave will have a bill of his time in the morning.'

"Only the one man who had objected left:

"Ten years later the 'jailbird' was the owner of that manufactory and the man who would not work with him was one of his journeymen.

"That former convict is now a State Senator in one of the New England Legislatures. He said to me to-day:

"'I tremble when I think of what the result might have been had an evil man instead of a good friend met me outside of the prison door.'"

—Youth's Companion.

Cost of "Running" Gibraltar.

There are over a thousand large cannon on the rock. Go in what direction you will—north, east, south, west, back or front, to the right or the left—you will find guns, guns, guns. So regular are they in places that they seem like monstrous pins projecting from a paper. The Line Wall is an appalling mass of masonry, two miles long, relieved by projecting bastions. There are two great guns, 100 tons each. The balls that they send eight miles on their messages of death weigh 2000 pounds each, and have to be lifted up to the mouth of the gun by machinery. A man could indeed sleep very comfortably in one of these cannons, so far as the question of mere space is concerned.

Back of the town are the batteries rising like grim iron sentries over the little terraced rows of houses on the hillside, each row seeming to be on an elevation of its own. To keep the garrison costs about a million and a quarter dollars a year, though this does not take in the money spent on improvements in fortifications, the building of new defenses, etc.—The Ledger Monthly.

There are thirty-nine miles of books in the British museum.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

No fuel, no fire.

While there's hope there's life.

Simplicity is the sign of seriousness.

The use of the arrow depends on the aim.

Nothing is more profitable than preparation.

The shadow may be the price we pay for the sunshine.

When ability meets opportunity the road of duty is plain.

Your promotion cannot be measured by your locomotion.

It takes the hammer of practice to drive in the nails of precept.

The best things will be but stuff to the man who only seeks the stuff.

He who is only passively willing to do right will find himself actively wishing to do wrong.

The majesty of a man cannot be measured till he is seen standing in a magnificent minority.—Ram's Horn.

WATER PURIFIED BY OZONE.

Moscow's Successful Plan for Keeping Down Infectious Disease Germs.

A new method of sterilizing a city's water supply is being successfully operated in Russia and it was described at the annual meeting of the American Association of Water Works Engineers recently held here, in a paper forwarded by Nicholas Simin, chief engineer of the city of Moscow, where the system has been adopted and according to M. Simin is universally commended.

The plan is to sterilize the water by the introduction of ozonized air and it is contended on its behalf that it destroys all the bacteria in the water and makes it at comparatively small cost absolutely safe for drinking purposes. So far, the system has not been adopted outside Russia, but M. Simin contends that in this country conditions are more favorable than anywhere else for its adoption, and he advocates its introduction here as tending to solve all problems in regard to contaminated water supplies.

The system is based upon the principles that ozone burns all organic matter with which it comes in contact in water, including bacteria and their vital products, that with water which has been freed previously of suspended matter the destruction of the bacteria is equally efficient, no matter how great may be the number, and that the pathogenic bacteria are among the first to be destroyed.

The purification of the water in this way is simply a development of and an improvement upon the ordinary aeration of water by means of atmospheric air. The air, before coming in contact with the water, is subjected to a series of electrical discharges which convert the oxygen from diatomic oxygen to tetratomic oxygen, which is ozone and is remarkable for its power of oxidizing organic matter including the bacteria in water. The cost is put at $6.25 for each million gallons, or in large plants even less.

Extensive experiments in the system have been made in France, Germany, Holland and Belgium. The necessary removal of suspended matter is accomplished by using a small quantity of coagulant for mere clarification. M. Simin says: Ozonization oxidizes not only the bacteria, but all organic matter. The water is rendered colorless, sparkling and odorless. It has an agreable and refreshing taste and there is introduced into it no foreign matter except oxygen, which of course, is beneficial.—New York Sun.

The House of Minos.

Discoveries in Crete seem likely rather to add to than detract from the mythical value of the stories of Minos, the law-giver, of the bull-headed Minotaur, of the 20 youths and virgins of Athens, of Ariadne and her ball of twine and of the hero Theseus who penetrated into the Labyrinth and slew the monster. Instead of being local variants of universal sun-myths, it is possible that all these persons lived and did much as the poets and story-tellers say. For the past two years Arthur J. Evans, an Englishman, who is at the head of the Cretan exploration fund, has been working on the site of ancient Knossos, and all that he has yet found is curiously corroborative of the ancient myths and legends. He has laid bare evidences of a civilization infinitely superior to that which existed at the same time on the Greek mainland. He has found relics of painting and sculpture which are far in advance of contemporary art in Egypt, and can be equalled only by that of the Periclean age which came 10 centuries later. He has discovered that linear writing was known and practised 700 years earlier than the first known historic writings. He has found evidences of a luxury and refinement which were at least equal to those of Egypt and Assyria at their most flowery periods; and all these things in the fabled Labyrinth, the House of the Double Axe, the Palace of Minos.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

"Can Do" Will Not Do.

Out of all the men of the First Chinese regiment—we trust it will also be the very last—that went to the front in north China, not more than 200 returned to Wei-hai-wei. Few casualties occurred among them, but the large majority of the rank and file, who had devoted themselves most industriously to the collection of loot simply deserted with this spoil. We regard this attempt to make soldiers out of the "can do" Chinese coolie as an experiment, and we earnestly advocate its early abandonment.—Hongkong Press.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

Subject: The Defeat of Oblivion—Though the Earth and All Thereon May Pass Away, Yet Every Soul Will Be Remembered in Heaven.

[Copyright, 1901.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows how any one can be widely and forever recollected and cheers despondent Christian workers; texts, Job xxiv, 20, "He shall be no more remembered," and Psalms cxii, 6, "The righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance."

Of oblivion and its defeats I speak today. There is an old monster that swallows down everything. It crunches individuals, families, communities, States, nations, continents, hemispheres, worlds. Its diet is made up of years, of centuries, of ages, of cycles, of millenniums, of eons. That monster is called by Noah Webster and all the other dictionaries "Oblivion." It is a steep down which everything rolls. It is a conflagration in which everything is consumed. It is a dirge which all orchestras play and a period at which everything stops. It is the cemetery of the human race. It is the domain of forgetfulness. Oblivion! At times it throws a shadow over all of us, and I would not pronounce it to-day if I did not come armed in the strength of the eternal God on your behalf to attack it, to rout it, to demolish it.

Why, just look at the way the families of the earth disappear. For awhile they are together, inseparable and to each other indispensable, and then they part, some by marriage going to establish other homes, and some leave this life, and a century is long enough to plant a family, develop it, prosper it and obliterate it. So the generations vanish. Walk up Pennsylvania avenue, Washington; Broadway, New York; State street, Boston; Chestnut street, Philadelphia; the Strand, London; Princess street, Edinburgh; Champs Elysees, Paris; Unter den Linden, Berlin, and you will meet in this year 1901 not one person who walked there in the year 1801. What engulfment. All the ordinary efforts at perpetuation are dead failures. Walter Scott's Old Mortality may go round with his chisel to recut the faded epitaphs on tombstones, but Old Oblivions has a quicker chisel, with which he can cut out a thousand epitaphs while Old Mortality is cutting in one epitaph.

Call the roll of the armies of Baldwin I. or of Charles Martel or of Marlborough or of Mithridates or of Prince Frederick or of Cortes, and not one answer will you hear. Stand them in line and call the roll of the 1,000,000 men in the army of Thebes. Not one answer. Stand them in line, the 1,750,000 infantry and the 200,000 cavalry of the Assyrian army under Ninus, and call the roll. Not one answer. Stand in line the 1,000,000 men of Sesostris, the 1,200,000 men of Artaxerxes at Cunaxa, the 2,641,000 men under Xerxes at Thermopylae and call the long roll. Not one answer. At the opening of our Civil War the men of the Northern and Southern armies were told that if they fell in battle their names would never be forgotten by their country. Out of the million men who fell in battle or died in military hospitals you cannot call the names of a thousand, nor the names of 500, nor the names of 100, nor the names of fifty.

Oblivion! The world itself will roll into it as easily as a schoolboy's rubber ball rolls down a hill, and when our world goes it is so interlocked by the law of gravitation with other worlds that they will go, too, and so far from having our memory perpetuated by a monument of Aberdeen granite in this world there is no world in sight of our strongest telescope that will be a sure pediment for any slab of commemoration of the fact that we ever lived or died at all. Our earth is struck with death. The axeltree of the constellations will break and let down the populations of other worlds. Stellar, lunar, solar mortality. Oblivion! It can swallow and will swallow whole galaxies of worlds as easily as a crocodile takes down a frog.

Yet oblivion does not remove or swallow anything that had better not be removed or swallowed. The old monster is welcome to his meal. This world would long ago have been overcrowded if not for the merciful removal of nations and generations. What if all the books had lived that were ever written and printed and published? The libraries would by their immensity have obstructed intelligence and made all research impossible.

What if all the people that had been born were still alive? We would have been elbowed by our ancestors of ten centuries ago, and people who ought to have said their last word 3000 years ago would snarl at us, saying, "What are you doing here?" There would have been no room to turn around. Some of the past generations of mankind are not worth remembering. The first useful thing that many people did was to die; their cradle a misfortune and their grave a boon.

